WOMAN BLINDED WHEN ACID FALLS OFF SHELF

Quebec Village of St. Clements Swept By $500,000 Fire

ACID BOTTLE TURNS OVER INTO FACE

Mrs. Sylvanos Ensign Is the Victim of Peculiar Accident.

BOTTLE BREAKS

Engaged in Cleaning Up Shelf in Cupboard When Acid Falls.

Local physicians and eye specialists are fighting to save the sight of Mrs. Sylvanos Ensign, 1034 King street, who is now lying in Victoria Hospital, suffering intensely from muriatic acid burns, incurred this morning at her home when she was reaching to take some articles from a shelf.

Mrs. Ensign is 50 years of age and when first brought to the hospital it was feared that she would lose the sight of both eyes, but hospital authorities announced at 2:30 this afternoon that her condition is slightly improved.

Mrs. Ensign was in the act of removing bottles from a shelf when a bottle containing muriatic acid toppled over and in hitting the shelf broke. The contents were precipitated over Mrs Ensign's face, a considerable quantity splashing into the eyes.

The victim was immediately transferred to the hospital, and for a time her condition was critical.

Painful burns were also suffered about the face.

Dr. Septimus Thompson and Dr. Archie Duncan are in attendance.

Mrs. Ensign's husband Sylvanos Ensign, is an employee of the Samuel Bexton machine shop.

ERNEST C. DRURY,
former premier of Ontario, in a speech on Saturday afternoon vigorously defended the O. T. A., claiming the act had done much to make homes in this province better. He characterized government control as a "delusion and a snare."

YOUNG ENGLISHMAN DROWNS SELF IN RIVER

Guelph, Sept. 22.—Richard Hume, a young Englishman, about 30 years of age, committed suicide yesterday by jumping into the Speed River.

Despondency over his inability to attain employment is believed to be responsible for his rash act. Hume was married, and his family lives in England. The body was recovered from the river about 30 miles from where he jumped in. Attempts at resuscitation proved of no avail.

KING HUSSEIN SEEKS AID AGAINST WAHIBI FORCES

Associated Press Despatch.

Jerusalem, Sept. 22.—The Wahibi forces concluded preparations for a general attack on Mecca, according to information received yesterday. It is stated that the Indian League is supporting the Wahibi.

The Emir Abdullah, leader of trans-Jordania, will confer with Sir Herbert Samuels concerning the sending of the trans-Jordanian army to help King Muessin in his defence against the Wahibi.

UNKNOWN VESSEL GROUNDS NEAR SOO

Canadian Press Despatch.

Sault Ste. Marie, Sept. 22.—Caught in the first equinoxial gale of the season sweeping over this section of the Great Lakes, an unknown steamer ran aground last night, and is hard ashore at a point west of Detour Light. The steamer was reported early this morning by the outgoing steamer Valcartier. Officers of the Valcartier reported at about midnight they heard distress signals, and saw red lights flashing in the neighborhood. Owing to the gale the Valcartier was unable to get close enough to make definite observation or give assistance. Confirmation of the reported vessel in distress was given by other steamers this morning. Assistance will be sent as soon as the weather moderates. The northwest gale prevailed all night, with rain and thunder storms, and runs to the southwest this morning.

RED-HAIRED MEXICAN FAILS TO FOOL CONSUL

N. Y. Police Arrest Youth for Impersonating Obregon's Special Agent.

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, Sept. 22.—So few Latins have auburn hair that Alberto Mascarenas, the Mexican consul-general here, became slightly suspicious of a young man who called at the consulate Friday, displayed reddish locks, talked perfect Spanish and presented credentials stating he was a confidential agent of President Obregon on his way to London. He wanted $2,500.

Consul Mascarenas also told the police he noticed the letters the young man had did not bear certain secret marks that stamp all genuine Mexican official correspondence.

Mascarenas told the young man, who described himself as Arturo E. Zarraga, to come back later and he would have the money. When he came back, detectives and a department of justice agent were there, and the youth was arrested.

The detectives said "Zarraga" told them his real name is Fernando Perez. His story, they said, was that he had met a man in San Antonio, Texas, a week ago, who told him he was Agent Zarraga of the Mexican government.

He is supposed to have told Perez that he was watched, therefore would Perez impersonate him, go to New York with him, present his credentials, draw the funds and give them to Zarraga. Perez, however, could not tell where Zarraga is staying in New York, so he was held on a charge of attempted grand larceny.

A stranger "took" the Mexican consulate at New Orleans in the same manner a while ago, and a description of Perez has been telegraphed to the police there.

CHAMBER SECRETARIES GATHER AT STRATFORD

E. J. Penny, assistant secretary of the London Chamber of Commerce, has returned from Stratford, where he attended a conference of Chamber of Commerce secretaries on Saturday.

Mr. Penny reports that there was a large attendance at the gathering and matters of interest to all secretaries were discussed as some length. The meetings are held every three months, Mr. Penny stated.

One case of diphtheria was reported to the medical authorities this morning. This is only the third case of the present month.

Tornado Sweeping Northwest Takes Toll of Nineteen Lives

Associated Press Despatch.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 22.—Nineteen known dead, at least ten injured and property damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars, was the toll of tornado and windstorms that swept across Minnesota and Wisconsin late yesterday. Unconfirmed reports placed the number of dead at thirty. In Wisconsin, eleven persons were known to have been killed in the vicinity of Thorp. Six persons were killed at Sanborn, six miles north of Thorp, one at Milwaukee and another at Eveleth, Minn. Interrupted wire communication with the afflicted areas made it impossible to obtain details early today.

SUMMER PASSES IN GALE AND AUTUMN STARTS WORK

Sun Stood Directly Over the Equator Yesterday on Way South.

SEE FINE WEATHER

Sunday's Sudden Change in Temperature Not Expected To Last.

The sun merrily crossed the equator yesterday on his journey southwards, but left rain and cold in his wake.

Sunday, Sept. 21, marked the end of summer and with the sun poised above the equator, equal periods of night and day existed. In reality Londoners experienced a longer day than night, twilight and dawn upsetting astronomical theory.

Etymologists state that equinoxial means equal night and day and yesterday being the period of equal day and night, equinoxial gales can now be expected. The gales ran true to form this year and greeted Londoners on scheduled time.

With a heavy wind, much rain and colder weather, the first day of autumn arrived. Even the leaves of trees felt that summer was over and shaken from the branches by last night's strong wind they commenced their autumn tumbling.

Until last night the days shortened at a rapid rate. Now the shortening will become slower until December 21 when day and night difference will become stationary remaining in that condition for a few days.

With the change from summer to fall a change in atmospherical conditions takes place. The air becomes cooler and more rain is expected.

Although yesterday's weather accurately followed out the theory of astronomy, local prognosticators declare that fine, warm and sunny weather is in store. They state that Sunday's decided change in temperature was only coincidental with the sun passing over the equator.

A drop of 20 degrees in temperature was registered in the city during the past 24 hours with a heavy rainfall of several inches.

Marriage Kept Secret By Sons

Loyalty to Their Mother Disclosed After Her Death.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—A story of the loyalty of two brothers to their mother who did not wish them to marry and how they cared for her and kept their marriages secret became known today.

Mrs. Marie Thalhofer, 81 years old was buried Wednesday. Years ago she told her sons she wanted them always, and if they married it would kill her.

Gustaf and Andrew, the sons, never let their mother know when they fell in love. A few years ago the two boys married, but kept the secret from their mother.

The brothers continued to live with their mother and installed their wives together in a home they fitted up.

CLUBHOUSE THIEVING BEING INVESTIGATED

High Constable Wharton has been notified that considerable petty thieving has been going on at the clubhouse of the Springwood Gun Club, at the head of Waterloo street.

Mr. Wharton was told this morning that a number of targets had been removed, while over 250 shells had been stolen in the last few weeks.

The high constable is investigating the matter this afternoon, and believes that small boys of the neighborhood are probably the guilty parties.

WORK IS FOUND.

Report came into the city relief department yesterday of a family of five in London who had scarcely a stitch to their backs or a crust of bread to eat. Mayor Wenige, who looked into the case, found conditions most unfortunate. A job was found for the husband and father of the family this morning. However, these folk have had some really tough luck and his worship asked for contributions of clothing to help them out.

ASSAULT SUSPECT BAILED FOR $1,000

W. Stoddard, 26, Charged With Af...ing Wardsville B... Clerk.

William Stoddard, aged 26, arrested by High Constable Wharton at Rodney at 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning on a charge of assault, occasioning actual bodily harm, to a young bank clerk at Wardsville, named Armstrong, appeared in county court this morning before Magistrate Hawkshaw, and was bailed in the sum of $1,000 to appear before County Magistrate Peter J. Morrison at Glencoe on Oct. 20.

The young man's father, E. A. Stoddard, and Charles Dubes of Rodney went bond for the accused in the sum of $250 each, the prisoner's own bail of $500 being also taken by the court.

The magistrate explained to Stoddard that his trial was set almost a month ahead in order that Armstrong would be fully recovered from a broken leg sustained in the fight in which the prisoner was alleged to have taken part.

It is said that after the fight, which occurred at Wardsville a week ago Saturday night, that the three youths, who battered Armstrong almost beyond recognition, fled for Detroit in a motor car belonging to one of the men.

Stoddard returned to Rodney last Saturday in the car, which is now being held by the police of that village.

STUFFED BIRD COLLECTION PRESENTED TO WESTERN

The department of zoology at the University of Western Ontario has received two more gifts of valuable material for the new museum. Ex-Ald. J. A. Tancock has presented several sets of animal horns and a case of stuffed birds to Western.

Dr. H. H. Sinclair of Walkerton has given a case of Polariscope Crystal for the use of the department. The crystal is of value in physics and chemistry. In the industrial world it is used in the refining of sugar. Polarized light passing through it will tell whether or not the sugar is pure.

WILL NOT COLLECT.

The postoffice C. O. D. service is not to be used for the collection of old accounts, states the bulletin issued by the postal department today, which adds that articles sent by postoffice C. C. D. must be ordered by the addresses and the amount called for must represent the charge for the goods and is not to include any amount owing to the sender on a previous account.

STUDENTS GATHERING IN THRONGS

RECORD EXPECTED

Steady Stream of Students Appears at New Building.

The mauve and white, historic colors associated with the old buildings of Western, was once more in evidence in the form of gay skull caps, flowing ribbons and pennants.

The eager crowd gathered in the offices to register in the various courses, to ask all kinds of questions and to pay fees. Everyone was busy. There was the shuffling of papers, the looking over calendars and a revision of plans.

To many of the students the visit unfolded the beauties of the new Western for the first time, and a number of those who had come to register took the opportunity to look over the classrooms, library and surroundings they will see so much of during the coming sessions.

Then there was the meeting of old friends, young men and young women who had studied together in the old "U." They got together in the corridors, shook hands and got right to work telling each other of the lively experiences they had survived through the holidays.

All morning there was a steady stream of people making their way to the new buildings. They came on foot and in motors, a happy crowd that laughed at the stiff, chill wind that came strong from the west, a hint of what the students may expect to face as they cross the Thames bridge through the snowdrifts in January.

So great was the rush this morning that it was impossible to get figures on the registration. They have not been compiled, as yet, so it is not known how many students will attend the lectures which begin on Wednesday. It is expected that the number will exceed last year's record.

SUNDAY REGISTRATION IS HELD IN TORONTO

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Sept. 22.—Sunday registration of names for voters' lists took place here yesterday for the first time. The Ontario act calls for "two clear days' notices" of intention to appeal against the lists, and as the court of revision begins sittings tomorrow arrangements were made to have riding clerks at their offices today to take the names of any who desire to be included in the list in preparation for the vote on the liquor question on Oct. 23.

World Union of Churches Is Work of Generations, Says Archbishop Matheson

WORK IN ARCTIC

Bishop Stringer Tells of Aid Brought to Northland People.

The excellent progress made by the Anglican Church in Canada during the past ten years, and more particularly during the three years intervening since the last general synod, will be the main theme of the address to be delivered before the synod on Wednesday by the Most Rev. S. P. Matheson, archbishop of Rupert's Land and primate of all Canada. The archbishop will preside throughout the sessions of the forthcoming conference.

Archbishop Matheson intimated to The Advertiser this morning that there were no questions of a striking or spectacular nature to come before the synod this year. Rather, the general work of the church will occupy the attention of the delegates convened for the synod.

The primate expressed himself as greatly pleased with the progress the Anglican Church had made during the past ten years, and especially within the last three years. He placed emphasis on missionary work and the improved business management of church affairs.

The primate has just returned from England, where he attended, as Canadian representative, the committee meetings of "the consultative body of the Lambeth conference." Reports of the progress of church union throughout the world, which were considered at the meeting, indicated that such progress, though slow, was steady. Archbishop Matheson gave it as his opinion that there would not be any big organic union movement consummated in this generation. He stated he believed that it would be unwise to take any short cut toward union at the present time.

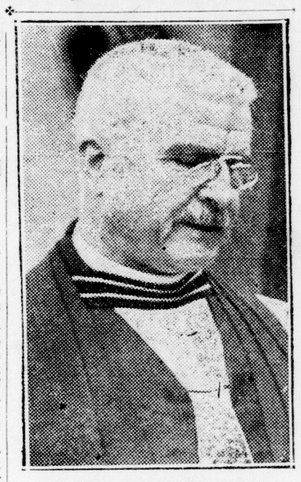

Bishop of Huron.

Right Rev. I. O. Stringer, B.A., D.D., bishop of Yukon, left Dawson City for this city on June 5 last. Since that date, however, he has visited the northern part of his large diocese, crossed the Rockies at their northern extremity and travelled down the Mackenzie River to Edmonton.

Mrs. Stringer, who accompanied her husband, is the first white woman to make the crossing of the Rockies at the point where the bishop's party crossed over, having to traverse 100 miles of the worst kind of a trail possible to do so.

Bishop Stringer said that when he had gone to Herschel Island, Alaska, 32 years ago, as a missionary, the Eskimos were a most degraded people and hard to meet. Now, however, they are entirely changed, and large numbers of them in the Yes: Arctic region have become Christianized. Work among them, Bishop Stringer declared, is most encouraging and most thrilling. Outside of Dawson City, where the Roman Catholics and Presbyterians have missions, mission-

HOUSE OF BISHOPS CONVENES TODAY

Many Arriving To Take Part in Important Work.

When the House of Bishops convened this morning at 10 o'clock at Bishop Cronyn Hall with the Most Rev. S. P. Matheson, archbishop of Rupert's Land and primate of all Canada in the chair, there were only a half dozen of the 25 Canadian bishops present. Others, however, arrived on the 11 a.m. train and the number was swelled to a considerable extent.

Those present for the initial session of the house were: Right Rev. David Williams, bishop of Huron; Most Rev. C. L. Worrell, M.A., D.D., D.C.L., archbishop of Nova Scotia; Right Rev. I. O. Stringer, B.A., D.D., bishop of Yukon and Right Rev. W. H. Thomas, lord bishop of Brandon.

Bishop Thomas, who was consecrated on Sunday, September 14, has been styled "the baby bishop." Matters of church administration largely occupy the attention of the House of Bishops at their session, which is a strictly a private one.

Though the House of Bishops has no direct connection with the general synod, the meeting of the latter body, for economic reasons, if for no other, is made the opportunity of holding a conference of the bishops, all of whom assemble to attend the synod.

Word was received in the city yesterday of the illness at Hamilton of Right Rev. E. F. Robins, bishop of Athabasca, Peace River Crossing, Alberta.

Bishop Robins was thus unable to attend the meeting of the House of Bishops and will very probably be unable to be present at the synod until the beginning of next week.

"Slow Jazz" Hit Tango Exalted

N. Y. Women's City Club Ends Long Survey.

New York, Sept. 22.—"Slow Jazz" is condemned, and the much abused tango exalted in a report made public today by the advisory dance hall committee of the Women's City Club and the City Recreation committee, of which Mrs. Henry Moskowitz is chariman. The report, based upon a long and careful study of all the phases of the dance hall problem, reports that the tempo of "slow jazz" is "in itself the cause of most of the sensual and freakish dancing."

The report urges that "more complicated dances like the tango should be promoted and featured by means of prize contests.

ACACIA LODGE MEMBERS FETED BY DR. MOFFAT

Seventy-five members of Acacia Lodge motored to the summer home of Dr. Lloyd Moffat on the Bayfield road Saturday afternoon, where they spent the afternoon and evening.

Although a sports program had been arranged for the day, festivities had to be halted because of a steady downpour of rain.

In the evening the members of the lodge were dined by Dr. Moffat. Speeches were made by Worshipful Brother Woodward, Whit Lancaster, J. W. Plewes, J. N. Wood, H. Langford and L. A. Boss.

VILLAGERS HOMELESS AFTER FIRE

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Equipment From Montreal Was All That Saved Place From Destruction.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Sept. 23. — One-half million dollars damage was done in the village of St. Clements, about 22 miles from here, when a score of buildings were wiped out by a fire which broke out about 2:30 this morning, and ran uncontrolled until a fire engine and hose-wagon from Montreal reached there at 5 a.m. The fire was then got under control after it had destroyed 20 houses and the village church and the Presbytery, and the general store of the town. More than 100 of the village population are homeless.

The cause of the outbreak of the fire is unknown but it is supposed to have started in a house back of the church. There were no fire-fighting apparatus in the village, and fanned by a strong southeast wind, the flames rushed through the wooden buildings and consumed them with frightful speed. The telephone operator of the village, Miss Longkin, courageously held to her post calling assistance from Montreal and other nearby places until the flames caught the exchange.

CANNIBALS BELIEVED TO HAVE EATEN WOMEN

Explorer Holds Out Little Hope For Party Caught by Savages.

Sydney, Sept. 22.—The government announces the party searching for white women have returned to Elcho island, off the gulf of Carpentaria, without finding a trace of the captives. An armed party is now exploring the district. William Boyd, an explorer, is pessimistic over the rescue of the women.

"The negroes up there are the worst in the world—savage, confirmed cannibals. When second in command of Hodkinson's expedition I saw enough to convince me that if the survivors of the Douglas Hawson got ashore there was only one end for, them."

"They were eaten?" Mr. Boyd was asked.

"Yes," he replied. "Those devils would think white men, and especially white women, a gift from the gods. It is all bunkum this talk about respect for women. The only respect they have for white women is from a gastronomical viewpoint. Even if the women are held by the blacks, they would not live in the country a month. Those negroes live like the lowest animals. The only difference is that they know how to light fires."

TILLSONBURG ALARMED OVER PETTY THIEVING

Special to The Advertiser.

Tillsonburg, Sept. 22.—So serious has petty thieving become in town during the past week that G. H. Hollier, president of the board of trade, has called a special meeting this evening at 7:30 to cope with the situation.

Last night the office of M. Burwell, lumber merchant, was entered and the knob cut off the safe with a hacksaw, but the thieves failed to gain access and took the knob away with them. Next door, Lamden's coal office was entered, the till broken, but nothing was missing today.

Directly across the street a top windowpane in Hollier & Son's coal office was removed, the office ransacked, but nothing was found missing. Chief Carter obtained some excellent fingerprints at the White Star groceteria, which was entered during the week, and every effort is being made to detect the guilty parties.

"SOAKED HIM"

Prince Forced To Part With $37—Always Remembers Friends.

By ISABEL C. ARMSTRONG.

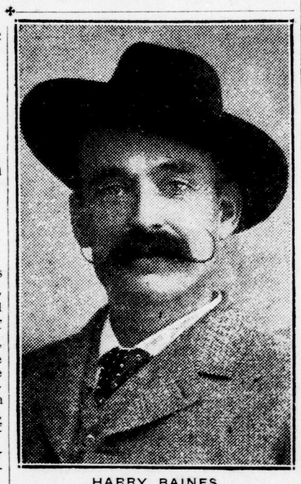

"So the swell New Yorkers is wearing the styles set by the Prince, copying his shoes, his neckties and his pants, "chuckled Harry Baines of the South Forks Trading Company, Alberta, as he laid down his favorite daily, shook out the bowl of his pipe which had gone dead while he leisurly devoured the tid-bit of fashion news concerning the idol of his heart, his neighbor, Edward, Prince of Wales.

"Wonder if they would copy my style if I went down there," he continued with a twinkle in his eye.

Harry Baines, proprietor of the South Forks Trading Company and owner of one of the finest collections of Indian arts and crafts in the west country was taking it easy in his town house in High River after a strenuous day in Calgary. He had called for the bootjack immediately upon entering his castle and followed up the operation of removing his high tops by discarding his coat, collar and vest.

"Wonder what they'd say," he ruminated, "if they knew it took old Harry Baines to show that kid how to put on a Stetson hat. And to sell

SPANISH FORCES DEFEAT MOROCCAN TRIBESMEN

Shakeup In Dublin Political Situation Feared If Boundary Board Is Set Up

BRITISH CABINET GATHERS TODAY

BOUNDARY TANGLE

London, Sept. 22.—The first meeting of the British cabinet since parliament adjourned August 7th is being held today in preparation for the reassembly of the House of Commons September 30, when measures for setting the Irish boundary commission to work will be considered. Premier MacDonald returned to London from Scotland Saturday suffering from a cold and sore throat, but is expected to be able to preside over the cabinet today.

Whether the prospects of setting up the boundary commission will affect political conditions in Dublin is a matter for surmise, it being known that things are not running smoothly for the Free State cabinet, with the likelihood of changes apparent.

It is stated also that anxious efforts are again in progress to bring about a settlement of the boundary question by agreement between the northern and southern Irish politicians.

Other important matters expected to be dealt with at today's meeting are the Anglo-Russian treaty, the trouble in India and Egypt's claim to the Sudan, with its Allied questions Zagloultasha, the Egyptian premier, is expected to arrive tomorrow for his promised conference with Premier McDonald in respect to the Russian treaty.

The ministry will no longer be in any doubt as to the attitude of the two opposing parties and must take a decision with the prospect of a certain defeat if it adheres to the proposal for a Russian loan. Lloyd George and other Liberal leaders long ago made it clear that they would not support the loan proposal, but former Premier Asquith did not express himself until yesterday.

Some are meanwhile wondering if the head of the Liberal party would back his colleagues in their stand. Mr. Asquith, now, however, has issued a letter declaring an unreserved agreement. Lloyd George and others with their opposition to proposal which he says settles nothing and provides no securities for the just treatment of British claim or for any advance of British credit.

TELEPHONE IS ALL RIGHT, BUT WON'T AID VOTERS

The telephone has a good many uses, and is a wonderful convenience, but it won't help citizens get their names on the voters' list. Scarcely an hour passes each day without one or more individuals phoning the court house to state that his or her name is not on the list, and will the election clerk just make a note of the matter, and see that the name goes on the list.

"It can't be done," pointed out the election clerk. "Everyone will have to attend to this matter in person. I wish you would put something in the paper about it, and save my time, as well as that of the people, and the telephone operators."

Subtle Lure of the Arctic Is Too Strong, MacMillan And His Crew Going Back

1925 DASH PLANNED

Special to The Advertiser.

Wiscasset, Maine, Sept. 22.—Is there lurking somewhere beyond the northern lights a cold Arctic Lorelei who lures men to the frozen solitudes and makes them forever discontented with civilization? One cannot help but ask this question after talking to members of the MacMillan North Greenland expedition, which landed here today after fifteen months in the Arctic. Every man of them, with the exception of William Lewis, the cook, who suffered intense pain from a skin infection, is intent on returning to the Arctic. Some of them wish to renounce civilization and live out their days with their Eskimo friends—and they all agree that the Eskimos are their friends, with all the warm implications of the word.

There is a bit of irony in the story of John Jaynes, the engineer. Jaynes for more than twenty years has been a teacher in the Somerville, Mass., high school. He is one of the academic mold—slight in stature, with thinning hair, and the general manner and appearance of the school man. Through all the years of school routine, he has nursed two great ambitions—to engage in Arctic exploration and to learn to play a saxophone. Through his acquaintance with Dr. Donald B. MacMillan and his rare skill with internal combustion engines, he suddenly found fulfillment for both buried desires. When the little Bowdoin bobbed out of Wiscasset harbor last June, Jaynes was aboard—with a shiny new saxophone under his arm.

Saxophone at Last.

The Bowdoin was locked in the ice at Refuge Harbor, North Greenland. Jaynes at last had a saxophone—and solitude. The six months' Arctic night was his. The explorers were imprisoned in the galley and mess room — wedge-shaped — twenty feet long, ten feet wide at the big end and narrowing to a point at the forecastle. They lost the sun October 24 and were driven indoors. The rhythm of time, of eating and sleeping and dressing and undressing was merged in the even flux of the endless night. A hummock of ice and snow crept up around the ship. At first nothing but uncouth grunts and low moans came from the saxophone. The others gradually developed immunities to it —just as dwellers in any wilderness slowly attain resistance to prevailing diseases—and Donald Mix, the radio operator, managed to kill a lot of it with the snarl and whine of his wireless set. Besides, it was a long way back home.

Unfortunately the ship's log does not record the exact date, and there will be an inevitable historical dispute regarding it, but on one memorable night—not a real night, but just a punctuation point in the long darkness—the queer noises shaped themselves into a sequence. The imprisoned men clutched the mess table —dazed and breathless. A shout which almost jarred the glaciers loose from their moorings shook the ship. By a process of elimination, which had weeded out all other possible notes, Jaynes had hit on "Silver Threads Among the Gold." While, true enough, some of the notes had the string-halt, and the general rendition sagged and bulged here and there, it was unmistakably the good old tune.

"My Wild Irish Rose."

That was just the beginning. Soon afterward came "My Wild Irish Rose" "Little Annie Rooney," "Two Little Girls in Blue," and finally when the recreant sun fudged up over the bleary horizon he was greeted with two snorts and a cough from "What'll I Do?" Some of the Eskimo flappers were invited in and subjected to Jaynes' provocative toots. With a cold scientific eye, having in mind a thesis on "Primitive Responses to Aural Stimuli," he watched them for a responsive wiggle, but they just went on gnawing blubber, without the slightest undulation.

Jaynes attained increasing proficiency as the sun slowly spiralled upward, and when the Bowdoin sailed away he awoke the echoes of the far north with most casual and abandoned, and yet mellifluous, toots. And this wasn't all. Jaynes had plenty of raw, rough adventure—shooting, harpooning, dog sledging and mushing through the savage northern wilderness.

Now comes the ironical part of it. These long-suppressed desires, once realized, have claimed Jaynes for their own. He has become a saxophone and blubber and iceberg addict. He wants to go back. The subtleties of academic discussion, the genial delights of the faculty club, the stimulating revelation of the American Journal of Mathematics interest him no more. He wants to go north and build up some more synthetic melodies on his saxophone.

Richard Goddard, athletic young scientist with the Carnegie Institution, is in the same fix. He says, with the utmost conviction, that he wants to go back north and stay there. Goddard is six feet two inches tall, a graduate of Dartmouth, and a first-class navigator. This is his second trip to the Arctic. He has an engaging smile and the charming Yankee twist to his speech which comes from being brought up with sea captains.

Eskimos Superior .

"I'm going back to the Arctic as soon as I can get there," he said. "I have a deep and genuine affection for the Eskimos. I sincerely believe that their civilization is in many ways superior to ours. I found them kind, friendly and hospitable and astonishingly clever in learning to get the most out of their savage environment. I believe there is a great deal we can learn from them. When we landed at Sydney, Nova Scotia, back again in what we are accustomed to call civilization, I was depressed. It did not please me or interest me. It is hard to put into words, but there is something in this primitive culture in which we are deplorably lacking. I am going back."

Ralph R. Robinson, MacMillan's assistant, of Lynn, Mass., is equally intent on going back. While somewhat less articulate than Goddard, he is none the less positive in his declaration — he loves the north and likes and respects the Eskimos.

Donald Mix, the young radio expert, has also heard the whispering of the northern Lorlelei. Thomas McCue, the sailing master, a Brigus Newfoundland man, who knows the northern shores with a degree of accuracy which makes charts almost unnecessary, just naturally figures that he belongs up there.

Another Trip Soon.

As to MacMillan, he is already laying his plans for an expedition next year—possibly to Baffin Land and possibly to the interior of Labrador, among the Nascopi Indians. He first heard the call of the siren of the ice floes many years ago.

"Bill" Lewis, the cook, casts one solitary vote for his old home town. His hands are swollen with a strange Arctic eczema, which has troubled him for months. When a number ten gale was walloping the Bowdoin, along the coast of Newfoundland, he stuck his head up from the galley companionway.

"Listen," he said. "If they ever get me north of Forty-second street again, they'll have to hit me on the head and give me knockout drops and hog-tie me. I'm through."

Prince Halts At Montreal

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Sept. 22.—The Prince of Wales made his first stop in Canada when his special train stopped for 15 minutes at St. Henri station within Montreal city limits this morning en route from his American visit to his ranch at High River, Alberta. The train arrived at 11:55 a.m. and left, after a brief stop, for Ottawa.

STIPLE ENGRAVINGS GIVEN TO WESTERN

Edward Adie, Toronto, Presents Fine Examples of Old Art.

Five splendid examples of stiple engraving have been received at the University of Western Ontario. They are the gift of Edward Adie of Toronto. The donor is a warm friend of Western and has presented the valuable collection to the university through Dean W. Sherwood Fox.

The pictures were executed about the year 1795. They are engravings by Bartolozzi, engraver to his majesty.

The titles are "Lady Vaux," from the original by Hans Holbien, "John Colet, Dean of St. Paul's," "The Lady Rich," "M. Souch," and "Phil. Melanchton."

It has not yet been decided as to where the pictures will be hung, as they have not yet been officially announced to the governors of the university.

ISSUE WRIT.

Buchner & Ramsay have issued a county court writ on behalf of William & Roberts against A. C. Jolly of Westminster Township, for $628.40 balance of a plumbing account for goods sold and delivered.

WARD 1 VOTERS MUST ACT SOON

Appeals For Coming Liquor Plebiscite Must Be Entered by Tomorrow.

METHOD OUTLINED

Tomorrow is the last day for voters of ward one to enter appeals to have their names entered on the voters' lists for the coming liquor plebiscite. City Clerk Baker today urged that all voters of the district west of Wellington street and south of Dundas, whose names were not now entered, make appeals tonight or tomorrow. After the clerk's office closes at 9 o'clock Tuesday night no further appeals from ward one will be entertained.

Mr. Baker suggested that voters call the Liberal or Conservative headquarters or the prohibition offices first to see if their names were entered. They may then, if their names have been omitted, call at the city clerk's office and make written appeals. Now nearly everyone calls at the clerk's office, and nine out of every ten already have their names listed.

Ward one appeals close tomorrow, Ward two on Thursday, Ward three on Saturday and Ward four on Tuesday of next week.

FRANK CHAMBERLAIN VISITS LONDON TODAY

Well-Known Writer Accompanies Father, Who Addresses Rotarians.

Accompanying his father, Albert Chamberlain, who today addressed the Rotary Club, is Frank Chamberlain Jun., secretary of the British Welcome and Welfare League. The younger Chamberlain's editorials and articles are favorably known in religious educational publishing circles, both in Canada and United States. He is in charge of the secretarial work of the league.

The British Welcome and Welfare League has recently been appointed the Ontario representatives of the British Dominion Emigration Society, of which Princess Louise is president, and Robert Culver, secretary. The work of the London society is to financially assist British families to migrate to the Dominions.

"The part played by the British Welcome and Welfare League," explained Mr. Chamberlain Jun., is to interview Britishers already in Canada who desire to bring out their families."

Only men who are in steady work are aided by the society. They must possess a reference from thir employer, and they must have a home ready for their family. There are many newcomers in Canada who are sending regular allowances home to their families, while they are trying to keep a home here.

EX-PREMIER E. C. DRURY STRONGLY BACKS O.T.A.

Declares People Justified in Sustaining Measure When Vote Taken.

That he was speaking in favor of the Ontario temperance act because he was satisfied that it had done great things for Ontario, was Hon. Mr. Drury's announcement. He was sure that the people would vote to have it continued, he said. "Compare present day conditions to those which existed when the barrooms were open in this province, and I am satisfied that the people will vote to support the act," said the ex-premier. The O. T. A., he argued, had been a great benefit to the province, and for this reason he felt it his duty to defend it.

Dr. W. G. Bailey, M.P.P., Winnipeg, also spoke. The new Ontario law would be patterned from that adopted in the west, he thought. In Winnipeg drunkenness has increased 200 per cent. and bootlegging has doubled, Dr. Bailey added. He told the audience that the proposed scheme of handling liquor in Ontario would not be satisfactory.

Rev. Thos. Frears, Dundas, occupied the chair. On the platform with the speakers were Rev. J. T. Speer, Dundas, Methodist clergyman, and Rev. J. M. McDonald, Dundas Presbyterian clergyman.

CHARGES WOMAN STOLE GRIP OFF STREET CAR

B. Lawton, 52 Oxford street, reported to the police today, that while riding in an east bound Oxford street car, a valise which he had left by the side of his seat was stolen.

The grip contained workman's tools. Lawton stated to the police that he missed the bag after he had left his seat in the trolley to speak to friends in another section of the car. He declares that it was stolen by a woman.

CAPT. E. C. G. CHAMBERS GETS DISTRICT POST

Captain E. C. G. Chambers, M.C., who has spent some years with the headquarters staff at Ottawa, will take over the duties of the office of district engineer of military district No. 1, Piccadilly street, on October 1.

Major P. de L. D. Passy, who has occupied the post, will go to Ottawa at the end of the month to take the office of assistant director of military surveys.

Municipal Burial Hailed Cheaper

Paris, Sept. 22.—The municipality of Cuisery, near Chaisons-Sur-Seine, has gone into the undertaking business and is conducting an advertising campaign in true "go-getter" style.

All over the town gaily colored posters show how much cheaper is the cost of municipal burial than the cost of living. "First class interment, three dollars."

Patrons sipping their drinks in the cafe and looking pensively out into the street are reminded of the transient nature of worldly pleasures and urged to take thought of their eventual and inevitable journey to a better land and make arrangements to travel by the municipal burial route.

WORLD CHURCH UNION WORK OF GENERATION

Archbishop of Nova Scotia.

Such was the declaration of Most Rev. C. L. Worrell, M.A., D.D., D.C.L, archbishop of Nova Scotia, who stated that the chief problem of the church there was the re-establishment of King's College, which has been recently moved from Windsor, its home for the past 150 years, to Halifax, where has been formed an association with Dalhousie University. It would require $500,000 within the next two years to build the necessary buildings, remarked the archbishop, at the same time pointing out that King's College was the oldest colonial university in the world.

While industrial conditions in Nova Scotia are not of the best, with the result that money is not plentiful for church requirements. Archbishop Worrell said that the Anglican Church had been able to carry on its work successfully.

Touching on the temperance question, the archbishop gave the Liberal government and Attorney-General O'Hearn due credit for doing the best they could to enforce the act, which was much more stringent than the Ontario temperance act. The tremendous coast line of Nova Scotia, with its innumerable coves, was most difficult to control, in fact, it would take three or four regiments to do so, in the opinion of the archbishop.

In conclusion, Archbishop Worrell said that the condition of the masses of the people was much better since the abolition of the bar, in which regard temperance legislation had accomplished a lot of good for the Province of Nova Scotia. Rev. H. R. Grant, secretary of the Nova Scotia Temperance Alliance, the archbishop characterized as one of the strongest advocates for prohibition in the whole of the Dominion.

Bishof of Gloucester.

Church union in England, and for that matter in the world at large, will come in future years only as the result of progress, dating from the present time, along the broadest possible lines.

Such is the opinion of Right Rev. A. D. Headlam, D.D., bishop of Gloucester, England, who is here to preach the synod sermon next Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Bishop Headlam, who intimated that he will make reference to the church union question in his synod address, gave it as his own personal opinion that the biggest mistake which could be made with regard to church union was to go too far in one direction.

"If I was to speak of the situation in England I would say that we want to get into friendly relations with the churches all around," he said. "There are some people who are very keen to unite with the Church of Rome, others to unite with the Eastern Church and still others to unite with the English Non-Conformist Churches."

To accomplish union, however, Bishop Headlam expressed the belief that it was necessary to work on the broadest lines and to work for the future, since union cannot be brought about in the present generation. Besides a more balanced Christianity will evolve itself out of a slow-moving policy which moves along only the broadest lines.

Commenting upon the conference of a number of English clergy with Cardinal Mercier of France, Bishop Headlam reiterated the remark of a French churchman with regard to the conference: "Reunion is not in sight, but knowledge and intelligence is progressing." In other words, said Bishop Headlam, each side is learning about the other, and, too, they are putting more stress upon the fact that they are all Christian than upon differences in denominational beliefs.

CITY SCHOOL CADETS CAMP OVER WEEK-END

Cadets from Simcoe Street and Boyle Memorial schools, in charge of Lieut. A. J. Secord and assisted by Lieut. O. H. Banks, went into camp on Carling Heights over the week-end.

Sixty boys made up the contingent, and though the weather proved unfavorable for an outdoor program, they had a good time. Saturday was spent in games and physical training. They broke camp at noon on Sunday.

Owing to the rain the trek into the country was called off.

Y. M. C. A. MEMBERS WILL DRAFT SEASON PROGRAM

On Friday evening the young men of the Y. M. C. A., who are between the ages of 18 and 25 will meet at the "Y" for the purpose of planning a program for the coming months.

W. F. Sherwin, men's secretary, said today that the program will be drafted along social, religious and educational lines.

At the Friday night meeting refreshments in the form of marshmallows, pumpkin pie and coffee will be served. It is expected that fifteen members will be present.

HE SOLD PRINCE A STETSON, WESTERNER'S PROUDEST BOAST

him one, too. What, you never heard about that?" turning almost belligerently to the tenderfoot from the east. "What kid did you say? Who do you think I'm talking about any way? The Prince. Who else is there?"

Early next morning Harry Baines would be on his way through the Alberta ranch country with piles of colorful Indian blankets and other fascinating supplies to swell the stock of the South Forks Trading Company, which looks out to the foothills and the snow capped Rockies Perhaps that very day the Prince would go dashing by in his car and wave his hand in comradely greeting. Perhaps he would even stop and pay a visit!

"And gol darn that kid," said Harry Baines affectionately, "I'll bet he'll be wearing the old Stetson hat, the one I sold him last year. Keeps his word, he does. Told me he wouldn't be getting a new one. Sure enough, he comes back this year with his old one. Yes, siree."

Harry paused long enough to push the tobacco well down in the bowl of his pipe, light up, take long satisfying pulls and watch the curiosity of his guest.

Knew the Story.

Over in a rocking chair by the window Mrs. Baines watched the stage-setting process with amused expectancy. She knew the story off by heart. And hadn't she witnessed the sale of the hat to the heir to the empire's throne? Still, infinite variety was assured in the telling by her resourceful lord and master.

"Ever been on the E. P. ranch?" asked Harry Baines, not as a bona fide question but as a starting point "Well," he proceeded, "you go past the South Forks Trading Company to get there. Every year the Prince comes back he is looking for it and, when he goes by, he waves his hand and calls out, 'Hello, Harry,' and I calls back—what do you think I calls him? Prince, Baron Renfrew, His Royal Highness? What is he? I call him human. And cute! Say, no name for it. Remembers everything. Remembered me ever since the first time he saw me. Never forgets. Calls me Harry.

"You were asking about the Stetson hat, the one he is wearing round this year. Yes sir, same hat he got his picture taken in last year, sitting up on the fence, kind of shy-like, watching the stampede along with Fleming, Lane and some more of his neighbors, never acting like he knew the show was all put on for him.

"Right in style he was in the Stetson hat, the one he is wearing round of it, too. He just had to have one. That's what I told him the day I sold the hat to Trotter who was in South Africa with me, leastways me were out there same time in the war. And likewise the day I sold the Stetson hats to Sir Godfrey Thomas and the other chap, just forget his name now. A cow-man may be all in rags for the rest of him, says I, but, as long as he has got a real swell Stetson hat he don't care about anything else. He'd sell his only shirt to put the extra on a Stetson hat!

Spies the Hats.

"The day the prince and Trotter and Godfrey Thomas and the other chap came in to see the Indian collection instead of going by, I had three Stetson hats, all fawn color, and numbered seven and one-eighth. The prince is going about restless, taking in everything, when he spies the hats. He picks one up, throws off his cap, goes over to the looking-glass in the corner, and jams the hat down on his head till it sits on his neck. Say, you ought to heard him laugh, and Trotter and Thomas and the other chap. Nothing will do but they got to try the hats on themselves. They all take the same size, seven and one-eighth, so mine just fit 'em. Any way you tried, you could see those hats was going to be too big for the prince. Six and seven-eighths is his size.

"'Haven't you any hat in the place that will fit me?' says he, when Trotter, Thomas and the other chap decide they will take the three, and pay $30 apiece for 'em. 'I simply must have a Stetson hat,' says the prince. 'I'll have to send away and get one.'

"'No you don't,' says I. 'I'm going to sell you that hat, mind. You stop round in a few days and I'll have that Stetson hat for you.'

"As soon as they were gone I hit the trail for High River. I calls up Calgary long distance, and says, 'Round up all the Stetson hats in Calgary right away quick and send 'em p.d.q. to me to the South Forks Trading Company.'

"'Wha-wha-what's happening out there?' stutters the agent. "Are you having a world's fair or have you gone crazy or something?'

"'Something, you've said it.' I bawls back through the phone, 'but never mind about that, send along the hats.'

"'How many do you want,' says he, discovering I mean business. 'Shall I send you fifty?'

Send 'Em All.

"'Send me fifty or send me fifty thousand,' says I, 'but, anyway, send me all the Stetson hats you can round up in Calgary. Send a carload or send a trainload. I'll pay the damages.'

"Next day I gets a wire the hats are on the way, and just as I was figuring up how I could get the shelter built for 'em in case it rained, along comes Guilick's brother-in-law in his buckboard with two cardboard boxes like wimmen get their millinery in.

"'Here's a couple of hats sent down to you from Calgary by freight,' says he. 'They told me you gotta get 'em quick, and here they are.'

"And that was every last Stetson hat they could round up in Calgary, just the two of 'em, though they hunted through every store, retail and wholesale, in the place.

"When I opened the boxes, I see at a glance there is nothing to do but wire to Winnipeg or Chicago, and have loads of Stetson hats sent mebby by aeroplane, if I am going to sell one to the prince. I had set out to make that sale if it broke me. One of the hats was fawn, size seven and one-eighth like I sold to Trotter, Godfrey Thomas and the other chap. The other hat was right size, six and seven-eighths, but the color was all wrong, purple. It might be royal, but I couldn't see the prince wearing that.

"I was turning the fawn hat round in my hand, wishing I had Alf's button, or that Salada lamp, when suddenly I got an idea. I spies over in the box it came in a nice piece of that thin white paper. I don't know the name of it.

"You know the leather band round the inside of a man's hat? Well, I turns it down gentle like, then folds up the soft paper in a roll and puts it round all the way between the leather band and the crown. When I gets it packed all neat, I turns the leather band again in its place and I couldn't tell myself to look at it that it had ever been moved. And there was the hat, marked seven and one-eighth, but just the prince's size. Say, if you think that was a easy job, just try it yourself.

Discards Purple Hat.

"Well, I gives the hat a gentle roll at the sides, and sets it out where the prince can see it first thing when he comes in. The purple hat I throws careless like on a nail across the room.

"I just got things fixed on time. Very next day I see the automobile swinging along the trail from the E. P. ranch, and, instead of going by, it draws up. The prince waves his arm and yells, 'Hello, Harry, got that hat for me?'

"'Come right in and see for yourself,' says I.

"The minute he gets in the door he spies the fawn hat, and he goes right past it and grabs the purple one from the nail at the end of the room. It tickled him so thinking what he would look like in it and the dash he would cut, you scarce could get him away from it. At last I got him round to the fawn hat and he makes with it for the looking-glass in the corner and starts jamming it down on his head. The prince has got a queer way of putting on a hat. He takes hold at the sides and yanks it down right over his ears. It might do for some hats, but that is no way to treat a swell Stetson hat. It was too much for me, and before I thought I yelled, 'Gol darn it, that's no way to put on a hat.'

"The prince jumped, but he's game all right, and quick, that kid. He comes right back, 'Well, if you know a better way, show me.'

"I steps right up, tugs the hat off his head then eases it down gentle and gives a roll to the sides. 'Now look at yourself,' says I. He turns round to the glass and say you should have seen that kid grin and heard the others laugh. 'Mind you, every time you put it on,' says I, 'give it a gentle roll up same with both hands at each side.'

Harry Baines' hands moved up and down with the regularity of two shafts at the sides of his head as he demonstrated the properly respectful gesture for achieving a real cowman's Stetson roll.

"See the pictures of the prince in that Stetson hat I sold him?" he continued after taking time once more to fill his pipe, light it and create an atmosphere of suspense for the climax of the story.

"Well, if you haven't, watch round for a few days and you will see him wearing it, but," threateningly, "don't let me hear of any writers camping on his trail making life miserable for him. It's a crime, I call it, bothering him when he only asks peace and quietness.

Did He Buy Hat?

"Did he buy the hat? How do you suppose he comes to be wearing it if he didn't buy it? Now, who is telling this story? Where was I at when you interruted me? Oh, yes, when he got done seeing how he looked in the glass and learning how to put the hat on proper, he gives his head a shake to see how it will stay on.

"'Fit all right,' says I.

"'Perfect,' says he.

"'Just your size?' says I.

"'Right-o,' says he, 'how much are you going to charge me for it?'

"'Remember those hats I sold your sweet or whatever you call 'em, the other day, in fact the gentlemen have 'em on today?' says I.

"'Yes,' says the prince, 'what of it?'

"'Well,' says I, 'I charged 'em thirty dollars each for their hats, but I'm going to charge you thirty-seven dollars.'

"'Thirty-seven dollars The ——— you say!' says he, and if it wasn't you can't take. I am the man who His Royal Highness, or whatever you sold the prince his Stetson hat."

HAYDEN ENTHUSED OVER CITY HALL

ADVOCATES VOTE

Declaring himself for a new city hall for London, Ald. Ed. Hayden is advocating a vote on a $300,000 structure. He is enthused over the new city hall which will be opened in Kitchener next week, and which was visited by members of the London Chambers of Commerce on Friday. It was put up for $318,000.

"It is a beautiful building; has everything in it," stated Ald. Hayden today. "They have all their offices there, and police station and police court, too. It's a roomy building, with an appearance that would be a credit to any city. I wish the council had been along to see it. It would have put London's city hall to shame."

Last year ratepayers voted against a new city hall, which was estimated to cost over $600,000. Ald. Hayden, however, believes that a city hall could be constructed here for little more than Kitchener's fine new edifice. The municipal building there was built on city property, just back of the old hall. Equipment is being moved in now, and the building will be formally opened at the next council meeting.

The Kitchener hall was the object of plaudits from many Londoners who went on the Chamber of Commerce Western Ontario tour Thursday and Friday.

CAPTAINS CHOSEN.

At a meeting of the divisional chairmen of the Y. M. C. A. Membership Campaign Committee held on Friday, 20 captains were chosen to lead the teams that will go out in search of new material for the "Y."

The chairmen are W. D. Stevenson, R. H. Dowler, and General Chairmen T. W. McFarlane selected the men who will head the teams.

Wellington St. Railway Tracks Will Be Shifted Tonight To Allow Paving Work

COMPANY TO MOVE TRACKS TONIGHT

Wellington Street Adjustments Necessary For Paving Requirements.

MAINTAIN SCHEDULE

Late tonight the London Street Railway will start its work of adjusting the tracks on Wellington street in order to have the line in shape for the laying of pavement there. The paving work had not proceeded far enough on Saturday for the street railway to get started at the moving of its tracks, but tonight it is expected that everything will be in readiness for the shifting of the rails.

The city works department has already been able to complete quite a stretch of the pavement base on one side of the "island." The street railway's work will be to shift the rails about a foot and a half to one side of where they are now. It is expected that Oxford, Ottawa and Richmond cars will be able to run on schedule first thing tomorrow morning.

WORKERS ORGANIZING FOR PLEBISCITE FIGHT

Gatherings Held in Various Places and Officers Elected.

Special to The Advertiser.

Watford, Sept. 21—"I thank God for the splendid work The London Advertiser is doing in this matter," declared the Rev. W. E. Millson, of London, Field Secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of Methodist Church and ex-President of the London Methodist Conference, in a rousing address on the prohibition issue to the Strathroy Methodist District meeting held in the Watford Methodist Church on Thursday evening. Mr. Millson quoted recent editorials in The London Advertiser, and the large audience very vigorously applauded.

Rev. S. J. Thompson, pastor of the Church and Chairman of the Strathroy District, presided over, and Rev. H. V. Workman, of the Presbyterian Church, assisted in the devotions.

The large congregation rose spontaneously to its feet to pledge its utmost support to the continuance of the O. T. A.

LOBO

Special to The Advertiser.

Lobo, Sept. 21.—At the meeting of Temperance Workers at Coldstream the whole township was organized for the coming O. T. A. Campaign. Committees for the work are ward 1, Mr. and Mrs., J. W. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ferguson; ward 2, Thos. G. Turnbull, John Tunks, Mrs. Patrick and Mrs. Jas. Brown; ward 3, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. McKay, A. D. Fletcher and Mrs. J. N. Aitkins; ward 4, Mrs. N. BIRRELL REFUSES COMMENT ON BATHING GIRL STICKERS London's Police Chief Will Not Call Auto Posters a Menace to Public Safety.

PRIVATE VIEWS

Chief Copelan, of Cincinnati, Orders Posters Off, Under Ohio Ordinance.

Chief Birrell of the London police department, unlike Chief Copelan of Cincinnati, does not care to commit himself for publication regarding bathing girl posters which adorn many automobile windshields and which the Cincinnati chief claims are a menace to public safety. Chief Birrell had a whole lot to say about the "stickers," but declared it was not for publication.

Police Chief Copelan has issued an order calling for the arrest of all drivers who have their windshield pasted up with bathing girls or any other kind of poster. There is an ordinance in the Ohio city which requires the windshield to be free from any object that obstructs the view of the driver.

"It's a rather low order of intelligence that the driver shows through plastering up his car," says Chief Copelan. "If these stickers obstruct the view when pasted on the windshield, they certainly do the same on the rear windows. Most cars are inclosed models and an unobstructed rear view is just as essential as a clear vision in the front.

"In a coupe or sedan the driver must turn his head to look out the rear window when desiring to make a turn or back up if the rear-vision mirror is not properly regulated, and few of them are, nor do they give the necessary clear vision when properly regulated.

Dealers' Practice.

"Not only should all stickers of such type as the bathing girls be banned, but every sort of advertisement carried on a passenger car. Some dealers make a practice of dolling up demonstrators with signs advertising a used car sale or the arrival of a new model. Other merchants tack on banners advertising various kinds of events. They aim to attract the pedestrian and the driver, and they do so at the experse of safety.

"A pedestrian turns his head in crossing the street to read a banner displayed on a motor car. If a driver should happe nto do the same thing, one can easily imagine the result.

"There is too much carelessness now without these things. Few persons keep their mind strictly on what they are doing when driving a motor car, and particularly in Cincinnati are the pedestrians careless in crossing the street. Anything that detracts the attention of the pedestrian or the driver from the thing they are doing is a dangerous practice and should be banned."

HEAR COMPLAINTS.

Complaints have been made to the city clerk that owners of dogs are losing tags and find difficulty in having them replaced. In many cases it is feared that tags are stolen and used by owners of other dogs who wish to dodge the civic tax. It is pointed out that nothing can be done to clear up such cases unless there is direct evidence of theft.

Liner Crashes Into Wharf

Associated Press Despatch.

London, England, Sept. 22.—A despatch to Lloyd's from Greenock, Scotland, says the steamer Tuscania, bound from New York, on passing there struck the Prince's pier, damaging her stern and losing an anchor and 66 fathoms of cable. The damage to the vessel was not serious, and she proceeded for Glasgow.

SIX MEET DEATH IN CAR ACCIDENT

Associated Press Despatch.

Boston, Sept. 22.—Six persons are known to have met death in an automobile accident last night, in which a large touring car broke through railings of Congress street bridge and plunged twenty feet into Fort Point Channel, the car being submerged in fifteen feet of water.

The bodies of a woman, a 2-year-old infant, a 7-year-old child, and a man were found when the car was brought to the surface by navy divers and a navy wrecking lighter. The driver's seat was empty, and the door beside it was open. Search was continued for one or more bodies believed to be still in the channel. The body of a 5-year-old girl had been recovered earlier.

Paris Cowboy Shoots At Cop

Westerner Used Blanks To Make Question Clearer.

Paris, Sept. 22.—Policeman "X" cannot for the life of him explain by what lucky chance he didn't draw his revolver and shoot Cowboy John Swain dead yesterday, when the latter discharged a gun at him point blank.

Finding himself still alive, he contented himself with collaring his aggressor and taking him to the station. There the cop explained to the magistrate that he was on duty on one of the busiest sections of the boulevards when the cowboy dressed as though he just stepped from the prairies, came up and offered him a roll of bills with one hand while with the other he fumbled at the cop's revolver case, muttering things incomprehensible.

The policeman shrugged his shoulders, whereupon the cowboy drew his gun and discharged it at him amid the shrieks of the spectators.

An interpreter straightened things out. Swain wanted the cop to tell him where to buy blank cartridges and finding it impossible to make him understand by signs, thought he would have more success by firing a couple of blank shots.

BAD CHECK SUSPECT APPREHENDED TODAY

OFFICERS ELECTED BY SCHOOL CLUBS

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Sept. 21.—The results of the Collegiate elections for the ensuing school year are: Girls' club—President, Lila Cameron; vice-president, Inata Babcock; secretary, Catharine Raven; treasurer, Vera Wilcox. Boys' club—President, Ed. Horton; vice-president, Dunc Davey; secretary, Ray Vaughan; treasurer, Will Kennedy. Literary society—President, Eileen Dowler; vice-president, Lloys Richards; secretary, Betty Etheridge; treasurer, Edwin Dawdy. Athletic club—President, R. Vaughan; vice-president, R. Hind; treasurer, D. Knight; secretary, A. Mitchener.

A new departure in school activities has been arranged for this year, consisting of a central committee composed of the staff representatives and the presidents of each society, which will examine all programs, schedules and proposed undertakings before they are staged.

The semi-annual paper collection by the students and teachers will be made in the near future. The Collegiate has pledged itself to a second $2,000 for the memorial hospital fund, and although a considerable part of the amount has been collected, another paper collection is needed to complete the amount.

Whooping Cough.

Medical Health Officer Dr. McKillop states that the only case of infantile paralysis found in this city has recovered, but whooping cough is becoming more prevalent, yet not alarming.

The South Yarmouth Women's Institute has completed its donation of $1,000 to the new memorial hospital, according to an announcement made at the regular meeting.

Officers elected by the Ladies' Aid of the Holy Angels' Church are: President, Mrs. C. W. Regan; vice-president, Mrs. John Farrell; treasurer, Miss Mary Casey; secretary, Mrs. John Butler; assistant secretary, Mrs. Lynch. Plans were laid for the annual bazaar to be held in November.

Rehearsals for the amateur production, "The Cameo Girl," to be presented early in October under the auspices of the Women's Hospital Aid, for the new memorial hospital, have started under the direction of Earl C. Taney. Among those taking part are: Miss Leota Taylor, Miss Gertrude King, Mrs. Louis Coughlin, Frank Holcombe, Walter Coughlin, Walter Davies and Graham Gould.

Drys Organize.

The prohibitionists in this district are organizing their forces for the coming referendum vote. Following an informal gathering of ministers and laymen last week, it was decided to hold a public meeting, of all interested in prohibition and the retention of the O. T. A., in the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock Monday evening to complete organization.

A meeting of the district prohibitionists has been called at Yarmouth Centre on Monday when representatives from other societies will discuss plans.

Fines of $20.00 and costs were imposed on two motorists charged with reckless driving in the city last week. The first offender was the Detroit motorist who crashed through C. A. Raven's shoe store window, breaking both glasses, the second offender was Archie Hayden, a local youth who was paying too much attention to a young lady in the car with him.

WILL START AGAIN.

London's asphaltic paving plant, which has not been used for some weeks, will commence a run of work about October 1. There is some paving base which has been completed in South London and another stretch on Wellington street south which will be ready at that time. The asphalt can be laid in plenty of time before the weather is too cold.

WELCOME LEAGUE VIVIDLY OUTLINED

Albert Chamberlain, Toronto Branch, Tells Rotarians of Work.

NEED IS GREAT

London Rotarians listened with interest to Albert Chamberlain of the Brtish Welcome League, Toronto, at their weekly luncheon today. Using lantern slides, Mr. Chamberlain gave a vivid description of the work of the organization, and its determination to give the British immigrant the impression that he was welcome in this land.

"A contented immigrant in Canada," stated Mr. Chamberlain, "is an asset to the country, but a discontented one is a nuisance."

For several years in the beginning of the British Welcome and Welfare League's existence a spacious building on Front street served as a hostel, where men, women and children gratefully found a refreshing night's sleep. A hospitable dining-room provided meals, and large dormitories, crowded with comfortable beds, welcomed the strangers travelling so far from the old country. It was a momentous night—that night of the hostel's opening—when more than 300 immigrants tested the league's hospitality, and among these 119 babies.

Dad's Paternal Heart.

The paternal heart of "Dad" Chamberlain proved elastic throughout the years that the league's hostels gave lodging to the immigrant, and the bigger the family the heartier the welcome given. Particularly happy was "Dad" Chamberlain in giving the friendly handshake to the family which consisted of father, mother and ten children. With pride he recounts how this British family settled in the east end of Toronto and today displays a fine type of citizenship.

Hundreds of tired, homesick mothers were heartened as the nurse in charge of the league's hostel gave them welcome and carried the babies off to bathe.

Christmas Comes.

Christmas brought the newcomers again to the hostel to gather around the festal turkey board, and the first Christmas dinner was attended by 1,200 British newcomers. A band, which contributed delightful music to the work carried on by the league was organized among the newcomers.

During the league's existence a free meal was proided for 5,300 unemployed men and a Christmas dinner given to 3,100 men. Within five years of the league's work 27,540 immigrants were received at the hostel; 10,730 placed in positions; 23,400 free beds proided.

Mr. Chamberlain urged that after seeing the pile of immigrants' trunks on the station platform in London, there was reason for similar work in this city.

FEMININE PROBLEM FACES GENERAL SYNOD

Woman Delegate Named to Sessions Here—Dean Tucker To Raise Question.

When the general synod opens here on Wednesday for the first time in the history of the Anglican Church in Canada there will be a woman lay delegate. She is Miss Inez Smith of Hazelton, B. C., who was appointed as a representative of the Diocese of Caledonia, British Columbia.

The fact that a woman delegate has been named, whose legal status in the house is in question until decided by those who have to interpret the present constitution, gives immediate point to a motion being presented by the synod of Rev. Dean Tucker of this city relating to "the posiiton of women in the councils and ministrations of the church."

Basing his resolution upon the decision of the last Lambeth conference, Dean Tucker will ask the lower house to do three things: "to authorize the mission of women to the general synod on equal terms with men"; to propose to the proper authorities that they restore, formally and canonically the order of deaconesses" in a manner more authoritative than at present, and to approve the extension of "the scope of ministrations of women" along the lines of the Lambeth resolution.

The synod of Toronto also present a memorial seeking suitable pensions for all women workers set apart by any bishop for the work of a deaconess on their becoming disabled by age or infirmity.

NEAR AND VEITCH PLAN TO ATTEND CONVENTION

City Engineer W. P. Near and Assistant Engineer Veitch will attend the annual convention of the American Society of Municipal Improvements, which meets in Boston from Sept. 29 to Oct. 3. Mr. Near has been a member of the society for ten years.

As London's sewage disposal plant has been giving much trouble for the last while back, Mr. Near and Mr. Veitch will visit plants at Rochester, Syracuse and Worchester, and also a number of plants in the vicinity of Boston. The local engineers will take this time from their vacations and motor to the convention city.

SALE OF WASTE PAPER.

City Engineer W. P. Near states that for some time waste paper from the city hall has been received by the I. O. D. E.. The waste paper is used for charitable purposes, and it is understood that lately Byron Sanitorium has benefitted through its sale. Authority was given the city hall janitor several years ago to hand the waste paper over to charitable organizations.

Partners' Inability To Tell Police of Missing Broker Proves N. Y. Is Impersonal

G. R. Christian Real "Mystery Man," Though Member of Firm For 28 Years.

ADDRESS HAZY

Peer Among Brokerage Houses Goes to the Wall After Enviable Career.

By ROBERT T. SMALL.
Copyright, 1924.

New York, Sept. 22.—It has been the boast of the average New Yorker that he did not know and did not care how his neighbor lived. It has been said that you might live in the next flat to a man here in the metropolis for a decade and never know whether he was married or single. New York is proud that it is not "nosey." It is the big impersonal town, a sort of live and let live affair.

No longer need there be any proof of these sophisticated assertions. Impersonality has been carried to the last degree. A big brokerage house has gone to the wall. It has traded on the New York Stock Exchange for 53 years. It has been a pillar of business substantiality. It has been pointed to in the "street" as the great example of business ethics. To be permitted to trade with such a house has been considered a privilege almost equal to that of entering the most exclusive club in the city.

But now the house has failed—failed for a million or more—and one of its six respected members is missing. A general alarm has been sent out for his arrest. He was a member of the firm for 28 years, having worked up from messenger.

Know Nothing.

Now that he has gone his fellow-members of the firm have come to the sudden realization that they didn't know anything about the man. They did not know whether he was married, whether he had a family, or where he lived. It had never occurred to any of them to call upon him in the evening. If he had a club no one knew anything about it. Of course, there were the downtown lunching clubs, but they are little more than restricted restaurants.

Someone in the firm "thought" the missing partner lived in Brooklyn, but when the police were called in at last to investigate, the address one member of the firm thought he remembered turned out to be false.

Thus a man who had been the daily associate of his partners for nearly three decades turns out to be a "man of mystery." Nowhere else in the world could that have happened.

"Isn't that just like New York?" you heard everyone say in the street. And comment was made with still that boastful note in it.

Loss Nearly Million.

The surviving members of the firm of Day & Heaton still are too stunned to give a coherent account of their relationship with the missing partner or to even guess at the amount of his supposed defalcation. Certainly it is over half a million dollars—maybe it will reach the million mark.

George R. Christian, who took advantage of vacation time to flee to parts unknown, is bald, 45, rotund of figure and about 5 feet 9 inches in height. The police in their two days on the scent, have learned more about the broker than any of his business associates ever thought to inquire. They have traced him to a six-room flat in Bedford avenue, Brooklyn, but found that he vacated the place some time in August. They also have found that Christian had a wife and a mother-in-law. They lived in a most modest fashion. In leaving the flat the Christians took everything with them. There were two van loads of furniture, the neighbors remember seeing go. The landlord found a note on the mantel telling him regretfully that he had been forced to leave before the expiration of his lease because of circumstances over which he had no control."

"Bucked" the Market.

Naturally the assumption is that the missing partner, seeing others get rich by "bucking" the market, and taking no heed of those who go "broke," could not resist the lure of the ticker with its fortune always just around the corner. Evidently he speculated mildly at first, and then plunged more and more as the market constantly turned against him. More and more of the stocks of customers which he handled personally for the firm were thrown into the breach with the hope that they might turn back the flood waters of disaster. But the turning never came. There is no present evidence that the man "got away" with anything. But he is gone, and impersonal New York says: "Isn't it just like this big old town?"

Mercury Gold Excites Tokio

Scientist Promises To Reveal Secret in November.

Tokio, Sept. 22.—Tokio is excited over the alleged discovery of a method of transmuting mercury into gold cheaply, using 170 volts to break up the "structure of the spectral lines of the mercury atom." Dr. Hantaro Nagaoka of the government physical chemical experiment station, the largest in Japan, succeeded in experiments three times and promises to reveal the secret to the world in November. He adds it will have the gravest effects on present day chemistry and physics.

DECORATION DAY SERVICE AT DELMER WELL ATTENDED

Special to The Advertiser.

Tillsonburg, Sept. 21.—Tillsonburg and Culloden Oddfellows assisted in the annual decoration services at Delmer Sunday afternoon, and despite the threatening weather there was a very large attendance at the cemetery. The Oddfellows were marshaled by Bro. H. Malcolm of Tillsonburg, who conducted the services which preceded the decoration.

Farmer Tied Wife To Mule

Madison, N. J., Sept. 22.—Mrs. Peter Heblon told a justice of the peace here a story of being dragged around her husband's 25-acre farm at Browntown, Madison Township, by a mule to which her husband had tied her, after binding her hands behind her back.

Heblon said he tied his wife to the mule as punishment for her threats to kill him and their five young children with a shotgun.

After tying her to the mule and starting it on its run around the farm, Heblon went calling, police said, and was arrested in the home of friends. He was held without bail for the grand jury.

Mrs. Heblon, released by friends, was found to be painfully bruised.

MANY RUSSIAN TRUSTS CORRUPT

Special Cable to The Advertiser and the Chicago Daily News.

By F. A. MacKENZIE.

Moscow, Sept. 20.—Heavy losses by government trusts have been followed by numerous prosecutions of directors and associates in recent weeks. The court proceedings generally show marked corruption and secret profiteering in the conduct of state manufacturers.

One trial is now under way in which 17 directors, experts and contractors of the silk trust are accused of corruption, forgery and illicit deals. The president and two directors of the Pskov timber trust have just succesfully appealed against a sentence of three years imprisonment each for mismanagement. The court quashed the sentence on the plea that they had been tried without counsel, and ordered their retrial at Leningrad.

Four leading officials of the Riazan leather syndicate, which lost about a half million gold roubles in trading, were sentenced to be shot and their goods confiscated. The sentence, however, was reduced to ten years for three of the convicts and five years for the other.

Particular interest is felt in the trial of officials of the Borgvsky leather trust accused of theft and neglecting government interests. The accused managing director, Ravkind, formerly owned a factory now included in the trust.

One other class of industrial cases which looms large is that of employers and managers charged with breaches of the labor laws. A Moscow court this week sentenced the owner of a carpenter shop to pay a fine of 1,500 gold roubles for engaging workmen directly, instead of through the official labor bureau. This enabled him to pick his own hands instead of taking whom ever was sent to him. Thus he was able to operate more efficiently than his competitors. The union started action against him. Recently in provincial Russia, the correspondent came across many such cases.

C. O. D. EXAMINATIONS WILL NOT BE ALLOWED

Postal Department Hands Out Definite Ruling Regarding Parcels.

In no case will an adressee be permitted to examine a C. O. D. parcel before accepting and paying the charges when calling for an article at the post office.

The above ruling handed out today by the postal department adds that the post office is not concerned in any way with differences which may affect the seller and the buyer who use the postal service to transact business.

It is the duty of the delivering office to collect the amount due and remit it to the sender of the article. Any objection to the goods received, o ra desire for the return of the money is a matter for settlement between the adressee and the sender, adds the department.

Postmasters will not exercise any discretion in regard thereto. In short, those buying goods out of town and having them come through the parcel post will have to accept the articles without examination and take up any claims direct with the sender.

MASONIC GRAND MASTER ANNOUNCES 1924 VISITS

St. George's Lodge, No. 42, London, on Oct. 2; King Solomon Lodge, No. 378, at London, on Oct. 9; Moffatt Lodge, No. 399, at Harrietsville, on Oct. 13; Middlesex Lodge, No. 329, at Bryanston, on Oct. 15. Corinthian Lodge, No. 330, at London, on Nov. 4; St. Paul's Lodge, No. 107, at Lambeth, on Nov. 5; Belmont Lodge, No. 190, at Belmont, on Nov. 7; Temple Lodge, No. 597, at London, on Nov. 28; Merrill Lodge, No. 344, at Dorchester, on Dec. 11.

INSPIRING MEETING.

With music by the band and speakers from the headquarters staff, an inspiring meeting was held at the Rectory Street Citadel of the Salvation Army last night.

Mrs. Brigadier McAmnond and Adjutant and Mrs. Spooner from Clarence Street Citadel were in charge of the meeting.

13-YEAR-OLD BOY CONTESTS WILL

INSANITY ALLEGED

A thirteen-year-old boy, Thomas G. Prentiss of Detroit has instituted what is thought to be one of the rarest lawsuits in local legal history in an effort to impeach the will of the late Mrs. Elizabeth S. Prentiss, his grandmother.

So far as is known this is the first case in Western Ontario in which a will involving a substatial sum of money has been attacked by an individual under the law as an infant.

Mrs. Prentiss died in Toronto on September 13, 1923. She was the grandmother of young Thomas Prentiss, and it is alleged left an estate of $18,000 in which her sister, Mrs. Jane A. Parsons of this city is named executrix. On filing application for probate of the will, Mrs. Parsons discovered that it was being opposed by the young Detroit lad, who is the only person entitled to share his grandmother's estate, should it be shown that she died intestate.

Later it was found that Mrs. Prentiss left another will dated 1916. Both are being impeached on the grounds that Mrs. Prentiss was insane at the time they were made.

The case was removed last February from the surrogate court of this county to the supreme court of Ontario by order of Mr. Justice Fisher. The case will be heard at the supreme court sitting in this city on November 28.

Messrs. Cronyn, Betts and Black are acting for the youth. Thomas Prentiss, and Messrs. Murphy, Gunn, and Murphy for Mrs. Parsons.

SOME OPPOSITION IS EXPECTED TO DIAMOND

Work May Be Delayed When Economical Reasons Are Advanced.

While general feeling appears to favor the immediate start on a new athletic field at Queen's Park, some opposition is expected, on economical grounds, when the matter goes before the council tonight. However, promoters of the athletic field idea are confident that the move will receive the council's O.K., and that work, which will mean aid for some of the unemployed, will be started early.

If it is found necessary to haul clay loam from South London it will cost from $2 to $2.50 a load. Filling from industrial survey property in the east end would only cost about $1 a load to haul and spread. City Engineer Near states that from one to two thousand loads would be necessary to give an adequate "top" to the field.

It is likely that city heads and the fair board executie will meet tomorrow to discuss the handling of the athletic field.

YOUNGSTERS PURLOIN APPLES FROM MARKET

Grower Who Brought Produce In Friday Night Laments His Loss.

The growing habit of district farmers of bringing in fruit and vegetables late Friday night to be sure of a good stand for Saturday's business on the local market is not looked on with particular favor by one fruit grower on Springbank hill.

This man brought in a huge load of apples late Friday night and parked his wagon in a good spot. He left his load to take care of itself and motored home only to return early Saturday morning to find that a small army of boys had discovered the apples and made off with almost half the contents of the bushel baskets.

Other farmers, who had spent the night snoozing in their trucks, told the luckless grower that they and the police had chased the youngsters away a dozen times or more, but that they kept coming back.

"The kids apparently appreciate good apples, but it's rather hard on my pocketbook," declared the fruit grower. "Next Friday, I guess, I'll have to sit up all night and watch the apples."

GENERAL SYNOD EXPECTED TO TAKE OVER YEAR BOOK

It is quite probable that at the meeting of general synod, which opens here next Wednesday, that body will assume the responsibility of the publication of the year book, hitherto produced by the Missionary Society of the Canadian churches. The executive council is making such recommendation to the synod.

The new arrangement, if adopted, will provide for the selling of space to the three departments of the church's work—social service, religious education (Sunday schools) and missions. The diocesan synods will be asked to purchase and supply copies free of charge to their clergy.

DRUNK ARRESTED.

One drunk was arrested by police on Glenwood avenue this morning. He was taken to the police station and will appear before Magistrate Graydon tomorrow morning.

LOTTERIES ILLEGAL.

Letters in regard to the Danish Colonial lottery have been observed in the mails, says a despatch from the postal department today, adding that lotteries are illegal in Canada and no money orders will be issued to the firm operating the lottery.

A Derby Wins After 137 Years.

The Derby horse races were founded by the family and named in their honor years ago. The Earls of Derby have been striving for 137 years to win the race, but were unsuccessful until this season.

WOMEN and THE HOME

Large Strawberries From South America.

Up to 1714 large fruited strawberries were not known in Europe, the native berries being small but of good flavor. In that year a Frenchman brought plants from Chile of a large variety.

WARM WELCOME AWAITS METROPOLITAN SINGER

Women's Music Club Expects People From District To Hear Jeanne Gordon.

A number of music-lovers from Chatham expect to come to London for the Jeanne Gordon concert which will be given in the Grand Opera House on Thursday, October 2. Mrs. Gordon Hunt and Mrs. Richard Davis go to St. Thomas today to make further arrangements in connection with the concert, which will be one of the finest ever given in London.

Jeanne Gordon is not only a distinguished contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Company, but is a former Chatham girl, so that a special interest attaches itself to her visit to London. She is said to rival Galli Curci in popularity with the New York public.

PERSONALS

Mr. Walter Lenehan has returned to town after visiting in Detroit.

Mrs. James McCartney, Albert street, is in Detroit visiting her son, Mr. George McCartney, and Mrs. McCartney.

Miss Florence Graham, R.N., entertained a number of her friends at bridge Thursday at her home, Central avenue.

Mrs. Harry Kipp of St. Thomas has returned home after spending the past ten days in town the guest of Mrs. W. A. Mace, Hellmuth avenue.

Miss M. Leckie, of the Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) Hospital staff, is visiting her brother, Mr. F. F. Leckie, Oxford street, and other relatives in Goderich.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Smallman entertained the committees in charge of the gymkhana at dinner Saturday evening at their country home, Medway Farms.

Messrs. Roley and Iolo Williams, sons of Bishop David Williams and Mrs. Williams, who spent the summer in England and France, returned home last evening.

Miss Florence Murdock Burgess of Leamington, sister of the Hon. James Murdock, Ottawa, is a guest with Mrs. S. T. Meek, Gerrard street, until the middle of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Laidlaw, Mr. Murray Laidlaw and Mrs. J. Smythe of Hamilton spent the week-end in town guests with their aunt, Mrs. F. B. Hemsworth, Ridout street south.

Canon Dyson Hague and Mrs. Hague of Toronto will be guests with their son, Mr. Robert Hague, and Mrs. Hague, Maitland street north, while in town attending the synod this week.

Rev. H. W. Cunningham and Mrs. Cunningham of St. George's Church, Halifax, N.S., are guests with their nieces, the Misses Callard, St. James' street, while in town this week for the Anglican Synod.

Miss Leila Lee entertained recently at her home in St. Thomas at a charming dinner party in honor of Miss Olive Swift, whose marriage takes place tomorrow to Mr. W. D. Van Egmond of this city.

Among the hostesses who entertained for Miss Gladys Van Dermade, a bride-elect of this month, were Mrs. Leonard Quick, who arranged a miscellaneous shower, and Mrs. Robert Thompson, who also gave a shower in her honor.

Miss K. Telfer, Richmond street north, and Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson of Wilton Grove have returned home after a delightful trip through the Canadian West as far as Banff. While away they visited friends in Regina, Calgary and Saskatoon.

The choir of St. George's Presbyterian Church arranged a charming shower last week at the home of Miss Margaret Buchanan, in Hale street, in honor of Miss Agnes Hunter, whose marriage takes place tomorrow. Music and games were enjoyed following by dainty refreshments.

The staff of the Cowan Hardware Company held a jolly corn roast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Saul at Crumlin last week. The guests, numbering seventy-five, motored to Crumlin, and following the roasting of the corn games and a sing-song were enjoyed. The arrangements were in charge of Miss Madeline Chapman.

The engagement of Miss Mabelle Evans of Sarnia to Mr. Albert E. Wells of London, was announced on Saturday evening at a unique and delightful bridge of six tables at her home on George street, Sarnia. The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion with large baskets and bowls of flowers arranged artistically throughout the rooms. The engagement was announced through the first prize winner, who found the news secreted in a bowl of pansies. The out-of-town guests included Mrs. A. J. Rutledge, Miss Winona Bryden, London, and Mrs. P. Aboline, Detroit. The marriage takes place at London in mid October.

Miss Gladys Van Dermade, a popular bride-elect, entertained last week at a charming trousseau tea at her home on the Pipe Line road. The rooms were effectively decorated with flowers in orange shades, and the guests were received by Mrs. Porter Bailey of Fort William and Miss M. Van Dermade. Miss Edith Van Dermade invited the guests to the tea room, and the tea table, centered with a crystal basket filled with marigolds, surrounded by tiny baskets holding the same flowers, was presided over by Mrs. J. P. Bailey and Mrs. Ross Thomas. The tea room assistants were Miss J. Bailey and Miss M. Hepburn, and the trousseau was displayed by Mrs. W. Doidge, Miss S. Hutton and Mrs. Robert Thompson.

A jolly corn roast was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percival Cooke, Mount Pleasant avenue recently. The lawn was effectively decorated and lighted with Chinese lanterns, making a pretty setting for the affair. After a feast of corn, weiners and marshmallows, the young people danced on the lawn, and a number of games and stunts were enjoyed. At the conclusion of the evening the guests surrounded the host and hostess, singing "For They're Jolly Good Fellows." The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Slade, Mr. and Mrs. Boath, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Bissett and Misses Dorothy Roy, Olive Roy, Irene Slade, Lila Baskette, Amy Boulton, Mary Adams, Helen Ross, Barbara Cook and Messrs Lorne McKellar, Rege Hodgins, Fred Adams, Wesley McCausland, Murray McDiarmid, Jack Walker, and Angus Kenneth and Allan Ross.

MISS SHIRLEY JOHNSTON,

daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Johnston, who will take part in "The Cameo Girl" to be given here next month in aid of the National I. O. D. E. War Memorial Fund.

WEDDINGS

GOWANLOCK—JONES.

A charming autumn wedding was solemnized on Saturday, Sept. 20, at 3 p.m. at "The Maples," the beautiful home of William H. Jones, Delaware, when his younger daughter, Miss Mabel C. Jones, became the bride of George S. Gowanlock of Westminster, youngest son of Mrs. G. Gowanlock and the late G. Gowanlock. Rev. T. Steadman performed the ceremony in the drawing-room, under a very artistic arch of autumn flowers, leaves and wedding bells.

The wedding march was played by the bride's cousin, Miss Evelyn Jones, who was lovely in a powder blue crepe gown with gold lace trimmings. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked very charming in a gown of white canton crepe, with crystal and pearl trimmings, and bridal veil with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. She was attended by Miss Agnes Gowanlock, sister of the groom, who was lovely in an orchid brocaded canton crepe gown and carried an arm bouquet of pink and white carnations. Little Amy Allen niece of the bride, made a dainty flower girl, dressed in turquoise blue taffeta with silver trimmings and carried a basket of roses and carnations. The groom was attended by Mr. Clifford Jones, brother of the bride.

During the signing of the register Miss Agnes Gowanlock sang most acceptably "The Crown." Following the ceremony a reception was held, when Mrs. Jones, in a brocaded black canton crepe with touches of delph blue, welcomed the guests. She was assisted by the groom's mother, Mrs. Gowanlock, who was attired in navy canton crepe, with jet and steel trimmings. A buffet luncheon was served to about fifty guests, after which Mr. and Mrs. Gowanlock left on a motor trip for Hamilton, Toronto, Bowmanville and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a navy blue poiret twill frock, with hat and scarf to match.

The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents and checks. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful bracelet set with topaz; to the bridesmaid and flower girl, rings set with aquamarine; to the pianist, a beautiful bracelet; to the best man a pair of gold cuff links.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Gowanlock will take up their residence on the farm of Mr. Gowanlock in Westminster.

The out-of-town guests included Mrs. Young of Mount Brydges, Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Sonley and Miss Marjorie, of Hamilton, and several others from London, Leamington and Alberta.

WILSON—SANDERS.

Cronyn Memorial Anglican Church was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock, when Rose Ruth Sanders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Sanders, Highland road, was married to Reuben Edward Wilson, son of Dr. H. A. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson of Bowdill, Ohio. Rev. Quintin Warner performed the ceremony.

As the wedding march was played by Mr. C. Gilmour, the bridal party entered the church. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of French blue crepe de chine, with a black picture hat, and she carried a shower of Ophelia roses. Miss Gladys Noyes was bridesmaid, wearing a becoming gown of navy blue silk crepe, with a black picture hat, and carrying a bouquet of roses. Mr. Stuart Manuel acted as best man.

During the signing of the register, Miss Gladys McEvoy, gowned in black cut velvet with a purple hat, sang "Until." Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Sanders, who wore a gown of navy silk crepe, and was assisted in receiving by Mrs. S. Winnett, in blue satin with a black hat and lace scarf. Mrs. Wilson, mother of the groom, also received.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left later on a honeymoon, which will be spent in Buffalo, the bride travelling in gray crepe de chine with a navy blue crepe, trimmed with fur, and a close-fitting black hat. Upon their return they will take up their residence in Detroit.

MEECHAM—OSBORNE.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. Arthur D. Osborne, Dundas street, Saturday at 10 o'clock when his youngest daughter, Gladys Irene Osborne, became the bride of Percy Reginald Meecham, youngest son of Mr. James Meecham of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. W. R. McIntosh, pastor of King Street Presbyterian Church.

The drawing-room was prettily arranged with many flowers, and the bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a French gown of beaded sand-colored georgette, and carried a shower of Ophelia roses. The wedding march was played by Miss Mayme Carson of Peck, Mich. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome fox fur, and to the pianist a silver mesh purse.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served, and Mr. and Mrs. Meecham left later on a honeymoon, which will be spent in Detroit and other points. The bride travelled in a French gray gown, with hat and shoes to match, and a cloak of brown velva suede, with hat to match, and a fox fur. Upon their return they will reside in London.

Among the guests from out-of-town were: Miss Mayne Carson, Peck, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. W. Lennox and daughter, Miss Candace Lennox and son Merton of Port Huron; Mr. and Mrs. George Lennox and daughter Frances and George Lennox, Jun., of Detroit; Miss Maude MacIntosh of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. George Glades of Charlevoix, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Alexander, Ironton, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Putman and daughter Helen and son Gerrard of Tillsonburg, and Mr. George Carson of Toronto.

HEARD—SLATER.

An interesting wedding took place this morning at St. Paul's Cathedral, when Gladys de Beaugie, daughter of Mrs. John Slater, was married to Robert Wesley Heard, M.D., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heard. Rev. Dean Tucker performed the ceremony. Promptly at 10:30 o'clock the bridal party entered the church as the wedding march was played by Mr. H. T. Dickinson. The bride, who was attended by her sister, Miss Hilda Slater, looked charming in a smart tailored gown of brown and sand Roshanara crepe, and a becoming brown hat, with feather trimmings and carrying garden 'mums in russet and yellow shades. Brown shoes and hose completed her costume. Her bridesmaid wore a navy blue suit, with gray fur trimmings and a navy blue hat, and carried French marigolds. Capt. Gordon Galbraith acted as best man. Immediately after the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Heard left for Los Angeles, where they will reside, going by way of Denver and the Grand Canyon. The bride donned for travelling a smart brown wrap, with marabou trimmings.

JOHNSTONE—RYCKMAN.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Methodist parsonage, Fullarton, on Saturday, Sept. 20, when Frieda Gertrude, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Ryckman of Delaware Township, became the bride of Charles W. Johnstone, eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnstone of Delaware Village. The marriage was solemnized by Rev. A. E. Hopper, a former pastor of Delaware. The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. J. Oulton Hammond, the bride being attired in a brown cut velvet gown, with hat and coat to match. The happy couple left for Stratford, Niagara, and thence for a motor trip through New York State.

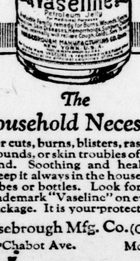

Mr. and Mrs. Johnstone will reside in Delaware Village.

Carnation Milk
"From Contented Cows"

From Canada's Fine Dairy Farms

Comes the rich, creamy milk you get in the Carnation red and white labeled can. It is tested rigidly for purity and richness, evaporated to double richness and kept safe by sterilization.

Open a can when you need it—you will always find it fresh and sweet. You will enjoy it in place of cream on cereal or fruit, and in coffee. For tea, use it diluted, one part Carnation, three parts water.

Add to Carnation a little more than an equal part of water and you have milk of natural consistency, for all milk uses. Carnation Milk is convenient and economical. Order from your grocer several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans.

CREAM WHITE SAUCE (For Creaming Vegetables): 2 tablespoons flour, ⅛ cup Carnation Milk, 2 tablespoons butter or substitute, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅞ cup water. Melt butter or butter substitute, add flour and stir until thoroughly mixed. Add the milk, diluted with water, and cook about five minutes, or until the mixture thickens, then add seasonings. This recipe makes one cup of White Sauce. All vegetables may be creamed. The vegetables should be cooked by either boiling or steaming. After cooking with salt, drain and add Cream Sauce.

The label is Red and White

Advises Money Before Matrimony

Dorothy Dix

Should Weddings Wait on Mere Salary?

The Man Who Postpones the Wedding Day Until He Can Afford to Marry Not Only Shows Good Sense But Real Devotion to the Girl Whom He Is Thus Protecting From the Sordidness of Poverty.

A nice young man and a nice young woman are in love with each other, but, unfortunately, the young man is not making a salary that seems to him to justify matrimony and he wants to put off the wedding day until he is in a better financial position.

He tells the girl that his sense of what is fair to her will not let him take her out of a good home and dump her in a poor one. Also that it has been his observaation that love aeroplanes out of the window in those cases where the wolf camps on the doorstep, and the man is always anxious and harried by debt, and the woman is too hard worked and tired to care how she looks, and sheer nerves keep both of them snapping at each other.

The young woman does not agree with this view of the subject. She wants to be married at once. She says that she thinks that if the young man is really in love with her, he would grab her up and rush with her to the altar without stopping to consider such a paltry thing as how they were to live.

And they both ask me to referee their little sparring match.

I think the man is dead right in taking a good, long look ahead before he leaps into the sea of matrimony. I think he not only shows good, hard horse sense in wanting to wait until he can afford to marry, but that he proves his devotion to the girl in not being willing to drag her down into poverty.

It's all very well for a girl who has had three square meals every day of her life and a charge account at the best stores to assume a high and romantic attitude, and scorn mere money, and declare that she is willing to live on bread and cheese and kisses with the man she loves.

She has never tried it. She doesn't know that bread and cheese soon pall upon the appetite of those accustomed to filet mignon and lobster Newburg. Still less is she aware that those who are doomed to live just on bread and cheese and kisses soon drop the kisses off of the menu. Yet such is the sordid truth.

It is a pity that there is a price tag on love, but, alas and alack, there is. Matrimony must pay the luxury tax, and only those can hope to enjoy it who can afford it.

No matter how much a young couple may be in love with each other, they have got to come down out of the clouds when they get married and live in a hard and practical world, in which they must reckon with the landlord and settle with the butcher and baker. And their ability to keep on being in love with each other depends to a large extent on their being able to do this.

No ideal home has the bill collector perpetually battering on the door. No man who cannot make a living remains a godling long in his wife's eyes. No woman who is slatternly and overworked, and who lacks the time and the strength to take any pains with her personal appearance, looks like the angel of his dreams to her husband. No one who is worried over trying to make ends meet on an insufficient income waste any time speculating as to the temperature of the affections of the partner of his or her bosom.

Before we can be romantic we have got to be comfortable. Before we can love we have to be well fed. Nature settled that business when it made our stomachs three or four times as big as our hearts.

This is why marrying on a shoestring is such a hazardous venture. The glamor of romance that made a youth and maiden feel that they asked nothing else of fate but just the privilege of being together soon fades away, and then their happiness depends upon their being able to have the things and do the things they have been accustomed to having and doing all their lives.

If this is impossible; if they, who have been used to living in beautiful and artistic surroundings, must live in cheap and ugly lodgings; if they, who have always dressed well, must go shabby; if they, who have always gone to theaters and concerts and parties, are too poor to afford any amusement, then they would be more than human if each did not blame the other for having dragged him or her into the wretched folly of an unsuitable marriage.

For a man to marry before he can afford it nearly always means that he dooms himself to stay at the bottom of the ladder. He cannot climb with the weight of a family on his back. He cannot save when the daily living takes every cent that he can possibly earn. He dare not risk his wife's and his children's bread by trying to better his fortunes.

A man is a fool who marries before he has got securely on his feet, and a woman shows that her selfishness is greater than her love if she urges him to sacrifice his future to her desire to possess him a little sooner. She also brings upon herself the misery of knowing that she is a handicap to her husband, as well as having to endure all the hardships of a poor man's wife.

There is nothing truer than the old proverb about marrying in haste and repenting in leisure. There are plenty of chances in matrimony without taking a chance on starving to death. The successful homes are those that have under them a good, strong financial plank. They are founded on sense and reason, and in them no haggard man lies awake wondering how he is to find the money for the rent, and no pale mother weeps because she cannot give her children the advantages she had.

So my earnest advice to every young couple is not to marry until they have the price of a wedding ring. Those that are on the installment plan are almost always pawned in the divorce court.

Of this she reminded Sir John on her return to Cornwall after an absence of some two years, urging these matters as reasons why an alliance between herself and Lionel Tressilian must be impossible.

"My dear," he said, "there is your future to be thought of. You are now of full age and mistress of your own actions. Yet it is not well for a woman and a gentlewoman to dwell alone. As long as I live, or as long as I dwell in England, all will be well. You may continue indefinitely your residence here at Arwenack, and you have been wise, I think, in quitting the loneliness of Godolphin Court. Yet consider that that loneliness may be yours again when I am not here."

"I should prefer that loneliness to the company you would thrust upon me," she answered him.

"Ungracious speech!" he protested. "Is your gratitude for that lad's burning devotion, for his patience, his gentleness, and all the rest?"

"He is Oliver Tressilian's brother," she replied.

"And has he not suffered enough for that already? Is there to be no end to the price that he must pay for his brother's sins? Besides, consider that when all is said they are not even brothers. They are but half-brothers."

"Yet too closely kin," she said. "If you must have me wed I beg you'll find me another husband."

He was persistent, and his persistence was increased when he came to conceive his notion to take the seas again. His conscience would not permit him to heave anchor until he had bestowed her safely in wedlock. Lionel, too, was persistent, in a quiet, almost self-effacing way that never set a strain upon her patience, and was therefore the more difficult to combat.

In the end she gave way under the pressure of these men's wills, and did so with the best grace she could summon, resolved to drive from her heart and mind the one real obstacle of which, for very shame, she had made no mention to Sir John. The fact is that in spite of all, her love for Sir Oliver was not dead. It was stricken down, it is true, until she herself failed to recognize it for what it really was. But she caught herself thinking of him frequently and wistfully; she found herself comparing him with his brother; and for all that she had bidden Sir John find her some other husband than Lionel, she knew full well that any suitor brought before her must be submitted to that same comparison to his inevitable undoing.

All this she accounted evil in herself. It was in vain that she lashed her mind with the reminder that Sir Oliver was Peter's murderer. As time went on she found herself actually making excuses for her sometime lover; she would admit that Peter had driven him to the step, that for her sake Sir Oliver had suffered insult upon insult from Peter, until, being but human, the cup of his endurance had overflowed in the end, and weary of submitting to the other's blows he had risen up in his anger and smitten in his turn.

She would scorn herself for such thoughts as these, yet she could not dismiss them. In act she could be strong—as witness how she had dealt with that letter which Oliver sent her out of Barbary by the hand of Pitt—but her thoughts she could not govern, and her thoughts were full often traitors to her will. There were longings in her heart for Oliver which she could not stifle, and there was ever the hope that he would one day return, although she realized that from such a return she might look for nothing.

When Sir John finally slew the hope of that return he did a wiser thing than he conceived. Never since Oliver disappearance had they heard any news of him until Pitt came to Arwenack with that letter and his story. They had heard, as had all the world, of the corsair Sakr-el-Bahr, but they had been far indeed from connecting him with Oliver Tressilian. Now that his identity was established by Pitt's testimony, it was an easy matter to induce the courts to account him dead and to give Lionel the coveted inheritance.

This to Rosamund was a small matter. But a great one was that Sir Oliver was dead at law, and must be so in fact, should he ever again set foot in England. It extinguished finally that curiously hopeless and almost subconscious hope of hers that one day he would return. Thus it helped her perhaps to face and accept the future which Sir John was resolved to thrust upon her.

Her betrothal was made public, and she proved if not an ardently loving, at least a docile and gentle mistress to Lionel. He was content. He could ask no more in reason at the moment, and he was buoyed up by every lover's confidence that given opportunity and time he could find the way to awaken a response. And it must be confessed that already during their bethothal he gave some proof of his reason for this confidence. She had been lonely, and he dispelled her loneliness by his complete surrender of himself to her; his restraint and his cautious, almost insidious creeping along a path, which a more clumsy fellow would have taken at a dash, made companionship possible between them and very sweet to her. Upon this foundation her affection began gradually to rise, and seeing them together and such excellent friends, Sir John congratulated himself upon his wisdom and went about the fitting out of that fine ship of his—the Silver Heron—for the coming voyage.

Thus they came within a week of the wedding, and Sir John was all impatience now. The marriage bells were to be his signal for departure; as they fell silent the Silver Heron should spread her wings.

It was the evening of the first of June; the peal of the curfew had faded on the air and lights were being set in the great dining-room at Arwenack where the company was to sup. It was a small party. Just Sir John and Rosamund with Lionel, who had lingered on that day, and Lord Henry Goade, the Queen's Lientenant of Cornwall together with his lady. They were visiting Sir John and they were to remain yet a week his guests at Arwenack that they might grace the coming nuptials.

Above in the house there was great stir of preparation for the departure of Sir John and his ward, the latter into wedlock, the former into unknown seas. In the turret chamber a dozen sempstresses were at work upon the bridal outfit under the directions of that Sally Pentreath who had been no less assiduous in the preparation of swaddling clothes and the like on the eve of Rosamund's appearance in this world.

He had deemed it wiser not to round Pendennis Point. So in the bay above Swanpool on the western side of that promontory he had dropped anchor as the evening shadows were deepening. He had launched the ship's two boats, and in these he had conveyed some thirty of his men ashore. Twice had the boats returned, until a hundred of his corsairs stood ranged along that foreign beach. The other hundred he left on guard aboard. He took so great a force upon an expedition for which a quarter of the men would have sufficed so as to insure by overwhelming numbers the avoidance of all unnecessary violence.

Absolutely unobserved he led them up the slope toward Arwenack through the darkness that had now closed in. To tread his native soil once more went near to drawing tears from him. How familiar was the path he followed with such confidence in the night; how well-known each bush and stone by which he went with his silent multitude hard upon his heels. Who could have foretold him such a return as this? Who could have dreamed when he roamed amain in his youth here with dogs and fowling-piece, that he would creep one night over these dunes a renegade Moslem leading a horde of infidels to storm the house of Sir John Killigrew of Arwenack?

Such thoughts begot a weakness in him; but he made a quick recovery when his mind swung to all that he had so unjustly suffered, when he considered all that he came thus to avenge.

First to Arwenack to Sir John and Rosamund to compel them to hear the truth at last, and then away to Penarrow for Master Lionel and the reckoning. Such was the project that warmed him, conquered his weakness and spurred him, relentless, onward and upward to the heights and the fortified house that dominated them.

He found the massive iron-studded gates locked, as was to have been expected at that hour. He knocked, and presently the postern gaped, and a lantern was advanced. Instantly that lantern was dashed aside and Sir Oliver had leaped over the sill into the courtyard. With a hand gripping the porter's throat to choke all utterance, Sir Oliver heaved him out to his men, who swiftly gagged him.

That done, they poured silently through that black gap of the postern into the spacious gateway. On he led them, at a run almost, toward the tall mullioned windows whence a flood of golden light seemed invitingly to beckon them.

HENSALL STREET DANCE AIDS FUNDS FOR RINK

Special to The Advertiser.

Hensall, Sept. 21.—On Thursday evening Main street was the scene of a very large street dance to secure funds for the new skating rink. The street was sprinkled with corn meal and a large number of electric lights added. The Clinton Orchestra furnished music and a large number of dancers were in costume. There were many spectators. Dancing ceased a little after twelve. The proceeds were very gratifying to the board of trade and committee in charge.

GODERICH DRY FORCES PREPARE FOR CAMPAIGN

Special to The Advertiser.

Goderich, Sept. 19.—The temperance forces of Goderich held a rally yesterday to organize under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. Mrs. Gordon Wright held a meeting for ladies in North street Methodist Church.

In the evening a public meeting was held. Mrs. G. Wright delivered a powerful appeal for temperance, and support of the existing law. Music was supplied by talent from the various churches of the town. Rev. S. W. Hedley acted as chairman.

Farmer Brown's Boy Chuckles As He Carries Unc' Billy Home

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Up the long Lane from the cornfield Farmer Brown's Boy trudged in the moonlight. He whistled merrily. In one hand he carried Unc' Billy Possum by his tail. Now and then he held Unc' Billy up to look at him. Every time he did this he chuckled aloud.

Now Unc' Billy appeared to be dead. He was very dead looking. His eyes were closed, his mouth half open and his legs stiff. There are boys and men who love to hunt who would have chuckled just as Farmer Brown's Boy did over a dead Possum. But Farmer Brown's Boy wasn't chuckling over a dead Possum. He was chuckling because he knew that Unc' Billy was just as much alive as ever he had been. Had Unc' Billy really been dead, Farmer Brown's Boy wouldn't have chuckled at all. He would have been very sad. As it was, he was greatly tickled. It tickled him to see how cleverly Unc' Billy was pretending to be dead.

"The old rascal thinks he's fooling me, while all the time I'm fooling him," chuckled Farmer Brown's Boy. "He thinks I think he's dead. I'll let him keep right on thinking so. When I get home I'll make some kind of a pen and put the old rascal in. I'll keep him there for a while to keep him out of mischief."

But if Farmer Brown's Boy wasn't fooled, Bowser the Hound was. Bowser trotted along at the heels of his master. Now and then he reached up and sniffed at Unc' Billy. Bowser was very well pleased. They had been on a successful hunt. He is always pleased at the end of a successful hunt. He didn't yet understand what had happened to Unc' Billy Possum. He had expected to catch him and kill him himself, but when he had caught up with him, Unc' Billy appeared to have been killed already.

Up the Long Lane to the barnyard went Farmer Brown's Boy and Bowser the Hound and Unc' Billy Possum. When they reached the barnyard Farmer Brown's Boy stretched Unc' Billy out on the ground in the moonlight and told Bowser to watch him.

In one hand he carried one Billy Possum by the tail.

"Watch him, Bowser. Watch him!" he commanded, pointing down to Unc' Billy. "I've got to get something to put the old scamp in, so while I am doing it you watch him."

Bowser understood perfectly. He had been trained to watch things. Just why he should watch that dead Possum he didn't understand. But it was enough for him to be told to watch it. So he sat down close to Unc' Billy. He felt a wee bit important. He always feels a wee bit important when he has been trusted to watch something.

Now, had Bowser the least idea that Unc' Billy wasn't as dead as he looked he wouldn't have taken his eyes from Unc' Billy. But Bowser knew that no one who was dead could possibly run away, and so now and then he turned his head to look about. So it was that he didn't see Unc' Billy Possum slyly open his eyes.

St. Thomas-Galt Game, Postponed By Rain, Will Be Played Here Wednesday

Driving Downpour Greets Terrier Fans' Special Train

Postponed Mingle Will Get Under Way at 3:15 Wednesday.

STRAIN ON PLAYERS

A steady downpour which, starting at 1:45 o'clock Saturday, lasted for half an hour, was the overflow which finally postponed the crucial game between St. Thomas Tom Cats and Galt Terriers.

The game will be played Wednesday afternoon at 3:15, and the ticket window will slide back at 12:30, to prevent too much crowding later on.

Saturday's weather and Tecumseh Park's sponge-like characteristics put an unusual problem up to the O. B. A. A. team officials anxiously scanning the skies in an effort to read something from the drizzle which performed steadily but lightly after 11 o'clock. C. Penfold, senior executive member, W. Smith, George Nethercott and George Martin made a party which investigated the diamond at Tecumseh Park shortly after 12 o'clock.

Special Train Arrives.

There were few signs of the weather clearing, but at that hour it was too early to definitely call the game off. Up to 1:45 the game could have been played, as far as the diamond was concerned, but just then came the downpour which solved the problem for the officials.

The unfortunate part of the postponement was that Galt fans, although a phone message from here warned them at 12:15 that conditions were not promising, landed here in their special train, only to see the local station through a driving rain.

There were many from a distance who had started motoring to the game earlier in the day, when the weather was promising, and were almost here before the cerulean faucets got going properly.

The two teams would have been glad to get the suspense and the game over. Amateur teams feel the strain of these affairs more than do the pros.

Resent Report.

St. Thomas players were a bit riled over the story which ascribed "Dodo" Hoffman's injury to the efforts of Binns' deliberate charge on the Galt player in the last game between the two teams. They claim that they had it on fairly good authority that it was a threatened attack of appendicitis which took the Galt player out of the game. They apparently did not find fault with the decision which sent Binns out of the game as a result of his charging the first-sacker, but they apparently do resent the attempt to enlarge upon the incident.

There will be no difference in the arrangements made for Saturday's game. While it is believed that the attendance of Galt fans may show a decrease owing to the long and fruitless trip on Saturday, officials look for every bit as big a crowd as the game would have attracted Saturday with fine weather.

GALT GRUMBLES.

Galt, Sept. 21. — There is much grumbling in local baseball circles over the action of those in charge of Saturday's St. Thomas-Galt ball game at London, in not calling it off until 2 o'clock, over 250 fans making the trip by special train to London for nothing. It is doubtful now if the Terriers will have as large a following on Wednesday next.

Golf

AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT.

WHEN IN THIS POSITION

When the ball lies in the short grass of the fairway, but only a foot or two off the green, is it safe to use a putter under ordinary circumstances? Or should some other club be used?

Answered by
CLARENCE HACKNEY,

Winner of the Canadian open championship in 1923-24. Also winner of the Philadelphia open championship in 1923-24, and the professional championship in 1924-25. Runner-up in many sectional tournaments, including the North and South championship four times in seven years.

* * *

The only club to use in this position is an approach cleek. This is by far the safer club and should be used in the same manner as a putter. A great many players make the mistake, on shots like this, of using mashies and other clubs which have too much loft. A shot of this sort needs overspin to make it "hug the green," and a lofted club imparts backspin and has the opposite effect. A backspin shot will bite into the green, slow up suddenly, and jump about in an uncertain manner, making the distance to the cup hard to gauge. An overspin shot which rolls ahead in a straight line is a much safer stroke, and an approach cleek is the proper club to produce this effect.

GUELPH JUNIORS OUSTED FROM RACE

Toronto McCormick's Blanked Them 8—0 to Take Round.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Willowvale Park, Toronto, Sept. 21.—McCormick Juniors defeated Guelph for the second time yesterday afternoon in the semi-fianls of the O.B.A.A. series, the score being 8 to 0 in the sixth inning when the game was called. McCormicks qualify to meet the winner of the Peterboro-Kingston series.

Yesterday's game was all McCormick, who played a stellar fielding game, and hit the ball hard and often. O'Connor of Guelph was relieved by Stephenson in the fifth.

Rasson, for McCormick twirled his usual good game, holding the Guelph boys to two hits, both by Brohman, and fanning ten in the six innings.

Swing for McCormick had three hits, one a double. Elsner and Clark had two each, while Woodrow, Sinclair and Rasson contributed one each.

The Guelph infield were away off form. The game was called in the last of the sixth, with McCormick batting with two out.

SENSATIONAL GOLF PUTS CORKRAN AHEAD

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ardmore, Penn., Sept. 21.—Brilliant golf, including a record breaking 67 by G. Cochran of Philadelphia, featured the first 18 holes of play yesterday in the qualifying round of the national amateur championship at the Merion Cricket Club.

Out in 36, equalling the par, and home in 31, three under par, Cochran led an international field, in which most of the ten stars of Great Britain Walker Cup team fared poorly.

Bobby Jones of Atlanta competing at the club where he made a sensational debut in national golf eight years ago, seemed to have the lead without dispute, until Cockran turned in his sensational card.

FIRST W. F. A. FINAL GAME IS HALTED BY HEAVY RAIN

Special to The Advertiser.

Stratford, Sept. 21.—A downpour of rain effectively stopped the first of the finals in the W.F.A. Saturday afternoon between Stratford and Kitchener Rangers. The game was called after two minutes of play in the second half, with the score tied 1—1. The game will be replayed here next Saturday, with the return game in Kitchener October 4.

The teams:

Referee—Morris of Stratford.

GIANTS BLANKED 3-0 BY CHICAGO

Brooklyn Back in Second Place By Defeating Pirates 2—1.

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, Sept. 21.—Tony Kaufmann had the better of Jack Bentley in a pitching battle here this afternoon, the Cubs beating the Giants 3 to 0.

The Chicago pitcher kept the Giants' hits well scattered, and was never in danger. Bentley was unsteady at times, and in the eighth inning cut loose with a wild throw, which enabled Friberg to score from first. In the sixth inning Ross Young, Giant right fielder, made one of the most spectacular catches ever seen on the Polo Grounds. Friberg hit to right, what seemed a sure double. Young raced over to the wall and dived for the ball, grabbing it with one hand as he rolled over, but held on.

ROBINS BEAT PIRATES.
Special to The Advertiser.

Brooklyn, Sept. 21.—Brooklyn won the final game of the season with the Pirates here this afternoon, 2 to 1, in 10 innings, and took second place.

Grimes went the route for the Dodgers, and while often in trouble, held the Pirates scoreless until the ninth inning, when Traynor's single and Maranville's double with none out, tied the score. Taylor probably saved the Superabs from defeat by picking Maranville at second with a splendid throw.

Peffer relieved Morrison, but lost the game in the tenth, which High opened with a single. Mitchell bunted on the third strike for a sacrifice, Wheat purposely passed. High took third on Fournier's sacrifice fly and scored on Brown's single.

HAGEN ANNEXES U. S. PRO TITLE

British Open Champ Beats Long Jim Barns 2 Up.

Associated Press Despatch.

French Lick, Ind., Sept. 20.—Walter Hagen of New York added another title to his list today by defeating James Barnes of New York, two up in the 36-hole final for the national professional golf championship at French Lick.

Hagen, who has won virtually every open title in the world and now is possessor for the second time in three years of the British open crown, had a narrow escape today at the hands of the tall Englishman. Although Barnes was found down at the end of the morning round, he got his putter going for a dozen holes this afternoon and managed to cut Hagen's lead to two up at the twenty-seventh hole and had him one up at the twenty-ninth.

Hagen finally became dormie two, only to drop a short putt at the thirty-fifth hole, but Barnes threw away the final hole by over-approaching and failing to get down a long putt for a par.

This morning Hagen shot one under par, while Barnes took 75, but this afternoon Hagen scored a pair of 37's, while Barnes got a 71. Outside of putting Barnes played Hagen at least even and the latter got so badly trapped on the twenty-fifth hole that he had to pick it up.

A large gallery followed the match through the entire 36 holes and at times saw machine-like golf. There were a number of occasions, however, when Barnes missed putts that the ordinary dub could hole handily. In addition to his mediocre putting most of the way, Barnes had two stymies to go around.

There was some discussion during the match about lifting.

The officials of the tournament yesterday ruled on account of rain that when a ball was interfered with by a hole made in the green where some other ball had dropped, the ball might be lifted and placed where it would escape the penalty.

Hagen Objects.

Barnes asked that this be done with his final putt yesterday, when he defeated Larry Nabholtz, and some of the spectators and golf critics made a great commotion. Today on the sixth green Hagen asked permission to move his ball when in a similar lie, and Barnes consented. On the eleventh green, however, when Barnes desired to replace his ball, Hagen objected on the ground that the depression was merely the result of a worm cast.

Hagen has played steadily throughout the tournament qualifying on a tie for second place with 141 strokes and winning all his matches by a handy margin.

Barnes has fought an uphill battle from the start and that has been his fate ever since he came to America. He played in championships several years before he was able to win the national open three years ago. In this tournament, after qualifying with 148, seven strokes higher than Hagen, his very first match was with Mike Brady of New York, who was runner-up a few years ago in the international open. Brady carried Barnes to the 32nd hole.

BRACKENBOROUGH MARRIED
Special to The Advertiser.

Hamilton, Sept. 20.—Johnny Brackenborough, former Tiger hockey star, who lost an eye in the game with Varsity at Toronto last winter, and who is now a resident of Galt, has joined the ranks of the benedicts. He was married at St. Mark's church here to Miss Vera May Ellis, a Hamilton girl.

Miss Collett's Phenomenal Gives Her Title Second Time

Attained Eight-Hole Lead in Morning, Shooting Five Under Par.

ENDED ON 28TH

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hamilton, Sept. 21.—Attaining a lead of eight holes over Miss Ada Mackenzie in the Saturday morning round, and increasing it by one during the first nine holes in the afternoon, Miss Glenna Collett ended the match at the 28th hole and won the Canadian ladies' open golf title by a 9 and 8 victory, and became the fourth player who has scored two or more successive times in the nineteen years that the competition has been in progress.

Others who have won the title twice or more in a row are Miss F. Harvey, in 1903-4, Miss N. Thompson in 1905-6-7-8, and Miss Dorothy Campbell (Mrs. Hurd) 1910-11-12. Miss Thompson also won it in 1902.

In defeating the 1919 champion Miss Collett displayed a brand of golf that has never before been witnessed in Canada, and although Miss Mackenzie was in her regular form had she had the breaks of the match the result would have been no different. Had she been at the top of her game, however, the margin of victory would have been less.

Miss Collett set a new ladies' record for the course in the morning round when she shot a 76, five less than par, this being done to a phenomenal 36 on the homeward journey. In the afternoon with a good margin at her disposal, she led nearly two holes with Miss Mackenzie until the match ran out, but she had to play better than par golf to keep the Toronto lady from cutting down the margin. Miss Mackenzie played much better golf in the afternoon than she did in the morning.

IS HUNG WITH TITLES.

Walter Hagen was dominant in every match of the U. S. pro. tourney just closed, and had his hardest fight against Farrell of New York, who carried the British open titleholder to the 34th green.

TOURNEY ARRANGED BY ST. MATTHEW'S CLUB

St. Matthew's Bowling Club will hold a tournament Saturday of this week. Four sets of valuable prizes will be given. The tourney will be open to all clubs in and around the city, and the first 28 rinks will be accepted. Entries close Friday at 8 p.m. Mail or phone entries to J. L. Elgie, 907 Lorne avenue, or phone 3677W.

Play Women's Net Finals Wednesday

The women's finals of the Western Ontario Tennis League, which was to have been played here Saturday afternoon between teams from Walkerville and St. Catharines, had to be postponed owing to rain.

The league has ordered the matches to be played here on Wednesday afternoon, starting at 1 o'clock sharp on the courts of the London Tennis Club. Both teams had reached the city earlier in the day, but returned home later.

Convener Haney Calls Meeting For Sarnia.

The schedule for the local rugby district will be drawn up at Sarnia today. W. S. Haney, M.P.P., convener of the group, has announced the meeting for the border town today.

Petrolia's decision to enter the group once more, taken Saturday after the youngsters had beaten the old boys in a special game, will be hailed with joy in both London and Sarnia, for whom a rugby season would not be complete without Petrolia in to make it a three-cornered argument.

Senators' Lead Lengthens Tiger Jinx Hangs To Yanks

TIGERS' BIG SIXTH

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Louis, Sept. 21.—Washington increased its lead to two full games over New York today by defeating the Browns, 6 to 4, in a seven-inning game, called on account of darkness, while the Yankees were losing their third successive game in Detroit.

Washington took the lead in the third inning. McNeely drew a lucky triple when Williams fell over the infield canvas cover while chasing his fly. Rice walked. McNeely scored, and Rice went to second on Goslin's sacrifice, and Rice counted on Judge's single.

After increasing their lead to three in the fourth, the Senators saw the Browns take a one-run advantage. Robertson singled to left, and Sisler beat out an infield roller. Robertson went to third on Williams' fly, and scored on a wild pitch. McManus singled, driving in Sisler, and Jacobson then hit his nineteenth home run of the season.

Goslin's home run into the right field bleachers tied the score in the fifth. Washington won the game in the sixth. Zachery walked, and was forced by McNeely. Harris grounded to Robertson. McNeely tried to take two bases on the infield out, and when Sisler threw wildly to third McNeely scored. Another run was added in the seventh. Zachery held the Browns safely in the last three innings.

British Soccer Results

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Sept. 21.—Forty thousand people saw Arsenal defeat Sheffield United 2 to 0 yesterday, a game in which the veteran Rutherford scored in the second successive match. The win regained for Arsenal their position as runners-up to Huddersfield, the latter being able only to split points with Blackburn Rovers, a feat on the part of the Lancastrians that is considered highly meritorious.

Saturday's game was postponed on account of rain.

O.A.L.A. Semi-Final Round Won By Sugar Town Crew

St. Catharines Takes Second Game 7—5, But Loses on Series.

PLAY IN RAIN

By HARRY SHIRLEY.
Special to The Advertiser.

St. Catharines, Sept. 21.—In pouring rain and before a large crowd of spectators the Wallaceburg intermediate lacrosse team qualified to meet Brampton in the O. A. L. A. finals by retaining a two-goal lead over St. Catharines on the latter's ground Saturday. After a gruelling tussle St. Kitts won the game 7 to 5, but was unable to overcome the four-goal lead which the visitors had accummulated in the previous game. Wallaceburg fans who accompanied their team numbered about 150. The weather conditions made good lacrosse impossible. Len Smith of Toronto, and Ernie Doyle of Newmarket were in charge of the game.

The game was cleanly contested, although a few penalties were awarded for minor infringements. Although the ground was well policed, many attempts were made by the local fans to interfere with the visiting players from the side lines, and they were throughout subjected to wild tongue lashings.

Although starting senationally in the first period, when the home team scored within half a minute, through Trubin, the remainder of the period was Wallaceburg's, and goals were scored by Lawson 2, McGill and McDougall, without reply.

St. Kitts came back strong in the second period, when play circled around the Wallaceburg net, and Ducette added two goals.

In the third period from the face-off, Flagstaff scored, and Bennett and Stewart added in quick succession. Shortly after the start of the last period McLean, with a clear field, ran through and scored, and later Stewart added for the home team, and throughout the last stage Wallaceburg came back strongly.

Wallaceburg will now meet Brampton in the finals and it is expected that the first of the home and home games will take place at Brampton this week, and the return game at Wallaceburg on Thursday, October 2.

The lineups:

Wallaceburg—Murdock, goal; Stonehouse, point; McGee, cover; McGill, first defence; O'Brien, second defence; Weir centre; McLean, first home; Wickens, second home; Lawson outside; King, inside; Farby, Saint, McDougall, spares.

St. Kitts—Williamson, goal; Cheevers, point; Sheehan, cover; Ducette, first defence; Martin, second defence; Bennett, centre; Wagstaff, first home; Lounsberry second home; Turbin, outside; Stewart, inside; Fury, Rymer and Sheehan, spares.

STOREKEEPER IS HURT BY EXPLOSION OF GAS

A gas explosion in a grocery store at 457½ Talbot street yesterday afternoon caused considerable damage in the basement of the store and slightly injured Joseph Good, the owner.

The gas, which had been leaking from a range, burst into flame, when Mr. Good struck a match to light the stove. Windows in the store were shattered by the force of the explosion and passersby, attracted by the loud detonation, called the fire department.

The fire, which started directly after the explosion, was extinguished with little trouble. Mr. Good had his hands cut from the broken glass, but managed to make his escape from the caller which quickly became filled with gas fumes.

GANG OF ROWDIES.

North end residents are being disturbed by a band of rowdies, who have been interfering at corn and weiner roasts along the north branch of the Thames.

On Friday night five constables were called to the scene of a weiner roast, but the intruders fled on their arrival, and as the chaperone of the party did not wish to take any further actions, the matter was dropped.

Police are, however, on the lookout for the gang, who have been thrusting their presence on various parties.

Radio Will Cut Down Divorces

San Francisco Judge Says Families Will Be Kept Together.

San Francisco, Sept. 20.—Have you a little radio in your home? If you have, the chances are almost two to one that your marriage barque will never be wrecked on the shoals of divorce.

Judge Graham, whose more than 20 years' experience in handling divorce problems has made him known as an authority, was emphatic in stating today that radio was science's greatest offering to a world suffering from the evils of divorce.

"This jazz girl we've been hearing so much of nowadays is merely a girl who wants to dance. She likes good music, and wants to enjoy a dance now and then. When her husband comes home too tired to change his clothes and take her out she finds ways of getting her entertainment without him.

"Now the radio family, and there are milions of them, knows litle of such situations. Papa comes home, tunes in on some good hotel orchestra, and the first thing you know, Mr. steps without having to go down town steps without having to go town town and spend a lot of money.

The same holds true," Judge Graham continued, "for that other type that contributes so many divorces to the calendar—the restless husband.

"He was the man who rushed from dinner to his club, or if in less fortunate circumstances, to a game of pool with the boys on the corner.

KITCHENER TEAMS PLAY AGAIN TONIGHT

Special to The Advertiser.

Kitchener, Sept. 21.—Owing to the heavy rainfall Saturday the senior and intermediate Twin City softball finals were all postponed. Arrangements have been completed for the play-offs as follows:

Monday: Knights of Columbus and Knights of Pythias in second intermediate final, and if a third game is necessary, the K. of C. team having won the first, it will be played Friday night. The senior final between Kitchener Maple Leafs and Waterloo Lutherans will be played Wednesday.

All these games will start at 5:15 and will be handled by Ike Master and Marsh Cochrane.

WEIGHTS OF PRODUCE ON MARKET CORRECT

Butter Found To Be Trifle Under Weight in One Case.

Although Inspector Sanders and Mr. Rose executed justice in one case, where butter weighed a little under the required weight, with a severe reprimand, the culprit who sold the 72 pounds of potatoes for 90 pounds was not found on Saturday.

"With the exception of one case where potatoes were a trifle under weight and another where butter was lacking in weight, we found all produce up to the mark, and in most cases a pound or so over," was Mr. Roses's statement this morning.

"The search will be resumed next Saturday, when we will test all produce. This will require time, but we are determind to get the man or woman who deliberately cheated a person of 18 pounds of potatoes," continued Mr. Rose.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT

Toronto Architect Soon To Present Plans Before the St. Thomas Board.

The present outlook regarding the proposed vocational school at St. Thomas is exceptionally bright.

The architect, R. D. Franklin of Toronto, is at the present time busily occupied in completing the plans, which he promises to submit to the board of education for inspection in the near future, when tenders will be received by the board.

It is expected that operations will commence on the new site about the first of October.

The school, when finished, will contain the elementary classes of St. Thomas, including commercial and vocational classes, while the present building will house the second, third and fourth form pupils.

Among the modern improvements, the school will be equipped with a spacious auditorium, an up-to-date gymnasium and a swimming pool. At first, it is probable that the same teachers will have control over both buildings. It is anticipated that this will be only temporary. One of the problems will be to foster a co-ordinating spirit between the new and the old schools.

COBB MAKES 200TH HIT AND BASEBALL HISTORY.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb made baseball history on the afternoon of Saturday, Sept. 20, 1924. When he drove a single over second in the first inaing he recorded his two hundredth hit of the season. So 1924 becomes the ninth season in Cobb's spectacular career in which he made 200 or more hits. The previous record was eight seasons and Cobb held the honor jointly with the late "Wee Willie" Keeler.

It is doubtful if this mark of 200 or more hits for nine seasons will ever be equalled. Certainly there is no player in the baseball realm at present who threatens the mark. The man who will equal it, if baseball ever finds the man, is not included in the major league batting averages now.

Cobb made two hits Saturday, one more than he needed. His first hit scored Haney from third with the first run of the game. His second hit was a two-bagger, opening the fifth. Neilmann sacrificed and Cobb scored on Pratt's fly. So he was responsible for both runs made off Pennock.

Associated Press Despatch.

A small crowd saw his train pull out from a siding a quarter-mile west of the Syosset Station.

The prince's departure from Long Island was somewhat similar to his departure from Southampton, England, at the beginning of his present trip. He boarded the Berengaria late one night from a launch, climbing a rope ladder at the ship's side and eluding the crowd on the dock to see him off.

Tonight his train, first stopping at the station to take on baggage, suddenly drew off to the siding, a manoeuvre of which even members of the prince's staff were ignorant, and his royal highness boarded it from a roadside near the rear entrance of the Burden estate, where he stayed here.

The crowd of local residents that had stood at the station for more than an hour went stumbling over the ties and brush to follow the train as it backed off. A few succeeded in catching up with it, and saw the prince climb to the observation platform. Motion picture photographers set off flares as the prince stood for a few minutes smoking a cigarette.

The train began to move as the prince leaned out and said to one of his staff: "You will send these things on won't you?" He raised his hat to the few who had survived the ordeal of chasing the train, and smiled. Members of his staff boarded the train at the station.

Issues Statement.

Just before boarding his train, the prince issued the following statement:

"I am leaving the U. S. A. tonight with a very real regret. This is not only the end of a very thoroughly enjoyable three weeks, which I shall never forget, but it also involves saying good-bye to a host of friends who ever since I landed in their country have done everything in their power to make me welcome. Your president and all his fellow-citizens which whom I have come into contact have united to offer me the right hand of good fellowship. Very many others whom I have never met have taken the trouble to write to me kind words which have touched deeply. It has not been possible for me to answer such letters as fully as I should wish, but I am glad to have this chance of telling the writers collectively how I value their good wishes. Many of them have sent such cordial invitations to districts of the United States to which I have not yet been that I hope more than ever that it may be possible for me some day to make an extended tour of this great country. I have made the most of these three weeks which for me could not have been more enjoyable, but the chief memory which I shall carry away with me is the best of all memories for a departing guest, one of good sportsmanship and sympathy."

TORNADO KILLS SIX.

Associated Press Despatch.

Ashland, Wisconsin, Sept. 22.—Six persons were killed and seven were reported injured on farms near Sanbarn, a village five miles south of Ashland, in a tornado which swept the northern part of the Maringen valley.

Mine Explosion Imprisons Five In Shaft In Utah

Associated Press Despatch.

Sault Lake City, Utah, Sept. 21.—Five men are reported to be entombed in the Rains mine of the Carbon fuel company at Rains, near Castle Gate, about 100 miles south of here as the result of an explosion at 6 p.m. tonight.

Although more than 200 men are employed in the mine, only five drill men who were cutting out work for Monday were on shift when the explosion occurred, according to meagre reports from the mine.

STAFF CHANGES MADE IN ST. THOMAS "HIGH"

Dr. Voaden, Principal, Makes Announcement at Opening of Fall Term.

"There have been many changes in the staff of the collegiate institute of St. Thomas since last year, and we hope that they will prove as successful as the teachers in the past." This was the statement made by Dr. Voaden at the reopening of the collegiate for the fall term.

Miss Laura Phillips, who has a B.A. degree from Toronto University and has taken a summer course in physical culture at Harvard, has taken the place of Miss Anne Tanner. Miss Tanner expects to teach this year in one of the Toronto schools.

G. C. Horne, who has a B.S.A. degree from the Ontario Agricultural College, is teaching physical culture in agriculture in Mr. Martin's place. Mr. Martin is now in Regina and is to leave shortly for an extended trip to Australia and New Zealand. Henry Downer, a specialist in science, with a B.A. degree from Toronto, is teaching science in the place of Miss Bodkin. Miss Bodkin is now with her sister in California, where she is teaching.

C. A. Brubacker, a graduate from Toronto University, a specialist in English, is taking Miss McLaurin's place. Miss McLaurin is in Renfrew taking a rest.

LONE DRUNK IS FINED WITH TELEPHONE SENTENCE

Although one lone drunk spent Saturday night in the police cells, his abode proved irksome and he decided that another night in the cells to wait for Monday morning and police court would be too much.

Magistrate Graydon was called on the telephone and his case was heard over the wire.

"There's a man here arrested last night for being drunk," the desk sergeant told the magistrate. "He's all right now and he wants to know his fine."

POLICE COURT IS EMPTY WHEN MAGISTRATE ARRIVES

For the second time within a week no cases appeared before Magistrate Graydon in police court this morning. London was decidedly quiet over the week-end, only one drunk being arrested.

The only other name which appeared on the police court blotter was that of an offender against the highway traffic act. He, too, paid his fine out of court.

PETROLIA DECIDES TO ENTER GROUP

Special to The Advertiser.

Petrolia, Sept. 21.—The local intermediate 1924 squad will have the honor of upholding the prestige of Petrolia in the O. R. F. U. series, it was announced late Saturday night by the rugby executive after long discussion. The showing of this year's team when they defeated the old boys on Saturday afternoon by the score of 9—6, warranted their entry into the series. Playing in a drizzling rain with mud ankle deep, the Hard Oils gained the confidence of the few enthusiastic fans who braved the weather to witness the contest.

The game was hard-fought, with the 1924 team having the best of the play throughout. Fumbles were numerous. Jo-jo Stirrett of London and Art Wilson of Sarnia were held by the locals, while Mandeville Scharfe, Dobbie and Campbell tore holes in the old boys' line. The present Hard Oils had the lead throughout the game, gathering in three points by rouges during the first half. Jack Stirrett, coach of the team, made a touchdown in the third stanza, which was converted. The former Hard Oils were saved from a shutout when Art Wilson gathered in a fumbled ball and went over for a touch which he converted in the last minute of play.

The old boys presented five of the Sarnia intermediate players, namely: Art Wilson, King Houston, Red Wilson, Sam Stokes, Fonk Follard and George Stirrett of Sarnia. It is understood that now that Petrolia's entry is assured a meeting will be called by Convener Wilfred Haney on Monday to to draw up a schedule, the first game, it is said, to be staged next Saturday, September 27.

The lineup:

Old Boys—Flying wing George Stirrett; halves, Stokes, Wilson, Houston; quarter, Jojo Stirrett; snap, Earl Smith; insides, Webb, Droupe; middles, Polyard, Red Wilson; outsides, Caldyell, Deacon; spare, B. Churchill.

Officials—Gallivan and Hale.

Railroaders Provide Surprise of Season By Running Up 3—1 Score.

ATTENDANCE SMALL

SOCCER KICK-OFFS
By LINESMAN

Saturady's game proved the surprise of the season, and the Railroaders have accomplished their one desire this season.

To beat the Leafs is no small achievement, and proves conclusively that it can be done. Those who turned out to witness the game must have been well satisfied, as the game was interesting all through.

Owing to the small attendance, there is a movement on foot to get the same teams to play an exhibition game at an early date for the injured players' fund. A game of this description should attract a large crowd and boost the cause.

By a coincidence all the goals were scored for the Railroaders by two halfbacks, Astles 2, and Ince 1, but both were in the forward line in the second half.

Captain Astles of the C. N. R. was playing at a disadvantage all through the game, as his knee gave out early in the game, so that his share in the victory was all the more meritorious.

Ince, Whitelow and Burgess were easily the Railroaders' best, while Alf Ince simply revelled in the mud.

Wheatly who played his first senior game for the Leafs, did well, and kicked a good length ball. This player made a favorable impression.

Cunningham played a hard game at half for the Leafs, and Holt was easily the best forward on the field, while Forrester worked hard without results.

Whitelow and Ince changed places in the second half, and Ince got the last goal.

The district council are holding a meeting at the Armories on Thursday next. Important business is to be discussed, while last year's McCutcheon Cup committee will also be present. The meeting is called for 7:30. Council members please note.

The Thistles had Young operating at outside right on Saturday, and there is no doubt that the diminutive player knows the game. Young will make another Tiny Toombs if he keeps up his present form.

The Nash Trophy game between the W. O. R. and C. N. R. resulted in a win for the Soldiers, 4—3, last Thursday.

The Leafs are scheduled to play o provincial league game with Lynden next Wednesday, while on Saturday they should play their Ontario Cup tie with Cockshutts at Brantford.

Mimico Beach, this season's Connaught Cup district finalists, are still in the Ontario Cup and will be a hard team to beat.

ARGUMENT AFTER AUTO CRASH TIES UP TRAFFIC

When two motor cars met in collision on the Wharncliffe road highway yesterday afternoon, traffic was tied up for several minutes while the owners of the cars engaged in a heated argument.

One car was badly damaged, having the rear fender torn off and the rear wheel and tire broken. The owners left their cars in the exact position in which the accident happened, blocking the highway. In a few minutes hundreds of Sunday motorists had gathered and it was some time before the jam could be straightened out, and the traffic regulated.

GRAND AVENUE CLOSED DURING PAVING WORK

Grand avenue, between Ridout street and Bellevue avenue, has been closed while a portion of the road is being paved.

The laying of sewers along Grand avenue in the early summer necessitated the breaking up of the pavement at Smallman's creek in front of the residence of Mrs. T. H. Smallman. The pavement at this spot is expected to be finished by tomorrow night, when the road will again be open to motorists.

Railroaders Provide Surprise of Season By Running Up 3—1 Score.

ATTENDANCE SMALL

The C. N. R.'s provided the surprise of the season on Saturday when they beat the Maple Leafs 3 to 1, and won the Thomas Furniture Trophy in the final of the Injured Players' competition at the Sackville street grounds. Owing to the weather conditions there was only a small attendance on hand, but those who braved the elements were rewarded by seeing a well-contested game and the railroaders achieve the distinction of beating the Leafs.

The first half was well contested, the Leafs having the edge. Both teams, however, played well under adverse conditions. In the earlier stages the Leafs forced several corners, but without success. While a free kick taken by Cunningham almost brought success, Wheatley tipping a well-directed shot over the bar. It was a nice save by the goalie, but from the resultant corner kick the Railroaders cleared.

The second half started in brisk style, the Leafs making tracks for the Railroaders' goal. After five minutes Holt scored for them. The Railroaders were not to be denied and about ten minutes later Astles secured the equalizing goal. This success but new life into the Railroaders, and they renewed their efforts, and Astles, who was now playing at inside left, scored another goal, Nudds letting the ball bounce from his hands.

The Railroaders were certainly holding the Leafs who, however, tried desperately to equalize, but without success. Ince, for the Railroaders, hereabouts got the ball near the halfway line and ran through. Nudds came out to meet him but missed the ball, the result being that Ince again scored for the Railroaders. There was no further scoring and the Railroaders won a well-contested game. E. Wilkins refereed.

At the conclusion of the game President Morgan of the district, presented the cup to Astles of the C. N. R., congratulating the players on their success, and President Ritchie of the C. N. R. F. C. suitably replied.

The teams:

C. N. R.—Wheatley, Burgess, Thorne, Astles, Ince, Askew, Hazelgood, Macfarlane, Whitelow, Bearchill, Thompson.

Leafs—Nudds, D. Smith, Hutchings, D. Smith, A. Smith, Cunningham, Taylor, Forrester, A. Stark, Milne, Holt.

Thistles 2, C. N. R. 1.

The junior game between the Thistles and C. N. R. was an interesting contest throughout, and although the Thistles won 2 to 1, the Railroaders played well all through the game. Davies, at outside left, scored for the Thistles in the first half. In the second half Beasley scored a nice goal, while Henderson secured the Railroaders' only point. Spilsbury refereed.

HYDE PARK HIGHWAY OPEN IN TWO WEEKS

No Ceremony Will Make the Completion of Two-Mile Stretch.

The Hyde Park highway, two miles of paving which join London West to the Sarnia gravel road, will not be open for traffic for two weeks, County Engineer Charles Talbot announced this morning.

Mr. Talbot explained that while paving operations had been completed there was still some grading to be done before the road would be open to traffic.

Asked if there would be any ceremonies in connection with the road, completed under the direction of the Suburban Area Commission, Mr. Talbot stated that the bars would be merely taken down and that no ceremony of any kind would be held.

SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

The condition of Miss Doris Tanner was reported by St. Joseph's Hospital authorities today to be very much improved. Miss Tanner was struck by an automobile some time ago on Richmond street, and she has been confined to the hospital suffering from broken ribs and other injuries.

Studying Reasons For Divorce.

Too much wealth, especially if it comes quickly, is blamed by Charles Lobdell for the deluge of divorce that sweeps United States. He points to 112,037 divorces in 1916, and notes that in 1923 the number had increased to 148,554, and seeks to give the answer.

Statistics he uses show that the highest divorce rate is found in centers where there is most wealth; going farther in the same direction, and analyzing individual cases, the investigator claims that the sudden acquiring of great wealth during the years of the war and immediately after is the stone on which men and women, apparently happily married, have stumbled.

Why? His explanation is at least interesting. When the man was busy all day at the office, and his wife had her hands full at home, they were both busy. There were payments to make on the house, insurance premiums to be met; there was the planning for the children, and the necessity of doing it all and still making ends meet. All the circumstances of occupation for both man and wife tended to draw them closer together. Each step in advance was a movement in which they both shared, and from which both drew inspiration because it gave them a sense of accomplishment.

Then came prosperity. There was no need to worry about payments on the house; if necessary the whole obligation could be wiped out by a stroke of the pen; there was no further need of mutual planning; no need whatever for man and wife to sit down at night after the day's work and see how things were coming along.

The result of new wealth in large quantities had the same result in many cases, and two effects crowd toward the front and explain much (1) an attempt on the part of both man and wife to satisfy longings for luxury, and (2) a disposition toward idleness.

The husband was freed from the discipline of limited circumstances; he did not have to school himself; he no longer had to keep in condition and well abreast of the work he had in hand. He entered into a field for which he had no preparation. In many cases the records show that newly-acquired wealth meant only a cutting loose from the old and tried moorings and the throwing out of the sails to winds of appetite that blew in the direction of lust, pleasure and the great uncharted sea of idleness and a purposeless existence.

Dealing with the wives, Mr. Lobdell finds that they became "dizzy from sudden wealth." They felt themselves freed from the bondage of home life. They did not stop to think that this "bondage" was the safest anchor to which they could ride. Their search for new pleasures, greater freedom, new friends more in keeping with their new wealth, led them off on a tangent from the old life. Husband and wife no longer found a common ground around which they could center their affection or herd their enterprise. They entered each a world quite apart from that of the other. Such a circumstance is a fine breeding-ground for distrust and a hotbed for suspicion. The records of so many of the divorces are so much alike along these grounds that the reading becomes monotonous because they vary only in degree.

By the same rule it is found that a financial condition where the family income needs to be nursed and carefully tended produces a low divorce rate. A study of many districts proves this, and there is common sense to back it up. It is, after all, the condition that makes competent men and capable women. Husband and wife know their limitations, they are interested in common objects—the securing of a home, the education and care of children, and probably insurance and provision for old age. It may be a state that is hedged about, but the fact that it is hedged about is a token of safety, as well as an emblem of limitation.

Taking the Mask Off.

The Brantford Expositor calls attention to circulars being put out by a firm of Montreal stock brokers, urging the purchase of two stocks making alcoholic beverages. The speed with which these circulars are being put out is evidence of what the Montreal brokers think of the contest in Ontario. Their interpretation is that a change in Ontario will mean a greater demand for liquor; this in turn will bring more business to the firms making alcoholic drinks.

Speaking of the stocks of the companies in which this firm, McCuaig Bros., is interested, the circular proceeds to give these views on the Ontario situation and what government control will mean. It says:

"The announcement that the Ontario referendum plebiscite on the liquor question will take place on the 23rd of next month is likely to bring the stocks of the two above-mentioned companies very much into the limelight during the coming month, as it is thought that the prospects are decidedly in favor of the repeal of existing prohibition laws owing partly to the failure to enforce them and partly to the large revenue which the province would derive from the sale of spirituous beverages. If Ontario goes wet it is obvious that companies like National Breweries and Canadian Industrial Alcohol stand to benefit very substantially, since, as we have before pointed out, over a third of the entire population of Canada live in that province. As both companies have worked into a strong position and are making large earnings, their stocks are attractive at current level, quite apart from the above-mentioned development."

It is quite evident that government control does not mean a lessening of the demand for liquor. The men in Montreal who seek to interest Ontario investors in brewery stocks know what government control means in Quebec, and what it will mean in Ontario. It will mean more liquor, not less. If it did that circular letter would never have been sent out. Ontario will be well advised to keep away from a system that will make an investment in breweries profitable because there will be a greater sale for the product in this province.

Criticising Canada's War Effort.

Sir Arthur Currie has received continent-wide publicity on the address he made criticizing the manner of Canada's war effort. Some papers go so far as to comment on his denunciation as under the title, "Sir Arthur Currie Rips the Roof Off."

It was no doubt a keen arraignment of the war governments of Canada, delivered by one in a position to know whereof he spoke from actual observation. He started with the number of men who were sent overseas, and said: "One hundred thousand men were enlisted and sent to England who were of no use to us in the field." And yet the cry at that time was for men and still more men. It does not come as any great compliment to the manhood of Canada who enlisted, knowing the struggle they were sure to face, to be told now that 100,000 "were of no use in the field."

Sir Arthur claims that expert advice was ignored in Canada when it should have been listened to.

Britain made mistakes in the war. When it came she was not prepared. In her preparation she used much effort that was not effective; her generals in the Gallipoli affair made decisions that were faulty, and there were other moves that are now conceded as mistakes, if not blunders.

But Britain did what she could. It took time to get fully under way, but she kept on. There were experts there who advised things that turned out to be mistakes. The nation was faced with a great crisis, and all possible power had to be brought to bear on one object. At all times there was the element of urgency that clamored with seasoned deliberation to speed up, and when it came to a choice between these two forces urgency and speed had the call.

United States had a similar experience. She has on her books today wooden ships that were turned out at peak prices. They cost hundreds of millions, and they never carried a pound of food a mile. They are on the auction block today, and it would be an easy matter to point to them as wasted effort. That is just what they were, but it was effort just the same.

Canada's war effort was an outstanding contribution. The men who went were the best we had to send. They made their full contribution as they were permitted to do, and fifty thousand of them never returned. Canada's efforts in the manufacture of munitions was a bright chapter in her history. She started from nothing, and speeded up to a production that for excellence and volume was not equalled on the continent.

It serves no particularly good purpose for even such an outstanding man as Sir Arthur Currie to criticize, six years after the war has closed, the efforts put forth by Canadian people when they had set their face to the stern business of war. Canada recalls and acknowledges with grateful memory the contribution of her sons and daughters. It was a noble effort.

Germany's Wise Move.

Germany has not formulated conditions upon which she will enter the League of Nations, and the prospects are that she will make application to be admitted on the same grounds as any other nation.

That is the only way in which Germany can enter the league. It would be the height of diplomatic stupidity to imagine that there would be special concessions to Germany, or that there would be an admission on the part of the allied nations that Germany had nothing to do with the starting of the war.

Germany's big chance is in the future, not in the past, and she would be well advised to put up a detour sign when it comes to the matter of who started the war.

A professor says that short words are always preferable to long ones. Quite so, and in a political campaign it's so much easier to refer to an opponent as a liar than a prevaricator.

A man in the Home Bank who would sign any kind of a statement was described as a rubber stamp. The difference is that a rubber stamp often gets whacked on a correct statement.

Those who imagined that the auto had put the horse out of commission are asked to explain how it happened that the National Horseshoers' Protective Association held a convention in Pittsburg.

Experts confirm the previous report that the "death ray" is a myth, and has none of the powers of destruction claimed for it. Yet for a time it seemed to have enough power to cause the nations of the world to trip over each other in a mad rush to get hold of it.

THE GREAT BERNARR.

(Thus McFadden advertises).
"If so, do yourself service
Taking Bernarr's exercises.
You'll acquire health and vigor,"
(The advertisement continues).
"You'll regain that boyish figure
With deep curves and manly sinews."

Reading this, I gave up boozing
And tried out McFadden's system,
Lifting weights and always snoozing
Without blankets—Boy, I missed 'em!
Eating figs and bathing daily
In ice water, jumping, skipping,
Playing tennis, golfing daily,
To long dances lightly tripping.

Though I froze and baked and sweated,
No steel muscles came to gladden,
But for sunstroke I'm indebted
To my friend Bernarr McFadden.
Now when I survey my figure,
Which near killed me to acquire,
I can't help but think with vigor
That McFadden guy's a liar!

"Cow Runs Wild; Owner Fined $2."—Local newspaper headline.

"Well, I see that Daisy, Jim Crow's only cow, has been up in police court," Heeza Dumb, prominent reformer, observed. "It's just as I expected. I knew Daisy was getting queer notions into her head the first time I saw her with her tail bobbed.

"Daisy always was a strange cow. When all respectable cows were in bed she used to run about at nights patronizing fast barns and drinking from all-night troughs.

"Daisy was not a contented cow. I don't believe she ever gave a drop of Carnation milk in her life. At an early age she became addicted to nicotine. When she was six months old Jim left his tobacco in the barn and Daisy chewed it until she was sick.

Daisy was a terrible flapper. She flapped her tail so much that Jim finally decided to give her a boyish bob. As it turned out, this was her undoing.

Last week she got her tail caught in a fence and when she loosened herself the tail was marcelled. Just yesterday Jim found her chewing a lipstick.

"Now Daisy is beyond redemption. She rolls her eyes at the horses and has a bad effect on Jim's pigs. She wears the most expensive cowbells in the county and is fast getting a bad reputation.

Readin' the Paper

I like to read the paper now, to scan the pages through and through, when I have laid by bucksaw by and haven't nothin' else to do.

Like most folks do I read the heads to see what new things be the rage, I gaze upon the probs and then I turn unto the Want Ad page.

'Tis there I see between the lines the things what people hope to do, there's some what's partin' with the old, and castin' 'bout for things that's new.

Here is one chap who washes cars, a handy man to have about, another has a suit of clothes, of late he's growed a trifle stout, so he will sell his raiment cheap to one whose bones are near the top, 'tis then he'd park his framework in some nifty haberdasher's shop.

Another chap he has two stoves he'll sell unto some honest man, he guarantees they're set for work to cook the liver and the ham.

A hopeful parent says he has a baby cart that he don't need, a thing most handy in this age, a careful sort of peaceful steed, wherein the youngster of the house can be perambulated in the joy of father's Sunday stroll, the makin's of his kith and kin.

And farther down another chap who's skilled in music's nimble art is asking for the youngsters now to come and make an early start, and he will teach 'em many things how music makin' ought to go, to tickle on piano keys or twang the tuneful old banjo.

Some gay young lad he wants a house, a careful gent he surely be, he's asking for a tiny place just big enough for her and me. No doubt he's been a-courtin' her and thinks it's time to settle down, a-startin' in a humble way, a-livin' in a goodly town.

And if he looks about a spell this lover he'll see fifteen things, he'll see a milkman with his wares, a chap likewise sells wedding rings. Also a man to sell him coal, another offers him a bed, a plumber offers to perform his science, sealed in brass and lead.

'Tis thus I ramble through these Ads, and note just how the old world goes, how some with fattened ribs and joints is sellin' off their Sunday clothes. It's human like in every line, I see the happy wives and dads, they're makin' every copper count by talkin' in these 'Tiser Ads.—ARK.

PRACTICAL PACIFISM

All who are pacifists do not desire to deliver up their country to any foe that will come and take it. They desire to protect their country and think that this can better be done by a working agreement with other nations than by war.

It is constantly held and stated that pacifism means the absence of love of country. But a pacifist can love his country as intelligently as any militarist. It is only a question of judgment.

The method of protecting their country by increasing its attacking power has been tried over and over again and has failed. It would seem that some other method should be tried.

Perhaps it will take a long while to grow up a sentiment that shall properly back the effort to bring the nations together. The idea must win its way by its inherent common sense and against all forms of misconstruction and misstatement.

America is essentially a peace-loving country and the people of every country are peace-loving. They do not go into war except as their passions are inflamed and as the men play upon their feelings of nationalism and pride.

Whatever, therefore, can help to increase the intelligence of a people and of the diplomats who represent them, whatever can establish the spirit of compromise, without which no peace is possible, must help a little.

It is certain that no nation, just as no individual, can maintain its superiority over all others, it must give way a little. It must abate somewhat of its spirit or pride or vanity for the sake of peace.

Whatever shall bring the nations of the world together and lead them to act for the good of all, instead of for the good of their separate country, will be of value.

Labor and art and commerce are more and more absorbing the interests of the people. War, as a profession, is losing ground, and in time the efforts of every population will be directed rather toward making the individual country serve the world than to dominate the world.

FLIERS ARE NEARING FINAL DESTINATION

U. S. Globe-Circlers Have Uneventful Flight From El Paso to Tucson, Arizona.

Associated Press Despatch.

DONALD KIRKE GIVES TANLAC FULL CREDIT

That Montreal playgoers are literally packing the Orpheum Theatre at every performance is at once a tribute to the high standard of the entertainment offered and to the finished artistry of the famous Duffy stock players, not the least popular of whom is Donald Kirke.

Mr. Kirke is not only a favorite on the legitimate stage, but is a screen player of note, and it is a further tribute to his consummate acting that, even while tortured with stomach trouble, nervous and other ills, he kept "on with the play" day in and day out until he found relief by taking Tanlac. As he says:

"My stomach had almost failed me and I wonder now how I ever kept up, I ate so little. Nights I would toss and turn for hours in nervousness; piercing sick headaches made me suffer agony, and at times on the stage I was so nervous, weak and trembly that I could hardly remember my lines.

"I would have given a thousand dollars to get the relief Tanlac has given me for less than five dollars. My appetite was never better. I eat everything, and have gained 12 pounds. I'm never a bit weak or nervous, never have a headache, and I feel fine. I will gladly confirm these facts by phone or letter."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

BIDDULPH BOY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Special to The Advertiser.

Lucan, Sept. 21.—William McGee, aged 12, son of the late Martin and Mrs. McGee of Biddulph Township, was struck by a motor car at the corner of Main and William streets about 7:30 this evening. He sustained a broken leg and severe injuries to the head. The auto was driven, it is reported, by a Strathroy resident.

The lad is reported to have run directly in front of the auto, which was moving at a moderate rate, and was stopped within its own length. Following first-aid attention at the office of Dr. Orme, the lad was taken to his home.

MUSKALUNGE FISHING AT FRENCH RIVER CAMP.

In the fall when the lunge become voracious and the life of a young fish is worth practically nothing, the fisherman comes into his own. Fighters to the last gasp, the lunge is the one fish that one prays will rise to the plug or minnow and when he does—well, try and yawn. A hot shore dinner in the heart of the lunge territory, French River, a rest, and then a recounting of the day's sport around the open fire, is something one never forgets.

The beauty of the woods in autumn, the snappy morning atmosphere when one's blood runs faster, good fishing, warm bungalows electrically lighted, and a clubhouse, with a huge fireplace, music, dancing—all these may be had at French River Bungalow Camp, which will remain open this year until Oct. 15th, following the request of patrons of the camp. The camp is only 215 miles north of Toronto, and any Canadian Pacific agent will gladly supply all information, make your reservations, etc. An hour's communion with a hungry lunge is worth a lifetime listening to the other fellow tell about it. Figures, too, hold Romance

General Motors Canadian Factories have a capacity of over 50,000 cars per year. That is the cold fact—but back of it stand other facts, just as true, but infinitely more human. Four thousand Canadians found pleasant, well-recompensed work in the making of General Motors cars in 1923. Over twenty thousand Canadians found pleasure and profit in owning them. Twenty-seven thousand of the cars went to distant lands, swinging the balance of trade towards Canada. Four hundred Canadian and British factories found a profitable customer in General Motors. A great industry has been born and is thriving in our midst. Figures, too, have a romance all their own.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Federal court fixes upset price of Denver and Rio Grande Western at $17,935,000.

Duns finds that while buying continues cautions and is confined to immediate requirements, there is a broadening in many quarters.

Kasas City Southern's net for August totalled $406,000, against $524,000 in August, 1923. For eight months it is $2,940,000, against $3,225,000.

Jones, Easton, McCallum—Taking a broad view of the market, one must be impressed by the many contradictory points which surround it. We have had a very substantial advance during the last few months, much of it based on the proposition that business improvement would follow. There has been some betterment. A favorable factor in the market is an overabundance of money. We are of the opinion that before the public will enter the market on a large scale there must be some assurance as to the sort of administration the U. S. is going to have the coming four years.

STRIKING TELEGRAPHERS RETURN TO WORK TONIGHT

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Sept. 22.—By nominating J. G. O'Donohue, Toronto lawyer, their representative on the board of conciliation granted by labor department to Canadian Press, the striking telegraphers say they have withdrawn from their attitude of striking. Rather than arbitrate, the men are offering to return to work tonight.

But the general manager, Livesay declines, saying that many positions are not now open, being filled by automatic telegraph printers, and he enumerates conditions on which some of the men will be taken back individually. Several men already have volunteered to work and these the company will amply protect.

Local Market

Fifteen loads of hay comprised practically the total of this mornig's offerings on the local market. They ranged in price from $14 to $17 a ton, and were of a good quality.

Plums, apples and tomatoes seem to be swamping the market of late, but this will not continue atfer next week; they are offered at the same prices.

The square this mornig was deserted except for a few buyers, who were busily hunting for bargains, which were not so plentiful as usual.

MODERATOR HEARD BY PRESBYTERIANS

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, Sept. 21.—Inspiring services marked the 89th anniversary of t. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, observed today. Sermons were delivered by the Right Rev. Clarence McKinnon, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church.

James N. Richards, 536 King street, has offered a reward for information as to the identity of a woman driver, whose motor car ran amuck and knocked down three boys, James Richards, aged 9, Kenneth Sanderson, aged 8, and Walter Fleming, who sustained injuries to his knee. The car cut a corner at Cross street, went over the boulevard across West street onto the boulevard where the lads were standing. A bicycle owned by James Richards was damaged.

The property committee intends to place before the city council a scheme which calls for a section of the city market to be reserved for wholesale business.

Members of the Dover Township Council expressed themselves as pleased with the dredging of Bear Creek, which serves as the main artery in a drainage scheme covering 40,000 acres of land in Dover, Chatham and Camden Townships. The dredging was recently completed at a cost of $80,000. When certain bridges are completed the total cost of the scheme will be approximately $140,000.

WHEAT SUFFERS ON CROP REPORTS

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, Sept 20.—Wheat underwent a decided setback today at the last. Prospective enlargement of the United States visible supply total on Monday was a weakening factor. Closing quotations for wheat were heavy, 2c to 2⅜c lower, December $1.31½ to $1.31¾, May $1.37⅜ to $1.37⅝. Corn was 1⅜c to 2⅛c down. Oats showed ½c to 1⅛c decline. Provisions were unchanged to 7c higher.

WINNIPEG

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Sept. 20.—After a very strong opening, wheat prices fell away on the local market today, and closed 1⅝c to 2⅛c lower than Friday. The opening was very strong, and considerable profit-taking followed, but offerings found rather poor buying demand, and the market eased off. A fair trade was passing.

Coarse grains continued firm, with little change in prices. Cash wheat was inactive, owing to very light stocks, and trade was very light. The weather continues unfavorable for harvesting.

Cash prices:

M'GIVERIN NAMED CABINET MEMBER.

Ottawa Member Had Splendid Record As Chairman of Various Committees.

LITTLE SURPRISE

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Sept. 21.—H. B. Hal McGiverin, K.C., one of the two Ottawa members, has been sworn in as a member of the cabinet without portfolio.

Mr. McGiverin's elevation to cabinet rank has been expected for some time. Last session he came much before the public as chairman of the private bills committee of the House which heard the church union bill. Mr. McGiverin in the later days of the session was also chairman of the Ontario subcommittee on redistribution, and the agreement reached in regard to the Ontario constituencies made passage of the bill possible. For two sessions Ontario had been the stumbling block in the redistribution scheme.

Mr. McGiverin is a native of Hamilton, and was educated in the Hamilton public schools, Upper Canada College and Osgoode Hall. For years he played international cricket, and was captain of the Canadian team for five years.

He was first elected to the House of Commons in 1908, but was defeated in 1911 and again in 1917. In 1921 he was re-elected as one of the Liberal members for Ottawa. Mr. McGiverin is accompanying the prime minister on his Western tour.

While rumor of cabinet reconstruction has been current for some time past, it is not expected that there will be any changes until the prime minister's return from the West.

Mr. McGiverin's appointment, as it is not salaried, will not entail a bye-election.

CANADIAN PACIFIC REBALLASTS ENTIRE LAKE SHORE LINE.

The work of reballasting the main line of the Canadian Pacific, between Toronto and Montreal (the Lake Ontario Shore Line), with nearly 2,000,000 tons of crushed rock, approximating 35,000 carloads, and relaying the line with new rails weighing 100 pounds to the yard, has just been completed, thus rendering it for smooth riding, freedom from dust and comfort in travel, second to none on the continent.

Trains leave the Union Station, Toronto, at 8:50 a.m., 10:00 p.m. and 11:00 p.m. daily; from Union Station, via Peterboro at 9:05 a.m., daily except Sunday, and from Yonge street station, Toronto, at 9:45 p.m., daily except Saturday.

Any Canadian Pacific Agent will gladly supply all information concerning connections with trains out of Toronto from points in Western Ontario, as well as arrange reservations, etc.—Advt.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED ON CRUELTY CHARGE

W. Waterfield of Arkona Was Arrested for Ill-Treatment of Horse.

That quality of mercy which ofttimes tempers the exacting demands of justice brought suspended sentence for W. Waterfield, a farmer living one and a half miles west of Arkona, when he appeared before J. Fuller, justice of the peace, in Port Lambton court Saturday to answer a charge of ill-treating a horse.

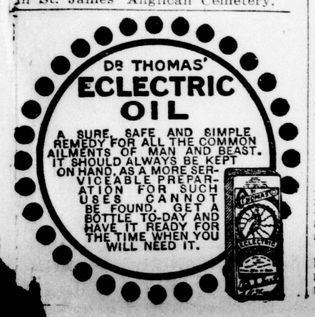

The charge was laid by George Tustin, district humane inspector, but after all the evidence had been heard Inspector Tustin urged the court to give the offender another chance. The circumstances surrounding the case bore weight with Justice Fuller in his decision to delay action.

The case attracted widespread interest, and the courtroom was filled with residents of the district.

PARIS ODDFELLOWS HOLD DECORATION DAY SERVICE

Special to The Advertiser.

Paris, Sept. 21.—The annual floral decoration services were held this afternoon by Grand River Lodge, No. 91, I. O. O. F. In spite of the threatening weather, there was a large turnout. Canton No. 3 of Brantford formed a guard of honor in full-dress uniform, and the procession to the cemetery was headed by the Salvation Army band. Following the decoration of graves, the oration by Rev. R. J. Seton-Adamson was quite in keeping with the occasion. Since the institution of the lodge some 50 years ago, 69 members have been interred in Paris Cemetery and four in St. James' Anglican Cemetery.

Hundredth Harvest Home of Church At Tyrconnel Honors Pioneer Settlers

St. Peter's Is One of Most Historic Edifices in Diocese of Huron.

CROWDS FILL AISLES

Special to The Advertiser.

Dutton, Sept. 21. — St. Peter's Church, Tyrconnel, one of the most historic churches in the Diocese of Huron, celebrated its 100th "Harvest Home" anniversary today. Rev. A. C. Calder, rector of Holy Trinity Church, Chatham, preached in the morning and told of the hardships of the early settlers and what is due them. At 3:30 p.m. Lord Bishop Harding, of the Diocese of Qu'Appelle, preached. The church was filled to overflowing at both services, many coming long distances.

This historic church has been honored by many bishops, but never before by a Lord Bishop of Qu'Appelle. An interesting coincidence in this visit today is that it is the anniversary of this church, and also the 15th anniversary of his appointment to the Diocese of Qu'Appelle.

Bishop Harding has the largest diocese in the Dominion, covering over 200,000 square miles, which is eight times larger than the Diocese of Huron and ten times that of Toronto.

The bishop took his text from the first Epistle of Paul to Timothy, developing from this that the people of today do not know their Bible as they did fifty years ago, and urged more definite study.

First Harvest Home.

He told of the first Harvest Home of the Anglican Church, sixty years ago in a little Cornish Church in England. "Of course," he said, "people previous to this had turned at all times thankfully to God, but never before did they have a special service in a church with appropriate decorations of flowers, fruits and grains and even the fishermen's nets. Since then all Anglican churches celebrate an annual Harvest Home such as this."

He urged that the people of Eastern Canada should support the missionaries of the Western Provinces. As an example of the great need of workers of churches and lack of ministers and students. He said there were only 90 clergymen to cover this vast area, and only six of these were Canadians.

"If you sent your sons and daughters to the Western Provinces to find new homes you should provide ministers to provide for their spiritual needs," he said.

First Settlement.

To the district about St. Peter's Church belongs the honor of being the first part of Elgin County to be settled, for near the church, Col. Talbot chose a spot for his home 120 years ago, and many times worshipped in the church that still stands and is cherished by the great-great-grandchildren of the early settlers.

In 1808, a party, consisting of Leslie Patterson, his wife, Lydia Backus, and two children; Mrs. Mary Storey, his widowed sister, her son Walter and two daughters, Sarah and Anne, and John Pearce and his wife, Fannie Patterson, landed near Tyrconnel and were welcomed by Col. Talbot. Stephen Backus came the following year, and married Anne Storey.

For many years the thoughts of the settlers were taken up with the problem of clearing the land, but they were kept in touch with their church by two visits from the Bishop of Quebec, Bishop Stuart, who was the first Lord Bishop of Quebec, and whose diocese extended from Gaspe to the Detroit River. In 1822 there were but 16 clergymen of the church in Upped Canada, now Ontario, so their visits were few.

In 1827 it was decided to build a church and Mrs. Storey gave the site, a most beautiful spot. The principal founders of the church were John Pearce, Mary Storey, Stephen Backus and Leslie Patterson. It was agreed by these to give £70 each to the good cause.

At this time other families were coming in, the Bobiers from Ireland, the Conus and others, and they gave their time and talent to the work. The timbers were cut from the forest and drawn to the site by oxen and prepared by hand. The framing, a tedious job, was done by Leslie Pearce and George Crane. There is no date of the time of the raising, but it must have been a day of excitement in the community, and how the big beams were raised into place is a mystery. There were no mills to cut lumber when it was decided to lath and plaster the church outside and inside. Leslie Patterson made a road to the lakeside, built a scrow and gathered stones and burned the lime for plaster, while others hewed pine logs from the swamp, cut them into laths and shingles. Patterson also went by boat to Buffalo to get glass, paint and oils. The lead had to be ground, the mortar and pestle being an iron kettle and cannon ball. The putty was made in the same way, the whiting ground and mixed with oil.

The plaster remained on the outside for a few years, but 89 years ago the present siding was put on the church, and today is in perfect condition.

Tyrconnel Church is not the oldest built in the diocese, but has had a longer continual service than any other.

The tower and spire were designed by Edward Mathews, a young Englishman. When the church was raised in 1908 all the timbers were in perfect shape, even the pegs, which act as nails, were in good condition.

Memorials.

The bell of the church, which has been in constant use since 1884, was dedicated in honor of Bishop Stuart, the first Lord Bishop of Quebec. The communion service, which is of solid sterling silver was given in 1844 by Charlotte Simcoe, daughter of Governer Simcoe. The brass lectern was given by Dr. W. H. Morehouse, in memory of his mother. The first memorial window was given in 1910 by Stephen Backus, in memory of his wife and mother; the next in 1912 by Mrs. Elliott in memory of Rev. John Elliott, and in 1918 James Sifton gave a window in memory of Mrs. Sifton and Sergt. Allan Sifton, V.C.

In connection with the church is an historic cemetery which is visited by many tourists every year, who visit the burial spot of Col. Talbot.

For the past 25 years the cemetery has been cared for by B. E. Sifton of Dutton. Four years ago the tombstones were beginning to fall, and Mr. Sifton started a campaign to raise funds to improve the stones, and sent an appeal to all the descendants of early settlers. A total of $2,300 was raised, a portion of this being sent to the synod to hold, and in case that at any time the church is separated from the cemetery the interest will go towards the yearly upkeep of graves.

The rectors of the church in order were: Rev. N. Burnham, Rev. J. Stuart, Rev. F. W. Sandys, Rev. H. Holland, Rev. J. Kennedy, Rev. W. B. Rally, Rev. A. G. Miller, Rev. Canon Chance, Rev. M. G. Freeman, Rev. George Elliott, Rev. S. A. Macdonnell, Rev. C. H. P. Owen, and the present rector, T. H. Inns.

H. B. HAL McGIVERIN.

Member for Ottawa, who has been elevated to the Federal Cabinet as minister without portfolio. His appointment was not unexpected as Mr. McGiverin had established an enviable record while acting as chairman of various committees.

PAVEMENT OPENED ON LONDON ROAD

Motor Club Secretary Is First To Drive Over New Stretch.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, Sept. 21.—The new pavement on the Sarnia-London road was opened to the public Saturday, after the road had been closed for four months. The new concrete is 4½ miles long, giving a total of eight miles of pavement out of this city. The latest addition is 18 feet wide and splendidly constructed. George France, secretary of the Sarnia Motor Club, was the first to drive over the new concrete.

William Rupp was charged in the city police court Saturday with keeping liquor in a place other than a private dwelling in which he resides. Rupp's counsel, A. W. McNally, entered a plea of not guilty, and asked for an enlargement in order to secure witnesses. Wednesday, September 24, was fixed as the date of the trial.

Word was received Saturday from Seattle of the death of John Barron, formerly of Sarnia. Mr. Barron was in business in Sarnia for 37 years as a photographer and as the proprietor of a music store in the Durand Block. He left Sarnia to reside in Chicago 11 years ago.

INCREASE RECORDED IN FRESHMAN CLASS

Seventy Enter First Year of Work in Agricultural College.

Guelph, Sept. 21.—For the last four years there has been a steady decline in the attendance of the freshman class at the Ontario Agricultural College, but the lowest point seems to have been reached as this year finds an increase of ten, making 70 in the first year's class for the fall term which opened yesterday. The second, third and fourth year classes are up to normal, and while there will not be quite as many students graduate as there were last spring, yet it will be an average size class.

The attendance at MacDonald Institute this fall is the largest in the history of that institution, there being 164 students enrolled, with a waiting list of 100.

TEMPERANCE CAMPAIGN OPENS AT TILLSONBURG

Tillsonburg, Sept. 21.—The temperance campaign opens locally on Monday afternoon, when Col. T. R. Mayberry of Ingersoll will address the Tillsonburg Women's Institute in the council chamber. A social hour will follow the lecture, the losers in the recent membership drive entertaining the winners to lunch.

BIRR W. A.

Special to The Advertiser.

Birr, Sept. 19.—The Girls' branch of the Birr Women's Auxiliary held their monthly meeting at the home of Misses Kate and Ella Shoebottom.

On Sept. 24 the General Synod meeting will be held in St. Paul's Cathedral, London.

Arrangements were made to decorate Birr church for the union service to be held on September 28.

HAMILTON BARES WIDESPREAD PLOT

Confession of Clerk Is Said to Involve Several Prominent Citizens.

FURTHER ARREARS

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hamilton, Sept. 21.—Further sensational developments are expected to result from the cleanup of civic finances it was learned tonight.

Three arrests have already been made, and a warrant for a fourth has been issued.

Independent auditors are checking the accounts and a huge sum is missing, it is said.

Ernest E. King, clerk in the city tax office, held with George H. Saunders and Arthur Hartley of the federal income tax office on a charge of conspiracy to defraud, was taken from the jail yesterday afternoon and brought to the tax office by police. While there, the clerk went over the books with the auditors and, it is understood, gave them every assistance in checking up what the investigators claimed was "padding of the tax roll to cover up the shortage of money." King is alleged to have made a confession of the whole scheme.

Just how much money was taken will not be known until the audit is completed, and a statement is not expected for some days. Forbes, the missing cashier from the treasurer's office, is $35,000 short, a preliminary report claims, and it is expected more will be added to the total loss when the check in the tax office is completed. The city is protected to the extent of $5,000 in bonds held for Forbes.

It is intimated that a number of citizens, some of them prominent, joined in the conspiracy to pay their taxes in an illegal manner.

Mayor Jutten and the councillors last night learned the names of all these citizens, it is alleged. Warrants for their arrest will be issued tomorrow, it was stated tonight.

"Everyone concerned will be prosecuted," his worship added.

CHATHAM MERCHANT IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

J. L. Campbell Was in Shoe Business for Nearly 30 Years.

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, Sept. 21.—A prominent businessman of this city for more than a quarter of a century passed away early this morning at the Public General Hospital in the person of J. L. Campbell, shoe merchant. Although he was in poor health for the past two years, he refused to give up his activities until compelled to do so in July last, when he entered a hospital at Hamilton for treatment. He was brought to the General Hospital this city a few weeks ago.

Besides his wife (nee Miss Sarah McDonald of Wallaceburg), he is survived by two sons, Duncan G. and William of this city, and one brother, Archie, of Swift Current, Sask.

The late Mr. Campbell was born 59 years ago in Ekfrid Township, near Glencoe. At an early age he entered the employ of Young & Sons at Glencoe, later going to London for a short time, and afterwards working for the late James Scott at Wallaceburg for some years. Thirty years ago he came to Chatham, and for a short time was employed in the drygoods store conducted by Mr. Conway, afterwards going into the boot and shoe business when the firm of Campbell, Watson & Gray was established. Subsequently he purchased his partners' interests, and had since conducted the business. He was a member of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Parthenon Lodge, A., F. and A. M., and the Woodmen of the World. The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon, in charge of Rev. A. S. Horton, and under the auspices of the Parthenon Lodge.

LUCAN TEMPERANCE FORCES PREPARE FOR PLEBISCITE

Special to The Advertiser.

Clandeboye, Sept. 21.—The citizens of Lucan village held a meeting on Thursday in the council chamber for discussion of the approaching plebiscite. The voters' list was examined and application will be made to the judge to have 20 names added to the list.

On Monday evening, September 22, the prohibition forces will meet at West MicGillivray in the town hall for organization purposes. The Rev. W. E. Millson of London will address the meeting.

Responsibility For Wars Placed On Governments By Anti-War-Day Speaker

WORLD OBSERVANCE

People Will Not Arm Themselves If They Follow the Bible, Says Tite.

That the governments of the countries and not the people are responsible for wars, and that labor is seeking to have governments abstain from wars; that war is a fight for industrial supremacy, and another war would be one for the control of the world markets, were some of the points brought out by William Tite who spoke at the world peace meeting at St. Andrew's Church yesterday afternoon.

The international Federation of Labor observed yesterday as Anti-War Day throughout the world. The meeting in St. Andrew's Church was held under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council. Mayor Wenige presided. The speakers were W. Tite, David Ross of the Men's Brotherhood, and the Rev. W. R. McIntosh.

Mr. Tite, took for his text the tenth chapter of St. Luke, verses 25-28. "And behold, a certain lawyer stood up and tempted Him, saying, Master what shall I do to inherit eternal life?"

Must Love Neighbors.

To gain enternal life we must love God and love our neighbors. We can not possibly think of war because God has told us to love one another, if we are to gain eternal life, said the speaker.

Reviewing the 110 years of peace between Canada and the United States the speaker said that there had been no forts or ships necessary to keep peace between the two nations and what was possible between the Dominion and the republic to the south was possible between other nations.

Nations who established camps and fortifications at strategic points along their frontiers caused distrust and forced their neighbors to do likewise to protect themselves. There was no reason for people to arm themselves if they but followed the Good Book.

How could people expect to inherit the kingdom of heaven if they went to war? asked Mr. Tite, saying that all through the Bible was a teaching against war. He would have the governments employ their scientists, turning their energies to the problems of peace to making two ears of wheat grow where only one grew before, rather than to making engines of destruction.

Organized labor meets every year to discuss the principles of the basis of Christianity and the welfare of the common people.

Stop Arms Sale.

He would have the government stop private enterprise from selling arms to semi-barbaric peoples for a profit, because people who were trained in the use of weapons never forgot their lessons.

Reverend W. R. McIntosh spoke of the meeting as a neighborly one, an interesting gathering where labor spoke and the church listened. The minister felt that the movement toward world peace must begin in a small way.

The movement toward a lasting peace was bound up in other things. Different organizations which did not understand each other. Even in the church itself there were conflicting opinions and church people did not get along too well together.

Other things to be considered were international law and arbitration which would have a bearing on the future of nations. The speaker dwelt for a moment on the O. T. A. and then apologizing for leaving his subject, went on to say that the peoples of the world will have to overcome barbarity and class distinction if they are to manufacture the cement of goodwill out of which the new civilization is to be built.

Dr. D. C. MacGregor pronounced the benediction.

Woman Is Slain By Ex-Prisoner She Had Helped

Associated Press Despatch.

Pasadena, California, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Clifton R. Hunn, wife of a wealthy Chicago businessman was killed Thursday night by an ex-convict she once defended, the police said. He slashed her head with a knife, shot her through the heart and looted her apartment of gems valued at $20,000. Police today were seeking Mrs. Hunn's slayer, Harry Connor, alias Harry Garbutt, who, according to detectives, was released from an Illinois prison through her influence, after serving part of a sentence for robbery, and was aided with her money to start life anew.

BABY DAUGHTER IS BORN TO MRS. CARUSO-INGRAM

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, Sept. 21.—Gloria Caruso, the young daughter of the famous tenor, has a half-sister, who was born late Thursday night to Mrs. Dorothy Benjamin Caruso Ingram, in the Harbor, the name of Miss Lippincott's private hospital. The newcomer has already been named Jacqueline Dorothy Ingram. Miss Lippincott said this afternoon that mother and child are doing finely.

Captain E. A. Ingram of the British Army, father of the child, has not been in this country for about six months. It was reported then that he had returned to England, having parted from his wife after a disagreement as to her friends. There has been no talk of a divorce, nor of a reconciliation.

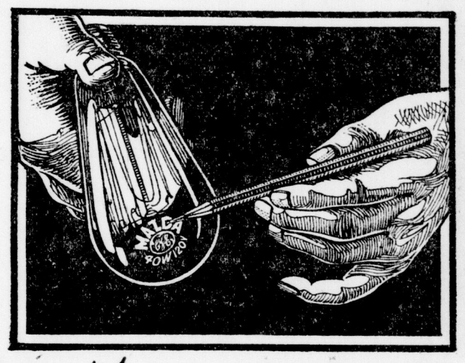

STRATHROY METHODISTS UNANIMOUS FOR O. T. A.

Special to The Advertiser.

Watford, Sept. 21.—The financial district meeting of the Strathroy district was held in the afternoon with strong delegations from 14 circuits, representing about 40 churches present. Rev. S. J. Thompson, chairman of the district, presided, and the business of the district was transacted.

Addresses were given by Rev. A. L. Spracklin of Alvinston on "Religious Education," by Rev. A. M. Stuart, B.A., of Petrolia, on "Evangelism and Social Service"; Rev. Isaac Couch, M.A., B.D., of Strathroy, on "The Educational Fund"; Rev. E. J. Roulston of Arkona, and Rev. W. J. Mortimore, B.A., missionary on furlough, on "The Centenary of Methodist Missions"; and by Rev. H. B. Parnaby, Ph.B., on "The Christian Guardian."

"MAZDA"

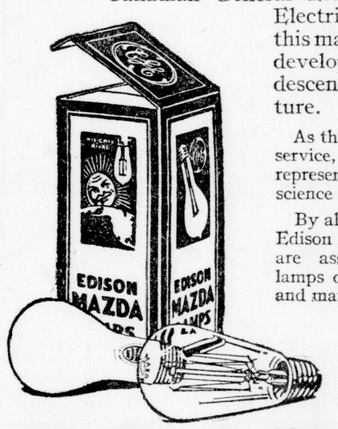

The Mark of a Service Not the Name of a thing

MAZDA is the mark of a service rendered by the research laboratories of the Canadian General Electric Company. Electric lamps bearing this mark are the latest development in incandescent lamp manufacture.

As the mark of a research service, the word "Mazda" represents the last word of science in light sources.

By always insisting upon Edison Mazda Lamps, you are assured of receiving lamps of the latest design and maximum efficiency.

Near you is an Edison Mazda Lamp store, recognizable by the yellow and blue cartons. There you will obtain real information about good lighting.

FAIR IS SUCCESS DESPITE WEATHER

Special to The Advertiser.

Galt, Sept. 21.—Rain starting shortly after the noon hour Saturday spoiled what would have been the best fair in the history of the South Waterloo Agricultural Society, with the largest entry in the 72 years of the society's history. While the rain was steady, an exceptionally large crowd, considering the weather, was on hand, and so fine was the display of horseflesh that the majority remained until the last class was judged, and they say a record exhibit of magnificent horses of various breeds. There were more sheep on the grounds than ever before, and all of the cattle and swine classes were filled up. The midway, the largest ever, was hit hard by the rain. While financially the show was disappointing, other ways it was a great success, since every item on the program was carried out.

O. T. A. GIVEN SUPPORT BY GUELPH METHODISTS

Special to The Advertiser.

Guelph, Sept. 21.—The Methodist churches of the Guelph district at their fall meeting in Norfolk Street Church took a very definite stand on the coming plebiscite vote, a resolution being adopted by a full standing vote, and also carried unanimously by the mass meeting of members and adherents of the Methodist Church, urging support of the O. T. A.

NOSES.

A few noses are made for ornamental purposes,
But most of 'em are just
For instance, there's the nose that's always poking
Into other folks business,
And the nose that just insists
On being blown.
I haven't much enthusiasm for noses
In general,
But I've gotta sneaky weakness for sassy, tip-tilted ones
Splattered with wee golden
Freckles.

Felt Hurt.

Mildred: "Why did you break off your engagement to Jack, dear?"

Betty: "Well, any man that thinks more of a few cigars in his vest pocket than he does of me isn't worth bothering with."

New Alibi.

Crabshaw: "How is it dinner is so late?"

Mrs. Crabshaw: "I had to wait so long in the barber shop."

Never Satisfied.

"That's just it. She makes 'em so beautiful that it keeps me broke buying hats to match 'em."

A Question.

A "Jelly" of the present time
He turned unto the waitress,
And this to her did say:
"Oh, just one real soft scrambled egg."
The waitress (wicked elf!)
Said: "Is that an order, please sir,
Or to announce yourself?"

"If Popular Songs Were Illustrated"

"No, No, Nora."

Business and Pleasure.

"Mabel is a lucky girl. Every winter her husband takes her south for a month or six weeks."

"Did she marry a millionaire?"

"No, a professional baseball player."

Her Fate.

Friend: "What happened to that peach of a stenographer you had?"

Brace Up.

All collars with summer timidity,
Have now resumed autumn rigidity,
They no longer shrink,
Or disgraceful sink
As they did through the heat and humidity.

Saved.

He did everything he thought would aid him in gaining her favor—denouncing anyone she denounced, praising whenever she praised, reading what she read disapproving of the plays she condemned, selecting the sports she selected, admiring the fashions she adopted, embracing the fads she embraced, studying what she studied, and even sticking to the dishes that she relished most.

It all grew most monotonous and it rather militated against his winning his way into her heart. "The trouble with you," she said, "is that you have no views or opinions of your own."

"Oh, I have," he answered, "I think you are the loveliest, most charming, most adorable, and the dearest girl in all the world."

That was original enough for her and the wedding day has been named.

She Wanted To Open Them.

Darlene, age three, gazed solemnly at her baby sister, who was sleeping. Turning abruptly, she suddenly left the room. A few minutes later she returned with the can-opener.

"Darlene," said her mother, "what are you doing with that can-opener?"

"Mother—baby sleeps too long—so I'm going open baby's eyes."

His Dish.

Wise Housewife: "Scraps, eh? You better beat it before I call the dog. He's very fond of scraps."

PRETTY TOUGH.

"Before we were married," remarked the pretty young woman who had married the aged millionaire, "my husband said he would die for me, and now he won't."

No Objections.

Nancy—"Could you be satisfied with love in a cottage, dear?"

Peggy—"Well, I might try it—provided the cottage had a garage, and was in an exclusive neighborhood."

The Bourbon Tongue.

"Did your son take French lessons while he was abroad?"

"No; he took Scotch instead."

Why "Knot"?

There was a little girl,
Deep in the social whirl,
Who couln't tie a knot;
Slip knot,
Love knot,—
What! Not,
Any knot?
At last she met a churl,
And with her heart awhirl,
She tied a perfect "beau" knot.

A Variation of a Well-Known Proverb

He—"It takes two to make a quarrel."

She (jealous of a rival)—"Yes, but three will make it much quicker."

A Willing Demonstrator.

She (after his first ardent kiss): "Oh, how could you?"

He: "I'll show you again if you didn't catch on the first time."

DOMINIONS HEAR OF LEAGUE PLAN

Canadian Press Despatch.

Geneva, Sept. 20.—Delegates representing the British Dominions at the League of Nations Congress had a lengthy meeting today with members of the empire delegation, the latter furnishing them full particulars of developments regarding the disarmament question and the present state of labor's sub commission.

Nothing transpired from the meeting, though there is good reason to state that the Dominions on the question of arbitration and security has not yet been defined, pending the final conclusion of the protocol.

In the meantime, the Dominions' delegates are keeping their respective governments informed and will doubtless express their views when the report of the subcommittee comes before the full committee September 23.

Minister Urges Women To Join In Coming Battle For Retention of O.T.A.

Rev. J. B. Hunter Makes Plea For All to Manifest Their Interest.

SPECIAL SERMONS

Men Should Make Sure Their Names Are On the Voters' Lists.

Supplementing his sermon on the subject of "Forbearance," the Rev. J. Bruce Hunter, pastor of First Methodist Church, delivered a sermonette at the morning service yesterday on the present temperance situation.

The minister urged all to see that their names were on the voters' lists, so that all the men and women would be lined up for the battle against strong drink.

To the women he made a special plea. He wanted them to be interested, and to manifest their interest.

It was the first of a series of short talks on the liquor traffic. On the coming Sundays, the minister will take up government control, the O.T.A., its weakness and its strength.

The Rev. Mr. Hunter said that there are 500,000 boys in Ontario. In the interest of these boys he intended to line up on October 23, saying that it was a choice between these boys and the prevalence of liquor, whose sole function was to destroy manhood.

On the subject of "Forbearance," the minister dwelt on the lives of Abraham and Lot. Abraham had fallen by the way. He had come back to his God, penitent and humiliated. He was prepared to have God treat him with the sincerity of His purpose as was evidenced by His attitude toward Lot.

There was no room for Abraham and Lot to live together, and although Abraham had the prior claim, he waived his rights and gave Lot the first choice. It was a test of character.

The minister reviewed the lives of great men in history to illustrate his point. He spoke of Michael Angelo, of Disraeli and Gladstone. He showed ed that it was possible to have character without effort; that it was simple to love thy neighbor and to treat him generously.

That the thought that to love one's enemy was an impossible idea at first could be quickly changed if one were to treat it in a practical manner. It required courage and commonsense.

Henry Ward Beecher had solved the problem when he said that when ever a man did him an injury he never rested until he had done him a good turn.

Abraham did not waive his rights because of cowardice. He simply had a high regard for the other fellow, and could see his viewpoint. The minister closed with some beautiful expressions of the spirit which prompted men to look to the Lord Jesus; to those who could feel the splendid spirit in Abraham which burst forth in the full glory of Jesus, for the spirit of forbearance was the dominating factor of his life.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH.

At St. James' Anglican Church, the Rev. A. S. H. Cree of the Church of the Redeemer preached the morning sermon, and spoke of the change in world conditions, showing that while there is an apparent change, people may see the glorious side of life because there is an unchanging God.

That there are many physical changes taking place on earth was demonstrated by the minister, who pointed out that in some places the waters of the lakes are receding, land formations change. In families there is a noticable difference in the present age. The young of today are the old of tomorrow. One may visit the old home and see that time has wrought an alteration.

Behind it all is the unchangeable God. God never changes. The first love and mercy of God never changes. Man is in reality the same as he always has been. Salvation of Christ is unchanged.

"People may say that Christianity is worn out, but what have we to take its place?" asked the minister.

"We have new religions springing up. Religions which do not take the place of the old and perfect religion of Jesus Christ. The trees may perish but the evergreen tree of Christianity is the same as ever."

The sympathy of Jesus is unchanged. Christ pardons today as much as he ever did in the old days. The cry of those who sorrow is heard by Christ. He it was who opened the eyes of the blind, who healed the sick.

And Heaven has not changed. In Heaven there is no decay, no sickness. Heaven never grows old nor does it change.

The Reverend Cree concluded by saying that people should rejoice in the knowledge that the living God does not change. That they should cling to Him who does not change, and look forward to meeting Christ in all His glory.

REV. HENRY TALBERT,

ST. MATTHEW'S.

Harvest services at St. Matthew's Anglican Church were graced, during the morning, by the presence of the Bishop of Huron, who delivered an appropriate sermon. Special music for the day included the anthem of Maunder, "Sing to the Lord of Harvest," with solos by Miss E. Vann and Miss A. Goddard. Mrs. (Rev.) R. J. Bowen addressed the children at a special afternoon service, and the rector conducted evening prayer. Harvest services were also held at St. George's Church, West London, with the rector, Archdeacon Sage, and the Rev. William Lowe in charge.

Rev. H. B. Storey, pastor of Southern Congrelational Church, was welcomed back by members of his church after a three months' absence. He has been under doctor's care following a nervous breakdown, and has been recuperating in Galt and Port Huron.

Labor sermons were preached at New St. James and King Street Presbyterian Churches.

RODNEY MAN TO FACE CHARGE OF ASSAULT

J. Stoddard Arrested in Connection With Alleged Attack on Youth.

High Constable Wharton arrested J. Stoddard of Rodney at 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning on a charge of assaulting a youth named Armetrong at Wardsville one week ago last Saturday night.

The victim is alleged to have been riding in a car with three other men when suddenly he was attacked. He received a broken leg and other injuries in the assault, and has been in a serious condition ever since.

After beating the youth into unconsciousness the men are reported to have returned to the village and to have thrown him out of the car. He was found later by a resident of the village, and Mr. Wharton was given a description of the men who were thought to have committed the crime.

When the villagers first notified Mr. Wharton of the attack, they said that the young men who are implicated were from Michigan. The car they were riding in was reported to have been seen going that way, and Border City police were notified to be on the lookout. The men did cross the border without being noticed, but Stoddard, who is said to have been with them, returned to his home, and Mr. Wharton hearing of this went to Rodney Sunday morning and made the arrest. The two other men are also said to be residents of Rodney.

All the men were attending a dance in Wardsville, and it is thought that the men who assaulted the youth were angered at some occurrence in which he participated during the course of the evening.

LOCOMOTIVE AND CARS THROWN FROM TRACKS

Wreck Is Reported on C. P. R. Line Near Station at Puslinch.

Special to The Advertiser.

Galt, Sept. 21.—Reports reached here today of a wreck early this morning on the C. P. R. near Puslirch station. It is reported that a locomotive and several freight cars left the rails. Several freight trains were held in the local yards and got away about noon. The eastbound morning express was marked on the local board as cancelled and it is presumed was sent over another line from Woodstock.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—Toronto is back on standard time after nearly five months of daylight-saving. The clocks were put back an hour this morning.

LABOR WILL CLING TO RUSSIAN PACT

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Sept. 21.—That the Anglo-Russian treaty offered infinitely greater possibilities than the Dawes plan for the improvement of British trade and conditions among the workers was the contention of Frank Hodges, Civil Lord of the Admiralty, in a speech at Tamworth.

After stating that there were 97,208 miners unemployed, Hodges said that the Dawes plan and the London agreement had brought no relief to the stricken mining industry. It was an example of how a new government could fall a victim to a remorseless logic. The situation had been carefully prepared by its predecessors, whereas the Russian Treaty was an effort to bring the outlawed nations into the bosom of the world family.

The government, he said, "must never recede from the position it had taken up over the Russian treaty, otherwise it would lose the confidence of the workers.

JUDGMENT RESERVED AGAINST RACING CLUB

Association at Toronto Charged With Conducting Common Gambling House.

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, Sept. 21. — Magistrate Brunton in the county police court today reserved judgment for a week on the charge against the Long Branch Racing Association, of conducting a common gambling house at their new race track.

Major Brunton heard argument on this charge and adjourned for a week, argument on the second charge of allowing the premises to be used for recording bets and wagers.

The effect of the crown's contention advanced by Edward Bailey, K.C., deputy attorney-general, was that the association was originally incorporated as an athletic club, and that the subsequent charter did not empower it to conduct betting operations. To do so after March 20, 1912, he said the legislature had decreed that associations must obtain a special act of parliament.

Political Apathy Declared Crime

British Electors Urged to Prevent Labor Majority.

Special to The Advertiser.

London, Sept. 21. — Speaking at Ashton-Under-Lyne, Dr. MacNamara, former minister of labor, declared that political apathy at a time like this was not a blunder, but a crime. The electors must choose between Toryism or Liberalism, and beware of the shifting quicksands of Socialism. They must prevent labor from getting an independent majority in the next parliament.

MAN DIES FOLLOWING FALL FROM TOWER

Employee of Dominion Bridge Company Succumbs to Injuries.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Oshawa, Sept. 21.—Jack Delmier of Montreal died in Oshawa General Hospital on Saturday afternoon about two hours after he had fallen nearly 100 feet from the top of the huge water tower being erected here. Delmier was an employee of the Dominion Bridge Company of Montreal, who have the contract for erecting the tower with a 500,000 gallon tank.

He was working at the extreme top of the steel work when, it is believed, his leather belt broke letting him fall.

INDIA TRYING TO RESTORE RELIGIOUS CONFIDENCE

Simla, India, Sept. 21.—The viceroy has deputed Foreign Secretary Dray to proceed to Kohut to confer with the chief commissioner as to the best means of restoring confidence after the Hindo-Moslem conflicts. It appears that the report that 300 Moslems had been arrested during the trouble is incorrect. Only three Moslems and three Hindoos were arrested.

NEW BOND ISSUE CUTS FUNDED DEBT

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, Sept. 22.—This morning's offering to the public of $50,000,000 Dominion of Canada twenty-year bonds, completes the government's long term funding program for the present year. As a result of his recent financing operations in Canada and New York, Hon. J. A. Robb, acting minister of finance, has achieved a net reduction in the national funded debt of $22,000,000, and has reduced the volume of long-term obligations by no less than $57,000,000 having replaced a maturing victory issue of $107,000,000 by the present fifty million dollar offering.

On account of the comparatively small volume offered and the attractive yield, it is expected that the new bonds will be heavily oversubscribed. Last year's Dominion offering was quadruple the size of the present issue and was snapped up in a very few days at the time when money was considerably tighter than it is at the present moment.

New York Oversubscribes.

The fact that $90,000,000 of Dominion one year four per cent notes were over-subscribed in less than two hours in New York market last week augurs well for a record absorption of today's domestic offering.

The bonds are of twenty-year maturity, falling due in October, 1944, and bear interest at the rate of four and a half per cent as against only four per cent on recent Dominion short term obligations. They are being offered to the public by a representative syndicate of financial houses and banks, consisting of A. E. Ames & Company, Wood-Gundy & Company, Dominion Securities Corporation, National City Co., Ltd., The Bank of Montreal, The Royal Bank of Canada, and the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

The new refunding securities are being sold at 97 and accrued interest, at which price they return 4.73 per cent to the investor—a rate which compares very favorably with any recent offerings of government securities either in Great Britain or the United States. The bonds are available in denominations as low as $100 and interest coupons are payable at any branch of any chartered bank in Canada.

Aids Bond Holders.

Holders of the Victory issue which matures November 1st are offered a conversion privilege if they act quickly. This privilege consists of a bonus of half a month's interest as the old bonds, which are accepted at par, bear interest until the end of the month, while the new ones begin to bear interest from October 15.

As only $50,000,000 is being issued and $107,000,000 Victories are falling due, it is apparent that only a percentage of Victory holders will be able to exchange; consequently the conversion offer only holds good until subscriptions from all sources reach the $50,000,000 mark. Each holder of Victory bonds who converts will receive an equivalent amount of refunding bonds and $3 per hundred in cash. By exercising conversion rights, the new bonds will return precisely four and three-quarters per cent.

GERMANY MAY REFRAIN FROM JOINING LEAGUE

Cabinet Will Likely Decide Against Making Application For Membership.

By EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER.

Special Cable to The Advertiser and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright.

Berlin, Sept. 20. — The writer has evidence leading to the belief that the German government at a meeting of the cabinet Tuesday will decide against making application to enter the League of Nations.

The government now is definitely making inquiries as to whether Germany can expect an immediate and permanent place on the council of the league, and it seems likely that the answer may be negative. This would be considered sufficient reason here for refusing to join.

NOTED CEMENT EXPERT IS KILLED IN COLLISION

H. K. Damber, Managing Director of Portland Co., Dies With Brother.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Sept. 21.—A collision between a motor car and a motor-cycle at Gravesend yesterday resulted in the death of H. K. Damber, one of the greatest experts in the cement world, and his brother, Montague Damber, of Colombo, while a Gravesend couple who were in the sidecar of the motor-cycle were seriously injured, and A. K. Damber, son of H. K. Damber, was slightly injured.

H. K. Damber was for 24 years managing director of Associated Portland Cement Manufacturers, Limited, and for 12 years was managing director of British Portland Cement Manufacturing Company. He relinquished the position at the end of last year. He erected work in British Columbia at Dambertown, which adopted his name.

BRITAIN OPENS HER FIRST FRUIT-GRADING STATION

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Sept. 21.—England's first fruit grading station along American lines has been inaugurated at Cottenham, Cambridgeshire, and belongs to the ministry of agriculture, which charges 17 pence for the packing and grading of a standard box of apples, compared with 25 pence which the same work costs the British Columbia fruit growers. The machinery at Cottenham can deal with 400 barrels of apples daily.
