LE MONDE of Montreal is at a loss to account for the Mail's obstinate and continued attacks on the foreign policy of France.

THE IRISH CANADIAN thinks there is a good deal in the contention of the World, that many emigrants avoid Canada because they associate this country, rightly or wrongly, with the monarchial idea.

MANY GERMANS are weak-eyed, and eminent oculists say it is caused by the reading of books printed in the Gothic or German text letter.

THE IRONWORKERS of Cincinnati made a demand two months ago for an advance of twenty per cent on the wages paid in Pittsburgh.

DR. WOOLSEY, the eminent publicist, is convinced that the temperance reform must make slow progress, and he has much more confidence in the Crosby or Macdonnell plan than in the total abstinence one.

BECAUSE A CHEROKEE IS MADE and not promptly denied is reason enough for the Irish Canadian to believe that it is true. For instance, a not-over-scrupulous newspaper man who was not there charged Hon. Mr. Hardy with insulting Roman Catholics at a political meeting in Berlin.

AT THE RECENT matriculation examinations of the university of Toronto, the first place in the modern department was gained by Mrs. Kirkman of Ohio.

ALL ABOUT THUNDER.

Superstitions concerning the ordinary of the Heavens—Distant Rumors—Gives to the moving of the Clouds.

As the summer time comes round, and the days grow hot and sultry, thunder-showers soon become prevalent.

Thunder in March is said to bring sorrow, and a popular saying reminds us that when April blows his horn it is good for him.

Among other items of weather lore relating to thunder we are told that in the morning it signifies wind, about noon rain, and in the evening it denotes a storm.

Lightning without thunder is popularly considered ominous, and in Scotland we are told that "sheet-lightning without thunder during the night, having a whitish color, announces unsettled weather."

Many of our peasantry still plant the house look, popularly called "the lightning rod," upon the roofs of their cottages as a preservative against thunder and evil spirits.

GRADUAL DEVELOPMENT OF COMMERCIAL FREEDOM.

What reasons, it will naturally be asked, are there for believing that Canada can attain commercial autonomy? We answer, the antecedent development of colonial liberties points to commercial autonomy as inevitable.

Spain, France, Holland, Portugal, all the colonizing nations of Europe acted on the same principle. These nations have ceased to colonize, though each has still left some remains of its colonial system.

But colonial monopoly was based on a preference in the markets of the mother country. The abolition of the corn laws dealt a fatal blow to this system, which had indeed survived its utility.

Nothing then remained but the political connection, of which the visible representative is the governor-general. The balance of the political power centred in Downing street, where trade monopoly held sway.

But while the commercial advantages of the old colonial regime are at an end, some of the friction which it occasioned is still felt. Imperial treaties with foreign countries still place the colonies under restrictions.

The restriction which denies to Canada free action in this particular ought to be removed. A few years ago the pardoning power was exercised by the governor-general, on his own motion, as the representative of the crown, the fountain of honor.

A FURTHER REPLY TO "QUEBEC"

By the Editor of the Toronto World.

Sir.—It is direct falsification, in a contest between free traders and protectionists, for the former to say that free trade in the States between fifty millions. We must use words to mean certain things, and he who changes a meaning intending to give a false impression lies. As I stated, the point at issue is free trade or protection. The free trade advocates which they are distinct—they are opposed—they are, in fact, mutually destructive. For, grant external free trade in iron between the States and other lands, it would at once kill the internal trade in iron now existing in the States. Free trade, I repeat, in political economy means, not that the States can trade freely with one another, but that they should trade with one another as if they were one nation. It is to imply something altogether different, it is to attempt under a false name to defend a false principle; it is the last ditch of a man who has no other resource. It is the last dying gasp of a strangled falcon—a falcon permitted to have its day and do its evil, but the day is over.

"Queer!" asks if, supposing Canadians can be enriched by duties along the St. Lawrence, Kansas could be by such along our modern slugs, has an air of freedom, can only gain by protection as it is averted, her commercial independence forms the opportunity and necessity for protective benefits. Kansas neither is nor can be a partner with a number of states, in any such position, Kansas at present expects a share of the gain Massachusetts makes by protection, and not only expects, but has the purpose of drawing lines around her own border.

"Queer!" asks the same question with reference to Ontario and Quebec. The same answer applies. These do not protect against one another, because they are not rivals. They are partners. We do not stop imports from Quebec, because we have no objection to large factories, dense populations, much richer, being accumulated in Quebec, for in many ways this would be a benefit to us. It is not our object to subject to its being accumulated in our expense in a foreign land, because it would do us no good, and might be used to our harm.

"Queer!" does not choose analogous subjects. He compares that which cannot be compared. It is as if one should say, "Why, if it be to my advantage, by fair means, to transfer to mine that which is now in my neighbor's hands, a la priering attitude, we could not be equally advantageous for me to transfer that money now in my right-hand pocket to my left."
