Murder Near Blackville.

BLACKVILLE, Northumberland County, N. B., May 26.—A fatal shooting affray occurred last night at Greys Rapids below here, at the house of David Curtis.

A wedding and supper were being held, and several boys had assembled on the highway in front of the house and were making considerable noise, and otherwise conducting a demonstration usual at weddings, which they call a chivari.

Wm. L. Curtis, son of the man at whose house the party was held, opened a dormer window and let fly a charge of buckshot, several of which entered the body of a little fellow named Garfield Astles, killing him instantly.

The little fellow was not taking any part in the demonstration but just following the crowd.

Geo. Coughlan was also seriously injured, several shots having lodged in his body.

The deceased was 13 years old, and the injured boy about 17 years. Curtis left the place during the night. The inhabitants are greatly enraged and lynching is feared if the man can be caught.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, May 25.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced that the government had no further legislation to bring to the attention of Parliament this session. He added: The only legislation that will be brought down is the following: To authorize the issue of bonds by Montreal harbor commission; to give effect to a judgment of the Exchequer Court in relation to the Dominion Atlantic Railway Company; to rectify an error in the interpretation of the act for the settlement of accounts between Canada and Manitoba; to confirm the act of Quebec Legislature in pursuance of an agreement with reference to the boundaries of the province of Quebec, and possibly a few other departmental bills respecting customs and inland revenue.

Among the questions answered, Mr. Sifton stated that up to March 30, 1898, the number of claims entered for placer mining in the Yukon was 7,977.

Mr. Blair stated that the 14-foot navigation from Lake Ontario to Montreal would be completed by the opening of navigation in the spring of 1899.

Mr. Russell was informed that the attention of the government was called to the case of John E. Turner, late of the Schooner Ida, of Halifax, who was arrested and detained at Porto Rico by the Spanish and the Imperial authorities had been communicated with and a statement of the claim for damages of the schooner had been transmitted to the colonial office.

A discussion sprung up as to the regulations for running or operating the Grand Trunk adopted by the company and approved by order-in-council to take effect from July 1st next.

Clarke Wallace said many complained of the regulations as unfair, and as introducing the American system which is not so good as the Canadian for the protection of life. This was evidently a reflection on the fact that General Manager Hays is an American, and Mr. Laurier subsequently deprecated such reflection, and said that Mr. Hays was not the first American imported from the United States to manage a railway in Canada.

Dr. Montague said there was no intention to deny Hays, who has undoubtedly shown great ability as a manager. There was rather a general agreement of opinion among the members that the men should be consulted before regulations of this kind were approved.

Mr. Blair stated that he would give the matter immediate attention and would be extremely pleased to hear the men at any time with regard to any matter requiring departmental action.

The premier said the question was of considerable importance, and while the men had never been consulted before regulations of a railway company were approved this was a progressive age, and there is no reason why the men should not be heard. Every class of men were entitled to be heard with reference to laws affecting their welfare.

In reply to Sir Chas. Tupper the Premier said there was no intention of dropping any government bills in the order paper.

Mr. Eoster again inquired about military charges preferred against Col. Demville by the senior major of the 8th Hussars.

Mr. Borden replied that after a limited investigation General Gascoigne had recommended the senior major to drop the charges, but this advice had been rejected, and the matter was now before the minister, and as soon as he got time after the session would look into it.

On motion for a third reading of the plebiscite bill, Mr. Foster urged that the date of polling should be announced.

Mr. Fisher said that the announcement already made placing the date early in the fall so as to suit the convenience of farmers with regard to harvesting operations met with the approval of the temperance body. To prevent surprise or uncertainty two months' notice would be given.

Sir Charles Tupper inquired how far the decision of the whole electorate of Canada on this question would override the pronounced opinion in another direction of any particular province in view of the fact that the Minister of Justice had stated according to newspapers, that each province had absolute right to enact a prohibition within their own borders; also whether the government would accept a bare majority of the whole electorate declaring for prohibition or whether they would require a heavy preponderating majority to justify them in passing a prohibitory law.

The Premier replied that it was unreasonable to demand an answer to those questions because the temperance people, at whose instance the vote was being taken, was quite satisfied to take the bill as it was, and were agreed that all the consequences to flow from this vote shall be left until after the vote is taken. Sir Chas. Tupper asked him, he said, what would happen if prohibition were carried by a small majority or if it were carried by a preponderating majority. He might ask Sir Chas. Tupper what would happen if there was no majority at all. If there was a majority, big or little, then it would be the duty of the government to consider whether or not the time had arrived for temperance legislation to be placed on the statute book; and, if the government failed in its duty, the opposition would be in a position to take the government to task, as Mr. Foster had already intimated they would do.

The bill passed its third reading, and will go to the Senate.

Some time was spent on the bill to incorporate the Supreme Grand Lodge, Sons of England, Benefit Society.

Mr. Fielding and Sir Richard Cartwright opposed the bill and said the society should raise its rates as a condition of acquiring a charter.

Mr. Bertram, who has the bill in charge, refused to make the terms. He and other members contended that if the government wanted to lay down a law about insurance rates they should prepare a general act to that effect and not select special cases for an application of a new principle. When the vote was taken, the bill got the third reading by a vote of 85 to 47, every minister present voting with the minority, and all opposition members with the majority.

OTTAWA, May 25.—The premier announced that in consequence of his recent indisposition the government had not made the progress expected in cabinet business. He was, therefore, obliged to postpone till Wednesday his announcement of the condition of public business. He would then move that the House sit in the forenoon.

Mr. Sifton got his Dominion lands act and his Northwest Territories bill through committee.

Mr. Mulock's postage bill was amended to add Toronto and Montreal to points where dead letters may be examined. Another amendment provides that where the address of the Canadian sender appears on a letter which is mailed with short postage the sender may be notified and the necessary stamps accepted from him.

On the item of cold storage Mr. Martin, of P. F. Island, asked whether the government had been able to do anything for P. F. Island.

Mr. Fisher said the supplementary estimates would contain a grant for a steamship from Charlottetown to Great Britain. The government was already in negotiations which he hoped would lead to something.

The House went into supply, taking up the agricultural vote. On the vote for experimental farm Mr. Fisher said that he had not as yet made any changes in the policy or management of farms except that at Nappan. He had not found that station satisfactory. The people of the maritime provinces seemed to be giving their attention to stock-raising and beef producing, and that industry seemed to be more advanced than dairying. The minister thought that the best thing to do would be to develop the dairy work at that station. Supt. Forest was removed because his management was unsatisfactory.

The bill granting the officer commanding the militia $2,000 allowance, in addition to his salary of $4,000, was passed through the final stages.

A bill amending the inspection act was passed, the clause making the inspection of raw hides compulsory being dropped, also a clause making the inspection of potash and pearl ash compulsory.

The bill as amended provided that every package subject to inspection under act A should be stamped with letters "V. R." and "Canada inspection."

Mr. Fielding gives notice of a motion to extend by fifteen years the term for the payment of money advanced by Canada to the St. John Bridge Company at the rate per cent. the same as before, the government taking the privilege of acquiring the road within five years by paying the original cost with ten per cent. additional.

OTTAWA, May 27.—Mr. Fitzpatrick secured a second reading of a bill making it clear that under the law as it stands evidence given in court by a witness under compulsion incriminating himself shall not be available subsequently to be used against him.

The Tobique River bill was passed this evening. A long discussion took place, without result, over the contract for a bridge in the Northwest.

A NEW MAN.

Paine's Celery Compound

Gave Him a Fresh Existence.

He Had Endured Years of Misery and Agony.

Had Given Up All Hope and Expected to Die.

It Is the Medicine for You Poor Sufferer.

You Cannot Be Disappointed if You Use Paine's Celery Compound.

WELLS & RICHARDSON CO.,

DEAR SIR:—I can conscientiously recommend Paine's Celery Compound to all who may be suffering from dyspepsia and liver trouble. For years, while living in Black Brook, I suffered from a complication of troubles, and was so bad with dyspepsia and indigestion that I could not touch a morsel of food. I found it difficult to sleep, and what little I did get was often broken with horrid dreams. Intense sufferings from liver complaint added to my load of agony; I also had dizziness, pain in the back, and was pale, haggard and despondent.

I kept doctoring and dosing without deriving the slightest benefit, and finally gave up all hope of getting well. One day my daughter, who had read of a wonderful cure by Paine's Celery Compound, begged me to try one bottle of the medicine. I told her it was no use to throw away money, but she pleaded so hard that I please her I bought a bottle, and before it was used up I felt better. Encouraged so much I continued with the medicine and improved every day.

I am now cured, and owe to Paine's Celery Compound the greatest medical recovery in the world. I urge all who are suffering to try this grand medicine and test its virtues.

Yours very truly,
CHARLES COMEAU,
Négusac, N. B.

Cruelty to Animals.

A flagrant case of cruelty to animals has within the last few days startled the inhabitants of Upper Mansfield. It appears that one Laddis who is a bachelor and lives alone and who is on bad terms with his neighbors and with the world generally, owns a pair of horses and one of these has been the subject of his ill temper. During the latter part of the week, the horse, which was none too well fed, was hitched to a harrow and so closely, that every time its inhuman driver goaded him on, the harrow was drawn up on the poor animal's heels and the more he tried to extricate himself the deeper he became mixed up with the harrow. Not satisfied with this, the horse was next beaten to such an extent that on Sunday morning he was unable to rise. After several ineffectual attempts to make him get up, Laddis conceived the brilliant idea of hitching the other horse to him to make him start. He carried this idea into execution, and the result that after dragging the poor beast for some distance out of the barn into the yard by the neck, the horse was still unable to arise, and continued in this condition until some time in the afternoon, when, after a desperate struggle, he was able to stand up without the kindness of his owner.

The foregoing facts are capable of being substantiated, and the attention of the authorities of the Society for the prevention of such inhuman acts, is respectfully called to this state of affairs.—Fredericton Herald.

Rise up ye Women that are at Ease

CHRISTENDOM AND THE LIQUOR CRIME.
By Bishop Randolph S. Foster, D. D., LL. D.

The vicious classes are Christian born. Think for a moment, that this Christendom has authorized by law and sanction of the state, the creation of this frightful pest; that it has provided for its creation; that it is here not in opposition to, but of her will, that by formal and deliberate legislation, brought about by Christian votes, she has opened, in all her towns and cities, slaughter houses of men, women and children, and of all virtue, and employs a million minions to do this dreadful work; that she has done this and continues to do it with her eyes open, and with full knowledge and purpose; that she has prepared and planned and deliberated in government chambers, for the production of these desperate classes; that her employed and licensed minions do this for pay.

For a generation Christendom has been hearing a low growl from the kennel, where she is battenning these wild beasts of passions; a growl in the kennel as they have crunched their victims. "What means the roar today along Trafalgar Square and London streets?" It is the beast, loose, and shaking his mane. Pamper him a little more on Government joints, and no kennel-dog will hold him. Fitted for rove, he will raven to the full. Run engenders poverty; poverty and run engender crime. From the Government run-shop, the wild beast hunts his prey. Is Christendom struck with judicial blindness, that she sleeps? Are her eyes holden, that she cannot see? There are armies marching and counter-marching, with banners on which are emblazoned dynamite, anarchism, communism, nihilism, labor league, no Sablath, down with the Church and State, recruited from the dram-shop and offered from the kennel. Are we so dead that we do not hear the tramp of the gathering legions? Nations that license murder for pay will be murdered for plunder; nations that batten the wild beast of passion will be devoured by the wild beasts of rapine and ruin. The rum hole must be closed, or the rum hell will engulf Christendom. What shall be done with Christian rum in the problem. What shall become of the Christian world? Answer it with license, or authorization, or tempering policies, is it difficult to see the end? Strike it down, cage the beasts that vend the frenzy in the only place to which they belong, the criminal cell and the kennel will disperse. There is but one remedy. We have had experience enough to have learned what that is. The nations must put an end to transforming men into beasts by law, and must put the beasts who do it into a limbo where their sorceries will cease. The conflict is now upon us. It is a life-and-death struggle. The Government is on the side of the beasts; the people make the Government. Shall the rum fiend still carry on his carnival of death? Shall the rum minions, at the still, behind the bar, at the bar, in the gutter, or in the mansion, rule? Or is there enough of manhood among us to save Christendom from the damning shame. The answer we make to that question determines fate. If Christianity has not power to save Christendom, where is our hope? With what face, then, can we go to the heathen? There is no devil-worshipper in Africa more degraded, more lost to all sense of shame than the demon worshipper of rum; no high priest of the sorceries of heathenism more disabused than the minions of Christian states authorized to manufacture and vend the poison. Paganism can muster no miscreants from all her realms more debased than the rum army; no festering pest-house—not even the Chinese opium den—more deadly to virtue than the Christian rum-hole. Must it be endured longer? Must the race be doomed to go into the future with this mill stone fastened about its neck by legislators of Christian states? Are our tyrants too much for us? Then farewell to hope.

Who doubts that there is a remedy for this state of things? It is not unknown. The evil is rampant, not of necessity, but because we have not the courage or the desire to apply the remedy. It is simply needed that right-minded people combine to do the work; and in this as in every case of a crying evil the Church must lead in the reform. This is her most peculiar province. It comes in the line of the great class of moral issues of which she is the recognized guardian.

It cannot be effected by moral suasion, by sermons, by prayers or by abstinence of the well-disposed. It is a case where the arm of the law and force repressive is the only resort. It belongs to the department of crimes; and must of necessity, be met by criminal law faithfully executed. The rum seller is a criminal and must be held amenable to criminal law.

The traffic must cease to be treated as a question of rights and liberty of individual choice, as the pursuit of a legitimate calling, as much so as theft, or murder, or any other crime. It belongs to the same category, and nothing but sophistry can give it any other place. The rum seller is an unmitigated enemy of society, dangerous to public welfare; there is no criminal of deeper dye. He has been petted by the state; respectability has been thrown around his most atrocious crime; he has been protected in it by law, has been authorized by money license to practice it. He has been permitted to live among us as a free, respected citizen, pursuing a legitimate calling; to hold up his head and walk the streets as the equal of respectable men; has become the boon companion of law-makers; permitted to appear in court and sit on juries as a virtuous citizen. He has been allowed to open his doors upon the public streets, and drive his business in open day, the peer of honorable tradesmen. So long as this remains his business will flourish. There is no moral power that can reach him. He will continue to be defiant and grow more contemptuous of decency every day.

There is but one road of deliverance from this pestiferous evil. It is not obscure; it is the plain, straightforward road of simple honesty in dealing with a case of pronounced crime. The rum-seller is a criminal pure and simple; he must be treated as such in law and administration. The brand of felon must be put upon his brow; and he must be made to take his place in the felon's dock, and in the felon's cell, or on his gibbet. This kind of speech is not out of fashion. This is the position the Christian Church must assume, and to which the Christian states must be forced by right-minded people. It must be made impossible for legislators and courts and the police set for public protection to be complicated with crime. A felon class has grown up among us. The felony is clear, pronounced, the most dreadful. They are robbers and despoilers of innocence. Their business is murderous. It has no other quality in it. It threatens our homes. It fills our jails and prisons and pauper asylums. It fills many of our homes with miseries worse than death. It is a felony of the deepest dye, pure and simple. The felon's dock, the felon's cell, and if need be the felon's gibbet, is the only remedy for such a crime.

A sentiment must be vocalized into organic expression which will compel legislation. The sentiment exists. It must be expressed in the only effectual way, until a rum-seller will no more dare to open his house of death among us than would a dealer in deadly pestilence; until he must like other miscreants—of which there are none greater—hide himself in the dens and caverns of night from the vengeance of hot pursuit. Brand felon on his brow; huddle him with co-fellows in the criminal's dock; drive him with the gang in striped garments. The business will then cease, and the earth will be delivered from his devilish sorceries. * * * Treat the criminal as he deserves; let criminal law do its function; put him in the criminal dock, which is the only place to which he is entitled; carry him from the dock, by sentence of law, to the felon's cell or to the gibbet of striped convicts, who are his only fit associates. Let the process be the most summary possible; let the law take hold of the factor on simple evidence of his business; put it under ban of right of search when its presence is suspected. Deal with it precisely as we deal with theft, murder, abduction, and classes of a crime which grade with it, but are far below it in atrocity. In a nation whose legislation is controlled by universal suffrage and direct vote, if half the voters have not sunk below the level of men, it cannot be long until we are delivered of this insufferable shame.

A Shrewd Photographer.

A Fifth Avenue photographer has lately completed a system by which his pictures of babies have become famous. He has discarded all the familiar expedients of his profession to persuade very young children to submit to the camera and his scheme has been completely successful. One part of his gallery has been fitted up like a nursery. Around the room at convenient points are situated cameras and these are in charge of his assistants. The photographer devotes his attention to the baby. He tries all the toys in turns, gets on as intimate terms as possible with the baby after such short acquaintance and gradually lures the unsuspecting infant into looking his best. When pose and expression are satisfactory, he gives a signal to one of his assistants at the camera and the trick is done. Mothers bring their babies from all quarters to this tactful photographer. It would be a difficult matter to find any child who would not, after ten minutes' session with toys, exhibit some expression that his parents would be proud of. The artist catches that expression and as many other agreeable ones as possible. The final delight comes to the mother when she receives the proofs, not sent as proofs usually are, but mounted on a large piece of card board which makes it possible to compare them simultaneously. The wise man has left nothing undone which could strengthen his hold on the babies and their photographs.—New York Sun.

Here is a patent process for restoring to cracked earthenware its water tight properties. Make a paste with finely sifted wood ash and emery powder, moistening it with the white of an egg; rub this over the crack on the outside and let it dry in the open air.

"Why," exclaimed one Spanish statesman "will you insist on borrowing trouble?" "Well," replied the other, "that seems to be the only thing we can negotiate for just now."

TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

Contributed by the I. O. G. T.

I hereby give notice that I have made satisfactory arrangements with the Editor of the QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE by which this column will be devoted to the interests of the I. O. G. T. I make an appeal to all lodges throughout the county, and all persons interested in Temperance work, to do their part, so that the work may be a success from the beginning.

Address all communications to, ERNEST M. STRAIGHT, Lower Cambridge, N. B.

The following report was sent to me by the Sec'y of Cambridge Union Lodge. The "clipping,"—"The Boy's Reasons" was contributed by a friend.

CAMBRIDGE UNION.

No! Cambridge Union is not dead. It has only been asleep,—just quietly dozing and taking things pretty easy. I think the following will convince all who read this that "She has some muscle left."

On the last night of meeting May 14th, there were 20 members, 10 visitors, and 4 children present.

The evening's programme was as follows:

Speech, Rev. A. B. MacDonald. Reading, Janet MacDonald. Recitation, Ralph E. Coes. Vocal Solo, Mont E. Gilchrist. Speech, Geo. A. Wilson. Speech, Albert Vradenburg. Reading, Donald DeWare. Duet, Will MacDonald and Willie Briggs.

THE BOY'S REASONS.

Many years ago, Mr. Hall, an English gentleman, visited Ireland for the purpose of taking sketches of its most beautiful scenery, to be used in an illustrated work on Ireland.

On one occasion when about to spend a day in the neighborhood of Lake Killarney, he met a bright young Irish lad who offered his services as guide through the district.

A bargain was made with him, and the party went off. The lad proved himself well acquainted with all the places of interest in that neighborhood, and had plenty of stories to tell about them. He did his work well and to the entire satisfaction of the visitor. On their return to the starting point, after a day of great enjoyment, Mr. Hall took a flask of whisky from his pocket and drank some. Then he handed it to the boy and asked him to help himself. To his surprise the offer was firmly but politely declined.

Mr. Hall thought this was very strange; to find an Irish boy who would not touch or taste whisky was stranger to him than anything he had seen that day; he could not understand it, and he resolved to try the strength of the boy's temperance principles. He offered first a shilling then half a crown, and then five shillings if he would taste that whisky. But the boy was firm. A real manly heart beat under his ragged jacket. Mr. Hall determined to try him further, so he offered the boy a golden half sovereign if he would take a drink of whisky.

That was a coin seldom seen by lads of this class in those parts. Straightening himself up with a look of indignation on his face, the boy pulled out a temperance medal from the inner pocket of his jacket "This was my father's medal, for years he was temperate. All his wages were spent in drink. It almost broke my mother's heart, and a hard time she had to keep the poor children from starving! But at last my father took a stand. He signed the pledge, and he wore it as long as he lived.

"On his death-bed, he gave it to me, I promised him I would never drink any intoxicating liquors; and now, sir, for all the money your honor may be worth, a hundred times over, I would not break that promise." The boy's decision about drink was noble. Yes, and it did good too. As Mr. Hall stood there astonished he screwed the top on to his flask and flung it into the water of the lake near which they stood.

Then he turned to the lad and shook him warmly by the hand, and said, "My boy, that's the best temperance lecture I ever heard. I thank you for it. And now, by the help of God, I will never drink another drop of intoxicating liquor while I live.

A VIOLET.

God does not send us strange flowers every year. When the spring winds blow o'er the pleasant places The same dear things lift up the same fair faces—

The violet is here.

It all comes back—to odor, grace and hue— Each sweet relation of its life repeated; No blank is left, no looking for is cheated; It is the thing we knew.

So after death the winter it must be, God will not put strange signs in heaven's places; The old love shall look out from the old faces—

Veilchen! I shall have thee!

—From the German.

"And this," said the gold seeker ditherly as he toiled painfully through the deep snow at the rate of five miles a day, "this is what is known as 'the rush to Klondike'."

Poetry.

SEEDS.

Broadcast over the world we sow Seeds of evil, seeds of good, Weak and powerful, high and low, Linked in human brotherhood. What we scatter we never know; Out of small things cometh great; Weeds spring off and daffodils blow Harvest ripen early and late.

Sown in gladness or sown in pain, Frailest seedlings strike firm root, Quick to vigor and growth attain, Bearing sweet or bitter fruit. Never one do we drop in vain, Each, recorded angels keep, Softly counting the loss or gain, Men therefrom will some times reap.

Drones or workers in live's bee-hive— All we do or leave undone, Duties that fulfillment strive, Things unperfected, just begun, Seed-like, after us still survive, Woo to careless hand or heart! Weeds and thistles the swiftest strive, Rarest buds are slow to start.

Noble action, or word, or thought, Helps another to the light, Guides him in the path he sought, Teaches what is best and right, Work in secret and silence wrought, Foolish words unthinking said, Each with blessing or curse fraught, Influence eternal shed.

Broadcast over the world we sow Seeds of evil, seeds of good, Headless trample and grind them low, Life's true aim misunderstood. What we scatter we never know; Out of small things cometh great; Weeds spring up and daffodils blow, Nature's law inviolate.

WHEN I HAVE TIME.

When I have time so many things I'll do To make life happier and more fair For those whose lives are crowded now with care, I'll help to lift them from their despair, When I have time.

When I have time the friend I love so well Shall know no more these weary, toiling days; I'll lead her feet in pleasant paths always, And cheer her heart with words of sweetest praise.

When I have time. When you have time! The friend you behold so dear May be beyond the reach of your sweet intent;

May never know that you so kindly meant To fill her life with sweet content, When you had time.

Now is the time! Ah, friends, no longer wait To scatter loving smiles and words of cheer To those around whose lives are now so drear, That may not meet you in the coming year.

Now is the time.

HYMN BEFORE ACTION. The earth is full of anger, The seas are dark with wrath, The nations with their harness Go up against our path. Ere yet we lose the legions, Ere yet we draw the blade, Jehovah of the Thunders, Lord God of Battles, aid!

High lust and forward bearing, Proud heart rebellious brow, Deaf ear and soul uncaring, We seek Thy mercy now— The sinner that forewore Thee, The fool that passed Thee by, Our times are known before Thee, Lord send us strength to die!

For those that kneel beside us, At altars not thine own, Who lack the lights that guide us, Lord, let their faith atone, If wrong we did to call them, By honor bound they came, Let not thy wrath befall them, But deal to us the blame.

From panic, pride and terror, Revenge that know no rein, Light haste and lawful error Protect us yet again, Cloak Thou our undeserving, Make firm the shuddering breath, In silence and unwavering To taste Thy lesser death.

Ah, Mary, pierced with sorrow, Remember, reach and save The soul that stands to morrow Before the God that gave; Since each was born of woman For each to utter need, True comrades and true foeman, Madonna, intercede!

E'en now their vanguard gathers, E'en now we face the fray, As Thou dost help our fathers, Help Thou their need to-day, Fulfilled of signs and wonders. In Life, in Death made clear, Jehovah of the Thunders, Lord God of Battles, hear!

A despatch from Potsdam says: Prince Frederick, William, the imperial crown prince, and Eitel Frederick, second son of Emperor William, received the sacrament of confirmation yesterday. Each prince read in a loud voice a confession of faith, which he himself had drawn. It is alleged that the crown prince registered a vow that he would prove himself a living member of the Protestant church and shed his last drop of blood in serving his king and country.

A New York despatch of the 21st ult. says: The Sun this morning prints the following leading despatch. A grave report, having its origin in official circles, has caused serious uneasiness in quarters that are not often disturbed by political rumors. It is to the effect that the British government served notice on France several days ago, in terms amounting to an ultimatum, that she must renounce all claims in the African Hinterland within a month and withdraw her expeditions and other representatives. The correspondent of the Sun does not venture to vouch for the story, but it is significant that it finds a somewhat ready credence among persons whose knowledge and judgment are entitled to respect.

The following is taken from the speech delivered by Mr. Chamberlain before the Conservative-Unionist meeting, and gives his views on the Anglo-American alliance:

What is our next duty? It is to establish and to maintain bonds of permanent amity with our kinsmen across the Atlantic. (Loud cheers.) They are a powerful and a generous nation. They speak our language, they are bred of our race. (Loud cheers.) Their laws, their literature, their standpoint upon every question are the same as ours; their feelings, their interest in the cause of humanity and the peaceful development of the world are identical with ours. (Cheers.) I do not know what the future has in store for us. I do not know what arrangements may be possible with us, but this I know and feel—that the closer, the more cordial, the fuller and the more definite these arrangements are, with the consent of both peoples, the better it will be for both and for the world. (Loud cheers.) And I even go so far as to say that, terrible as war may be, even war itself would be cheaply purchased if in a great and noble cause the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack should wave together—(loud and prolonged cheers)—over an Anglo-Saxon alliance. Now, it is one of the most satisfactory results of Lord Salisbury's policy—(cheers)—that at the present time these two great nations understand each other better than they have ever done since more than a century ago (hear, hear) they were separated by the blunder of the British government.

ST. JOHN LETTER.

Hustling Cities in the East—The Gossip of the City—the Markets, etc.

It is a mistaken notion that the progress of the last hundred years has been confined to this hemisphere. Its greatest advances have been made in the western states and western Canada because of their vast and undeveloped agricultural and mineral resources and the opportunities they afforded to young men in the east to gain homes and fortunes, but away in the east there are cities whose growth within the century has been phenomenal, and so far as we can see, without any apparent reason. Thus the population of Antwerp since 1800 has increased from 53,000 to 257,000; of Liège from 46,000 to 160,000; of Ghent from 55,000 to 155,000, and of Brussels from 66,000 to 187,000. The population of several other European cities has multiplied in a similar way. If we had not had the vacant territory of our eastern cities would be different from what it is.

A woman under the influence of liquor who was driving a horse and carriage about the city last Wednesday was sent home by the police.

A young woman, a native of this city, died in Boston the other day from the effects of a criminal operation.

Several fine salmon have been captured in the harbor this week.

A three year old boy was knocked down by an electric car the other day but escaped injury.

Burglars are operating in the city but so far they have not made themselves rich.

Some young ladies will appear in military uniform and drill at a North End church next month.

The Queen's birthday was a melancholy day in St. John, as holidays always are, for everybody was out of town and the streets were deserted. City men, women and children of every degree are learning more and more every year of the benefits to be derived from an occasional outing in the country.

Thomas C. Carle, a well known livery stable keeper and merchant of the North End died at the Public Hospital last Tuesday aged 65 years. He was a native of Queens county, and a gentleman who was respected and esteemed by thousands of friends all over the province. He left a wife and one daughter.

The money sent to the Windsor fire sufferers has been equitably distributed, but the hundreds of thousands sent to St. John suffers twenty years ago an equitable distribution has never been made. "Verily," as is said in the Scripture, "they will have their reward."

The market has been quiet this week with few changes in prices. Packers quote a further advance of 50 cents on plate beef which now costs $16.20 to import. Canned corn beef in two lbs has advanced to $3 per dozen. Choice new cheese is down to 9 cent per pound. Codfish are very scarce; very few new caught fish have yet arrived; prices are nominally medium $3.50, large $3.00 and pollock $2 per one hundred pounds. Owing to the high price of evaporated apples, 10 cents, there is a large demand for dried which sell at 5 1/2 cents per pound. Sugars remain very firm. G. S. DeForest & Sons are importing 200 sacks very handsome yellow C, from Liverpool which they sell at 3 1/2 cents and shows better value than local refined. P. R. molasses is firm at 25 and Barbados at 30 cents. Butter of good quality is in demand at 18 cents and eggs at 10 cents.

The business of the week has been dull. The depression in the lumber market abroad has brought that branch of industry to a standstill. Operators are doing no business at all which naturally has a depressing effect upon trade.

Women Unjustly Treated
When Dealers Sell Them Common and Deceptive Dyes.

There are thousands of women who have heard of the great saving that can be effected by home dyeing when the Diamond Dyes are used, and have decided to experiment for themselves.

Many of these women, thoughtlessly, will simply ask for a package of dye of the needed color when buying. This request will allow the wary dealer to foist on the unsuspecting customer a cheap imitation or soap grease dye, worthless as coloring agents, but on which they realize a large profit.

Dealers who do this kind of business are trusting and serving their customers unjustly. The dealer knows well that the Diamond Dyes are necessary for his customer to achieve success in her new work.

The Diamond Dyes are the only dyes that reputable dealers handle and sell. The wise merchant keeps a full stock of Diamond Dyes, because the daily demand is so great for these guaranteed and world-famed coloring agents.

The women who use Diamond Dyes for her first dyeing operation will never use other makes. Bright, strong, clear, lasting and fashionable colors are obtained only from the Diamond Dyes.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

TO EDITOR QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE.
Dear Sir.—I noticed an article, in the GAZETTE of May 29th, from your Johnstone correspondent, giving an account of a grand concert held in the public hall of this place on the evening of the 14th inst., the said concert being under the management of Dacon Leverett Thorne, of St. John. In the above referred to article the scribble informs us that the entertainment was highly appreciated and at the close of the concert Mr. Thorne made a substantial present to the Baptist Sewing circle of Johnston. Now, Mr. Editor, I am creditably informed that the Sewing circle of Johnston does not belong to any particular denomination, but that the members of any other church (as well as Baptists) may belong to the Sewing circle.

Furthermore, I cannot say that I highly appreciated the, so called, evening's fun, neither do I think that such an exhibition is fit to be held in connection with anything pertaining to the Baptists; for anyone who believes in tripping the light fantastic toe would have kept perfect time to several of the pieces rendered during the evening. Then when we know that dancing is not upheld by the Baptists, why should we (Baptists) so highly appreciate an entertainment which is the key note of success for a graceful step in, what I term, a dancing performance?

Then, Mr. Editor, please pardon me, for perhaps your correspondent may not be a Baptist, and fully appreciated the evening's amusement, while others of the Baptist faith may not have stopped to consider the responsibility resting upon them since they became members of the Baptist church. Lastly, allow me to say, that such a letter is no good recommendation of the character and habits of the people of that section of Johnston, neither is it throwing the true light upon the subject, for I am truly convinced that quite a large number of the congregation did not appreciate the concert to the high degree depicted by your far seeing organ of Johnston.

Yours truly,
X X.

Cody's, May 30.

TO EDITOR QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE.

We would ask our friends of Gagetown why is the Methodist burying ground in such a condition. We think those who have fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters buried there ought to respect them enough as to lift up the stones and brush, etc., off their graves; or is there too much self pride in the little village to forget their dead friends. No one would believe that in a Christian land such a disgraceful and uncared for burying ground could be found. If some of the young men who are loitering and smoking around the streets were to take axes and other implements required and cut down the brush and clean up the ground so as to make the place look respectable, it would be some credit to them; or must the women turn out with spades and shovels to make the necessary improvements. It may well be asked by those visiting the place, "Where do you people bury your dead?" Even the fence around the yard is a disgrace, the gates being fastened by two old rotten sticks.

Now, if those who would like an idea how a burying ground should be cared for would take a trip to Hamstead or if this be too long a voyage just take a drive down to the Ottagob and see how much pride they take in their dead friends' graves.

Yours, etc.

Gagetown, May 28th, 1898.

War News.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The Sun this morning publishes a dispatch from Madrid, under date of May 19. The tone of the press continues hostile to Great Britain because of Mr. Chamberlain's recent speech. The newspapers strongly censure the governor of Hong Kong for allowing Admiral Dewey's squadron to revictual there and also for not preventing the insurgent leaders from returning to the Philippine Islands.

Apart from the press comments, Great Britain seems in the eyes of politicians, to be becoming almost as much of a factor in the situation in as if she had actively intervened. It is declared that the new government's foreign policy will be expectant, because of the attitude of Great Britain toward Russia and Spain. It is said that Great Britain, within a fortnight, has landed 100,000 tons of coal and large quantities of ammunition at Gibraltar.

A correspondent at Gibraltar says that the Spanish residents are greatly alarmed over the possible Anglo-American alliance. Many of them are withdrawing their deposits from the local banks.

Nine warships seen off the coast of Nova Scotia. Could not discern what nationality but think they were British.

AN EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS.
Col. Cortijo and Surgeon Julian now at Fort McPherson, Ga., are to be exchanged for the newspaper men, Thrall and Jones, now in Morro Castle.

May 12.—Admiral Sampson bombards San Juan de Porto Rico. Admiral Dewey reports the destruction of another Spanish warship. Maj. Gen. Merritt accepts command of expedition to Philippines. Four members of the Spanish Cabinet resign. Cape Verde squadron reported off Martinique.

May 13.—Flying squadron sails from Hampton Roads. Joseph Chamberlain advocates an Anglo-Saxon alliance.

May 14.—Spanish fleet reported off Curacao, north of Venezuela.

SPANISH MINISTER OF MARINE ANNOUNCES WHERE CERVERA'S FLEET IS WHILE U. S. GOVERNMENT IS SPENDING THOUSANDS TO KNOW.

MADRID May 20, 8 a. m.—At 10 p. m. yesterday the Minister of Marine, Capt. Annon received a dispatch from Admiral Cervera, in command of the Cape Verde Squadron of the Spanish fleet. It reads:

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, May 19.—"This morning I have, without incident, entered this port accompanied by the Squadron."

CERVERA.
The Minister of Marine immediately went to the residence of the premier, Senor Sagasta, and communicated this information. He then proceeded to the palace for the purpose of informing the Queen Regent, but Her Majesty had already retired, and the news was conveyed to her by the Infanta Isabel.

The new Minister of Marine has injected the greatest activity into his department. It is said he has been offered war munitions from many quarters.

LONDON, May 25.—The morning papers here give prominence to the despatches from the United States telling of the celebration there in honor of the Queen's birthday. The Daily News says: Certainly some opportunity should be given to reciprocate these demonstrations of good will. This will naturally occur on the fourth of July.

LONDON, May 25.—In the newspapers to-day, there are several striking instances of American anti-American feeling. While the majority of the papers allude with pleasure to the references to the Queen in yesterday's celebration at New York and Tampa and in the prayer of the chaplain of the senate, the Morning Post has allowed to appear in its columns a violent denunciation of America from Hon. Stuart Erskine, a brother of Baron Erskine, who alludes to America's present immortal warfare against Spain and asserts that the sentiment of the country which is worth having is for Spain. On the other hand, the St. James Gazette, which has hitherto been bitterly anti-American, seems to be becoming much more friendly.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The president issued a proclamation calling for 75,000 more volunteers. This will make the total army regular, regular and volunteer, 280,000.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The secretary said this afternoon that the additional volunteers called for would not be recruited from the national guards, as were the first 125,000, but that the enlistment would be open. It is further said that the decision to issue an additional call for volunteers was not reached until the cabinet meeting yesterday afternoon. The call, it is supposed here, indicates a determination to press the campaign actively and vigorously from now on.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—It is expected that the last cable connection between Cuba and Madrid will be cut to-day.

MOLE ST. NICOLAS, Hayti, May 30.—There is no longer any doubt that the Spanish fleet is bottled up in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba.

HEART WEAKNESS.

MUST BE TREATED IN TIME OR ENDS IN CERTAIN DEATH.

Some of the Symptoms are Palpitation After Slight Exercise, Sometimes Severe Pains, Dizziness and Fainting Spells.—It Can Be Cured.

From the Echo, Plattsville, Ont.

The Echo has read and has published many statements from people who have been cured of various ailments by the timely and judicious use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but never before have we had such personally convincing proof of their efficacy as in the case of Mrs. George Taylor, who with her husband and family reside in this village.

To an Echo reporter Mrs. Taylor gave the following history of her illness and cure, and asked that it be given the widest publicity, so that others might be benefited.—"I am thirty-two years of age," said Mrs. Taylor, "and in 1885 my husband and myself were living on a farm in Perth county, and it was there I was first taken sick. The doctor who was called in said I was suffering from heart trouble, due to nervous debility. All his remedies proved of no avail, and I steadily grew worse. The doctor advised a change, and we moved to Moncton, Ont. Here I put myself under the charge of another physician, but with no better results. At the least exertion my heart would palpitate violently. I was frequently overcome with dizziness and fainting fits. While in these my limbs would become cold and often my husband thought I was dying. I tried several medicines advertised to cure troubles like mine, but with no better results, and I did not expect to recover, in fact I often thought it would be better if he ended game, for my life was one of misery. We moved back to the farm, and then one day I read the statement of a lady who had been cured of similar trouble by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, so I said to my husband that I would try this medicine and it seemed to me that it was my last chance. Before the first box was finished I felt an improvement in my appetite and felt that this was a hopeful sign. By the time I had used three boxes more my trouble seemed to be entirely gone, and I have not felt a single recurrence of the old symptoms. Since moving to Plattsville I have used two boxes and they had the effect of toning up the system and curing slight indispositions. To day I am a well woman and owe my life to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and to me my restoration said Mrs. Taylor, "and in 1885 my husband and myself were living on a farm in Perth county, and it was there I was first taken sick. The doctor who was called in said I was suffering from heart trouble, due to nervous debility. All his remedies proved of no avail, and I steadily grew worse. The doctor advised a change, and we moved to Moncton, Ont. Here I put myself under the charge of another physician, but with no better results. At the least exertion my heart would palpitate violently. I was frequently overcome with dizziness and fainting fits. While in these my limbs would become cold and often my husband thought I was dying. I tried several medicines advertised to cure troubles like mine, but with no better results, and I did not expect to recover, in fact I often thought it would be better if he ended game, for my life was one of misery. We moved back to the farm, and then one day I read the statement of a lady who had been cured of similar trouble by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, so I said to my husband that I would try this medicine and it seemed to me that it was my last chance. Before the first box was finished I felt an improvement in my appetite and felt that this was a hopeful sign. ### Local Happenings.

Items of Local Interest Carefully Prepared by the Gazette's "Man About Town."

H. W. Woods, General Merchant, Welsford, has just received a fine, new line of the celebrated B. Laurance Spectacles and Eye glass in Gold, Gold-filled and nickel frames. Mr. Woods keeps a perfect line of test lenses, and can guarantee perfect satisfaction to any person who require perfect aids to vision.

FOR SALE. Notes of hand and receipts for sale at the QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE office.

FOR SALE.—District School Assessment Blanks and School Tax Notices for sale at the GAZETTE office.

FOUND.—A society pin was found in Gagetown recently. The owner can have the same by applying at this office.

GOOD FISHING.—The shad have struck here and the fishermen are doing fairly good work.

LAUNDRY AGENT.—Mr. Fred Brooks of the St. Victoria has been appointed agent for Carvell's Laundry, and parcels left with him will receive prompt attention.

PORK PACKING.—Mr. Paekenhof, of Dublin, is negotiating with the Board of Trade, St. John, with regard to the establishing of a pork packing industry in that city.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS.—Mr. Richard Hamilton has his barber shop open for business and will in the course of a few days have his restaurant open. Those requiring any work done in this line should give him a call.

BRAYLEY COMING.—Brayley, the lighting chalk artist, who has given several performances here during the past few years, will hold an entertainment in the Temperance Hall, on Tuesday, June 7th. See his advt. in another column.

THE OLIVETTE.—The ship, Olivette arrived at Gagetown on Saturday evening and remained till Monday morning. She returned on Monday evening about 8 o'clock and left again on Tuesday morning. It is not as yet known if she will make daily trips here or not.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.—War or no war I am still in the front rank in fitting trim having lately secured the services of Mr. J. A. McKinnon, a late graduate of Mr. J. Mitchell's cutting school of New York. I am now fully prepared to give my numerous customers a first class fit, workmanship unexcelled, style perfect, and prices that will astonish you. I respectfully invite you to call and inspect my large stock, no trouble to show goods and give you quotations at Joseph Walker's, Merchant Tailor, second door above People's Bank, Queen Street, Fredericton, West End.

DEATH AT YOUNG'S COVE.—Mary Kennedy, widow of the late Joseph Kennedy, died at the residence of her son at Young's Cove on Tuesday, after a short illness. Mrs. Kennedy, who was eighty-one years of age, was formerly a resident of this place and was loved and esteemed by the whole community. She leaves four sons and four daughters, viz: Andrew Kennedy of St. George, James Kennedy of White's Point, William and Joseph Kennedy of Young's Cove; Mrs. Lecky, of Coal Creek; Mrs. Fleming of Chipman; Mrs. Samuel Nelson and Mrs. Chas. Batsford of Young's Cove.—Sun.

THE VICTORIA.—The new St. Victoria is now making regular trips between St. John and Fredericton. She presents a very fine appearance and is making fast trips. Her officers are very obliging and always ready to answer any questions regarding her. She is fitted up in first class style and nothing is lacking to make a trip up the river in her a pleasant one. There is no doubt but she will be a great boon to the tourists who visit our river during the summer. She will likely draw a number of passengers from St. John to Fredericton who would otherwise use the railway owing to the quickness of the passage, as she leaves St. John at 8 o'clock and arrives shortly after 2 o'clock in Fredericton.

DIED IN BOSTON.—A telegram from Boston on Saturday announced the death quite unexpectedly of Mrs. Fred Ferris. The deceased had not been in very good health, but nothing serious was anticipated. A letter from her on Friday to her sister, Mrs. Holly stated that she would leave Boston the first of this week on a visit here. Mrs. Fred Ferris will be remembered as Miss Carrie Barnhill. She leaves two brothers, George E. and B. B. Barnhill, and four sisters, Mrs. James Holly, Mrs. David H. Nae, Mrs. Fred Tapley and Mrs. Wm. Rivers. The remains will arrive from Boston this afternoon, and the funeral will take place from the residence of Mrs. James Holly tomorrow afternoon.—Sun, Monday.

BOARDING.—Parties wishing pleasant rooms while visiting St. John can be accommodated at 57 St. James St. See advt. in another column.

THE TWENTY-FOURTH.—The Queen's birthday was observed in a very quiet manner here. Quite a number went fishing, and a party of young folks held a picnic at the Mount. Flags were flying from every staff in town.

Gladstone buried.

LONDON, May 28.—In Westminster Abbey, in the northern transept where England's greatest dead rest, the body of the late William Ewart Gladstone was entombed to-day with the ceremonies of the nation he had served and of the church he had loved.

His grave is beside that of his life-long adversary Disraeli (Lord Beaconsfield), whose marble effigy looks down upon it decked with the regalia that Gladstone had refused.

But, two future kings walked beside the great orator's coffin, and all the nobility and learning of the state surrounded it, though the wish of the deceased had been for simplicity. This official funeral, the first since that of Lord Palmerston, was rendered an imposing spectacle by the magnificence of the service.

MARRIED.

On the 21st inst., at the residence of the bride, by the Rev. J. Coombes, Eliza Barton to Della Barton, both of Cumberland Bay, Queens Co., N. B.

DIED.

At Hibernia, Queens Co., on the 5th inst., Phineas A. Holmes, Thomas Palmer, aged 41 years, leaving a sorrowing husband, one brother and three sisters with a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. G. W. Foster on the 8th inst., at the Hibernia F. C. B. church.

At Hampton, Queens Co., on the 8th inst., after a lingering illness, Hamming Slipp, aged 35 years, leaving a sorrowing mother and two brothers to mourn their loss, which is his "Eternal gain." That he was widely respected and highly esteemed was evidenced by the concourse of people present at the funeral. His remains were interred in the Upper Hampton cemetery beside those of his sister and father. Funeral services were conducted at his late home and at the Upper Hampton church by Rev. G. W. Foster on Tuesday, the 10th inst.

At Queenstown, Queens Co., on the 11th inst. of consumption, Rosanna D., beloved wife of Orlo Puddington, aged 28 years, leaving a sorrowing husband, two children, a father, and mother and two sisters to mourn their loss. She suffered much but bore it with patience and Christian resignation and when the end came she quietly fell "asleep in Jesus." Rev. G. W. Foster conducted the funeral services at the Hibernia F. C. B. church, on Friday, the 13th inst.

MILES.—At Mauderville, Sunbury Co., May 2nd, Frederick W. Miles, aged 62 years.

"ON TRIAL."

(Concluded.)

Elston felt his color forsake him; his breath came and go with difficulty; his limbs tremble beneath him—as he took in the fatal scene. Yes! There he was, kneeling before her, a whole world of despairing love in his eloquent eyes, now more aglow than ever. He was holding her hand in both of his; quite a frenzied fashion, and, even as Elston gazed, spell-bound, he proceeded to devour it with kisses!

Ah, she! perfidious girl! How did she receive his insistent advances! With the withering scorn that deserved! With a gesture of hatred and aversion! No! She turned her head coolly to one side and permitted him without rebuke to press the lovely hand upon which he—Elston—only a minute since had been tenderly dwelling, as upon a priceless treasure that yet some day might be his. There was a curious expression, too, upon his false face, as though she were waiting with a girlish bashfulness for a word from him that should decide her fate.

It came at last. Not one, but many words in a very torrent of wild entreaty. "My beloved! My most adored one!" cried he, in tones loud and clear; remarkably so indeed—no doubt on account of the intensity of his emotion. "Do not consign me to despair—and an early grave. A single word of hope is all I dare demand. Grant it, ere I perish. To-morrow will see me over the border; let me take with me into my enforced exile one smile, one blessed assurance that you are not altogether indifferent to me!"

He waited her reply in apparently breathless suspense. So did Elston. Slowly—very slowly, she pressed her handkerchief to her averted face. "I only dared believe you would be true," she faltered, very distinctly. Elston stayed to hear no more. Stricken, crushed by this perfidy, in one he had esteemed so highly, he turned his steps backward and went blindly down the path by which he had ascended—to his doom. He scarcely knew whether he went. On and on he walked through the shady garden, until at last he came to a high stone wall—only recognizing that, indeed, when his nose came nearly in contact with it. He could not go through it and it was impossible to climb it, so perforce he pulled himself up and began to retrace his steps. This he did, still in a blind fury of rage and grief, that burst into open flame as a turn in a path brought him suddenly face to face with Sophy.

She was coming towards him and was singing—actually singing—in a blithe, sweet, careless way, a new ballad that had taken her fancy of late. With one hand she was holding up her gown, in the other was a big red rose that she was swinging lightly to and fro. She looked like one who was without a care in the world—or a regret—or a remorse. One could see her dainty feet in their Persian shoes and hear the click clack of the high heels, as she tripped down the little hilly pathway. She seemed indeed at the moment the very incarnation of all sweetness and light. When she saw Elston she stopped singing and smiled instead. "You here! And at this hour!" cried she. "Traitor! Have you found me out then?" Such hardihood! Such effrontery!

"Yes. And in time," returned he, standing still and gazing at her with concentrated wrath on his pale face. Then his anger burst all bounds. "How do you dare to speak to me?" he said in a low but terrible tone. Miss Charteris drew back. "What on earth has happened? Are you mad?" she said. "Sane rather—at last. This morning I was mad indeed. Then I believed in you. Now—" He threw out his hand with a gesture that would have done credit to the tragic young man himself. "Now—I know all."

"It seems to be a good deal," remarked Miss Charteris composedly, though her face had lost its color. "It is also evidently of much interest. May I hear it?" "This persistent deception is unworthy—nay, rather, worthy of you," cried he, bitterly. "Learn then that just now I saw you and—and that mountebank in the glass house above."

"I don't know any mountebank. I am therefore more at sea than ever." As she said this in her iciest tones, his lordship regarded her with undisguised disdain. "You know one, at all events," he said. "His name is Pelham." Then his rage broke forth again. "I tell you I saw him on his knees to you—swearing, protesting how he loved you; whilst you—you—listened to him, you encouraged him. I did not wait for the end, but your manner left me no doubt that you accepted him."

"My beloved! My most adored one! Do not consign me to despair—" and so on to the end of what he had heard behind the laurel hedge. As she proceeded, his face changed. First it grew blank, then crimson. Then a wild hope sprang into it that had to do battle with a great shame. When Miss Charteris had finished to the last word, she paused, folded the play with irritating precision, and returned it to her pocket.

"You have done me and Captain Pelham much honor," she said, coolly. "It is certain that in your eyes at least, we shall pass muster as very tolerable actors."

She swept by him as she spoke and went on her way to the gate beyond, cruelly unconcerned in manner. She even took up and continued the song she had been singing, from the very part where she had broken off. She was in no wise disconcerted or put out. This indifference was terrible.

"He hurried after her and caught her up just under the hanging ivy of the gateway. "One word," he entreated miserably. "You gave me three chances. You remember that?"

"Yes. I also remember that two of them are at an end." "Oh, no. That first one, it has not been proved unreasonable."

"I told you not to depend too much on that. On Thursday next you shall see that objectionable letter." She would barely look at him, and his heart sank. If she could show him that letter there must indeed have been nothing in it to justify his jealousy! Still there was one more chance left him. He took courage.

"You blame me," he said, in a low voice. "But you might know that if I did not love you as I do, you would not have to blame me. I pray you to remember that."

She made him no answer to this, beyond a swift glance he found it difficult to translate; and a moment later she had passed through the little ivied gate into the little flower garden beyond, and he had not then the courage to follow her.

He stayed behind, therefore and upbraided himself fiercely. He took himself to task in a shower of genuine abuse. He absented himself from luncheon, and at dinner it took him quite a little while to make up his mind about even glancing at her when he found her on his other side. He did manage it, however, and looked so long, that she was at length obliged to notice him. After that, touched perhaps by the unhappiness of his eyes, she softened towards him, and to his intense surprise and gratitude was considerably kinder than he deserved.

The next day went smoothly, without a single hitch, and if at eleven o'clock he winced inwardly as he thought of the two who were then in all probability amongst the pelargoniums, he was very careful not to betray it. He was happier, too, in spite of all this than he had been for some time. Miss Charteris towards evening grew very nearly her old sweet self again. Nay, more than that. It seemed to Elston that she was softer, tenderer in her manner to him than she had ever been before; that her eyes rested on his with a more lingering regard; and once, when he unexpectedly turned his glance in her direction, he caught her looking at him, and surprised the vivid blush with which she turned aside.

His hopes rose high, and he came down stairs next morning, Wednesday, happy in the knowledge that only one more day lay between him and the fulfilment of his fondest desire. Certainly that third sin should not find him out, for the simple reason that he would not commit it. He would be calm, circumspect. It was, indeed, impossible that he should ever feel jealousy about her again.

It was perhaps a little shock to him to find George Markham at breakfast when he got down. He had arrived by an early train, and as Elston entered the room, was just saying "How d'ys do" to Miss Charteris. She was a girl who spoke very distinctly, and Elston could hear what she was saying. She was smiling very friendly wise at Markham, though her manner was suspiciously reproachful.

"I thought you were never coming," she said. "How you put it off from day to day. And when you knew why I wanted you." After that, she and Markham entered into, and were apparently lost in, an engrossing discussion that lasted until breakfast, a rather prolonged meal at Hartley, was at an end.

Lord Elston could not forget that once this man had been Sophy's avowed lover. He had, indeed, according to all accounts, been her devoted slave. He looked uncommonly like a slave still—following her about and giving himself up to her, as it were, for the entire morning. Pelham in spite of his expression and tragic powers, was nowhere. Markham monopolized her all through, getting her to show him the new fish pond and tennis court and otherwise making himself specially disagreeable.

Miss Charteris, however, did not seem to find him disagreeable at all. She seemed, on the whole, very glad to be with him. She introduced him to Elston with quite a little flow of pleasure in her manner, and said very ecstatically that it was "very nice to see two old friends of hers with each other." This was putting Markham in the same category with himself—when surely he, El-ston, was more than a friend. Feeling rather desolate after luncheon, he broke away from one or two of the other guests, who wanted him to join them in a long drive to some distant abbey, and lighting a cigarette, wandered into one of the conservatories. Sophy, he had discovered, was not going to this abbey, neither was Markham—a fact in itself suspicious. He was feeling distinctly gloomy as he stepped into the region of flowers, and, without giving a thought to their beauty, paced slowly up and down. It was at his second turn that his eyes moodily lowered to the ground, fell upon an object that instantly riveted all his attention.

A letter wide open, and written in a large, sprawling hand. The beginning was at the other side, of course, but what now caught his eye was enough. "A moment sooner. Hurried my best. But those lawyer fellows are impossible to move. I will bring the ring, but only hope it isn't too large. It looks enormous. However, as it is my first purchase of the kind, you must forgive me if I have erred in any way. Ever, dear Sophy yours, G. Markham."

The writing was so large that he read it from where he stood. He read it unconsciously. His eyes had fallen upon it and, before he was aware of it, the sense of the words had entered into his brain. What was he to do now? He was a little frightened at the strange feeling that took possession of him. It was not rage, or grief, or disappointment. It was something far worse than all. He hardly realized at first that it was despair.

"Lawyers." He wondered dimly if it were her marriage settlement they were so slow about. "His first purchase of the kind." Very natural. It isn't every day a man buys a wedding ring. He hadn't a doubt in his mind but that it was a wedding ring to be placed on Sophy's finger by Markham.

He was not angry this time. He was only cold and stunned. For the first time in his life he was entirely without hope. He wondered in a dull sort of way that he had never until now discovered how much Sophy was to him.

He was still staring at the cruel letter, though with eyes that saw not, when Sophy herself entered the conservatory. Of course she saw the letter and instantly stooped to pick it up. "I seem to be dropping my possessions all over the place," she said. "My Syrian bangle in the garden half an hour—Good gracious! What is the matter now?" She had caught a glimpse of Elston's face and it electrified her. Indeed it made a picture.

"Don't let us go into it, Sophy," he said, brokenly. "Why should I distress you? It was all my own folly from first to last, I dare say. I should have seen—"

"But what?" demanded she, as she paused; he felt indeed unequal to going on, and looked so altogether strange and down-hearted that Miss Charteris was unnerved. "What is it? Tell," she said. He pointed to the letter she still held in her hand.

"If you had only told me," he cried. "Was it then so great an amusement to break my heart?" "To break—" She gazed at him, lost in perplexity. Vaguely her eyes wandered to the letter, the word "ring" caught her eye; in a moment the whole truth flashed upon her. A warm crimson sprang to her cheek, and it regret to say she so far forgot herself as to stamp her pretty shoe upon the tessellated pavement.

"You are really maddening!" she cried. "You are beyond reason." She might and in all probability would, have said a great deal more, had not the sound of approaching footsteps checked her. She turned her head to see George Markham.

"George," she said, sweetly, with a change of tone and expression. "Would you mind bringing me that—that little message I wrote to you about last Thursday. Bring it here. Lady Hartley has it I think. Get it from her."

"Oh, the ring," said Mr. Markham; and he went back again the way he had come, whistling as he went. Miss Charteris, in his absence, employed herself humming in a rather vicious manner upon the pane nearest to her. She did not look at Elston, who was deadly silent, with an awful growing fear full upon him that he had been for the third, the fatal time, mistaken!

Presently Markham returned and laid something in her hand. "I had a battle royal to get it," he said laughing. "It appears baby lives by it alone. It is a huge success, Lady Hartley says, 'an you love her, don't keep it long!'"

Still laughing, he lounged away, through the outer door, down the steps and into the garden. When he was quite gone, Sophy advanced on Lord Elston. She then opened her pretty pink palm and held it out to him. "There is the ring," she said in a voice untranslatable.

It was a terrible thing. A hateful warty sort of thing, made of gutta-percha; but if hideous, at least innocent—innocent, no doubt, because hideous. It was black and soft and bendable, and big enough to fit a giant's thumb. Elston gazed at it as if fascinated, and at last, in spite of the pride that would have held him silent, was constrained to speak.

"What is it?" "Baby's teething ring," returned she, slowly. When she had proved to him his guilt, she did not try to leave him, but stood erect, her beautiful figure drawn up to its fullest height, a strange gravity upon her beautiful lips.

"This is the third time," she said, at last, in a low tone, as though speaking to herself. He started violently. Noticing this, she let her eyes rest more fully on him and went on slowly. "Your probation, my lord, is at an end."

"So is my life," said he. "As for this first chance—that letter of mine—you shall see it now as I promised."

"Oh, no, no," he said, entreating her by a gesture not to go into that. "I understand. I submit. I am surely unfortunate enough."

She hesitated for a moment and then—"Everything?" "All is over, then, between us?" "All!"

She made a little impetuous movement, and he, interpreting it, moved to the door and flung it wide for her to pass through. With her would go all his hopes, his desires. Nothing would remain save the saddest of all things, memory.

He stood, his eyes downcast, waiting for her to go. He felt numb, stupid, but presently it did dawn upon him that it was strange that she should keep him so long in attendance on her. While he thus mused a voice, soft, sweet, unsteady, fell upon his ears.

"Arthur!" it said. He let the door go and looked at her. She had covered her face with her hands and was crying quietly but bitterly. In a second she was in his arms.

"My darling! my darling!" whispered he. "Has it hurt you so much? Has it grieved you? Oh, Sophy, do not cry like that! In time you will forget all this and—"

"Ah! that is just it," sobbed Miss Charteris, indignantly. "I can't forget you. And to think you would have let me go forever, without another word—another glance—oh, I would not have believed it of you!"

"Sophy, do you know what you are saying? After all, is there a chance for me?" He was very pale as he looked at her. "Yes, a fourth," said she, smiling through her tears. "And then, oh, no!" she cried nervously, "we won't have any more trials; I hate them. But—but you will try to be good now, won't you?"

"I don't think I shall ever—forget you again, Sophy; I don't indeed."

"Very well," said she. "That is a promise, mind; and now I must run away and give back this ring to Lady Hartley."

"Ah! talking about rings," said he, a little awkwardly; there—there is something I want to say to you. On Thursday last I was so sure I should not fall into disgrace that I telegraphed to town, and, fumbling in his pocket, "got you this. You shall wear it now, Sophy?"

"This," was a very exquisite ring, altogether different from that horrid black thing which had wrought such mischief. "Oh! how lovely!" cried Miss Charteris, who was not above raptures where diamonds were concerned. "Oh, Arthur, thank you!"

He slipped it on her finger—the finger—and she regarded it with most satisfactory delight.

"It is I who should thank you," said he, tenderly, "for deigning to accept it. But—but if I were to thank a person, Sophy, I should do it more warmly than you."

Pasture for Hogs.

The Utah Experiment Station has been testing the value of pasture for hogs.

We have not room for a detailed account of their experiments as given in bulletin No. 40, but will give in a condensed form the conclusions at which they arrived as given in their summary.

Pigs allowed to run at large over 18 acres of good pasture, and fed full rations of grain, made a most rapid growth and required the least grain for a pound of gain. Combined in movable pens in the pastures, they grow more slowly than when running loose, and require 20 per cent more grain to make the same gain.

At pasture under three different conditions they gained 92 1/2 percent more than when confined in pens and grass cut and carried to them. It required 40 percent more grain to make the same gain in pens as in pastures. When fed but part rations of grain in pastures they made satisfactory gains, and on three-fourths grain ration they gained more in pasture than on full rations of grain and grass in the yards or pens.

Pigs pastured without grain made about .36 of a pound of gain per day, as average of three seasons trial. As near as could be judged the exercise in the pasture increased the amount eaten by about 1 1/2 percent, and the amount required for a pound of gain decreased 22 percent.

Grass cut and fed green to pigs, whether fed in yards or pens, or with full or part grain rations, or without any grain, proved of but little value and pigs confined in pens and fed on grass alone, mostly lucerne, for 91 days lost over a quarter of a pound a day. The average of pigs fed on grass gained a little more than those without grass, but not enough to pay for the grass fed.

Those confined in hoghouses pens showed a beneficial result from grass, but it proved detrimental to those in the yards as they required more grain to make a pound gain than they did where no grass was given.

Pasturing either with full or part grain rations, appears to be the cheapest and best way of making pork.

The grass given was a mixture of eight varieties, in which lucerne constituted at least one-half.

This summary is the result of two years experimenting with 10 or 12 lots of pigs each year, two or more pigs in each lot, the lots being carefully selected, to be nearly equal in age and size when the experiment began, and as results were nearly the same each year, it would seem that they should be considered very nearly decisive. In nearly every case, with the lots that made the best gains for two years, the amount of grain required to make a pound of pork increased as the pigs grew heavier. An average of six lots showed that when they weighed between 75 and 100 pounds a pound of gain live weight, was made by 3.28 pounds of grain. Between 100 and 150 pounds it required 4.13 pounds of grain, between 150 and 200 pounds, 4.55 pounds of grain and between 200 and 250 pounds 5.01 pounds of grain. In two lots kept until weighing over 300 pounds the grain needed to make a pound of live weight was respectively 9.11 and 10.96 pounds, an average of 10.03 pounds.

The Apple Borer.

When we came to this mountain country some twenty years ago it was a wild, undeveloped country, with no fruit of any kind. The first fruit we set out was apple trees, and nine tenths of them were dead in two years. We cursed the nursery men high and low for sending us old worthless diseased trees. What few trees lived soon showed us that we were in a superior apple belt; then we began to investigate and found the borer was the source of our trouble. We used all kinds of washes, oils, tars, and to very little effect, but after long experience we find the moth's egg that hatches the borer has to be laid where it will get the extreme heat of the sun. The moth lays its eggs at the base of the tree, on the south side a half inch below the surface, the only place the eggs get the proper heat, unless on the upper side of a bent limb in the top of the tree, where there is a check that gets the direct rays of the sun.

Every tree we now set out we wrap with a part of an old newspaper from three inches below the ground to a foot above. The first year is the season the borer gets in the tree. The tree is destitute of sap, and the borer thrives. About the third year if the tree is in good thrift the borer dies out or doesn't get in on account of the abundance of sap. So you will notice it is only the first two years that the tree needs the wrapping. What really is needed is to shade the butt of the tree on the sunny side. If a little sprig of leaf comes out on the sunny side near the ground, leave it there to shade the ground for a year or two. A piece of a board, single or the half of a state set on the ground on the sunny side of the body of the tree is sufficient if it will remain. Trees should be wrapped before the first hot days of spring. When I set out trees I examine each one carefully to see if there is a borer already in; if so, dig it out.

At no season, except possibly in summer, when fruits of all kinds are abundant, are acids so necessary to health as they are now. The dish of greens in its

Chipman.

May 30.—The new saw mill at Brigg's Corner has been shut down for a few days owing to some defect produced from excessive friction in her engine, which caused the sparks to fly in profusion and more alarming results were apprehended. The mill was started this spring, under favorable circumstances, by a practical engineer and the work ran so smoothly that the position of engineer was looked upon as a sinecure, that any "shoddy doddy" might easily fill as well as the sturdy old Scotchman who piloted the oil can in the engine room, and so the old man was unceremoniously discharged and the important position assigned to a very good blacksmith without any experience in the craft of engineering. As time went on the wisdom of the change was not justified by any improvement anticipated from the change of engineers and in a few days as the engine went thump, thump, thump! workmen about the mill grew apprehensive about their safety though nobody seemed to know what was wrong until Mr. Munroe, the engineer in Kings mill, came up to inspect the engine when it was found to be damaged to such extent that a portion had to be sent to St. John for repairs. It is expected that the mill will be going again by next Thursday under a competent engineer.

The large barque converted out of the old steamer "St. Lawrence" was towed up the Salmon river last week as far as Brigg's Corner by the tug Mildred in charge of Capt. Jacob Wilson and after taking on 100,000 feet of lumber was towed into Coal Creek to finish loading at the temporary mill working there for Mr. George F. Baird who is managing the estate of the late H. McLean.

The temporary structure in connection with the Central Railway bridge across Salmon river had to be removed in order to let the vessels ascend the river to the head of navigation at Brigg's Corner and the Dominion government who never gave authority to have the river thus obstructed will not permit the railroad bridge to be built across the river without a draw.

The Baptist churches of Newcastle and Waterbury met on Friday with the church at Chipman for the purpose of holding a Sabbath school convention. After two profitable sessions in the afternoon and evening which were well attended the convention adjourned to meet next November at Iron Bound Cove.

Next Friday the Baptist quarterly meeting meets at the head of Grand Lake.

Mr. Mac King has returned home from a visit to B. C.

Senator King is again away to Ottawa. The prospects for a good crop of hay this summer are exceedingly promising for this season of the year as the grass now is flourishing and very little winter killed.

Rafting is well nigh finished and as the weather has been dry of late, with the exception of last Saturday, the water in the river is falling rapidly.

Scotchtown.

May 30th.—The weather has been very fine and warm for the past few days. Bicycles and how to ride them is becoming the order of the day in this place. People of all ages and descriptions, women of noble birth and beauty, grey hairs and infant innocents are seen to seek on the slope of the hills enclosed within the fences of nature, those things designed by inventors which are so fascinating and which when properly handled are of more than extraordinary pleasure to persons who may have the good luck to possess one. These are bicycles and I might say that every person is seeking to ride them in this opinion. It would be a good place for Mr. E. P. Dykeman and his celebrated "Red Bird Wheel."

Many of the farmers in this section are catching large quantities of shad.

Miss A. M. Graham of St. John arrived by Saturday's boat and is the guest of Mr. B. B. Balmain and family.

Mr. B. G. Balmain paid his friends at Lakeville Corner a visit yesterday.

Master Fred Edwards who has been spending the winter with his grand parents Mr. and Mrs. Purvis leaves this morning for his home at Halifax.

The Hispano-American war is making business boom in this section.

The painters are getting what work they want. Houses are being painted outside and in, and all Scotchtown needs now is a new wharf with a flag on it.

Mr. J. D. Hood of Fredericton and Miss Nellie L. Carle, of Magalloway spent Sunday with friends and relatives at this place.

Mr. J. C. Hunter paid a visit here on Sunday evening.

Miss Allen, the efficient teacher of Douglas Harbor, returned yesterday after a week's visit home.

The representative of the Oxford Woolen Mills arrived by steamer Saturday and was the guest of Mr. D. Palmer, Jr., their agent at this place.

Miss Sarah and Stephen Colwell were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harvey Clark on Sunday.

Mr. F. H. Palmer, our enterprising merchant at Douglas Harbor, is erecting a building, in which he intends to run a general store.

Lower Jemseg.

May 31.—The Sunday school concert which was held on the Queen's birthday was a grand success. The programme was as follows: Music, I stand by my school; Opening address, by Nelson Reece; Recitation, by Della Dykeman; Recitation, by Emma Reece; Music, by Annie Bates; Recitation, by Idella Sharp; Dialogue; Music, by Misses Kennedy, Idella Dykeman and C. F. Nevins; Recitation, Nella Springer; Dialogue; Music; Recitation, by Miss Edna Reuss; Dialogue; Music, Miss Gerie Titus; Recitation, by Annie Oakley; Dialogue; Music, by Miss Idella Dykeman; Recitation, J. W. Foslay; Dialogue; Music, by Misses Amelia Houston, Annie Kennedy and C. F. Nevins; Recitation, by Miss Annie Bates; closing address, by Kenneth Dykeman; Music, by school; "God Save the Queen."

The sum $13 was realized which goes towards securing a library for the school. Many thanks are due to the school for the amount of interest they have taken in making our concert a success, and especially the superintendent, Mr. C. L. Slipp.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Wright spent a few days last week with their parents and friends.

Brookvale.

May 18.—G. E. Black has a crowd of men engaged rafting piling at Elac Rock. The farmers are pretty well through with their farming.

The gold mining company have had to suspend business for a short time owing to their having struck a vein of water in sinking their shaft. New and improved machinery have to be ordered from St. John and upon its arrival will again be resumed.

Our local lawyer was called to town on the 17th inst., to attend a suit between P. S. McNutt, of St. John, and G. E. Black, of Canaan.

This place takes the lead for economical schemes, the most novel of which is the furnishing of wood for the school house.

Nearly all the hotels in this village are busy preparing for tourists, who are already arriving from St. John and the United States.

We are pleased to know that Queens county has so many brilliant poets especially Woodville, but would advise the author of "The Lord He will Provide" to move and we think the risk will not be so great.

White's Cove.

On Wednesday while Wm. A. Farris was helping to move a barn for C. W. White he met with an accident which came very near proving fatal. He with others were on a log when some one got off and he was thrown to the eve of the barn and came down on a log, breaking both arms at the wrists and getting a bad shaking up. Dr. McDonald was soon on hand and did all that was necessary. We are glad to note that Will is improving and hopes he will soon be himself again.

Mrs. H. Parke of St. John, is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Gunter.

Miss Tamar Gunter, who is teaching at Newswak, came home on Saturday.

Harry Orchard is training his trotting colt.

Wm. Gunter lost a young horse a few days ago.

Miss Walter Wilson, of St. John, preached in the Methodist church on Sunday evening.

Young's Cove.

May 19th.—The weather has been fine lately and the farmers are all engaged in getting in their crops.

The Methodist parsonage was the scene of a happy event on Tuesday the 19th inst., when Mr. William Roberts and Mrs. Bessie Fox were united in marriage by Rev. I. N. Parker. All join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Roberts life long happiness.

Mr. A. B. Wetmore, the popular agent for P. S. McNutt & Co., passed through here this morning accompanied by Mr. Mark Cole.

Mrs. James Corcoran is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kelly.

Mr. E. C. Lockett, one of our popular merchants arrived from St. John with a large variety of spring goods. His store presents a fine appearance. Mr. Lockett has made great improvements on his place—rebuilding and painting his barns.

Mr. Mark Cole while assisting in the raising of the cupule on Mr. Lockett's barn fell from the roof and received slight injuries.

Miss Allie Wiggins who has been in St. John, was summoned home on Monday on account of the serious illness of her little sister who is not expected to live.

Rev. Mr. Wilson of St. John preached in the Methodist church on Sunday evening.

The pastor Rev. I. N. Parker is very sick at present.

John Murphy, a St. John butcher, passed through here last week in search of fat cattle and sheep. He reports them scarce.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Elliott was buried in the Methodist burial ground on Thursday last.

Cambridge.

June 1.—Miss Myrtle McAlpine, who has been dangerously ill with pneumonia, is reported to be improving.

Mrs. F. Colwell and family, of St. John, are staying at Mr. Amos Mott's.

to the description of the merchant's son was last seen in the proximity of Macdonald's Corner.

The marriage of Mr. T. C. McLean, of this place, and Miss Myrtle Grey, of Keirstedville, is announced to take place at Keirstedville on the 8th inst.

Two of the first class teachers at Macdonald's Corner are about to lay aside the ferule. It is stated that the two young ladies are going to attend to household duties.

Harry B. Black and James H. King, of Fairville, are the guests of Mr. Black's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Straight.

The funeral of Mr. George Titus, of the Straight Shore, took place at Macdonald's Corner on the 22nd ult., immediately after the arrival of the star. Star. Mr. Titus leaves a wife and one son to mourn their loss.

Miss M. Hendry and Miss Brittain, of Springfield, and Willie Humphrey, of Macdonald's Cor., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Macdonald.

Highfield.

May 26.—Farming is progressing rapidly owing to the favorable weather. We are sorry to have to record the serious illness of our beloved pastor, Rev. C. A. S. Wainford. Hopes are entertained however that he will recover under the skillful treatment of Dr. Brundage.

A successful sale of useful and fancy articles was held in the Hall here by the ladies of the sewing circle on the 24th inst.

The interior of St. John's church is being sheathed and repaired by Messrs. Dawson and Cowan of St. John. The work reflects credit on these gentlemen.

A large number of friends and acquaintances met at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Parker on the evening of the 23rd, and after presenting them with a handsome set of dishes and other useful presents, and having secured the service of a first-class violinist dancing began.

The was served at 12 o'clock. Dancing was kept up till the "see saw" hours when everybody went home happy and satisfied with the evening's enjoyment.

Mr. H. A. Vandenberg is the happy possessor of a very handsome writing desk. It is made of native Birds' Eye maple. It was made by A. E. Cowan of St. John. For workmanship and finish it is hard to beat.

Mr. Arthur Vandenberg has the contract for building a dwelling house for Mr. M. A. Nodden.

Miss Bertha and Mr. Fred J. Pearson were visiting friends at Hatfield Point.

It is rumored that our popular merchant intends buying a share in a saw mill, and going into the lumber business.

Miss Bertha Pearson had a very successful week looking last week.

Mr. D. M. Pearson is engaged surveying for Alfred West.

Black and King's Gramophone exhibited here 26 inst. Brayley is billed here for 31 inst. and is sure of a full house.

Mill Road.

The farms are looking very nice at present.

Mr. John Maxwell has planted quite a number of fruit trees in front of his farm "Pleasant Hill," which adds quite an improvement to the place.

Mr. Jas. Barnett is doing an extensive farming business. He is more than hustling this spring.

Our grist mill has been shut down on account of the war.

Mrs. Jas. Barnett killed a very fine turkey which when dressed weighed about twenty pounds. It was a fine looking bird before he lost his feathers.

Messrs. James Boyd and Sandy Dingee of Upper Gagetown, drove through here en route to Peterville. Some think they were on a "moose hunt," but a more correct statement, in our opinion, is that they have started a creamery.

Mr. William Osborne crossed the Woodlands on Monday morning on a "deer hunt." Nothing like it Billy, Mr. Benj. Mitchell of Clones is visiting friends here.

Mrs. Phoebe Wallace is still quite ill but we hope for her recovery.

Mr. Isaac Stockford has visited our school here for the last three Sundays. The Sunday School seems to be improving of late. We were also glad to see our old Superintendent back again and it is a pity that a change was made as some very important parties have lost their interest in the Sunday School on account of it.

Miss Martha Wallace is visiting friends at Hart's Lake.

We Have Made Alterations
