Branch 333 C. M. B. A., Vernon River, intend holding a grand Tea Party on the beautiful grounds adjoining their Hall, on Dominion Day, Monday, July 2nd, 1906.

Vernon River enjoys an enviable reputation for tea parties of rare excellence, and there is reason to believe this one will equal, if it will not surpass any of its predecessors. The grounds chosen are admirably adapted for a gathering such as this, having on one side a cool shady grove, and at the roadside entrance to the field is the spacious C. M. B. A. Hall, where the tea tables will be set. It will thus be seen that ample shade from hot sun and protection from bad weather are assured. Well stocked refreshment saloons and ample dancing booths will be provided.

SPECIAL FEATURES
Of the day's entertainment will be a match game of base ball between two local teams, the Rangers and the Crescents, 100 yards dash for boys under 15, 100 yards dash for adults; potato races, open to all comers; dancing contests. These games will commence at 10 o'clock. They will be presided over by competent judges, and suitable prizes will be given.

A Special Train will leave Charlottetown for Murray Harbor on the morning of Dominion Day, and this train will take passengers for the tea from all stations at Dominion Day fares. The regular train from Murray Harbor on that morning will take passengers to Vernon River at like reduced rates.

A BAND WILL BE IN ATTENDANCE.

Any person bringing intoxicants on the grounds will be summarily dealt with and unceremoniously ejected. Come one and all and enjoy a day's sport.

E. J. O'DONNELL, Sec'y. March 29, 1906.

What Makes a Gentleman.

FROM "A GENTLEMAN."

At a dance, when the refreshments are served, you must think of yourself last. If you want to gorge yourself, you can take a yard or two of Bologna sausage to your room after the entertainment is over. A young man over twenty—one should wear an evening suit and no jewelry at a dance. Infants under that age are supposed to be safely tucked in bed at the time the ordinary dance begins.

At a dance or at any other entertainment no introduction should be made. If a gentleman is presented to a lady, it should be done only after her permission has been asked and received. And the form should be, "Mrs. Jones, allow me to present Mr. Smith." A younger man should always be introduced to an older man, one of inferior position to one of superior position. If you are introducing a friend to the Mayor of your city, you ought not to say, "Let me introduce the Mayor to you." On the contrary, the form should be "Mr. Mayor, allow me to present my friend Mr. Smith."

On being introduced to a lady it is not the fashion for the man to extend his hand, for hand-shaking on first introduction is a thing of the past. If the lady extends her hand, it is proper to take it; but the pump-handle style is no longer practised, except perhaps in some unknown wilds of Alaska. After a man is introduced to a lady, and he meets her again, he must not bow until she has bowed to him. In America and England we give the privilege to the woman. An American takes his hat entirely from his head when he meets a lady; a foreigner raises it but slightly, but he bows lower than we do. In introducing people we ought always to be careful to give them their titles, and to add, if possible, the place from which they come. If Mr. Jones, of Chicago, is introduced to Mr. Robinson, of New York, the subject of conversation is already arranged. We know what they will talk about. If the wife of the President introduced you to him, she would call him the President; but if you addressed him, you would call him "Mr. President," as you would address the Mayor of a city as "Mr. Mayor." Mrs. Grant was the only President's wife who did not give her husband his title in introductions; she called him simply and modestly, "Mr. Grant."

"Is Dr. Blank a homeopathist?" was asked of the porter who answered the ring of the door-bell. Hesitating for a moment, his African features lighting up, the porter replied:—

Islanders Abroad.

Although our Island Province is small in area and population, the number of her sons and daughters who have gone abroad and settled in other parts of the Dominion and the United States would almost appear to be legion. At the present day the Canadian West is the goal of the greater number of Islanders, especially the men, who leave our shores. While it cannot be regretted that so many of our people go away, we are despond to view their settlement in our great Canadian West with a spirit of patriotic pride. The west is a great country with a great future and Islanders have proved themselves at least the equals of their fellows wherever they go. We therefore feel satisfied that they will uphold the credit of their Island home and do their full share in developing the great west and that the history of the occident will find their names honorably inscribed in due proportion.

Whatever may be said of the Canadian West and of the present tendency of our people to settle there, the great majority of Islanders abroad are in the United States, a large proportion of them in the New England States, especially in and around Boston. Before there was much heard about our great west and long before the advent of the present facilities of transportation, a large number of Islanders made their home in Boston and the neighboring sections. Agate, the conditions of life in a new country like the west are not suitable to all; consequently there will always be a proportion of our people who will be disposed to go to the States. The activities of great cities; the prevalence of constantly increasing commercial, mechanical and manufacturing industries must continue to attract great numbers. In all these vocations the sons and daughters of Prince Edward Island have done and are doing their part nobly and well.

Their activities have not been exclusively confined to the mechanical arts and the vocations demanding physical force and agility. The Islanders stand out in due proportion in the world of letters and in the educational and professional callings. But whatever may be their calling and however long they have been absent they all have a warm feeling for the old home and visitors from the Island are sure to receive at their hands the greatest kindness and the most generous treatment.

The number of Islanders one meets with, even in a short visit to Boston is extraordinary and impossible to refer to fully in a brief space. In the medical profession the Island is very well represented in Boston and vicinity. Dr. James A. McDonald, formerly of Grand Tracadie, has been practising his profession in Charlestown for forty years. He has been eminently successful. His family is now grown up; one son is a Doctor practising with his father; another has almost completed his medical studies; another is in the legal profession, and a daughter is completing her education in Europe. Our friend Dr. R. J. McCormack is enjoying a large and always increasing professional business. His kindness and hospitality to Islanders are proverbial. Dr. A. J. Donnelly in Cambridge continues to enjoy a large and growing practice. He deserves to prosper; he is clever and popular. Dr. C. H. Dalton, in Summerville is constantly extending the bounds of his professional business. He is deservedly prosperous in his calling. Dr. James S. McDonald, formerly of St. Andrew's, has a very large practice in South Boston. The Dr. and Mrs. McDonald are most friendly to Islanders and exercise a most generous hospitality. Dr. Harry F. MacLeod, is prospering in his profession in Dorchester. Dr. William Johnston has a large practice also in the Dorchester district. Richard E. Johnston and William J. O'Donnell are both climbing the ladder of professional eminence in the law. Both practice in Boston. Dr. Henry E. Smith, Dentist is doing a very large professional business in Boston. He occupies splendid chambers on Warren Street, near Elm Hill Park. Prosperity in the land of his adoption has not cooled Dr. Smith's love for his Island home or his friendship for Islanders. H. B. McEachern, of Bayfield, is a young Islander that deserves praise. He has for some years been engaged in the insurance business, but his spare time he devoted to the study of the law. His perseverance has been rewarded by his admission to the legal profession. Such perseverance deserves success.

The number of Islanders in the professions are of necessity but a fraction of our people who have made a success in Boston and vicinity. There are many who are well doing in the mechanical arts and in various vocations, and from one and all a visitor from the Island has a warm and cordial greeting. William E. Murphy of Cambridge continues his success in the book business, and at his home he and Mrs. Murphy dispense the same generous hospitality. May still greater success be his. Peter J. Carmichael, hardware merchant in Cambridge, has always a warm hand grasp and a cordial greeting for Islanders. Change of country has not changed the man. Daniel J. McLean, in the real estate business with McCloskey & Hart, Cambridge, is an enthusiast in matters pertaining to Prince Edward Island, as well as in whatever he undertakes. He is a man of system and elasticity in his business; a warm and genuine friend. J. D. McIntyre in the immense establishment of S. S. Pierce & Co. is a good sample of the solid and prudent Islander abroad. Always at his side, and always glad to meet a friend and do him a good turn, J. D. is all right. John C. McDonald occupies an important position in the mechanical management of Young's Hotel, a comfortable and warm-hearted home and a spot for the old Island home. He and Mrs. McDonald dispense a generous hospitality at their beautiful home at Medford Hills. Next door to him is J. J. McDonald, who is succeeding admirably in his calling of plasterer. He is a skilled mechanic, has a home full home where he and Mrs. McDonald cordially welcome visitors from the Island. Mr. McDonald has achieved many successes in athletics, and has performed a feat of great bravery in saving the life of a young boy. He possesses interesting souvenirs of these; but he is very modest in any allusion to such matters. The Ouseings to attract great numbers. In all been quite successful. They are doctors, druggists, real estate agents, etc. Mr. Henry J. Cunningham is quite prominent in political circles. He has been chief of police, and no doubt, he will yet be heard from in the political field. Charles J. McLean has achieved success in the shoe-business, and undoubtedly greater success awaits him. He deserves it. Mr. Thomas Melonis and Mr. Peter McIntyre, formerly of St. Peter's, are among the Islanders who are prospering in the mechanical line, in East Boston. Mr. McIntyre is now Taniat of the Clan Cameron. This is the next office to Chief and in the natural order he will succeed to the chiefship next year. Mr. James Scott, barber, brother of our friend, the successful artist of this city, Mr. W. H. Scott, carries on a successful business in the Dorchester district. Mr. Scott has a nice home where visitors from the city are sure of a warm welcome. Mrs. Scott is not an Islander; but she is equally enthusiastic with her husband in praising Island products. These constitute but a very small fraction of the Islanders one meets with in and near Boston. Success to the Islanders abroad.

"The Lover of Souls."

Under the above caption, the Rev. Henry Brinkmeyer gives us an instructive and interesting volume containing nineteen short conferences on the Sacred Heart of Jesus. The reverend author tells us in his preface that these conferences are "as bouquets of flowers gathered in years gone by from various gardens to suit my own taste, and for the pleasure and comfort of those to whom they were presented."

WHAT IS DEVOTION?

In the initial conference, Father Brinkmeyer explains what true devotion is, gives the reason why there are so many devotions, and concludes by saying: "In our century there are two popular devotions which evidently come from God. They are devotion to the Sacred Heart of Jesus, and devotion to the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin."

TWO POPULAR DEVOTIONS.

In the second conference the author shows how these two devotions are designed to meet the two great evils of the day,—naturalism and conceit. The way in which he does this is thus summarized: "What are the wants of the times?" he says. "Truth and Love! because the evils of the times are what we call naturalism and conceit. Naturalism is the evil affecting the mind of the age, conceit is the evil affecting the heart; Christian faith is the remedy for the evil of the mind, Christian love the remedy for the evil of the heart; and just as naturalism engenders and strengthens conceit, so faith engenders and strengthens love. Now, devotion to the Immaculate Conception enlightens, animates, and strengthens faith; while devotion to the Sacred Heart inspires and fortifies love, and just as faith prepares the way for love, so the Immaculate Conception prepares the way for the Sacred Heart."

THE OBJECT OF DEVOTION TO THE SACRED HEART.

The object of devotion to the Sacred Heart is clearly explained in the next conference, Father Brinkmeyer says that "the reason we love in a special manner the Sacred Heart of Our Lord is because the heart is the seat of His human love." He then explains how the divine uncreated love of the Saviour has been shown in the creation of the world, in the incarnation of the Son of God, and in the reward of the just. We have proofs of the human love of the Redeemer in His dwelling among men, His example, in the institution of the Blessed Sacrament, and in His bitter Passion and Death. Having devoted twelve conferences to show the undying love of the Sacred Heart of Jesus for mankind, the reverend author next considers the necessity of making reparation for the insults offered our Saviour by ungrateful sinners.

Such is a very brief outline of this well-written book, "The Lover of Souls." It gives a very clear idea of the nature and object of true devotion to the Sacred Heart. It can not help doing a great deal of good. We hope that it will have many readers. Published by Benziger Brothers, New York. Price $1.00.—Sacred Heart Review.

Rheumatism in Shoulders.

"I had the Rheumatism in my shoulders so bad that I could not rest at night. I took Milburn's Rheumatic Pills and have not had a trace of it since." John Kirton, Glenboro, Man.

"I don't know which is worse," muttered young Bunderheeler at the swell reception, retreating to a corner and wiping his perspiring brow; "but I believe I would rather be run over by a train than step on one."

Minard's Liniment Cures everything.

Does Your Food Digest Well?

When the food is imperfectly digested the full benefit is not derived from it by the body and the purpose of eating is defeated; no matter how good the food or how carefully adapted to the wants of the body it may be. Thus the dyspeptic often becomes thin, weak and debilitated, energy is lacking, brightness, snap and vim are lost, and in their place come dullness, lost appetite, depression and languor. It takes no great knowledge to know when one has indigestion, some of the following symptoms generally exist, viz: constipation, sour stomach, variable appetite, headache, heartburn, gas in the stomach, etc.

The great point is to cure it, to get back bounding health and vigor.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

It constantly effects cures of dyspepsia, because it acts in a natural yet effective way upon all the organs involved in the process of digestion, removing all clogging impurities and making easy the work of digestion and assimilation.

Mr. R. G. Harvey, Ameliasburg, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with dyspepsia for several years and after using three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I was completely cured. I cannot praise B.B.B. enough for what it has done for me. I have not had a sign of dyspepsia since."

Do not accept a substitute for B.B.B. There is nothing "just as good."

Students, Attention!

Rare Chance to Secure a College Education.

We have made arrangements that enable us to place within the reach of a limited number of deserving students, opportunities for securing, on easy terms, a classical or commercial education. A little work during the vacation season will secure this for the one worthily striving for such a boon, but who may not be in possession of sufficient money to realize his heart's desire. The facilities at our disposal enable us to offer a year's board and tuition at

to any three young men who will fulfill the necessary, easy conditions required. These may be beginners, or former students of the College who have not been able to complete their course. In addition to this we have at our disposal four scholarships at the

of Charlottetown. A full course in this excellent Commercial College may be won by any four young men or women, in town or country, who will fulfill the easy conditions we require. Whenever anyone satisfies the requirements in either of the cases enumerated he or she will be given a certificate entitling the holder to the educational advantages offered. A rare opportunity is here placed within reach of those desirous of acquiring a good education, and no time should be lost in taking advantage thereof. Only a little work is required in order to secure the coveted boon, and all can easily be accomplished during this summer's vacation, so that the winners may enter either college at the opening of the next academic year.

By a cloudburst over the valley of the Sazava River, the Bohemian, about sixty houses were demolished and dams, bridges and roads were swept away. Several persons are missing.

A severe hailstorm in Clark and Seconia Counties, Georgia, last Friday night, totally destroyed the cotton and other crops. In some places hail fell to the depth of four inches.

Mr. Cecil Ward, representing a company of capitalists of London, has purchased a half million acres of land from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company in the Edmonton district. This land is to be colonized at an early date. The company has a capital of $2,000,000.

There are still about 50,000 persons in San Francisco dependent on the supply camps for food. Major General Greely has decided that the refugees at present living on the military reservation shall be permitted to remain where they are.

A warning was issued the other day by B. F. Gobrich, a Chicago bacteriologist, in regard to the danger from bacilli in the mouthpieces of telephones, particularly in public places. Influenza, pneumonia, diphtheria and tuberculosis, according to Mr. Gobrich, lurk in the instruments.

Five women suffragists, who have been agitating for their cause with more zeal than discretion, were arrested on Friday in London near the home of H. A. Smith, Chancellor of Exchequer, while trying to annoy the Chancellor. They declare that they will go to jail rather than pay a fine and cry out they are martyrs.

The Danish schooner Bertha sank on Friday near the South Goodwin Lightship close to Dover, England, the result of a collision with the Dutch Tank steamer American from Antwerp for New York. Eight of the schooner's crew were drowned. The captain's son was the only survivor. The American sustained no damage.

A menace to navigation in the shape of a steamer's mast sticking several feet above the water has been reported to Sydney several times lately between Southerly and Flinders Island on the Cape Breton coast, and the Department of Marine has been asked to remove it. The mast is reported to be that of the steamer Baines Hawkins which foundered off Mira Bay last spring.

A drowning accident occurred on Friday in the Red Deer River, Alberta, through which Mrs. Lamarche and her little daughter lost their lives. The victims were in company with Mrs. Bond, fording the river in a wagon at Penhold, when they were swept away in the box. Mrs. Bond regained the wagon and after desperate efforts rescued Mrs. Lamarche, but too late to save her life. The child's body is not yet recovered. Eight children are bereft by the death of Mrs. Lamarche.

The Provincial general elections held in Nova Scotia on Wednesday last, resulted in the victory of the Liberal Government, headed by Premier Murray; but he lost two members of his Executive, who were defeated at the polls. They are Hon. George Patterson and Hon. H. H. Wickwire. Mr. Tanner, Leader of the Opposition, headed the poll in Pictou County, carrying with him one of his colleagues, H. H. H. Six opposition members are elected. In the last house there were but two opposition members.

At a regular meeting of Branch 264 C. M. B. A., Palmer Road, held on June 16th, the following resolution was unanimously adopted: Whereas it has pleased Almighty God, in his infinite wisdom, to remove by death our worthy and esteemed brother Moses Martin. Resolved, that we the members of this branch desire to extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved widow of our esteemed late brother, and that the following resolution be unanimously adopted: Whereas it has pleased Almighty God, in his infinite wisdom, to remove by death our worthy and esteemed brother Moses Martin. Resolved, that a copy of the resolution be sent to the Canadian and the Charlottetown Herald for publication.

The first meeting of the Chess Board was held in Charlottetown, Friday afternoon last. Officers were elected as follows:—President,—L. McDonald, East Point; Vice-President,—Chas. Waye, St. Peter's; Secretary and Treasurer, Robt. Jenkins, Mount Albion. R. E. Spillet brought all the chess pieces at $1.25; 200 sets were not sold. The following chess boards: Kensington, 150; New Perth, 50; Lakeville, 33; Dundas 25 flats, 30 whole; Union, 140 flats; Pownall 50; New Glasgow, 50. A resolution was passed asking that all factories join the Board and contribute towards its support. The Dargyone considered the Board of adjacent importance to pay the fee of $3.00.

A fire in the town of Nicolet, in the Province of Quebec, on Thursday night last, caused a property loss of about $400,000. The loss was almost, if not entirely, covered by insurance. The fire was discovered shortly after six o'clock in the old parish church. The fire brigade was altogether inadequate to cope with the fire, and a call for assistance was sent to St. Hyacinthe. Meanwhile the new Cathedral, a stone edifice recently constructed and valued at $100,000, took fire. The flames spread to St. Joseph's in a home for priests, and from there to Nicolet Convent. All four edifices were completely destroyed. The convent was a new building costing $150,000, and the furnishings $50,000. At the time of the fire it is said there were three hundred nuns in residence in the convent. So far as known no lives were lost. Nicolet is on the north shore of the St. Lawrence, about sixty miles from Montreal.

Good strong reliable Clothing, well finished in every detail. Swell Suits for hard-to-please men, made by the cleverest and most painstaking experts in the Clothing line, are here in abundance for your selection.

You will make a big mistake if you do not purchase your Clothing here, where quality, Fit and price are equally reliable.

In Boys' Suits

We are showing a stock which for fit, style, workmanship and price, are the best ever shown in Charlottetown. We are paying particular attention to our Boys' Clothing, and would suggest that you purchase none until you have seen ours, which certainly have the characteristics of style and quality that Boys' Suits should have. You will find our prices low in comparison.

Men's Hats at Half Price

We are clearing out several lines of Men's Hats, in both hard and soft felt at half price, in some cases below it. You will find this an excellent opportunity to get one, as the qualities are all A 1. Come in and see.

We have just stocked complete lines of Men's and Boys' Caps, Straw Hats, Duck and other summer Hats which cannot fail to please the most fastidious. Remember we are giving

35 cents a lb. for Wool

In exchange for any goods in the store and 30 cents cash. Why not bring your Wool here? We have facilities for handling enormous quantities, and can give you the best values in the city. Try all round and then come right here, you will find we can do best for you.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning that it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs.

"I was taken ill with kidney trouble, and because so weak I could scarcely get around. I took medicine without benefit, and finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the first bottle I felt so much better that I continued its use, and six bottles made me a new woman. When my little girl was a baby, she could not keep anything on her stomach, and we gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla which cured her." Mrs. Thomas Linn, Wallingford, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures kidney and liver troubles, relieves the back, and builds up the whole system.

had better look with the teal and the other water birds. Some of them will feed from my hand. I have been studying the manners and customs of the kingfisher, too, and I can show you some of my attempts at photographing him. It is about as satisfactory in the way of results as photographing a sapphire—you get a shade instead of a flash.

"You are a naturalist, I suppose?"

"Oh, no. I love birds and wild creatures, and photography is just a hobby. I have very little time for it as a rule."

While he was showing her father the photographs, Kitty was taking long sidelong glances at the stranger from beneath her silken lashes, and the more she looked the more puzzled she became as to who he could be.

What Should a Maiden Be?

(Sacred Heart Review.)

What should a maiden be? Pure as the rill, Ere it has left its first home on the hill; Thinking no evil, suspecting no guile, Cherishing naught that can harm or defile.

What should a maiden be, honest and true, Giving to God and to neighbor their due; Modest and merciful, simple and neat, Glad in the white robe of Innocence sweet.

What should a maiden be? She should be loath Lightly to give or receive loving troth; Bat when her faith is once pledged, till breath Leave her, her love should be stronger than death.

What should a maiden be? Merry, when'er Merriment comes with a natural air; Bat let not mirth be an every-day guest, Quietness sits on a maiden the best.

What should her words be? Her words should be few, Honest and genuine, tender and true; Words that overflow from a pure heart within, Guileless of folly, untainted by sin.

What should her dress be? Not gaudy and vain, Bat unaffectedly pretty and plain; She should remember these few simple words—"Fine feathers flourish on foolish young birds."

Where should a maiden be? Home is the place Which a fair maid is most fitted to grace; There should she turn, like a bird to the nest, There should a maiden be, blessing and bleat.

What will her future be? If she become Matron and mother, may God bless her home! God to the matron all blessings will give, If a God's maiden, the young maiden live.

What will her future be? If she should die, Lightly the earth on her ashes will lie; Softly her body will sleep 'neath the sod, While her pure spirit is safe with her God.

The Uses of Adversity.

"What do you think of the links?" said the other.

"Splendid!" said Mr. Rylands. And by the time they had reached the bottom of the path they were in deep discussion on a subject equally interesting to them both.

"Ob, what a weird place!" cried Kitty, as they reached the tiny stand.

"Yes, isn't it?" said the stranger. "I always think of the River Styx when I come here, and I should not be surprised some day to see old Charon paddling his boat across to fetch me," and he laughed.

"There, just where the rock shelves a little, is the great cave which, they say, takes you by a short cut to the 'nether world.'"

"You come here sometimes, then?" said Mr. Rylands.

"Yes; I come after the birds. I have been trying to make friends with a very exclusive set of heron, and I have succeeded in photographing them in some very amusing attitudes; they are not very responsive to my overtures, I find; I have and what a delightful man he is—so cultivated, and well informed, and so modest. I shall quite look forward to meeting him again."

"So shall I," said Kitty. I have never met anyone quite like him. He seems of the stuff that heroes are made of, and not, like us, 'cast in the common mould of coarser clay.'"

"I expect he can play golf," said her father, and she laughed merrily. That night, after silence had fallen on "The Manor," and the whole household slept, Kitty sat by her open casement in deep thought.

The moonlight was streaming over the quiet garden and all along the silent valley, the river showed a streak of gleaming silver through the meadow, and amongst the soft darkness of its wooded banks.

"Tell me," said Amiel, "what you feel in your solitary room, when the full moon is shining in upon you, and your lamp is dying out, and I will tell you how old you are, and I shall know if you are happy;" but the girl would have been puzzled to describe just what she did feel then; she was conscious of the peace and beauty of the summer night, which tinged her thoughts with a gentle melancholy, of an aspiration toward the deeper beat of things.

She fell wondering how the "Devil's Pothole" looked at the witching hour of night, reflecting the stars on its still surface, and making a mirror for the moon, but keeping its depth in darkness and guarding its secrets under its peaty water. An eerie place at all times, she felt now she would not care to see it at that hour—even Father de Winton would hardly like to venture there at night.

And yet why not? There was nothing more deadly there than the long-legged heron to which he had been making friendly overtures, and which would be old friends by this time; it was only the unknown that frightened one. Nature always tried to keep one on the safe side, and like a mother guarding forbidden things from her inquisitive children, she scooped them away from her hiding-places with suggestions full of fear.

But Father de Winton would not be easily dismayed, even the appearance of 'Old Charon' as he had called him, with his grim craft, would hardly have power to disturb that calm serenity which shone out of his clear, brave eyes. How could one attain to that high spirit, that steadfast soul? How had he come by it, what had it cost him? And that was a Catholic priest!

A sudden thought moved her; she rose and left the room and went into her study, the room which might have been called haunted, because of the incidents associated with it. She closed the door and turned on the light, filling the room with a soft, warm glow.

Certainly there was nothing ghostly here; the paneled walls were almost hidden by fine pictures, dainty water colors, and photographs of well-known paintings. The diamond-paned windows were hung with silken curtains, trimmed with rare embroidery, and a splendid Turkey carpet of beautiful coloring covered the floor.

Kitty sat down in her emerald chair, a low, soft, nest of enamel and velvet, and looked round the room with a new interest, taking up her reflections at the point where she had broken them off—and that was a Catholic priest! That strong, fearless young man, with his proud bearing and modest, gentle manner. A man surely, who knew the immortal part of himself and who tuned his being, with all its impulses and passions, to the music of a strong will turned to the nobler purposes of life. No man like this had ever come into her world; he was, figuratively speaking, from the wilderness, from the silent places and the untainted atmosphere; out beyond the social world she knew, where men grew to their full height removed from all enervating influence. A man whose mind had never been clothed with the soft garments of luxury and sensuality; who had fought the good fight and overcome his baser self; and now, "his soul well knit, and all his battles won," he had gone forth to preach to his brethren about the God he served.

And this was a Catholic priest! And they were men like this who had been hidden away in the little dark hiding-place, almost under her feet, to save them from the fury of ignorant men and lawless soldiers; men like this who were hunted like criminals across the country and shot down like wild beasts; hanged and disemboweled for their faith and constancy. And the man who had received his death wound in that very room, he had been young, too, and of a noble house; with just such a calm, courageous look he would have faced his murderers, here, just by the casement, and rebuked them for their savage treatment of his boat. Then they struck him down; he was tall and strong, they said, and they were afraid of him—the towards! She was glad to think that "his gentle spirit had aspired the clouds" before the air of the noisome prison had breathed upon it. Oh, the shame and the pity of it! The tragedy came home now to her warm young heart, and hot tears sprang to her eyes. She had taken that room for her own with a very light heart, in laughing defiance of old tales and ghostly legends, without a thought of bygone sorrows and pain; she would take her shoes from off her feet and consider that she stood on holy ground, because she knew and understood what manner of young man he was who had suffered there—no rebel, he—no sedition man of evil mind, or disturber of the king's peace. She thought with sudden anger of all the lying histories she had read of such men—but a man in love with the religion of Christ, a humble follower of Jesus, whose gospel was love, and mercy, and justice!

She rose from her seat, and with one of those impulses which only a woman could know, she went over to the spot where the priest had been stricken down, and, moving back the carpet, she knelt and kissed the dark stain where the martyr's blood had flowed. This was her act of reparation for her thoughtlessness and indifference to that most piteous death scene; it was her offering of condolence and compassion for the pain and woe which were suffered there, and a warm tear welling up from her pure, impulsive heart, splashed over and shone a bright gem on the stained wood. Kitty had often talked lightly of a "psychological moment," but that she would ever know by her experience just what she meant by the phrase she never for a moment imagined, but now it flashed through her mind that something within her had quickened and stirred; with that hush her had awakened, and cried to be delivered from the bonds of trivialities, from the weight of the dead works of many frivolous years.

The Birth of a New City

Prince Rupert, the new city of Northwestern British Columbia and the Pacific Coast terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific has indeed begun, and the foundations laid of the coming metropolis of the Western Province of the Dominion. The camps of the surveyors, both those of the Dominion and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, are pitched on and near the future city's boundaries.

Mr. Dodge, superintending the government survey, has his camp stationed near the mouth of Tuck's Inlet, just opposite Vies's Passage, in view of historic Metlakahla. He intends to make a survey of the coast line waters of the inlet, and as this will take him considerable time, he expects to remain in camp until October, and has accordingly fitted up comfortable quarters. He says the Metlakahla carpenters have the honor of building the first house on Kaien Island, and is much pleased with them as workmen.

Further east, up the inlet where surveys are now in progress at different points, the Grand Trunk Pacific Company's men are busy in the vicinity of their respective camps—one near Seal Harbor, where the new sawmill will be built, and one a mile and a half further east. Here the wharf and three buildings will at once be erected, as already piles for the wharf are being erected.

The legend of the worry and unhappiness of Pius X. has taken in imaginative journalism the place of the legend of indisposition which had grown so wearisome an element of press paragraphs in the case of Leo XIII. There is no truth in the reports—the first of the new order, they may be called—which ascribe two dangerous maladies to the Pontiff. One malady he has, and he has had it for some years, but in a very slight degree. It is the gout, trifling touches of which he had suffered in the autumn of 1903, occasionally at some subsequent periods and again just recently. But every one at Rome knows that the latest attack, like the others, has been slight, and that it is past.

Now comes the wool time,—the sheep have to get their coats off—and their coat is worth money,—worth more money than lots of coats that are advertised at half price. Wool is wool, and cotton is cotton; but the wool has fortunately for the farmers been bringing high prices. This is good for all, concerned, but the high price will not last long. Bring your wool to and get your us, cash or trade whichever you prefer.—If you take cash you get the highest price—if you take trade you get the lowest priced goods in addition to the best selection of dry goods, dress goods, millinery, white wear, and mens furnishings that are shown on P. E. I.—No matter what others say.

We want your wool—Bring it right to us!—Stanley Bros.

If you want anything at any time, and cannot come yourself; just drop us a postal, and we shall be pleased to send you samples and give you any information of any line of goods offered in a first class store like ours. Stanley Bros.

A teacher was instructing a class of boys and had spent half an hour trying to drive into their heads the difference between man and the lower animals, but apparently with little success.

"Tommy," he said, coaxingly, to a little chap, "do you know the difference between, say, me and a pig, or any other brute?"

"No," replied Tommy, innocently, but another teacher standing by laughed.

Down in a Southern town a Baptist evangelist was holding a revival in a Methodist church, and all the Presbyterian folks were "agin' it."

The Catholic priest there is a jolly young fellow. One of the brethren said to him: "Why don't you go down to the meeting?"

"What meeting?"

"Why, a Baptist preacher is preaching in the Methodist church to a lot of Presbyterians."

And the young priest answered: "I do not like hash."—Talent.

Destroys Worms. Mrs. John Lowe, New Germany, N. S., writes: "I have given Dr. Low's Worm Syrup to my children with excellent results. They are fond of taking it and it acts perfectly, requiring no cathartic afterwards."

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper. A new definition was given recently by a negro in an American court. This man, a witness, was roaring out his testimony.

"Stop!" the judge commanded. "Don't you know you're in court?"

"Ya-as'r," replied the negro. "Well, don't you know what a court is?"

"Oh-ho, ya-as'r," said the old fellow with a bow. "Ya-as'r; a co't is a place whad dey dispenses with justice?"

Chilblains. Mrs. J. B. Rusk's Ruskvick, Ont., says: "I have used Hagar's Yellow Oil for chilblains, and found it most effectual. It relieved the irritation almost immediately and a few applications made a complete cure."

The pretty girl with the suburban hair had refused him.

"I never dreamed, Mr Smykins," she said, "that your attentions to me were anything more than those of a friend."

"Ob, you didn't!" growled the young man. "You thought I had been coming here regularly once a week during the last months merely for the pleasure of seeing you eat a dollar box of chocolates, did you?"
