Serious, However, He Cables to McKiel—Col. Armstrong's anation.

Kiel was president of the Fairville tennis club and was re-elected to office during his absence.

In the casualty list published yesterday morning reference was made to a Lieut. A. F. Ball, who was reported as wounded, with the explanation that there was no such name in the list of officers of the tenth battalion. L. P. D. Tilley, M.P., said last evening that he knew there was a Lieut. Ball, of Winnipeg, in the tenth, as he had met him last fall at Valcartier. Reference to the official list shows the name of Lieut. A. B. Ball of Winnipeg, and this, evidently, is the man who was wounded. Lieut.-Col. Russell L. Boyle, of Crossfield, Alberta, who died of his wounds, was credited in the official report to the Seventh battalion, in error, as he was in command of the Tenth battalion.

Colonel Armstrong's View.
In reference to the despatch received on Saturday concerning the capture of some Canadian guns by the Germans and their subsequent recapture by the Canadians, after a brilliant charge, Lieut. Col. B. R. Armstrong said yesterday the accounts were considerably mixed up. As far as he knew there were no 4.7s with the Canadian artillery equipment at all. He was a battery of four point sevens that was captured, they were British guns. He had not heard of any forty-five pounder guns. Major Magee was in charge of the heavy battery, consisting of four sixty pounders.

At before they were captured, the trenches of the permanent force, were also attached to the heavy battery. The fact that no casualties were reported among the Canadian officers would also lead the St. John officers to believe that it was a British battery and not a Canadian one which had been captured.

Captured 1,000 Says Berlin.
Berlin, April 26.—(By Wireless to Seyville)—In the official statement given today by the German general staff, it was announced that more than 1,000 Canadians had been captured in the fighting around Ypres.

The official statement says in part: "The Germans hold Lisiane, on the west bank of the canal, which the French pretend to have recaptured, also on the east of the canal, the conquered terrain remains in the possession of the Germans. The number of cannon taken by the Germans rose to 45, including four English."

French Deal of German Claim.
Paris, April 26.—(By Wireless to Seyville)—The German press, basing its claim on the so-called official communication, says that a semi-official communication issued by the German general staff, on the 25th, stated that the second army corps of 98,000 Frenchmen, which is the strength of an army corps, were put out of action in a single sector of the Argonne. It is stated that the second army corps of the front, had disappeared, after being almost entirely annihilated. Pinder, who was in command of this corps at the end of the winter was withdrawn from the Argonne, but the Germans faced it in Champagne, and the credit for French success on the Perthes-Benayon front."

FORESHORES BILL MYSTERY CLEARED

Hon. Mr. Baxter Says He Furnished Material and Flemming Drew it—Attorney General Says Mr. Tilley was Consulted About the Matter—Hon. Mr. Morrissy Replies to Pinder's Attack and Invites Members to Stop Making Insinuations and Make Their Charges Against Him—Business of the House.

(Special to The Telegraph.)
Fredericton, April 30.—The balloon went up in the house this afternoon. Hon. John Morrissy challenged the Hon. James K. Pinder in the firing line and back up their slanders by definite charges before the royal commission.

James K. Pinder condemned the flighty way in which the road law was administered. All power to do everything regarding roads seemed to be placed in the hands of the minister of public works. When the Haseen government came into power in 1908 they promised that the people should have control of the roads placed in their own hands, and that those roads had never been properly carried out. Anyone who traveled about in York county could see that there had been no such improvement in the condition of the roads as there should have been had they been under proper management.

Mr. Baxter's Confession.
He said the St. John Globe was in error in its statement that he (the attorney-general) knew nothing about the foreshores bill introduced by Premier Flemming last session. He (Mr. Baxter) did know all about it. He procured the information and gave it to Mr. Flemming, who prepared the bill, and introduced it. He referred to a St. John member who knew all about this, but whoever the St. John member was he did not back up Mr. Baxter. The attorney-general's confession was late, but the excuse he made for not owing up sooner was very lame. He was not going to tell Carvell during the royal commission that he knew all about this, but he would refer to the fact that the commission had not been paid a cent for their services yet.

Attacks Department Official.
With such management as that no one could expect that the roads would be kept as they should be. There was an official in the department who took up on himself to run the whole county, and he had no better evidence of his activities could be found than to walk across the highway bridge and see how he had had things managed there when repairs were being made. When an election is on this man comes out and tells all the government employees just exactly how they are to vote, and he leaves the rest out altogether. And when a by-election comes on he takes charge of the whole thing, but he seems to know the whole organization and when money is wanted he goes around and arranges for men to become guarantors on a note to raise the necessary campaign fund.

Baxter Asks Pinder to Prefer Charges.
Hon. Mr. Baxter said the honorable member for York was quite within his rights in making the assertions he had made, but they did very little service. Before the present session opened it was decided to give the fullest opportunity to any one who had any grievance or charge to make against any of the departments. A chance to do so was afforded by the appointment of a commissioner who would receive such charges and investigate them. This commissioner had held frequent sittings, but so far only charges of the most minor and trivial character had been brought before him, charges which referred principally to little irregularities caused more often than not by ignorance.

Morrissy's Department.
Before the bill was taken he wished to reply against the man in which the road law was administered. All power to do everything regarding roads seemed to be placed in the hands of the minister of public works. When the Haseen government came into power in 1908 they promised that the people should have control of the roads placed in their own hands, and that those roads had never been properly carried out. Anyone who traveled about in York county could see that there had been no such improvement in the condition of the roads as there should have been had they been under proper management.

SAYS CANADIANS WERE STEADY AS REGULAR TROOPS

London, April 29.—Lieutenant-Colonel Buell, of Brockville (Ont.), is in the hospital at South Kensington suffering from shrapnel which almost shattered his shoulder blade, where a bullet is still embedded. He is making slow progress towards recovery. Colonel Buell was wounded on Friday, while leading a reserve battalion of Canadians into action to cover the exposed flank of two Canadian battalions who were in the trenches. Colonel Buell today, in describing the scene, said the noise was ear-splitting, with the German artillery showing remarkable precision pounding not only the Canadian front but also enfilading.

3,400 CANADIAN SOLDIERS REACH ENGLAND SAFELY

Ottawa, April 29.—Thirty-four hundred Canadians who sailed from Halifax on the steamers Gramscian and Northland, arrived in England today. They will form a part of the second Canadian overseas army division which it is hoped will be completed and in the trenches within a short time.

General Restrictive Measures Approved by All Members, But Laborites Object to Statement That Workmen Are Not Putting Forth Best Effort—Quadruple Wine Taxes Opposed by Trade Interests.

London, April 29.—The proposals introduced in the House of Commons this afternoon, by David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, to double the duty on spirits, quadruple the duties on wines and to institute an increased graduated tax on beer to encourage the use of lighter beers were strongly opposed, and it is generally believed that the new taxes will have to be moderated before parliament will accept them.

French Looking After Turks on the Asiatic Side of the Straits—Much Activity Along the Line in France But No Big Battle is in Progress—British on the Defensive Near Armentieres.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY

According to a Canadian Associated Press cable, the Canadians are now holding the live line between Pillebeke and Bousloghe, factory almost due north. Pillebeke is about five miles west of St. Julien which marked the extreme left front of the Canadian division when the battle of Langemarck began. The heaviest fighting appears to be between St. Julien and Gravenstafel, four or five miles east, in the advance of the British towards Langemarck. Along the Ypres canal, Lisiane and Het Sas, the Germans admit, have been recaptured by the French.

London, April 29.—With the battle in Flanders seemingly at an end except for the attacks which the Allies are making to recover the rest of the ground which they lost last week, the interest of the public has turned to the Dardanelles, where French and British forces have been landed, and, with the cooperation of the fleet, are making attempts to force the straits and open the way to Constantinople.

NEW LOGS RUNNING INTO FREDERICTON BOOMS.

Canadians Fought and Won, Against Rules of the Huns

Almost Indescribable Was Success of Bayonet Charges Against Advancing German Lines

Empire Thrills With Achievement, Say London Papers—Canadian Attack Saved Hill 60 and Its Retention Gave British the Victory—Our Boys Gave More Than They Received.

News of the glorious stand of the Canadians northeast of Ypres, and their break-up of the German offensive...

(Special to the Montreal Evening News) London, April 26.—From the centre of the empire here, to the farthest confines of the Antipodes, all Britain—"a thousand nations with a single soul"—as the poet says, the truth of whose words are manifested by an occasion like this—is still thrilling over the glorious exploits of British troops in the battle of Hill 60.

All Britain shares in the glory, as all Britain has shared in the struggle. British regulars and British territorials have won undying fame in withstanding the enemy's seemingly overwhelming onslaughts, but standing out above every exploit of veteran campaigners was the exploit of the Canadians held as the greatest of the war.

Had the Canadians faltered then, the German hordes would have swept on, and experts here state that even the possession of which today commands the situation, might have been lost to us. For it is now known that the point which the Canadians were fighting for, had it fallen, would have opened the way to Ypres town itself.

British troops still hold Hill 60, and as long as they are secure there, the battle cannot end in other than a British victory. It is the capture of this position by the British that precipitated the great battle, Sir John French having thus made one of the greatest strategic strokes of the war.

The head-quarters of the British Overseas Army, Northern France, Sunday, April 26, via London, April 26.—The British troops, they say, the harder they are whipped, the more they are whipped.

The above phrase, the sharp comment of Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces, when apprised that the Germans had broken their way through to the Ypres canal, is today the slogan of the entire British army.

were full of men and the hill defended like a fortress.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable) London, April 26.—According to the Times correspondent, the Canadians on Friday were pitted against a number of Hungarian regiments, which had been brought up to fill a gap in the Duke of Wellington's army.

The division was compelled to retreat, leaving the four guns in the enemy's hands. But the troops responded to the call of their officers with a dash and spirit, and with two brilliant bayonet charges they forced the enemy to retreat in disorder.

Such deeds cannot be done without heavy loss and the loss of Canadians in this battle has been heavy. The whole of the Paris press pays homage this morning to the admirable and marvellous dash of the glorious Canadian charge.

Lord Charles Belfrage, inspecting the Northamptonshire Volunteers yesterday, said he had been thrilled by the story of the Canadian division's exploit of Hill 60.

The Standard says: "The recovery of lost guns has sometimes cost greater sacrifice of life than would be satisfied by the actual advantage won. In this case, the recovery of the guns, by the enemy carrying off the guns, but by their gallantry they saved the situation."

The Daily News says: "Sir John French tells us that Canadian gallantry and determination saved the situation. The Manchester Guardian remarks: 'Canada's brilliant work showed that the British Empire is not only a nation of endurance, resource, and daring, but also a nation of heroes.'"

London, April 26.—The scenes in London yesterday night upon the announcement that the Canadians had recovered their guns, were a magnificent sight. The city was lit up with the light of the searchlights, and the sound of the bells was heard in every street.

Then Gen. Alderson brought word that the Moroccan and Segalae had given way.

The capture of the guns, which were behind the French lines, is already known, so in their capture, it will remain a historical event. Then came our charge which regained most of our lost ground and drew off the pressure from the French until reinforcements were hurried up.

The latest news from the front today is good. The French are reported to have surrounded and captured a whole German battalion near Lisseron. The Canadians are still holding their lines in great shape.

London, April 27.—Major Hercules Barre, of the Royal Montreal, who lies wounded in a London hospital, explains why the Royal Montreal was the second line of trenches in the Ypres fight, were so badly mauled. He says the German gas shells were the cause of the disaster.

Lord Kitchener Declares the Charges of Inhumanity Have been Proved Beyond Doubt

Sorry to Admit it, War Lord Says, But He Has Found That the Huns Have Starved British Prisoners and Have Even Gone So Far as to Shoot Them—Insulted in Every Way by German Captors—Germany Will Be Made to Pay in the End, Churchill Declares.

London, April 27, 9 a.m.—The British parliament occupied itself today with discussions on the treatment of British prisoners of war in Germany. In both the house of lords and the house of commons, gratitude was expressed for the efforts that have been made by the United States to ameliorate the conditions of the prisoners.

Lord Kitchener's speech in the house of lords, in which, as a soldier, he said he was sorry to be convinced that German inhumanity toward British soldiers was the most notable expression of the day. There were, however, equally striking notes in both houses, notably by Lord Lansdowne, leader of the opposition, and Lord Cromer, who expressed regret in the house of lords that the British admiralty had seen fit to segregate captured German submarine crews.

TO PLACE RETURNED SOLDIERS ON FARMS

Colonel Hammond, of the Salvation Army, arrived in St. John, N.B., on the course of a tour in Canada to examine the chances of placing returning soldiers on the farms here when the war is over, whenever that may be.

"Of course Canada must make provision to absorb her own soldiers first and then there will be plenty of work for boys of old England who will want to move from there when the war is over. I may have to travel over Canada two or three times, but I want to get the ideas of how many can be placed in positions—this may be 200,444, it may be half a million."

The means of absorption exist in all the colonies, but they must be organized and if the organization is completed before the war is over then things will be adjusted themselves automatically and come to a new economic state of things will dovetail with the moulded preparations."

CANADA AND THE WAR.

In many parts of Canada Monday there came upon our people a new realization of the meaning of the great war. This was brought about by the arrival of an incomplete casualty list, to which, unfortunately, many additions must be expected from day to day.

New Brunswick has not escaped some share in the casualties, and the heartfelt sympathy of all will go out to those families which have suffered bereavement. In other provinces the losses have been heavier, because while New Brunswick's artillery was engaged in the battle the infantry from this province was not at the front as units, though some men had been drawn from our infantry.

What is Sir Robert Borden going to do about it? Later news from the seat of war confirms the earlier report that the Canadians played a very important part in the great battle of the Yser.

The Standard and Sir Robert Borden may try to interpret this language as an acquittal for Mr. Fleming if they so desire. The language is clear, and the Royal Commissioners meant what they said.

While the Borden government is rushing its preparations for a general election, the Standard joins the Toronto News in putting forward a plea that the Liberals should stop firing on the government and allow the Conservatives to do all the campaigning.

MR. FLEMING'S CASE. The fact that Hon. J. K. Fleming cannot be the official standard-bearer of the Conservative party in Carleton-Victoria without the consent and approval of Sir Robert Borden is a self-evident proposition.

The Liberal party could ask nothing better from a party standpoint than that the official organ of Hon. Mr. Hazen, of Hon. Mr. Clark, of Hon. Mr. Baxter, and of the whole Conservative machine, should now undertake openly to defend Mr. Fleming and to present him as an admirable candidate to represent a New Brunswick constituency in the House of Commons.

Don't badger them. Keep reasonable, and we will get you safe across."

Of course the resemblance of the leading Conservative politicians to Lincoln is not justly overblown. The attempt to apply the Lincoln proposition to Canadian politics and Canadian public affairs at this juncture leads the Independent Conservative Ottawa Citizen to offer a few kind words on the subject which are worthy of consideration by readers of the Standard, among others.

The Standard invites its political opponents not to badger the administration at this crisis, and seems to consider the words of Lincoln applicable to the political situation in Canada at present. But it will be noted that Lincoln was addressing sincere critics of his own party and policies.

Probably Sir Robert Borden was not consulted when the deal was arranged by which Mr. Fleming was nominated. That does not help the Premier of Canada or the ex-Premier of New Brunswick.

AGING BONES AND SORE JOINTS CURED!

Old age is usually afflicted with rheumatism. Very few pasty fish escape its tortures. Many it bends and deforms. Upon the countenances of others it marks the effects of its awful suffering. Nervine will cure rheumatism. It takes the pain out of throbbing muscles and swollen joints. It unbinds gnarled knuckles. It does this quickly and surely.

CONCERTED ALLIED ATTACK DEFINITELY STOPS GERMAN ADVANCE THROUGH FLANDERS

London, April 28, 10 p. m.—“Our operations in conjunction with the French have definitely stopped the German attack.”
In these words, Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces on the continent, announces the conclusion of another German attempt to break through the Allied lines around Ypres and along the Yser Canal, which brought about one of the most sanguinary battles of the war.

“These men,” he said, “were lying struggling for breath, and blue in the face. On examining their blood with a spectroscope, and by other means, I ascertained that the blueness was not due to the presence of any abnormal pigment. There was nothing to account for the blueness and their struggles for air but one fact, and that was that they were suffering from acute bronchitis, such as is caused by the inhalation of an irritant gas. Their statements were to the effect that when in the trenches they had been overwhelmed by an irritant gas produced in front of the German trenches and carried toward them by a gentle breeze.”

“One of the men died shortly after our arrival. A post-mortem examination showed that death was due to acute bronchitis and its secondary effect. There was no doubt that the bronchitis and accompanying slow asphyxiation was due to irritant gas.”
Brindisi, Italy, Tuesday, April 27, via Paris, April 28—(Delayed in transmission).—The French cruiser Leon Gambetta, which was torpedoed in the Straits of Otranto, was the victim of the Austrian submarine U-6.

“All the officers on board perished at their posts. One hundred and thirty-six members of the crew, including eleven under-officers were rescued by vessels sent out promptly to their help by the Italian authorities.”
London, April 28—Harold Ashton, writing from northern France to the Daily News, says that everywhere in the department of the Pas de Calais, the praises of the gallant Canadians are being sung. Tried in crucible of the intensest heat, they have not been wanting.

“The wounded who came down to the base today, and there are many hundreds of them, were in high spirits, though many of them will assuredly never fight again. They respect the German as a fighting machine, pure and simple; but over his humanity they just shrug their shoulders expressively. They tell how in the great Steenstraete fight they had to retire for a spell during the thick of the tumult, leaving their wounded there. Presently they returned, the Germans having been hurled back under a tornado of machine-gun fire. They found all their wounded comrades bayoneted to death. Their revenge for this was swift and terrible. At the point of their own bayonets they only took two German prisoners alive.”

“The Canadians broke all conventional rules of warfare in their amazing operations. They found the Germans wheeling all around them, both behind and in front of their trench. Instantly, they adapted themselves to the situation and fitted up a double-ended trench to meet the trouble. They were surrounded, and hemmed in on all sides. It did not avail the enemy. Yelling, enflamed and hemmed in on all sides, they rallied and fought back with infinite courage and dash, giving the Germans behind them, as well as those in front of them, most terrible punishment.”

Awe inspiring in its solemnity, was the military funeral of the late Lance Corporal William Elmore, of the 40th Battalion, held yesterday afternoon.
