The with which all the field pieces can be soldiers in the various branches of the fired and the murderous efficacy of the English service have the opportunity improved Gatlings and the rapidity with here of showing features of skill and which soldiers can discharge their daring, and giving the public some breech-leaders, show that the military idea of the value of the special training schools in the English army. Judging by the results of yesterday I should say any of the great powers would be of Liquid Malt Extract, Emby the results of yesterday I should say any of the great powers would be of that the training they have, as shown necessity a very bloody and a very brief in the magnificent contests of physical one. endurance, the exhibitions of riding, fencing; and of the practical duties of a soldier is of a very high character. The men selected were strong, wiry, active, men selected were strong, wiry, active, and splendid-looking young fellows.

All of the contestants were non-commissioned officers and troopers: These exhibitions attract large audiences and BARGAINS! have resulted in great profits to the originators. The hall is large and long, with an arena eight hundred to a thousand feet in length and about two hundred feet in width. It is in this arena that all of the feats take place. The fencing and the contests between the sword and the bayonets are not so interesting as those which brought feats of riding into play.

One of the first exhibitions of riding was what was known as lemon cutting. Two lemons were suspended by a thread about fifteen feet apart and hung from small wooden stands about the height of a cavalry rider's sword arm. At a signal from the burgler the rider would come dashing in at one end of the arena at full speed, and as Extra Value he flew down by the lemons he would make a forward cut at the first thread Largest, Cheapes and a back-handed cut at the next one. The distance between the two is very short and the speed was tremendous, yet two or three of the most skilful riders succeeded in dropping each lemon by very scientific cuts. This trial was followed by tent-pegging. In the first piece a square peg painted white was driven well down in the ground, leaving about four inches standing above Then various numbers of the corps of lancers would charge down at it at full speed, and in passing it were required to strike this peg full with the larce and tear it from the ground and carry were members respectively of the Life Guards and of the Prince's Own. The public here expect more from a Life Guardsman, and this particular representative never failed to carry off the peg. But the favorite of all was a young fellow from the Prince's Own Guards. He was round-headed, smallfeatured, alim-waisted, with hair the color of pale mustard, while his eyes were a dare-devil grayish-blue. He had a little wisp of a moustache, and a neat, reckless, defiant set up. There was in his manner a combination of swagger one of the BEST BUSINESS STANDS in and greenful effections. He would ham. and graceful effrontery. He would come riding in at the peg as if there was nothing on earth easier for him to do. He never hurried any of his move ments, although his horse moved like a steam engine, and he invariably flour ished his lance twice, and at the very last possible second would strike the peg clean in the centre. At once it would fly out and go swinging round his head as he sat like a man of steel upon his magnificent bolting black-bay horse. Of all feats of daring and skill this rattle-headed young fellow was the master. Whenever he appeared the audience cheered in advance THE HORSE GUARDS' MUSICAL DRIVE. MARBLE,

The most interesting feature of the exhibit was the musical ride of the Horse Guards. Thirty-two privates of this showy military organization rode in upon thirty-two black horses. The Monuments. Headstones, horses as well as the men appeared to be all of the same size and age. I have never seen such a piece of military machinery as was exhibited in this series of movements without a word of command. They would first divide and go through all the movements of a cotillon, and then circle through the most complicated mazes of the most fanciful of Germans. The men and horses would weave in and weave out of its various figures without a word or a motion. The men sat like statues upon their R. R. Ties, Lumber, Laths, black horses while the band played shrilly, indicating the movements. The Canned Lobsters, Mackerel, Berries, precision and the grace of this drill made a sight which the audience cheered Potatoes, Fish, Etc. again and again. The horses would change step at the change in the music. Sometimes the evolutions were so complicated that if the horses engaged in it had not all gone at exactly the same pace and the same speed, there would have been a break and consequent con

WONDERFUL HORSEMEN. horsemanship was in the drawing of field cannon at a hand gallop about the arena between certain marked places. An officer of artillery would come dashing in, followed by a field piece drawn arden Peas and Beasn &c. by six horses. There was an artillery rider for each team, with two men on the caisson. Earthen pots were placed about at a distance just wide enough to permit the heavy wheels of this great waggon to pass through without hitting. The thing was to drive this clumsy vehicle at top speed and come safely through every place without hitting. The officer, who goes ahead, acts as ADVERTISERS pilot. The horses were very large and powerful and as excited as those in the Can learn the exact cost fire service. They came in plunging of any proposed line of and rearing with the heavy waggon at their rattling hoofs. It was marvelous advertising in American to see how deftly and skilfully these clumsy engines were dragged through Papers by addressing various places marked for them, and Geo. P. Rowell & Co., only at rare intervals knocking over the piece which marked the roadway.

A NOTABLE FEATURE. I noticed one feature of the English Dr. J. S. Benson troopers' riding, and that was that during all these daring feats they sat in their saddles after the fashion of the Wild West cowboys. There was no attempt at any time, not even when the Duke Street, - ' Chatham horses were trotting, to rise in the saddle. Some of the horses were ridden during the exhibits without saddles. It was a much more interesting and attractive exhibition of a soldier's skill The London correspondent of the than a mere drill. The firing of Gatder fire, the laying of a line of rails for, The military tournament now going an artillery engine and its use, were on at the Agricultural Hall is one of actual illustrations of various features idea of the value of the special training preparations in Europe have now reach-
