What Society is Doing

THE INNER LINE.
Behind the roaring cannon, behind the flashing steel, the defenders of the Inner Line, steady and constant kneeled. Some bent, some gray, some women, some three scores years and more, just praying, always praying for the Front Line fighting men.

These cannot lead a sortie, nor breast the ocean's foam, but their fervent prayers, as increase from church and cottage home.

The poor man and the wealthy all form the Inner Line. There is a common sorrow forms a brotherhood divine.

You can hear sad voices quiver, you can see the slow tears fall, yet the Inner Line keeps steady, England and honor call.

They pray and who can measure such prayer's resistless might, they trust the Lord of battles, who will defend the right.

Justifiable pride is felt in Britain at the conduct of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps. An official announcement last week said that excellent reports had been received by the army council of the behaviour of members of the corps during the heavy fighting in France. One party who had been employed at an army school within the area of operations were offered transport to convey them to a safer locality further back. They refused to avail themselves of it on the ground that it would probably be wanted for something more important, and they marched 15 miles back to the place to which they had been ordered before leaving, and after all the ailments at the school had gone, they remained there in a dangerous position (feeding relays of tired and hungry officers and men, and assisting in every way possible before they were compelled to leave the place. All reports, it was added, had been most satisfactory, and justified their existence, and have well maintained the credit of their sex and to the Army to which they belong.

Strong committees, both ladies and gentlemen, have been appointed and tickets are now on sale. The event promises to be not only a Red Cross Day but a red letter day for Brantford Golfers and their friends.

MACDONALD-VAUGHAN
The home of Mrs. E. Vaughan, Lorne Crescent, was the scene of a pretty war-time wedding on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when Miss Jean Crawford Vaughan, youngest daughter of the late Chief Vaughan and Mrs. Vaughan, was married to Captain A. C. MacDonald, of the Naval Flying Corps. The spacious rooms were a veritable tower of lovely garden flowers, the ceremony being performed under the crossed Union Jacks in the dining room, the Rev. Mr. Woodside and Major Lovell officiating. The bride looked charming in a lovely gown of champagne crepe de chene embroidered in peacock blue with blue hat to match, and carried a beautiful bouquet of opheelia roses. After the ceremony the bridal party of immediate relatives and a few girl friends of the bride repaired to the sun room where a buffet dejeuner was served, after which an informal little reception was held, many friends of the young couple dropping in to wish them every happiness. Before leaving the bride followed the time honored custom of throwing her bouquet to her waiting girl friends below, the bouquet being caught by Miss Ellen Hart. The bride's travelling costume was a lovely gray silk dress with white ermine and hat to match. The young couple left on the 6 o'clock train for Muskoka, where they will spend a week or so.

Lieut. Kenneth Bunnell is expected home to-day from overseas.

NEWS FROM NORFOLK COUNTY

FINE REPORT OF INSPECTOR OF NORFOLK COUNTY SCHOOLS

Simcoe, June 8.—(From Our Own Correspondent). Following is the report of Inspector R. P. Cook, B.A., inspector for Norfolk county. It was highly praised by the chairman of the Committee on Education: To the Honorable, the Minister of Education and the Municipal Council of the County of Norfolk.

Sirs, I have the honor to submit herewith my report on the Public Schools in the Inspectorate of Norfolk for the year 1917.

In general, the work of the teachers and pupils of the schools has been satisfactory; in the majority of schools satisfactory advancement has been made.

In this report comparisons are made between the year 1912 and the year 1917, as well as between 1916 and 1917. In August, 1912, the present boundaries of the Inspectorate of Norfolk were fixed.

The average number of teaching days school was kept open in 1917 was 191.4, as against 193 in 1916. There were 196 teaching days in the year.

Percentage Attendance Low. The following table shows the percentage of average attendance to the total number of pupils enrolled:

Table with 3 columns: Year (1912, 1916, 1917), Rural, Villages, Towns.

You will notice that there has been a steady decrease in the total enrollment of the rural schools, a slight increase in the total enrollment in the three villages; and a marked increase in the enrollment in the town of Simcoe, while on the whole there was a decrease of exactly 200 in the enrollment of the Inspectorate.

The average attendance in the rural schools was only 58.1 per cent. of the total enrollment. This is low. A few schools stood well above the average, but on the other hand too many were below 50 per cent.

In 1912 there were nine pupils between 8 and 14 years of age who were reported as having attended no school during the year. In 1917 there were three so reported. I have reason to believe that there were others who should have been reported, but were missed because the teacher was not well enough acquainted with the school section.

Need of Truant Officers. In some counties there are truant officers appointed by Township Councils. The reports from some of these counties show a regularity of attendance much superior to ours.

The average number of teaching days school was kept open in 1917 was 191.4, as against 193 in 1916. There were 196 teaching days in the year.

Receipts and Expenditures of Public School Monies. Receipts—Balance on hand from previous year $40,037.61

Per Capita Cost of Tuition. Basing the calculation on the average daily attendance and the total expenditure exclusive of money spent for buildings and sites, the average cost of educating a child in the different municipalities was:

THE SITUATION

The tide has turned on the western front, and the Allies are now commencing to make gains. One Berlin paper hastens to explain that it was never intended to go further than the Marne, but that of course is a story for the horse manes. The truth is that the Hun has again been stopped, but that he will try a massed attack at some other point is quite well understood.

Another illustration of devilish German cruelty has been recorded. On the flimsy pretext that Teuton prisoners had been murdered by British sentries, British prisoners on the Russian front were hung out in the cold, forty perishing from the experience.

In the States, German spies are commencing to be placed on trial. A whole lot of them there need to be made to face a firing squad.

MERCHANTS BANK.

The annual report of the Merchants Bank in this issue tells of the continued growth and strength of that excellent institution. There is marked progress reported in every direction and the total assets have now reached the enormous total of over one hundred and forty millions or an increase of nearly twenty millions over the previous record figure of last year.

The bank is thoroughly well managed and worthy of the continued confidence which the general public have always manifested with regard thereto.

HOW TO PROLONG LIFE

In an address before the American Iron and Steel Institute last week, Dr. Thomas Darlington, secretary of the Institute's welfare committee, discussed prolonging the lives of busy men. He told its members to breathe through the mouth, to drink plenty of cold water with meals and between them, to bathe daily, to sleep eight hours, to rest on Sunday, to keep a contented mind, to be temperate in all things, to be examined regularly by a physician, to breathe deeply and never to read or transact business while eating.

Fear, anger, worry and other evil passions, scientists have discovered upset the nervous system, exhaust the brain and create active poisons in the circulation and blood, indigestion and diabetes, while cheerful ness, joy and sleep produce opposite results and prolong life. Man does not die, he kills himself, for his habits largely determine his span of life. An old man who spent a life full of good works, who asked whether the wills he saw around him did not discourage him, said: "I do what I can and leave the rest to God." He died in his hundred and second year.

New York's leading specialist in diseases of the chest and stomach some years ago believed that consumption could be practically eradicated in a single generation if everybody would sleep well, breathe deeply, eat fresh fruits, vegetables and sufficient fats and oils. He always told young women that deep breathing would improve their figures and complexions, and cynically remarked that in his practice he found that women would do more for the sake of beauty than for health and life itself. Wealth may reduce mortality among children, but it does not prolong the lives of those past middle age. Poor-houses are full of the extremely old who let others do the worrying.

THE CASE OF RUSSIA.

President Wilson in a recent speech said that the United States was still desirous of helping Russia. Mr. Arthur Henderson, the well-known British labor leader, in referring to the matter, says: "I welcome the President's speech," mainly for two reasons, because it reaffirms in ringing words democracy's resolute refusal to desert Russia in her hour of agony and humiliation, and because it proclaims the doctrine to which organized workers themselves stand pledged, that peace when it comes must conform to the principles of international right and essential justice.

President Wilson's greatest contribution to the effort of the three nations in this world struggle is the moral idealism he has brought to bear upon the problem of world peace. He has refused to treat the question of peace as a matter for political bargaining between delugers or as a question of territorial compromises and concessions by our side or the other.

"In all his speeches since America entered the war, he has approached the question from this point of view of democracy itself, and has insisted with every variety of emphasis and inflection that what is morally wrong cannot be politically right. "President Wilson rightly regards the whole situation in the east as a test of Germany's sincerity in talking peace. If there is any possibility that the Allies might be persuaded to accept a cynical peace based upon concessions by Germany in the west, at the price of leaving Germany a free hand in the east, the President's firm repudiation of any such bargain will, I hope, finally dispose of it. "Organized democracy stands by Russia in her agonized effort to work out her national destiny, and the war cannot end while Russia lies under the heel of a new tyrannical and ruthless, than the corrupt and criminal bureaucracy that the revolution has destroyed. Freedom for Russia is a democratic war aim. "It is because the treaties the Central Powers have made with Russia and Rumania violate the conscience of democracy, of which President Wilson is pre-eminently the custodian and interpreter, that proposals for peace which imply a German triumph in the east cannot and must not be considered as a possible basis of negotiation. "We of the working-class movement in Allied countries look to the President of the United States to insist that we should not secure complete unity of political policy, without which no world betterment can be obtained. "The trouble of it is that it is practically impossible to help those who will not help themselves, and Russia is in such a chaotic state that neither President Wilson nor anyone else can do anything.

Since September 1st, 1917, there have been these: Charlotteville, 2; Houghton, 4; Townsend, 3; N. Walsingham, 4; S. Walsingham, 1; Windham, 1; Simco, 4. Total, 19.

Average Salaries. 1912 1916 1917 Rural . . . $52.55 $602.17 $632.30 Urban . . . 565.36 602.17 632.30 Salaries Have Increased.

Since 1912 the average rural salary in Norfolk has increased but only 14 per cent, and the urban salary has increased hardly 12 per cent. On the other hand, since the war began in 1914, Government returns show that the cost of living has increased by about 40 per cent. While there has been an increase in salaries, yet that increase has not kept pace with the increased cost of living.

In the urban schools and in a few rural schools, where the salaries paid are higher than the average, is there anything like a satisfactory degree of permanency in the staffs. Therefore, to secure the more satisfactory conditions it seems very necessary that trustee boards consider carefully the making of further increases in salaries.

In 1912 there was only one male teacher in the rural schools receiving more than $700.00 per annum, no other was receiving more than $500. Only one female teacher was receiving $750.00. Not another received more than $600.00. In December, 1917, in every one of our eight townships, some one or more female teachers received at least $650.00, and in two cases $750.00. Since December 2nd others have risen to $750.00, S.S. No. 13, Charlotteville, pays an excellent female teacher $800.00.

This matter has been given more space in this report than is perhaps necessary because I feel that unless our trustee boards fully realize its importance there will be more vacant schools, Sept. 3rd next, than we had last year, and more of our school teachers will be forced to leave the province on a gazettee. Several schools have a poor map of Europe; for three years the purchase of this map has not been urged; the old maps have been used in use with the intention of providing new ones when peace is declared. Some schools failed to provide the equipment specified in Department circular No. 26, and in consequence have not received their legislative grant in full.

Why Grants Are Low. The legislative grants were lower in 1916 than in 1912. Since 1912 the method or basis of apportionment was revised; it gave the poorer sections increased assistance, and the more wealthy sections less assistance. The grants in 1917 were only approximately lower than in 1916. The Department of Education deducted from the grants the amounts to be contributed by the teachers to the superannuation fund from April 1st, 1917, to March 31st, 1918. All boards are to withhold 2 1/2 per cent from every payment on salaries to teachers and they must show these amounts in the financial statements of the section; as having been received on account of legislative grants. In another year the apparent lowering will have disappeared.

Many Visits Made. At the end of December, 1917, I reported the number of visits of inspection made to the schools during the calendar year. During the present term the regulations require 110 half-day visits; I have made 150. The additional 40 visits have been made necessary by changes of teachers, by the necessity of testing the pupils who made application for exemption from writing the junior high school entrance examination under Farm Employment Circular No. 27, and by making of a third visit during the year to those teachers whose interim certificates expire this term.

FINE REPORT

Schools evince Spirit of Loyalty. The schools have responded splendidly to the calls made upon them by the war. Pupils have made for cloths, pieced quilts, knitted socks, and done many other very necessary things. They have held concerts for Patriotic Funds, the Red Cross work and for the benefit of the Children's Aid Shelter that Norfolk is to have some day. They have taken the places of fathers and brothers on the farms and in every way have shown that they realize the gravity of the crisis that we face. The teachers have been very careful to teach thoroughly and well the justice of our Empire's cause in the war.

There are 34 junior high school entrance candidates working on farms under circular 27 who will receive their certificates in August or September when they produce the necessary farmer certificate showing that they have worked three months on the farm. Several others had to be refused this privilege because of lack of proficiency in their studies. In closing let me say that I am sorry that I have not a complete Honor Roll of the teachers who have been in the service overseas. Some have made the supreme sacrifice. I am your obedient servant. H. FRANK COOK, I.P.S., Norfolk Inspectorate.

Inspector Standing's Report Not In. As at the January session, so at the June session, Inspector Standing's report for the northern portion of the county is not to hand. The chairman of the committee asked whether this official were any longer expected to report. Inspector Standing, at the meeting of the Education Committee, said that the report for the northern portion of the county was not to hand.

CHAPTER LXXV. An Unexpected Meeting. All the way in on the train I speculated upon what I should see. Should I find a gay party of men smoking and telling stories, or would I discover that there was a mixed affair and that I had been left out. Suddenly I remembered that Bob had told me when I was last asked to join his friends' parties, that he should tell them never to depend upon me to make up any desired number of guests as I had absolutely refused to join them again. Probably he had kept his word, and that was the reason I had been given no chance to either accept or decline. I took a cab from the station. My return train left in just an hour, and I must not miss it. When I arrived at the Coster, I experienced a momentary feeling of embarrassment. It was not usual for a woman to go on the roof unattended. Perhaps some objection would be made and I should have to give it up. But I boldly entered the elevator with several others, and quietly followed them out. The man standing on the roof to see that no undesirable people found their way up evidently supposed me with them. They were quiet, inoffensive looking people, and would not be apt to attract much attention—fortunately for me. I took a seat at a table, where, while screened myself, I could see perfectly. I immediately ordered some sweets and lemonade, and explained to the waiter that I was waiting for a party. I would fit him generously when I had accomplished what I came for. He had looked disappointed until I told my little truth, when he had paid me all possible attention. I could see nothing of Mr. Root or of Bob. But just as I was about to leave—I had concluded they had changed their minds about coming to the Coster—there was a stir back of me, and Mr. and Mrs. Root, Henry Creasmore, John Kendall, Maud Warren, Marion Riggs, a woman, I never had seen, and Bob were seated at a table evidently reserved for them.

Bob was seated next the strange woman. He was in gay spirits laughing, gesticulating, talking in his excited way. She was lovely, of an unusual type, and Bob had eyes for no one but her. There was no danger that I would be discovered, I thought bitterly, as I watched the eagerness with which he bent toward her, and the animation with which they both conversed. She was beautifully gowned in colors that fairly glowed. A daring costume, but immensely becoming to her perfect blondness. The wonderful golden hair was piled high and looked too heavy for the small head to carry. Her eyes were violet, her skin matchless. She was petite, and her tiny beautifully shaped hands emphasized all she said. But none of these things hurt me as did the fact that she was young— younger than Bob, who was almost twenty-eight. I should have judged her not more than twenty had she not been with those older than that. She found out long afterward—was I to judge?—that she was almost twenty-eight. I watched them until I dared not no longer, then quietly left my table and the roof, scarcely hearing the audible thanks of the waiter. When I was in the cab away from anxious eyes, I found tears of anger filling my eyes. I brushed them aside. I could not afford to cry: even mother had told me it made me look old. And after the sight of that childish loveliness I would not allow myself the luxury of tears which always disfigured me. I caught my ten o'clock train and tried to read an evening paper I had bought in the station to keep from saying. Suddenly I heard a voice say: "Well, if this isn't fortunate!" and Mrs. Baldwin came over and sat with me. "I thought I was the only married woman out alone," she remarked as soon as she was comfortably settled. "You see you are mistaken," I replied. "I lost the early train and so I telephoned Joe. I wouldn't come home to dinner. It would have been spotted anyway by the time I got there and then, too. It does a man good to be left alone once in a while. He knows more how a woman feels." So that was the way some women did. Remained out let their husbands shift for themselves. I knew I never could do that with Bob. It would hurt me more than it would him. Nevertheless I could not help admiring Mrs. Baldwin for her independence. Should I say anything of my errand, rather of some flimsy matter that had kept me out alone until so late? "Mr. Garrett was obliged to remain in town to-night, so I ran in to see a friend," I finally said in an explanatory manner. It was the second truth I had told that night, and my conscience troubled me. "That's the way to do; some women stay at home and mope. I have no patience with them. If Joe is out I go out too! I am glad you do the same!" "But I seldom do," I replied, anxious to set her right. "I do not care to go without him. To-night was an exception." "Better make it the rule!" she laughed knowingly. Continued Monday.

PLAYLET GIVEN
The Arrival of Kitty" was given by St. James' dramatic club in the Conservatory of Music Thursday, June 6th, before a good audience to enable the above lodge to send boxes and comforts to their soldier brethren overseas. All the players in the cast took their parts in fine style. Miss Ruth Steele delighted the audience with her songs, also Mr. C. Ramsbottom, and Miss Hill with her recitations. Mr. R. Ramsbottom acted as accompanist.

ELECTED TO EXECUTIVE.
At the recent meetings of the Congregational Union of Canada, held in Bond Street Congregational Church, Toronto, the Rev. W. J. Thompson, of the First Congregational Church, Brantford, was elected a member of the Executive Committee.

ECLIPSE OF SUN.
The solar eclipse to-night, which is only partial in Canada but total across the United States from Washington to Florida, begins about 6 p.m. and ends a few minutes after 8, the magnitude of the greatest eclipse being .666 of the sun's disc.

KITH AND KIN.
The Terrace Hill Kith and Kin had a very enjoyable meeting at the home of Mrs. Greig, North Park street, on Thursday evening, with the president in the chair. After the usual business meeting refreshments were served and a social session held. Mrs. Webster, assisted by Miss Jean Gregg, served lunch. The next meeting of the Kith and Kin will be held at the home of Mrs. Earthy, 118 Dundas street.

A.O.F. CHURCH PARADE.
The Ancient Order of Foresters will hold their annual church parade on Sunday night, in the form of a memorial service, conducted at Alexandra Presbyterian Church by the Rev. C. S. Oke. Members from Hamilton and other points will be in attendance.

COUNTY COURT.
Seven cases have so far been scheduled for Tuesday's County Court sittings. They are: Non-Jury—Fisher vs. Martin (J. W. Zowby and Brewster and Heyd); Brethour vs. Burford Coal and Grain Co. BLAZE IN BARBER SHOP.
Fire broke out last night at 9:30 o'clock in a cupboard in a West Brantford barber shop at 79 Oxford street. The origin is not known, but fortunately little damage was done, the occupants of the shop being able to confine the blaze to the cupboard until the firemen arrived.

WAITED IN VAIN.
Expecting four men home from the front to come in on the 8 o'clock C.T.R. train last night, representatives of the S.A.C. waited for them, but the vets failed to turn up. It is believed, however, that the men have arrived some time since then.

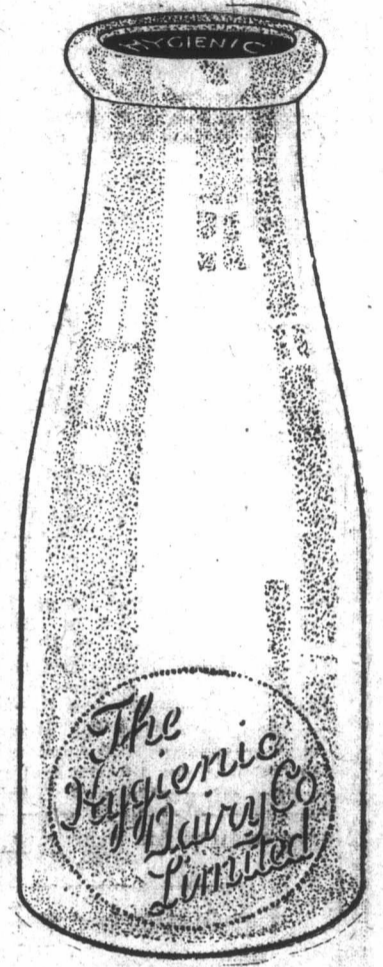

BUILDING PERMITS.
C. W. Mellick, 79 Erie avenue, was issued a permit this morning at the City Engineer's office for the erection of a $150 frame veranda. W. C. Myers, 65 Northumberland street, received a permit for a $90 frame veranda, and Mrs. Kathleen Box, 34 Queen street, for $300 in repairs and alterations to the interior of a brick barn.

MECHANICS WANTED.
Magistrate Livingston, district representative for the Royal Air Force, has received a communication asking for recruits for mechanics with the Force. Skilled mechanics of all trades are required with pay from $1.10 per day up; in most cases they are above this rate. Applicants should be under 19 years of age or over 24, though "B" class may be accepted, also married men. Recruits are also needed for the pilot wing of the force.

A FIRE WATER FRAUD.
Before April 1st Antonio Carmarello, an Italian, residing in Paris, ordered a barrel of Scotch whiskey from Montreal for personal consumption. Antonio paid for the whiskey and ordered it shipped via Canadian Express. In the meantime some of his ingenious friends had become aware of the expected arrival of the consignment. One of these, supposed to be an Italian, arrived at the Paris express office and signed his fellow countryman's name, getting away with the booze. At Division Court in Paris yesterday W. M. Charlton appeared for Carmarello and claimed $85 from the Canadian Express Co. Solicitor Pratt of the Canadian Express legal department of Montreal defended the company. As no trace of the whiskey has yet been found, the company was forced to pay the claim.

PRINTERS MADE MERRY LAST NIGHT

"Your aims and objects have been achieved, you have improved the printing business and the status of the printer as a social unit," declared Mr. J. J. Hurley, replying to the toast, and reviewing the achievements of the Union for the uplifting and improvement of the trade.
Touching upon financial matters, Mr. Hurley pointed out that the printer was not to be ranked as a capitalist, that he was as much a workman as the union printer. The unions, he considered, were demanding no more than their rights to-day, were but guarding against the exploitation of their labor.
Mr. Hurley dwelt at great length with economic problems, to which he believed there was but one solution, to change conditions of society, by regulating the ownership of land and abolishing remnants of feudalism still extant.
"Our Guests"
After a pleasing solo by Mr. E. Monte, the toast to "Our Guests" was proposed. Mr. Jas. Campbell of Hamilton, in responding, recalled that he had had the honor of opening the first conference of the O. C. T. U. in Hamilton seven years ago, since which time he had followed the progress of the organization and its share in the present war with no small degree of interest. He had high hopes for the future of the Conference.

Brantford and Its Milk Supply

THE time has come for plain speaking about the milk situation in Brantford. Every man, woman and child is affected by this vital question. We, for our part, have laid down a policy of frankness and plain speaking. There has been too much beating around the bush.

The Best Milk is none too good for the people of Brantford. Modern Dairy Science offers many safeguards for the Milk User. See that your milk supply is safeguarded.

- 1.—Insist on Pasteurized Milk.
- 2.—Insist on Bottled Milk.
- 3.—Insist on Sterilized Bottles.
- 4.—Insist on Milk from a Modern, Sanitary Dairy.
- 5.—Visit the Dairy, your Milk comes from and inspect it.

If the people of Brantford will do these things, the quality of Brantford's Milk Supply will be increased at least one hundred per cent.

For five years the Hygienic Dairy has pasteurized its milk. Five years ago only the most advanced dairymen took the trouble to pasteurize. We believed in pasteurization. We went to this extra expense to safeguard Brantford's Milk Supply.

Today thousands of dairies in the big cities are compelled by law to do what we voluntarily did five years ago, and are still doing today. Hygienic Dairy Milk is bottled—bottled for one more surety of purity and quality. Again we are in line with the best of big city Dairies.

But we do not stop at bottling our milk. We use Sterilized Bottles—and we are the only Dairy in Brantford that does.

We are proud of the Hygienic Dairy. Nowhere will you find a Dairy more modern, more sanitary. We are glad to have visitors here, for every visitor becomes a customer. So far do we carry science in this Dairy that we use no natural ice, but use instead a modern, artificial refrigerating plant.

of my life," declared Mr. J. W. Shepperson, recalling the organization of the local Typographical Union exactly eighteen years ago, with nine charter members, the speaker being one. He reminisced upon printing in bygone days, and paid a tribute to the press, declaring it one of the greatest factors in education to-day.
"The Ladies"
Ira D. Scruton of Hamilton owned up to "loving them all." He felt that all present were neglecting their wives by being away from home at such an hour. He gave high credit to the part taken in the war by the women of Canada and the Empire, and added a few words of jocular advice relative to women's suffrage. The speaker pointed out that the Typographical Union was an organization which respected women and placed them on an equal footing in the Union, with men.

"But have our wives an eight hour day?" he demanded.
"I believe that after this conference, there will be more printers in Brantford than there were pensioners in the United States after the Civil War," declared Mr. H. B. Archer, of London, thanking the local union for the splendid treatment accorded the delegates.

The Wesley quartette here rendered another pleasing selection.
"Our Sister Unions"
Mr. E. W. A. O'Dell, of Boston, Mass., replying to this toast, representing the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, praised the courtesy and fraternity evinced always by a Typographical Union to other organizations.
"I look on the labor movement," he declared, "as one of the greatest factors in lightening the burdens of humanity, and making the world a better place to live in." Good work had been done by the unions in the printing, which is correct—to a part, and they would take an even more prominent part in affairs of the future.

Mr. Gallagher, of the Millers' Union, pointed out that this union was closely affiliated with the Typographical Union. He congratulated those responsible for the success of the banquet.
"The Journalists"
Last upon the list was responded to by Messrs. E. L. Walsh and N. J. O'Neill after which the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem brought the evening—or the morning, which is correct—to a close.

Mr. T. Darwin officiated at the piano, during the evening, in his usual capable manner.

THE ROYAL AND ANCIENT

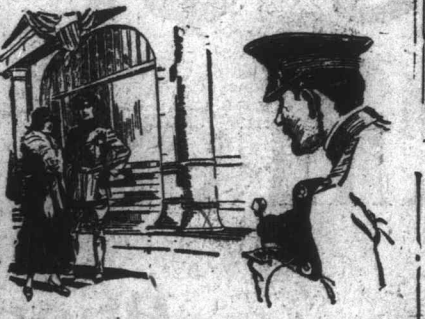

Mr. George S. Lyon the eight times Amateur Champion of Canada, will reach the three score mark next month, but that his eye is as keen as ever, his drive as long as ever, and his short game as deadly as ever, was amply demonstrated at Montreal, where he recently spent four days attending the organization meeting of the Canadian Seniors' association. The champion played 36 holes every day, starting with a 76 over the heavy Beaconsfield course where he defeated the Montreal crack, T. B. Reith, 4 and 3, and ending up at the Royal Montreal course at Dixie with a 75. Such scores at the beginning of the season, over heavy rain-soaked courses are nothing short of wonderful, when it is considered that Mr. Lyon will in a few weeks now be 60 years young. He is still the "Daddy" of Canadian golfers, and for his age, is probably the world's greatest golfer.

That the name of Lyon will be perpetuated in Canadian championship circles for many years to come seems to be assured. The eldest son, Seymour, who went overseas with a Varsity company when 17 years of age, and was badly crushed and wounded, is following in "Dad's footsteps" all right. He has now almost completely recovered from the bad mauling he received at the front, thanks to a year's rest and recreation, principally spent on the links, and the other day, over the stiff Lambton course, Toronto, took his father into camp to the tune of 5 and 4. Seymour, who is a most likeable young chap, drives a long ball from the tee than the champion—and that is some driving. From present prospects it looks as though it will be many years before the "Governor" surrenders his golfing crown in Canada. When he does the indications are that it will be the son Seymour whose brow it will adorn.

Reports in reference to the newly formed Canadian Seniors' association are to the effect that it is meeting with a most enthusiastic reception from all the chief golfing centres. The leading men of the Dominion are joining and indications are that the 250 membership limit will be reached in very short order. The Seniors will stage a big Patriotic Tournament over the Royal Montreal Golf course in September, which is being awarded with very great interest. It will be arranged in four flights: Class A, 50 to 54 years inclusive; class B, 44 to 59 years; class C, 60 to 64 years; class D, 65 years and over. In the United States, Senior tournaments last year, no fewer than 380 of the Seniors, out of a total membership of 500 "fed up" which constitutes a record number of entries for any golf tournament ever held on this continent or in Great Britain.

Reports are rife that there will be a serious ball shortage in Canada before the season is over, and players would be well advised if they have the chance to "stock up" liberally. Early in the season, shipments from Great Britain came in quite freely, but now, advice is that there will be few if any more deliveries, and there are not nearly enough balls in the country to meet the ever increasing demand. The duty on golf balls from the States is almost prohibitive, and the situation is really a serious one. British manufacturers are simply overwhelmed with orders, and there is also a scarcity of raw materials and shipping space, too, is hard to secure. Altogether the prospects for dollar balls, and few of them at that, look decidedly ominous. Happy the golfer who has a locker-full of well known brands bought at $9 and $10 per box.

The golfers in the United States are, out to raise $500,000 this season on the links in aid of the Red Cross. A splendid start has been made and exhibition matches galore are every week bringing in large sums. In Canada the opening exhibition game will be staged at Brantford, Ontario, Saturday, June 22nd, when, for the first time in the East, four well-known amateurs will be seen in such an event. The amateur champion, Mr. Lyon, partnered by his son Seymour, will be opposed by the Scottish-Canadian expert, Mr. T. B. Reith, of Montreal, and Mr. Irving S. Robinson, of Rochester, N. Y., winner of the North and South championship. A most interesting match undoubtedly will be the result. Lyon, pater et filius, will be a hard nut to crack, but Mr. Reith and his conferred from the States should give them a great game. Incidentally the local Red Cross funds should benefit to a large amount. It is not often in Canada that four such fine amateur exponents of the game are seen together on the links.

Nine-tenths of the drives that go after aglee, and approaches that fail to connect, are the result of not keeping the eye on the ball. No less an authority than Harry Vardon recently stated: "I always say that, given a correct grip and a knowledge derived from experience of the stance that is best suited to the individual, the only thing left to do is to keep the head absolutely steady and swing the club. I put the matter in this way because I am—and always have been—convinced that the most important rule of action in the playing of a golf stroke is to be sure that the head does not move during either the upward or the downward swing. Then the body is likely to turn properly at the hips; at any rate, it cannot sway. When practising in sunny weather you can tell from the shadow on the ground whether your head has moved. Simply note a mark on the ground during the address, take the top of the club, and see whether the shadow has moved off the mark."

"Mose, your man seems to spend a great part of his time on the rough," remarked a southern golfer to a negro caddy. "Yassuh," replied Moses. "De rough ez dat gemman's home-address."

WAS I BED NEARLY HALF OF HER TIME

Decided to Take Tanlac After What it Did for Husband and Troubles

There was recently printed in this paper a remarkable statement made by Daniel Hickey, of 217 Euclid ave., Toronto, in which he tells how Tanlac relieved him of a long-standing case of stomach trouble and rheumatism, and his wife of a serious nervous trouble, from which she had suffered for several years. Mr. Hickey has lived in Toronto all his life, is employed at the Dominion Wheel Works, and both he and his wife are so well known in the community that his story has been widely commented on. Now comes Mrs. Hickey, who in corroboration of her husband, tells in her own words of the wonderful way in which Tanlac has also benefited her.

"I was practically a confirmed invalid with nervous trouble for the last six years," said Mrs. Hickey the other day, "and my system was so broken down that I had to spend four or five months out of every year in my bed, and what time I was able to be up I would be so weak and listless that I wasn't fit for a thing. My energy seemed to be completely gone and I was so run down that I could not even sweep the floor, let alone do any other house work. Sometimes I would have a most disagreeable, creepy feeling all over my body, just as if something was crawling underneath my skin, and I was so touchy that the least little thing would irritate me and put me all out of humor. I didn't have a bit of appetite, and what little I forced down tasted so bad, that I couldn't relish it, and it didn't do me any good. My skin had that pale, sallow, unhealthy look as if I had no blood in my veins, and I would get so restless at night that I could hardly go to sleep at all. I had taken so many different kinds of medicine, and been treated too, by specialists, without getting any better, that both my husband and I were greatly discouraged. But when he started on Tanlac and saw it was helping him he wanted me to try it too. Well, I have taken four or five bottles now, and am actually in better condition than I have been in years. My nervousness is completely gone and I never had that disagreeable, creepy feeling any more. My appetite is just fine, I sleep like a child all night. I am so much stronger, and better in every way that my husband tells me I look like a different person, and I sure do feel like one. From the way Tanlac has fixed me up, both my husband and I think it is about the finest medicine there is, and we are more than glad to recommend it."

Tanlac is sold in Brantford by Robertson Drug Store, in Paris by Apps Ltd., Toronto by A. Yee, in Middleport by William Peddie. In Onondaga by Nell McPhadden.

MORNING SESSION OF O.C.T.U. HERE

Proposal to Increase Revenue Defeated—Will Not Place Organizer Here

OTHER BUSINESS UP

The O. C. T. U. continued their sessions this morning. Mr. George A. Harmon, of Galt, was present, and spoke shortly in the interests of the Galt T. U. C. F. Burke was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for his presence, and his fine speech which he made yesterday. Owing to war reasons, the suggestion that the revenue of the conference be increased, was not concurred on. The proposal that the I. T. U. be asked to place a resident printer of Ontario here for organization purposes was not concurred in. The conference turned down the motion that an employment bureau be established in connection with the conference, believing that this would entail too much work for the secretary. Yesterday afternoon, on the motion of Delagato Archie of London, seconded by Del. Phillips, of Montreal, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the publishers of Brantford newspapers for their kindness in allowing their operators off early to attend the convention.

FRED SMITH, former physical director of the Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto, and at present general supervisor of the Y.M.C.A. work in England, who will return to Canada to become national physical director for the Dominion.

To The Editor of The Courier

Editor Courier:

Dear sir,—In your paper of to-day (Friday) I notice a letter from the Mayor in reply to the secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance so-called. I don't know how they get this high sounding title or what they have done to deserve it. We have had a Sunday once a week for a good few centuries and some of these so-called Lord's Alliance slackers have had a fairly good time out of it. I think they might find something more useful to do at this time than try to block the work of production when the fate of the nations who have done something for the betterment of the world at large is at stake. Mr. Sailer may take it that the people in Brantford as a whole are perfectly satisfied with Mac up to the present, and pleased to know that every facility is being given to factories to produce to the limit. None of us has any desire to work on Sunday, but if necessary we will do it and take a chance on what the Lord has to say about it. I am a good deal less afraid of the Lord than I am of some of the officious so-called "Lord's Day Alliance ministers." It is this class of agitators who cause trouble in places that would otherwise be enjoying a little recreation on Sundays. The whole bunch of them, I mean the ministers, are preaching noise and heaven, but they hang on tightly to mother earth and the fullness thereof; let them forget for a while their psalm singing and preaching, strip their coats off and go and do a day's work in a factory at something useful, and live on what they earn and then the working man will go and hear what they have to say on Sunday or any other week day evening. In other words, this Lord's Day Alliance combine is nothing but "cant humbug and hypocrisy" that is about the mildest term I can find for it. I will also say in conclusion this: that there never was a time in the history of the world when oppression was dominant that the people were not downtrodden and oppressed. We are fighting for liberty and freedom on the other side and I think the time will come when we will have to fight for it here as well.

SILENT WATCHERS OF ENGLISH COAST

Ceaseless Vigilance Watch- word of Navy, Which Guards British Isles

FLEET IS "ALL EYES"

Watchers of the shores, lookers for the lurking submarine, detectives of all spies and traitors along the coasts of the British Isles! The but little known coast watchers do their effective work in silence.

Only now and again and that but very rarely is there any mention of them, notwithstanding that they are the guardians of the shores of the home isles. Whether they are men, or women, girls or boys, they all have a hard time of it, the coast watchers, and all do their duty without flinching, along with the coastguards that are left, with the national guard, the police and certain others who wear no uniform or distinguishing badge and who belong to that service which is mentioned only in the Estimates.

When the fleet was mobilized and most of the coastguards went back to service on board ship—when Britain was stripped of her army and of the army reserve, Territorials and all when every heavy gun that could be equipped and trained, Britain was like to be the prey of the ridding enemy, according to the writer of this special article in the Glasgow Herald. It was then the coast watchers were formed to help guard the shore. And from man to boy and woman to girl, the peril of war has given many an anxious hour to them all, and great deeds have been done that no history may ever record.

A Ceaseless Vigil

Some of them who wear the brassard bearing the letters "C.W." have undergone in the course of their duty, sharp experience or incidents and adventures along the shores of the British Isles that are stranger and much livelier than fiction. These stirring affairs take place for the most part away from the main lines of defence, along lonely, dull, seashore, and precipitous cliffs and rocky headlands, where one false step as the watcher forges cautiously along can bring sudden and awful death. Yet day and night, in snow and rain, and storm, the C.W. carries on—ten miles up and ten miles down the beat allocated. There are, too, times when the C.W. spends night after night and day after day lying concealed on the edge of the cliff or forehead, keeping a lookout on the shore below for the arrival of a submarine or spy. And the patrolling of lonely cliffs, from which attitude a signal may be morse to a waiting U-boat, has its thrilling dangers and adventures.

The coast watcher of Britain is all eyes and vigilance. Though today the menace of a military raid or invasion is more removed than in the early months of the war, when less than three days' freedom in the North Sea would have brought a German army to the rapine and slaughter of British homes, the alertness of the guardians of the shore is not lessened. Espionage has to be checked and thwarted, seaward lights and the movements of ships have to be noted, and the bases found, where the ubiquitous underwater craft of the enemy may obtain the petrol and lubricating oil so necessary for their extended cruises. Then a close eye is kept upon the areas forbidden to shipping, for a shipmaster under one of the neutral flags may have been bribed to risk his vessel by straying—accidentally as it were—among the extensive mine fields protecting our harbors, anchorages and certain parts of the coast.

The Foe of the U-Boat

But above all does the coast watcher look-out for the submarine and her operations off shore. The binoculars are never idle with the C.W., as he or she plods onward, keen-eyed, sharp-eared, reading the earth, the sky, the waters, and the horizon. The U-boat that comes up off the shore, with her conning tower or searchlight, is a pack of quick-ly detected by the coast watcher and reported at once to headquarters. Signalmen set to work, and telegraph wires hum. Speedily the destroyers appear over the sea-line, and trawlers laden with the traps and gins for catching the "tin fish," crowd on the scene.

Once the hunters have picked up a trace of the marine Boche there is some fair certainty that doom is approaching. The speed of the submarine under water is not great, and the trick of sinking to the bottom and lying quiet is by no means successful now. A depth charge or two that is powerful explosive set to burst at a given depth—when dropped in the vicinity of the submarine usually either crushes in her hull or causes such damage to it that she has to rise to the surface for dear life's sake.

On more than one occasion a coast watcher has detected alarm among the fishing fleet plying their hazardous occupation within the waters marked out for them by the Admiralty, and through the C.W.'s speedy message the patrols have arrived on the scene in time to avenge the enemy's dastardly attack.

In winter and in time of storm and fog the post of the watcher of the shore is one of great and harassing anxiety. The national safety may demand that, even while human lives are standing in danger, no signals be shown, no siren sounded, nor warning gun fired. Sometimes, indeed by secret orders, the whole coast is in darkness for several nights. At other times the lighting is normal till it may come that sudden instructions are given, and the flashes and colors sent out by the lighthouses and lightships are surprising. For in war time the coast-keeping of the coast of Britain is interlocked with the control of the coastal lights.

Enemy's Secret Stores.

But it is where the coast is honey-combed with caves and underground fissures that the watchers find more than ample scope for their energies. For caches of petrol, heavy oil, and spare parts may be found, cunningly hidden away again at the time the "untersee boten" may come furtively to replenish her stores. According to report, there have been some daringly contrived bases discovered by the

GERMANS STARVED SAYS SINGER JUST BACK FROM BERLIN

Food Goes to Soldiers and People are Emaciated— Failure of Drive a Blow to the Population

New York, June 8.—A Scandinavian-American Line steamship which reached an Atlantic port on Sunday from Copenhagen via Christiania, brought an American woman straight from Germany after six years there; a mother taking her two sons back to Mexico City because they were "on the verge of starvation in Berlin" and more than 50 passengers, among them military attaches and diplomatic agents.

Miss Bonaventura Spink of Indianapolis, who for 6 years has sung in Berlin with the Dresden Opera Company, said that everything went well with Americans until President Wilson's last message.

Now Bitterly Persecuted

"Since that reached Germany every American has been the subject of bitter persecution," she said. "Americans are required to report to the police twice a day instead of once as formerly. There are but few Americans left and they are trying to obtain passports. I have been trying since the first of March to get home. It has been interesting to watch the change of public sentiment these past few months. During the winter every one rejoiced over the coming spring drive which would surely bring victory. When the drive began the papers printed glowing accounts of overwhelming victories and reported their troops but a few miles from Paris. As late as March it was vigorously denied that any American soldiers had landed in France. The hurried editorial was that it would take the United States at least five years to equip and transport an army of any considerable size to the French shores. British army discipline was ridiculed, and mutiny was reported daily."

Children Are Being Starved

"All over Germany children are being starved that the soldiers may be fed. All children look emaciated and emaciated. Most of the children are being kept from school because they haven't strength to study."

"The railroads are in bad shape. All leather straps and metal parts except the wheels have been taken from the trains."

"Every day for months I saw from my window at the Grand hotel which looks directly down on the railroad station, thousands of German troops

C. W. and other coast patrols. One in particular was found in a hollow under a jutting elbow of a rock, almost halfway up a cliff that had been ceaselessly patrolled for many months. And, again, there is a story concerning an outlying reef, where a great magazine of spare parts for U-boats was probed for and discovered.

Nothing daunts the courage and intrepidity of the coast watcher, whether on patrol in the open or watching in darkness, hidden in a honeycombed cliff down by the edge of the sea, where in day time one finds only the traces of seals and bits of wreckage and bones or pieces of clothes, and at night the noises heard down their under the cliffs cause a stout heart to shiver.

When at the end of the war, not the whole story, for that is impossible, but parts of it are told, there will be astounding tales concerning the splendid part which these keepers of the British shores have taken in the defence of the heart of the Empire.

fresh from their rest on the Russian front, being rushed to the western front. The disturbances in Russia lost the Allies a decisive victory at the Hanger, as the German lines could not have held without the reinforcements from Russia, and the food supply would not have been sufficient without that commandeered in Russia.

"Butter is $2.50 a pound in Berlin. Sugar and flour are not to be had at any price. Tea is $19 a pound."

Erling Natvig of Cleveland, O., who had been in Norway five months, said it was almost impossible to obtain food and in Norway unless one is wealthy. Food speculators control the supplies, he said, and the poor people are starving.

Mrs. Ester Johnson, who had been in Berlin for two and a half years, is on the way back to her home in Mexico City with her two sons because she said they were on the verge of starvation in Germany.

Baroness Olga Maydell told of the 70 day flight with her husband, Baron Gerard Mawdell, from Petrograd to Stockholm. For days they were without food, railroad service in Finland was discontinued and they had to walk for miles. They were beaten and robbed.

AGRICULTURAL EVENT OF THE YEAR

THE WESTERN FAIR
September 4th to 14th, 1918

The Western Fair Association of London, Ont., are in the forefront this year with advertising matter for their Exhibition in September. Prize Lists, Hangers and Maps are being prepared and will soon be mailed throughout the country. The management have added $1,500.00 to the Prize List this year. This has been carefully distributed throughout the different departments and certainly makes the list very attractive from the Exhibitor's standpoint. The Live Stock Department should draw a large entry as the prizes are really worth while, and a win at London's Exhibition means considerable if you have not received a Prize List and would like one drop a post card to A. M. Hunt, Secretary, London, telling him the kind of entry form you require and it will be sent you just once.

ONONDAGA COUNCIL

Middleport, June 3.—The regular session of Council and Court of Revision was held in Mitchell Hall at 2 p.m. All members present.

The communications from the Reeve of Pickering and the Brant County Board of Agriculture were laid over for next meeting.

At the Court of Revision some eight appeals were heard. In regard to gas wells, only two were reduced slightly, the rest stand as they were. Some four appeals on account of having no dogs were allowed. The dog assessed to W. McBay, was assessed to T. McConkey, the rightful owner.

In regard to the two bridges, the Council have decided to build, according to the tender of James Thompson, the culvert of Knox's of a 22-foot span to cost $1,100, and the one on McLellan's side road, a 12-foot span, for $800, everything being furnished by the contractor. Bridges to be built as soon as possible, but at least to be finished by October 1st.

Messrs. George Simpson was appointed sheep valuator for sub-division one and Andrew-Knox for division two.

The treasurer was ordered to borrow $500 to meet current expenses of the township.

The following accounts were paid: Thos. Hunter, re road work, $40; Stratford Pipe Co., $263.70; Alfred Burrill, salary, etc., $80.45; deleterious to Ottawa, $47; Treasurer Bond, $12; the account of Mr. D. Tattersall was laid over for next meeting.

The Council adjourned to meet at call of Reeve.

Woman's Outlook on Canada's Future

THE splendid spirit and patriotic endeavour of Canadian women has been one of the outstanding features in Canada's war effort. They have unsparingly given of their time and energy in the interest of the Red Cross and innumerable other activities which have come as a result of the war. Thousands of Canadian women have been anxious to devote part, if not all of their time, in directions where their work would prove of advantage.

Registration will be the means of bringing to these women the opportunity they have desired.

The purpose of registration is to learn the exact capabilities of Canadian men and women, and the information gained through registration will make it possible for Canada to direct effort from less essential to more essential occupations and to widen the scope of woman's usefulness.

Every Woman

On June 22nd, every woman of sixteen years and over must attend at one of the places provided for registration between the hours of 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. and there truthfully answer all questions set forth upon the registration card. Failure to register means heavy penalties—as Registration is law.

Volunteer Workers Needed

The registering of 5,000,000 people in one day is a stupendous task, and voluntary helpers are urgently needed. Individuals, women's societies, clubs, fraternal societies, church organizations and municipal organizations are asked to help. The Board appeals with confidence to the patriotism of every Canadian woman and to the pride which every locality must take in doing its own work well, to furnish the necessary number of volunteer deputies and assistants.

Those willing to offer their services should apply to the Registrar in their district.

MUSIC IN SCHOOLS URGED BY EDUCATIONALISTS

It is astonishing the number of educationalists who are openly advocating music as a compulsory subject in the public and high schools. Dr. Hollis Dann of Cornell University, in an address before a state teachers' association struck an important note when he drew this conclusion, among others, from his observations on the needs for successful music teaching in the schools: "The welfare of the pupil demands that the scope of music teaching in the schools shall be widened to include instrumental as well as vocal music."

By way of impressing his thought, Dr. Dan continued: "The school orchestra and band afford opportunity for the development of musical talent and acquiring musical training, superior in many respects to the vocal training which it supplies. The pupil who has learned to hear mentally the music represented progresses rapidly in the study of any instrument. An increasingly important and valuable aim of music in the schools is to open to the boys and girls the world of orchestra music and provide a means for participation in ensemble performance.

"Neither advocacy nor defence of this new feature of school music is necessary. In all parts of the country, school orchestras and military bands are multiplying rapidly. Properly equipped teachers are not available in sufficient numbers to take charge of these new and valuable activities. Zeal and enthusiasm are not sufficient. These indispensable qualities must be supplemented by musicianship and proper ideas concerning the teaching of the art and science of music."

As one might expect, certain mistakes have crept into the operation of school bands and orchestras. Dr. Dann believes that perhaps the most flagrant are:

(a) Failure to get the instruments in tune with themselves and with each other.

(b) Playing too loud.

(c) Attempting ensemble playing before the pupil can read the part or play his instrument.

But these will be watched, and the move for orchestras and bands in connection with the schools, already sweeping over the United States, will, it is certain, sooner or later make its way across Canada. A welcome awaits the movement for its productive of much good educationally.

NATIONAL MUSIC.

National music has been defined by an eminent critic as that music which, appertaining to a nation or tribe whose individual emotions and passions it expresses, exhibits certain peculiarities more or less characteristic which distinguish it from the music of any other nation or tribe. Taking this definition as a standard or measure of our musical productiveness up to the present time, it can hardly be maintained

"OVER THE TOP" WITH EMPEY IS "A VOICE FROM THE TRENCHES."

"A voice from the trenches," is the way Sergeant Empey's great story, "Over the Top," has been described by critics. As a drama with the fighting sergeant in the very role he enacted in the trenches it will be shown next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday at the Rex Theatre.

The soldier-author with this play holds the mirror up to Guman nature as he found it in the English private soldier. His story will appeal to young and old alike, to all who love pathos and humor, great deeds and mainly men.

The New York Times in commenting on the story, "Over the Top," said:

"Prospective soldiers can learn here pretty nearly just what is awaiting them, in both incident and sensation, while their folks at home will be heartened."

Like the book, this Vitagraph drama is filled with anecdotes that will bring the smile and laughter. Empey proves that life in the trenches is not all gloom by any means. He says: "War is not a pink tea, but in a worthwhile cause like ours, mud, rats, cooties, shells, wounds or death itself are far outweighed by the deep sense of satisfaction felt by the man who does his bit. There is one thing my experience taught me that might help the boys who may have to go. It is this—anticipation is far worse than realization. In civil life a man stands in awe of the man above him, wonders how he could ever fill his job. When the time comes he rises to the occasion, is up and at it, and is surprised to find how much more easily than he anticipated he fills his responsibility.

"JULES OF THE STRONG HEART"

Donald Crisp's producing company which has been making the production "Jules of the Strong Heart," featuring George Beban, returned to the Lasky studios with thrilling accounts of the manner in which assistant director Harry Haskins fell into the icy waters of the lake during the making of scenes from a rowboat.

"Have you a photograph of yourself falling in?" Haskins was asked by the camera manager.

"No, of course not," Haskins replied, somewhat nettled that his word should be doubted after he had suffered the chilling experience.

"Wasn't that camera on my back when I toppled? That's the biggest part of the tragedy." "Jules of the Strong Heart" will appear at the Rex Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"Rich Man, Poor Man."

Adolph Zukor presents Marguerite Clark in George Broadhurst's great stage success, adapted from Macmillan Foster's novel and directed by J. Searle Dawley, at the Rex Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

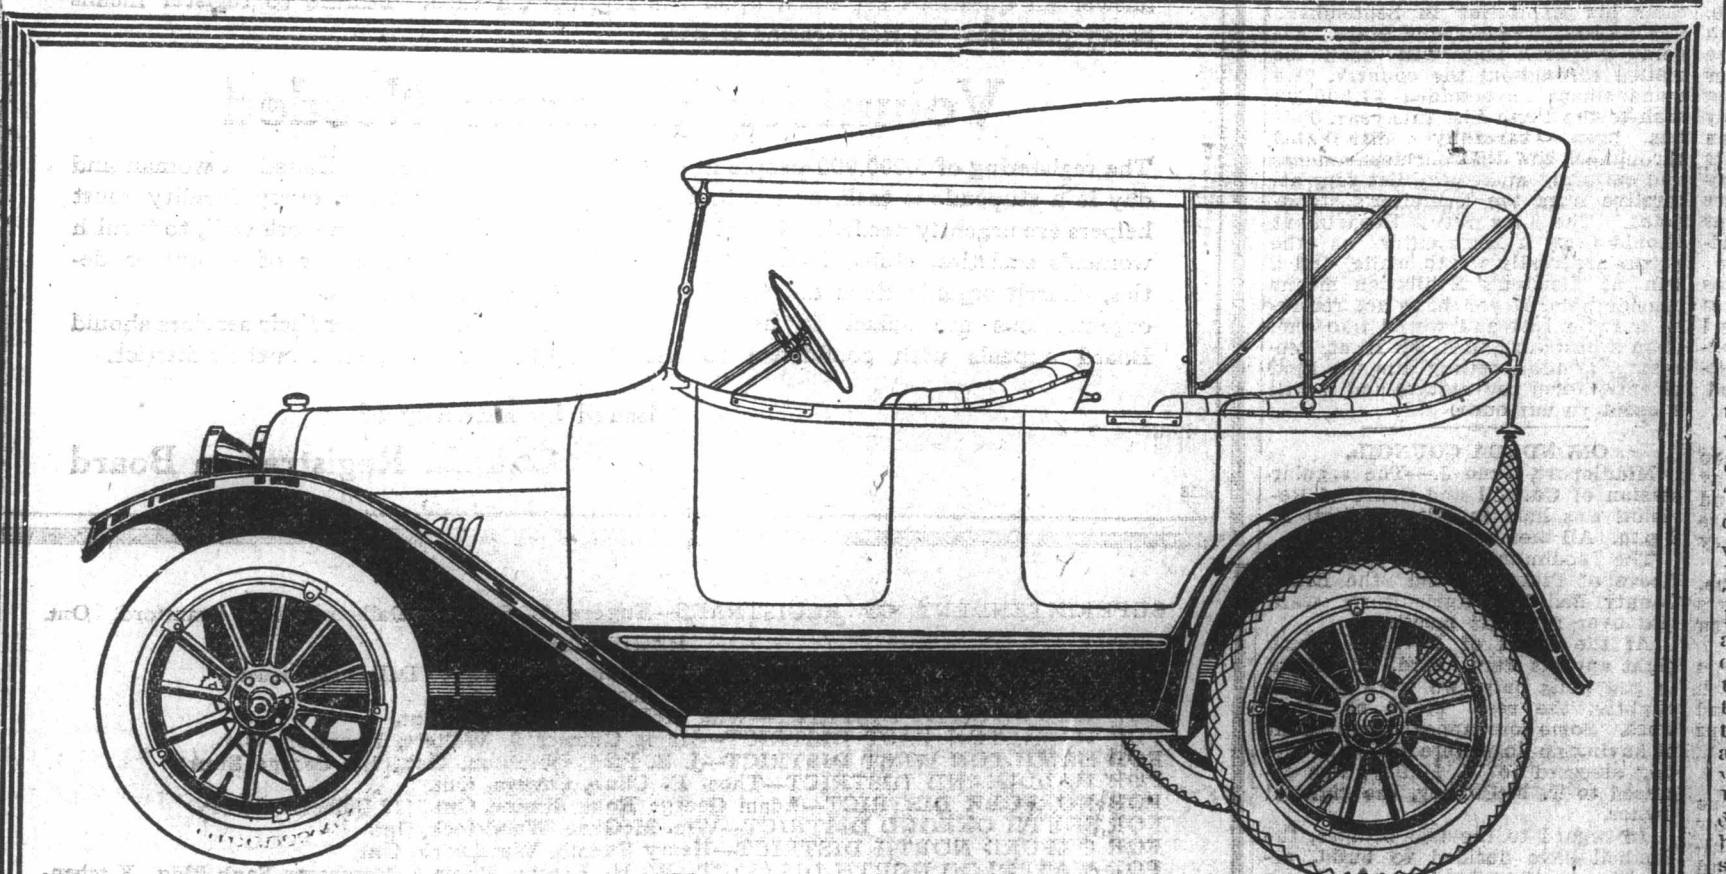

Cast: Betty Wynne... Marguerite Clark Edward Varick Richard Barthelmess Henry Mapleson... George Backus John K. Beeson... Frederick Warde DeCourcy Lloyd... J. W. Herbert Mrs. DeCourcy Lloyd... Augusta Anderson David Lloyd... Donald Clayton Henry Evans... William Wadsworth Mrs. Wynne... Otello Nesmith Mrs. Tilney... Mary Davis

The story: Betty Wynne, after spending many years in a boarding school, enters the home of John K. Beeson, a cold-hearted, selfish financier, presumably as his grandchild. Although a rich man, Beeson is poor in everything else, for he loves no one and every one despises him. Betty brings love and sunshine into his life and he refuses

Advantages of Chevrolet Valve-in-Head Motor

"Considering the number of unusual features possessed by the valve-in-head motor," says H. J. Wallace, local Chevrolet Dealer, "It is not any wonder that this type is earning for itself a high place in the minds of a great many motor car owners, and is becoming more popular each day.

"To begin with, it uses gasoline miserly, and what is used is not wasted in the least, so it is easy to see how this type of power plant would be much in demand today.

"To understand the advantages and workings of the valve-in-head motor, it is not necessary to have any technical knowledge, for the plan is simple, and it is understandable by anyone.

"In the common method of gasoline engine construction, the gasoline vapor is usually introduced into a side chamber—a sort of a waiting room. There it explodes with a force that travels in a round about way until it strikes the piston.

"In the valve-in-head motor, it is different. In this type, the gasoline vapor is introduced directly into the cylinder head, and the explosion occurs directly over the cylinder head, the cylinder being without corners to collect gases, the fullest benefit is secured by the explosion.

"All the gasoline vapor explodes, and all its force goes to the flywheel. It is for this reason that the valve-in-head is powerful and dependable. All the Chevrolet models are equipped with this type of motor.

"More than two hundred thousand Chevrolet cars are in use today. This, in itself, is ample evidence that the followers of this type of motor are increasing each day."

"SYLVIA OF THE SECRET SERVICE"

Irene Castle will be seen at the Rex next Thursday, Friday and Saturday in "Sylvia of the Secret Service," produced by Astor, and released on the Pathe program. This is a "sizzling" good mystery drama, and one of the best photo-dramas in which Mrs. Castle has ever been seen. It is a mystery from start to finish. The "Kimberley" diamond has been lost, and Sylvia Carroll (Irene Castle), a girl detective is placed on the trail of the gem. Much of the action takes place aboard a channel boat to England. Later the scene of action changes to New York. Prescott, a young clerk in the establishment which was carrying the diamond to England, is responsible for its safe delivery. While aboard the channel boat the diamond disappears and she is called on, because it is discovered that she is a detective. The proprietor of the store from which the diamond is sent is murdered, and detective Hearnings, of Scotland Yard arrests young Prescott for the murder. Hearnings arrives in New York on the trail of the Kimberley diamond and there finds that the girl detective that he has befriended in England has been assigned by the New York authorities to assist him in locating the gem supposed to be responsible for the robbery. She succeeds in rounding up the gang. One of the gang confesses to the murder of the owner of the diamond. Mrs. Castle is supported by Eliza Dexter and an all star cast.

NEWPORT

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Mr. C. McEwen attended conference on Thursday.
Mrs. Walker and friend, Mrs. Chester, of Hamilton are guests of Mrs. Drew at the Grand River parsonage.
On Thursday, May 30, 1918, Newport school was the scene of a farewell social for three of our gallant young men, Harvey Charlton, Roy Marra and Irvine Wheeler, who have been called to the colors. The large number present to wish the boys God speed shows the high esteem in which the boys are held. The evening opened with a geographical contest, followed by an old-fashioned spelling match which created much laughter. Then we were favored with several musical selections, rendered by our much admired talent of Newport and vicinity. Mrs. Walsh and Mr. Rupert Greenwood favored us with solos; Mrs. Gribben and Miss Rollins a duet and the choir a selection. The school was nicely decorated with flowers, bunting and flags. Our chairman, Mr. James Mellican, gave a splendid address suited to the solemn occasion. He repeated Tennyson's prophecy, which is now being fulfilled on the battlefields of Europe. He reminded us that our duty was to sacrifice, and to let our voices rise night and day in prayer for those who are offering their lives. Then he addressed the boys and Mrs. Clarence McEwen presented them with comfort kits, which we hope will provide comfort for them in the training camp and on the battlefield. Several present made short speeches, extending their good wishes and hopes for safe return. Among others, Mrs. John Hodge, who had taught two of the boys during their school days at is staying with his father, Mr. Walker Messacar for few weeks.

The Bereau Bible class expect to hold their semi-annual social gathering at the home of Mr. Frank L. Colver, just south of town, Thursday night.
Mr. Frank Kitchen of Cherry Valley, near here, has been missing since Tuesday of last week. He visited his brother Jesse, near Vanessa, leaving there about 1 p.m. He evidently reached home as the horse and buggy were found there, but he has not been seen since. Search has been made for him, but no clue has been found. He was living alone at the time.

Dyspepsia is an advanced stage of indigestion, arising from the stomach refusing to perform its normal functions-- Digestion consists in the changing of foods from an insoluble form, so that they may pass through the walls of the alimentary canal and become part of the blood. The stomach keeps the food in almost constant motion for a considerable time to accomplish this purpose, and should this organ not be kept in good condition, indigestion results, to be followed in due course, if not relieved, by dyspepsia. You can keep the stomach performing its functions, and even relieve and cure dyspepsia if you

Lesson 10--Second Quarter,
June 9, 1918.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES

Text of Lesson, Mark 14:17-26--Memory Verse 1 John, 3:16--Golden Text, Mark 14:38--Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The incidents of our special lesson verses are Jesus' sorrowful announcement that one of them would betray him, and his eating the passover, and institution of the supper by which his redeemed show forth his death till he come; but we must try to consider the whole chapter. Verses 22 to 31 take us to the upper room where they kept the passover; and all that he did and said that last evening that he spent with them before he suffered is recorded more fully in Luke 22:7-38 and John 13 to 17 inclusive. The rest of the lesson chapter tells of Gethsemane and his arrest and his being brought before the high priest and the council. May the Lord give us what he would have us to receive from this wonderful portion. As to the place where they kept the passover, some one has suggested that it may have been the home of Mary the mother of Mark, whose husband was probably still alive at that time, and Mark may have been the man bearing the pitcher of water. (See an article on page 4 of July, 1917, Kingdom Tidings.) Luke says that Peter and John were sent to prepare the passover. One thing that interests me much in this record, as well as in that of the ass' colt, is that they found it just as he told them (vs. 16; Luke 19:32), and my heart is often saying, "I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me" (Acts 27:25). He had a great desire to eat that passover with them, for he would not eat it again until fulfilled in the Kingdom of God (Luke 22:15-16). This leads us back to the night in Egypt when the nation was born, and when they were safely early where he saw the blood, and points us onward to the rebirth of the nation at his coming according to Mic. 7:15, 16; Jer. 16:14, 15. Some of the sad events in that room that evening were the presence of the betrayer and the strife among the disciples as to which of them should be the greatest (vs. 18-21; Luke 22:24). He was always a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, misunderstood, unknown, hated, persecuted, and all for us, that being redeemed by his blood, we might follow in his steps. As a servant washing their feet he gave them an example of the lowliest service and he caught the right attitude when he spoke of himself as "Serving the Lord with all humility of mind" (Acts 20:19).

In our brief space we hardly dare venture on anything from the wonderful discourse and prayer of John 14 to 17, but we venture to suggest that it should be our constant aim in all things and at all times to glorify God; that under all circumstances we may know his peace and have untroubled hearts, and be sustained by the assurance that he longs to have us see and share his glory (John 14:13, 14, 27; 16:33; 17:4, 22-24). Do not fail to lay to heart his words concerning the one whom he has sent us in his stead till he shall come again, the Holy Spirit, the Comforter and Teacher and abiding friend (John 14:26, 17, 26; 15:26; 16:7, 8).

Now let us see him in Gethsemane, not forgetting to listen to the hymn of praise they sang before they left the upper room (vs. 26-29). Note the boasting of the disciples and his sorrowful reference to Zech. 13:7. He left eight of the disciples just inside the garden and took a little farther with him Peter and James and John; then he left them and withdrew about a stone's cast farther, and knelted down and fell on his face and prayed that if it were possible this cup might pass from him. This cup had no reference to Golgotha, but to the seeming possibility of the agony in the garden killing him and his not reaching Golgotha. He prayed to be delivered from death in the garden, and he was heard and answered, and an angel strengthened him. This is to me all very clearly stated in Heb. 5:7, taken with the facts in the gospels. How much we all, as well as the weak and unsympathetic disciples, need his admonition to watch and pray, for though the spirit may be ready, the flesh is weak (vs. 88).

The kiss of Judas, the arrest, the leading him away as a prisoner to the high priest, the forsaking of him by all the disciples is all most pitiful reading; and when we remembered that he suffered all this willingly to fulfill Scripture, for they could not touch him if he had not allowed them to do so. It is all too wonderful for us to grasp. I like to see him going forth to meet those who came to take him, saying to them: "Whom seek ye?" and when they answered, "Jesus of Nazareth," he said just two words: "I am," and they all went backward and fell to the ground (John 18:4-8). How apt we are to blunder as Peter did with the sword, and need him to remedy the blunder (vs. 47, 49). The young man of vs. 51, 52 was probably Mark himself. The abuse he suffered at the hands of the chief priests and council, the false witnesses, the smiting of the servants, their blinding him and spitting upon him and buffeting him, is all too awful; but may our hearts truly say, "All for me," and may all this on our behalf lead us to be, if possible, more devotedly his. This same Jesus will come again in glory (vs. 62) and we shall come with him (Col. 3:4).

AMERICAN ARMY OFFICER IN ITALY
Head of U. S. Ordnance Department Inspected the Italian Front

Headquarters Italian Army, June 7.--General Crozier of the American Ordnance Department and member of the Advisory War Board, has spent a week of observation along the Italian front and at the various large centres where artillery and flame fronts, going into the trenches and among the men, discussing the many questions of equipment and supplies and specially observing the resources in guns. His impressions on the general condition of affairs were entirely favorable. The production of artillery in Italy has been greatly intensified, within recent months and the present equipment of light, field and heavy guns is probably as good as better now than it was before the reverse of last fall. The great industrial plants of Genoa and Milan have doubled and quadrupled their output in guns, trench mortars, rifles, machine guns, the production of mortars increasing seven-fold during the year. Similar extensive development has been going on in the production of mines and armor for naval construction and in the output of airplanes, many establishments being now equipped to turn out complete airplanes.

FRIENDS THOUGHT HE WOULD DIE

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Conquered Dyspepsia and Restored His Health.

MR. ROBERT NEWTON.

Little Bras d'Or, C. B. "I was a terrible sufferer from Dyspepsia and Constipation for years. I had pain after eating, belching gas, constant headaches, and did not sleep well at night. I lost so much weight—going from 175 pounds to 146 pounds—that I became alarmed and saw several doctors who, however, did me no good. Finally, a friend told me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'.

CARE OF BRAKES PROLONGS AUTOS

Quick Steps Sure to Injure Tires and Mechanism—Some Timely Advice

"Use your brakes intelligently and only when absolutely necessary is an excellent motto to have printed on the instrument board of every car," says William H. Stewart, Jr., president of the Stewart Automobile School, Brooklyn. "The average operator, yes, the average skilled driver, uses his brakes too much. This wears the brakes, racks the mechanism of the car and injures the tires. Learn to stop your car by coasting to the point where you wish to stop. This may be learned with a little practice and should always be done on a level road. If you find you are going a little too far, a light pressure on the pedal will stop you. This is better than dashing up to a place and then jamming on both brakes to make a spectacular stop. Besides wearing the brake lining and attachments, it racks the tires severely, sometimes making the wheels lock and the tires slide. This wears away the tread in one spot. If this is done frequently the tread will be ruined and the fabric exposed. A tire worn away in this manner cannot be returned for adjustment as it has been ruined by abuse.

"When coasting down a hill use the brakes alternately. By changing from service brake to the emergency brake the first is allowed to cool, prolonging its life. The longer it is used the less it cools for repairs and so the total upkeep is reduced. Some cars for mountainous tourists have an attachment which ejects water on the brakes every time they are applied. It consists of a water tank which must be filled regularly, as it is separate from the cooling system, and a pump which is fastened to a brake rod and so throws water every time the brake is used. But changing from one brake to the other does not cool the drums on the wheels as one brake operates on the outside and the other on the inside of each drum. So it is advisable to relieve the brakes as much as possible.

"This is accomplished by using the brakes as a brake. On a gentle slope stay in high gear with engine throttled down, and do without the brakes. On a steeper grade use the second gear or the first if the car is a heavy one.

"When the emergency brake is used on a hill it must be applied with caution or the brake rod will be broken. The brake is set and the hand removed. It cannot be used when the car passes over water bars, etc. At this time the rear axle moves backward owing to the flattening of the springs, and if the brake rods are drawn tight the strain comes on them, stretching or breaking some part. While using the foot brake the foot automatically yields to the strain, but if the emergency brake is set, it cannot yield.

"Where one brake rod passes through a tube carrying the other they may become frozen, that is stuck together, if they are not properly lubricated. Be sure that the grease cups are turned down at least one turn a day. If they do become seized, remove the lower part of the grease cup and force kerosene into the hole with an oil gun, working the brakes meanwhile to loosen them.

"Look over the equalizers, if they are provided, and adjust the rods to the same length to insure best action. If brake lining is badly worn, watch the workman while he replaces it, and perhaps the next time you can do it yourself.

"When the brakes occasionally by speeding up and then applying. If the car keeps on or swerves to one side, the brakes needs adjusting. The better way to test them is to jack up both rear wheels and apply the emergency brake a few notches, enough to grip the wheels firmly. Try both wheels to see if they turn easily. If one turns more readily than the other, that one must be tightened. To test the foot brake, a jack may be applied to hold it in position, but it will be better to have a helper if one is available.

Poor Stup'd Russians Have Protested in Vain Against Cruel Massacres

THE Russian protest to Germany against the massacre of the Transcaucasian region comes late in the course of the negotiations that gave this territory to Germany and her Turkish ally. They have already been in occupation of the land for about two months, which is a much longer time than in the past has been necessary to secure the results that are stated in the Russian protest.

"Following upon the withdrawal of the Russian troops, Turkish troops have already invaded the undefended country, and are not only killing every Turkish Armenian, but also every Russian in Armenia."

When the Russians surrendered this region they could scarcely have expected that anything else than such a wholesale slaughter would result. They must have known that the Turks were determined to exterminate the Armenians and all other Christian races, to possess their land, their stocks and all their property and their churches. They had every evidence of this intention in the fact that up to that time the Turks had slain at least 100,000 Armenians, and that they were threatening to wipe out every Christian village in Eastern Asia Minor. There is no indication, though, that the Bolsheviki delegates made the least effort to provide for the protection of this land. They merely quit, turning the defenceless inhabitants over to the savagery of a merciless enemy already bent on their destruction.

In their protest they state that the peace treaty of Brest-Litovsk left the determination of the future destiny of the people of Ardahan, Kars and Batumi to themselves. Enver Pasha and his able assistant Talaat Bey especially approved this most excellent provision and began immediately to put it into execution. As the Turkish army advanced to destroy their stocks and all their property and their churches. They had every evidence of this intention in the fact that up to that time the Turks had slain at least 100,000 Armenians, and that they were threatening to wipe out every Christian village in Eastern Asia Minor. FINED FOR SENDING PANICKY TELEGRAM

English Noblewoman Took Rumors of German Advance Too Seriously

A statement made in a telegram handed in at a post office that the Germans were marching on Calais led Lady Rossmore, of St. John House, Hampton Court, being summoned at Marlborough Street Police Court.

The summons was "for or 1-14 April, at South Audley street W., unlawfully making a false statement contrary to regulation 27 (a) of the Defense of the Realm Regulations."

Sir Archibald Bodkin for the Director of Public Prosecutions, said that Lady Rossmore's telegram ran: "Cowdroy, Rossmore, Monaghan, Germans marching on Calais, Dover and Folkestone to be cleared."

The assistant asked her if the statements in it were true, and she said that they were, and she handed the stamps to affix to it before it was sent. Fortunately, it was stopped, the matter was brought to the notice of the authorities at Scotland Yard, and Lady Rossmore was requested to call there. This she did, and made an explanation.

The contents of the telegram were not true, added Sir Archibald, and there was no order about Dover and Folkestone. If the telegram had been forwarded serious mischief would have been caused, and it was felt in the interests of the public that these regulations should be enforced, and that the matter could not be allowed to pass.

Lady Rossmore was the wife of Lord Rossmore who was living in Ireland, and after she had been in Scotland Yard she wrote a letter on April 17 to the Secretary of the War Office, which contained the following passages:

"I am in a most awful state. I have done the most dreadful thing possible to do, and I don't know what to do for the best. My eldest son is in the midst of a France, and I am nearly out of my mind with anxiety, and Saturday afternoon I was told the Germans were marching on Calais, and that they had orders to clear Dover and Folkestone, on account of the big German gun and as Lord Rossmore is in Ireland, and I am terribly upset about our boy in a moment of excitement wrote a telegram to my mother, only that it was not true, and she saw the news in the papers, as his heart is so bad. I put in the telegram, as far as I can remember, the following: 'Cowdroy, Calais, Dover and Folkestone to be cleared' and signed my name at the back.

I have nothing more to say. I would sooner have died than done any harm, and this is the truth."

Sir Archibald said he believed the letter was a truthful and natural explanation of the circumstances in which the telegram was sought to be circulated.

Mr. Mead, for the defence, stated that Lady Rossmore was most patriotic, and was connected with the Red Cross and other societies both in England and Ireland. She was English by birth, and her husband was a retired army officer. Her eldest son was fighting in France and her other son was physically unfit to serve in the army of navy, but was doing national service in Ireland.

Mr. Mead asked where the rumor came from.

Mr. Mead said he believed Lady Rossmore received it from her sister. Continuing Mr. Mead said Lady Rossmore regretted what had happened, and now recognized the importance of these regulations being adhered to by everyone, high and low.

Mr. Mead: With regard to this case I yield to the representatives from both sides, and I inflict the nominal penalty of £10, with £5 costs.

Mr. Mead: With regard to this case I yield to the representatives from both sides, and I inflict the nominal penalty of £10, with £5 costs.

Saskatoon reports considerable revival city building activity with seventy-one permits in May, calling for expenditure nearly three times as great as in May, 1917.

NOTE

A shampoo that's a real hair tonic.

You drop a couple of table-spoonfuls of the wee, satin-like LUX flakes into hot water and whisk about until you get a perfect sea of whipped-cream-like lather. The water underneath has been softened like unto a spring shower. Then you give friend Head a real old massage with the fluid and when you come to rinse you'll find the LUX flakes were so completely dissolved that not a trace or suggestion of soap will remain in the hair.

Your hair will look glossy, healthy and YOUNG.

All grocers sell LUX. British made, by Lever Brothers Limited Toronto.

THE SAFEST MATCHES IN THE WORLD
Also the Cheapest Are

EDDY'S

CHEMICALLY SELF-EXTINGUISHING
Silent 500's

Safest because they are impregnated with a chemical solution which renders the stick "dead" immediately the match is extinguished. Cheapest, because there are more perfect matches to the sized box than in any other box on the market. War time economy and your own good sense, will urge the necessity of buying none but EDDY'S MATCHES.
