ADVERTISE in THE EVENING TELEGRAM.

NO ONE STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

The celebrated Dr. Abernethy of London was firmly of the opinion that disorders of the stomach were the most prolific source of human ailments in general.

Several months ago I suffered from a severe pain right under the breast-bone, writes Mrs. G. M. MURKIN, of Corona, Calif.

A PRECIOUS INHERITANCE.

Unexpected Guests. 'She has been a little excited, and forgot you, perhaps,' answered Madam Conway, at the same time bidding one of the servants to show the young lady to Mrs. Jeffrey's room.

The good lady had recovered her composure somewhat, and was just wondering why her niece did not come with Madam Conway, as had been arranged, when Annie appeared, and in her delight at once more beholding a child of her only sister and her husband's brother, she forgot, in a measure, how injured she had felt.

George Douglas bowed low to the far-seeing lady, while a train of thought, not altogether complimentary to her discernment in this case, passed through his mind.

Not thus lenient would Madam Conway have been toward Henry Warner, had he presumed to ask her that morning for Maggie; but he knew better than to broach the subject.

Something of Hagar's fiery spirit flashed from Maggie's dark eyes, but forcing down her anger, she replied, half playfully, 'I am nearly old enough, grandma, to decide that matter for myself.'

A fierce expression of scorn passed over Madam Conway's face, and harsh words might have ensued had not the carriage at that moment been announced.

THE PATIENT BRAIN

A tireless worker so long as supplied with rich red blood. The brain is one of the most patient and industrious organs of the body. It can be induced, by good treatment, to perform prodigies of work.

Nervous trouble is generally brain trouble, and no suffering is to be compared to mental suffering, with the accompanying dread, suspicion and melancholy.

ed at once, for Maggie was her pet, her pride, the intended bride of Arthur Carrolton; the Conway blood flowing in her veins entitled her to much consideration, she was neither showy nor brilliant and if she could marry $200,000, even though it were American coin, she would perhaps be doing as well as could be expected.

My family, madam, are certainly respectfully, interrupted George Douglas, a deep flush overspreading his face.

He was indignant at her presuming to question his respectability, Madam Conway thought, and so she hastened to appease him, by saying, 'Certainly, I have no doubt of it. There are marks by which I can always tell.'

George Douglas bowed low to the far-seeing lady, while a train of thought, not altogether complimentary to her discernment in this case, passed through his mind.

Not thus lenient would Madam Conway have been toward Henry Warner, had he presumed to ask her that morning for Maggie; but he knew better than to broach the subject.

Something of Hagar's fiery spirit flashed from Maggie's dark eyes, but forcing down her anger, she replied, half playfully, 'I am nearly old enough, grandma, to decide that matter for myself.'

CHAPTER XII.

The Waters Are Troubled. 'GRANDMA wishes to see you, Maggie, in her room,' said Theo to her sister one morning, three days after the departure of their guests.

Wishes to see me! For what? asked Maggie, and Theo answered, 'I don't know, unless it is to talk with you about Arthur Carrolton.'

to talk to me of him. I hate the very sound of his name, and rising she walked slowly to her grandmother's room, where in her stiff brown satin dress, her golden spectacles planted firmly upon her nose, and the Valenciennes border of her cap shading but not concealing the determined look on her face, Madam Conway sat erect in her high-backed chair, with an open letter upon her lap.

It was from Henry, Maggie knew his handwriting in a moment, and there was another too, for her; but she was too proud to ask for it, and seating herself by the window she waited for her grandmother to break the silence, which she did ere long as follows:

'I have just received a letter from that Warner, asking me to sanction an engagement which he says exists between himself and you. Is it true? Are you engaged to him?'

'I am,' answered Maggie, playing nervously with the tassel of her wrapper, and wondering why Henry had written so soon, before she had prepared the way by a little judicious coaxing.

'Well, then,' continued Madam Conway, 'the sooner it is broken the better. I am astonished that you should stoop to such an act, and I hope you are not in earnest.'

'But I am,' answered Maggie, and in the same cold, decided manner, her grandmother continued: 'Then nothing remains for me but to forbid you having any communication whatever with one whose conduct in my house has been so unparadoxically rude and vulgar. You will never marry him, Margaret, never! Nay, I would sooner see you dead than the wife of that low, mean, impertinent fellow.'

In the large dark eyes there was a gleam decidedly Hagarish as Maggie arose, and standing before her grandmother, made answer: 'You must not, in my presence, speak thus of Henry Warner. He is neither low, mean, vulgar, nor impertinent. You are prejudiced against him, because you think him comparatively poor and because he has dared to look at me, who have yet to understand why the fact of my being a Conway makes me any better. I have promised to be Henry Warner's wife, and Margaret Miller never yet has broken her word.'

'But in this instance you will,' said Madam Conway, now thoroughly aroused. 'I will never suffer it; and to prove I am in earnest, I will here before your face, burn the letter he has presumed to send you; and this I will do to any others which may come to you from him.'

Maggie offered no remonstrance but the fire of a volcano burned within, as she watched the letter blackening upon the coals; and when her eyes met those of her grandmother, there was in them a fierce, determined look, which prompted that lady at once to change her tactics, and the power of persuasion, rather than of force. Feigning a smile, she said: 'What affils you, child? You look me like Hagar. It was wrong in me perhaps, to burn your letter, and have I reflected a moment, I might not have done it; but I cannot suffer you to receive any more. I have other prospects in view for you, and have only waited a favorable opportunity to tell you what they are. Sit down by me, Margaret, while I talk with you on the subject.'

THE PATIENT BRAIN

THE PATIENT BRAIN. A tireless worker so long as supplied with rich red blood. The brain is one of the most patient and industrious organs of the body.

Nervous trouble is generally brain trouble, and no suffering is to be compared to mental suffering, with the accompanying dread, suspicion and melancholy.

One-fifth of the blood in the human body is consumed by the brain, so make the blood rich and red by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and you will overcome diseases of the brain. Headaches will disappear, irritability will go, digestion will improve, and weakness and despondency will give place to new hope and courage, new vigor and energy.

MEDICINE Versus NATURE Why turn yourself into a medicine-chest, filling it with every new concoction that comes along? Nature does the curing, not medicine. Ask your Doctor for Scott's Emulsion.

The burning of her letter had affected Margaret strangely, and with a benumbed feeling at her heart, she sat down, without a word, and listened patiently to praises long and praises loud of Arthur Carrolton, who was described as being every way desirable, both as a friend and a husband.

'His father, the elder Mr. Carrolton, was an intimate friend of my husband,' said Madam Conway, 'and wishes our families to be more closely united, by a marriage between you and his son Arthur, who is rather fastidious in his taste, and though twenty-eight years old, has never yet seen a face which suited him. But he is pleased with you, Maggie. He liked your picture, imperfect as it is, and he liked the tone of your letters, which I read to him. They were so original, he said—so much like what he fancied you to be. He has a splendid country seat, and more than one nobleman's daughter would gladly share it with him; but I think he prefers you. He has a large estate near Montreal and some difficulty connected with it will ere long bring him to America. Of course he will visit here, and with a little tact on your part you can, I'm sure, secure one of the best matches in England. He is fine looking, too. I have his daguerotype; and opening her work-box, she drew it forth and held it before Maggie, who resolutely shut her eyes lest she should see the face of one she was determined to dislike.

The Evening Chit-Chat

There are some people in this world who live every moment of their lives in a strenuous way, and then wonder why they are so tired at night, why they grow old so fast, why they don't get fat, or why they have nervous breakdowns. The real wonder is that they are not more tired at night, that they do not grow old more rapidly, that they aren't a great deal thinner, and that they don't more often have nervous breakdowns. Walking is a splendid exercise, but not if you walk as if to a fire, with every nerve keyed up, and your mind passionately intent on your destination. And that is the way this type of person almost always walks, step if he is only out for an afternoon stroll and has all the time there is. And not only do these folks do so many things as walking, in an unnecessarily strenuous manner, but many things also which the normal person does quite passively, they are tense and active about. Listening, for instance, I have known a person of this type to come home from an hour's lecture as tired as if she had been doing a family washing. The explanation of her exhaustion was that she disagreed with the speaker and had been sitting on the edge of her chair mentally contradicting every word he said. Naturally she had overstrained her mental energy, and suffered and made other people suffer in self to a lower temperature, and stopping the practice at once if she feels depressed or chilled. Nearly everybody, however, will find it beneficial to rinse the body with cold water after the warm bath. This exhilarates without the shock of the cold plunge, and will render any one immune from taking cold by going outdoors after bathing. If the bath is taken at night, however, I should recommend that the rinsing be postponed till the next morning, as an application of cold water just before retiring is likely to produce wakefulness. On the other hand, very hot baths have a tendency to weaken and enervate. The warm bath—one that will feel comfortable and dissolve grime, but one not hot enough to redden the skin—is a good safe rule for the majority of people. If your pimples are caused by stomach trouble—as they frequently are—you must regulate your diet properly. Avoid rich and greasy foods and an over-abundance of sweets. Drink little tea or coffee and plenty of cool, fresh water. Exercise in the open air in order to work up a natural, healthy appetite. Take a daily bath. You will soon see an improvement in your skin. - Woman's World for March.

Beauty Baths for the Complexion.

By Mme. Jeanne La Place. The daily bath is not a fad of the day and over-lavishness people—it is practically necessary if one wishes to have a really good, clear complexion. The pores of the skin are constantly doing their share toward throwing off the impurities of the body and unless these impurities are removed by bathing after they have been eliminated they will work their way back into the system. The skin is an organism like the stomach or heart, or any other organ of the body. The skin of the face can no more be healthy when the skin of the body is clogged by impurities than the top of the lungs can be in good condition if the lower part is diseased. If you will try the practice of daily bathing for a month I am sure you will see such an improvement in your complexion and will experience such a pleasing consciousness of being thoroughly clean and well-groomed that you will never relapse into the "Saturday night" habit. It is not necessary that the daily bath should be a tub bath. In many homes this would be an absolute impossibility. A person can get almost very comfortably with two or even one tub bath a week by taking "sponge" baths the other days. These can be easily and quickly taken in the wash basin in one's own room, without interfering with the comfort or convenience of other members of the household. People sometimes write to ask if they should take hot or cold baths. No one can decide this but yourself. Warm, full-blooded people can undoubtedly take cold showers and plunges and feel nothing but pleasant exhilaration afterwards. Thin, anemic people would rather themselves to death at the very notion. I should advise anybody to experiment very cautiously with the cold bath, gradually accustoming one's self to a lower temperature, and stopping the practice at once if she feels depressed or chilled. Nearly everybody, however, will find it beneficial to rinse the body with cold water after the warm bath. This exhilarates without the shock of the cold plunge, and will render any one immune from taking cold by going outdoors after bathing. If the bath is taken at night, however, I should recommend that the rinsing be postponed till the next morning, as an application of cold water just before retiring is likely to produce wakefulness. On the other hand, very hot baths have a tendency to weaken and enervate. The warm bath—one that will feel comfortable and dissolve grime, but one not hot enough to redden the skin—is a good safe rule for the majority of people. Women Soldiers at English Camps.

Women's Sick and Wounded Convoy Corps Are Not Suffragettes. London, April 5.—While dozens of militant suffragettes are languishing in cells in Holloway jail during the brilliant Easter vacation, there is a little band of women just fifteen miles away who are trying to prove by a method far remote from the Pankhurst window-smashing crusade that women have a useful vocation other than the purely domestic one. For the first time men and women are soldiering together on equal terms. The second London division of the territorial army's supply corps are camped for Easter training at Radlett, in Herts. Attached to them is a company thirty strong of the Women's Sick and Wounded Convoy Corps. There is no joke about it. The women are in earnest about the work. There is no levity or frivolity about it, and they are as keen about the work as the crew of a battleship. The women detained at Radlett yesterday, where they met the commander-in-chief, Mrs. Stobart, and marched to the camp. They erected their own tents, dug out their camp oven, and had everything in ship-shape in half an hour. Sentries were then posted and at night they marched on their beats carrying electric torches. Orderly officers made the rounds at ten o'clock to see that everyone was in bed and to stop all talking. Reville was sounded at six o'clock this morning and all paraded. At seven there was an hour's hard drill, much of a double quick. Three men are attached to the corpse as instructors and to attend to the supplies and transport for the convey. When the women with their light wagons were paraded a woman soldier took her place in each wagon alongside a man as second in command. Miss Stratfield, on horseback, rode in the front of the women. The women soldiers who remained in camp were taken out and put through a stretcher drill, doing such stunts as carrying an instructor on a stretcher over all sorts of obstacles, such as wire fences and ditches. They also carried supposed wounded men and set fractures hastily from any sort of material that could be procured, such as fence rails. There are thirty or forty similar women detachments but this is the first one to go into regular training with men. Admission to the corps is no mere matter of volunteering. Candidates for admission to the corps are interviewed with the greatest care to exclude the introduction of frivolity. Most of the members are of independent means. Some of them are teachers, others artists. The minimum age of admission to the corps is 18. All move at the double quick in obeying orders. The uniform worn by the women soldiers consists of long coats, divided skirts, green-gray shirtwaists to match the skirts, a black tie, black gat puttees, helmets of grey-green, a badge of white with a red cross. The officers wear a similar uniform, except their shirtwaists are of white silk and they wear white instead of black silk gloves.

SURELY SETTLES UPSET STOMACHS

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia vanish in five minutes. Every year regularly more than a million stomach sufferers in the United States, England and Canada take Pape's Diapiesin, and realize not only immediate, but lasting relief. This harmless preparation will digest everything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards. If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion. Get from your Pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no more sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors. Pape's Diapiesin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food just the same as if your stomach wasn't there. Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store. These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disorder.

Sensational Feat.

New York, April 9.—Frank Law, the parachute jumper who recently made a successful leap from the Statue of Liberty, performed another sensational feat late yesterday in jumping from the top of the thirty-nine storey Bankers Trust Building at Wall and Nassau Streets. He landed safely on the roof of the Sub-Treasury building, a two-storey structure adjoining.

"Titanic" Disaster.

The Inquiry at New York

Special to Evening Telegram. NEW YORK, April 21. With dramatic suddenness the Congressional investigation has been transferred to Washington. On Monday, Bruce Ismay, Franklin, Chief Officer of the White Star Line, and more than a score of officers of the Titanic will appear there. No explanation of the disaster was given, but it is intimated that the power of the Senate on Federal territory would be undisturbed, and no question of State rights would arise to interfere during the hearing. Moreover, officials of the White Star Line had portrayed the danger of sailors' boarding houses in New York, as a reason why those detained by the Committee should be allowed to sail by the Luganah which left port yesterday. Throughout the hearing this morning, surviving operator Harold S. Brice, crippled and seated in an invalid's chair, told his story. The narrative was drawn from him by the shrewd questioning of Senator Smith, and untrilled the Committee. When the ordeal was over he was on the verge of collapse. Herbert J. Putnam, third officer, was called in the afternoon. Senator Smith asked the whereabouts of the ship's log. Witness replied he did not know. Thereupon the Senator announced the decision to resume the inquiry at Washington. Later he issued a statement giving reasons for the change. The Committee devoted the entire day to an investigation of the connection of wireless with the disaster. Cottam, an operator on the Carpathia, was the first witness; then came Brice. He was hollow-cheeked and wan, and had just come from a physician's care. Like Cottam, who is 23, Brice is a mere boy, a year younger. Neither had any experience. Both told tales of long hours, low wages, and sleepless nights. Senator Smith bore persistently on these questions. Cottam testified he had not slept more than 5 or 10 hours between the Titanic's first call and Thursday night, when the vessel docked. Brice's story confirmed Cottam's. He was closely questioned as to the first call, and said the first vessel to answer was the Frankfurt of the North German line, whose operator apparently considered the call more or less trivial, for half an hour after the imperative call he asked the Titanic for specific information as to what was wrong. Mr. Phillips, the Titanic's senior operator, said he was a fool, and told him to keep out, meaning that he should leave the trackless realm free for the Titanic's call. No effort was made to re-establish communication with the Frankfurt, although Phillips was certain that that vessel was nearer than the Carpathia. This, Brice thought Phillips gauged by reason of the greater power of the Herzian wave. Senator Smith expressed as-

En Passant.

BY MAC. Now that subscription lists are being opened up in Europe and America for the unfortunate passengers and crew of the liner Titanic, our charitably disposed citizens will, no doubt, considerably assist in augmenting the funds, as the terrible disaster has evoked world-wide sympathy and compassion. While this is commendatory, I trust our kind donors will not overlook the apparatus calamity which has fallen over our people through the missing s.s. Erna. The fate of the latter steamer has not been brought before us so vividly as that of the other, but we cannot overlook the fact that of the fifty-one who left the coast of Scotland forty-seven were bread-winners and the main support of their families. I would, therefore, suggest that subscription lists be opened up in our daily papers to assist the relatives of those missing on the Erna, for it must be borne in mind that "charity begins at home."

Heating With Gas

If you have tried the old type of gas heaters a few years ago, and were disappointed with the results obtained, this should not deter you from trying the modern heaters. During the last few years a good deal of science has been incorporated into the design of gas fires and all the old defects have been removed. Some of the old fires were not quite satisfactory, now, however, the fire burns without noise, no fumes enter the room, the atmosphere is kept pure and is not dried, and the fires are designed to suit any scheme of decoration. The medical profession was at first antagonistic to them, but of late thousands have been fitted in doctor's residences and in sick rooms on their recommendation, which is a sufficient testimonial on the hygienic aspect of the matter. -SpG 5, 15, 16, 20, 22, 27, 30.

Florizel in Port.

The s.s. Florizel, Capt. Smith, 59 hours from Halifax, reached port at 1 a.m. yesterday. She left Halifax at 2 p.m. on Thursday, encountering strong head winds at the outset, which were continuous throughout the passage. On reaching the vicinity of Cape Race several icebergs were sighted, and the weather being somewhat hazy, the ship had to be carefully navigated. The Florizel brought a full freight and as passengers in saloon: J. W. Kenton, Mrs. Kenton, A. Vincent, Miss H. Vincent, E. Taylor, Miss Jean Franklin, W. H. Franklin, J. R. Nettleton, S. J. Foote, G. M. Barr, D. A. Menich, S. B. Kosner, F. Y. Balcomb, T. Trumpey, J. D. Ryan, Miss M. E. Arnaud, W. H. Bowser, T. M. Black, F. G. Bradley, K. J. Moutrie, Mrs. Menzies and 10 in steerage.

Time He Resigned.

There is much talk about town concerning the course which will be followed in regard to the Hon. D. Morrison and his connection with the Government. It is surprising to some people that the Prime Minister has not already taken action, for after all, Sir Edward Morris is Prime Minister and no Minister can retain his seat in the Executive Council after he has made up his mind not to retain him. It will be remembered that Sir Edward Morris made a ruling in the House of Assembly, when he said that he never had and had not now any interest in any timber property in Newfoundland.

It is going to retain in his ministry the Hon. D. Morrison after the disclosure made of the connection of the latter with the Anglo-American Development Company, and the interests which it has been shown that the Hon. D. Morrison obtained in that Company? It is high time for the Hon. D. Morrison to tender his resignation, if he has already not done so.

If he has not already done so, when the Prime Minister going to give him a hint to resign?

Gleanings From Titanic Disaster.

"We can replace the money, said Vice-President Franklin, of the White Star Line, but not the lives. It is horrible.

One of the lost, Mr. Thornton Davidson, is one of the youngest and best known stock brokers in Montreal. He is a son of Mr. Justice Davidson and a brother of Mr. Peers Davidson, K. C., husband of Louise, daughter of Lady Whiteway and the late Sir Wm. Whiteway.

Postmaster Morgan said the White Star Liner Titanic had on board 3,500 sacks of mail. It is not likely he said, that the mails were saved because during the few hours that the vessel floated after running into the iceberg, there must have been an excitement among those on board the disabled liner to launch and man the lifeboats. As the standard ocean mail bags hold about 2,000 letters, it is estimated that all about 7,000,000 pieces of mail matter have been lost.

That Capt. Smith believed the Titanic and the Olympic were practically unsinkable, is recalled by a man who had a conversation with the veteran commander on a recent voyage of the Olympic.

"The commander of the Hawke was entirely to blame," commented a young officer who was in the group. "He was showing off his was by before a throng of passengers and made a miscalculation." Capt. Smith smiled enigmatically at the theory advanced by his subordinate, but made no comment as the view of the mishap.

"Anyhow," declared Captain Smith, "the Olympic is unsinkable, and the Titanic will be the same when she is out in commission."

"Why," he continued, "either of these vessels could be cut in halves, and each would remain afloat indefinitely. The non-sinkable vessel has been reached in these two wonderful craft."

"I venture to add," concluded Capt. Smith, "that even if the engines and boilers of these vessels were to fall through their bottoms the vessels would remain afloat."

Fogota Here.

The S. S. Fogota, Capt. B. Barbour, arrived from the Northwest at 11 a.m. today. Having left here at noon on Wednesday last she had fine weather except for Friday night when she labored at Fogota while a S. E. gale and snow storm raged piling drifts 6 feet high. She made all her ports of going and coming and brought up a large mail. Her passengers were Capt. J. S. Kean, G. Hann, J. Rendell, G. Dower, D. A. Ryan, G. E. Gillette, H. L. Hodge, C. L. Hodge, J. Hawkins, P. Roberts, F. Smith, J. Moores, J. Snow, S. Knight, G. Anstey, W. Hawkins, A. Knight, J. Phillips, Ben. Smith, Mr. Bennett, H. Harriett, R. Brown, J. Dominey, A. House, F. J. Morris, W. Locke, Mrs. B. Barbour, Mrs. W. White and child, Miss E. Jenkins and 54 second class.

Steamer in Collision.

When the Fogota was coming up the harbor this morning several schooners moored off Bowring Bros. premises were in her way. The bowsprit of one of the schooners caught in the port davit of the Fogota and she went full speed astern to get clear of the vessel, but only to run foul of another vessel. The assistance of the Ingham was necessary to bring her clear. Had she continued at first she would have sunk one or more vessels, and would also run the risk of having her propeller damaged by contact with the chains, as it was the bowsprit was carried out of a schooner. Capt. Barbour says there should be some uniformity for mooring schooners, as at present it is dangerous to steamers passing up the harbor.

The Last Scenes ON BOARD THE TITANIC.

Special to Evening Telegram.

NEW YORK, To-day. Bride was questioned about the final scenes aboard the Titanic. Bride and his superior, Phillips, were among the last to leave and were witnesses of the closing scenes on above deck and topmast parade deck of the lost ship. Bride's story was fragmentary, because it was drawn from a memory that ceased to see the actual living horror, and it ran about as follows: "We did not feel the shock when the ship struck. In fact, I was asleep at the time and was not even awakened by the impact. When the engines stopped, Phillips called me, and I put on the telephone apparatus, while he went out to see what was the trouble. A little later he came back. He said things looked 'queer.' By queer I suppose he meant that every thing was not as it should be. At this time, however, we neither worried a bit. When he heard the confusion on the deck, I went out to investigate. When I returned I found Phillips sending out 'C.Q.D.' call. Giving our position we raised Frankfurt first, then the Carpathia and the Baltic. As I have said we did not try for Frankfurt for any length of time, but concentrated our messages on Carpathia which had answered, she was rushing to our aid. The Captain came into wireless cabin from deck, when the Carpathia advised us as to her position, and he figured out the time when that vessel probably would arrive. He left when that was disposed of, and proceeded to the bridge. Then we began unofficially to keep communication with Carpathia. From time to time either Phillips or I would go on deck to observe the situation. The last time I went on deck I found passengers running around in confusion. There was almost a panic. They were seeking for life belts, all the large life-boats were gone, but there was one life raft remaining. It had been lashed on the top quarters of the boat deck and a number of men were striving to launch it. He went back to wireless cabin and found Phillips striving to send out final 'C. Q. D.' call. The power was so low he could not tell exactly whether it was being carried or not, for we were in a closed cabin and could not hear the crackle. Phillips kept on sending, however, and at whistles buckled on his life-belt, and I put on my own. Then both of us cared for a woman who had fainted, who had been brought into our cabin. It was about ten minutes before the ship sank. The Captain gave the word for every one to look to his own safety. I sprang to aid the men struggling to launch the life-raft. We had succeeded in getting it to the edge of the boat when a giant wave carried it away. I went with it and found myself underneath struggling through eternity. I finally emerged and was swimming 150 feet from the Titanic when she went down. I felt no suction as the vessel plunged. I did not see Ismay. The Captain stuck to the bridge. Then I saw him jump in just as the vessel glided into the depths. He had not donned a life-belt so far as I could see and went down with the ship.

Masonic Service.

The members of the Masonic fraternity attended Service at Gower St. Church yesterday afternoon, and the Rev. Dr. Rogers preached on behalf of the Tasker Educational Fund, Rev. Bro. Thackeray offered prayer, and the choir sang the Anthem: "Lift up your heads, Oh ye gates." The lesson was taken from the chap xii to the Romans. Dr. Rogers took for his text: "One God and Father of All" and "Buy the truth and sell it not." A collection was taken up and realized a goodly sum. Members of the District Grand Lodges, the Chapter and the St. John's, Avalon, Tasker and White-way Lodges were present.

McMurdo's Store News.

MONDAY, April 22, '12. Last year we introduced Bell's Fibre Moth Bags, which immediately became popular, as it was instantly realized that here was the sensible means of keeping furs and other garments absolutely protected from moths, dust, and dampness. They sold largely, as they were convenient and capacious, as well as moderate in price. This year we are importing a new and larger stock of these Moth Bags, in order that many who were disappointed may be able to obtain what they require. We hope to receive these at an early date, and will make announcement of their arrival. We shall sell them at the same moderate prices.

Come and see one working.

Adela Verne in College Hall.

Sonata in B Flat Minor by Chopin. This beautiful work, perhaps the masterpiece of all Chopin's compositions was founded on an ancient Polish Legend which runs as follows: A Polish Knight of medieval ages goes to fight for his country leaving his promised bride, perhaps never to return.

The first movement depicts the stern resolution and determined character of the warrior who in the midst of his hardships has yet time for tender thoughts of his absent love.

The Second Movement, (Scherzo) describes the return of our Warrior who has covered himself with glory and is acclaimed by his comrades as a great hero. In the midst of his triumphant return, however, his thoughts continually turn to the little village where his bride awaits him.

As he nears his home the tolling of funeral bells greet him, and he sees a Procession of monks bearing a coffin to the graveyard. Respectfully he follows the sad mourners.

At the grave side he learns to his horror that the coffin contains the body of his beloved.

The tragic grief is pictured by the composer in this, the most soul-stirring Funeral March ever written. The beautiful melody of the second theme needs no words to convey to the hearer the depth of a despairing sorrow.

The last movement of this Sonata is a curious vague kind of picture. It might represent wind blowing dust and dead leaves over the grave. It might represent the helplessness of man's endeavours compared to the mighty strength of God.

Died at Sydney.

Capt. Archibald McDonald, late of the S. S. Cape Breton, and well-known in St. John's, died suddenly in the hospital at Sydney last week. He had just arrived from Montreal to arrange his season's work in the Black Diamond route when he was stricken suddenly with heart failure and the end came. Deceased was fifty years old and leaves a wife and three children to survive. The remains have been coffined to Hammond, Ontario, where interment takes place.

The Bruce Here.

The S. S. Bruce arrived here from Sydney via Port aux Basques at 6.45 a.m. yesterday. She left Sydney on Thursday night and met considerable ice on the run to Port aux Basques where she arrived on Friday. She left there at 4.30 a.m. Saturday and had a good run down. She has a full freight and a large mail and these passengers from Port aux Basques:—J. G. Baggs, G. McGuire and 5 second class.

House Destroyed

A serious fire occurred at Placentia on Friday evening last when the dwelling house and all its contents of Mr. Michael, who lived at North East Arm, was wiped out of existence. The inmates of the house who were retreating for the night barely escaped with their lives, though losing all their belongings. The total value of the property was $1,000 and not a cent of insurance was carried thereon. So far there is no information as to the origin of the fire, which yet remains a mystery.

SHIELD COMPETITION.—The C. L. B. will shoot for the Mugrave shield on Thursday next in the open. It will be an inter-company contest and will be participated in by ten members from each battalion in St. John's Channel, Herby's Content and Trinity.

Special Evening Telegram. LIVERPOOL, To-day. The Allan liner Virginian has arrived here and reports that she received signals of distress from the S. S. Titanic at 12.40 last Monday morning. At that time she was 123 miles from the wreck, and started for the scene. When she got word from the S. S. Carpathia that the Titanic had foundered, and that the Carpathia had done everything possible, she resumed her voyage to Liverpool.

The Gigantic Will Have Double Sides.

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-day. Harland and Wolff, of Belfast, the great shipbuilders, who have built all the leviathans for the White Star Line, have been instructed to alter the design of the new ship Gigantic for the White Star Line so as to give a double cellular bottom and double cellular sides to it, to cover the engine rooms and the stokehold.

Day of Mourning

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-day. Sunday was observed as a day of mourning throughout the Kingdom. At all the churches and on all the warships special memorial services were held.

Particulars of Drowning.

By the schr. Spotless Queen we get particulars of the drowning of Patrick Daley, of Riverhead, St. Mary's, on Wednesday last at dusk. The deceased, who was only 18 years old, was with his two brothers, John and Frank, and Robert Ryan, crossed the harbor to their own wharf in a dory and boarded their schooner. On leaving the schooner Daley's three friends were seated in the dory when he jumped down on the gunwale, overturned the boat and all were left struggling in the water. John and Frank managed to climb up on the capsized dory but Patrick Daley and Robert Ryan were carried away by the current and the former quickly sank, he being heavily clad. No one was around to render aid, but Frank Daley, their cousin, heard their cries for help and hastened in a dory to their aid. Ryan was almost gone when picked up, and the other brothers of the drowned man who were taken off the dory were much exhausted. The body of Patrick was recovered two hours later. Another brother, Peter, died of consumption only a couple of weeks before. The parents are distracted with grief.

Largely Signed Petition.

To-day Messrs. A. H. Salter and E. Hawkins are going through the city for signatures to a petition asking the Importers Association to rescind the determination to cut out the half holiday. Everywhere they went they were received with open arms and at 10 o'clock were surrounded on the streets by all sorts and conditions of men to sign. This move of the Importers is as unpopular as the attempted raising of their fees by the doctors.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The funeral of the late Mr. Matthew Wells took place yesterday; so much snow was still on the hill that men had to shovel the road before the hearse could be taken to the church and cemetery.

The first vessels—Ruby and Antoinette were taken up on the Marine Dock here at 10.30 yesterday morning, the very pleasing sight being witnessed by a large number of our citizens. The machinery worked splendidly, without a hitch, and the Company are to be congratulated. The dock is now ready for business.

Mr. Thomas Freeman, photographer, was on the scene with his camera, and took some very nice views as the vessels were being taken up, and by one o'clock he had a large picture on exhibition near his studio. Very quick work. Mr. R. T. Parsons also took some very nice views of the first ships on the dock. Quite a large number of applications are already in for dockage of schooners.

Many people were disappointed when checks were called for the dock that a cheer was not given for the Government that gave the guarantee, thus enabling the affair to become a success. We thought this very regretful of the citizens.

A small cargo of coal arrived to Messrs. R. Rutherford & Co. yesterday and is being quickly disposed of in two-lot lots to-day. The coal was apparently taken from one of the sailing steamers, and bears a strong odor of seal fat. A joker remarked that that was the cause of the high price, as it was the only smell of the sailing voyage of 1912 we will get.

We have been requested by a highly respected citizen to draw the attention of the Chairman of the Road Board to the dangerous condition of Harvey Street, near the Pipe Track particularly, which is very badly in need of repair. Holes in the road may be seen in the day time, but at night man and beast are both in danger of serious injury.

RUBBER.

Rubber is a commercial product which is used to reinforce suspenders and impart elasticity to the human neck. It grows on trees, but is not so easy to harvest as the cocoon or the open-faced prune. The rubber tree does better in a climate which is hot enough to blister the paint on an ice house, and this gives rise to the supposition that hades is not only paved with gold resolutions but other kinds of verdure. So much rubber is used in witnessing the flight of an airship that the price has gone up and a new set of automobile tires starts a gaping wound in the incomes of the plain people. If it were not for rubber, the window trimmer, the star gazer, and the town gossip would have to learn a new trade. There would also be a shortage in the supply of street loafers on a wet day. There are several substitutes for rubber, such as chewing gum, slippery elm and harnesmakers' wax, which give the matinee girl the languid air of the contemplative Jergensy. Some restaurants use a very ingenious brand of rubber with which to pad griddle cakes and build a water-proof roof over an omelet, thus making life long, sweet songs for the stomach specialists. A popular delicacy is the rubberized round steak, which is harder to swallow than campaign lunk. The kind of rubber used in making suspenders is derived mainly from decrepit gum shoes, and is liable to go back on a man without any warning whatever. There are many uses for rubber. The rubber dam is an instrument of torture which prevents the patient from calling for the police. The rubber ruler is a device which is used to emboss unruly pupils with pink blisters. The most wholesome use to which rubber is now put is in the manufacture of teeth, which can be taken down in sections, dusted off and put back without using a screwdriver.

Skip the Trifles.

Don't worry over little things That trouble and annoy. Don't let the trifles in your path Put dampers on your joy. Perhaps the microscopic ills The harder seem to bear. But that's because of man sized ones You do not get your share.

If over woes of no account You fuss and fret and stew, Make ungrammatical remarks Until the air is blue. You could not give your feelings vent. I'm very much afraid. If you should break an arm or leg Or crack your shoulder blade.

If all the language in the shop You use to fill your woe When you have lost a handkerchief Or stubbed your little toe. What sort of words and phrases then Will there be left on tap When you have fallen from a house Or lost a paying snap? So, taking all things in account, Those persons who are wise Will let the lesser bumps go by And just philosophize. By doing this for many years It may assist you some To treat the larger, harder jolts The same way when they come.

Light, Warmth and Food.

These three words embrace the most urgent necessities of Life, and it is an extraordinary thing that in each case our thoughts turn to Gas; this, after all, is but natural. We want Light, gas gives us the best, cheapest, and healthiest artificial light known. Again, we want Warmth, and the gas fire is at hand to give it in its best form, and, lastly, we must have Food, and here the gas cooker never fails us. All this is absolutely true, as we have shown over and over again.

If, however, any of our customers are in the least doubtful on any of these points, we cordially invite them to consult us. In the meantime, our advice is to get good burners and buy mantles of well-known makes, to use modern gas fires and cookers, and, above all, to keep your gas appliances (whether old or new) in good order, for in this is the true secret of efficiency and complete satisfaction.

At Gower St. Church.

A Memorable Service — A Soul-Impressive Sermon on the Titanic Disaster.

L. C. MORRIS.

"There was no more sea."—Rev. 21st chapter, 1st verse.

Under ordinary conditions the subject of the "sea" is one of interest, and especially is it so to us as a maritime people. But at the present moment, when every heart is moved by the loss of the steamship Titanic, the subject becomes of unusual interest, and is felt in a peculiarly pathetic manner.

And so was it last night at Gower Street Church, when the pastor, Rev. Dr. Rogers, preached upon this subject and made feeling reference to this terrible disaster. The sea in all its phases was first dealt with, and then some of its disasters were mentioned. Those had been great, and every ocean had claimed its share of victims. Often has the world been astounded by the loss of mighty ships, but to-day it is staggered at the loss of its greatest ship, with sixteen hundred of her passengers. Of all the great ships that has ever sailed the sea none were as great as the Titanic. In her the skill and perfection of science and marine architecture were at their best; but with all her beauty and strength, she was but a weak thing when in contact with the forces of nature around her. Man's art and ingenuity at their highest achievement had struck a huge piece of rugged nature, and lo! all was turned into a twisted, tangled, helpless mass of ruin and wreckage.

At such a time, and amid such a scene, only true men could be brave; and the emergency revealed this worthy feature. True to the best instincts of their bosom, and true to the best traditions of the nation, they stood to their posts and did their best in saving the helpless and weak. From the heroic captain on the bridge to the ranks of the passengers, this noble spirit was manifested; and thus, were eight hundred saved from the very jaws of death itself.

Amid the darkness and horror of that ocean tragedy, the notes of music from the ship's orchestra rang out over the scene, and no doubt, for a while, tended to alleviate the gloom of the impending catastrophe. Hoping against hope, the courageous performers played on; and then realizing that hope was vain, they chose as their own requiem the fitting melody of "Nearer my God to Thee." What tragedy, and yet what sublimity!

That there is universal sorrow is but natural, for not only has this accident stirred the Empire, but it has touched the great hearts of humanity the world over. The scene cannot be depicted. It staggers words to do so. It presented its weaker as well as its stronger elements; but amid all its gloom, and all its terrible reality, the fidelity of the wives, who, having a chance to escape by themselves, preferred to die in the embrace of their husbands, is one that cannot be soon forgotten. Hail, womanhood! Hail a woman's love! Hail her devotion, even to the death! Who will not think more of womanhood? Who will not feel proud of his mother and of his wife?

To all on board that ship death came alike. The rich and titled, the poor and humble, the young and old, the passengers and crew, were equalled. To all it was death, and if ready for the call, to all it was life.

This is but the spirit of the sermon. To report it more fully fails us. As we listened and as we sat, and when we bowed our heads in prayer, there was but one feeling upon us, and but one thought in our minds, and but one emotion within our bosoms, and it was this, viz., that although the victims were unknown to us, and although we had not seen them, yet we were brothers, we were sisters. We felt that somehow humanity was one, and that its great heart beats like the world over.

As a fitting closing to the service, the hymn "Nearer my God to Thee" was sung, and then the vast congregation continued standing, and with bowed heads and reverent mien, paid a silent tribute to the memory of the lost ones, while the mighty organ pealed forth the solemn strains of the Dead March in Saul.

Prescription 'A.'

CURES: INDIGESTION and DYSPEPSIA in all its forms.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headaches. I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing."

"I often have a pain in the pit of the stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a feeling of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems not worth living."

Why suffer from all these symptoms? when STAFFORD'S PRESCRIPTION "A" will cure you. Try a bottle.

Dorothy Baird Reported Icebound.

From recent exchanges we note that the s.s. Etionian, which arrived at New York from Antwerp on April 17th, reported that on April 12th in lat. 42 N. and long. 52 W. she passed about 20 icebergs and a field of ice 108 miles long. The same day the Etionian saw the Dorothy Baird drifting in the pack with all sails lowered, apparently awaiting daylight before taking any chance with the bergs. The Dorothy Baird is now three weeks out bound for a Brazilian port with a fish cargo. She left this port in company with the Lake Simcoe and Depoula. We learn from experienced nautical men that according to the position above stated that the Dorothy Baird was on the edge of the Grand Banks when sighted.

Stormy Voyage.

The Mayflower, Capt. Halford, which arrived here from Oporto Saturday afternoon, left there on the 24th February. She had her port rigging carried away and pumps choked, and after remaining at Vigo, left there on March 16th. The vessel had excessively stormy weather for a while and on the 6th inst. met a big field of ice and had to run a long distance south to clear it. While in the ice she carried away part of the stem. Last Monday she spoke a large French vessel bound from France to St. Pierre with general cargo. She reported all well.

A 38 year old labourer, drunk and conveyed to the Station in a cab, was released, on payment of the cab hire.
Henry Cooper, was arrested charged with the larceny of the following articles: 5 purses, the property of persons at present unknown. Two bags of clothes, the property of persons at present unknown. $10. the property of Wm. Small of Bell Island, and a watch, the property of Michael Cahill. The prisoner is still held under arrest on the above charges.
TO BE DOCKED.—The Sagona will be docked shortly and will be given a general overhaul and repairs. apr.12.11

The Titanic Disaster.

Memorial Services in the Churches.

C. E. CATHEDRAL.
In the Church of England Cathedral at the morning service yesterday His Lordship the Bishop of Newfoundland preached an eloquent and touching sermon in which he made special reference to the great Titanic disaster. Taking his text, Psalm 77, v. 19 and 20: "Thy way is in the sea, and Thy path in great waters, and Thy footsteps are not known. Thou leadest Thy people like a flock by the hand of Moses and Aaron." His Lordship spoke of the awful marine disaster which had overwhelmed with sorrow two great countries, the people in which mourn the loss of over 1,600 persons. We here in Newfoundland felt this sorrow in a special manner, as during the past months we had to mourn the loss of many of our people in ships that had been overwhelmed on the ocean. His Lordship also dwelt on the heroism, courage and self sacrifice of the crew of the Titanic in helping the helpless women and children and giving up their own lives, and many in the congregation were visibly affected by his eloquent and touching discourse. Special hymns, appropriate to the occasion, were sung. The prayers were read by Rev. James Bell, and the Lessons by Revs. Canon White and Bolt. The closing hymn was "Nearer my God to Thee," and while the congregation remained standing Mr. Allan, the Cathedral organist, rendered the Dead March.

R. C. CATHEDRAL.
At last Mass yesterday Rev. Dr. Greene was the preacher and delivered a most impressive discourse on the recent ocean tragedy to which he referred in pathetic terms, and exhorted the congregation to pray for those who went down to the sea.
At evening prayers His Grace the Archbishop preached a powerful sermon on the awful disaster. He made particular reference to the discipline of the male passengers on the ship, and announced that High Mass will be celebrated for the repose of the souls of the victims. At St. Patrick's and St. Joseph's references were made by the various clergymen of the terrible catastrophe.

GEORGE ST. METHODIST CHURCH.
The preacher at George Street Church last evening was the Rev. J. W. Bartlett, who spoke of the appalling disaster very touchingly. Mrs. J. Miller sang Costa's: "I lift mine eyes to Thee," from Eli. Appropriate hymns were sung and at the conclusion of the service the Dead March in Solo was rendered.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.
At the Congregational Church last evening a Memorial Service was held in connection with the loss of the Titanic. The preacher was the Rev. J. Thackeray who spoke on: "And there shall be no more sea." He emphasized that the sea was the insignia for man's separation in various ways. Concluding his remarks the preacher said: "There was one thing in which, as a nation, we could console ourselves and be proud of, which was that those on board upheld the tradition that the Anglo-Saxon race stands for bravery of the noblest and truest type." The service concluded by the rendition of "Blessed are the dead."

S. A. CITADEL.
The Memorial Service at the S. A. Citadel last night was a most impressive one. A large number of the Salvationists made touching reference to the awful tragedy of last Sunday night, and also to the sudden death of one of their own comrades who passed away on Friday morning and was laid away yesterday afternoon. Captain Tilley, one of the speakers, referred to the great loss which the religious world has sustained in the death of Mr. W. T. Stead. Mr. Stead had been a warm friend of General Booth, and when the Salvation Army was passing through the fires of persecution he had by his pen and influence done much to turn the tide of public opinion in favour of the General and his work. Mrs. Hargrove read the Scriptures and delivered an address which for eloquence and pathos was without doubt one of the finest ever heard in the Citadel. No. 1 Band played "Nearer my God to Thee," the hymn played by the band of the Titanic as that great ship went down.

Bonne Bay Wants Its Place in the Sun.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—We now turn to the Reid coastal service as we know it on this coast. The Contractor, with the approval of a very paternal Government, serves our mail, passenger and freight traffic with a boat that is inadequate to its requirements and unsuited to the transportation of human beings with a sufficient degree of comfort. The steamship Home provides accommodation for about eight first-class passengers. Every trip, practically without exception, she carries double that number, many having to be accommodated with "shake-downs" in the dining saloon. Just how satisfactory such an arrangement is to persons who have to take their meals in this saloon is better imagined than described. But the overcrowding in the stowage quarters is far worse as a rule than in those provided for first-class passengers. The boat at times has been standing room on her decks. This is bad enough in all conscience for men, but when women are taken on board a ship so overcrowded it becomes almost criminal. What would be the situation should the ship meet with a severe storm? There would be absolutely no way of preventing an appalling loss of life. A single example will graphically illustrate the extent to which the little Home is sometimes overcrowded in the busy season. On one trip north so many passengers were taken on board at Bay of Islands that a number of young women were forced to sleep on deck, and spent the night sitting on the iron band that surrounds the bottom of the smokestack, leaning back to obtain what warmth they could, and huddling closely together that they might be the more comfortable. Particularly objectionable is the fact that absolutely no accommodation is provided on this boat for sick persons who desire transportation to the hospital at St. John's or to that at Battle Harbor. So they must perforce use the common living quarters, a condition that does not make for their own comfort, nor does it add to the pleasure of the other passengers. Nor does this particular coastal boat do justice to our freight requirements. Every trip she is loaded to overflowing and still has to leave freight behind. It is a somewhat conservative statement to make that the freight business of this coast is ample for a ship at least twice the size of the Home. We should be served at any rate with a boat having the carrying capacity of the Gloucester. Neither has the Home the requisite power for a coastal boat for this section, seeing that during the storm, weather of the fall the captain is forced to skip many ports in order to keep up to his scheduled time. The only rift in this particular cloud of troubles is provided by the Bowring service per the steamship Portia which is objectionable only on the score of its infrequency. It is to be hoped that this service will be continued this year.

Public Works.

We wonder if there is any other town in Newfoundland of equal importance to Bonne Bay and yet so practically destitute of public works of any kind. We cannot boast even a public "grinding stone." The settlement has no continuous local road, so that in summer it is impossible to drive a horse round the bay, the path in places becoming a mere track that is dangerous even to a foot passenger. The post office is contained in the corner of an old store; the detached back porch of a dwelling house accommodates the Customs officer, while the officers of the law have to be content with an old shack that is not even kept in decent condition. In all the Bay and down the whole coast

In Luck at Last. By WALT MASON.

First he tried to be a preacher but he found he was no Beecher, and the folks who heard his sermons always filled the church with snores; then he tried his hand at farming but that graft was far from charming, for he hated early rising and he balked at doing chores. Then he got a job a-clerking but he soon got tired of jerking cans of pumpkin and tomatoes and big sacks of flour and meal; and he failed in all his labors till his pessimistic neighbors said he'd wind up in the poorhouse as a chronic "Ne'er-do-weel." He had fifty thousand chances to improve his circumstances but he bungled things so often that his friends were sorely vexed; he had botched things up so fully we considered him a bully good example to the children, and we used him as a text. While he loafed around and hovered on the diamond he discovered that he had a lovely insoat and a big supply of curves; now he is a famous pitcher, and no plutocrat is richer and we load him down with laurels and with praise, as he deserves.

How About Another Picnic?

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—Has it at all occurred to the average voter of the West End that for some time very little has been seen of the men who are said to represent the West End in the Legislature. We have heard with regret that Sir Edward Morris is not looking well. Some say this is due to the worries engendered by the cares of State, and others aver that Sir Edward is anxious as to where he will find himself after the next election as it is well known that the People's Party are "all in." Some have heard that the only thing which will restore Sir Edward to health is another trip across the herring pond with say another good round sum for expenses. Formerly Sir Edward liked to live amongst us, and some of us remember rolling hoops with him when he lived on Bartley's Hill. Sir Edward took pride in the people of the West End when he said that if they were given a flag and a jar of rum they would start a row in five minutes. What greater compliment could those need who returned him for a quarter of a century? Now we rarely see his commanding personality or hear his gentle voice, and many, envious ones of course, are heard to say that he prefers now to live in a palace on Rennie's Mill Road, amongst the Bon Ton, and when with these high sights becomes affected if some of the "old guard" pass by. Oh, for the recurrence of the days of the "fearless young Tribune," and when the modern disease megalomania was unknown. It is bad enough to lose the genial presence of the affable Edward, but when our other two members, Messrs. Bennett and Kennedy, emulate him and also reside in East End palaces we are indeed lonely and distraught. If Sir E. P. waits till the fall of 1913 before coming up to see us most of us will have forgotten his name, and when Bill Duggan and the four others of the star chamber nominate our representatives for us, the question will be asked: who is this Morris? and the answer I feel sure will be, after polling day, "We know not the man." Now, Sir Edward, be careful we are losing track of you, and men who are not ashamed to live amongst us will get a show this trip.

WEST END VOTER. CORRESPONDENT. Tilting, Fogo, April 10th, 1912. Ask your Druggist for SERRAVALLO'S TONIC (Bark and Iron Wine). Cures: ANAEMIA, CHLOROSIS, DEBILITY. Delightful Taste.

JAMS! JAMS!

Purity marks the process of manufacture in all of W. P. HARTLEY'S Jams are manufactured from fruit grown on his Aintree fruit farms, picked and preserved the same day. ## REID NEWFOUNDLAND COMPANY.

Is your house really lighted from top to bottom or do you still have to take a candle or lamp when you go to the attic or cellar at night? A great many people who have electricity in the rest of the house have no light in the cellar or attic because it is seldom needed; but, when you do need it, you need it badly.

One Incandescent Lamp set in a Holophane Reflector will give sufficient light for the darkest cellar or attic. Holophane Reflectors are especially adapted to lighting places of this sort as they control the light rays so that every ray is utilized. Wouldn't it be a convenience if you could turn a switch and light your cellar or attic before entering? That means an end to dangerous matches and flames—it means that you no longer need stumble against misplaced boxes and bark your shins in the dark.

We would like to tell you more about electric lighting and more about the wonderful light-saving Holophane Reflectors. May we send a representative to see you?

SATISFACTION

is our aim when fitting glasses. No matter how complicated the case or how simple our great desire is to give perfect satisfaction.

Your Eye Sigt

is too precious to neglect. When you experience the first symptoms of strain it is time to have your eyes looked to. Properly fitted glasses will save you further trouble and the cost is but little compared with the relief and comfort. If you suffer from headache it is probably caused by eye strain.
