LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;
 or the
Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER V.
 "I never see an orchid, Fulke, without thinking of Lady Iris," said Lady Clyffarde. "Have you done anything to win a flower yet?"
 "No," he replied, gloomily, "and I begin to think I never shall. I shall grow desperate soon, and come out in some new character—'Tribune of the people,' or something of that kind."
 "On the same day Mrs. Bardon asked her son if he had thought any more of what she had said about Lady Iris. "I have thought too much of it for my own peace of mind," he replied. "I wish with all my heart I had never seen Lady Iris."
 The millionaire's wife smiled to herself. It was quite evident, she decided, that her son was in love with the lady.
 But Marie, his sister, was wiser. One clear spring evening, when the lamps were lighted, she showed him a moth that would linger round one of them.
 "It will be burned to death, John," she said; "you understand—to death."
 "Better that than to live maimed," he replied. Then she knew that his case was hopeless indeed.

CHAPTER VI.
 Sir Fulke was, as his rival called him, a white handed aristocrat, handsome, with a Saxon style of comeliness that is in its way equaled. His hair seemed to have caught the sunshine, his gray eyes were frank and clear, and round his sensitive mouth drooped a fair mustache.
 John Bardon was dark and strongly built. What was most noticeable in him was his great vitality. He was almost terribly in earnest with everything. Now that this fierce passion had taken hold of him, he was no longer the same man. He was eager to win honors, to make himself famous, to do anything which should win her admiration. So desperate was his infatuation that he would far rather have drawn her attention to him by a crime than that she should ignore him altogether. He vowed that he would either win her or kill her. She should be won by no other man.

 Would military glory touch her. He could not join the army, for his father needed him at home; nor did he wish to leave the neighborhood in which she dwelt. But he had been very much struck with the uniform of the Eastshire Yeomanry; and he had heard that ladies liked a handsome uniform. He determined therefore to join the regiment at once, if there was a vacancy. Fortunately one of the cornets had just resigned, so John Bardon took his place.
 Sir Fulke was greatly amused when he met John Bardon resplendent in full regimentals.
 "Good morning, Mr. Bardon," said Sir Fulke in his cherry voice—"playing at soldiers?"
 "I never play at anything, Sir Fulke, as you will know some day," he replied, savagely.
 "I shall never know it," said Sir Fulke, scornfully; "it does not concern me. Why not do the real thing—join the army, and endeavor to distinguish yourself in Afghanistan?"
 "Thank you. I have something more important to do nearer home," answered John Bardon.
 As he said the words, it struck Sir Fulke that the "something more important nearer home" meant the winning of Lady Iris. His fair Saxon face flushed hotly. Did this low-born fellow dare to think the peerless young beauty would stoop to him? His future wealth would not weigh with her—she who looked for heroism to the man she loved. An expression of intense scorn came over his face.
 "Take care you don't aim too high," he said, significantly.
 Sir Fulke rode on with rage in his heart. He recalled his mother's words—that Lady Iris would be sure to marry some one out of his common groove. John Bardon was certainly different from other men, although every good quality that he might possess was more or less marred by his want of refinement. There were women—and Sir Fulke knew it—who would prefer John Bardon and his wealth to his own high birth and noble lineage, who would find more to admire in John Bardon than in him.
 Sir Fulke realized now how much he loved Lady Iris, and he saw that the happiness of his whole life depended upon her. He had left Clyffe Hall to ride to King's Forest; but both business and pleasure vanished from his mind. He must know if there was any foundation for his suspicions.
 He changed the direction of his ride at once, and went to Chandos. He knew that he dared not break into Lady Iris' presence with an abrupt question on his lips; he would have to wait patiently until he could introduce the subject. The earl's daughter had to be approached with caution.
 He found her alone, finishing a spirited sketch of a magnificent cedar tree.
 "It fate had not made you a great heiress, nature would have made you an artist, Lady Iris," said Sir Fulke, as he looked at the sketch. "I consider that drawing perfect."
 "I am glad you think so, Sir Fulke," she replied, with a smile. "How proud we always are of our own work!"
 "You may be proud of yours," he said admiringly. "It is quite warm enough now for sitting out of doors," added Sir Fulke; "and I should like to spend an hour with you, Lady Iris."
 "I shall be pleased to have your company," she replied, with unusual grace and amiability. The morning was so fair and lovely that she could not but be sweet and gracious, even if she were indisposed to be so.
 Sir Fulke stood a better chance of winning her favor on this morning than he had ever stood. He was growing desperate with suspense. Through the vista of green foliage and sunlit gardens he saw the dark stalwart man clad in the handsome uniform; but when he looked at the fresh glorious beauty of Lady Iris Payne, he thought that not all the military adornments of modern Europe would make the least impression upon her. Still the stalwart figure flashed most uncomfortably across his memory. He resolutely to open the subject at once.

 "I saw what I consider a most absurd sight as I came along the high road," he began.
 "What was the absurd sight?" she asked, with some interest.
 "A bird in borrowed plumage," he replied—"John Bardon in the uniform of a cornet of the Eastshire Yeomanry."
 "Why do you call the sight absurd?" she asked coldly. "The Eastshire Yeomanry are a fine and useful body of men."
 "He does not look like a soldier," replied Sir Fulke.
 "The uniform does not make the soldier any more than the habit makes the monk," she said, laughingly.
 "Still I cannot see why you should call Mr. Bardon absurd."
 In his heart, Sir Fulke knew that the dark, stalwart man in the handsome uniform of the Eastshire Yeomanry was anything but absurd. However, now was his time for discovering what her real thoughts about John Bardon were.
 "I shall be afraid to say another word against him, or even about him, Lady Iris, since I find he is such a favorite of yours."
 "I did not say that he was a favorite," she said, coldly.
 "I assume it, since you espouse his cause so warmly," he declared.
 "I prefer to take the part of the absent," she said.
 "I wish some one would speak evil of me in my absence, in order that you might defend me!" he cried.
 "Are you sure that I should find one word to say in your defense?" she asked.
 "I hope so. But, Lady Iris, you know how anxious I am always to please you. If you tell me that you have thrown the shield of your friendship over the Bardons, I will like them, or at least try to do so, from this time henceforward."
 "You need not make any effort, Sir Fulke," she said.
 "But do tell me, do you really like them or not, Lady Iris?"
 "You have asked a question I do not feel called upon to answer, Sir Fulke," and he was compelled to leave without knowing in the least whether she cared for John Bardon or not.
 Lady Iris had not at present given much thought to either of her admirers. She liked Sir Fulke for his bright pleasant manner and his refined poetical mind; she disliked him for the vanity and egotism that marred an otherwise fine character. She felt interested in John Bardon; but she disliked the thin veneer of polish that only half hid the fierce strong nature. Of the two she preferred Sir Fulke.
 The rivals had not met together in her presence; but the fire had been smoldering, but the flame appeared at last.
 The Honorable Mrs. Motra came on a visit to Clyffe Hall; and Lady Clyffarde saw that some amusement must be provided. She knew that Lady Iris would not attend any great entertainment or ball until after her presentation; but there could be no harm in a quiet garden-party. Lady Clyffarde thought Lady Iris would enjoy it; so she sent out invitations for a garden-party to be held on the first of May.

FATHER'S TRAGIC DISCOVERY—MOTHER CHARGED WITH MURDER.
 Two little girls were found drowned in the bath of a burning house in Ripple road, Barking, Essex, yesterday. The discovery was made by their father, a motor-driver named William Harnden, on returning from a successful search for work.
 The mother of the girls, Mrs. Sarah Harnden, who had been missing all day, reported to the police at Barking last night. She was charged with murdering the children and will be brought up at Stratford Police Court this morning. The police had circumscribed a description of her.
 When Mr. Harnden returned home at 10.30 a.m. he failed to get a reply to his knock, and, not having a key with him, asked Mrs. West, a neighbor, to let him go through her house. After climbing over the fence into his garden he saw smoke pouring from the two back bedroom windows. He unlocked the back door, but found it locked.
 Mr. Harnden forced an entrance by smashing the window above the door. The bath is fitted in the scullery, and in it he found his two little girls, Violet aged two, and Lily, aged four, lying together drowned in a foot of water.
 The fire brigade was called, but the fire had destroyed the two bedrooms before it was put out.
NEIGHBOR'S STORY.
 Mrs. West, the neighbor, said to a Daily Mail reporter last night: "I saw Lily going to some errands just before 10 o'clock. She was bright and happy and was a pretty little girl; so was the baby, Violet. Doris, an elder daughter, had gone to school. "I was cleaning my sitting-room when I noticed Mrs. Harnden go out. That would be soon after 10 o'clock, and about 15 minutes after Lily had returned from her errands."
 Both the dead children were fully dressed. On the kitchen table was found an open razor.
 Until last Wednesday, Mr. Harnden had been employed by a local firm, who yesterday offered to re-engage him. He was returning home to acquaint his wife with the good news when he made his tragic discovery.
 At the Yarmouth Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp, held at Tusket Falls in August, I found Minard's Liniment most beneficial for sunburn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.

ST. PIERRE VS. FORTUNE.

(By W.C.H.)

For years the towns of Grand Bank and St. Pierre have enthusiastically matched their respective football teams on the Soccer fields, with varying fortunes, but always with keen interest, so that, in time the Grand Bank-St. Pierre games became famous along the South West Coast. Strangely enough such populous centres as Burn and Hr. Breton, while possessing soccer teams, have never emulated Grand Bank in this respect. Even enterprising Fortune, though quite familiar with the famous French town of North America, has never until the present year, enjoyed a friendly game with the St. Pierre team. This year, however, witnessed a revival of the grand game of soccer football in the town of Fortune, and in due course it was decided to invite the St. Pierre boys in, to play a friendly game. The invitation was promptly accepted, and on August 13th the French team with a number of supporters arrived at Fortune. The following afternoon before a large gathering of spectators, the first game ever played between the two towns was pulled off, under ideal weather conditions. Both teams played good, clean football and the game was thoroughly enjoyed by players and onlookers. At half time the French boys led by 1-0, but in the second half the Fortune boys by a nice bit of combination equalled and in spite of subsequent earnest play on the part of both teams, the final whistle trilled on a drawn game—1-1. The result was eminently satisfactory to the Fortune team, which has had to contend with some exasperating difficulties during the season. After the game the French team was entertained at a dinner given in their honour by the local Club—the ladies of which rendered their usual whole-hearted support—and following the dinner, a splendid dance, unique in the annals of Fortune, was held in the Masonic Hall. In short when the St. Pierre boys steamed away, in the "wee sma' hours" of 't' mornin'" it was with pleasant recollections, only equalled perhaps by the happy memories of the townfolk of Fortune.

FORTUNE BOYS GO TO ST. PIERRE.

It was hardly a matter for surprise, therefore, to receive an invitation shortly after to play a return game at St. Pierre, and need it be said that the invitation was quickly accepted. September the 8th was the date fixed for the same, and after due organization and preparation, the Fortune team and supporters steamed out of Fortune on the evening of the 5th inst. in the S.S. "Dominion Trader." In addition to the local "fans," there were on board, quite a number of friends from Grand Bank, and it would be indeed difficult to meet a better crowd of merry, good-natured and good hearted excursionists. To quote a local rhymester:—

 "From Fortune Head to Dantisc, the course is pretty clear—
 From Dantisc to Green Island is not so soft to steer—
 But in spite of rollers, fog and wind provided you know how,
 Sou-west will bring Green Island horn upon your red light-bow!"

"A moment's glance to windward—there's nothing much to fear! Then Sou-west we stretch her on the home run to St. Pierre! On the home run to St. Pierre, my lads! and none on board but 'hops'!"

Heart cookies warm, Frank friendly eyes! Who could be out of sorts? There's a something throbs your pulse when yonder bursting clear.

In a break of cheery welcome, gleam the quays lights of St. Pierre. In a comparatively short time, our ship was placed alongside the quay, where a large crowd had assembled to welcome us. As the mooring ropes were thrown ashore, hearty cheers were given and the usual salutations exchanged. The French boys with characteristic courteousness had made arrangements for the accommodation of visitors as well as the visiting team, and in a few minutes all were comfortably placed, and enjoying "café au lait" and other things! The next morning the Fortune boys were early astir, thanks chiefly to the early rising proclivities of one restless soul! (Not Mr. Editor, we do not refer to the chap who went from bed to bed in a certain case, manipulating the contents of a soda siphon upon the heads of innocent sleepers.)

PIERRE'S WIN.

After breakfast, the Fortune team defied the unpleasantness of fog and drizzling rain, and had a try out on the home town's field. The ground and ball were very heavy, and it looked as tho' the game if pulled off, would be an exceedingly laborious one. Fortunately about 12.30 p.m. the mists cleared away, and the sun shone out with such great effect that the ground was in excellent condition, when the game began at 2.30 p.m. Fortune won the toss and elected to take advantage of the sun and a freshening breeze. St. Pierre kicked off, but did not penetrate far, and soon the Fortune boys were in full offensive. A more or less steady pressure was maintained on the French goal, but the defence was a most redoubtable one. Now and then the St. Pierre wings would make spectacular rushes, and their crosses were always dangerous, especially when collared by their centre forward, who was a skilful marksman. The Fortune goalkeeper, however, was not very much tried, the St. Pierre assaults invariably crumbling before the stonewall defence of Lake and Spencer. After some twenty-five minutes play, Fortune secured a throw in on the left, almost up to the corner flag. Dixon nicely placed the ball to his outside left, who scored with a high oblique shot that went just under the bar. Fortune! St. Pierre 0. Play now became faster and spectators enthusiastically "rooted" for their respective teams. Half time, however, saw the score unchanged. After the interval, Fortune kicked off against the sun and wind, but it was not long before the French laid siege and furiously assaulted the Fortune goal. The defence was strong and stubborn, and the goalie, Clyde Spencer, won deserved applause with his clever saves. The Fortune forwards made strong attempts to carry the ball into enemy territory, but could not much relieve the pressure. St. Pierre attacked more determinedly than ever, and after some twenty odd minutes play, lashed the ball past Spencer. St. Pierre 1; Fortune 1. Greatly encouraged, St. Pierre pressed again, but nothing daunted Fortune fought on, and the game looked good for a draw, when just as a particularly hot attack appeared to have been coped with, the ball was seen to trickle past Spencer whose vision was somewhat obscured at the time by one of the backs. With but a few minutes to go, Fortune made a supreme effort and attacked strongly. A free kick was secured by Fortune, and beautifully placed by Roberts to Piercey, the outside right, who cleverly headed for goal, the ball grazing the upward. Shortly afterwards, the whistle sounded the finish of a good, clean and interesting game, thoroughly enjoyed by spectators and players. We congratulate St. Pierre on their victory. It was well merited. They have a good team; they are real sports; they play the game! Mr. Clyde Lake of Fortune was referee, and performed his task to the eminent satisfaction of all. At 7.30 p.m. the St. Pierre boys entertained the visiting team at a dinner in the Hotel de Joinville which to say the least was thoroughly enjoyed. A dance and "good time" generally followed, and when the "Dominion Trader" steamed out early the next morning it carried a happy crowd, who unanimously agreed that "they wouldn't have missed it for anything!" Well! I should say not! Au Revoir St. Pierre! You treated us royally! Merci! Merci!

Annual Reunion.

BLUE PUTTEES TO HOLD DINNER AT DONOVANS.

At a meeting of Blue Puttees held last night in the G. W. V. A. rooms, it was decided to hold the Annual Reunion and dinner at Donovans on Anniversary Day, Oct. 4th. The Conductor of the meeting, Sergeant John Robinson, spoke in glowing terms of the generous offers of transportation facilities, etc., that were made to him on behalf of the Blue Puttees, during the past week. Several prominent citizens guaranteed every assistance in the way of making this eighth annual Reunion an unprecedented success. Under the direction of Sergeant Robinson and Capt. Snow, it is hoped to have every member of the Blue Puttees present at the dinner. Every detail in connection with the financing, etc., will receive the utmost attention and a decided effort will be made to make the whole affair worthy of its continuance. The sailing of the Florizel on October 4th, 1914, has a special significance for all the boys who were first to step out of the ranks of civilian life at the call of the Mother Country. Such events as these keep the memory of that day forever green and cement the bonds of friendship and mark milestones along the pathway of life. The final meeting of the B. P.'s, will take place on Monday evening, October 2nd, when all arrangements for Anniversary Night, will be completed.

Anniversary of the '46 Gale.

MUCH PROPERTY DESTROYED AND MANY LIVES LOST.

To-day—Sept. 19th, is the 76 anniversary of the greatest gale of 1846, when according to Proves there was an extraordinary high tide, the water rising over the floors of several houses on the south side of Water Street. This was the heaviest gale experienced for thirty years. Some idea of its force and velocity may be gained when it is noted that among the damage done in the city, Native Hall near the Colonial Building, was blown down, St. Thomas Church was moved from its foundations, King's Bridge was swept away and Job's Bridge practically destroyed. A boy, aged five, and his sister, aged twenty, were killed by the falling of timbers from Native Hall, and three other persons injured. The Hall was occupied by some of the sufferers of the previous 9th June fire. On sea the destruction was enormous. Howley's schooner, Native Lass was lost in an outport, the Lavinia, owned by Housnell was lost at Pouch Cove with 3,000 quintals fish, on board. Eleven boats and forty-six men were lost out of the boat Shamrock, belonging to St. Mary's was washed with all hands at the cape of that name; Joseph Kanis boat was lost at Cape Ballard with all hands, and other unrecorded damage was done to property throughout the island, which was hurricane swept over its whole surface.

Fine Fish Cargo.

SHIPPED FROM SOUTHERN SHORE.

The Cecil L. Beck, Capt. Whalley, laden with 850,000 lbs. of salt fish, left on Sunday morning for Gloucester. Her cargo was taken on board at various places between St. John's and Renews, and she sailed from the latter place. Mr. Thomas Devine, the representative of the Gorton Paw Co., supervised the loading of the Cecil L. Beck. The Gloucester Daily Times of a recent date says of the fish laden schooner James W. Fykes, which cargo was also supervised by Mr. Devine:—"Schooner James W. Fykes arrived here Saturday with 460,000 lbs. of choice salt fish. It is one of the finest cargoes of salt Newfoundland fish ever brought into this port."

15TH LEAGUE MATCH
St. Andrews vs. K. A. C. Goal: Saints 6 Goals; K.A.C. 1 Goal. Played on Glevellyn Field, July 27th, 1895.

In beautiful weather, and average gathering greeted these teams last night to witness the 15th match and first of the second half of the fixtures. Following were the players: Right from the start a rush was made. SAINTS—Goal, Scapellato; backs H. for Soper, who had to hustle. After Roger, J. Ayre, halves, S. Rodger, R.

he conceded the Blues. Nothing came of them, though, and by a succession of throws-in the K's worked well down the field, but the Saints' back line was not to be easily beaten, and the forwards passing beautifully, got near Soper again. Monroe first heading over. The K's now had a look in at the other end, but shooting for goal was wild and Scapellato had an easy time of it. Then Mars had a nice run up the left wing, and passing the ball nicely to Walker, the latter banged it into the net—one for the Saints. The Saints continued to press, the K's goal being several times in jeopardy, but half time came without further scoring. The teams crossed with the score 1-0 in favor of the Saints. Resuming play, with ground in their favour, Saints got aggressive and made the pace faster. The K backs checked them, but only momentarily, for after a few minutes Mars sent the ball past Soper for No. 4. Play raged hard and fast at the lower end, the K's having some hot work to save their goal, till Mars getting possession with a lovely twist landed the ball in the net for No. 8. Some evening followed, and "Whillans" through a bit of faulty play by Hero Rodger, secured a corner. This was nicely placed, and Frost shot the ball past Scapellato. 1 for the K's. A few minutes of even exchanges followed, then a rush by the Saints, and from some hustling in the goal mouth, a 4th goal was put on—it being difficult to locate the scorer. The Blues were now fairly in it, and soon the ball was passed across to MacFarlane, who, with a beauty easily beat Soper, right after the same player banged the ball into the net again, but as he was off-side, an appeal was granted. This was followed by some grand play by the Saints forwards, the passing being beautiful, and eventually Walker, from the right wing, with a lovely shot beat Soper for the sixth time. When the whistle sounded time the Saints were on another run for the K.A.C. goal. Score, Saints 6 goals; K.A.C. 1 goal.

Referee, P. Maynard; Linesmen, R. Young, (Saints); J. Robinson (K.A.C.)

NOTES ON THE GAME.
We are told that history repeats itself, and last night's game was a very forcible illustration of the saying. The last two league matches of the clubs (1894-7) resulted in wins for the Saints, the scores being 5-1 on each occasion, with almost identical play, and the Saints just broke a triple record by putting on a 6th goal in the 3 minutes before time last night.

The Saints forwards were all in good form, and played a dashing game right through, outclassing their opponents in combination. The half-backs were also good; all three sustaining their reputation. Jim Ayre partnered Herb Rodger as full back, and both put in some very effective play; but should hustle more. Scapellato had little to do, and didn't expect that shot of Froese.

The losers made a fairly good show in the first half, but went to pieces in the last 20 minutes. Of the forwards, Whillans and Foster played fairly well, but were too closely looked after by Rodger and Jardine to prove effective. Frost made his second league appearance for this season, and on both occasions scored. In the half-back line the Knowling Bros. gave a fine display. Phil especially being brilliant. The backs, Mathieson and Stranger, were not up to their usual form, and towards the finish were very evidently tired. Soper in goal, filled the position very well.

Friday evening, look out for the Stars vs. C.L.B., who had to play off for 2nd place last season.

Film makes teeth dingy
Most people find that well-brushed teeth discolor and decay. The reason lies in film, which old-way brushing does not effectively combat. Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. It absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It forms the basis of tartar.

It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Very few people who brush teeth daily have escaped those film-caused troubles.

Now ways to combat it
Dental science has for years sought ways to combat that film. It has found two methods and

AND CADETS AGAIN DRAW.
PLAY OFF TOMORROW NIGHT.
 The magnificent goal tending of Bill Spurrell was again the outstanding feature of the third successive playoff between the R.I.S. and Cadets, which resulted as it had before in a scoreless draw. Undoubtedly it was the best exhibition of the series and furnished thrills in five minutes that the two games did in twenty. It was generally conceded that the Cadets would be weakened last night by the absence of two of their regulars—Madden and Madden (regularly the former)—but much to the surprise of everybody, the brigade came back in great form and played particularly good and showed that he has lost none of his old time. The game was a real test of endurance in point of attendance, the turnstiles clicking for over three hundred and twenty dollars, and the general admission tickets, which proved to be a fact that the five hundred admitted in a short time were not without the least crowding or inconvenience, and it was not necessary to form any queues. The grandstand was handled splendidly by the secretary, Mr. B. B. Harris, and there was very little dissatisfaction anywhere at all. Promptly at six o'clock the three Hunt men stepped out, the R.I.S. team, elected to choose the goal, giving the Cadets in the first half what little wind was blowing but in return they had to sweat in the sun. The game started off as a fast clip, the ball travelling from territory to territory in rapid succession. Both goalies were tried out for nothing trying. For a period there had a real test but his coolness and deliberate clearing evoked great applause. Sandwiched on top of this he was in great luck when on the left side of the field he was tipped the ball with his hand, glancing off it hit the inside of the post and certainly looked nasty. Instead of rebounding in again it rolled off into the field of play. To mark the end of the first period, the R.I.S. tried repeatedly to break through the Cadet defence, but were unsuccessful. A very brief breathing spell followed them hard at it again. It was once seen that the Cadets resolved to play a defensive game and they succeeded in this right manfully, for despite gradually increasing pressure from the R.I.S. they held them off in numerous tries the Irish forward was not able to get by. Clare hooked, and battled them out in truly heroic manner. Only once was he beaten, when coming out from his goal on Burke's onslaught he was held by Burke putting it between his legs. There was a little force on the ball and it started to roll slowly across the line. It looked as if the hopes and aspirations of three years of strenuous effort were about to be fulfilled, and indeed, a mighty cheer rose from the fans assembled at the western end, when suddenly, and apparently from nowhere, the Cadets' centre half, Canning, cut in, and cleared the ball from the goal line. It was clearly a matter of clever brainwork and speed on the part of Canning, for when his own team mates were ready to believe that it was hopeless as if it furnish the fans with a return thrill.

Dried Fish.

The chief interest of the moment centres in the arrival of the Lunenburg fish driers, which means that there will be adequate supplies for trade requirements between now and the time when the summer catch is ready for market. We regret to say that the tone of the dried fish market is somewhat weaker than it was a fortnight ago, chiefly due to it is said to the present condition of business in Portugal. Portugal has always been a country more or less hard up, but of late she has been in a worse condition than ever. As a result she has depreciated enormously the value of her money. She has depreciated her money to the value of a Portuguese dollar, if she had one, would now only have the same purchasing power as a 5 cent piece would have had in pre-war days. This is rather a hard blow to Newfoundland, which has been supplying the Portuguese market with fish for a great many years, and the result is that the value of the fish is being sold in Portugal, is now butting in on other people's preserves. Several cargoes of Newfoundland fish have been offered in Halifax during the past few weeks, and no doubt other markets are being similarly attacked. From what we can learn from visiting on the water front, it would seem that exporters' ideas of values would now be about $7.70 per quintal for the Lunenburg summer catch. No contract, of course, at least none that we have heard of, have been made at as low a figure as this, but that is the price that seems now to be in prospect.

THE SINCERE ROOTER.

Old Jim was a rooter from soda to hock. And everyone knew it who lived in the block. He fanned with his neighbour and was full of fight while wending his way to St. George's at night. He fanned with his butcher while ordering the old days when things were all right. And he fanned with the landlord who did not mind what position the Irish would take. He fanned with his chum each morning and night. Recalling the old days when things were all right. He fanned with the landlord who did not mind what position the Irish would take. With all of his friends, whether lady or gent. With strangers he met in the street on each day. With old or with young, and with the wise guy or fag. He argued with friends, and he argued with foes. Old Jim was a rooter clear down to his toes. On leaving the church on a bright Sunday noon. Right glad that the service was over. He'd dream of the game for the following day. And doped out the prospects in his own clever way. Whistled down at the office his work wasn't right. For he dreamed of the playoff in his lumber each night. If he can't see a game when the Jordan he's crossed. Old Jim will regard it as Paradise lost.

The Cat Out of the Bag.

With a view to impressing upon his hearers—most of whom were junior barristers—the absolute, inviolable secrecy that ought to attach to everything that passes between lawyer and client, Lord Birkenhead once told the story of a prosperous K.C. who was recounting his career at a dinner party. "The very first case I undertook," said the K.C., "was the defence of a man charged with forgery and embezzlement. The accused was a man of good family, but an utter rotter. However, I managed to get theascal off."

"THE QUEEN OF SHEBA." From the Bible story of the visit of the Queen of Sheba, to King Solomon, a most entrancing film picture and story has been produced, and is now being presented at the Majestic Theatre. As to those who are familiar with the scenes as given in the Book of Kings, the additions and amplifications of the scriptural theme will be of never forgotten interest. The general character, the contest between Queen Amurath, the Egyptian wife of Solomon, and her Majesty of Sheba, the fight between the forces of the wise monarch and his insubordinate brother, the arrival of reinforcements from Sheba, and the rescue of King David from the Tomb of the Kings, all form an ensemble which excites a greater truth than the story as written baldly in the Septuagint. There is much to be learned from this most wonderful love story of history and the presentation on the screen of scenes older than the ages of the Christian era cannot but attract all who have a more than passing interest in sacred lore. The Queen of Sheba is a picture that should neither be missed by theologian, historian or ordinary layman. It is being reproduced to-night and to-morrow night. Go, and see it.

Obituary.

There died on Sept. 18th, after a brief illness, a highly respected young lady in the person of Miss Isabel Mary Penny, aged 22 1/2 years, daughter of the late Joseph and Nancy Penny of St. Kyran's, Placentia Bay. Deceased lady was educated at the Presentation Convent, St. Patrick's and was employed by Baird & Co. as office assistant for a number of years, where she was highly esteemed both by her employers and all with whom she came in contact, and her early passing will be deeply regretted by all. Left to mourn are one brother and numerous relatives and friends. Her funeral took place yesterday from her brother's residence, Belvedere Street, and was largely attended. The burial service was read at the Cathedral by Rev. Fr. Connors and interment was in Belvedere Cemetery. May her soul rest in peace.

Contention of the Masses.

(Twillingate Sun.)

Owing to the present rule of Government in this Colony, where many are living at the expense of the fisherman and the laborer, a feeling of dissatisfaction has been germinated and the weak minded or easily influenced masses of laborers are careless of their own interests to even maintain their families. Numerous officials have been appointed in different departments, drawing large salaries, which this country can hardly bear, and to keep up such an unworthy expenditure will cause hundreds more of our rising generation to leave our shores.

The country is overburdened with officials and owing to the examples set by the rulers a tendency to base on the Government for support and relief has been created, while taxation remains at high water mark and once energetic producers become weary in earning a "hand to mouth" livelihood.

Strikes we do not encourage, but at the root of these fruits spring up because of dissatisfaction among workers owing to those who are the cause of the country's income then the blame must be laid at the proper place and the evils of waste, extravagance and taxation be done away with before other incoming industries are crippled and the development of our wealthy products become stunted.

Many avenues of expense must be eliminated even if some who reap the fruits of the treasury have to off and take to the pick and shovel. We will not engage in productive work as heretofore? It seems that part of the expense that the treasury has to bear could be lessened to allow the road to independence to become paved.

The Last Word in Screen Drama.

NICKEL PATRONS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER BIG PICTURE.

Questionably one of the greatest motion pictures produced in a decade is Cecil B. DeMille's tremendous production of "The Affairs of State" which scored an emphatic hit at the Nickel Theatre yesterday. The picture, written by Jeanie Macpherson, and suggested by Arthur Schnitzler's celebrated play of the same name in which John Barrymore starred some years ago, marks an epoch in American screen production.

Interpreted by an all star cast including such screen celebrities as Wallace Reid, who has the leading role, Gloria Swanson, a Paramount star who is seen as the leader woman, Elliott Dexter, Bobe Danvers, Monte Blue, Wanda Hawley, Thea Roberts, Agnes Ayres, Theodore Sedgwick, Polly Moran, Raymond Hatton and Julia Faye, this production stands on the highest plane of artistry thus far achieved by Mr. DeMille. The story is satirical and filled with humor as well as moments that thrill to the core. The sumptuousness of the production, its ornate settings and wonderful gowns, not to speak of the artistry of the various character portrayals, place this Paramount picture in a class by itself. On Thursday the Nickel will screen "The Sheik" founded on the famous novel by E. M. Hull, which has been read by millions the world over. This is another remarkable picture and the principals in the cast are Rudolph Valentino and Agnes Ayres.

Committed to Trial TO COME BEFORE SUPREME COURT.

Two men, Dawe and Buckley, recently captured, after breaking into the store of P. J. Fortune, Water Street, were yesterday afternoon committed for trial during the Fall term of the Supreme Court. The preliminary hearing into the charge preferred against the men was concluded during the afternoon before Judge Harris, when the evidence of Constable Fred Churchill, who participated in the arrest was taken.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

WHAT ARE THE NECESSITIES!

I saw the home of the other day of a man who runs a $6,000 car. It was a two-family house in an uninteresting neighborhood. The furnishings were rather cheap, his wife does her own work including the washing. Both of his children left school in the second year of high school for a few months at a mediocre business college. But when they rife abroad they go in a $8,000 car.

This is not the first time I have gone behind the scenery represented by a costly car and discovered a back stage entirely out of keeping with the car.

Nor is it the first time, I am sure, that you have known such a case. You Can't Always Sometimes Tell. You cannot judge a man's income or his place in society by his car. It's not the best people, by a hundred miles, who always have the costliest cars.

It's just as apt to be the people who scrip and save and stint on the things that don't show and the things they think don't count, who flaunt about in the big cars. It takes a background of money and breeding to make people insistent on having a charming home in a good neighborhood. People of that sort buy their cars after they are assured of such a home because that is the signa qua non of life as they know it. It doesn't take any background to want a showy car no matter what of a home one has.

And it's still more true that the real people regard a good education for their children as far more vital than an expensive car.

The Only Car He Has Ever Had. A man whom we have recently met came to see us the other day in his flivver, the only car he has or has ever had. Yet he must have an income of, at least, $15,000 a year. In the course of the conversation he mentioned the fact that his three children were at college or professional schools of high standing. That's his way of spending money. And he is most emphatically one of the real people.

Again I know another man who drives a flivver though his income must be somewhere between $10,000 and $20,000. He has dependent upon him two elderly aunts and he keeps them not in bare decency but in comfort. In contrast to that let me mention that the man I first spoke of permits his own mother to live in very cramped circumstances.

The Most Natural Thing in the World. The things that people regard as a signa qua non are the best indices of their character. To have an expensive car, if one can afford it, is the most natural thing in the world. It is natural to love the beauty and comfort and luxury and exclusiveness that such a car brings one. But to have that car when one has to sacrifice education and pleasant home surroundings and the decency of taking good care of one's dependents, is to mark oneself as of the cheaper, rather than the better class of people.

Found Out.

Having heard that a new colliery in the district was wanting men, and being tired of "country life," Joe, the farmer's boy, decided to try his luck. On his way to the pit he met a collier who told him he would stand a better chance of a job if he said he came from Lancashire, as the "gaffer" hailed from that county. Joe thanked him, continued his journey, saw the boss, and asked for a job. "Have you ever worked down a pit before?" asked the foreman. "Oh yes," answered Joe. "Where do you come from?" questioned the boss. "From Lancashire," replied Joe, remembering his friend's advice. "Oh yes," went on the foreman, "and what kind of lamps do they use down there?" Joe scratched his head for a moment. "I'm danged if I know!" he exclaimed. "Yer see, I were allus on in daylight!"

LOOK OUT FOR "PALS." sep18,21

Whose Job, Anyway?

The occupants of the railway saloon car were startled by the entrance of two masked men, one large, the other small, armed with useful-looking revolvers.

"Throw up your hands," said the big one; "we're going to rob all the gents and kiss all the gals." "No, partner," said the smaller man, gallantly, "we'll rob the gents, but leave the ladies alone." "Mind your own business, young fellow," snapped a woman passenger of uncertain age; "the big man is robbing the train, not you!"

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE BROKEN WHEEL.

We found the car beneath a tree. "The steering knuckle broke," said he. "The driver's dead; they say his wife will be an invalid for life. I wonder how the man must feel who made that faulty steering wheel."

It seemed a curious thought, and I sat thinking as the cars went by. About the man who made the wheel. And shaped that knuckle out of steel; I tried to visualize the scene. The man, the steel and the machine.

Perhaps the workman never saw an indication of the flaw. Or, seeing it, he fancied it would not affect his work a bit. And said: "It's good enough to go, I'll pass it on. They'll never know."

"It's not exactly to my best. But it may pass the final test; And should it break, no man can know it was my hand that made it so. The thing is faulty, but perhaps 'We'll never hear it when it snaps."

Of course the workman couldn't see the mangled car beneath the tree. The dear man, and the tortured wife. Doomed to a cripple's chair for life. His chief concern was getting by. The stern inspector's eager eye.

Perhaps he whistles on his way into the factory to-day. And doesn't know the ruin wrought. By just one minute's careless thought. Yet human life is held at stake. By nearly all that toilers make.

WANTING A JOB.

WALT MASON.

"I want employment," said a skate, attired in seedy garments, who met me at my garden gate, where I was trapping varminits. "All right," I said, "you're strictly on. I need assistance daily; so wash the steps and mow the lawn, and ply you buck-saw gaily. I'm tired of toiling here alone, so labor like a winner, and I will pay a silver bone, and fill you up with dinner." "I do not like the wage you name," explained the weary Willie; "when up against a tightwad's game my swanlike feet grow chilly. It's worth two bucks to mow the lawn, and two to saw the cedar: one plunk for all that waste of brawn sure gets me gentle reader." And every day they come in droves, to earn an honest dollar; but when I'd have them polish stoves, or make a woodpile smaller, they don't indorse my rates of pay, when modestly I state them; they do not like my lordly way, my whiskers aggravate them. I'm waiting, watching for the gent who means it when imploring a chance to earn an honest cent by useful, helpful laboring. I'm watching, waiting for the lad whose griefs have made him humble, who gives full value for a scud, and that without a grumble!

What to Do With the Turks.

(New York Times.)

The Parisian politicians who had their three or four days of joy over the Turkish victories are beginning to temper their hilarity with reflection. It was all very fine for the Turks to beat the Greeks and take Smyrna, which, if not Turkish, would have been either Greek or Italian. But the Turks are feeling their oats. They insist on getting and holding Constantinople, Adrianople, Eastern Thrace; they want an equal share in the Government of Western Thrace; they demand a contiguous frontier with Bulgaria; they tell Europe that Bulgaria must have her promised outlet to the Aegean. What is going to be done about it? The allied fleets, if they could be induced to work together, could probably keep the Turkish army in Anatolia. But the Turks are good waiters; the Allies would probably tire of keeping strong and expensive squadrons in the Straits before the Turks would tire of waiting for the warships to move away.

The Turkish victory will undoubtedly have its reactions in Bulgaria, where there will probably be a louder demand for the outlet to the Aegean than has been promised, as well as for certain things that were not promised. In India, street crowds have been cheering for the Turkish victories; France is also a great Mohammedan Power, and the feelings of French Mohammedans may conceivably be Mohammedan rather than French in the immediate future. In other words, Europe is once more face to face with the Turk, who has been kept off for the past three years by the shock-absorbing Greek army. To be sure, he is not the Turk of old; if long in spirit, he is weak in force. But Europe is weak too, weak and divided. The Turks want certain things and are willing to work for them much harder than any European Power—except Greece, now beaten—will work to stop them.

The last stages of the Greek retreat seem to have been an utter rout; the army that fought so well last year simply collapsed when it realized that all its efforts had gone for nothing. It is significant that the Government is trying to divert the escaping troops to the islands instead of letting them come to Athens. Even so, some of them insisted on being taken to the Piraeus and have been making demonstrations against the Government. One Ministry follows another, though the rumors of an intended abdication seem premature.

Greece now passes into the background. The Asiatic conquests must be given up; possibly even Thrace will be lost. But the responsibility of dealing with the Turks now lies on the Allied Powers, whose dissensions and backstairs intrigues have brought the Turk back to the threshold of Europe. The Greeks were fighting for European civilization; the Turks were fighting for their own national life, a cause naturally dear to them. In the Greco-Turkish war both parties deserved the respect of outsiders. But in the prospective diplomatic conflict between the Turks and the Western Powers neutral sympathies could be wholly with the Turks but for one consideration. This is what the Western Powers do not pay their own losses. They leave that to the Christians of Anatolia. The Turks are making a great show of behaving well in Smyrna, where everybody can see them and the guns of British dreadnoughts command the town; but there is sufficient evidence as to their treatment of Greeks and Armenians when they are out of range of naval guns.

Colonel's Life for Daughter.

SEASIDE HOLIDAY TRAGEDY.

In a gallant attempt to save his daughter's life Lieut.-Col. C. E. Johnston, I.S.O., of Little Orme House, near Hitchin, Hertfordshire, was drowned off the coast of Cornwall near Bude recently.

Col. Johnston, who with his wife and their three children had been staying at Bude for the holidays, went to Widenmouth Bay with two men friends. Some of the party went bathing. Col. Johnston's daughter got into difficulties and her father immediately swam out to rescue her, followed by their two friends, Paymaster-Lieut. Barclay, of the Royal Navy, and Capt. Scully.

Miss Johnston, together with Mr. Barclay and Capt. Scully, were rescued with great difficulty. Col. Johnston disappeared and later his body was seen drifting out to sea.

The Difference.

A young man in a country village was about to be married, and he was going about the house looking sad and unhappy.

His father, noticing this, said: "Look here, lad, what's wrong with you? Cheer up. When I was going to be married I was going about singing as happy as a lark."

The son replied: "Aye, it's all right you saying cheer up and be happy, but remember, father, you married mother, but I'm marrying a stranger!"

Had A Thirst On Him.

Like many other present-day celebrities, Mr. H. G. Wells strongly objects to being interviewed.

One very hot day recently he was walking in a country lane near his Essex home, when he heard footsteps behind him.

Glancing cautiously round, he espied out of the corner of his eye a stranger hurrying to overtake him.

Convinced that the man would try to interview him, Wells quickened his pace and dodged down a convenient bridle-path.

But the stranger wouldn't be shaken off, and doggedly followed his quarry down the path, through a broken hedge, and across a meadow, at last running him to earth behind a hay stack.

Resigning himself to his fate, Wells turned and faced his tormentor.

"Glad you've come to anchor at last, old man," said the latter, cheerfully. "Can you please tell me if there is a 'pub' anywhere near here. I'm dying for a glass of beer."

A Case of Beer.

"I am not expecting any package," said the lady of the house.

"This is the number," persisted the driver, looking at his book again. "Name's Higgins, ain't it?"

"Yes."

"No, 34?"

"That's our number."

"Then it's for you."

"I think not. It must be a case of mistaken identity."

"No, mum. It's a case of beer."

Household Notes.

Scoop balls from the heart of a ripe watermelon and serve on lettuce with French dressing made with lemon juice.

Try baked hash. Put hash in a baking pan, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until the crumbs are quite brown.

If the metal tips come off your shoe laces, dip the end in melted beeswax and twist tightly between thumb and finger.

To prevent scratches on your polished floor give pieces of felt from a man's discarded hat on the bottoms of the chair legs.

If French toast is made in the oven instead of fried, it is more evenly browned and a large quantity can be done at one time.

Close-leaved vegetables such as cabbage and cauliflower, should be soaked in salted water for twenty minutes before cooking.

Plain mince may be made interesting enough to serve with tea if

The Woman Who Dared

CONSTANTLY suffering, nervous, lacking energy and vitality to throw off the bonds of worry and despair, this little woman dared defy the shackles of poor health—dared to defy the skeptics—dared to take that step which she believed would bring her health and happiness.

She began taking TANLAC—and now, she calls herself the happiest woman in the entire city.

Her miserable troubles soon disappeared and she found herself eating better, sleeping better, feeling better and there swept through her veins that buoyant strength and energy which enabled her to be a true helpmate to her husband and a real joy and inspiration to her family.

There is a flood of gratitude in her heart now, as she looks back to that day when she determined to have good health, and backed up that determination by taking her first bottle of TANLAC.

There is not a woman reading this little story but wants to help her husband in his struggles for success—to be strong, attractive and free from the ills that keep her dragging around without energy or ambition to attain her dreams of happiness.

But what are you doing about it—just wishing? Or, will you do as thousands of courageous, sensible women have done and find health, happiness and the joys of living by taking that splendid tonic medicine and system builder—TANLAC?

You can obtain this wonderful, up-building, energizing medicine, at all good druggists. Take

Inquiry Into Manuel's Tragedy.

ALBERT SMITH, (Swampy)—I am 55 years old and reside at Manuels. I am a farmer by occupation. I remember Saturday, August 19th, 1922, I was in my house in my home on that day. My house is situated about 100 yards from the salt water and is a small house on Manuels Road. It was a dull kind of a day and the wind was about S.W., and blowing at about 12 o'clock noon. (About 12 o'clock noon) that day I was going to my house and happened to see in the Bay a small boat. The sail at that time would be about 100 or 1000 yards distant from me. I could just see the boat and she was steering about N.W. The boat appeared to be very small and appeared to be painted white and was about 800 yards from the nearest point of land, which is Manuels beach which is about 500 yards from my house. I was watching the boat for about 15 minutes and she appeared to be going alright and then she suddenly disappeared. After I sighted the boat first I went out into my field and commenced mowing hay and I was watching the boat on and off about 15 minutes. I had a clear view of the Bay as the place where the boat was on a height. The time I looked the boat appeared to be alright and when I looked again the boat had disappeared and about five minutes afterwards I saw the peak of the sail come out of the water and remained a few seconds and disappeared again. A good bit of the day appeared to come out of the water and when I saw it first I thought they were hoisting sail on the boat. In my opinion the distance from Kelly's Island to the mainland is about two miles. In my opinion the boat would be about three-quarters of a mile from Kelly's Island when it disappeared. I saw a motor boat coming from the direction of Kolligraws going towards Bell Island that day and I saw it when it crossed near the white sailboat and at that time the little boat appeared to be going alright. When the sail of the little boat disappeared I looked for the motor boat and saw it was then about half way between Little Bell Island and the pier and would be about two or three miles from the place where the little boat disappeared. I am not able to say whether the scene of the accident was shut out from the motor boat by Little Bell Island or not. It would be about 12.30 p.m. as far as I can judge when the little boat disappeared and the wind was from the same point and blowing heavy with a good wind top.

CONCERNING AN ELECTION.

Political rumor says there is to be elections this Fall, but yet no real proofs are forthcoming to warrant this rumor. No doubt some think that this would be the best time to sound the waters, and Government patronage seems to be handed at a rapid rate in the way of construction work in many districts throughout the Island. Maybe the rumor is correct, at least the Telegram gives that inference when it states that the Voters List has been compiled from the Census taken last year.

Why the Government is not able to carry on another year, to complete the four years term, may not be difficult to ascertain, when viewing the present financial state of affairs and the fact that the Humber Project and the Railway problem are yet in the balance, causing stagnation of progressive business in the country generally.

The next thing for consideration is, can the present Government calculate on support from the people, or the electorate, merely through the throwing out of labor when they wait till election time to improve marine work, and yet leave the yoke of taxation as heavy as can be borne by the fairly well off? Why the salaried man and fisherman and labourer cannot manage to meet all demands, if he can any, under the present circumstances.

If the horns are to meet again very soon, will there be a three cornered fight or will the Coaker wing hold within the ring of the Seaters camping ground? According to the sentiment of this District, the present Government will have a hard fight, to even return one candidate, providing the opposite side puts up anything like a decent fight, after finding good men. It is said that Mr. Jennings does not intend coming, and like Commissioner Samson he may be given a permanent billet when the time is ripe.

What the manifestos will promise, should elections take place, we cannot imagine. One thing certain it is possible that some planks in the political platform could be made up in such words as these:—"Now gentlemen if you elect us to power, we will see that you get reduction of taxation."

Oh! My word, sure that's nothing new, that's reducing every day, or we mean the production of taxation is.

This District shows some resentment to the present rulers, because, while labor is sought after, and circumstances force people to seek it, they abhor the idea of being taken advantage of in their need, and openly declare that their vote cannot be bought.

It is on this basis of squander that the wherewithal is found to buoy up the political boodler who acquires the birthright of the most honorable who never get a show or a chance to better the country in a fair and half decent manner, would go a long way in staying relief, which only means a loss to the Government. Of course if votes are the main objective well its a poor way to get political support.

A COMPARISON OF PRICES.

We were handed this week by a business man here, Harvey & Co's price list for May 1913 and also of August just past, and to compare prices causes some astonishment and although the cost in the production is greater than 1913, yet how much cheaper would articles of food be, if only the present duty was brought down to normal. Take Sugar: in 1913 it was selling wholesale at $3.20 per 100 lbs. To-day, for 100 lbs. the charge is $11.50, which includes 5 cents per lb. duty, nearly double the cost of 1 lb. of sugar in 1913.

Talk about Government employ ment and relief, does it pay to rob revenue in such a manner and then with a right about face have to keep the best part of the population? We will compare some more of the prices mentioned in the market report later. Striking the public on a dime necessity is putting a fly in the ointment of prosperity and wealth.

Oh! Well, we will have to be patient while (sic) the Govt is halting a few tracks of Branch Railways and the building of a few Gibraltar in outpost harbours.
