57TH YEAR. NO. 23274

LONDON, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 1922

PRICE, THREE CENTS

ASSURES SITE FOR L. AND P. S. DEPOT IN CITY

Hon. Frank Carvell Intimates Grand Trunk Will Cede Land Required.

LAUDS HON. W. KENNEDY

Believes New Minister Will Do Utmost To Improve Railway Service.

That the London and Port Stanley Railway will experience little or no difficulty in reaching an amicable understanding with the Grand Trunk Railway Company with respect to the contemplated purchase of land for a new L. and P. S. R. depot in London, was the practical assurance given The Advertiser Friday by Hon. Frank B. Carvell of Ottawa, chairman of the Dominion Railway Commission.

Accompanied by C. C. Bowker, general superintendent of the Ontario lines of the Grand Trunk Railway; G. Hewson, chief engineer, G. T. R.; G. A. Mountain, chief engineer for the railway board; Captain Lawrence of Ottawa, a member of the railway commission, Mr. Carvell arrived in the city Friday morning from Guelph and inspected the Grand Trunk property that is sought by the London and Port Stanley electric road as a site for a modern up-to-date depot and general offices.

"We came down to view this situation at close range," the chairman of the federal commission explained. "The London road is seeking this property directly facing the Grand Trunk depot, bounded by Richmond and Bathurst streets."

Questioned as to the probable decision of the commission, Mr. Carvell declared: "There seems little doubt but that the two roads will come to a perfect understanding, and that the local line will be enabled to secure this property."

"They intend, I believe," he said, "to wreck the building at the corner and construct in place a modern depot sufficient for the needs of the traveling public, as well as for their general offices."

Turning to the general outlook for the future, the chairman pointed out that while conditions had not been any too promising in the past, the Grand Trunk since the first of the year had shown much better results than any of the other roads. While the outlook generally remains much the same as last fall, he had the utmost faith that another year or eighteen months at the most would witness a good revival of business throughout the country, which would result in the railroads receiving the first direct benefit.

LAUDS RAILWAY MINISTER

"I have every confidence in Minister of Railways W. C. Kennedy," assured Mr. Carvell. "It is true that his railroad experience has been limited. The minister admits that much himself. But there is this much to say—that Mr. Kennedy has made a great success of everything that he has yet attempted."

"He is a good, sound businessman and, moreover, I know that he is strictly honest. Of course, if one will stop and realize the situation, it will be agreed that no matter how capable or honest a man may be, he cannot, overnight, facts and the government roads have not been the best of shape as everyone knows well. However, despite all this, we fully believe that Mr. Kennedy will be equal to the emergency."

Mr. Carvell pointed out that a publicly owned road was unable to economize to the same extent as a private corporation.

DISCUSSES FREIGHT RATES

Discussing the question of freight rates, the chairman said: "Of course, they will say that I am an old muck-rack from the east, but I honestly believe that I can show them one way in which to help lower the rate."

Mr. Carvell picked up a Grand Trunk timetable and counted down the list of passenger trains operating between London and Toronto.

"Here they are," he pointed out. Turn to Page 15, Column 4.

10 Per Cent Boost In Hydro Rates

LONDON POWER COMMISSION TO DEBATE DEFICIT

Members Agree To Defer Action Until Toronto Board Reports.

CANNOT AVOID ADVANCE

Loss Was Sustained On Current Supplied to Industrial Concerns.

Will another two weeks witness an increase in hydro rates for local commercial consumers?

Members of the public utilities commission have agreed that a boost of approximately 10 per cent upon the present scale should be made effective, but have deferred final action until they have consulted the hydro-electric power commission in Toronto.

E. V. Buchanan, general manager of the local hydro department, has reported to the commissioners that although a general hydro surplus is shown in respect to power and light supplied to industrial concerns, means 10 per cent boost.

Mr. Buchanan urged a return to the 1919 rate, and after close consideration of the proposal the commissioners have expressed unanimous willingness that such a rate be placed in effect.

This plan it is explained will mean approximately an increase of 10 per cent, possibly a little more or less in some instances.

While the manager has satisfied the commissioners that such a step is imperative if a surplus is to be shown in every department, the latter express the desire that no move be made for two weeks. In the meantime, the Hydro-Electric Commission will be consulted.

It appears that the latter authorities at this moment conducting a careful survey of the situation in every hydro-consuming municipality and district, with a view toward a complete readjustment of rates. The commissioners as well as the manager are agreed that it would not be advisable for the local authorities to institute an elevation of rates with the possibility that the commission would subsequently complete its report and decide upon another raise.

Manager Buchanan points out that it will probably be several months before the Toronto commission will have completed its survey and urges that local action be taken now. He does not believe that the commission would insist upon another raise in June or July next.

In order to safeguard against this possibility he will ask for such assurance from Toronto before the next meeting, upon the receipt of which the change in rates will become effective without delay.

REPORT STEAMER GRONTOFT SINKING

Boston, Mass., March 3.—Radio station along the north Atlantic seaboard today were actively seeking news from the Norwegian steamer Grontoft, which was reported sinking yesterday with 20 men aboard 500 miles southeast of Cape Race.

The latest word from the Grontoft stated her lifeboats had been smashed by the stormy seas. The steamer Estonia was reported on her way to the sinking steamer, and mariners here believe the Estonia had reached the Grontoft in time to save the officers and crew.

The Grontoft, a freighter of 1,200 tons, was bound from Galveston to Esbjerg.

MAYOR WEDLAKE DIES IN BRANTFORD

Rose From Molder to Presidency of Cockshutt Plow Company.

ACTIVE IN SOCIAL WORK

Donated Salary From Civic Office for Relief Work in Home City.

Brantford, March 3.—Mayor George Wedlake, president and general manager of the Cockshutt Plow Company, died about 11 o'clock this morning. His death was not unexpected, since he had been in a low condition from the time he collapsed while giving evidence in the police probe here, but the news came as a shock to all citizens. He was a Brantfordite in every particular, enthusiastic, loyal and earnest.

Educated in the local public schools before there was a high school he started with A. Harris & Son as a molder, and served his apprenticeship there. As a journeyman molder he went to Cockshutt's to work when there were but twenty employees and five types of plows. He rose to be foreman, superintendent, vice-president and assistant to the president, assistant manager, general manager, and then Col. Harry Cockshutt was appointed lieutenant-governor, president and general manager.

He was always active publicly. He served on the public school board and then on the board of health. When hydro was brought to Brantford eight years ago he was elected to the commission and had been a member ever since, resigning only to enter the mayor's chair, which sent him back to the board. He was active in social service and the work of the Methodist Church, being known as the "Father of Wesley Church," and had been president of the Hamilton Conference Laymen's Association. His generosity was unbounded, and during the present industrial crisis not only all his civic salary but a large part of his income went for relief. He was actively interested in helping local associations generously.

PRaises ACTION OF KIWANIS IN AIDING BOYS

Joe Barges of Montreal Pays Tribute to London Club.

MAKE MAN RESPONSIBLE

Well-Known Social Service Worker Offers Solution of Big Problem.

A tribute to the London Kiwanis Club for the action of members in adopting the underprivileged boys of the city was paid by "Joe" Barges of Montreal, social service worker, and expert on the treatment of delinquent young people, in an address to the club Friday noon. He declared that this is the first instance of such action in his knowledge, and that London Kiwanians are to be credited with reaching the only solution of the boy problem.

Unless one knows a boy one cannot understand him, he pointed out. The only manner to understand a boy is to be personally responsible for his career, and this method is adopted by the Kiwanis Club.

"I think it always best to declare ourselves," he began, "I have two creeds and the first of these is all fatherhood of God and all brotherhood of man. The second is Kiwanism. Every Kiwanian should be a red-blooded man and every red-blooded man in the world today realizes that there is something radically wrong."

Offers Solution

"I have been hearing much of your club of late with reference to boy's work. The big problem has been the failure up to the present of our public organizations and societies which have proved a detriment. The only way to handle a boy today is to take him to church once a week or to the ball game, but to be absolutely responsible for that boy's future. The only place I know of that started this is right here in this room."

Continuing, the speaker traced the phases in a boy's life with special reference to his youth period. He warned to be the most dangerous. If a boy were handled properly in these phases the man produced would be of the best type. Inheritance of attributed characteristics from parents prove a great factor in a boy's life, declared Kiwanian Barges. He illustrated his points by incidents in his study of boy life with college graduates from reformatory inmates as the result of ideal treatment.

Men Must Set Pace

"There are men here who would give anything in their life to get rid of something in their nature that they cannot shake," he declared, "and they get it in adolescence and cannot shake it because it has been there too long."

"Everyone has been a thief and has not been a thief. One of the most thrilling adventures of my life was when at 9 years of age I stripped a clothes line and almost got pinched. It was not stealing, because I could not realize that it was not right for me to do that."

"You men will set the pace with these boys," the speaker concluded. "Don't forget that boy will be what you are. Some of these cases will stagger you like a Chinese puzzle working backward, and you know what that is."

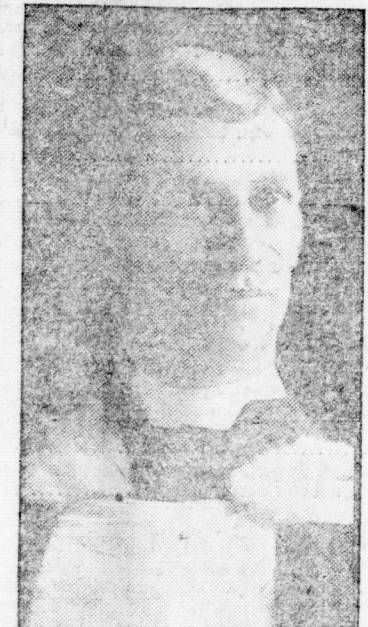

S. F. Laverson addressed the club on behalf of the War Memorial Sick Children's Hospital, and several Kiwanians volunteered to assist in the campaign canvass for funds. Ken Murray entertained with a humorous song.

A. E. Barbour acted as hostess at the luncheon, prizes donated by him being won by Charlie Way, Wilf Hodgins and Dr. W. S. Downham. President Arthur Ford acted as chairman at the luncheon, which was held in the Tecumseh House.

PRaises BRITISH ACTION IN EGYPT

New York, March 3.—(Canadian Press)—"Egypt is free, but remains within the sphere of the British Empire. No friend of the Egyptians could wish it otherwise." Thus the New York Herald sums up the result of the ending of the British protectorate. The paper declares "England is progressing with her dream of Empire," and pays a tribute to the wisdom which has been displayed by British statesmen in dealing with the Empire's various units.

Receives Honor

REV. W. J. DOHERTY.

THE Bishop of Huron has announced the appointment of Canon W. J. Doherty of this city as archdeacon of Perth, to succeed Ven. Archdeacon Carlisle, who has gone to Montreal as dean of Christ Church Cathedral. The appointment will be a popular one in the city and throughout the diocese of which the new archdeacon has been secretary-treasurer since the meeting of synod in 1916.

Ven. Archdeacon Doherty was born in London, is a graduate of the Western University and Huron College, and with the exception of a few years in Huron, he has spent all his life here.

FAIR WAGE CLAUSE PROMISES DEBATE

Meets Opposition From Alderman Douglas, Chief Advocate Of Garbage Collection By Contract.

LABOR COST IMPORTANT

Collectors' Pay Sheet Required $44,000 Out Of Total Outlay Of $73,000 In 1920.

The question of inserting a fair wage clause in the specifications for the tenders for garbage collection promises to be the subject of a heated debate at the special meeting of No. 2 committee Friday night.

Ald. Douglas, who is fathering the movement to call for tenders, has expressed the opinion that no such clause is necessary.

Ald. W. J. Ashton, a labor man, asserts that he will fight to have a fair wage clause inserted in the specifications.

It is known that other members of the committee are divided on this point.

The wages item is the big expenditure in garbage collection, the collection labor in 1920 costing $44,000 of the sum $73,000 expenses.

The matter of whether or not the engineer will put in a tender for the collection will also have to be decided, and again, there is said to be a division of opinion among the aldermen.

As matters now stand, the crucial point is being reached. There are said to be members of the council who are absolutely opposed to letting a contract for garbage collection. So far they have not shown their hand, but the fight seems near as matters are now narrowing down to a point where expense will be incurred in connection with the calling for tenders.

DEBATE CECIL'S RESOLUTION ON IRISH BOUNDARY

Members of Commons Discuss British Lord's Amendment To Treaty.

CLAIM ULSTER TRICKED

Would Preserve Main Territory of Three Counties For Northern Government.

London, England, March 3.—In the resumption of the debate on the Irish bill in committee stage in the House of Commons today, the discussion of Lord Hugh Cecil's amendment was continued. This declares that in approving article XII. of the Anglo-Irish treaty relating to the Ulster boundary, the British government does not intend to agree to transfer the main area of any of the six counties of Northern Ireland to the territory of the Irish free state, but agreed only to minor boundary adjustments.

Ronald McNeill, Unionist member for the Canterbury division of Kent, said this was the central point of objection to the measure, the provision in question being resented by some members as a breach of faith toward Northern Ireland on the part of the government.

He quoted Michael Collins, leader of the Irish provisional government, as having said that Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, had been tricked by his own friends.

This and other charges that Ulster had been tricked brought an interruption from Winston Churchill, secretary for the colonies, who said the statement that a promise had been given by the prime minister to Collins and Griffith that the counties of Fermanagh, Tyrone and Londonderry would be handed over to them was absolutely untrue and had been repeatedly denied.

Joseph Devlin, Nationalist member for the Falls division of Belfast, said the Ulster members were complaining of trickery and asked why they should expect to be exempt from it. They had never found the government out until now, he remarked, and yet they had been supporting it for a quarter of a century against the interests of their own country.

Churchill Followers Defeat Government

LONDON, March 2.—The committee stage of the Irish Free State bill in the House of Commons today developed a prolonged duel between the government and the "die hards." The discussion was quiet except at one point, where Winston Churchill, who was in charge of the bill, raised a storm by declaring:

"If the house should extend, modify, or exemplify, or amend, or change the measure, the bill would be dead, the treaty would be dead, and the government would be dead."

This caused considerable laughter and Sir Frederick Banbury, Unionist, retorted: "In that case I must persevere with my amendment."

The discussion on the Banbury amendment proposed to make it plain that the treaty was between Great Britain and Southern Ireland, not between Great Britain and Ireland.

Mr. Churchill resisted the amendment and stated that in the negotiations with the Irish representatives, the government had decided, for good or ill, to consider the men they were negotiating with as representing the Irish nation.

This statement led to an uproar and cries of "traitor!"

The Banbury amendment was then defeated 254 to 65.

An interesting point arose when Charles Percy, Coalition-Unionist, moving an amendment in favor of giving the free state power to secede from allegiance to the king or set up a republic, was answered by Mr. Churchill, who opposed such an amendment, saying that if it did not alter the treaty, it was unnecessary, and if it did the change would be a disaster.

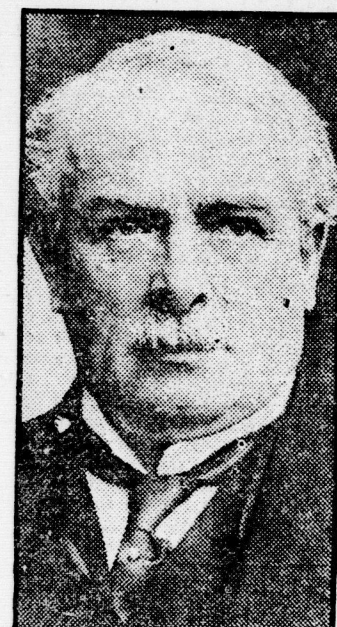

Margot Gets "Cut" In Ottawa By Governor-General and Lady Byng

Ottawa, March 3.—Government House officially cut Mrs. Margot Asquith during her two-day stay in Ottawa.

Mrs. Asquith called on the Governor-General and Lady Byng and left her card, the first afternoon she was in Ottawa, but she received no answering invitation to tea or dinner.

In the evening, instead of attending the lecture on "People, Politics and Events," the vice-regal patronage was graciously bestowed on the hockey match between Ottawa and St. Patricks. Mrs. Asquith divided her time between Sir George and Lady Perley and Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King.

May Quit Office

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.

LONDON, March 3.—Every indication today points to a hardening of the opposition of the "die-hard" Conservatives to the leadership of Premier Lloyd George, and it is believed only a miracle will avert the prime minister's tendering his resignation on March 8.

RAILWAY UNMOVED BY UNION APPEALS

Street Car Company Head Declares Wage Reduction Already Made Will Not Be Reconsidered.

WILL ADHERE TO STAND

C. B. King Announces Firm Will Not Deviate From Course It Has Undertaken.

Appeals to provincial boards, or the like, fail, seemingly, to make any impression upon the management of the London Street Railway Corporation.

Questioned Friday morning as to the next move, C. B. King, general manager of the railway company, declared positively that there would be no deviation from the course adopted Wednesday morning last, a general three-cent-an-hour reduction.

The company will now assume a period of watchful waiting, the manager intimated.

"There will be no developments inasmuch as we are concerned," he explained. "We have put our reduction into effect, and it is not our intention to change from that course."

"The union claims that the company has violated the provisions of the statutes by failing to call for a board of conciliation. What do you think about it?" Mr. King was asked.

"That is merely a matter of opinion," was the latter's confident reply.

PRINCE OF WALES WILL CANCEL AMRITSAR VISIT

Fear Entertained That Revolutionary Party Will Wrest Leadership From Nationalists.

LONDON, March 3.—Scattering reports to the newspapers indicate that the situation in India is causing increasing anxiety to the authorities, particularly in the Punjab and the United Provinces of Bengal.

There is said to be danger in Bengal that the members of the old revolutionary party will take control of the political movement out of the hands of the Nationalist Congress party, owing to the anger of the extremists at the postponement of civil disobedience.

The Daily Telegraph prints details showing that action is growing in all the above-named districts, where the situation is getting more and more out of the control of the authorities. The report of the impending arrest of Mohandas K. Gandhi, non-co-operationist leader, is reiterated.

The Daily Mail says that the Prince of Wales has abandoned his intention to visit Amritsar, where it is recalled troops fired on agitators in April, 1919, killing 388 persons. The reason for the alteration in the prince's plans is not stated.

ARGENTINA NOT TO PARTICIPATE

Buenos Aires, March 3.—The foreign office authorizes the statement that Argentina has taken no steps whatsoever looking to participation in the Geneva economic conference, and has no intention of doing so.

A Paris dispatch on Wednesday stated that French official circles had indicated that they were much in favor of the participation by Argentina and Brazil in the Geneva conference because of their importance as commercial nations. No request for an invitation, however, had been received from either.

91,000 KILLED BY AUTOMOBILES. New York, March 3.—(Canadian Press).—During the eighteen months that United States troops were engaged in the war overseas, 45,000 soldiers lost their lives on the battlefield. In exactly the same period, according to the New York Herald, 51,000 persons, of whom 25,000 were children, were killed by automobiles on United States highways.

PREMIER WILL QUIT UNLESS AID ASSURED

Opposition of "Die Hard" Conservatives Said To Be Increasing.

CHAMBERLAIN TO SPEAK

Coalition Leader Expected To Make Important Oxford Pronouncement.

London, March 3.—Wednesday, March 8, is the date Premier Lloyd George has set for fulfillment of his ultimatum to Austen Chamberlain, according to well-informed parliamentary circles.

By that day he has not received satisfactory assurance of the loyal support of the coalition Conservatives, it is said, he will present to King George his formal resignation of the premiership which he is now figuratively carrying in his pocket.

Numerous private meetings of politicians yesterday led to no official announcement of developments tending toward a solution of the crisis.

One of them, indeed, resulted in hardening the opposition of the "die hard" Conservatives to Lloyd George's leadership.

Must Respect Principles

This meeting was held in a committee room of the House of Commons, where more than eighty Conservative members of the Commons and the House of Lords adopted a resolution affirming that "in order to restore confidence throughout the country, and with a view to approaching general elections, there is urgent need for the reassertion of the Conservative and Unionist principles."

The meeting is reported to have further decided that the utmost should be done to hasten the formation of a Conservative-Unionist government.

The determination of Mr. Chamberlain, Lord Chancellor Birkenhead and other Conservative leaders, to stand by Mr. Lloyd George, is unshaken, and the "die hards" will take in an endeavor to bring their followers into line are viewed with interest. Curiosity may be satisfied when Mr. Chamberlain delivers his speech at Oxford tonight, and it is generally expected he will make an important pronouncement bearing on the political crisis.

Regard Situation Critical. The cabinet met last night but, as far as can be ascertained, did not deal with the crisis, transacting only business.

All the morning newspapers print lengthy accounts of this situation, together with editorials, taking sides in the issue. The anti-coalition newspapers say the storm raised by the premier's letter to Mr. Chamberlain became worse yesterday, while Lloyd George's champions declare matters are somewhat improved. All agree, however, that nothing approaching a settlement has been reached, and that the difficulties remain acute.

Secretary Maintains Kenya Still Colony

LONDON, March 3.—(Canadian Press Cable).—A comparatively animated correspondence has been proceeding between Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, secretary of state for the colonies, and an Indian delegation from Kenya Colony, now in London, for the purpose of pressing the claims of the Indians in Kenya to a status of equality with other residents of that colony. Mr. Churchill, replying to a letter from the Indians in question, adheres to the principle that Kenya must be regarded as "characteristically a British colony," but he concedes that the difficulties are acute.

Great Dane of Uncle Tom's Cabin Troupe Dies In City Animal Hospital

The leader of a pack of dogs, used in the production of Uncle Tom's Cabin, in Thamesford, was expressed to the London Humane Society, Thursday afternoon, suffering with inflammation of the kidneys, but in spite of efforts made to save it, the animal died Wednesday morning.

The dog was a magnificent Great Dane, one of the finest of its species, and was a pet of the whole company, several of whom came hurriedly to London when they heard that there was no hope for their favorite's recovery.

Inspector Tustin stated that this was one of many cases which serve to show the wide area in which the London Humane Society is recognized as a place where animals receive the best possible treatment. The dog was valued at $500.

The inspector's report for the past month shows how great an amount of work is carried on by the society. Four hundred and sixteen horses have been removed from unfit conditions, and it has been necessary to destroy three. Thirty-seven dogs have been destroyed and 42 rescued off the street in a starving condition. Eighteen cats have been destroyed. The inspector has issued six warnings in cases of cruelty, as a last resort before prosecution, and in one case where it was necessary to prosecute, conviction was secured.

During the past week a hound, about twelve months old was run down by a motor car on Adelaide street and brought to the Shelter seriously injured and in great agony. Care was exercised, with the result that the dog is now better, and Inspector Tustin is anxious to find a home for it somewhere in the country.

MAKE WAY HARD FOR DESERTER

Should Be Brought Back to Support Wife and Family.

SIGNS OF TIMES HOPEFUL

Rev. Peter Bryce Talks to Advertiser of Child Betterment Movements.

"Isn't it a hardship for a mother and small children, left in straitened circumstances by the desertion of the husband and father, to be obliged to wait five years, according to Ontario law, before they can become beneficiaries under the mothers' allowance act?"

The question, oft heard, was passed along by the women's department of the Advertiser to a real fountain head of information, Rev. Peter Bryce, chairman of the mothers' allowance commission of Ontario and chief of the Child Welfare department of the Social Service Council of Ontario, during his visit in the city on Thursday.

"As far as mothers' allowances are concerned, presumption of death has been reduced from seven to five years to entail less hardship on mother and children," said Mr. Bryce.

"But even so, the criticism offered is that in five years a family will have time either to put itself on a satisfactory footing or suffer to the extent of being permanently handicapped," objected The Advertiser.

"Not necessarily so," said the authority on questions of social welfare, in the quiet way that is very deceiving. It doesn't prepare the reviewer for the lightning bolt that usually descends immediately after a thunderous bolt, which, nevertheless, shatters false premises, and cleaves straight to the heart of truth.

Always Two Sides.

Mr. Bryce's bolt in this case proved very conclusively that there are "two sides to every question."

"We don't want to subsidize wife and family desertion, a problem which has assumed appalling proportions," he continued. "We feel that the government should deal with the matter in a fundamental way, take every possible step to locate the deserter, bring him to justice, and make him do his duty with regard to his family. The United States Congress has agreed to sign a treaty with Canada whereby desertion will be made an extraditable offence between the United States and Canada."

"This will doubtless be ratified by the federal house at the next session. From an economic standpoint it would be less expensive for the government to bring a man back and compel him to work to support his family than to permit the family to become a public charge. Ten or eleven per cent of all the cases that come under the care of the Neighborhood Workers' Association in Toronto do so because of family desertion."

World Getting Better.

Apparently Mr. Bryce is one of the optimistic people who not only work for the betterment of the world, but believe it actually is being achieved. He spoke optimistically of the many movements in this province which have as their object child betterment, the laws that are being placed on the statute books to more adequately protect the interest of children.

"The new order whereby a man imprisoned for a length of time earns money for the support of his family is working out most satisfactorily," he commented. "Hitherto when the father was placed in jail it was the wife and children who bore the brunt of the hardship. Under the new act, of 129 men who thus were enabled to earn wages during the last fiscal year 110 made good. Since the beginning of the present fiscal year in November every one has made good. This benefits not only wife and children, but reacts on the men themselves."

Graduation was expressed over the splendid showing of London with regard to the reduction of infant mortality since the inauguration of aggressive child welfare activities.

Well Done, London.

"A reduction of 30 per cent in two years, apart from all the other benefits derived, is a record of which any city might be proud," he said, adding, "One of the most hopeful signs of the times is the appointment of so many community nurses. Down in Ingersoll yesterday, I learned they are appointing a community nurse. The campaign of the provincial board of health and Red Cross in sending out nurses last year for demonstration purposes is bearing fruit, as are the efforts of various other agencies in this direction extending over a period of several years."

Auxiliary classes, in the estimation of the chief of the child welfare department of the Social Service Council of Ontario, are another most hopeful sign of the times and development of intelligent public opinion. He drew attention to the increase from 14 in Ontario a year ago to 43 at the present time.

With regard to the act protecting children born out of wedlock, Mr. Bryce stated that amendments are to be submitted to cover points not taken into consideration when the act was framed. "The administration of the act is getting under way," he said, "and all these measures are a part of the general movement for child welfare."

MAGISTRATE TO DECIDE IF WASH TUB IS "UTENSIL"

P. H. Bartlett Called Upon To Define Act In Home Brewing Case.

Is a tub used on Monday for soaking the family wash an "utensil" under the inland revenue act when it is used for a wash of an entirely different character, to wit, beer? This is but one of the questions Deputy Police Magistrate P. H. Bartlett will have to decide when he gives judgment in the case of Austin Meikle, charged with brewing beer without notifying the department.

When the police arrived at the home of Mr. Meikle, 423 Ridout street, on February 23, they found what Inspector Lucas described as a wash tub containing a beer wash. Inspector Webbe, of the inland revenue department, stated that Meikle had told him that he had asked a Mr. Bonser to give in his name to the custom officials, telling them that he (Meikle) was making beer for his own use.

Mr. Webbe had investigated and found that Meikle's name had never been handed in. When analyzed, the wash had gone 215 proof spirits. "The stuff is made from a powder sold in packages all over the city," declared J. M. McEvoy, K.C., counsel for the defence. "If a wash tub is held to be part of a brewing apparatus, then there are a lot around town."

"There is no evidence that the beer was made for sale," said Mr. Bartlett. "No, we admit that it was made for his own use," stated Major T. J. Murphy, acting for the prosecution.

PRaises WORK OF BABY CLINIC

Rev. Peter Bryce Credits Institution With Reduction of Infant Mortality.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

James Gray Chosen President of London Social Service Council.

The reports of the two conferences held last year in Europe, in the cities of London, England and Brussels, form the basis of the address given by Rev. Peter Bryce, chairman of the mother allowances commission and director of child welfare for the social service council of Ontario, at the annual meeting of the social service council of London, Thursday night in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

The London conference dealt with the question of the health of the child, both as regards mental and physical aspects. Nearly every country in the world was represented at the conference.

"It was found," said the speaker, "that nearly every country was vitally concerned over the question of its infant mortality."

The country that had the lowest death rate among children under one year old was New Zealand, and this was attributed largely to the splendid climate of the country. However, much had been done to reduce to a minimum the death rate among children by establishing baby clinics and in providing excellent housing conditions.

Baby Clinics Help.
That the establishing of baby clinics had had a great deal to do with the reduction of the infant mortality in the various countries was shown from figures before and after the clinics started.

In England in 1909 the death rate was 155 for every thousand babies born, whereas in 1920 it was reduced to 89 in every thousand.

In 1902, England only had 200 baby clinics, but in 1921, was operating 1,837 child welfare centers.

Compared with other places in the Dominion, London, Ont., had one of the lowest death rates in 1920, having

Describes Utilities Outlay As "Investing," Not "Spending"

RATEPAYERS should stop and consider that there is a wide difference between "spending" and "investing" money, contends E. V. Buchanan, general manager of the public utilities commission. "The average citizen fails to regard our situation in this light," he explains. "There is a strong tendency to place us as a spending body in a like position as the board of education."

SENTENCES LEE TO REFORMATORY

Jack Lee, found guilty a week ago by Deputy Magistrate P. H. Bartlett on a charge of procuring a young girl for immoral purposes, was sentenced to the Ontario Reformatory for a period of not less than three months, and not more than two years, less one day, when he appeared before the court on Friday morning.

James Crawford, charged with the same offence, was discharged by the court. A. M. Judd appeared for Crawford.

only $0.7 in every thousand babies born as against 116 in 1919. For the whole Dominion the death rate among babies under one year old in 1920 was 106 in every thousand.

"It has been proved that pasteurization of milk is essential for the proper care of babies; this with baby clinics and paying the price will materially reduce the death rate of our infants," said Rev. Mr. Bryce.

"We have got to spend money to get results, and the municipalities and the members of parliament have got to learn that if they have to economize in other things, this country is against the reduction of expense if it is at the expense of the child."

Discusses Illegitimacy.
Speaking on the subject of children born out of wedlock, the speaker said that people had been accustomed to look upon such as social outcasts, and rather than interest themselves in the behalf of the illegitimate children had sought how they might get rid of them instead.

"The child born out of wedlock should be given even greater consideration than any other, and it was with this in view that the act passed only a short time ago was put into force," said the speaker.

Briefly touching on the question of maternal mortality, the speaker said that this presented a very serious question to the average minister of a parish because it was found to be an almost impossible problem to find homesteaders for the working man who lost his wife, since he could not afford to pay very much out of the wages that he was getting, besides providing for the rest of his family.

The consensus opinion at the conference was that the

ADDS MILLION TO ASSESSMENT

Propose To Collect School Tax On Full Valuation of Annexed Industries.

COUNCIL MUST DECIDE

Clause in Act Provides For Collection of Arrears.

If the proposal to have the industries in the annex taxed for their full assessment for school purposes is carried by the council on the strength of the opinion of the city solicitor, the assessment for school purposes will be raised just a little short of $1,000,000.

At the present time the industries in the annex district are paying school taxes on an assessment of $192,500. The valuation on the assessor's books, which it is contended should be the school assessment, is $1,129,425. This latter amount includes business tax but does not include income assessment.

The matter will be decided Monday night, when the council meets, and if the proposal to collect the school taxes on the current assessment is put through, Ald. Ashplant, who is pushing the matter, intimates that he will then invoke section 5 of chapter 266 of the public school act. There is a provision in the act which gives power to collect arrears owing to errors or omissions so far as the three years "next preceding" to the end that no property shall escape its due proportion of support to public education in Ontario.

"On the difference in value between the two assessment items, nothing in taxes of any kind have been paid for, either school or general tax," says Ald. Ashplant, and it is on this difference that he is asking that school taxes shall be paid.

The figures with the assessor's value and the fixed assessments of the various industries are as follows:

Commission Plans to Spend $200,000 On Parks, Playgrounds, Waterworks

Exclusive of the hydro department the public utilities commission proposes to spend in 1922 approximately $200,000. Preliminary estimates for this amount, covering the parks, playgrounds and waterworks departments were considered and approved at the regular session of that body Thursday afternoon.

It is intended that the playgrounds expenditure for the present year will be $21,000, or about $2,415 less than last year. This will incidentally cover a deficit of $891.24, resulting from a decrease in attendance at the civic skating rink.

At Thursday's gathering Manager Buchanan pointed out that the receipts from this source hardly paid for the labor and other expenses. After the mid spell it appears the attendance fell off to an alarming degree. Once the skaters stop coming they fail to come back, the directors say.

Decrease in Salaries.
While the salary for the chief supervisor of playgrounds will remain as in 1921, a decrease is noted in the aggregate salaries for the 22 supervisors under his charge. The

LAUDS BRITISH RULE ABROAD

Prof. Dorland Delivers Lecture at University Extension Course.

WHOLE WORLD DEBTOR

Declares Future Peace Depends On League of Nations.

That the future peace of the world, and civilization itself, rests on the league of nations at Geneva, and upon the dominions of the British Empire, which too is a league of nations, is the opinion Professor A. G. Dorland, voiced Wednesday night in the public library, when speaking on "The Character and Meaning of the British Empire," under the auspices of the Western University extension department.

"I think," said Professor Dorland, "that we Canadians don't know enough about our Dominions," in beginning his lecture. "The Empire has changed a great deal in the last few years, particularly in the last 25 years, and even in the last two months, when self government was accorded to Egypt, and the Irish free state was brought into existence," he stated.

The British Empire had made the unique contribution to the world of political liberty on the scale of a world-wide state, for which the whole world stood debtor to Britain. And pre-eminently among the races of the world, the British have self government, he declared.

"Wherever the British have gone, and they have traveled to every quarter of the globe, they have carried with them self government."

Dominance Resisted.

In every colony of the empire the political dominance of Britain has been resisted, he said, and such resistance culminated in the revolt of the New England States in 1775. British statesmen have made mistakes from time to time, and it was not amazing that they made the error which resulted in the revolt of the American colonies since they had no precedent to follow.

Prof. Dorland asserted that at the time of the revolt, statesmen had considered colonial autonomy as absolutely incompatible with an empire, the only two statesmen who saw differently at the time being William Pitt, the Younger, and Edmund Burke. Pitt had said at the time in the House of Commons, "You cannot conquer America."

When the colonies became free they faced the difficult task of creating a central government with which to give unity to the different states, yet having for each of the states its self government. Eventually they drew up a form of government which proved eminently successful which gave federal unity, yet the widest possible freedom in their own local problems, said the professor.

Professor Dorland showed how the United Empire Loyalists, coming to Canada, after the rebellion, brought with them a spirit which demanded more, and even as much, self government as the United States had.

Prepares Famous Report.

The speaker sketched the progress of self government, commenting on the constitutional act of 1791 with its defects, then the rebellion of 1837, which resulted in the sending of Lord Durham to Canada, after which he prepared his famous report, a report so worthy that it should be the duty of every Canadian to read.

The Durham report recommended fullest autonomy without any external dictation and the result was the act of union of which Edmund Burke said, "the bonds were as free as air, yet as strong as steel."

Lord Elgin put the recommendations of Lord Durham in effect in 1859, in the form of the act of union. The final test was the Canadian customs act, which brought a showdown and left Canada to determine her own fiscal and commercial policy.

From the Canadian precedent the other dominions had achieved self government, Australia, South Africa and the Irish Free State, which was, said Professor Dorland, "a step in the right direction," henceforth her status would be that of a sister dominion.

Would Get Self Government.

India would receive self government, said the speaker, he believed, just as soon as they were capable of carrying it on without wroking any race or religion.

"The colonies have developed, and are developing into a community or commonwealth, and each will stand master in its own household," said the professor.

The speaker declared that the changing character of the British Empire had been recognized by statesmen for some time. Joseph Chamberlain had said, that it was a "family group of nations, England being the first free nation. 'I have tried to show how important it is for every nation to understand this, particularly our neighbors to the south of us, since it would, if they understood it, do a good deal to remove fear and distrust of the empire among other nations, for such fear is based on ignorance and it is well for us to know their history and we theirs.'"

"The British Empire is not Imperialistic, nor does it stand for aggression, nor is any tribute of money or men exacted from the colonies in time of war, said the professor. 'The British Empire is the most successful experiment in internationalism that the world has ever seen, and from it the league of nations could take a lesson for on such principles rested the future of civilization.'"

Suggests Cutting Power So Londoners Can Get More Sleep

THERE is an expression to the effect that "it's an ill wind that blows nobody good." Similarly it may be said of a storm that fails to do likewise. Oliver Ellwood of the hydro department explains that one of London's leading citizens questioned him a day or so ago and asked if it would not be possible for the authorities of the latter department to shut off the power every now and then throughout the year. "When the power was off for one entire evening during the recent storm," points out this observant citizen, "it compelled a number of people to go home and go to bed early, something that they had not done for months. It would not be an unwise move for Mr. Buchanan to institute the same as a regular procedure at least once a week."

The suggestion has been brought to the attention of the commissioners, but the latter seem reluctant to take action.

RACE TIP PAPER DIES FIRST DAY

Detroit, March 3.—The first day of business for the "Thoroughbred Official Program," an alleged racehorse "tipping" service, ended disastrously when the offices of the publication were raided by a squad of officers under James Sprott, deputy police commissioner, and Herman Gordon, the manager, Ed Mulligan, the telegrapher, and four other men were arrested at 33 McGraw Building.

According to the police, Gordon said he had just opened the place after signing a contract with a news service. He told officers the raid would cost him $4,000, because his contract had been broken, they say.

A telegraph instrument had been installed by arrangements with the Postal Telegraph Co., police say. This was ordered disconnected by the telegraph company manager immediately after the raid.

A large number of the "programs" with blank pages, which were to be filled in with a mimeograph dial, were seized. The "program" cover asserts that it was being sold at 15 cents when other publications of a similar nature, police declare, have been selling at from 25 to 50 cents an issue.

FINDS VETERINARY NOT GUILTY OF O.T.A. BREACH

Magistrate Dismisses Charge Laid Against Dr. K. L. Hoskin.

Dr. K. L. Hoskin, veterinary surgeon, was found not guilty in police court Friday morning on a charge of obtaining more than one bottle of whiskey at a time from the licensed vendor under section 128 of the O. T. A.

An information was then laid against Dr. Hoskin under section 49 of the O. T. A., a charge of selling and disposing of liquor contrary to law. Dr. Hoskin pleaded not guilty, the case being adjourned until Wednesday.

There was no evidence offered by the crown in the case of Dr. Wm. McDonald, veterinary surgeon, charged with a breach of the temperance act. These cases have been hanging fire since last December, being adjourned from time to time.

A. R. Douglas, acting for the crown, wished to reopen the case against Dr. Hoskin when the case was called Friday morning, but A. M. Judd, counsel for the defence, objected, stating that the case had been closed and that no further amendment could be made to the charge.

J. M. McEvoy, K. C., appearing for Dr. McDonald, contended that the crown could not prosecute two cases on the same collection of liquor.

Students Formally Take Possession of New Quarters.

ENTHUSIASM DISPLAYED

Commencement Exercises At New Structure Largely Attended.

Commencement exercises and the presentation of medals and scholarships took place in the new collegiate institute building, Friday afternoon. The auditorium, gaily decorated with the school colors, was filled to capacity, as the enthusiastic student body formally took possession of their new quarters.

The feature of the program was the presentation of a long list of medals and scholarships, of which event students have been in gleeful anticipation for some time past.

The T. G. Whiskard scholarships were the first on the list. The sum of $10,000 was bequeathed to the collegiate institute by the late T. G. Whiskard, the interest of which was to be devoted to scholarships.

The winners of the first year scholarships, $30 and $20 were Velma Richardson and Evelyn Jones, the second year, $40 and $30, Evelyn White and Grace Gleeson, and the upper school scholarships of $70 and $50, went respectively to Thos. Sampson and Isabel Duncan.

The medal awarded by Sir Adam Beck for the student gaining the highest standing in Part 2 of the entrance in faculty of education examination went to Kathleen Dolan, and Eleanor Grant was the winner of the Boyle Memorial Medal, presented by Thos. H. Purdon for Part 1.

Mac Smith Wins Scholarship.

Mac Smith was the winner of the C. R. Somerville scholarship of $50, for upper school work and the Philip Pocock prize of $20 for upper and middle school students went to Robin L. Rutman. J. Lorne Dawson was the winner of the Alan Gibbons medal for the highest standing obtained in the pass matriculation examination.

FAYORS FINANCE BODY

Public Library Board Advocates City Commission.

One public body that is heartily in accord with the proposed city finance commission is the public library board. The board has passed a resolution, the tenor of which is to the effect that it is decidedly in approval of the commission.

After passing the resolution the board named Benjamin Noble as their appointee to the new commission.

Formal sanction of the board of education to the use of a room in the new Victoria school for library purposes, having been duly granted the public library will open its branch there within two weeks' time.

This opening of a library in a school is in the nature of an experiment and the library authorities are anxiously awaiting to see with what success it will meet.

Several hundred volumes have been prepared and are now ready to be placed on the shelves when the library opens.

CONSTIPATION BAD HEADACHES, FAINT, DIZZY SPELLS

Constipation is one of the commonest ills of mankind, and one too often allowed to go unlooked after, until some serious complication sets in.

A free motion of the bowels daily should be the rule of everyone, then there will be no constipation, sick or bilious spells, dizziness, heartburn, coated tongue, foul breath, sour stomach, floating specks before the eyes, jaundice, water brash, etc.

Keep the bowels properly regulated by the use of and you will enjoy the best of health.

Mrs. Frank Wilsey, R. R. 3, Belmont, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with constipation for nearly two years. I had bad headaches, faint and dizzy spells, and would bloat terribly. I was nearly discouraged, for I had tried so many things that I gave me no relief. My mother got me a trial of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and told me to give them a fair trial. After I had taken one I felt much better and continued their use. Now I have no faint and dizzy spells and am gaining nicely. I would not be without Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for the world."—Adv.

TO DEFER ACTION ON PLAYGROUND

Utilities Commission Leaves Purchase of West London Property in Abeyance.

FAVOR SCHOOL GROUNDS

Agree to Local Banks Collecting Water and Light Bills.

It is the hope of the playgrounds committee that increased facilities for the children's amusement will be provided in West London.

Although this question has received the earnest consideration of the members of that group of the public utilities commission, it has been decided to defer action in respect to the purchase of property in that section until the next meeting of the commission.

The McGillivray land has been considered by the commissioners for some time past, and was suggested for purchase as a civic playground. It was pointed out, however, by Commissioner Philip Pocock that as the board of education contemplates the purchase of land on the west side for a new public school it would be well to consult the trustees and ascertain just how much land was to be secured.

Used With Effect.

"School grounds have been used with great effect," commented Commissioner Pocock, "and it is my opinion that if suitable land is purchased by the board there will be adequate space for a playground on the same. At this moment I am not enthusiastic about the purchase of further land."

The commissioners accordingly deferred action for two weeks, and will confer with the trustees.

Commissioner Pocock was insistent also that a strong effort be made to secure from the Western Fair Board the right to use the inside of the race track at Queen's Park. Commissioner Jared Vining was also willing that the entire commission approach the fair directors with this end in view. "I think it is up to the fair board," commented Mr. Pocock. "There is a splendid tract of land there for our purpose."

With the approval of the proposed city finance commission the Public Utilities Commission has selected the following to represent them on that body: Philip Pocock, playgrounds committee; T. W. MacFarland, parks board; Jared Vining, utilities commission.

To Collect Bills.

Banking institutions in outlying districts will be notified that they may for the convenience of their patrons collect water and light bills, no expense to be assumed by the public utilities commission. It is further stipulated that all returns must be made by the banks no later than the day following the last day of payment or else the discount will be forfeited.

This motion followed the request for the same from the Royal Bank, Hamilton road.

EX-STUDENTS OF O. A. C. TO MEET

First Annual Convention Will Be Held in Hyman Hall.

COMMENCES NEXT FRIDAY

Educational Extension and Other Vital Subjects To Be Discussed.

Arrangements are now practically completed for the first annual convention of the ex-students of the Ontario Agricultural College, which is to be held in London on Friday and Saturday, March 10 and 11. The regular sessions of the convention are to be held in Hyman Hall, beginning at 2 p. m. on Friday afternoon and ending at noon on Saturday. On Friday evening a banquet will be held in the Tecumseh House, for which a splendid program has been arranged, and it is stated by R. A. Finn, agricultural representative for Middlesex County that this will be an opportunity such as ex-students of the O. A. C. have never before had to get together for a real evening's entertainment, two busy sessions and a good time all round.

The afternoon session of the first day will be preceded by the annual meeting of the Western Ontario O. A. C. Alumni Association, which has its headquarters in London and which was not only the first local O. A. C. Alumni Association to be formed in Ontario, but was directly responsible for the ultimate organization of the provincial association and the bringing of the coming convention to London.

This meeting will be short and will consist largely of routine business incidental to the annual meeting. It will be held in the office of the Ontario department of agriculture at 1 p. m., and will be adjourned in plenty of time for the first session of the provincial convention in Hyman Hall at 2 p. m. This latter session will be devoted first to the ordinary business of an annual meeting, including the election of officers, after which the work of the Ontario government rural credits scheme will be explained by the chairman of the agricultural development board, Toronto. Arrangements have been made to have a full discussion on this subject.

Discuss Educational Extension.

The morning session on Saturday will be largely devoted to discussion on educational extension, which the Western Ontario Association asked to have placed on the program, owing to the fact that a discussion of this subject has formed the major portion of the winter program of the local association.

It is expected that a full discussion will take place with reference to ways and means by which education may be extended more freely to rural districts, and the present efforts in this direction co-ordinated with a view to greater efficiency and economy. The local association has been discussing traveling libraries, modified home reading courses, the centralization of the extension work of the Ontario Department of Agriculture at the O. A. C., and the practicability of an advisory board of practical farmers, businessmen and others for the co-ordination and extension of the college work.

Doubtless these topics will be brought up in the discussion under the general heading of educational extension. W. H. Staples, director of educational work for the United Farmers of Ontario, will also address the meeting at this session, and the discussion will be led by representatives of the Central Ontario Association and by Col. W. J. Brown, London; R. H. Abraham, Chatham, and H. F. Hudson, Strathroy, for the Western Ontario Association.

Well-Known Speakers to Come.

Several outstanding speakers have been secured for the Friday evening banquet. The chief speaker of the evening will be Mr. S. R. Parsons, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, president of the British-American Oil Company, and Canada's representative for the employers of labor at the labor conference of the League of Nations, held at Geneva last October. Mr. Parsons is a well-known Canadian, and not only represented the employers at the Geneva conference, but also at the National Industrial Conference held at Ottawa in 1919, and the Washington Labor Conference.

Dr. G. C. Creelman, president of the O. A. C. for seventeen years, and later agent-general for Ontario in London, England, will be present and will address the gathering. Dr. Creelman has been seriously ill for the past few months, and the convention is fortunate in securing his attendance at this time. Another speaker will be Mr. Angus McKenny, well known throughout Western Ontario particularly as one of the first six agricultural representatives located in Ontario by the late Dr. C. C. James, whose splendid idea for the benefit of agriculture has finally developed until every county in the province now boasts of an agricultural representative, whose services are invaluable.

After the formal arrangements had been practically completed for the banquet it was learned that two other well-known speakers would probably be present. Under the auspices of Hon. Manning W. Doherty, minister of agriculture for Ontario, Mr. A. S. Bacon, of San Francisco, Cal., is addressing several meetings of Ontario farmers over the province during the week of the convention. Owing to a happy coincidence Mr. Sapiro and Hon. Mr. Doherty will arrive in London for the banquet, and it is probable that the program committee will commandeer even for a short time the services of the minister and so distinguished a visitor. Mr. Sapiro is known as an outstanding authority on co-operative marketing problems, and has assisted in forming nearly all of the flourishing and well-known organizations which have made the Pacific coast of the United States so well and favorably known agriculturally.

ASSERT NO APPLICATION MADE FOR USE OF LAND

Fair Board Secretary Declares No Formal Demand Made Regarding Playgrounds.

The officials of the Western Fair Association are arranging for the various committees to convene before the next meeting of the board of directors.

The dairy committee held a meeting Thursday and decided to adopt the same plan as followed last year. No extra money had been added to the 1922 prize list for the cheese and butter-making competitions.

Regarding the adoption of the ground inside the track for playgrounds, Secretary A. M. Hunt said that while several organizations had suggested the scheme, so far the board had received no applications regarding the matter.

It was a matter for the board to deal with, and it is not expected that a meeting of the directors will take place before the last week in March or the first week in April.

WARNS U. S. TO AMEND TREATY

Senator Hitchcock Declares Four-Power Pacific Pact Must Be Modified.

FEARS BRITAIN'S AIMS

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Senator Hitchcock, ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, declared in opening debate in the U. S. Senate today on the Four-Power Pacific Treaty that he could not support it unless amendment or reservations were adopted. Senator Hitchcock attacked what he described as the secrecy with which the Four Power Treaty was negotiated. He declared he had voted for ratification of the Treaty yesterday and would support the naval and Chinese treaties. "This treaty was conceived in secrecy and its genesis suggests an old fashioned and highly objectionable alliance," he said. "My first shock was to learn President Harding did not understand the treaty and had not learned of the secret agreement regarding inclusion of the Japanese mainland," added the senator, who said these had been "cured" by the latter treaty of definition. "We know from newspaper reports that unquestionably the Rt. Hon. Arthur J. Balfour brought a draft because Great Britain desired to rid herself of her alliance with Japan," he stated. "We do not know whether his draft was adopted or whether

Japan presented a draft." Senator Hitchcock said that in order for the treaty to receive his support an amendment or reservation would have to be adopted declaring the obligation to deal only with "unprovoked aggressions." "There is little profit to the United States in this treaty," said Senator Hitchcock, stating that British interests in the Pacific were protected and Japanese mandates assured. "Why then have we been dragged into this treaty? It is not necessary to naval disarmament or protection of affairs in China. Is it for the purpose of relieving Great Britain from the Anglo-Japanese alliance, which she must in any event get rid of? I am not satisfied with the president's statement that it is not an alliance. "We are sacrificing too much to enable Britain to get rid of the Anglo-Japanese alliance. I have never believed it was any menace to us."

TURKS GIRD FOR FRAY WITH GREEKS

ROME, March 2.—The Turkish Nationalist and Greek armies in Asia-Minor are busy preparing for the resumption of hostilities, says a Constantinople dispatch to the Standard News Agency today, based upon reports received in the Turkish capital from Asia Minor. Absolute secrecy is being maintained regarding the movements of the two armies, says the dispatch, which adds that troops and war material have recently arrived in Smyrna from Greece. The Greeks were reported to have repulsed reconnoitering parties in the district of Nazli, in Anatolia, and numerous Turkish bands are said to have appeared in the vicinity of Aidin.

CLAIM RAILWAY RATES TOO HIGH

Niagara Fruit Growers Complain Freight Charges Are Discouraging Planting.

SEEK BIG REDUCTION

Would Not Change Customs Regulations Regarding Products of Foreign Lands.

ST. CATHARINES, March 2.—The Niagara District Fruit Growers, on the second day of their educational convention here this afternoon unanimously decided to request the Dominion government that no changes in the present customs regulations regarding the entry of foreign fruits and vegetables be made until the growers have had an opportunity to present their case.

Declaring that the present railway rates on fruit and vegetable transportation is discouraging planting, curtailing consumption and interfering with the free movement of supplies, the convention formally asked for a substantial reduction.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture was asked to extend through the fruit branch its investigation into the best methods of fruit transportation.

Appreciation of the work being carried on at the provincial experimental farm at Vineland was expressed formally, and the movement to erect a new cold storage warehouse in St. Catharines was endorsed; resolutions passed at the recent Ottawa convention were approved, and a committee appointed to arrange that the next annual convention be supplemented by exhibits of implements and fruit growers' supplies.

Co-operation, standardization and proper packing were given as the fundamentals of success by the speakers of the day. They were: Dr. J. B. Reynolds, president, O. A. C. Guelph; Mr. Charles E. Bassett, director of field organization, North American Fruit Exchange, New York; Mr. Henry G. Bell, director soil and crop improvement bureau, Toronto; Professor J. W. Crow, horticulturist, O. A. C. Guelph; Cameron Husband, fruit broker, Toronto; C. W. Baxter, Dominion fruit commissioner, Ottawa; Hon. E. D. Smith, Winona, E. F. Palmer, director, Vineland station; W. A. Ross, Dominion entomologist, Vineland station; P. H. Lowrey, manager Dominion Cannery, St. David's, and Benjamin Secord, nurseryman, Fonthill.

AWAIT LONDON CRISIS OUTCOME

Leaders at British Capital at Loss to Solution of Political Tangle.

YOUNGER HOLDS DESTINY

Lloyd George's Resignation Certain if Conservative Party Schism is Remedied.

LONDON, March 2.—The political crisis projected by the prime minister yesterday has made no progress toward solution, and nobody ventures a prediction as to how it will eventually be solved.

In its essence it is more a personal conflict between Premier Lloyd George and Sir George Younger, leader of the Conservative secessionists, than a symptom of the struggle on the part of the three principal political parties, Conservative, Liberal and Labor, to abandon the coalition system, which is generally considered to have outlived its usefulness, and get back to the old party system.

In this struggle Mr. Lloyd George occupies a somewhat anomalous position, inasmuch as, although head of the government, he has no direct control of the party funds or the electoral machinery, since he is the accepted leader of neither the Conservative nor the Liberal parties, each wing of the coalition having retained its own party machinery.

Sir George Younger is chairman of the Unionist organization, which controls the party funds, and represents the whole Conservative party of the country. He was appointed to that position by Andrew Bonar Law, who, although he retired from the leadership of the House of Commons on account of ill-health, is still titular leader of the Conservative party as a whole. Younger therefore cannot be dethroned except by a vote of the whole party, and, if he elects to stand firm, will continue to control the party's funds.

The revolt includes about 50 of the "die hard" members of the House of Commons, but it has the sympathy of a great number of the other Conservative members and their following in the country.

Presumably, therefore, the crisis will continue until a meeting of the whole Conservative party is held.

Stand No Chance.

Sir George Younger and his adherents are credited with being fully aware that they stand no chance at present with the electorate, but would prefer to be in opposition rather than continue an arrangement in which they are powerless to advance their own policy in the coalition. On the other hand the ministers, both Conservative and Liberal, are anxious to maintain the coalition government in power because they consider there is little prospect of the government being returned to power in the event of dissolution and elections. Much is held to depend upon whether the Conservative members, A. J. Balfour, Lord Birkenhead and Austen Chamberlain, will be able to exert sufficient pressure on the Youngerites to mend the schism in the party. If they cannot, it is believed certain that the prime minister will resign, leaving the Conservatives to form a government. Probably Mr. Chamberlain would head such an administration, because Mr. Balfour, supposed to be content with the laurels brought from Washington, would not, it is thought, seek another premiership under such precarious conditions.

While everything is yet in the realm of speculation there is one indication tonight of the swift approach of either dissolution or some new development.

It is announced that the king has accepted the resignation of Lord Trevelth, formerly Sir Alfred T. Lawrence, from the office of lord chief justice. Lord Trevelth was appointed to this position only about a year ago. The natural successor to the chief justiceship at that time was Sir Gordon Hewart but the premier wanted to retain Sir Gordon as attorney-general in his government.

MAY ARRANGE REUNION.

INGERSOLL, March 2.—The question of whether this city will hold an old boys' reunion in July to celebrate the 21st anniversary of Woodstock's incorporation as a city will be left to the wishes of a public meeting of the citizens to be held next Monday evening. Many requests have been made, and the city council and board of trade have held joint meetings. These bodies are apparently in favor of the celebration, but it will finally be decided Monday.

Ontario Liberals.

WELLINGTON HAY has been named as leader of the Liberal party in Ontario by a representative convention. The action was right and proper, and will work for the best interests of Liberalism in this province.

Mr. Hay knows the Ontario situation thoroughly, and he has proved by his recent utterances in the house that he has a grasp of future possibilities, and a foresight big enough to anticipate future events.

It will be the Liberal party that Wellington Hay will lead. He has made it plain that he has neither intention nor desire to hand over Ontario Liberalism to the U. F. O., or any other combination of forces. At the same time, he has exhibited common sense in recognizing that there are certain points on which the Liberals agree with the principles of the U. F. O. In Ontario such a thing is not possible under present circumstances. Mr. Hay is an able exponent of the Liberalism taught by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, which was broad enough to interpret Canada's greatest need to be a united people—united in purpose, in effort and in splendid accomplishment.

THAT MUNICIPALITIES should be allowed to go ahead and build radial lines and do the financing themselves within the limits of the municipal act was, in short, the stand approved of by the Liberal convention in Toronto. The exact wording of the resolution, leaving out the preamble, is:

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, That the Liberal party adopts the principle that municipalities should be enabled on their own responsibility but with the approval and consent of the municipal electors in such municipalities as required under the municipal act in cases voted upon money by-laws, to undertake the construction and operation of such radial railways whenever and wherever such municipalities may desire."

In other words, the only limit to the expenditure shall be the willingness of the people to go ahead and vote the money.

This does not cover the point, neither does it comply with the Ontario municipal act. There is in one place provision made to allow a municipality to finance a street railway scheme without having the amount so voted counted against its borrowing power, but this is not a street railway proposition at all, and so that clause has nothing to do with the case.

The municipal act does not protect the ratepayer from such an expenditure as a municipally-financed scheme would involve. Section 237, clauses 1 and 2, provide as follows: (1) Subject to sub-section 13 of section 237, the council of every municipality shall in each year assess and levy on the whole rateable property within the municipality a sum sufficient to pay all debts of the corporation, whether of principal or interest, falling due within the year, but shall not assess and levy in any year more than 2 cents in the dollar on the assessed value of such property according to the last revised assessment roll, exclusive of school and local improvement rates.

(2) If the aggregate amount of the rates necessary for payment of the current annual expenditure of the corporation and the principal and interest of such debts exceeds the rate mentioned in subsection 1, the council shall assess and levy such further sum as may be necessary to discharge such debts, but shall not contract any further debt until the annual rates are reduced to that rate. 3-4 Geo. V., c. 42, s. 297.

Thus, a municipality must finance on 20 mills, exclusive of school tax and local improvement rates. Where, then, is the authority for municipalities to embark on schemes that will run into millions of dollars over and above the indebtedness of a community at the time when all its previous bonds have been sold? What becomes of the security of the money of the person who bought these bonds, based on a given and known indebtedness of any municipality that starts to finance a radial scheme on its own financial standing, and without provincial guarantee?

We do not believe it is safe, legal or expedient for municipalities to embark upon such enterprises, and sound financing will bear out this contention.

THE RESOLUTION dealing with agricultural life in Ontario follows: "That the Liberals of Ontario in convention assembled recognizing the commanding importance of a healthy and prosperous agriculture and the prime necessity of a larger percentage of our people being engaged in productive rural life, hereby pledge this Liberal party to use every honest endeavor to see that conditions of rural life are such as to place agriculture and its claims under the best intelligence and the highest skill of our people and in the very forefront of national thought, realizing that when conditions shall have been readjusted and national ideas sufficiently awakened there will be no more hastening from the farms, but rather a revolt against the thought that wealth otherwise obtained through labor and sacrifice and in agriculture can endure."

No fault can be found with this portion of the resolution, except that it is very general in its scope, and simply repeats a feeling of goodwill to which any political party could and would give assent at once.

How are these things to be carried out? That is the point that is uppermost in every mind right now.

Liberal governments in Ontario have always been close to the agricultural viewpoint, and their representatives have been closely enough in touch with the situation to interpret the best thought on that subject. It would have strengthened the position a great deal had the main ideas in the resolution been further developed so that something tangible could have been taken back to the country to show along what lines action might have been expected.

The convention has been a good tonic for Ontario Liberalism. It has shown the thought, wish and intent of delegates, duly appointed, gathered at their own expense, from all parts of the province. It has demonstrated that Liberal women understand the political issues facing Ontario. Above all else, it says that Ontario Liberals must get down to brass tacks and organize.

Work For It.

ALTHOUGH OUR business world of late, the man is still around who looks for easy money.

He may have secured the idea in the first place from the school book story of the lad who flagged a train before a broken rail, was pursued right there by the passengers, and given a job on the railroad shortly after.

And so he has been looking ever since for the broken rail and the train running straight to destruction.

Fact is, where one train heads for a broken rail, ten thousand go right straight ahead.

The unusual, the spectacular, the unlooked-for thing is hardly likely to come around and shake you out of bed.

Yours may be the lot of hard work and long hours and a stiff grade all the way up.

If so, you're going to be a lot farther ahead at the end of the year by becoming a confirmed apostle of hard work than by totting a red flag around waiting for a train to be headed for the broken rail.

Carelessness.

FIRE MARSHAL HEATON, of Ontario, claims his records show that throwing away lighted cigars and cigarettes caused fires in one year that were responsible for a loss of $1,259,549. In Toronto alone 252 fires are charged against careless smokers.

The men who throw away lighted smoke ends would be just as careless in other matters.

Carelessness has burned up mile after mile of the best timber lands of British Columbia. The charred, lifeless timber all over the foothills of British Columbia bear splendid testimony to criminal carelessness.

This carelessness in the West is not on the part of the experienced lumberman or prospector. It has often been the work of the green-horn camper.

The experienced bushman will be seen stamping out a burning match even when he is in town.

The careless man is a menace to the community, no matter whether he is smoking cigars or cigarettes, camping in the woods or putting hot ashes in a wooden box.

Chasing the Rats.

RATS WILL be well advised if they stay away from Essex just now, for their chances of being around a few weeks hence are not at all rosy.

The residents of Essex have decided that they are going to run the place without the rats. "Not having the Pied Piper of Hamelin to charm the rats into a hole in the ground, they are going about it in another way.

Sides have been chosen, says a dispatch, with captains, each side having about 60 residents of the town. The side that turns in the fewest rat tails to its captain is to buy the oysters for the oyster supper. Any person who does not get at least four rat tails is to pay a fine of 50 cents to his captain, while the one getting the most rat tails is to receive a prize of $2. All the rats killed must be caught inside the corporation limits.

The brown rat, which is the species most seen here, originally came from China, but it now has an almost world-wide residence. When it is remembered that it has become a citizen of the world within the last 200 years, some idea may be gained of the extraordinary rapidity with which its travels have been conducted. The rodent seems to have made its first appearance in England about the middle of the 18th century, and not only has this well-hated pest been carried to different parts of the world on board ship, but it is theoretically recorded to have swam rivers and seas in immense numbers, and so set up a colony in another clime. Not content with thus establishing itself, the brown rat has waged incessant war upon the black species, both in England and on the continent, and has almost successfully exterminated it.

This voracious beast, known as the brown rat, will eat almost anything. Nothing seems to come amiss to it, the veriest filth imaginable being greedily relished. It is only fair to notice that on occasions it is an animal scavenger, eating carrion, refuse and in agriculture can endure."

Weather—Unsettled; snow or sleet.

Lambeth Camp, No. 102, of the Canadian Order of Woodmen of the World was organized at Lambeth on Monday night by Mr. William Hawthorne of London. Assisting the organizer were Messrs. George Scollick, Thomas Hogg, Harry Hogg, George F. Morris and Charles A. Doe of Forest City Camp. The officers chosen were: Past consul commander, John Wonnacott; consul commander, James McGregor; advisory Lieutenant, D. J. Scott; banker, R. J. Howlett; clerk, James Beattie; physician, George A. Routledge, M.D.; escort, J. M. Kenny; watchman, A. Taylor; sentry, F. N. Bodkin; managers, E. Howlett, A. Hall and W. J. Howlett; delegate, James McGregor.

A Farmers' Institute has been formed in Harrington, with a membership of 25. The following officers were elected: President, James McKay; vice-president, P. Bradshaw; secretary-treasurer, James Pitt; directors, H. Murray, Ed. White, Joseph Pierce, S. Lammiman and William Hill.

A Mission Circle was organized last evening in the Colborne Street Methodist Church by Mrs. (Rev.) Jackson, when the following officers were elected: President, Miss Maud Rigby; first vice-president, Miss Jackson; second vice-president, Miss Daisy Dickson; recording secretary, Miss Bessie Lacey; assistant secretary, Miss Wheaton, Oxford street; corresponding secretary, Miss Penock; treasurer, Miss Adams, Queen street; auditor, Miss Fitzgerald; organist, Miss Crawford.

At the annual meeting of the Ontario refuse, etc., but grain, eggs and young birds, young rats, fish and other creatures are also devoured.

It is calculated that in France alone the brown rat is responsible for at least $50,000,000 worth of damage every year, for it not only eats two ounces of corn every day, but it destroys quite as much as, if not more than, it eats. Both in North America and in England, efforts have been made to eradicate this, the worst of all mammalian pests, but the animal is still plentiful almost everywhere.

The greatest sin attributed to the rat—even if the enormous damage it causes is overlooked—is the dissemination of disease, for during the years 1906 to 1908 it is computed that in India alone the ravages of this animal, by spreading the deadly plague, resulted in the deaths of considerably more than 5,000,000 people.

The brown rat is also a cannibal, for it will invariably prey upon a fellow rat that is in trouble, and when hard put to it for a food supply, the strong take advantage of the weak, and we have an apt example of the survival of the fittest. Whenever it can do so the rat will make good its escape from a man, but if cornered it may prove an awkward customer to deal with. There have been instances reported where rats in numbers of from 50 to 100 have made most savage attacks upon individuals and their bites are very often poisonous.

By all means, rid your premises of rats. One of the greatest weapons is cleanliness and the presence of good disinfectants. Rats thrive on dirt and dank. Clean up the premises and the rats won't like the place half as much as if it were left dirty, damp and poorly-ventilated.

clothing on the young ladies in the performance. When they're stopping in Vancouver why not rig them out in raincoats?

The Brantford Expositor does not favor the idea of Canada going to Washington seeking a renewal of the reciprocity pact, doubting if there is a chance of success. The Expositor adds: "The revival of the pact might bring prosperity, but there is hardly the slightest chance that it would be granted seeing that the agricultural bloc is clamoring at Washington for higher duties on all farm products."

The Ottawa Citizen expresses keen disappointment at the census returns, claiming we should have 11,000,000 people instead of 7,769,494. The Citizen concludes: "The right thing to do now is to make life in Canada so worth while and enjoyable for all that those who are here will not leave and those who are coming will feel no misgivings when they arrive."

United States shipping board has decided to put its war fleet on sale. This list includes 1,470 ships, a total tonnage of 10,000,000. The value now is $250,000,000—the initial cost was $3,000,000,000. It has cost millions upon millions to keep this fleet of white elephants in anything like shape. Thus ends the dream that was being visioned at the end of the war that United States, with its new tonnage, was going to become the carrying nation of the world. John Bull has been at the game too long to be easily crowded up on the shore.

LEARN A WORD EVERY DAY

TODAY'S word is SALVAGE.

It's pronounced—sal-vadj with accent on the first syllable. It means—to save, to recover, to rescue from destruction.

It comes from—Latin "salvare," to save.

It's used like this—"When a business house burns, the salvaged goods usually are sold at a fire sale."

INGENIOUS.

The absent-minded husband was prone to forget to post the important letters given to him by his wife before he started for the office in the morning.

Therefore she had resorted to the old trick of placing a postcard addressed to herself among the envelopes.

When she didn't receive the card by the afternoon post she could reproach her husband at night.

It was very embarrassing.

The absent-minded husband decided he would have to put a stop to it.

One day he wrote a message on the back of the teletype postcard.

It read:

"No, dearest. I didn't forget to mail the letters!"

After that his wife abandoned the scheme.

COMMON SENSE WAYS TO KEEP WELL

Diet for Nursing Mothers

BY DR. R. H. BISHOP.

HERE is a generally accepted belief among women that particular foods have specific effects upon the character of the mother's milk.

There is nothing to support this belief. Foods are broken down in the digestive tract and made over in the body. Any whole building materials, is suitable for the production of good milk.

However, it must be remembered that the milk glands are exceedingly sensitive to any nervous influences,

URGES AUTONOMY OF INDIAN EMPIRE

British Labor Party Also Advocates Recognition of Egyptian Independence.

FAVORS WORLD PEACE

Aims To End Monopolies, Exploitation and Oppression in All Forms.

LONDON, England, March 2.—

Recognition by Great Britain of the independence of Egypt, and genuine self-government for India, are planks of the policy of the British Labor Party, as just defined in an address delivered by Arthur Henderson, secretary of that party, and member of parliament.

Mr. Henderson's statement is regarded as important because of the growing strength of the Labor Party, and the plans to hold a general election next spring or summer.

Mr. Henderson declared that Labor was out for a new international policy founded on the principles of justice, co-operation and good-will.

The chief objects of the Labor Party's foreign policy were, he said, international peace, the building up of stable economic and political conditions in Europe, and the re-establishment of friendship and confidence between the nations.

Labor also stood in favor of a comprehensive League of Nations, a drastic and progressive reduction in armaments, prohibition of the export of instruments of war by private manufacturers, and against secret treaties and the economic boycott.

On the unemployment question, he said that the policy of leaving localities to bear the burden of unemployment was indefensible, because it converted a national duty into a local responsibility.

A Labor government would not tolerate the semi-starvation of thousands of British people—which he called the fruits of a disastrous international policy, aggravated by the failures of private enterprise—but would endeavor by legitimate means to break down all forms of monopoly and put an end to exploitation and profiteering.

Mr. Henderson said, went to nourish the wasters, idlers and parasitical elements in society of today.

The committee would also, by constitutional means, secure for the community a larger share of the fruits of national production, much of which, Mr. Henderson said, went to nourish the wasters, idlers and parasitical elements in society of today.

READ YOUR CHARACTER

(By Digby Phillips.)

NO. 151—TRUTHFUL WRINKLES

TRUTHFUL WRINKLES

Men and women think they conceal their thoughts and habits of mind, but they cannot. Though they do not realize it, they write the story of their thoughts and attitude toward the world plainly across their faces where the world may read if it choose—though for the most part the world is too busy with its own thoughts to bother.

Just as inherited tendencies of mind and character are revealed to the scientific characterologist in one set of indications, so the acquired or developed character of the individual is revealed in another set.

To the latter classification belong wrinkles.

Do you know there are certain specific grooves and lines of the face that measure the individual's love of truth? You'll find them around the eyes.

They are made by the muscles surrounding the eyes. And unless the individual is of some particular calling which requires a straining of the eyes in long-distance vision, you can accept them at their face value. They come there quite naturally. Try it yourself.

Concentrate your mind on trying to get at the truth of some puzzling matter, and you'll note that unconsciously you have begun to squint, even if but slightly, as though in an actual physical effort to see through it.

The man or woman who habitually tries to deceive at the face of truth of things, and therefore has a high regard for the value of truth, gradually acquires these wrinkles caused by tensing the muscles surrounding the eyes.

TO THE EDITOR

APPRECIATION.

March 1, 1922.

Editor Advertiser: Sir,—Allow me to thank you, on behalf of the council of the Chippewas of Sarnia, for the editorial article, which appeared in your valuable paper issued on the 22nd ult.

That has been our contention, that the isolated Indian should be given a chance in the country which was formerly his, a country which has untold resources.

Surely the Indian deserves consideration which is accorded to other nationalities. We are entirely in accord with your views regarding the creation of a standing committee in connection with the government of Indians. We will also present our views in the matter to the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, premier of Canada.

Thanking you for your editorial, I remain, your respectfully,

F. W. JACOBS.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat, also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

When the kidneys clog you must help them flush out the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist one ounce of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes the delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

URGES INVESTOR TO HEED ADVICE OF LOCAL BANK

World Economist Reveals Danger of Expecting Too High "Return" for Cash.

ASKS ABSOLUTE SAFETY

Admits Capitalist Need Not "Put All His Eggs in One Basket."

"How can I safely invest my savings?"

This question is being asked by thousands of Canadian investors, alarmed by failures of brokerage firms in Montreal and New York, and the revelation of million dollar "get-rich-quick" schemes in Detroit, Chicago and Florida.

Thirty-one brokerage firms have failed on this continent during the last three months, with total losses approximating $25,000,000, and the purpose of the following article, written by one of the world's greatest economists, is to help the farmer and small investor to steer safely through the financial fog which is apparently accompanying the return of normalcy and prosperity.

BY B. M. ANDERSON, JR., PH.D.

THE SMALL "investor" who tries to make 15 per cent on his money is not an investor. He is a speculator.

The agent who solicits the funds of small investors promising them a return of 15 or 20 per cent or more on a "sure" investment is, consciously or unconsciously, misrepresenting facts. Sure investments paying 15 per cent or more are exceedingly unusual and, when genuine, are almost never offered to the general public.

It is often well worth while for the man who can afford to lose money to take chances on speculative new projects. Industrial progress comes as new enterprises are started. But even the best-planned new enterprise does not always make good, and the small investor who cannot afford to lose his money should not be called upon to take these chances.

Moreover, a very high proportion of securities promising great returns which are offered to the small investor by solicitors are issued by untrained and over-optimistic men, while a very substantial number of them are unfortunately outright frauds.

Plenty of Opportunities.

The small investor need not lose his money. He has plenty of opportunities which combine virtually absolute safety with substantial income.

Victory and other bonds of the Dominion government and the bonds of virtually all our municipalities may be bought, of course, without hesitation.

There are savings banks almost everywhere, well regulated and dependable. There are savings and loan, or building and loan, associations whose management and trustworthiness the small investor can easily assure himself are beyond reproach.

In most communities, and particularly in small communities, the small investor has opportunities to buy real estate mortgages where he can personally inspect the properties mortgaged, can personally inspect the title to the land (or have it investigated at the borrower's expense by competent experts), can personally see to it that insurance premiums and taxes on the property are paid, and that proper repairs are made.

Railroad Bonds.

There are, moreover, a very large number of railroad bonds and industrial bonds which bring a reasonable return with practically absolute safety. In choosing these the small investor should consult his local banker.

To a very large degree the bankers of Canada have come to realize that they have a public duty in the matter of advising small investors. The working woman with a few hundred dollars to invest may today come to the bond department of a great city bank with confidence that she will receive a courteous reception and painstaking, conscientious advice.

Investors' Desires.

As a general rule the investor wishes three things—(1) absolute safety, (2) as high a yield as possible, and, (3) a marketable investment, that is, one which he can quickly turn into cash if he needs it.

These three things do not usually go together. A bond which is absolutely safe and instantly marketable will not yield anything like so much as a stock with a narrow market and with uncertain future earnings.

A real estate mortgage will yield a higher return than a highly marketable bond because no matter how safe, it is not likely that the holder of the mortgage can quickly turn it into cash in an emergency. Sometimes he cannot. In many cases conditions are such that he must expect to hold it to maturity.

The small investor who does not need to convert his principal into cash in a hurry may safely aim at a higher yield than the small investor who feels he may need his principal back on short notice.

Fluctuation of Bonds.

All bonds fluctuate in price and, under existing world conditions, fluctuations in bond prices are likely to be much greater than they were in the quiet settled times before the war.

The small investor who foresees emergencies which may require him to convert his savings into cash, without knowing just when he will need it, may do better to limit himself to the savings bank or to short-

Rooster Crows on Post of Bed, But Foreigner Sleeps Soundly.

WINDSOR, March 2.—Search for moonshine whiskey operators along the border today revealed insanitary living conditions among residents of foreign districts, according to inland revenue officers.

In one home a man was found asleep snoring with a rooster crowing from his perch on a bed-post, and four pails of decayed garbage within two feet of the bed.

Overcrowding also was discovered, officers said. In shacks known here as "human stables" as many as twelve men and women were herded together.

term government, or municipal or time deposits in his local bank.

In general the small investor will do best to consult his banker, laying before him his own special investment problem, and seek his banker's advice as to the particular thing that best meets his need.

The large investor is able to diversify his investments and, by "not putting all his eggs in one basket," secure a larger yield with substantial a remedy without an equal, for soothing the lungs, loosening the phlegm, strengthening the breathing organs and fortifying them against serious pulmonary disease.

NIGHT COUGHS

Terribly wearing on the system is the cough that comes at night and prevents sleep.

Mrs. John McKenney, Lower Montague, P. E. I., writes: "About three years ago I caught a very bad cold accompanied with a sore throat and hoarseness, and was so hoarse you could hardly hear me speak. I could get no rest at night with the terrible annoying, hacking cough. I tried several remedies, but they did me no good. Finally I saw Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup advertised; got a bottle, and at once it gave me relief, and after using four my cough had all gone. Now I always keep 'Dr. Wood's' in the house, and shall recommend your wonderful remedy to others."

NEW PLAY PROVES BIG ATTRACTION

Popular Players Please In "Facing the Music" at Majestic.

The Popular Players, who are meeting with great success under the new management, Messrs. Secrest and Penwarden, are drawing full houses at the Majestic Theatre this week with their presentation of the clever farce "Facing the Music."

The plot has its foundation on a case of mistaken identity, which leads to very alarming results. An innocent clergyman and his equally innocent young wife, are conflicted with a band of clever crooks. A young married man becomes estranged from his wife by reason of his act of kindness in rescuing a beautiful young damsel, Miss Pothingham of the Bijou Theatre from the perils of a foggy night. When the climax is reached, nobody knows who anybody is and the police are hovering over all, confident that they have drawn within their net the elusive crooks, Saintry Sam and the Duchess of Piccadilly.

Rickey Secrest as John Smith, the young husband, and Duncan Penwarden, as Dick Desmond, his friend, are the stars of the performance. Dick Desmond arouses the ire of John Smith by persisting in finding humor in a situation which to his friend seems nothing short of fatal. Mr. Penwarden's laughter is most infectious and keeps the audience in continuous merriment.

The supporting cast are well chosen and interpret their roles in an excellent manner. Particular mention might be made of Miss Gustin as Mrs. John Smith, and Miss Rose McDonald as the minister's bride.

CHIEF INSTRUCTOR IS BLUE CORD GUIDE

Miss Kay Symes, Ottawa, Coming For Easter Training Camp.

WANT "JOYOUS" PROGRAM

Hopes District Camps Will Follow Second Provincial at Cronyn Farm.

Miss Kay Symes of Ottawa, who has taken the blue cord, and therefore ranks as a real ace in girl guiding in Canada, will be head of the instruction staff of the second Ontario provincial training camp for Girl Guide leaders, to be held at the Cronyn Farm, R. R. No. 6, during Easter week. A letter from Miss Symes accepting the responsibility was received on Thursday by the provincial commissioner, Mrs. F. P. Betts, who is to be the camp commandant. Miss Maud McLaron, Toronto, will have her hands full with executive duty as deputy commandant, and Miss Dorothy Davis of this city will be secretary.

Capt. Winifred Head of Toronto, who visits the beginning of January gave a great impetus to Girl Guide work in London, is arranging the schedule, planning what subjects will be included. Since the camp date has been fixed for Easter week, it is proposed to make the program of activities as joyous and recreational as possible, as well as practical.

"The camp will be less strenuous than the first one at Hamilton last summer, and we intend to give a large share of attention to nature study," stated Mrs. Betts.

Provision is being made for enrollment of 25, the camp proper to open April 18, though the Toronto officers will arrive a few days before, probably on the 16th, for a quiet conference. Capt. Head will only be able to remain a few days.

While it is intended as far as possible to enjoy the experience of getting close to nature in the re-awakening season of the year, mid-April is considered too uncertain in this climate even for hardy guide leaders to sleep out in tents. Accommodation will be provided for sleeping in the spacious old house at the Cronyn farm, though, true to camp traditions, as much of the time as weather will permit will be spent outdoors.

Much time will be devoted to open discussion, and in the evening there will be open fires and all manner of "stunts." An endeavor will be made to show how company evenings can be happily and profitably spent.

Following the second provincial camp, it is hoped by the provincial commissioner that a number of district training camps will be organized. Mrs. Betts expressed much gratification over the leaders' classes formed in Hamilton, Toronto, Walkerville and other places.

Here's Old-Fashioned Touch

BY MARIAN HALE.

LONDON, March 2.—There's the least bit of a hint of the old-fashioned poke bonnet about some of the summer hats which are now being shown.

This lidia hat, a very modern version of the mode, tilts slightly up toward the center of the very wide brim, giving an air of sweet quaintness to the chapeau.

Patent leather foliage banks the crown in a shiny circle and forms a lustrous background for colorful fruits and flowers.

Soldiers' Wives League Dates Back To Victoria's Reign and Boer War

The Soldiers' Wives League of London isn't just a mushroom organization of recent growth. Conclusive proof of this was presented by the president, Mrs. A. A. Campbell, at the annual meeting, held in the officers' quarters in the armories on Thursday afternoon, when she gave an absorbingly interesting historical sketch of the league, which dates back to the days of the Boer war.

Organized by Mrs. Hutton of Ottawa in 1899, the records, stated Mrs. Campbell, show that the late Dr. John D. Wilson, mayor of London, father of the present mayor, attended the meeting. For a length of time the wife of the district commanding officer always filled the position of executive, first Mrs. Holmes, next Mrs. Peters, until the transfer of Col. Peters. From 1905 to 1911 Mrs. J. W. Little was both president and trustee. Mrs. W. E. Hodgins succeeded Mrs. Little. With the patriotic fund established early in the world war covering every need formerly met by the league, the latter was permitted to lapse, with the exceptions of annual meetings, until 1918, when, on call from the Dominion League, it was reorganized, with Mrs. A. A. Campbell, first vice-president, asked to assume the responsibilities of president.

An outstanding work in the two succeeding years was opening, equipping and running a hostel on King street to welcome the wives and families of overseas men arriving in London without other provision for their housing. It was then, according to the historian, that the league discovered how many people were sympathetic with the work.

Among the many interesting little incidents borrowed from the league's records was that of postponing a wonderful concert arranged owing to the death of Queen Victoria. Reference was also made to league gatherings held in the old drill hall before the armories were built.

The report presented by Mrs. J. W. Cunliffe for the year just closed told of sorely-needed activities in the way of providing relief without overlapping the work of other agencies, the beneficiaries including in some cases old veterans and their wives.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

FANS.

Last year we had the mask fan. This year the smartest fans that are shown are very large. Some which one sees at the theaters and smart eating places must be quite three feet across.

Personals

Mrs. E. B. Smith is spending a few days in Hamilton and Toronto.

Miss Gertrude Minhninick, Elmwood avenue, entertained informally at the tea hour Thursday in honor of her guest, Miss McNaughton of Chatham.

Miss Lucile Griffith, granddaughter of Mrs. N. Wilkinson, 600 Adelaide street, who has been very ill in Victoria Hospital, is slightly improved.

Rev. H. E. Bray, who is temporarily in charge of the Church of England at Merlin, is at his home on Wellington street convalescing after an attack of influenza.

Mr. Lyman T. Barclay of Edmonton, Alberta, who has come east on Carnegie library business, has been the guest for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Barnard, on his way to New York.

Mrs. Pugsley, wife of Capt. Pugsley, new rector at Stratford, is in town for a few days, owing to the fact that her little daughter Constance is undergoing a minor operation on her throat.

Among the out-of-town members of the provincial council of Girl Guides expected in the city for the annual meeting on March 18 in Cronyn Hall are Mrs. F. W. Marlow, Toronto; Mrs. W. E. Hodgins, London; Mrs. E. A. Hardie of Toronto; Mrs. Wallace, Walkerville; Mrs. George Watt, Brantford, and Mrs. Forest, Port Hope.

Mrs. Lang, who was commandant of the first provincial training camp for Girl Guides held in Hamilton last summer, is an authority on laws relating to women and children, and is the author of a widely-recognized handbook on the subject of the laws of Ontario.

Quite a social flurry was occasioned among the fair members of Askin Street Methodist Church by a regular session of teas on Thursday afternoon, ten of them, no less, arranged in their own homes by members of the W. M. S. to serve a double purpose, first, to furnish an opportunity to meet and welcome newcomers, and, in the second place, to raise money for the W. M. S. work.

The previous day Mrs. A. M. Hunt started the ball rolling. The idea was that each hostess should invite to her house the congregation members in her neighborhood. The following entertained: Mrs. James Brown, Ridout street; Mrs. George Young, Beaconsfield avenue; Mrs. A. Dobbin, Wootley road; Mrs. F. Newhouse, Riverdale; Mrs. Percy Young, Horne street; Mrs. Maine, Byron avenue; Mrs. Robert Gregory, Askin street; Mrs. Johnston, Erie avenue; Mrs. E. Boughner, Askin street; and Mrs. Shawler, South London.

The social and entertainment committee of the Students' Union of the Collegiate Institute will on Friday evening hold the first annual social evening. This is expected to be the most interesting of the students' program. Contrary to all unofficial guesses, this function has nothing to do with the formal opening of the new building, but is an integral part of the annual commemoration. It will be, too, of a very informal nature, being limited to the students of the L. C. I., the staff and the graduates of 1921. Informality in dress and program will be a feature, as the aim of the committee in charge has been to arrange for a quiet and enjoyable evening for students of varied tastes. The officers of the Students' Union will receive at 7:30. This is to be followed by an open meeting of the "Lit" from 8 to 8:45. At 9 promenading, dancing and group games will be enjoyed. In the cafeteria refreshments will be served from 10 to 11, and 11:30 will see lights out. Not less than 500 of the L. C. I. will help to carry the social evening to success.

WOMEN BACK EFFORTS ON MCDONALD'S BEHALF

Labor Party Pledges Support of Soldiers' Aid Commission.

The London Women's Labor party will back up the efforts of the Soldiers' Aid Commission to secure a full measure of justice for William McDonald, serving five years in Kingston Penitentiary, owing, it is claimed, to a case of mistaken identity.

"We made this decision at our meeting this week," Mrs. Fred White, president, stated to the women's department of The Advertiser on Thursday. "In the first place Mr. McDonald was a union man, and had that claim upon our interest. We stand for fair play and justice, and that is a second reason we are taking a definite stand in the matter. In the third place we feel keen sympathy for Mrs. McDonald and the children in the unfortunate conditions in which they are placed, and want to see these conditions changed as soon as possible if the husband is unjustly serving sentence."

Four new members were received at a Wednesday evening meeting, when features of interest were an address on "The Minimum Wage and Malnutrition," by William Tite, and a report of the Ontario Labor party convention in Stratford last Saturday, presented by Mrs. A. Palmy, the secretary, who represented the Women's Labor party and had the honor of being elected to the Ontario council.

Children Must Be Fed. In the course of his address Mr. Tite called attention to the prevalence of malnutrition among children, urging the importance of a high enough minimum wage for the workman that he may adequately provide for the needs of his family in the way of housing, clothing and nourishing food.

A section of Mrs. Palmy's report which evoked hearty applause was as follows:

"Mr. Tite would take the opportunity of making it clear to all present that a delegate of the Women's Labor party of London was present, and that this organization was not an auxiliary, but an independent party whose members consisted of ladies only, and therefore was not affiliated with the London labor party. This, he said, was one thing we were trying to get away from. Women would not always be tied to men's coats."

A decision made during the evening was to hold a eucure social in the near future to raise funds for the relief and other work that is being done by the Women's Labor party.

PLAN CHARITY DANCE.

A report of the provincial chapter meeting held in Brantford, presented by the regent, Mrs. F. J. Greenaway, constituted the chief program feature of the meeting Thursday afternoon at the Campbell Becher Chapter, I. O. D. E., held at the home of Mrs. W. D. Macgregor, Burwell street. The treasurer reported that over $400 had been raised at the tea-room at the motor show. The chapter cook books were on exhibition, all covered with oilcloth, eminently practical for kitchen use.

As an after-Lent money-making project, it was decided to hold with the Overseas Chapter for child welfare work an informal charity dance in the Winter Gardens on the evening of April 21.

A letter of appreciation and flowers were sent to the retiring secretary, Mrs. J. W. P. Jones. In recognition of the fine service she has rendered in taking committee convocations in the past year, the new secretary, Mrs. J. Murray, was appointed a delegate to the annual meeting of the provincial chapter in Hamilton April 27 and 28. Mrs. W. Hodgins and Mrs. Harry Morgan assisted in serving at the tea hour.

The workshop of Raymond Bros. tent and awning manufacturers, was the scene of much merriment on Wednesday evening, when about forty of the employees and friends held a very successful banquet in honor of Mr. J. The room was prettily decorated with red and white clusters of red roses, and many Canadian flags draped about. Immediately following the dinner an address was given by Rev. N. S. THE GROWING TIME.

"In the growing time, and most of all in the first ten years, deprivation of food or wrong feeding stunts and spoils the child's development. In the same period, when the child's character is being made, lack of nourishment for the mind, soul and spirit has the same disastrous effects, and the mistake can never be repaired. The growing time never returns. Youth has faith, teachableness, imagination and other gifts of greatness which are only given once, and which, if not cherished and used, wither away without bringing forth the flower and fruit of character and great citizenship in home and church and country."—Dr. Helen MacMurchy.

Dear Miss Grey,—Here goes for a few lines. Haven't written to the page this long time. Where are all the old boxes gone? Get busy and write to the page again. What did you think of the storm we had this week? Quite a lot of damage done around here. I am sending in a few recipes. They are real good. Don't be afraid to try them.

Lemon Cake—One cup granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 eggs. Beat all together for about five minutes, then add half cup sweet milk (a good half cup), a small teaspoon baking soda, 2 small teaspoons cream tartar, about 2 cups flour, a little if you think it needs it. Use a lemon filling, lemon flavoring also.

Cream Pie—Two cups milk, 1/4 teaspoon butter. Set this on stove; let come to a boil, then add 2 eggs, 3/4 cup white sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch. Flavor with vanilla.

Holly Macaroons—Three eggs, whites only, beaten stiff, 1/2 lb. shredded coconut, pinch of salt, 3/4 cup red sugar. Mix and drop from teaspoon on buttered baking dish or sheet. Place 1/2 candied cherry on each and bake in a moderate oven 'till nicely browned.

Anyone trying these let me know through the page how they turn out. Anyone wishing to write me can have my address from Miss Grey. I will skidoo for this time. LADY CAKE. You didn't give yourself a name. I had to chew the end of my pencil a long time before I could think up one for you. Hope you don't object to it. Isn't it a terrible responsibility naming other people? And how some poor souls suffer all through life for the folly of their parents in this respect. You must be pretty sure of your recipes when you are willing to have those who try them write and tell you how they turn out. Any way, they sound so good I want to go right home and start baking. Hope your rallying call will start the old boxes writing again.

The Greatest Novel of the Present Decade

BY A. S. M. HUTCHINSON

(Copyright, 1922, Little, Brown & Co.)

PART TWO.

Sabre, ambulating his bicycle along the pleasant lanes towards Tidborough one fine morning in the early summer of 1912, was met in his thoughts by observation, as he topped a rise, of the gallant progress of the light railway that was to link up the Penny Green Garden Home with Tidborough and Chobensbury. In the two years since Lord Tybar had, as he had said, beneficially "removed" his ancestors to their graves by selling the land on which the Garden Home Development was to develop, Penny Green Garden Home had sprung into being at an astonishing pace.

The great thing now was the railway. And the railway's unsightly indications strewn across the country—side-balls, beams, excavations, roley stationary engines, hand-propelled barrows bumping along toy lines, gangs of men at labor with pick and shovel—met Sabre's thoughts on this June morning because he was thinking of the Penny Green Garden Home and of Mabel, and of Mabel and of himself in connection with the Penny Green Garden Home. Puzzling thoughts.

There was a subject, this ambitiously projected and astonishingly popular Garden Home springing up at the very door, that interested him and that intensely interested Mabel, and yet it could never be mentioned between them without. . . . Only that very morning at breakfast. . . . And June—he always remembered it—was the anniversary month of their wedding. . . . Eight years ago. . . . Eight years. . . .

A gentle shouting and the clatter of agitated hoofs jerked Sabre from his thoughts.

"Hullo! Hullo! Help! Out collision-mate! Stop the cab! Look out, Sabre, Sabre!"

He suddenly became aware—and he jammed on his brakes and dismounted by straddling a leg to the ground—that in the narrow lane he was between two plunging horses. Their riders had divided to make way for his bemused approach. They had violently sundred, expecting him to stop, until he was almost on top of them, and one of the pair was now engaged in placing his horse, which resented this sudden snatching at bit and prick of spur, and persuading it to return to the level road.

On one side the lane was banked steeply up in a cutting. The horse of the rider on this side stood on its hind legs and appeared to be performing a series of postman's double knockouts on the bank with its forelegs. Lord Tybar, who bestrode it, and who did not seem to be at all concerned by his copying a postman, looked over his shoulder at Sabre, showing an amused grin, and said: "Thanks, Sabre. This is jolly. I like this. Come on, old girl. This way down. Keep passing on, please."

The old girl, an extraordinarily big and handsome chestnut mare, dropped her forelegs to the level of the road, where she exchanged the postman's knocking for a complicated and exceedingly nimble dance, largely on two legs.

Lord Tybar, against her evident intentions, skillfully directed the steps of this dance into a turning movement so that she and her rider now faced Sabre; and while she bounded through the concluding movements of the pas seul he continued in the same whimsical tone and with the same engaging smile: "Thanks still more, Sabre. This is extraordi-

Romance of Cleopatra Revised in "Polly of Follies."

BY JAMES W. DEAN.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The thing that made Julius Caesar give up a kingdom for Cleopatra was a sense of humor. At least, that's the way John Emerson and Anita Loos burlesque history.

Really, the sounds more logical than the accepted versions of history. Cleopatra was no great beauty, if book descriptions are to be accepted. Others were possessed of just as enchanting attributes.

Emerson and Loos believe Cleopatra was a gangling, loose-limbed girl with a plain face and a ready sense of humor.

And Caesar was a wizened little bald-headed Irishman who was bored stiff by the pageantry of royalty.

It was one night at Caesar's headquarters on the Nile. The royal Roman cabaret was being put on for his entertainment. He yawned.

"That's the dance they've done every night this week," he said, as he waved them away. "Jupiter! This is a stupid place in the evenings! I wonder what the boys are doing to-night along the Appian Way."

Cleopatra arrived to get back her kingdom. "Hello, boys! Where's old Caesar?"

Caesar had said he'd give the kingdom to anyone who'd hand him a good laugh. So Cleopatra sat on the shoulders of a lackey, and, covered with a robe, appeared to be nine feet tall. Thus she was ushered before the startled Caesar.

And when Caesar had laughed Cleo demanded back her kingdom.

If school textbooks put history on such an intimately interesting level, truant officers wouldn't have so much work to do.

The historical incident related above is the high spot in "Polly of the Follies," a film that is so filled with incident and diversion on the side that the main plot is almost lost.

Emerson and Loos start out to deliver a sermon on tolerance, taking for their subject, "One should be allowed to do the thing one does well."

On a stifling hot day last summer I watched Emerson directing scenes carried in her countenance and in her hand the pleasing complement of her lord's tan and olive hue and of his ordinarily fair. Her skin was of the hue and of the sheen of creamy silk, and glowed beneath its hue. It presented amazing delicacy and yet an exquisite firmness. Children, playing with her, and she delighted in playing with children (but she was childless), often asked to stroke her face. They would stroke it with their fingers, and she would smile at them, and then she would ask to touch their face and just stroke it; their baby fingers were not more softly alien.

Of her hair Lady Tybar had said frequently, from her girlhood upwards, that it was "a most sickening nuisance." She bound it tightly as if to punish and be firm with the sickening nuisance that it was to her. And these close, gleaming plaits and coils children also liked to touch with their soft fingers.

Her name was Nona.

Out of a hundred people who passed her by quite a considerable number would have denied that she was beautiful. Her face was round and sunny rather than oval and classical. She had the striking attraction of her complexion and of her hair; but not beautiful—quite a number would have said, and did say. Oh, no; pretty, perhaps, in a way, but that's all.

But her face was much more than beautiful to Sabre.

—IV.

Until this moment, standing there with his back to her, Sabre had not seen her. Now, seeing her, thus un-Tybar, for two years. They had been expected and thus gallantly envied, his mind, with that astonishing precision of detail and capriciousness of selection with which the mind retains pictures, reproduced certain masculine dissonance of her tread of Chobensbury Court, daughter of Chobensbury Court, daughter of Chobensbury Court, daughter of Chobensbury Court.

"Pretty girl, you know," masculine discussion had said; and Sabre had thought, "Fools!"

"Oh, hardly pretty," others had maintained; and again "Fools!" he had thought. "Pretty—pretty! Hardly pretty—hardly—!" Furious, he had flung away from them.

The time and the place of the discussion had been when the news of her engagement had just been brought into the clubhouse of the Penny Green Golf Club. He had flung out into the rain which had caused the pavilion to be crowded. Fools! Was the pretty! Did they face what he saw in her face? And mean to say they couldn't see in her then he thought, "But of course they haven't loved her. It's nothing but what they've just heard, but what she told me herself this morning. . . . And she knew what it meant to me when she told me—Although we said nothing—Of course I see two years of not seeing her, and ten her differently."

He saw her "differently" now after years since that day of gossip at the golf club. Pretty! . . . Strange how of this film. It was called "Good For Nothing" then. Not one of the scenes he shot that day was included in the finished film.

He could always remember that smell of the rain as he had come out of the clubhouse. . . . and a strange fragrance in the air as now he looked upon her.

Greetings had been exchanged; his apologies for his blundering descent upon them laughed at. Lord Tybar was saying, "Well, it's a tiger of a place, this Garden Home of yours, Sabre."

"It's not mine," said Sabre. "God forbid."

"Ah, you've not got the same beautiful local patriotism that I have. It's one of my most elegant qualities, my passionate devotion to my country. That was what that corker of a vicar of yours, Brown, told me I was when I wept with joy while he was showing me round. Yes, and now I'm a patron of the Garden Home Trust or a governor or a vice-president or something. I am really. What is it I am, Nona?"

"You're a bloated aristocrat and a bloodsucker," Nona told him in her clear, fine voice. "And you're living on estates which your brutal ancestors ravaged from the people. That's what you are, Tony. I showed it you in the Searchlight yesterday. And I say, don't use 'elegant'; that's mine."

"Oh, by gad, yes, so I am," said Lord Tybar. "Bloodsucker. Good lord, fancy being a bloodsucker! I'm a bloodsucker, too. And you're living on estates which your brutal ancestors ravaged from the people. That's what you are, Tony. I showed it you in the Searchlight yesterday. And I say, don't use 'elegant'; that's mine."

"Oh, by gad, yes, so I am," said Lord Tybar. "Bloodsucker. Good lord, fancy being a bloodsucker! I'm a bloodsucker, too. And you're living on estates which your brutal ancestors ravaged from the people. That's what you are, Tony. I showed it you in the Searchlight yesterday. And I say, don't use 'elegant'; that's mine."

She made a little pouting motion at him with her lips. "Marko, I wish to goodness you wouldn't call me Lady Tybar. Dash it, we've called one another Nona and Marko for about a thousand years, long before I ever knew Tony. And just because I'm married—"

"And to a mere loathsome bloodsucker, too," Lord Tybar interposed. "Yes, especially to a bloodsucker. Just remember to say Nona, will you, between us. I told you about it before I went away. You don't suppose Tony minds, do you?"

"And Sabre," said Lord Tybar. "What the devil does it matter what a bloated robber minds, anyway? That's the way to look at me, Sabre, between us. I told you about it before I went away. You don't suppose Tony minds, do you?"

"Absolutely. So, Marko, don't be a complete noodle than you already are."

"Ah, you're getting it now," Lord Tybar murmured. "I'm a noodle, too, the Searchlight says."

He somehow gave Sabre the impression of taking an even deeper enjoyment in the incident between his wife and Sabre than the enjoyment he clearly had in his own face-tousness. He was slightly turned in his saddle so as to look directly at Nona, and he listened and interposed, and turned his eyes from her face to Sabre's, and from Sabre's back to hers, with his handsome head slightly cocked to one side and with much gleaming in his eyes; rather as if he had on some private mock.

"Well, about my word 'elegant,' Nona was going on, 'and why it is mine—weren't you asking?' Sabre said he had. 'Yes, why yours?'"

"Why, you see, Derry and Toms he said, 'it's Sabre's. She took her horse's ears with her riding switch, and he stamped a hoof on the ground and arched his neck as though he knew he was a case of it and was proud of being a case of it. I wanted an elegant name for him and I always think two names are so elegant for a firm—"

"Bloodsucker and Noodle are mine," said Lord Tybar in a very gloomy voice; and they laughed.

"So I called him Derry and Toms."

Sabre pointed out that this still left her own possession of the word unexplained.

"Oh, Marko, you're dreadfully matter-of-fact. You always were. Why, Tony and I get fond of a word and then we have it for our own, whichever of us it is, and use it for everything. And elegant's mine just now. I'm dreadfully fond of it. It's so—well, elegant; there you are, you see!"

Lord Tybar announced that he had just become attached to a new word and desired to possess it. He was

Stuffed Heart. Wash heart thoroughly, inside and out through several waters. Let stand in clear cold water for an hour. Drain and dry. Make a stuffing as follows:

Three-fourths cup coarse bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons minced bacon, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1-8 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 egg (optional).

Mince the bacon and put in a hot frying pan. When the fat begins to try out add the bread crumbs and stir lightly. Make the crumbs a pale straw color and do not let the bacon fat become smoking hot at any time. Remove from fire, add seasoning and egg slightly beaten. Fill heart with this mixture, sew up and tie in a cheesecloth.

Then the red feather jumped into Nick's pocket. At the same time the magic paper slipped from the clutch of the dragon (Twelve Toes, it was, you know) and followed the red feather.

But before the paper disappeared into his pocket Nick saw some words written in purple ink, so he turned his back and peeped at it cautiously. It said, "When the dragon changes his form you and Nancy must watch your chance and grab the Green Shoes."

He put it into his pocket again and stepped out of the cave just in time to see a great puff of black smoke. And as it disappeared there slowly took form a white goat with a black head and gold knobs on the ends of his horns.

"She would be," said Nona. "And so am I!" said Sabre. Something in her tone made him say it deliberately.

She laughed. "I'm sure you are, Marko. Well, good-by; and as Derry and Toms began to turn with his customary sedateness of motion she made the remark, 'I'm so glad you don't wear trouser clips, Marko. I do loathe trouser clips.'"

He told her that he rode "one of these chain-saw bikes" and that he said it rather mumbly. Exactly in that tone she used to bring suit, Marko.

He resumed his ride. A mile farther on he overtook, on a slight rise, an immense tree trunk slung between three pairs of wheels and dragged by two tremendous horses, harnessed tandemwise. As he passed them came the smell of warm horseflesh and his thought was "Pretty good!"

He shot ahead and a line came into his mind: "Was this the face that launched a thousand ships?"

Well, he had had certain aspirations, dreams, visions. He was upon the crest whence the road ran down into Tidborough. Beneath him the spires of the cathedral lifted exactly above the surrounding city.

"Those houses in King's Close are going to be eighty pounds a year, and what do you think, Mrs. Toiler is going to take one!"

"She would be," said Nona. "And so am I!" said Sabre. Something in her tone made him say it deliberately.

She laughed. "I'm sure you are, Marko. Well, good-by; and as Derry and Toms began to turn with his customary sedateness of motion she made the remark, 'I'm so glad you don't wear trouser clips, Marko. I do loathe trouser clips.'"

He told her that he rode "one of these chain-saw bikes" and that he said it rather mumbly. Exactly in that tone she used to bring suit, Marko.

He resumed his ride. A mile farther on he overtook, on a slight rise, an immense tree trunk slung between three pairs of wheels and dragged by two tremendous horses, harnessed tandemwise. As he passed them came the smell of warm horseflesh and his thought was "Pretty good!"

He shot ahead and a line came into his mind: "Was this the face that launched a thousand ships?"

Well, he had had certain aspirations, dreams, visions. He was upon the crest whence the road ran down into Tidborough. Beneath him the spires of the cathedral lifted exactly above the surrounding city.

BOOKS

EDITED BY CARR.

POLITICAL PROFILES FROM BRITISH PUBLIC LIFE. By Herbert Sidebotham. Boston and New York: Houghton Mifflin Company.

THIS is a book that one must read with respect.

Mr. Sidebotham knows the mechanism of English politics as well as any man living. He was for nearly eighteen months the representative of the London Times in the press galleries of the Houses of Parliament, and he has had many opportunities of meeting intimately the men who are in the center of the governing classes in England.

He is analytical, but never flippant. One turns with interest to his chapter on "The Cecilians," who are Arthur J. Balfour, Lords Robert and Hugh Cecil, Ormsby-Gore, Lord Wimborne, Walter Guinness, Edward Wood, Lord Wolmer and the Marquess of Salisbury.

Both Lord Robert and Lord Hugh Cecil are serious men. The League of Nations is to Lord Robert what the English Church is to Lord Hugh. In the roughness of the moment and in the turmoil of the hour these gentlemen, the prestige of whose name still counts greatly in England, will scarcely become leaders, for Lord Robert, who thinks well, will not fight, and Lord Hugh is equally Hamlet-like. The most interesting and important of all the Cecilians is Mr. Balfour, whose dignity and simplicity made a very great impression at the Washington conference.

The sympathy shown by the Labor benches in the House of Commons for Lord Robert Cecil is the product of the natural antipathy which exists between Toryism and socialism, for Herbert Spencer "used to call socialism the new Toryism, because both accepted the theory of the omnipotent state."

Mr. Sidebotham predicts that, as Liberals are not all Asquiths and Greys, when the new party split comes in England, Lord Robert Cecil, who has recently turned to the Independent Liberals, may be part of the new and potent regrouping.

Premier Lloyd George is the subject of the best sketch yet written in English of this very baffling and thoroughly interesting politician and statesman. Mr. Sidebotham admits that he has been in danger, but that Dublin and Washington may yet be his salvation.

As a Conservative prime minister, he would be laughed. An orthodox Liberal he never has been, nor will he. Labor is still too unformed and inchoate in its views to attract a leader from without. There are those who have suggested that the wisest course may be for the prime minister to rest awhile from labors, whose continuous strain has been almost greater than human endurance. In the expectation of returning refreshed with new ideas and strength.

The pictures of Lord Curzon of Kedleston and of Mr. Asquith are also worth the careful consideration which that of Britain's premier deserves.

Mr. Asquith is given credit for knowing how to express the mind of his nation in stately phrases. The spirit of Oxford never deserts him. His power as prime minister was due to his personality, and he is just a powerful now as when he was prime minister. "A sound Yorkshire stool gave him health, his first marriage help, his second fashion and society, but Oxford made Mr. Asquith what he has been and still is. He is the leader of the forlorn hopes of the old official liberalism." If Lord Robert Cecil is a thoroughgoing aristocrat by birth, Mr. Asquith is a thorough aristocrat by intellect. I view of Mrs. Asquith's statements in Toronto to The London Advertiser, Mr. Sidebotham's words have a little air of irony.

The sensitiveness and reserve, with which he himself would wish to hide the life which is his own is worthy of admiration, and ought to have been respected more than it has been.

A very interesting sketch is that of Lord Reading. Mr. Sidebotham has done as much for Lady Astor as he could; Lord Derby's is delightful; a photograph taken artistically. Lord Ebury is to be imitated as a more character sketch of the distinguished writer, let us hope that they may be in the manner of Herbert Sidebotham.

There slowly took form a white goat with a black head and gold knobs on the ends of his horns.

NANCY and Nick stumbled out of the cave into daylight. The red feather had knocked the Cloth of Dreams from their hands to the floor, where its two parts instantly joined into one, as it had been before Twelve Toes the Sorcerer cut it.

Then the red feather jumped into Nick's pocket. At the same time the magic paper slipped from the clutch of the dragon (Twelve Toes, it was, you know) and followed the red feather.

But before the paper disappeared into his pocket Nick saw some words written in purple ink, so he turned his back and peeped at it cautiously. It said, "When the dragon changes his form you and Nancy must watch your chance and grab the Green Shoes."

He put it into his pocket again and stepped out of the cave just in time to see a great puff of black smoke. And as it disappeared there slowly took form a white goat with a black head and gold knobs on the ends of his horns.

WINS HONOR ON FIRST BALLOT AT CONVENTION

Convention Cheers Perth Member To Echo When Vote Announced.

SPURN U. F. O. ALLIANCE

Ex-Mayor Little of London Backs Resolution To Support Sane Hydro Development.

BY HELEN MACMILLAN.

TORONTO, March 2.—Liberalism in Ontario received a never-to-be-forgotten impetus from the enthusiastic convention which was brought to a close here this afternoon.

Stalwart members of the party from all parts of the province had rallied to elect a leader, the result being an overwhelming vote for P. Wellington Hay of North Perth on the first ballot.

Although the convention was marked by hot discussion the assembly broke up at 5 o'clock this evening with a feeling of unanimity and the fires of Liberalism burning strongly in every breast.

"I have never seen anything like it in the history of the Ontario party," declared an old-timer, referring to the convention as a whole.

Big Reception.

Mr. Hay was received with rousing cheers, as he appeared on the platform after his election.

"I have no message for you, except the message of Liberalism," he declared. "I thank you for the honor and the confidence you have given me. I wish only to remind you that it is easier for a strong party to carry a weak leader, than for a strong leader to carry a weak party. I have got to work to live, and I hope to continue living. So I shall need your help in carrying on the business of leadership, and I am confident that I shall have it. We are all Liberals together."

The new leader was accorded the unanimous vote of the convention on the motion of W. E. W. Sinclair, M.L.A., and Major T. C. Tolmie, M. L. A., the defeated candidates for the office, both of whom received an enthusiastic reception from the assembled delegates.

It was with great surprise the convention learned that the leadership had been determined on the first ballot. The delegates had expected a closer race, and were unprepared for W. T. R. Preston's announcement at 2:30 o'clock that a decision had been made.

The election as president of the New Ontario Liberal Association of Senator Arthur Hardy of Brockville, president of the Ontario Reform Association, was another important outcome of today's session. Indeed, so anxious were the delegates to expedite business and so keen was their interest in the proceedings that they continued in session from 9:35 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon without a break even for luncheon.

Elect Ex-Mayor Little.

Following quickly upon the election of the president came the election of vice-presidents and treasurer. The vice-presidents are: Ex-Mayor E. S. Little of London, Howard Kane of North York, H. H. Carpenter of Hamilton, and T. H. Spence of Toronto. George Wilkie, K.C., of Toronto, was chosen treasurer.

A very heated discussion took place in the house when the chairman attempted to proceed with the election of officers. Norman McEachern of Toronto insisted upon the clause in the constitution dealing with the election and number of the members of the executive and officers had not been passed by the convention.

That there were two factions in the assembly was evident.

One side of the house adhered to what they called the "democratic principle" and argued for an executive which would include one or two members from every electoral riding in the province.

The other side of the house protested that an executive of 110 or 220 members, which this would entail, was too unwieldy, and strongly advocated a small executive. The chairman besought the delegates not to let the convention come to a close until they had brought into being a small central body, through which the workings of the Liberal party might be carried on.

Results In Compromise.

The result of the discussion was a compromise. An executive, consisting of one man and one woman from each electoral riding of the province will form the working body of the Ontario association. These delegates will be appointed by their own ridings. A second and smaller body will be known as a board of management, and will consist of twenty men and ten women elected by the larger executive at a meeting to be held within six months.

Two important resolutions were passed during the afternoon.

The first advocating the extension of women's franchise in municipal elections to the wives of tenants and owners was proposed by Mrs. Fred Dewar of Toronto.

The second advocated greater care of the feeble-minded, and was moved by Mrs. H. H. Carpenter of Hamilton.

Mrs. Carpenter was signalled out during the convention to receive the special honors accorded to the women of the party. Not only was she made assistant chairman, but she was nominated for leadership, and elected as a vice-president of the New Ontario Association.

Withdrawing from the candidacy for leadership, she said: "Realizing the gallantry and chivalry of men always towards women, I beg to express my appreciation of the honor they have done me, but I don't think men ever need fear the candidacy of a woman for leader of the Liberal party."

Murdock Arrives.

Hon. James Murdock, minister of labor, who is now on his way to Kootenay, B.C., to assist in the election of Dr. King, was enthusiastically welcomed on his arrival by the convention.

In a brief speech he protested against the unnecessary burden which had been placed on the government so soon after a general election by the contest in Kootenay.

A somewhat scattered house attended the first business of the day when Chairman W. T. R. Preston called for order at 10:15 and introduced Mr. Z. Mageau, M.P., from Sturgeon Falls, and Mr. A. J. Young of Toronto, who moved a resolution.

This resolution dealt with agriculture, timber, development and mining with special reference to their local application in Northern Ontario.

In connection with agriculture, the resolution asked that the settlement of the vast areas of fertile land in the north should be made without hampering restrictions, in such a manner as to attract the most desirable settlers. It further suggested that where careful examination showed that townships now opened for settlement were not suitable for agriculture, then steps should be taken to secure new land for the homesteaders located in these areas and to assist in moving them to more suitable locations, allowing their original land to revert to the crown. Furthermore, it was asked that a comprehensive survey be made of unsettled lands still retained by the crown. All such lands not suitable for agriculture should be withdrawn from location and reserved for its timber and mineral value.

Condemns Present System.

The resolution also condemned the present system for the sale and disposal of timber as having proved wasteful and extravagant. It recommended that closer co-operation should be established between the timber licenses and the government in order to conserve young and growing timber. The present system of fire-rangings was claimed to be utterly inadequate and to be not producing value for the money expended.

The convention also reaffirmed the stand taken in 1919 on roads, water powers and fish hatcheries.

As for mining, the delegates went on record as favoring the provision of adequate transportation facilities in remote districts together with the testing up new areas by diamond drilling. It also asked that everything possible be done to encourage prospecting by individuals. It also asked that when a mine is proved up and produces profit to its possessor a graded tax consistent with the values of the output and the profit realized be reserved for the province, and generally primarily encourage and make easy the opening of the properties which, when successful, will return to the province in taxes a larger percentage of profit than is now secured.

Applauds For Hay.

Each of the known candidates for leadership had an opportunity of exhibiting his oratorical powers to the convention yesterday, with the exception of the acting leader, Mr. Wellington Hay, who was detained in the Legislature. His chance came this morning, however, when Mr. Young sat down and the chairman with appropriate emphasis called on: "P. Wellington Hay."

A roar of applause greeted Mr.

Hay as he stepped forward and addressed the convention.

The acting leader made no attempt to ignore the concealed threats at his alleged flirtation with Premier Drury, made frequently yesterday in the course of resolutions moved by Mr. W. E. W. Sinclair, Major J. C. Tolmie and their friends.

"I am not easily stampeded," remarked Mr. Hay pleasantly, "by any body of men, by any man, or by any newspaper. I wish to take your

He Had a Good Time.

Mr. Hay brought a wave of laughter when he continued: "Because a girl may flirt with me, and I may perhaps not turn my back, it does not mean that I am going to take her name. HAY CHOSEN AS LIBERAL LEADER time since, but I have been married only once. There is no marriage, there is not even proposal of marriage between the Liberal party and any other party."

Prolonged applause showed the approval with which the announcement was received.

In moving the resolution, which placed Liberalism on record as standing for the principle that the party should render aid and co-operation towards the hydro-electric, in so far as that was consistent with the safe and economical administration of hydro and as favoring extension of hydro to rural districts wherever possible, Mr. Hay emphasized the distinct cleavage and two questions of hydro radicals and hydro-electric.

He refused to allow the two matters to be confused or to sanction any attempt to stamper the party towards adopting both merely because it approved one. The Liberalism, he said, had always been in favor of the development of public resources. It heartily supported the hydro-electric power scheme since it was sound and since it shouldered no burden or obligation on the province at large.

Resolution Passes.

At the same time, he felt that municipalities should be allowed to proceed with radical schemes where they were willing to do so on their own initiative and without expecting the province to guarantee their bonds.

Ex-Mayor E. S. Little of London supported the resolution, which was passed unanimously.

The text of the Hay-Little resolution on hydro-electric read:

"Whereas the cost of the hydro-electric has reached great proportions, involving the province in large commitments and financial responsibilities,

"And whereas the advantages of hydro-electric are recognized,

"And whereas nevertheless the extent of the province's obligations and commitments for hydro-electric enterprises have reached greater proportions than was originally anticipated and estimated,

"Now, therefore, be it resolved that the Liberal party stands for the principle that the province render every practicable assistance and co-operation to the hydro-electric, consistent with the safe and economical development and administration of the hydro and with the financial demands of the province as a whole, and that whenever feasible the services of the hydro-electric be extended to the rural communities."

Canadian Nationality.

Mrs. W. J. Stevens of Toronto, and Dr. T. D. Rutherford moved a measure, providing for the recognition of Canadian nationality in the taking of the census, and in registration of births, marriages and deaths.

The resolution read: "The Liberal party in the province of Ontario resolve that the interests of Canada and Canadians can best be served by the recognition of Canadian as a distinct nationality in addition to any other required information in all matters of registration at the option of the registrar."

This resolution was going through with the automatic ease of its predecessors, when Mr. Z. Mageau of Sturgeon Falls took the platform and urged the convention to cast no slight on their fellow French-Canadians. Later Mr. Mageau discovered that the resolution had been amended since his inspection of it last night. He therefore withdrew his objection, and the resolution passed unanimously.

Ovation for Dewart.

In the middle of the preceding H. Hartley Dewart, former leader of the party, entered and the convention rose in the greatest applause since yesterday morning. At the conclusion of resolution Mr. Preston called on Mr. Dewart, who rose amid another ovation, thanked the convention in a voice shaken with evident emotion, and congratulated the Liberal party on such demonstration of its vitality.

Hon. T. A. Low, minister without portfolio in the Dominion cabinet, expressed the belief that Premier Mackenzie King would return to Ottawa after the next election with more followers than he had at present.

At 11:30, following Mr. Low's remarks, Chairman Preston announced that the first move would now be made in clearing the decks for the taking of the vote on the new leader. A flutter of expectancy swept over the convention as non-delegates were removed from the floor to the gallery, and all senators and members of parliament again took seats on the platform. This was what the delegates had come for, and for this they had waited through endless oratory.

Among those moving to the platform were Hon. W. C. Kennedy, North Essex, minister of railways; Hon. T. A. Low, South Renfrew, minister without portfolio; W. A. Raymond, M.P., of Bramford; H. Hartley Dewart, P. Wellington, M.P., W. E. N. Sinclair, M.P., George Ramsden, Capt. Jack Ramsden, M.P., and Thomas Marshall, M.P.

Woman Enters Protest.

Ten men and two ladies were named. Mrs. Ferguson of Toronto, however, took the platform, and protested vehemently against lack of representation of her sex. "I think you are awfully unfair," she cried, "and if this is the way the convention is going to be run, it is a shame."

The convention decided that nominations be opened again. Someone moved that Mrs. Ferguson be allowed to name as many as she liked.

"No, no," suggested the women delegates. Finally a cooler head suggested that the first seven names on the previous list stand good, that Mrs. Ferguson name the remaining three. Chairman Preston took the vote and declared the motion carried.

A lady in the gallery added to the excitement by leaning over the gallery, waving a large parcel and screaming at the top of her voice. Her companions finally restrained her. Mrs. Moore of London, Mrs. Allen of Port William and Mrs. Perry of Peterboro were the ladies named.

President Preston tried to distribute the scrutineers.

"We want a lady on our aisle," called a French-Canadian voice.

"We'll have no flirting here," retorted the chairman.

The scrutineers then took their places in each aisle, and the chairman explained the roll of accredited delegates would be called and as each delegate rose he would be handed a ballot. In the meantime Hon. W. C. Kennedy, M.P., minister of railways, was called on to address the convention.

Election May Be Soon.

Mr. Kennedy spoke briefly: "If this meeting augurs anything, then at the next election, which may be soon, the Liberals in the provincial field will do even better than did we in the Dominion contest." After conveying to the delegates the regret of Mackenzie King at not being able to attend the convention, he touched on a rumor to the effect that the Dominion cabinet was putting its benediction on one of the candidates.

"We have a candidate," said he. "Our candidate is whoever may be chosen by this convention. Whoever he may be, he will have the whole-souled and hearty support of the Liberal party in the Dominion."

Nominations Open.

At exactly 12 o'clock, Mr. Preston announced: "I am now open for nominations for the leader of the Liberal party in Ontario." He was immediately handed several nomination papers which he proceeded to read.

The first paper gave the name of W. E. N. Sinclair, M.P., Oshawa, named by Col. H. S. Cooper, J. A. Pinard, C. Callaghan and Fred Hogg. The second was Lieut.-Col. E. D. O'Flynn, by J. S. Harrison and Harold Ashley; third came W. K. Murphy, Jr., of Toronto, by Daniel Markham; fourth was F. Wellington Hay, M.P., by Aubrey Davis and E. S. Little; fifth was A. J. Young, Toronto, by D. McEachern and Joseph Singer; sixth, Major J. C. Tolmie, M.P., Windsor, by A. P. McWhitney; seven, W. A. Lewis, of Brockville, by Dr. J. P. Sinclair; eighth, ex-Mayor Harold A. L. Fisher, Ottawa, by H. H. Horsey, and ninth and last, Mrs. Harry H. Carpenter of Hamilton, by John Fraser.

The names of Wellington Hay, J. C. Tolmie and Mrs. Carpenter received the only applause of the proceedings.

Nominations were declared closed at ten minutes after twelve, and each candidate was then allowed five minutes in which to present his or her argument.

In speaking to his nomination, W. E. N. Sinclair denied the slander that the Liberal party was dead, saying: "There is no crepe on our door." While fully appreciative of the great responsibility resting on the shoulder of any man chosen for the leadership, he answered his willingness to undertake the task if the convention so desired. He was prepared to stand by the principle of Liberalism.

Col. O'Flynn of Belleville withdrew, stating that he was like the ragged negro, who when asked to change a five-dollar bill, replied, "I thank you for the compliment, but I'm sorry I can't do it."

W. K. Murphy, Jr., also withdrew after a few words in which he foreshadowed the momentous period ahead of Liberalism.

Service To Liberalism.

Mr. Hay received a great ovation when he arose. In accepting the nomination, he stated that he was actuated only by one motive, that of service to Liberalism. He added that he had been loyal to the late leader of the party. He again emphasized the fact that the Drury government had made no offers of any sort in an endeavor to persuade either himself personally or the party collectively to go over to their side. Nor had he himself made any overtures whatever to the U. F. O. or the government.

Mr. Hay expressed the fear that he might not ever become a highly successful politician, if by that was meant the general idea of tearing down all legislation that did not emanate from his own party. To this he could not subscribe, since he felt that the whole idea of public service laid in constructive work along same and reasonable political and business lines.

Touching on the secession of many farmers to the ranks of the U. F. O., he said: "If our friends have left us for real or imaginary grievances, then we ought to apply ourselves to try and get them back in our fold."

He then pointed out that since 1919 the Liberal party had been supporting Liberal measures regardless of whether they emanated from one side of the house or the other.

In concluding, he promised that if the choice of the convention fell on any one other than himself, he would get behind the new leader with all his strength, energy and loyalty.

A. J. Young withdrew from the running, while making a plea for more business and less politics in the government of the province.

Major J. C. Tolmie, M.L.A., Windsor, was well received when he rose to speak. He claimed that it was he who conceived the plan of choosing a permanent leader by a provincial convention.

Major Tolmie repeated to some extent his argument of last night that "Liberals must stand on their own feet" because of the mission of Liberalism in the world. He added that he had been suggested as leader two years ago, and that it had then been felt that he lacked political experience.

This objection, he believed, was now removed. Another objection based on Catholic disapproval of his position as Presbyterian minister, Major Tolmie stated was groundless and submitted in proof the fact that his largest majority at the last election had come from Roman Catholic districts.

Ex-Mayor Lewis of Brockville, in withdrawing, laid several verbal rose wreaths at the feet of Hartley Dewart.

Ex-Mayor H. A. L. Fisher of Ottawa, in also declining the nomination, laughingly said that he was "about to make the speech of the day."

He was right. It lasted just about fifteen seconds.

Only Three Left.

This left as candidates for leadership only three men, F. Wellington Hay, M.P., W. E. N. Sinclair, M.P., and Major J. C. Tolmie, M.P.P. Distribution of ballots then commenced at ten minutes to one, each delegate being handed one ballot as he answered his name on the roll called by Secretary J. D. Peck. As the list contained some six hundred names, the distribution was a lengthy proceeding.

WINDSOR, March 2.—Estimates of the police department were finally passed this afternoon by the police commission. They will now go to the finance committee of the city council for consideration and approval.

Proposed expenditures total $131,700, approximately $2,000 more than last year. Chief Thompson also favors the addition of five men to the department, which will mean adding on about $12,000 to the estimates. The chief was delegated to attend the meeting of the finance committee to explain the need for more men. At a recent meeting of the commission a delegation from the south-east section of the city asked for increased police protection. This request will be cited by the chief before the committee.

COMMITTEES FORMED

All City and County Organizations Invited to Co-operate in Project.

ST. Without exception the delegates present favored the idea and everyone believed that such an undertaking would prove highly successful. Each representative pledged the support of his organization, and now steps will be taken to gain the co-operation of various other clubs and the sympathy of the citizens of both the county and city.

The matter will be taken up further by a special committee composed of the president, the secretary and one other member of all the organizations represented at the meeting, which included the Ayrshire, Shorthorn and Holstein Breeders' Associations, the Poultry Association, and the Children's Calf and Pet Stock Club.

Will Meet March 11. The committee will hold its first meeting Saturday afternoon, March 11. Representatives from the city council, the chamber of commerce, the county board of trade, county council, and the Kiwanis Club will be invited to attend and to co-operate with the committee.

ST. THOMAS, March 2.—Live hog prices suffered a slump Thursday, dropping from the week-opening price of $13.50 per cwt to $12.50, according to quotations received from St. Thomas Packing Company, Limited. The egg market is also unsteady, with wholesale quotation Thursday of 28 cents a dozen, as against 30 to 32 cents at the commencement of the week.

Butter, wholesale, ranges around 35 cents for creamery prints.

Empire Flour Mills, Limited, is still paying $1.35 per bushel for Ontario winter wheat.

Middlings were quoted at $33 to $35 a ton.

DOUBTS PASSAGE OF RECIPROCITY LAW BY SENATE

Chairman Fordney Tells Mr. Fielding "Nothing Can Be Done at Present."

CITES HARDING'S POWERS

Agricultural Bloc in United States Apparently Against Any Cut in Duties.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—By Canadian Press.—The possibility of a reciprocal trade agreement being negotiated between Canada and the United States after the passage of the pending United States tariff legislation is being widely discussed in political circles here tonight, as a result of developments of the day in connection with the visit of Hon. W.

S. Fielding, Canadian minister of finance, to Washington.

Mr. Fielding this afternoon had a conference with Chairman Joseph Fordney of the ways and means committee of the house.

Afterwards Mr. Fielding retained his customary reticence, but from Mr. Fordney it was learned that the Canadian minister was definitely informed that the United States is not ready to discuss a general reciprocal trade agreement at the present time.

In an interview following his conference with the Canadian minister, Mr. Fordney said:

Nothing To Be Done.

"Mr. Fielding asked me the prospects of re-enacting the law of 1911. I informed him that there was nothing to be done along that line. I also advised him that under the new tariff measure any dealings with respect to reciprocity would have to be taken up through the president."

Mr. Fordney explained the workings of the pending tariff measure in respect to reciprocity, as follows:

"Under the measure now pending the president himself could modify rates to a certain extent. He would have power to deal, for instance, with discriminatory tariffs imposed by another country. However, under the new measure, if he made any general reciprocity arrangement he would have to obtain its ratification by the Senate."

Mr. Fordney explained that he had been informed by President Harding that as soon as the tariff bill became a law negotiations would be opened with the Canadian government. The consensus of opinion in Washington tonight, in view of Mr. Fordney's statement, and of the expressed opposition of several other United States legislators, is that no definite negotiations looking to reciprocity are possible.

Fear Strong Opposition.
There appears to be a feeling that such negotiations may be reached at a later date, after the passage of the Fordney bill, but it is pointed out that very strong factors of opposition put any immediate move in that direction completely out of the question.

The importance of the view of Chairman Fordney as to reciprocity consists in the fact that he represents to a large extent the views of high tariff Republicans in Congress, and he is in a position probably to dominate legislation. Moreover he happens in this case to be in line with the views of agricultural members.

Members of the agricultural bloc make it plain that they will object to any reciprocal arrangement by the president which lowers agricultural duties. Another important factor in the situation is that while under the new law the United States president can arrange for reciprocity on specific articles, he will in practice consult the tariff leaders in Congress before doing anything.

CHARGES DRURY EVADES HYDRO RESPONSIBILITY

West Ottawa Member Demands Government Take "Stand Like Men."

FIGHTS CATTLE EMBARGO

Doherty Blames British "Officialdom" for Present Restrictions.

TORONTO, March 2.—A declaration by H. Hill, Conservative member for West Ottawa, that the Drury government should accept the responsibility of controlling hydro expenditure and call for the resignation of Sir Adam Beck if they felt that he had outlived his usefulness, and an announcement by Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture, that he was responsible for the agitation now existing in Great Britain against the embargo on Canadian cattle, featured the wind-up of the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne this afternoon in the Legislature.

Mr. Doherty made the discovery while in England last year that 80 or 90 per cent of the people were against the embargo. From this he concluded that all former protests against the embargo from Canada were fruitless simply because they came before unsympathetic officialdom. This conclusion led to the appointment of the federal commission, and the commission had pronounced against the embargo and had given Canadian cattle a clean bill of health.

Officialdom stood in the way of lifting the embargo, but Mr. Doherty expressed the conviction that public feeling against the barrier would eventually force the government into line.

Mr. Doherty also defended the government's immigration policy, which he said aimed to bring out from the British Isles suitable settlers for unoccupied Ontario land.

Assails Drury Plan.
Declaring that the Drury government should "make their stand like men, and not try to evade responsibility by throwing it on the members of this house," Mr. Hill of West Ottawa took vigorous exception to the proposal made by the Liberal leader, Mr. Hays, and concurred in by the premier, that a house committee should delve into facts concerning Chippewa expenditures.

Mr. Hill stated his reasons for opposing the move. Members, he said, were not sufficiently well informed upon the technical points to weigh evidence that might come before them; they would be apt to view

Bootlegger's Choice of Car Finds Favor For Police Patrol.

WINDSOR, March 2.—Because bootleggers have proved the worth of a certain make of automobile, the police commission this afternoon favored this type of automobile for patrol work.

"This car," Magistrate Gundy said, "has been proven durable by bootleggers. In fact, most liquor exporters use this kind of car."

Bids on a new patrol were received from ten dealers. Prices varied from $8,000 down to $1,450. The purchase was not recommended because no money can now be spent without the consent of the city council.

Must Accept Policy.

While Mr. Hill said he did not know whether Sir Adam Beck's conduct had been such as to justify his dismissal, "I think any chairman of a commission should be guided by the general policy of his government. Whether he likes that policy or not, he should be guided by it. If the relations between the government and the commission are such that they cannot agree, cannot go ahead, then the government should ask for his dismissal. If Sir Adam Beck's enthusiasm has caused him to run away with the commission, has caused him to go too far, the government is in a better position than any of us to express an opinion on that matter."

Provincial Treasurer Peter Smith gave notice of motion to have the house resolve itself into committee of supply and ways and means Friday afternoon when the hydro interim supply vote will come up for discussion.

SENT TO REFORMATORY FOR ATTEMPTED ARSON

Kitchener Man Also Fined For Breaking O. T. A. and Inland Revenue Acts.

KITCHENER, March 2.—John Cushing, of 48 Wilhelm street, who pleaded guilty to attempted arson in the police court Tuesday, was sentenced to not less than six months and not more than two years less a day in the Ontario Reformatory, this morning.

He was also fined $200 and costs or six months in jail on each of two charges, one being for a breach of the inland revenue act in having a still and the other for selling liquor, contrary to the Ontario temperance act. The sentences in the last two cases are to run concurrently with the former.

Cushing did not attempt to fight any of the cases, contenting himself with the statement that he had home brew for home consumption only. The case of assault against him was withdrawn.

FARMING COURSE PROVED SUCCESS

Subjects in Agriculture Covered Thoroughly at Stratford School.

CLOSES WITH BANQUET

W. D. Jackson, B.S.A., Outlines the Work the Department Has Accomplished.

The members of the three-months agricultural short course in Stratford closed the course Thursday night by a splendid banquet held in Frangley's Hall.

W. D. Jackson, B.S.A., assistant supervisor of the agricultural district representatives was the speaker of the evening and gave the gathering some interesting information on the work the department was doing for young people.

Mr. Jackson stated that 46 short courses with an average attendance of 23 boys, had been held, and that there had been four courses of three months' duration.

Speaking on school fairs, Mr. Jackson stated that 150,000 youngsters were interested and taking part in school fairs. Clubs of boys and girls were doing good work. Youngsters interested in calf clubs were raising such good animals that they were beating older exhibitors at the fall fairs, and getting their fair share of the prizes.

Finns Thank Town.

H. A. Finn, district representative for Finland, thanked the town of Stratford, the Stratford C. of C., and the militia department for their co-operation in making the course a success. He also thanked Judge Duncan Ross, who had helped enough the difficulties in connection with the securing of the armories. Mr. Finn also spoke of the support he had received from the various farm organizations and the press.

J. O. Bogue, Col. A. L. Berdan, and E. L. Evans responded to the remarks of Mr. Finn.

The toast to "The Staff" was proposed by Miss M. Morgan, and responded to by Miss B. Leitch.

The health of the home economics class was proposed by S. D. Irvine, Miss R. Saxton making a splendid reply. The toast to the men's class in agriculture was looked after by J. K. Campbell and R. H. Hall.

Receive Prizes.

Miss Denary, Miss R. Saxton and Miss M. Collins were presented with prizes for general proficiency by Mr. Jackson, while R. H. Hall, W. Steele, and C. Pearson received prizes for not having missed a single lecture in the three months the course was in progress.

The boys' examination papers have not yet all been corrected, and their prizes will be presented at a later date.

Ed. Rowland acted as chairman of the evening.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you.—Matthew 6:33.

STRUGGLE Not with thy life! The heavy doom

Resist not; it will bow thee like a slave;

Strive not! thou shalt not conquer to thy tomb;

Thou shalt go crushed, and bound though never so brave.

Complain not of thy life! for what art thou?

More than thy fellows that thou shouldst not weep?

Brave thoughts still lodge beneath a fevered brow.

And the way-wearied have the sweetest sleep.

—Francis Anne Kemble.

APPLICATION FOR seeds from rural pupils who wish to enter school fair competitions are being received by R. A. Finn, of the department of agriculture office. These applications are coming in earlier this year, and in the opinion of Mr. Finn an increased interest is being shown by both teachers and pupils in school fair work.

CRAWFORD HOPKINS, of this city, through his solicitors, McKillop and Douglas, has issued a supreme court writ against the Traders and General Insurance Co., Ltd., of Toronto, for $2,500, being the benefit payable under a policy of insurance, dated September 23, 1921, whereby the defendant had issued an Oldembell touring car of the plaintiff for $2,500.

REV. J. D. MACKENZIE NAUGHTON, of St. Catharines has been appointed rector of St. George's Church, Owen Sound, to succeed Rev. Canon Ardell, who has resigned. Another appointment within the Diocese of Huron which has just been announced is that of Rev. J. A. Davies of Roslin, near Kingston, to the rectory of Clarkson and Collingwood.

REV. F. W. K. HARRIS, who has returned from Toronto, where he attended a meeting of the boys' work board, stated that London was complimented at the meeting on the fact that in the recent appeal for financial aid in carrying out the work amongst boys, London's response was among the most generous. Mr. Harris also reports that London is recognized as having some of the liveliest organizations in Ontario in connection with boys' work.

THERE ARE MORE income tax returns at the district income tax office this year on the 3rd of March than there were on April 15 last year. This making of returns with increased interest is being shown by a number of surprise to the income tax officials. It is believed that extension of the income tax returns in the manner of filling them out in papers had been a great aid in getting about an influx of early returns.

Atlantic City Censor Bans One-Piece Bathing Costumes

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 3.—Public morality on Atlantic City's famous beach will be enforced again this summer.

Dr. Charles Bossert, beach censor, today issued an edict banning one-piece bathing suits for both men and women.

Nor can the censored mermaids console themselves with rolled or half hose, but must worry along with what the doctor terms "stockings."

"No woman with a one-piece suit can come on the beach," he sternly proclaimed. "If she tries to go into the water she will be arrested as a disorderly person. All women must wear stockings, too. If they don't they will be arrested also."

Women's claims that they can suggest to the one-piece suits make no difference, continued the censor. "They can wear no one-piece suits in Atlantic City."

Nor have the men been neglected. "No skin-tight suits for men," ruled Dr. Bossert.

MUSIC CLUB GIVES PLEASING RECITAL

Program Features Include Saint-Saens Number by Miss Edminston and Thomas Martin.

MISS EDYTHE VANN SINGS

Other Numbers Also Rendered by Rev. G. C. Warner, Misses Elmer, Fitchett and Crittle.

A wealth of expression and flawless technique characterized Miss Edminston's performance at the Women's Music Club recital, held in the Normal School auditorium on Thursday evening.

A concerto in G minor, the work of Saint-Saens, was chosen, with the orchestral part played on a second piano by Thomas Martin.

The audience was lost in admiration of the technique which permitted such a manifestation of skill. During the first part of the recital, a movement suggesting the ominous calm which precedes a storm, was followed by such a magnificent volume of sound that it was hardly possible to credit the fact that it was produced by but two players.

An equally pleasing feature of the recital was the rendering of three songs by Miss Edythe Vann.

"Ho, Ho, Mr. Piper," the work of Pearl Curran, delighted the audience. Miss Vann's skill and gift of interpretation were manifest throughout the happy melody, suggesting the capture of a little child wandering fairies called forth by the magic strains of Mr. Piper's music.

The triumph of Miss Vann's performance, however, was a French song, "Jeunes Fillettes," by Wekerlin. Miss Vann has a voice with all the clear tones of a bell, and a quality which was especially adaptable to the Wekerlin number.

Seldom has a more beautiful recital solo been heard than Rev. Quinlan Warner's interpretation of a Holland melody. Mr. Warner possesses a gift of expression which makes one entirely lose sight of the perfection of technique which is necessary to such a performance as his.

Saint-Saens' "The Swan," Mr. Warner's second number, is possessed of a beautiful melody, rendered particularly effective by the smooth tones of the "cello."

The depth and quality of Miss Carrie Fitchett's voice were particularly pleasing in her singing of Nevin's melancholy song, "My Desire," and in her second number, Ward-Stephen's "The Nightingale."

Other effective numbers were Miss Alicia Element's song, "From the Land of the Sky-Blue Water," and Miss Nina Crittle's rendering of Jane Hathaway's immortal song, "I'm a-Lon'g for You."

THE LOCAL SALVATION ARMY has completed the purchase of the building on the corner of Richmond and Simcoe streets, formerly used as a Jewish Synagogue. The intention is to use it as a young people's community hall and gymnasium, and also for special Sunday evening services for young people. It is felt by Army officials that the annexation of this building will prove a decided boon to young people's activities in the Army.

THE LONDON Milk Producers Association will hold a meeting in the county buildings next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock to discuss herding, testing and the proposed regulations regarding the city's milk supply.

The milk producers are anxious that the city should have good milk, said one producer on Friday. "We want our members to hear what Dr. Tamlin and Dr. Slack have to say in the matter, and they will be there that night." Delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Milk Producers' Association, which opens in February, will give reports on the gathering Tuesday night.

ADDRESSING THE Lorne Avenue Mothers' Club on Thursday evening on the subject of co-operation between parents and teachers, Principal Opper specially mentioned the importance of co-operation where hygiene is concerned. It was as much, if not more, the parents' responsibility to see that the children were kept in good condition for their school work through proper health habits. Further, it should not be left entirely to the teacher to see that the child's shoes are clean. Mrs. E. Ryder presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Thomas Clift, and a musical program included a violin number by Miss Merlely piano solo by Tena Cline, and recitation by Miss Gladys Marsh.

WILL FIGHT BAN ON EGGS FROM U. S.

Delegation to Interview Minister of Agriculture Regarding Proposed Measure.

REGARDS PLAN INJURIOUS

A. E. Silverwood of London Will Be Present in Ottawa.

A. E. Silverwood, of this city, will be numbered among the members of the Produce Dealers' Association of Canada, who gather in Ottawa Monday to interview the federal minister of agriculture, relative to certain proposed legislation respecting importation of food from across the border.

Important among these, explained Mr. Silverwood, Friday morning, is the proposal to prohibit the importation of eggs from the United States.

"We feel," said Mr. Silverwood, "that the manner in which this particular bill is being framed will be detrimental to trade and the general public, although it would no doubt be favorable to those in the rural districts."

"This question was brought up during the last administration when we went to Ottawa and presented our case with favorable results to the Hon. Mr. Toibnie. Now seemingly with the change of government the question is being raised again and we are sending a large delegation to see the new minister and submit a formal and strenuous protest. We trust that we'll receive the same consideration that we did before."

Mr. Silverwood has been prominently identified with the Canadian Produce Dealers' Association for many years. He leaves for Ottawa Sunday night.

Concluding with the remark that a juvenile court was necessary because it was a recognized fact today that the youthful offenders were the scourge to the community, Mr. Brown, and mockingly told her that there was more money in the house and that she knew it.

Bound Mrs. Brown.

Secured a rope, he bound Mrs. Brown to a chair, and finding the rope not sufficiently long, used the stocking, from which he had taken the money, to bind fast her feet.

Having done this, he turned to go, but before leaving struck Mrs. Brown a blow on the side of the head, rendering her unconscious.

When Mrs. Brown's husband, who is employed at Betty Bros., returned home, he discovered his wife still bound, and in a dazed condition. Mr. Brown, after reviving his wife, notified the detective department of the city police, but so far they have been unable to trace any clue which would lead to the identity of the robber. The bandit, so it would appear, entered and left the house unseen.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were: Honorary President, Rev. Dean L. M. Tucker; president, James Gray; first vice-president, A. F. Nash; second vice-president, Mrs. Ida Harrison; secretary, T. J. McCullough; treasurer, G. J. McGee.

Compliments Secretary.

Rev. D. C. MacGregor, in discussing the secretary's report on unemployment and relief, said that London was in a much better condition in that respect than most places in the Province.

Major T. J. Murphy complimented the secretary on the amount of work accomplished during the year, saying that there was not another staff working so hard and so faithfully as the staff of the social service council of London.

James Gray, president of the council, occupied the chair.

Ireland was being placed on the same constitutional status as the other dominions, and he thought it inadvisable to define the status more precisely than had been done in the treaty. He reminded the house that the imperial conference had decided that the question of the constitutional relations of the empire had best be left alone, so that the empire could have complete freedom of growth.

PROVOKES HEATED DEBATE.

DUBLIN, March 2.—An ineffectual attempt of the opponents of the Anglo-Irish treaty to secure a decision in favour of the treaty, by the forthcoming elections developed much bitterness, and the free use of personalities in the session of the Dail Eireann today, but the discussion showed that the supporters of the Free State, equally with the Republicans, were unanimously in favour of equal suffrage, and Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, said he was willing to incorporate the principle in the Free State constitution.

Mr. Griffith characterized the motion as a trick to impede the elections and affirmed that women would have equal rights with the men when the Free State was established.

The members of the provisional government showed anxiety to get back to the important work of drafting the constitution and their departmental affairs, and on motion of Mr. Griffith the Dail adjourned until April 25.

BINDS WOMAN TO CHAIR, STEALS $70

Masked Bandit Enters Home of Mrs. Brown, 398 Adelaide Street.

BRANDISHED REVOLVER

Husband Returning From Work Finds Wife in Dazed Condition.

Thrown into a chair, bound to it, rendered unconscious by a blow at the fist on the side of the head, and threatened with a gun held in the hand of a masked bandit, was the experience that occurred to Mrs. Andrew Brown, 398 Adelaide street, about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, when her home was ransacked by a robber who finally made off after securing $75.

Mrs. Brown had not been feeling well, therefore, when the door bell rang she did not answer, thinking that if it was friends they would walk in without hesitation. Some one did walk in but his presuming to open the door was not in the guise of friendship.

Stroke Into House.

The robber strode into the house past an inner door and in a jiffy had Mrs. Brown by the throat, giving his victim no opportunity to call for assistance.

The man was apparently of middle age, wearing a black mask across his eyes, and carrying a gun in his hand.

Holding the weapon in front of the woman's face he bade her not to call for help, declaring he would shoot her if she did so.

"I want all the money in the house, and be quick about it," said the man. "I have none," returned Mrs. Brown.

Doubting this, the thief commanded Mrs. Brown to remain perfectly still. He then began a complete search of the house, upsetting the furniture as he did so. In a bedroom, tucked in a stocking which was placed on a pillow, he found $15, a sum which he immediately pocketed.

Satisfied that this was all in the house, the bandit returned to Mrs. Brown, and mockingly told her that there was more money in the house and that she knew it.

Bound Mrs. Brown.

Secured a rope, he bound Mrs. Brown to a chair, and finding the rope not sufficiently long, used the stocking, from which he had taken the money, to bind fast her feet.

Having done this, he turned to go, but before leaving struck Mrs. Brown a blow on the side of the head, rendering her unconscious.

When Mrs. Brown's husband, who is employed at Betty Bros., returned home, he discovered his wife still bound, and in a dazed condition. Mr. Brown, after reviving his wife, notified the detective department of the city police, but so far they have been unable to trace any clue which would lead to the identity of the robber. The bandit, so it would appear, entered and left the house unseen.

ASSURES SITE FOR L. AND P. S. DEPOT

"Seven or eight of them in one day, and in addition to that I understand that a like number are run to the same city by way of Stratford. What do you think about that? Are 10 passenger trains necessary between Toronto and London?"

"I say it's utter nonsense. It is the same way down east, I find five trains a day between St. John and Halifax when there should be two only."

Completing their general inspection of the local situation the chairman and party departed for Ottawa, the latter party returning to Toronto Friday afternoon.

The entire party came to London Friday from Guelph, where they considered the request by the Grand Trunk to erect new freight sheds in that city.

tends that this principle by no means prevents the Indians from enjoying their full civil and political rights.

The deputations reply is to the effect that the Indians have experienced great difficulty in understanding the colonial secretary's expression "characteristically British colony."

Mr. Churchill's rejoinder to this is that no decision has been taken regarding the detailed application of the principle nor regarding the measure of control of immigration to Kenya.

It has been arranged that the Indian will meet Mr. Churchill next week. The Indians maintain that all the points at issue are still open for discussion at this meeting.

CLAIMS FEW TONICS RESTORE HIRSHUTE ADORNMENT TO BALD HEADS

DR. S. DANA HUBBARD, NOTED NEW YORK SPECIALIST, SAYS PROPER CARE IS ONLY HOPE

Premature Loss of Hair Due To After-Effects of Fevers, Influenza, Surgical Operations and Worry, Declares Famous Physician in Outlining Causes of Alopecia.

DR. S. DANA HUBBARD, director of the bureau of public health education of the department of health of New York City, declared last week, in connection with a case that came up in the municipal court in which a corporation manufacturing an alleged "hair restorer" was called upon to prove that its product would actually grow hair, as claimed, that man "keeps pouring money on his bald head and spends time looking and hoping. The individual who buys some of these tonics in artistic colors and in attractive containers in order to relieve himself of embarrassment due to loss of hair defrauds himself and wastes time and money. They are usually blatantly advertised to do the impossible."

The physician went on to say that honest doctors and specialists in skin disease will inform the patient whether the condition is susceptible to cure and will advise him along the lines accepted by men who have made a careful study and have had long experience in the matter.

"There are many kinds of baldness and some are impossible to cure," Dr. Hubbard said, "and in proportion to the length of time and extent of the baldness are the chances of restoring hair."

It appears, therefore, that there are two answers to this ancient—and ever new question: "Is there hope for falling out of the hair in hardfells. Baldness is frequently associated with progressive degeneration of the concentration of the thyroid in the blood. At the same time there tends to be a thinning of the eyebrows, especially of the outer third.

According to Dr. MacKee and Dr. Andrews, there are four reasons why people who suffer from premature loss of hair consult barbers, beauty specialists, hair specialists and hair dressers.

1. Because they do not consider the condition to be of much importance, or they hope to save money. The doctors add that in the end many such persons spend considerable more than they would have spent if they had consulted a physician.

2. Because the family physician takes little interest or does not know what to do.

3. Because the patient does not know that dermatology is a medical specialty embracing diseases of the cutaneous appendages, including those of the skin and hair. Unfortunately the word dermatology has been abused, and many people do not appreciate the difference between the ethical medical specialist and the unethical medical quack who illegitimately appropriates the term dermatology and dermatologist.

4. Because many dermatologists do not like to treat alopecia, which is the scientific designation of loss of hair. Various reasons for this attitude. At times it is purely a matter of indifference on the part of a busy man. It may be simply a lack of interest. Usually it is caused by pride. A dermatologist dislikes, above all things, to be confused with hair specialists and beauty specialists.

They Dislike to Lose It. The authors recognize the fact that, as a general rule, both men and women dislike to lose their hair. In many instances, even a slight loss, will cause great anxiety and worry. Most men, when threatened with baldness, will depend upon the druggist or barber for relief. Women usually follow the advice of hair dressers and beauty specialists.

Proprietary hair tonics and the remedies used by barbers, hair dressers and beauty specialists are often efficacious preparations, the writers grant, but they add, the failure to obtain the desired result is due largely to inability to recognize indications and type characteristics. In other words, a hair tonic or a treatment that is proper for one patient may be efficacious or even injurious for another patient. There cannot be a successful routine treatment for loss of hair. Each case, the writers declare, must be properly diagnosed and treated according to indications.

Loss of hair is divided into a number of clinical entities, the physicians explain. When one uses the noun alopecia without a qualifying adjective it signifies what is known as alopecia prematura—premature loss of hair. This form of alopecia is subdivided into a number of types. Before the affection can be intelligently treated one must become acquainted with the characteristics of each type. The subdivisions are:

1. Alopecia symptomatica, which simply means loss of hair as a symptom of some ailment or disease.

2. Alopecia idiopathica, or hereditary, as the name indicates, is a loss of hair resulting from an inherited tendency, or loss of hair as a primary disease, one arising without apparent extrinsic cause.

3. Alopecia seborrhoeica, or loss of hair arising from some defect in the action of the sebaceous glands of the scalp.

Symptomatic loss of hair is coincident or subsequent to a systematic affection such as typhoid fever, pneumonia, scarlet fever, influenza and similar diseases, the physicians explain. It also accompanies excessive worry, severe mental strain, nervous exhaustion, pregnancy, surgical operations and physical and mental shock.

The principal symptom is falling of the hair, the authors say, which may range from a slight to a severe degree. After affections accompanied by fever, such as influenza and other acute conditions, the hair may begin to fall for two or three months, and then, within a month or two, one-half or two-thirds of the hair may fall out. When caused by gradual loss of nerve tone subsequent to worry or prolonged emotional excitement, the fall of hair is less rapid but more persistent.

Scalp Tenderness. In uncomplicated cases there is no evidence of inflammation. The hair and scalp are unusually dry, but in some instances they may be excessively moist. The patient may complain of pain or tenderness when the scalp is felt or the hair is brushed. At times this symptom is so marked that the patient cannot tolerate even slight pressure on the scalp.

One of the principal diagnostic symptoms, according to the physicians, is that the hair falls out equally over the entire scalp—there are not sites of predilection. Very frequently the hair lacks lustre; it is dry, brittle and breaks off. In fact, the splitting and breaking of the hair may be the chief symptom, especially in loss of hair due to nervous affections. While at times the scalp may be congested, it is usually rather pale.

The prognosis depends upon the causes, the authors assert. Often subsequent to acute systemic conditions the prognosis is excellent, even without treatment. When associated with chronic systemic conditions the prognosis is favorable if the patient receives adequate treatment. If the loss of hair and the systemic condition have existed for several years, a guarded prognosis should be given.

In alopecia idiopathica there is a gradual loss of hair without discernible cause. The physicians say that in this form of the affection the hair not only falls out, but it ceases to grow. In a large percentage of cases there is a family history of baldness. It is possible that a patient without idiopathic baldness is the first member of a family tree. The affection seems to be more common in males than in females. It usually begins in late adolescence or early adult life. Baldness may be complete in from three to five years, or not for ten to twenty. The local symptoms are characteristic, the authors assert. If uncomplicated, there is no evidence of disease of the scalp. There is a gradual thinning of the hair in the region of the temples and on the crown of the head. Later the hair is thinned over the entire top of the scalp. For a while lanugo (downy or fluffy) hair continues to grow and some large hairs persist, but eventually the top of the scalp is denuded. The hair below the sides and crown regions remains unaffected, as a rule.

Can Delay Process. The prognosis, the physicians declare, is almost hopeless. As a rule the most that can be accomplished by treatment is to delay the process and to stimulate the growth of the fine, fluffy lanugo hair. Occasionally, they assert, an unexpected and brilliant result is obtained in early cases.

Alopecia seborrhoeica is caused directly or indirectly by inflammation of the skin, in which the sebaceous or oily glands are situated, and, in the opinion of the authors, this inflammation is undoubtedly a bacterial or parasitic affection. They conclude, therefore, that this form of loss of hair is a contagious bacterial affection in both males and females, the physicians say.

They describe a classical case; It begins in late adolescent life (or at any time of life) as dry dandruff, with perhaps some itching. The hair may or may not fall; usually there is little if any loss of hair during the first stage. After a few months or a few years, usually the latter, the scales become waxy and heavy. They do not fall on the coat collar, but adhere loosely to the scalp or to the hair.

Patients at the beginning of this stage think they are improving because the dandruff is no longer conspicuous. As a rule the hair begins to fall at the end of the first stage or at the beginning of the second stage. At first new hair falls almost as fast as old hair falls, but sooner or later there is a noticeable thinning which is usually, but not always, first manifested over the region of the temples and the crown of the head.

The third stage is described as developing insidiously, after an interval which ranges from several months to many years. In this stage, scaling off of the scalp is overlooked, unless the scalp is carefully examined. The dandruff, macerated in oil, is but a waxy or oily deposit on the scalp. By this time there is a paucity of hair all over the scalp above the sides and back of the head, and there is little tendency for new hair to grow.

During the first stage, according to the authors, the hair is dry, and it may be brittle and lustrous. In the second stage it may be dry, but is more likely to be oily. Toward the end of the second stage, and in the third stage, the hair becomes excessively oily two or three days after washing. In spite of the oil, however, the hair may split and break off, in addition to falling out. There may be more or less redness of the scalp. Also the converse may be true—the scalp may be pale. The three stages may be greatly lengthened or shortened. The disease may never progress beyond the first or second stage, we are assured; it may begin as the second or third stage—which is not reassuring—or antecedent stages may have been transitional and overlooked. These are important facts and must be kept in mind while making a differential diagnosis.

A Cautious Prognosis. The prognosis, we are told, depends upon the stage and rapidity of evolution. In the first stage it is excellent. It is good, but must be guarded, in the second stage. In the third stage the prognosis is unfavorable. If the disease has resulted in atrophy or baldness, the hair will never return.

There are two other varieties of alopecia, alopecia senilis and alopecia areata. Alopecia senilis, as the name implies, is partial or complete baldness of the head. The premature loss of hair is not the result of any disease, although it may be congested. It is more likely to be pale and shiny. The loss of hair is usually equally distributed over the scalp, especially at the sides and back of the head. The affection is slowly progressive and the prognosis is unfavorable.

Alopecia areata is a peculiar affection, the origin of which is disputable, but the consensus of opinion is that it is caused by a nerve lesion of some kind.

The picture presented by the authors is that of a sudden and complete loss of hair, in one day or one night, from an area the size of a dime or a silver dollar. There may be but one patch or there may be several patches. The entire scalp may be denuded (alopecia totalis), or the entire body (alopecia universalis). The disease affects persons of all ages.

In mild cases, with one or a few patches, the prognosis is good, the physicians say. In more extensive cases the prognosis should be guarded. In alopecia totalis and alopecia universalis the prognosis is bad, but there are numerous instances of complete and spontaneous restoration of hair.

Almost any combination of types may occur, so that it must be evident that it is practically impossible to devise a universal hair restorer. It is equally evident that a correct diagnosis must be made and remedies which experience has taught to be of value applied. The authors name a long list of drugs which are of use in the different types named—stimulants, antiseptics and a class of drugs called keratolytics, which are seldom used. Electrotherapy, massage, and hygienic measures are also aids in the treatment.

RAISE WATER RATE TO AVERT DEFICIT

St. Thomas Commissioners Authorize 10 Per Cent Boost To Meet Debt Service Falling Due.

DID NOT PAY LAST YEAR

Increased Liabilities Due To Payment and Interest on Kettle Creek Dam.

ST. THOMAS, March 2.—Water rates in this city are to be increased by 10 per cent.

The increase was ordered by the board of water commissioners in order that a threatening deficit of $15,000 resulting from debentures falling due this year may be met.

The increase will apply to both fat and meter rates. In addition to the increase in rates the discounts allowed for prompt payments will be reduced to an average of 30 per cent. The increase in rates will provide for an additional revenue of $5,840.

It is estimated, while the reduction in discounts will net the department another $5,000. The commission also expects to boost its current revenue for the year by $2,000, and in addition reduce the pumping expenses by $7,000. It is believed that a saving of $1,456 can also be effected by a reduction in the staff at the pumping station.

The increased liabilities this year include $16,843.24 for debenture payments and interest in connection with the new storage dam on Kettle Creek, and $5,196.08 that the department failed to meet last year.

The commissioners also decided to extend the water service to Yarmouth Heights, a suburb lying east of the city. According to City Engineer Miller, the cost will be in the neighborhood of $10,000.

The extension work will depend entirely on the number of contracts signed by the residents of the Heights. A few months ago a petition signed by 100 ratepayers was received in that district by the department, and if every person listed signs a contract the extension will be made immediately.

Extensions to the Heights will be made in conjunction with laying mains to the new industrial site.

POVERTY SAVES MAN FROM FINE

WINDSOR, March 2.—The power to suspend sentence on offenders under the inland revenue act having liquor in their possession was exercised for the first time by Magistrate Gundy in Windsor police court today, when Fred Shapaski of Ford appeared before him.

He was allowed to go on paying costs, because of his destitute circumstances, the federal prosecutor not urging that a fine be imposed.

SIMPLE METHODS OF TESTING YOUR OWN EYES

There has never been so much talk about eyesight in the world's history as there is at the present time. This is because defective eyesight was put forward by unpatriotic persons as a reason for not joining the army, and because so many eyes have been found defective by the army examination.

Normal eyesight is difficult to define, but assuming you have average sight you can, with the naked eye, see the whites of other people's eyes at thirty yards.

At eighty yards you can just see their eyes. When all parts of people's bodies are distinguishable you should see them at one hundred yards away.

When the outlines of their faces are only just visible the distance is two hundred yards. When the face just becomes indistinguishable the person will probably be four hundred yards off.

At six hundred yards away a group of people should be distinguished singly, but farther than this, no detail of the human form, can, as a rule, be noted.

At six hundred yards one with good eyesight should be able to tell a man on horseback from a man on foot.

At a distance of two thousand yards the object seems simply a dot on the landscape and is often not discernible. Of course, atmospheric conditions are a leading factor.

Consult our specialists about your eyes.
