CHAPTER XXXV.

The determination to face the worst at any cost had taken so strong a hold on the Earl of Swinford that he could think of nothing else, and the probable outcome.

He knew that it would be a terrible ordeal, and that his ancient name, which had never before been dragged into the fifth and mire of the law courts, would be stained forevermore.

Under any circumstances, the charge of murder was a horrible thing. Even when a man was guiltless of the crime, the mere odium of suspicion was hard to shake off. In the lower ranks charged with this crime were avoided—in the middle ranks they were financially ruined—in his own class, it would take centuries to gloss over the stain.

He had no plea of not guilty. He was guilty of killing a man, but by accident. Would the judge and the jury and the world believe that it was an accident? Could they be brought to believe this when he had hidden the body, and kept his horrid crime a secret for more than twenty years? No—no! he did not think that anyone would believe him guiltless. And then, to add to his guilt, he had let another man be tried for the murder of Edgar Emden—a long, weary trial that had killed an innocent man with the disgrace of it! It would be useless for him to urge that he knew nothing about it—that he was thousands of miles away—where no English newspapers were to be seen, even had he been inclined to read them! He had been a weak and wicked coward, and, after putting himself upon trial, he decided that he was guilty of severe punishment.

But there was one faint hope. Had Edgar Emden really died? This question was ever in his brain. If so, where was the body? Had it been removed by the steward? He could not forget Gladys' cry—that Lady Marcia was still waiting for her lover—that she believed that he lived—and would some day come back to her.

The day after his discovery that the arched recess was empty, he spoke to Lady Marcia in a manner that startled her. He had lain awake all night, and looked wretched and haggard.

"Do you believe in dreams, Marcia?" he asked.

"Some dreams carry a certain amount of significance, Edward," she replied. "Why do you ask?"

"Because I had a strange dream last night—a most vivid affair, I can assure you."

He laughed in a constrained, nervous manner, and fidgeted about my room in a way that was unusual for him.

"What was your dream like, Edward? Was it pleasant or unpleasant?"

"I will leave that for you to decide, Marcia."

"That is a strange remark." "Not at all. I dreamed he was not dead, after all. Ha! ha! Wasn't that funny?"

He stared at her with anxious, expectant eyes; and though he affected to laugh, there was no mirth in the sound.

"You dreamed of Edgar—you dreamed that he lived? I have had a similar dream many times," Lady Marcia said.

"And what significance do you attach to your dream?"

"Why do you ask, Edward?" Lady Marcia looked at him gravely and curiously.

"Because it seems so strange to dream about a man who has been dead for twenty years!"

"Not dead, Edward! I am sure that he is not dead. I have never believed it for one moment. I know that Edgar will come back to me. You may smile, but a woman's faith is all-enduring. I was stung by his foolish jealousy of you—my brother. I would not have explained even if I could have done so, but I was bound to keep your visits secret, and my pride was hurt. We were both young, self-willed, and foolish."

"Because his lips quivered." "I thank you for those words," cried the earl. "I thank you for your faith. It is the sweetest thing in life to me."

Lady Marcia could not understand his strange speech—his strange manner. For weeks she had grieved about him; his haggard face was ever before her. He was weighted with some trouble, fancied or real, that he would not share with her. Her efforts to console him had been almost rudely repulsed; her very presence was often an annoyance, and his misery was reflected in Gladys' face. This was the cruellest part of it all. No wonder that Lady Marcia felt hurt—no wonder that a shadow had even risen between aunt and niece—and once they had been all in all to each other!

And now the fear was growing that my lord's mind was affected. His words, his actions, were not those of a sane man. Why should he refer to Edgar Emden? Why should her belief in her lover's existence be the sweetest thing in all the world to him?

"Edward," she said, gravely, "you are not well—you have been ill for many weeks. I shall send for our physician, whether you like it or not."

"You will do nothing of the kind, Marcia," my lord replied, sharply. "If the physician came I would refuse to see him."

"Oh, my brother, why are you so changed toward me? You have even taken from me the condolences of Gladys, you have colored her young life with some miserable secret of your own, and while my heart is bleeding for her, and for you, I am now a stranger to you both!"

"I am ill, Marcia, but my illness is not of the body. I have been weighted by cares that few mortal men could endure and live. I have carried them to every quarter of the globe. I have tried to fly from them, but in the silent watches of the night they have gazed at me—east, west, north, and south. I thought that my cup of misery was overflowing, that not one more drop could be added; but it was a fallacious hope, if hope I may call it. I came home to be undeceived; I came home to find the last measure of gall and wormwood awaiting me, and Gladys alone stood between me and a degradation that I thought worse than a hundred deaths!"

Lady Marcia listened in pained surprise, and doubted not that his reason was dethroned.

"I see that you do not believe me!"

he went on. "You think me mad. Would to God I were! My secret was known to another—Collins, the steward. His silence was conditional, and for reasons which you will soon learn: he desired my child to become the wife of Lord Cecil Stanhope. I was coward enough to agree; I was coward enough to lay my awful position before Gladys—to strike at the very root of her sweet young life; and I hoped that you would never know why she had consented to be the mistress of Stanhope Towers—the wife of a man she despises. But it is not to be, Marcia; they have driven me too far. The sacrifice will never be made. I am forced to tell you this story. I never thought that I should have the courage, but my mind is in a strange whirl of hope, and doubt, and fear. It will come better from my lips than from the lips of others, and I pray to God that you may find it in your gentle heart to pity and forgive me."

"Edward, my brother, how wildly, how foolishly you talk! Am I to be your judge? There is nothing in the world that could influence me against you."

She would have put her arms about him, but he pushed her off, and she sank trembling into her seat again.

"Not to do not touch me! Hear what I have to say!"

His tones were frenzied, and he covered his eyes with his hands.

"Marcia, I am to be charged with the murder of your lover—I am to be charged with the murder of Edgar Emden! The night that he left you with cruel upbraiding, he must have been mad with jealousy. He watched me, he followed me, and struck me from behind. I turned and closed with him. In the struggle he fell into the lake, and I was too exhausted to help him until he floated on the water, as I believed, dead. I hid the body, intending to return and bury it. I was unable to come back, and my subsequent movements are known to you. That is the dread secret of my life—that is the crime that Collins witnessed—this is the power that he revealed to me when I charged him with embezzlement."

Lady Marcia's face was white. She had never dreamed of a revelation such as this, but she sprang to the earl's side with cheering words.

"Edward, I do not see that you have committed any crime. Why did you not tell me all this before?" she said, softly.

"The world is to be my judge now," he said. "It is the disgrace of it that is killing me. I dreaded that you would reproach me, but there is the chance yet that he lives. I told you that I had hidden the body. Until last night I have never had the courage to look at it again. I was nerved to desperation, and opened the stone recess into which I had thrust it, prepared to see naught but bones. It was empty. I was delicious with a mad delight, and then I dreamed that he still lived. Oh, blessed hope!"

He laughed shrilly, and Lady Marcia whispered soothing words in his ears.

It was at this moment that a servant announced the steward, and Collins pushed past him with scant ceremony, and closed the door in his face.

"I gave you until New Year's Day to think over my demands—nay, my commands, my lord," he blurted out, "but I have changed my mind. I must have your reply now. I have seen Lord Cecil, and his manner does not please me. I will not be hoodwinked." The earl did not look at him, but his form was quivering like an aspen.

Will N. S. Coal Strike Be Averted?

Date Set for Tuesday Next—Insurgents Lay
 City of Cork in Ruins—Rebels Aggressive in Dublin.

SYDNEY, STRIKE OUTLOOK.
 SYDNEY, Aug. 11. With next Tuesday set as the date for a general strike of miners in Nova Scotia, no date has yet been set for the proposed British Empire Steel Corporation and United Mine Workers Conference, and it is thought here that Sunday is the earliest it can be held. D. H. McDougall, Vice President, is expected here on Saturday from the Montreal conference with the corporation's directorate. An official announcement of the vote taken so far by Nova Scotia miners shows 4,000 in favor of a strike unless 1821 rates of pay are restored and $7 against. Cumberland County votes are not included as the miners there are unanimous for the strike. Phelan, of Cape Breton local, which set the original strike motion in circulation has come forward with a supplementary resolution, demanding that if a strike be called, every member be called out, including engine men and pumpmen. This resolution will be circulated throughout the district for endorsement. Strong hopes are expressed generally here that the present crisis will be solved by a compromise agreement, and this expectation is strengthened by reports that the United States coal strike is nearing settlement.

NATIONALISTS ENTER CORK.
 LONDON, Aug. 11. National troops have entered Cork, according to an official announcement just issued. They took fifty prisoners. Seven of the National troops were killed and many wounded.

CORK IN RUINS.
 DUBLIN, Aug. 11. Confagurations raged in Cork throughout the night of Thursday. The business part of the city is in ruins, and the damage is estimated at two million pounds. National forces from Passage West, have consolidated their positions and pushed over their posts to the outskirts of the city. They do not appear, however, to have entered the city as yet. The bulk of the irregular troops are believed to have evacuated the city, although leaving behind numerous snipers concealed in the ruins of buildings and terrorizing citizens.

REBELS ACTIVE IN DUBLIN.
 LONDON, Aug. 11. The Exchange Telegraph has received a telephonic message from Dublin saying that Irregular troops attacked the Post Office, overpowered the guard, and are now holding the building. The Central News gives the rumour that the Post Office in Dublin and adjoining buildings are on fire. Telegraph communications between Dublin and London ceased around eleven o'clock on Friday night.

REPORTED ALL QUIET.
 WATERFORD, Aug. 11. National forces captured Cork late on Thursday evening, according to a report received from a reliable source to-night. The report said everything was quiet in Cork.

L.G. SUGGESTS ARBITRATION.
 PARIS, Aug. 11. A despatch to the Havas agency from London, says it has been learned in authoritative circles that David Lloyd George has proposed to M. Poincare that they submit their divergencies in views as to conditions for a moratorium for Germany to arbitration by the League of Nations.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

THE POOR SLAVE.
 The one reticently a slave was abolished in America almost 60 years ago, and yet I know a woman who is a slave. And a slave to a very tyrannical master too.

She is a woman who lives near us at a place where we spend the summer. She has a pleasant home, more than ordinary financial freedom, and more than the average person's share of leisure. If it weren't for the tyrant who rules her life she might have a lot of happiness.

Do I refer to her husband, you are wondering? It certainly does sound as if I were leading up to that. No, she has a very kind and reasonable husband.

She hates mosquitoes.

The tyrant in the case is not her husband but her hates. This woman is the slave of her own hates.

Perhaps I should use the word "distillates," but I use the word "hates" because it is her own word. She uses it continually.

We ask her to come for a sunset walk, "I'd love to," she says, "but it's just the time of night for mosquitoes and I hate mosquitoes."

We have a hot dry mercifully relieved by a brisk breeze. "Isn't this wind frightful!" she says. "I hate wind. It makes me so nervous."

And Rainy Days.
 We get two rainy days in succession. "I don't mind a rainy day once in a while," she says, "but I do hate two in succession."

She doesn't go to the movies because the hall might be crowded and she "hates" to go anywhere where the air isn't perfectly fresh.

She likes motoring, but only when she is sure there will be a clear road. She "hates" to have too many cars on the road, which naturally puts narrow limitations on the time she can drive, as Saturdays and Sundays are ruled out altogether, also certain roads at all times, also certain times of the day when commuters are using the roads.

And Cinders.
 She was one of a group of us who went to the city to do some shopping and have a jamboree. We had a jolly time and she really seemed to be enjoying herself, but on the way home in the train the wind blew in such a way that we were showered with cinders. "How I hate cinders!" she said. "Disgusting things! That spoils the whole trip for me." We didn't any of us like cinders. In fact, I don't just now recall anyone who has ever expressed to me a fondness for them. But we didn't "hate" them. So our trips were not spoiled.

But we were lucky, you see. We weren't slaves to our hates. Or at least not to the extent that she is. Most of us have suffered in some degree from this form of self-imposed tyranny. But anyone with common sense and a sense of proportion is wise enough to fight the tyrant for the sake of his own freedom and happiness.

"Wheel" And Woe.

The mayor of the town, riding on his new bicycle, found himself at dusk a long way from his house, and needing water for his acetylene lamp. He rode on in momentary dread of the village constable, till at last he saw a labourer standing at the door of his cottage.

"I say, would you be kind enough to give me some water for my lamp?" he asked, dismounting.

"Water?" repeated the man. "I s'pose you mean oil?"

"No, I don't; I want water."

The labourer looked searchingly at the prosperous cyclist for a moment.

"Take my advice and get along home," he said impressively. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself, at your age—and you the mayor, too!"

Caller: "That's me."

"Well, well! What business can you possibly have with me?"

"Well, sir, it's this way. Prize-fighting is rather dull now, an' I'm tryin' ter earn a respectable livin'."

"I am delighted to hear of your reformation."

"Yes, sor. You see, I'm now the bill collector for Long, Wait, and Co., an' I'm paid a commission on what I collect, an' on what I don't collect, too, if I bring back an ear, or piece of a nose, or somethin' ter show I did me best ter git the money."

"Um—yes; wait a moment and I'll give you a cheque."

Salvation Army Officers Arrive.

TO ATTEND CONGRESS.

Commissioner and Mrs. Sownton, accompanied by Lieut.-Col. Adby, arrived in town by to-day's express. A large crowd assembled at the station to bid the Commissioner and party welcome, the Army uniform figuring prominently. Col. and Mrs. Martin and Staff were there, also the life-saving guards in full uniform. The Commissioner and his wife are looking well after their somewhat arduous journey, and feel full of faith for a successful congress. Col Adby still wears the sunny smile so well known to many in the city and is apparently delighted to be back again. Commissioner Sownton is a man of outstanding personality and an orator of no mean ability.

HIS CAREER.

Commissioner Sownton is a Londoner by birth and was converted to the Salvation Army at Brighton where he spent fifteen months as a soldier. In Sept. 1883, he entered the International Training College and received his first appointment as Lieut. to Bath in April, 1884. The Commissioner's first foreign appointment was Norway, to the command of which territory the General appointed him when the country had only been opened nine months. There he was united in marriage to Captain Shimmin, whom he learned to know in Scotland. Having made very considerable progress, Commissioner Sownton was next appointed to Sweden as Chief Secretary, first under Commissioner Rideout and then under Commissioner Oliphant. In Sweden Commissioner and Mrs. Sownton made themselves much loved by the people, and when the rapidly developed work among the Scandinavians in the United States of America made it necessary to appoint officers to take charge of the name Commissioner and Mrs. Sownton were chosen by the General for that position. Appointments to India, and Ceylon followed, then a term in Canada, East and West, in the former as Chief Secretary, and the latter as Territorial Commander. Then back to Sweden from where he received the present appointment as Territorial Leader for Canada East and Newfoundland.

PROGRAMME OF CONGRESS.

To-night there will be a meeting for officers, local officers and soldiers in the No. 1 Citadel, New Gower St., the three city Corps uniting. Sunday morning there will be a monster parade of all the city Salvationists and visiting officers, starting from the Citadel, New Gower Street, the procession will proceed via Hamilton St., Le Marchant Rd., Long's Hill, Theatre Hill and New Gower Street, back to the Citadel, where a united Holy Bonds Meeting will be conducted by the Commissioner. At 3 p.m. a public reception will be given the Commissioner in the Majestic Theatre, presided over by his Honor Mayor Cook, supported by a number of prominent citizens. At 7 p.m. the Commissioner will preach in New Gower Street Citadel.

Our Dumb Animals.

REPORT OF THE CHIEF AGENT OF S.P.A. FOR WEEK ENDING AUG. 12.

Attended 2 sales of cattle, sheep, and horses, at Neal's Wharf, saw that they were well treated. Received a phone message from Sup. O'Neill on Saturday night to go to the South Side and see about a dog that was lying by the side of the road. Investigated the matter and found nothing seriously wrong. Sent in three horses for treatment for sores. Warned drivers not to take them out again until cured. Received word from the police to shoot a dog suffering from mange near Mundy's Pond. Also humanely destroyed a collie dog, which had its fore paws cut off in a mowing machine. The animal was owned by Mr. Duder. Destroyed a diseased dog on Carnell Street, also another in the West End, which had been scalded. Received report of a dog having been put in a small bag and thrown in a gully behind the Girls' Industrial Home. There was not water enough to drown the dog, and it was taken out by some men in the morning. Investigated and found that the man who had put it there thought the water was deep enough to drown it. The animal in question had been an annoyance to the neighbourhood. Received report of a horse on the Cove Road, on pasture, with a very bad hoof. Found the owner, who wants another chance to cure it, as the animal cost him over $200. Waiting the decision of the Veterinary Surgeon.

The Last Resource.

The bazaar was in full swing when a young man strolled round the various stalls, with no intention of purchasing anything. As he passed a large, beautiful decorated stall the young lady seller detained him.

"Won't you buy a cigarette-holder?" she asked.

"No, thank you; I don't smoke," was the curt reply.

"If a pen-wiper worked by my own hands?"

"I don't write."

"Then do have this nice box of chocolates."

"I don't eat sweets."

"The young lady's patience was exhausted."

"Sir," she said grimly, "will you buy this box of soap?"

"The young man paid up."

Poultry Wisdom.

An actress who had abandoned the footlights and sought the actor's oft-dreamed-of paradise, a little home in the country, decided to start a poultry farm, which she did with a barnyard and thirteen eggs. Not having the most elementary knowledge of poultry, she inquired of a neighbor how long eggs generally took to hatch.

"She received the reply: 'Three weeks for chickens and four for ducks.'"

The neighbor met her some time afterwards, and on being asked how the poultry farming was going on, she replied:

"Oh, I've finished with it. At the end of three weeks there were no chickens, so I took the hen off, as I didn't want ducks."

TRUCKMAN COMPLAINS.

Mr. John Diamond, truckman, of the east end, complains of the bridge over the watering place on the Logy Bay Road. Yesterday evening, he says, his horse got his legs entangled in the planking of this structure, and tore off two shoes.

Bus Traffic Should Be Regulated.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir.—I would like through your columns, to call the attention of Inspector General Hutchings to the condition which prevails at the bus terminals at Bowring Park and the Railway Station, on the arrival and departure of buses. The buses have hardly come to a standstill, when there is a mad rush to board them, without first giving time for the inward bound passengers to alight; the result is confusion, in which children are crushed or practically fall off the buses, and women with children in arms do not get a chance to alight, or board the buses without risk of having the children knocked out of their arms, and themselves being injured. I myself, with an infant in arms, had to wait and watch whilst five buses unloaded and departed in this manner at the Park, on Wednesday evening, before I had an opportunity of getting aboard without too much risk to the infant. May I be pardoned for making a suggestion: "That the police be empowered to insist that people wanting to board the buses be made form a 'queue' or line, and no person be allowed to board until all passengers have alighted; also if any preference be given, let women with small children be seated first, without the risk of being pushed aside by so called 'men' in the mad scramble, which, up to now, occurs daily. Thanking you for space, I remain, yours truly,

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 12, 1922.

The Prophylactic Tooth Brush is so well known and so well liked that there is no particular need for us in this column to stress its many good qualities; but it is not so well known, we fancy, that the makers of the Prophylactic, manufacture a special Dental Plate Brush under their trade mark, which is on its own ground as noteworthy for excellence as the regular Prophylactic Brush itself. Simple in construction, but well adapted for its own purpose, strong both in bristles and in handles, it appears to be an ideal brush for cleaning artificial teeth, and as such we commend it to our customers. Price 70c.

Wedding Bells.

GOSSE-WADDEN.

A very pretty wedding took place on the 10th inst. at St. Patrick's church by the Rev. Dr. Kitchin, when Mr. Charles Wadden and Miss Annie Goss were united in the Holy Bonds of matrimony. The bride looked charming in a dress of Georgette and was attended by her sister, Miss Mary Goss, while the groom was ably supported by Mr. James Gibbons. After the ceremony the happy couple motored with their friends around Bowring Park, afterwards to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Goss, Brazil's Square, where a reception was held and the health of the bride and groom duly honoured. Mr. and Mrs. Wadden will take up their future residence on Mundy Pond Rd.

Dog's Hotel Bedroom.

AMERICANS AND THEIR PETS.

Hotels in London are perplexed to know what to do with the pets brought by American visitors.

They include dogs, cats, and rabbits. A kangaroo was brought into a Strand hotel with instructions that it was to have plenty of milk and as much food as it wanted.

A woman took a room in the Savoy Hotel for a pet dog with a bed for the dog to sleep on.

A Printer's Blunder.

A Paris newspaper on one occasion made a blunder which excited no small amount of merriment at the expense of a man of real talent. The following paragraphs, intended to have been printed separately, were by some error so arranged that they were read consecutively: "Dr. X. has been appointed head physician to the Hospital de la Charite. Orders have been issued by the authorities for the immediate extension of the cemetery of Mont Parnasse. The works are being executed with the utmost despatch."

For the Poor.

Some ministers recently started on a tour, and advertised in a town to give a performance "for the benefit of the poor. Tickets reduced to sixpence." The hall was crammed, and the next morning a committee for the poor called upon the treasurer of the concern for the amount the said benefit had netted. But the treasurer wouldn't part with a penny.

"I thought," said the chairman of the committee, "you advertised this concert for the benefit of the poor!"

"Well," replied the treasurer, "didn't we reduce the tickets to sixpence so that the poor could all come?"

Till Crack of Doom.

It was the first match of the season, and the Spludge-furrow stonewallers were at the wickets. They had been at the wickets, indeed, for three hours, and they had scored three runs. The umpire was yawning, the spectators were whistling the "Dead March in Saul."

The bowlers bowled slow full-tosses, slow long-hops. All to no purpose. The Spludge-furrow stonewallers would not be tempted.

At last one of them made a stroke which very nearly resulted in a run. Then the local wit woke up.

"Don't lost your 'ead, Bill—don't lose your 'ead!" he cried, in a hoarse voice. "If you git so bloomin' reckless we shall 'ave ter wake the scorer!"

Five Killed, Four Injured.

S.S. ADRIATIC, OFF NEW ENGLAND, Aug 11.—An explosion occurred to-day aboard S.S. Adriatic in a reserve coal hatch, which killed five members of the crew and injured four others. The explosion took place at 1.30 a.m. caused by spontaneous combustion.

ACCEPTED HARDING'S PROPOSAL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.

Executive heads of one hundred and forty-eight American railways, to-night, conditionally accepted President Harding's second proposal for a settlement of the nation wide rail strike. The conditions, which went into acceptance, according to unofficial sources were: First, that President's request that strikers be taken back be interpreted, that as many strikers should be rehired as would be needed by the roads to bring their shop forces to normal. Second, that such strikers should be taken back unconditionally, and that a Railroad Labor Board, later, should determine whether they were to regain their seniority privileges.

CUNARD SETS NEW RECORD.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.

A new record for a voyage from Cherbourg to New York was set by S.S. Mauretania arriving here yesterday in five days, nine hours, twenty minutes after leaving France. The previous record was ten minutes slower.

TRAINS STALLED.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 12.

Twelve transcontinental trains on the Santa Fe railroad were stalled at points in the desert at noon on Friday, following refusal of trainmen to proceed. Approximately twenty-five hundred passengers are involved.

REV. E. E. LAITE VISITS LAND OF HIS BIRTH.

After an absence of twenty-seven years Rev. Robert E. Laite, Pastor of the Congregational Church of Bangor, Maine, is now visiting his native land, renewing old acquaintances and making a host of new friends. Before coming to the city he spent ten days at Bay Roberts, the native town of many of the parishioners through whose kindness he is enabled to make this trip. Mr. Laite speaks highly of the hospitality afforded him, and is charmed with all that he has seen. The progress made by the country along material and spiritual paths, the absence of religious bigotry, the broadmindedness of the people make a strong appeal to him. After a few days in town the reverend gentleman intends to spend some time in his native town of Trinity, where he first saw the light about forty years ago. Many of the older generation will remember the father of Mr. Laite, who was William Laite, a famous ship-builer of his day. Rev. Laite has four brothers, all in the ministry. One labors in Somerville, Mass., another in Cornish, Maine, another in Lowell, Mass., while another is now studying at the North West University, Chicago. This is a proud record for a family, to say that five of its sons have been given to the noblest of callings—the Pastorate of souls. It argues wonderfully for the high resolves, the spirited determination which is in them, to say that they succeeded while earning a living for themselves in giving themselves an education fitting them for their high calling. The Telegram wishes the reverend gentleman a most pleasant vacation in his native land. Mr. Laite is staying at Mrs. Mugofo's, 172 Pleasant St., City.

Too Flighty.

"I tell you what," said Mrs. Umson, "it won't be long before women are in many of the public offices."

"Why should they keep out of the weather department?"

"The weather is changeable enough now,"—Youngstown Telegram.

BECOMING MORE THREATENING.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.

Strike of United States Rail Shop-crafts employees adopted a still more threatening aspect on Saturday, when the walkout entered upon its seventh week, and paralysis of rail transportation in various sections, particularly Middle and Far West is imminent as the Big Four Brotherhoods have abandoned work or called meetings, to consider quitting, in protest against armed guards on railway properties, and against handling defective equipment.

Air Scouting for Fish.

AEROPLANES TO HELP HERRING FLEETS BY LOCATING LIKELY GROUNDS.

Following successful experiments by France and America of locating fish shoals by aeroplanes the Scottish Fish Board and the Ministry will inaugurate interesting experiments this week.

Three aeroplanes will operate off the Pite and Portarf coasts to carry information as to the locality of herring shoals to fishing fleets in port.

The only doubt lies in the fact that Scottish waters are more opaque than those in which such observation has already proved successful.—Daily Mirror.

To Skin New Potatoes.

Every woman knows the difficulty of skinning new potatoes when they first come into season. The skin is so thin and the potato so difficult to hold that the knife or potato scraper slips off.

These troubles can easily be remedied by adopting this simple method.

Pour hot water over the potatoes and add a tablespoonful of salt to the water. Allow them to soak until the water becomes cool. Then commence to skin them.

You will be delighted at the ease with which this skin will peel off. Just the finger is scraped over it.

This method takes less than half the time of the ordinary way.

TRINITY.

(BONAIVISTA)

Then the person who was responsible for the entries in Vol. I. of the Bonavista Church Register, decided to begin another volume, he left three blank pages at the end of the book. These blank pages attracted the attention of Thomas Gaylor, and he decided to immortalize himself by filling them with personal remarks, observations, and requests. Some of those requests were embodied in my notes of last week, and I give the others today. I am sorry that the Registrar did not leave more blank pages; as I feel sure that Mr. Gaylor would have filled them with such remarks about persons, and things, as would be quite as interesting as those I have referred to.

Mr. Gaylor lived in the days when musical instruments were used in the church to lead the praises of the service, and from the fact that he owned one of the violins of the Bonavista choir, and had a subscriber's interest in the bass viol, I conclude that he was a member of the choir. Then, he wrote some of the blank pages, under date of December 1st, 1940: "I wish to inform the Church Wardens, that the violin now in possession of George Surge, I give to the church for ever, under the care of the Church Wardens. N.B. The Bass Viol that is played in the church, must be the property of the church. It was originally purchased by subscription, but at this period, I believe that only three of the subscribers are alive. I make this note in case any person should claim the instrument when all the subscribers are no more." (Signed) THOMAS GAYLOR.

I wonder what became of those instruments? Did the Church Wardens respect the old chorister's wishes, and pass those instruments on to the care of their successors? I shall be glad to hear from any person who can throw any light upon this subject. The violin and the bass viol constituted the choir instruments in every church in those days. I have often heard my father tell me of these instruments, and the players in the choir of old St. Paul's, Trinity; and that, when the preacher passed from his slirily, and announced "and now in conclusion," they would begin to tune their instruments for the closing hymn.

Then the congregation would hear the squeak! squeak! squeak! of the violin strings, and the squawk! squawk! squawk! of the bass viol strings. This would often be followed by a bang! and that sound would indicate a broken string. This bang! (followed usually by an audible exclamation of pshaw! on the part of the tuner) would always produce a smile from the unsympathetic youths who were following the sounds in the choir loft, rather than the words from the pulpit. In order, however, that the various, though necessary, actions of the players should not unnecessarily disturb the congregation, nor embarrass themselves, the choir loft in St. Paul's, Trinity, was filled with curtains on iron rods, and during the service, those curtains were closely drawn, so that whilst the noises that the musicians made were often incompressible, the instruments and the musicians were invisible.

These curtains were there after the harmonium had superseded the stringed instruments when I was a member of the choir, under the leadership of Miss Bayly, Charles MacFarlane, Mrs. Cookeley, and others. The curtains were made of heavy, red, figured damask, but they were never drawn in my days. I remember, too, when they disappeared. An old lady of refined manners, and musical attainments far beyond the ordinary, used to play the harmonium, with consent of all concerned, when she was quite herself mentally. She, however, was subject to occasional lapses into mental irregularities, and because of this, the harmonium key was handed over to the exclusive care of Miss Bayly. This so annoyed the old lady, that when she went into the church during the week and could not find the key of the harmonium, she showed her resentment by tearing down the choir curtains and taking them home.

Upon being asked why she took them, she replied to the effect, that some poor families up the bay had been burnt out, and she intended to make clothes for them out of the curtain material. I have often laughed heartily as I visualized those people fitted out with suits of red, figured damask. The dear old lady, however, without any intention to use the material for any such purpose, was thoroughly satisfied with this little bit of revenge, and nobody cared very much about what became of the material. Such was the end of those curtains, that had long ceased to be anything more than reminders of an obsolete and interesting musical past. Mr. Charles Granger played a violin in the choir of those days; and long after it had ceased to be used in the Church, Mr. Granger (who then lived in the Court House, where the Church of England School House is now) would sit out in front of the building on the summer afternoons, and play family hymn tunes on his violin; whilst we, young and old, would stand in groups on the road below, listening to, and humming the tunes as he played them.

The old bass viol, after its retirement, was hung for safety (in my boyhood days) in a green baize bag in the tower-vestry of old St. Paul's. It hung there for years, but it was given to an organ tuner by a church warden in part payment for repairing and tuning the church harmonium. I tried to trace its fate, and I found that it had been destroyed by fire, with the contents of the house in which it was kept at the time. Another bass viol, that was used in the Wesleyan Meeting House in Trinity a hundred years ago, and was played by its owner Mr. Tokery, was also destroyed by fire last year when the house of Mr. Tokery's son was burnt at English Harbor, T.B. Sic transit.

I cannot dismiss the old church harmonium from my thoughts without recalling with considerable feeling—the fact, that I got one of the dustiest, old-fashion thrashings, by old Mr. Collis, that I ever got in school, because I had entered the church during the week, and, knowing where the key was kept, I had opened the instrument and tried to play. Somebody heard me and told me (probably the angels). I was called up by Mr. Collis the next morning, accused of doing this, and I pleaded guilty. When he had carried out his sentence, and ordered me back to the seat, the rebellious spirit of my father rose in me, and I said, defiantly:—"I will play that organ some day, and will not be thrashed for it." I draw a veil over what followed, so long as the hickory stick lasted. I often recalled the scene, and my minor prophecy, when in after years I was one of the regular organists of old St. Paul's. I owe a great debt, however, to old James Collis's discipline. It was stern and often times unfair, but he always meant well. May God be good to him.

The Trinity Football team, and the friends who accompanied them to Catalina on Wednesday 2nd, returned with delightful memories of Catalina. True, they did not win the game; but their report having had a most enjoyable time whilst contesting for it. They are loud in their praise of the actions of the Catalina team, who, individually and collectively are gentlemen and sportsmen, with whom it will ever be a pleasure to associate. The arrangements made for the comfort of the visitors were given into the hands of Mrs. Randall, who did her part so well, that they will take pleasure in recommending her hotel to all who visit Catalina. The Catalina team will be invited to Trinity, at an early date, providing a suitable place can be found to play on.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Earle, Trinity, on the third instant, celebrated the fifty third anniversary of their marriage, and received the congratulations of their many friends—"Alonso William Earle, son of John Earle, of St. John's, and Mary Hannah Pillsbury, daughter of the late John Pillsbury, of Trinity, were married in St. Paul's Church, Trinity, on this third day of August, one thousand eight hundred and sixty nine." Witnesses—"James" "Gent, Margaret Pittman, W. C. Earle, "Frances H. Gent." (Church Register).

Mr. John Lawrence of Bonavista, and his brother, Mr. Thomas Lawrence of St. John's (on pleasure bent) registered at Garland Hotel on August 3rd, and spent the day at Trinity. Their old friends here were glad to see them. Mr. John has been a frequent visitor to Trinity, but this was Mr. Thomas' first visit, and he says "all that the person, who writes to the Evening Telegram, says about the beauties of Trinity is quite true." I well remember when, forty five years ago, James and Thomas Lawrence of Bonavista were serving their time with Carrall in the carriage-building trade, at St. John's. Since that time they have been conducting their own business with satisfaction to all concerned. We shall always be glad to welcome any of the family to Trinity.

Mrs. Ethel Lockyer and little Jacqueline returned by express from an enjoyable time to St. John's.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walters of Champneys, registered at Garland Hotel on Friday 4th, and went to St. John's by Prospero. Mr. Walters was a Divinity student at King's College, Windsor, N.S., when the war broke out. With all the other students at King's he enlisted, fought it out, and returned to Newfoundland. He then took up the work of teaching, and at present he is a teacher and catechist of the C. of E. at Harbor Deep, White Bay, N.E.

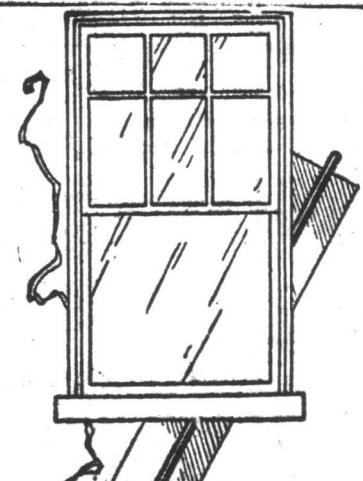

His wife, who came with him from England, takes a most unselfish view of life, and is a loyal help to him in his work, satisfied with the knowledge that in their isolation they are helping others less fortunate than themselves, to know the right. We assure them of our appreciation of their work, and of our prayers in their behalf.

The first local Road Board for Trouty was elected last week. Fourteen candidates were nominated, and five were elected, viz: James Johnson, James Clifford, Samuel Morris, Adam G. Brown, and Beniah James. At the first meeting of the newly formed Board, Mr. Samuel Morris was elected the first "Mayor of Trouty."

We are always anxious to keep the run of, and to chronicle the advance of our young men and women who go out from Trinity to undertake a work in the big world. Mr. Raymond White, son of Mr. and Mrs. William White, Trinity, who began his work as a Marine Engineer at the Reid Newfoundland machine shop, in St. John's has begun his practical work as the fourth engineer on the steamer "Canadian Cruiser." She is 11,900 tons, and has just left Montreal for London, Antwerp, Hamburg, etc., to return, and then to New Zealand.

Whilst renewing the underpinning of Magistrate Somerton's house a few weeks ago, the workmen found a copper kettle of a decidedly odd-time shape and make. It is made of blocked copper; it is swan-shaped, fourteen inches long, twelve inches wide, and three inches deep. There is no date on it, but all along one side, in well cut capital letters, are the words, "Lankaster and Sons, and on the other side are the words, "Inventors South Hampton." Who knows when those workers in copper were established in Southampton, England?

clock—with a most beautiful afternoon—a large congregation assembled in and around the Mortuary Chapel, for a special service of hymn, psalm, prayer, lesson and address. This service was also conducted by the rector, and the address—given by Rev. F. P. Law of Trinity, East—was a clear and forceful presentation of the meaning of life here and beyond the grave; the position and work of the soul in the Paradise of God; and our duties to each other throughout prayers. The services of this day are looked forward to every year, and they increasingly satisfy the craving of our nature. The graves in the Cemetery, almost without exception are in a respectable and reverent condition, and they and the Mortuary Chapel were specially decorated with evergreen and flowers for the service.

Abdullah of Transjordania

FACES ANGRY TRIBESMEN.
JERUSALEM, (Associated Press)—The political situation in Transjordania is regarded by observers here as rapidly moving from bad to worse, and unless the British Government intervenes in time to give the country a stable government, it is felt that a condition of anarchy may well develop. Abdullah, Emir of Transjordania, menaced by the invasion of Ibn, Sultan of Nejd, at the head of 10,000 well armed Wahabi tribesmen, still holds the reins of power, but he seems to have committed an unpardonable sin in the eyes of the leaders of the tribes dwelling within his territory for having humbled himself to Ibn Saoud by suing for peace. A delegation from a majority of the tribes of Transjordania recently waited upon Emir Abdullah, remonstrated with him on his course, and submitted the following demands:
1. The immediate dismissal of all political advisers in the administration on the ground that these advisers are paid agents of foreign governments and are working only in the interests of foreigners.
2. The immediate convocation of a Legislative Council with powers to go into the details of governmental affairs.
3. The immediate publication of the financial condition of the country.
Replying to the delegation the Emir said, "Regarding political advisers, I am aware of everything that is happening in Transjordania and I am working for the best interests of my people. As regards a Legislative Council, I do not want my hands tied as the Syrians tied the hands of my brother Faisal, later on expelling him from Damascus. As to the financial situation, I do not see your object in demanding this information."
It is rumored that Emir Abdullah, fearing the consequences of the visit of the delegation, has requested military aid from the Acting High Commissioner for Palestine, in the event of revolt on the part of some of the tribesmen.

Professor H. C. Wylid, of the University, Liverpool and foremost among living scientific investigators, writes:
"When my little girl was recovering from a severe operation for appendicitis, the irritation from the wounds, as these were healing, was intolerable and the child—aged 3½—could get no rest. After trying various preparations prescribed by the doctors without producing effect, we used Gibson's Ointment and this gave almost instantaneous and permanent relief. The Ointment was used regularly until the wounds had completely healed and there was no return of the irritation."

THE PULPIT AND THE PEW.
To "get the better" of the Minister has always meant fame of a kind—largely because of the rarity of such an achievement—and one case. Imagine how the parish would ring with the fame of the old dame who, when her spiritual adviser called at her house to enquire of her the reason why recently she had suddenly turned "Seccesor," retorted, "weel, I've just took a hale fortnicht to put Jonah into the whale's belly, and another hale fortnicht to tak' him out; and what sort o' fools preschlin' dye ca that?"

A Fifeshire laird, in a somewhat similar way, scored heavily against the minister of his parish. The latter had called on the laird to solicit a subscription from him to aid in putting a stove in the church, which, he said, the congregation found very cold. "Cauid, sir, cauid?" snorted the chief heritor; "then warm them up w' your doctrine, sir. John Knox never askit for a stove in his Kirk."

Equally pungent was the remark which issued from a country pew on the North of the Tay. "Ye're sleeping," John," said the minister, pausing in the middle of a humdrum discourse, and looking hard in the direction of a drowsy member thus addressed: "Tak' a snuff, John."

"Put the snuff in the sermon," grunted John, and the broad grin that scamped over the upturned faces of the congregation showed how much the suggestion was deemed fit. But it is seldom the sleeper is found so wide awake, if the expression will be allowed. His mental condition for the time being acts against the ready exercise of wit, and he is generally caught napping in a double sense. And, indeed, many who are popularly termed "pillars of the Kirk," might with equal appropriateness be termed sleepers. In a certain church in Forfarshire, there was no worse offender in this way than the minister's own wife. One Sabbath she was actually asleep before the text was given out, a fact which her husband was not slow to observe. The minister had a quiet humour of his own; and the passage chosen for treatment that day had more than its original meaning to many present, when "fixing his glassy eye" on the family pew he said, "The words, my brethren, to which I wish to direct your attention at the present time, are these: "He loveth His beloved sleep."

HUMOUR OF SCOTCH PRE-CENTORS.

Of course it is just as the study of music progressed in Scotland, and the taste for the highly-refined art became general, that Organs increase and precentors decay. It is to the older times, however, when he who had a "fairish guide lug" and a thoroughly sound pair of lungs was, irrespective of musical education, selected to "fill the desk," that the humours of precenting almost exclusively belong. And, truly, of that time many a sufficiently funny and ludicrous story may be told.
The Rev. Sir Henry Moncreiff, Bart. was for some years Minister of the parish at Blackford prior to his translation to St. Cuthbert's in Edinburgh. During his incumbency at Blackford he had, as Doctor Rodgers tells, one Sabbath opened divine service by giving out a portion of the 71st Psalm, at the seventh verse. The conductor of the psalmody followed the practice then in vogue, and enunci-ated the opening line: "To many, I, a wonder am." Immediately the congregation seemed to be overpowered by an inclination to indulge in laughter, which, indeed, some were unable to restrain. The precentor faltered, but proceeded to read the line again. This tended only to increase the excitement, and while some quickly withdrew from the church, others concealed their faces under the pews, or buried them in their handkerchiefs. Sir Henry rose up, and looking down at the precentor, called to him: "So you are a wonder, John, turn your wig!" The oddity of the precentor's appearance with his wig misplaced, viewed in connection with his proclamation, had produced the mistimed merriment.

A precentor of humorous turn of mind when Lord Eglington's family were crowded out of sitting room in the Kirk, exclaimed: "Stand back, Jock, and let the Eglington family in," then continued to read: "Nor stand in sinners way."

The old Scotch precentor, pure and simple in Scotland, is now a thing of the past.

The pitch-fork and the Doh Ra Me Fa Soh and the key-note precentors have "struck" after they have had years of experience, and I have heard of one in a country Kirk who frequently pitched his tunes too high, and when he failed in his efforts to carry them through, he would stop and shake his head and exclaim, "It'll no do chaps," "we'll need to try it a wee thoct lacher." Another, after repeated ineffectual attempts to raise the tune on a certain occasion, turned round, and looking up to the minister, exclaimed, "Dod, sir, that peasm'll no sing ava."

One who was suffering from cold occupied the desk so imperfectly that the minister whispered to him over the pulpit:—
"What's the matter w' ye, John?"
"Deed, sir," replied John, "it sounds to me yug mair like the catterwaw o' an auld tam—cat."

"A kittlin, do ye ca'?" exclaimed the minister, loud enough for all the congregation to hear him, "it sounds to my lug mair like the catterwaw o' an auld tam—cat."

He Was Quite Welcome.

"Madam," said the tramp, spinning the tale to the farmer's wife, "have you any objection to my lying down in one of your fence corners and dying?"
"No objection at all," replied the lady. "Over in the corner you will find a lot of straw."
"I wouldn't dare to lie on your straw, madam," said the tramp; "I'm so hungry that I'd be sure to wake up and find myself eating it."
"We have plenty more," said the farmer's wife pleasantly, as she closed the door.

First English King's Peace Mission to Ireland

It was on Sunday, August 12th, 1851—just a century since—that King George IV. arrived at Howth, at about five o'clock. The congregations from the different churches were waiting on the pier while all ages strained to get a glimpse of the sovereign, the first King of England who had ever gone to Ireland on a mission of peace. The "Lightnings," steamboat, Captain Skinner, came near the pier head, and some person, recognising his Majesty on board, cried "The King!" when the multitude enthusiastically exclaimed, "The King, the King, God bless him!" This was followed by universal cheering again and again, when the king stood forward, and taking off his cap, flourished it over his head several times, and with great agility. On the pier he found himself jammed by a mass of people, and although he had reason to be displeased at the want of proper arrangements, he bore the inconvenience with good humor, indeed, his Majesty was quite jolly. On seeing Lord Kingston in the crowd, he exclaimed "Kingston, Kingston, you black whiskered, good natured fellow. I am happy to see you in this friendly country." Having recognized Mr. Dennis Borden Daly, he cordially shook hands with that gentleman, who at that moment was deprived of a gold watch, worth sixty guineas, and a pocketbook, by one of the light fingered gentry. The king also shook hands with numbers who were wholly strangers to him. As his Majesty got into his carriage, the cheers of the multitude rent the air, and he turned toward them, extending his hands, saying with great emotion, "God bless you all, I thank you from my heart." Seemingly exhausted, he threw himself back in the carriage; then, on the cheering being renewed, he bent forward, and taking off his cap bowed to the ladies and those around him. The cavalcade drove rapidly to town, and proceeded by the circular road to the park, attended by a constant accession of horsemen, who all rode uncovered. In his speech to them at the door, he said: "This is one of the happiest days of my life. I have long wished to visit you; my heart has always been with the Irish; from the day it first beat I have loved Ireland.

July 17, 1922, eod

This day has shown me that I am loved by my Irish subjects. Rank, station, honors are nothing; but to feel that I live in the hearts of my Irish subjects is to me exalted happiness. I must once more thank you for your kindness, and bid you farewell. Go, and do by me as I do by you—drink my health in a bumper; I shall drink all yours in a bumper of good Irish whisky." It is a singular fact that there was not a soldier and not a policeman visible from Howth to the Park. No guards, no pomp, no ceremony. The king appeared in "fatigue dress," and on landing found himself in the midst of his Irish subjects, and this in a country of people whose disaffection and turbulence has been a constant trouble to his ministers.

The publisher of the best Farmer's paper in the Maritime Provinces in writing to us states:
"I would say that I do not know of a medicine that has stood the test of time like Minkard's Liniment. It has been an unfailing remedy in our household ever since I can remember and has outlived dozens of would-be competitors and imitators."

Give us Coal.

The conference held at Glace Bay on Saturday between the Executive Board of the U.M.W. and Vice-President D. H. MacDougall and other representatives of the Company, will be welcomed by the public as holding out the hope that the parties may be able to come to an agreement on the question at issue. The conference was asked for by the U. M. W. Executive, and the response of the management equally indicates a desire to find a way out of the present threatening situation. It was the reasonable thing to do—to get together around a table to discuss the matter in dispute and endeavour to reach an amicable agreement.
So far, in this respect, the steps taken are all to the good. It is to be hoped that this sensible attitude on both sides will be maintained. A strike in the coal mines at this juncture when the greatest present and prospective need of the country is coal, could not be justifiable on any existing grounds. It would be a strike against the public interest, and no such strike can ever be justified. The demand for coal from all sides is so urgent that the first duty of men and management is to compose their differences and unite their efforts in supplying the demand. There is now the opportunity to recover much of the ground lost during and immediately after the war, and perhaps, of completely re-establishing Nova Scotia coal in the St. Lawrence market, with the possibility of selling it much farther west. Stopping work now, at this critical time, would not only cause serious loss to all concerned, and not the least to the people of the Province generally; it might, and probably would, give the coal industry of Nova Scotia a disastrous setback.
Surely the folly of precipitating a strike at such a time will be recognized by all fair-minded men. At all events, it may be said that the public whose interests are paramount, do not want, and will not lend their support to a strike. The need of the hour is an abundant supply of coal at a reasonable price. This is vital to the well-being of all the people, and to the industrial rehabilitation of the country. Stopping of the mines would mean nothing but widespread suffering and irreparable loss all around. It is to be hoped that these plain facts will be recognized and that the spirit of reasonableness will prevail.—Morning Chronicle.

Corrects "Saturday Night."

The Evening Telegram.
The St. John's Telegram of July 29th carried an extract from the Saturday Night, containing a representation of the facts concerning the introduction of the strike instituted by the International Typographical Union in an effort to gain for it members of the forty-four hour work week. The article states that in the first week of the strike, the members of the International Typographical Union in St. John's were paid in the sum of $3,500,000 which sum $3,500,000 has been expended to maintain those on strike. It is a pity an error on the part of Saturday Night's statistician, whose figures evidently outweigh his arguments on this subject. As there has been considerable misunderstanding in circles where such matters are discussed, I, with your permission I will give a few figures taken from the official reports of the organization's chief statistician as published in the International Typographical Journal. To the best of my knowledge the receipts for the strike amounted to $10,021,000 and the expenses incident thereto totalled $9,432,968.08. Five hundred and twelve typographical unions have established the forty-four hour week in their jurisdictions representing a membership of approximately 42,541, and at the time the strike was written (June 30th) there were but 7,050 men and women on the strike roll, with strikes existing in 170 cities. There has been no suggestion whatever from any of the international officers of the International Typographical Union of the strike, as intimated in Saturday Night. In conclusion, Mr. Editor, let me say that at the present time where many of our young men are contemplating a change of career, which means a release from present chaotic business conditions, he can carry no better credentials (with one exception, perhaps) than that supplied by the International Union in the shape of a travelling card. Hence his loyalty to his union. The exception is an unlimited supply of gold cash.

Thanking you in anticipation of space, Mr. Editor, on behalf of St. John's Typographical Union, No. 703, Yours truly, NFLD. CORRESPONDENT.

VISITING ORCHESTRA GOES OVER BIG.

The visiting American Orchestra scored additional triumph at the Nickel Theatre last night. The programme consisted of selections from "Lullaby" and Medley of Old Southern Airs. The later numbers were rendered with such feeling as to make the spectator almost believe itself breathing the atmosphere of the sunny South. At the conclusion of this performance the Orchestra was greeted with a tremendous outburst of applause.

The sinister feature of Balzano, the hypnotist, played by Montague Love in the Resalat picture "The Case of Becky," the picture attraction were accentuated by a clever trick of lighting. In the scenes where Balzano is shown hypnotizing Dorothy Stone Constance Binney lights were placed directly under him. This threw his features, which are naturally prominent, into bold relief, shading the other parts of his form and the effect is as awe-inspiring as may be imagined.

THE LAY OF THE TROUBLED GOLFER.

His eye was wild and his face was taut with anger and hate and rage. And the things he muttered were much too strong for the ink of the printed page. I found him there when the dusk came down, in his golf clothes still wet with he. And his clubs were strown around his feet, as he told his grief to me: "I'd an easy five for a seventy-nine—in sight of the golden goal—An easy five and I took an eight—an eight on the eighteenth hole!"

"I've dreamed my dreams of the seventy men, and I've worked year after year, I have vowed I would stand with the chosen few ere the end of my golf career; I've cherished the thought of a seventy score, and the days have come and gone. And I've never been close to the golden goal my heart was set upon. But to-day I stood on the eighteenth tee and counted the score of mine. And my pulses raced with a thrill of joy—I'd a five for a seventy-nine!"

"I can kick the ball from the eighth tee and get this hole in five. But I took the wood and I tried to cross the ditch with a mighty drive—"

Let us end the quotes, it is best for all to imagine his language rich. But he topped the ball, as we often do, and the ball stopped in the ditch. His third was short and his fourth was bad, and his fifth was off the line.

And he took an eight on the eighteenth hole with a five for a seventy-nine.

I gathered his clubs and I took his arm and alone in the locker room I left him sitting upon the bench, a picture of grief and gloom. And the last man came and took his shower and hurried upon his way. But still he sat, with his head bowed down like one with a mind astray. And he counted his score card o'er and o'er and muttered this doleful rhyme:

"I took eight on the eighteenth hole, with a five for a seventy-nine!"

A project that will facilitate the movement, across the water, of Canadian wheat is under consideration and should the present plans mature Newfoundland will have a double track broad gauge railway across the Northern Peninsula with a terminus at Benton. The promoter of the scheme is at present in the city, having arrived by express last week. A railway tapping the wheat fields of Northern Canada and running along the coast of Canadian Labrador with a train ferry service across the Straits is a part of the plan. The visit of the promoter who is said to have ample backing, is to seek certain concessions, necessary to the undertaking, from the Government.

50 Years in Practice in Newfoundland. BROKEN PLATES REPAIRED.

Well equipped Dental Offices can now repair plates. A broken tooth is no reason why a plate should be discarded. A new tooth, or several of them, can be vulcanized onto the old plate and make the service absolutely as good as ever. If you meet with an accident that injures your plate in any way, consult your dentist about repairs before you discard it for a new one. You can often prevent a needless expense. jnc27.tu.th.s.v
