MANY people make the mistake of putting honey in a cold, damp place. This should not be done. Never put honey in your cellar, it should be kept free from all dampness. Put it in glass gems using mosquito netting instead of glass tops and place it in a warm, dry room. We are indebted to a local expert aniarist for this information, which pert aplarist for this information which is very reasonable as many people are now buying honey which is fairly plenti-ful this season.—Exchange.

A CANUCK, now a resident of Detroit, says that we have little reason to grumble over war taxes, considering what the people in Michigan have to pay in the same way. The war stamp taxes across the border amount to dollars in comparison to the few cents Canadians are called upon to pay. The reason given for the imposition of the war tax in the United States is that the country is forced by this means to raise a revenue in view of the practical shutting off of imports owing to the war. owing to the war.

He has had a severe and critical illness but is now on the mend. His wife was notified by wire and arrived here on Saturday and a brother came on Monday. Much sympathy is expressed for Rev. and Mrs. Raynor in their trying affliction while among strangers. The members of the church did all in their power to help them in their trouble.

ONE of the most difficult tasks in a newspaper office is in getting the facts relative to births, marriages, deaths accidents and other happenings in the community. Many people take it for granted that when a person dies the editor is familiar with every detail of the life of the deceased and his activities, when as a fact he sometimes knows absolutely nothing about him, but he has to get his information from other sources, same as other persons would have to do. It is the same with marriages or other more or less important happenings in the community. In almost every case the editor has to dig up the particulars or satisfy himself and the readers with a meagre and inaccurate account. The patrons can hardly overestimate how much he appreciates any efforts they make in furnishing him the efforts they make in furnishing him the facts for news items. Death of Fred M. Johnston

After a long and very tedious illness extending over one year, Fred M. Johaston passed peacefully away at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. E. Johnston, Main street, on Thursday morning, Sept. 30th. About the 20th of August of last year he had an attack of pneumonia at his home in Detroit. He recovered from this but his lungs were left weak. He came to his parents' home here in September and from that time gradually sank until relieved by death on Thursday. He bore his long suffering patiently and was given every possible care and attention that loving minds could think of, but all without avail.

Daughters of the Empire

Wednesday afternoon the monthly meeting of Tecumseh Chapter of the I. O. D. E. was held at the home of Mrs. C. Howden, Mrs. McIlveen assisting hostess. There was a splendid turmont of members and friends. The Regent presided. The Roll-call was responded to by quotations on Autumn. The members spent the time sewing and knitting. It was decided that the Chapter send bundles of daily and weekly newspapers to the Canadian wounded in British hospitals. A sum of money was granted a committee to buy material for further work for our soldiers. The musical numbers were given by Mrs. Kelly and Miss Swift, which were enjoyed by the many present. Tea was served in the living room and dining room, the tables looking very dainty. The singing of the National Anthem brought a the tables looking very dainty. In spite of the cool and rather threatening weather the fortieth fall exhibition of the East Lambton Agricultural Society held at Watford this week was well at-tended and there was keen competition is all characters. in all classes.

The first day was showery and cool but The first day was snowery and cool but the entries came pouring in rapidly and at the close of the day the Secretary re-ported the number far in excess of last year. Wednesday the weather was dull and threatening all day and on account of the frequent rains the fair grounds were in a very muddy and slippery con-dition, which fact no doubt caused many people to stay away or spend the time people to stay away or spend the time down town. a big, good-natured crowd that took great interest in the different attractions provided by the management.

The horses were far above the average and great interest was manifested when the judges were at their work.

The number of cattle and sheep was about the same as usual but in the poultry department the entries were greatly in excess of previous years.

The main building, where the ladies' work, cooking and preserves were shown was well packed with exhibits, many very fine specimens of fancy work being shown. Here also was a magnificent display of honey, and the fine arts class was well filled with excellent work.

The fruit and vegetable tent was a surprise to all. The quantity of fruit was probably not up to last year but the quality made up for any deficiences in quantity. The root display, with the exception of potatoes, was simply wonderful, some of the largest specimens ever exhibited here being shown.

President Farrell had charge of the platform entertainment and there was something doing all the time. The program included Scotch dances by the McGregor sisters, of Sarnia, selections by something doing all the time. The program included Scotch dances by the McGregor sisters, of Sarnia, selections by the Sarnia Highland Pipers band and the Sarma Highland Pipers band and contests for various special features. During the afternoon the Watford Band gave a number of selections from the grand stand. The rain held off all day and the crowd was a happy one, despite the fact that they had a big job ahead of them next day to clean the mud off their boots and clothes.

NOTES

Entries 2230. Gate receipts, $684.00

The prize list will appear in full next week.

There were several visitors here from Michigan. Margaret Minielly took the Swift prize for youngest child able to talk.

School Section No. 5, Brooke, took the prize for the best patriotic drill.

The decorations were profuse. Nearly everyone had a flag or bit of bunting.

The grand stand was fairly well patronized but not crowded at any time.

The special prizes were largely competed for. These prove a good attraction. Owing to the heavy, squashy condition of the track the speeding events were called off.

Mrs. Shannon captured the prize for the oldest lady on the grounds. She is 87 years old.

The ocean wave failed to put in an appearance and the young people were disappointed.

Secretary Kenward was kept busy all ay long. He had Mr. H. K. Laird actday long. He h ing as assistant. Vera Wilcox took the first prize in the baby show, Rosa Rawlings second, and Irene Tanton third. Harper Bros., exhibit of Mason & Risch pianos, and Singer sewing machines had a crowd around it all day.

Swift, Sons & Co.'s display of furs was much admired by the ladies. They had some handsome goods displayed. The refreshment booths were not well patronized as usual, owing no doubt to the coolness of the weather.

J. E. Armstrong, M.P., Petrolea, and Dr. J. B. Martyn, M.P.P., Alvinston, were among the visitors from a distance.

The fakirs were few and did not do very much business. Cheap cigars and sheeny jewelry do not appeal to as many of the young men as in years gone by.

The names of the winners of some of the special events could not be obtained for this week's paper. Note will be made of them next week with the prize

It being a busy time and farm work somewhat behind kept many a person from being present. The doubtful weather also kept quite a few away.

The little McGregor sisters, of Sarnia, charmed all with their graceful dancing. They are expert little dancers and one never tires watching them.

The Sarnia Highland Pipers Band, with Colin Campbell drum major was just as popular as ever, and gave a plent-iful supply of exhilarating music.

The officers of the Society wish to thank all those who gave cash subscriptions and special prizes. These helped much to keep up a lively interest in the fair

The officers and directors spared no pains to make the fair a success, but they had to work under great difficulties. The hustling president was here, there and everywhere.

Harper Bros.' special prize to the far-mer bringing the largest load of people to the fair went to James Jones, of the 4th line. There were 46 people on the-wagon. wagon.

John Fancy's display of honey was much admired. It was one of the best displays in that line ever seen here and must have taken considerable time and work to put in shape.

The directors will meet in Watford one Saturday, October 16th, and make any necessary changes and additions to the prize lists after which date the prizes will be paid by the Treasurer. President Farrell presided in his usual cheerful and urbane manner. The Wat-ford fair without the irrepressible presid-ent would lose some of its attraction. This is the 21st consecutive year that Mr. Farrell has held the position of president. One of the attractions on Fair Day was the sale of tags by ladies of the Union Red Cross Workers of Brooke. Notwithstanding the many demands on the purse of the people at the present time a good sum was realized.

A recruiting squad from the 70th Battalion, was here from Petrolea, in charge of Major Fairbank and Lieut. Murray. A recuiting room was opened at the post office store and several young men signed up.

The Department af Agriculture, Petrolea, had an excellent display of Lambton fruit in the main building, also specimens of the different diseases to which plants and trees are subject. The display was in charge of Mr. C.C. Prame which plants and trees are subject. The display was in charge of Mr. G.G. Bramhilf, county representative, who imparted valuable information to enquirers after knowledge in that line. He was assisted by Mr. Neff.

The concert given by the Agricultural Society in the Armory was fairly well patronized. The well-known favorite entertainer, Mr. John Jameson of Sarnia, an old Watford boy, kept the audience in roars of laughter, and many of his old friends were glad of the opportunity to to hear him. Mr. C. Pink, of London, gave some choice tenor solos, and the Mac Musicians were well received and deservedly applauded.

One of the most interesting attractions deservedly applauded.

One of the most interesting attractions of the day was the platoon of the 33rd Battalion, officered by Lieut. Hessel with Lieut. Pope second in command. They are a well-drilled lot of men and performed a number of evolutions with the precision and nicety of old-timers. Headed by their bugle and drum band they gave quite a military appearance to the town and fair. They left for London on the 5.16 train singing, "We'll never let the old flag fall," and they never will if the rest of the battalion are as competent soldiers as those who were here.

Soldiers and Tobacco

Tobacco smoking is alleged by those given to the practice to be conducive to patience under hardship and mildness of temper, and this may be the reason why users of the weed have endured with such equanimity the fierce assaults which have been launched against their pet luxury by generations of moral reformers. It should be some comfort to the smoking community to learn that the London Lancet, the leading medical paper of the world, has come to their rescue. The Lancet, in discussing the campaigns which have been waged against the purchase of tobacco for the soldiers in the trenches, declares that "smoking does much to allay the restlessness and muscular irritability engendered by mental and physical fatigue. Smoking is a custom that has widely prevailed among men who have played a great part in solving the problems of existence in its many details.'

Story of Jim Crow and the Sad Fate That Befell Him.

TOO FOND OF THE CHICKENS.

Some of the Hens Played Tricks on Jim-His Last Escapade-Puzzles and Games and Many Things of Interest to Small People.

The story of Jim Crow is told by James Speed, who took the youngster from his parents' nest and made a pet of it. At first he refused to eat, but soon got over that. Jim became so tame that he would alight on his master's hand or arm in most familiar fashion and beg for food. He was much interested in the chickens about the place, but they resented his advances. Once or twice when he was etting on the edge of a bucket getting a drink a hen slipped up behind him and with a quick stroke tumbled him heels over head into the water.

Jim, however, continued to try to make friends with the hens, but at length went too far and attempted to pick up a young game chicken. In an instant the mother hen and Jim were a mass of tangled feathers, and when they were parted Jim was a sad sight. He died the next day and was buried in the garden. Poor Jim!

Hidden Nuts. Give each guest a piece of paper and a pencil and explain that they are to write on one side of the paper the names of the nuts concealed in the sentences on the other side. Five nuts are hidden in the five sentences: 1. Thomas wanted to go skating, but Terence did not care to go. . 2. I heard the college boys were going to haze Louis. 3. Hope can drive away despair.

4. Catch that chick or yonder cat will eat it. 5. It was calm on Dexter lake this morning. Answers: 1. Butter. 2. Hazel. 3.

Pecan. 4. Hickory. 5. Almond. Next are five series of jumbled letters which can be transposed into five more nuts:

1. Hbcee-Beech

2. Ibrftel-Filbert. 3. Otciphasi-Pistachio.

4. Antwul-Walnut. 5. Catcouno-Cocoanut.

A prize may be given the one who finds the most nuts in a given time. A silver nut cracker for the first prize and a peanut doll for the booby.

Japanese Customs. Every Japanese house of preten sions has in its principal room a raised platform or dais upon which the mi-kado, should he by chance ever visit the house, would sit. It is a law that no subject may look down upon the mikado. A pretty Japanese custom is that of making excursions to the country when the trees are in bloom to see them. The Japanese are great flower lovers and are most fond of the blossoms which grow on trees. Their love for cherry blossoms is well known. In February they visit the plum tree, the cherry in April, the lotus in July, azaleas during the long summer months and in the autumn is the great chrysanthemum festival, while in December come the camellias.

A Remarkable Bird. Among the feathered tribe the bower bird of Australia easily takes the record for versatility, being at once gar dener, architect and artist. For it not only constructs a neat tunnel-like bower framed like a Gothic arch, but can lay out a garden, discriminately picking the orchid blossoms and arranging them into pretty patterns with fine taste.

The war grows in magnitudemagnitude that must appal the Germans with all their slaughterful preparedness. They have let out a demon that they might well wish under seal again. Others can play at frightfulness when they must. And it would seem as if an awful retribution were about to overtake the monsters who would wade through the blood of millions and the devastation of Europe to establish a hellborn domination of humanity at

Never will the world forgive or forget the nation and its leaders who brought civilization to the unparalleled conflict and slaughter now centred in France and Belgium, in Russia, in Austria, in the Dardanelles in Asia Minor, and that has almost paralyzed the rest of mankind.

Forced to enter into this Armageddon we must continue in it until the Huns who brought it on are vanquished for ever. There can be no quarter and we must ask none; we must take the consequences and the destruction that will come to our sons and allies, let it be what it We must meet slaughter with greater slaughter and out-match nefariousness at its own play. Had Eczema 20 years Cured by Zam-Buk

Mr. Joseph Johnson, 584 Broome St., New York, writes: "Over twenty years ago eczema appeared on my hands and face. I went to a doctor, but his treat-ment afforded only temporary relief. Finding medical attention and treatment of little avail I commenced to try first of little avail I commenced to try first one and then another of the so-called remedies which were recommended, but for over twenty years I suffered from this painful, humiliating disease. During this time I spent hundreds of dollars and all I got was temporary relief. At last Zam-buk was suggested to me; I decided to give it a trial, but did not expect a to give it a trial, but did not expect a cure.

Think of it, suffering day in and day out for twenty years! Think of the grip this disease must have had on the entire system! Think the healing power of system! Think the healing power of Zam-buk which, despite the long-standing nature of the disease, effected a cure! How much more easily and more quickly the cure could have been effected had Zam-buk been applied at the outset.

CODE OF THE SEA.

Maritime Law Was Really Cradled in the Island of Rhodes.

The Phoenicians were the first to make long voyages and the first to arm their vessels for war. They readily availed themselves of the advantages of a marine and there-by soon secured an extensive commerce. In time they assumed the empire of the sea, a sovereignty they long continued to enjoy, dur-ing which time they became tyrants of the sea and exercised piracy. They were the first sea pirates known to history.

After the Phoenicians, the Aeginetes and then the Cretans assumed dominion of the sea during various epochs, but it remained for the in-habitants of the island of Rhodes to create, digest, and promulgate the first system of maritime laws of which we have any authentic know-ledge. So great was the success they attained their code has always been referred to as the "cradle of maritime Nevertheless as far back as the reign of King Hammurabi, who was a contemporary of Abraham, 2,250 years before Christ, we find in the Code of Hammurabi numerous sec-tions which fix the obligations arising under contracts for boat building tine or charter of vessels, transportation of goods for hire, collision, etc., and the principles there recognized at the present time as the rule of decision.

The Persians and then the Greeks in turn succeeded the Rhodians as masters of the sea. These two counmasters of the sea. These two countries maintained large fleets of war vessels, called by the ancients as a class "vessels of force," as distinguished from their merchantmen, or "ships of burthen." The great naval battle of Salamis, fought by these countries, in which it is said over 1,500 vessels took part, followed by that of Platea and of Mycale, demonstrated to the Greeks, with the success of their arms, the immeasurable value of sea power. They lost no time and spared no efforts in the creation of a still greater navy and adopted measures they deemed judicious in furthering the interests of ious in furthering the interests of their merchant marine. Among other things, they established a special jurisdiction of Athens, to pass upon maritime transactions.

Richter and His Pets.

Richter and His Pets.

Jean Paul Richter surrounded himself with pets as though they were the necessaries of life. A favorite poodle accompanied him in all his journeyings and must not be excluded from any house where he entered. "Love me, love my dog." His birds hopped over the page on which he was writing, he waiting the while with suspended pen and continuing patience until they should pass. A tame squirrel sat upon his shoulder in his walks about town, and once, at the christening of a friend's child, where Jean Paul was to stand godfather, having forgotten to stand godfather, having forgotten to leave the creature behind, he was obliged to put it in his pocket and with difficulty prevented its escape with his left, while with his right hand and arm he held the babe.

VALUE OF HONEY.

This Article of Food Should Be Used Freely.

The food value of honey is not generally comprehended. In fact, honey, as a rule, is regarded merely as a pleasant sirup to be used upon griddle cakes and certain other dishes, whereas it is really a nourishing food as well as a sweetening and should be given freely to children spread upon bread. It is much purer and more wholesome than many of the so called jellies of commerce.

In cooking, too, honey often can be substituted for sugar. For example, a rhubarb betty is greatly improved by the use of honey instead of sugar for sweetening. The dessert is made in the usual way-first the breadcrumbs, then a layer of short lengths of rhubarb, covered with honey and a sprinkling of cinnamon, repeating the layers until the dish is filled. Butter is dotted on the top and the pudding baked in the oven for thirty minutes.

Apples baked in honey furnish a dish that is both novel and delicious. The apples are cored and placed in a pan with a lump of butter in each cavity. A cup of honey then is poured over them and the pan put in a slow oven, the apples cooking until they are tender.

A rhubarb sauce made with honey instead of sugar and mixed with cornstarch made with water instead of milk is a very palatable dessert. mixture should be put in individual molds, and when turned out each portion should be served with a teaspoonful of honey added.

Some persons contend that honey added to a pot of beans before baking is a great improvement over the usual quantity of molasses. It certainly gives a very delicate flavor to sweet potatoes in reheating them. The potatoes can be sliced or cut lengthwise in fingers. Each slice or finger is dipped in honey and laid on a buttered pan. Butter is dotted generously over the top, and the dish is placed in the oven and kept there until the potatoes are brown. Only those who have eaten sweet potatoes prepared in this way can fully appreciate them. A sprinkling of pepper and salt may be added before serving if this seasoning is favored.

As a luncheon dish that is somewhat substantial as well as dainty, cut slices of whole wheat bread a day or more old and spread lightly with fresh cream cheese. Add a layer of honey and place the slices together, sandwich fashion.

In making candles or popcorn balls, honey may be substituted for sugar or molasses. The flavor will be found much more delicate.

A spoonful of honey will soothe a sore throat, and if mixed with lemon juice will probably cure a mild case.

It is not difficult to obtain pure honey, but the safest plan is to buy it in the small boxes that hold a pound each. The honey habit, once acquired, is not likely to be abandoned.

NORTH HOLLAND IN WINTER. Skating Is Business There, and the

In the north of Holland, writes Temple Manning in the Indianapolis

Star, I saw the serious side of skating, the side that is not an idle art, but a practical business.
The very first thing the tiny Frisian learns after he acquires the ability to toddle around is how to skate. If he wasn't an expert he would be seriously handicapped all the rest of his life, for the country is a network of waterways, and when they freeze over all business is done on their slippery bosoms. To the Frisian it is second nature to skate. To him it is a delight as well as a necessity, and he is more at home or skates than he is on a good earth road If you ask a Frisian which season he likes best, summer or winter, he will answer "winter." In summer he finds it harder to pole or pull his boat through the waters of the canals than in winter to push a sledge along while he follows on his skates. To him the canal is his road.

The first oddity that struck me when I came into this land of skating de-lights was that the skaters did not wear shoes. They strapped their skates to their feet over very heavy socks that kept out the cold. They laughed at me when I went skating with my skates clamped to leather boots. They could not understand how on earth I could skate freely and gracefully. As a matter of fact I am far from being a graceful skater, but the Frisians were too polite to laugh at my clumsiness, attributing it entirely to my

Of course I went to Friesland with preconceived notions of what the country would look like, but the charm of the reality was far beyond my imagination. It seemed to be a land of ice and snow that was not unhappily cold -rather the frigid element seemed to be a completing touch of perfection. I have never seen Friesland in summer, but I cannot imagine it separated from its frozen waterways and its picturesque skaters.

Were I to epitomize Friesland in a single description I would picture it as a sheet of ice flowing between two banks that glitter with snow, and in the center I would place a milkman pushing a sledge filled with cans before him, as he skated whistling mer-rily behind. And behind him I would draw a bevy of boys and girls skylarking on skates.

HUMAN CREDULITY.

Millions Are Taken Every Year From the Gullible by Sharpers.

Human credulity passes all limitations. Before me lies a newspaper story from Chicago: A man was on the way to a savings bank to deposit $145. Two smiling strangers met him, fooled him with the story that they had "a magic handkerchief" which would double the stranger's money if he would fold his bank bills within it. After the operation the strangers told him to watch the handkerchief and see his money grow. They disappeared. They had his money and the handkerchief contained waste paper. Does this sound impossible?

Here is another story, even more improbable, but true. In New York a company appropriating the name of a well known corporation advertised to sell its shares at a bargain, and fixed a price that was just twice the stock market price. A circular was sent to the Italian quarter intimating that a great opportunity was presented for workingmen to secure an interest in a wonderfully prosperous railway, that only a few shares could be had and that they must be bought at once. A rush was made for the stock, although every daily paper printed the quotation of the same security at half the price at which the swindlers were offering it.

The police put an end to the game. If people are so credulous is it surprising that the postoffice authorities report that $150,000,000 a year is taken from the gullible by dealers in fake securities? If Wall street did this kind of wretched business it would deserve reprobation .- Leslie's Weekly.

Similiarly, a prize of $10.00 is offered for 20 barrels of apples. In the case of commercial exhibits each display must score 75 points according to the official score card adopted by the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association before prizes will be awarded. Commercia classes are non-competitive, each exhibit coming up to the standard will receive a prize. In addition to the commercial classes liberal prizes are offered for individual exhibits of barrels, boxes and plate exhibits of all the standard varie-of fruits. A section of interest to the housewife is that for preserved fruits, prizes being offered for the different classes of preserved fruits, jams, jellies, etc. In the Honey Department a prize of $20.00 is offered for the Association which puts on a display of 1000 pounds of honey, either comb or extracted, or which puts on a display of 1000 pounds of honey, either comb or extracted, or both, while for individual exhibitors substantial prizes are offered for 250 pounds of white comb honey, 100 pounds of white honey in glass and 50 pounds of beeswax. The Vegetable Department is confined to exhibits fron Associations, a prize of $25.00 being offered for the Association putting on a commercial display of 100 packages of vegetables.

In the Floral Department prizes are being offered for the best collection of five flowering house plants; five ferns; five chrysanthemums; five foliage plants. The prize list on the whole is one which should appeal to every fruit grower in Lambton county as liberal inducements are offered for every fruit grower to compete for the prize money offered.

Brooke Man Has Best Corn in Lambton

David Hayter, of Brooke township, has been awarded the much coveted Hanna trophy for the best four acres of corn in Lambton County. There were nearly one hundred entries in this com-petition, which is carried on annually by the Lambton Corn Growers' Association nearly one nundred entries in this competition, which is carried on annually by the Lambton Corn Growers' Association and is the largest contest of its kind held in Ontario. Beside the Hanna trophy, ten handsome cash prizes were awarded by the Association. Following are the contestants in order of merit:—David Hayter, Brooke township, (Golden Glow), 84 points; C. H. Stevens, Dawn township, (Wisconsin No. 7), 83 points; Thos. Lovell, Brooke township, (Wisconsin No. 7) 82.5 points; John McRae, Sombra township, (Wisconsin No. 7) 80.5 points; J. C. Benner, Brooke township, (Wisconsin No. 7) 80.5 points; J. C. Benner, Brooke township, (Wisconsin No. 7) 80.5 points; J. C. Benner, Brooke township, (Golden Glow), 80 points; Archie Donald, Bosanquet township, (White cap yellow dent) 74.5 points; Robert Currie, Dawn township, (Wisconsin No. 7) 73 5 points; W. J. Foster, Dawn township, (Bailey) 73 points; Robert Armstrong, Sombra township, (Golden Glow), 72.5 points; David Brown, Dawn township, (Early Rose) 72 points.

L. D. Hankinson, of Aylmer, who has just completed the final judging is very enthusiastic over the results of the contest. Comparing the results with last year he finds a marked improvement, both in the interest taken by the competitors and in the improvement manifested in fields judged.

In last year's competition there were very few outstanding fields. In fact, the winning field, grown by Mr. A. E. Wark, scored nearly 20 percent higher than any other field in the contest, while this year the competition was very close, there being only a matter of a few points between the first four or five contest-ants.

Mr. Hayter, of Brooke township, the winner of the trophy, had a splendid field of Golden Glow, being exceptionally well matured and true to type, and it was in this particular score that Mr. Hayter gained the coveted trophy. Mr. Hayter's field was followed closely by several fields of Wisconsin No. 7, but all these fields, while outstanding in regard to cultivation and stand of crop, fell short in the percentage of corn well enough matured to make salable seed enough matured to make salable seed corn.

In discussing varieties suitable for seed corn production in Lambton county Mr. Hankinson believes, judging from his inspection, that the Corn Growers of Lambton County are making a mistake in trying to produce seed from the later eties but should in trying to produce seed from the later maturing varieties, but should rather introduce some earlier strains, such as Golden Glow, early White Cap or the Flint varieties which will give in Lambton County a larger percentage of seed corn every year.

Mr. Hankinson feels that both the Hon. W. J Hanna and the Corn Growers are to be congratulated on the improvement in the seed corn industry brought about by the offering of this trophy and states that with the introduction of purer strains of corn and the excellent conditions that exist in the County there is no reason why Lambton should not be among the foremost seed corn sections of Ontario. of Ontario.

Scott Act Vote for Lambton Next Year

Petrolea, Oct. 4.—By a unanimous vote the temperance forces of the County of Lambton, in session at Victoria hall here to-day, decided to organize for a Canada Temperance Act vote early next year. Every municipality in the county was represented at a meeting to-day and considerable enthusiasm was evidenced. Addresses were delivered by Rev. B. Spence, of Toronto; Mr. Joseph Gibson, of Ingersoll; Mr. A. T. Cooper, of Clinton, and Mr. H. J. Pettypiece, of Forest. The following resolutions were passed: That this county convention express its approval of the proposed action of the Ontario License Commission to close all bars at 7 p.m.

Ontario License Commission to close all bars at 7 p.m.

That this county convention proceeds to organize for the purpose of taking a Canada Temperance Act vote at the earliest practicable time.

A third resolution expressed the conviction of the Lambton temperance forces that nothing short of the closing of every bar, shop and club bar, at least during the war, would meet the situation in Ontario.

in Ontario.

The executive of the Lambton temperance forces was empowered to organize the county for an immediate Scott Act campaign, and it is likely that the vote will be taken in May or June of next

The passing of the act in the county would affect the following municipalities and licenses; Sombra Township, three licenses; Courtright, one; Petrolea, five tavern and one shop; Thedford, two; Watford, three; Alvinston, three; Oil Scritters true at trade of 21 licenses Springs, two; a total of 21 licenses. Sparling-Frost

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Frost, John St., Forest, was the scene of a happy event, Wednesday, Sept. 29th, when their daughter, Gertrude Verona, was united in Hymen's bonds with Norman R. Sparling of Plympton, the Rev. A. E. Moorehouse officiating. The bride who was unattended, wore a rich ivory satın gown, and bridal veil. Immediate satin gown, and bridal veil. Immediate relatives, and Miss Elsie McPherson, Forest, who played the wedding march, were the only guests. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace and gift to the bride was a pearl necklace and to Miss McPherson a pearl brooch. The happy couple were driven by auto to Sarnia that evening, leaving from there by G.T.R. for Hamilton and Toronto where they will spend their honeymoon. the bride travelling in a navy blue tailored suit, with black and white hat. On returning they will take up housekeeping at the Sparling homustead, 12th con. of Plympton.

Armstrong—Ansley

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ansley, Medicine Hat, on Sept. 22nd, when their only daughter, Sarah Alberta, became the bride of Edward H. Armstrong, of Herbert, Sask. The bridal party entered the parlor to the strains of the wedding bells march played by Mrs. Earl Ansley. The bride looked charming in a dress of brown velvet and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations and maiden hair fern. The ceremony was performed pink and white carnations and maiden hair fern. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Hodgins, in the presence of a few of the relatives and friends of the contracting parties. After the ceremony the guests retired to the diningroom where a wedding dinner had been prepared. The happy couple left on the train for their home in Herbert, Sask., and have the best wishes of their many friends.

An early and severe winter is predicted by those who have been reading the signs in the corn husks and in the early migration of birds.

SENORITA MOLINA

A Story of the Cuban Revolution

By ESTHER VANDEVEER ****************

While the revolution that brought independence to Cuba was brewing the government of Spain through the governor of the island used every effort to secure the adhesion of prominent Cubans, Among those whom it was deemed desirable to win over was a lawyer named Enrique Fernandez, who was becoming prominent in his profession. One Jose Molina was summon ed one day before Captain General Weyler and ordered either to win Fernandez by argument or bribery or force. Weyler at the time had unlimited power, and his orders were not to be disobeved.

Molina was an elderly man and the father of a family of children, one of whom, Rosa, was grown. Fernandez was about thirty years old and unmarried. Molina invited Fernandez to his house that he might have an opportunity to persuade him to align himself on the side of the Spanish government. Fernandez accepted the invitation, listened to his host's arguments, but was unconvinced.

Molina noticed that Fernandez cas admiring eyes on Senorita Rosa, and it occurred to him that what he himself could not accomplish by argument his daughter might bring about by persuasion. The father therefore h a private interview with her, at which he said:

"My child, I have been ordered by the captain general to bring Senor Fernandez to the support of the Spanish cause either by argument or force. I have tried the former and failed. The latter course remains. I must tell my guest that the Spanish governmen demands his adhesion or his life. At times a woman may accomplish by persuasion what a man cannot effect by argument. If you could win over Senor Fernandez you might save his life. "But, father," asked Rosa, "why are you obliged to do this work?"

"General Weyler is an autocrat in Cuba. He may send me to prison or to death, whichever he chooses."

The girl paled. She did not speak for some time. Then she said: "Do you wish me to win Senor Fer nandez's adhesion to the crown by first winning his love?" "I do not. I would rather suffer than have you do anything dishonorable." Again there was a silence, at the end of which Rosa threw her arms about her father's neck and assured him that she would do anything honorable to save him from the consequences of

What made this duty odious to Rosa Molina was that she was heart and soul for the cause of Cuba. One morning she sat on the veranda of her home with Fernandez and began to reason with him why he should embrace the cause of Spain. He listened to her while she spoke hesitatingly and without animation, and when she came to a halt he said: "Tell me the truth. Your heart is not with Spain; it is with Cuba. There is some reason why you are endeavor-ing to win me to a cause with which you do not sympathize yourself." Rosa did not dare tell him what he wished to know. If she should do so he might betake himself beyond her father's reach, and the latter would have to suffer for his failure. She would not tell an untruth. Rising from her seat, she went into the house, leaving Fernandez wondering what all this meant.

Senorita Molina sought her father and told him that she had tried to influence Fernandez, but had failed be cause she was unfitted to plead a cause to which she was bitterly opposed. Molina sighed, but the sigh was his only reply. Rosa was much troubled. She asked him many questions If he reported a failure to the governor would be be imprisoned? What would be her next move in respect to Fernandez? What did General Weyler mean by using force to secure the latter's adhesion? She received no reply. Whether her father was himself uncertain in regard to these matters she did not know. The only information she received was that either her fa ther or Fernandez must suffer.

Rosa left her father to shut herself up in her room that she might form some plan of action. Would it not be best for her to tell Fernandez of the situation and trust to him to find some way to save her father? This would be trusting too much to a man whom she had known but a short while. If he should take himself off to the revolutionists Rosa would feel that she had Fernandez, who suspected the source of this pressure which had been brought to bear upon him, would have departed had he not been interested in these persons who he believed were made the unwilling tools of the Spanish government. More than this, he was powerfully drawn toward Rosa. It occurred to him to pretend to be uncertain as to which cause he would espouse in order that he might gain time for observation in the hope that he would be able to solve the mystery. So long as there was any hope of a willing surrender there was no reason to use force, and day after day passed with no change in the situation.

Meanwhile the attorney was falling in love with Rosa Molina. Neverthe less he could see no evidence that she regarded him in the same light. For some reason unknown to him she eemed to look upon him with a sort of dread. One day he said to her:

"Senorita, you and your father have some interest in wishing me to support the Spanish government. To convince you that you can safely confide in me I will tell you something which you do not suspect. I love you. Tell me the source of your efforts to convert me to a cause that you not approve. I swear to you not only on the honor of a gentleman, but as one who loves you, that I will not betray you that if either you or your father or I must suffer it shall be I."

Rosa at this avowal gave a quick gasp, and an expression of pain crossed her face.

"You have only added to the complication that besets us all," she said. "If I could assure you that your love was returned it might simplify matters, for we might then come to a mutual understanding. As it is, to tell you what threatens us would be to invite a sacrifice on your part without being able to reward you for making it. If you have seen anything in me warrant your avowal you have been mistaken.'

"I have seen nothing to warrant an avowal, and I am not surprised to receive an unfavorable response. I have made my confession that you may understand that you have nothing to fear from me-that my life is at your serv-

Naturally these words had a powerful effect upon Rosa Molina. She fixed her gaze on the speaker with an expression that it was difficult for him to interpret. It seemed to be a mingling of awe and reverence. But there was no love in it. After thus looking intently at him for a few moments she said:

"Leave me to think over all this. So many strange things have followed ipon one another so closely that I am bewildered."

Meanwhile Senor Molina was acting irrespective of anything that was taking place between these two. Weyler had become impatient and given him a definite and imperative order. One morning Molina summoned Fernandez into his private room and said to him: "Senor, the government demands your influence and your efforts to assist in putting down this rebellion against the authority of the king of Spain.

"And what if I refuse?" "You will pass into the hands of the governor general. I cannot answer for your life.' "You can answer for my death, Those who go into General Weyler's parlors never come out. You have my dependence! With this Fernandez turned to leave the apartment. Molina stopped him. "You cannot leave this house."

reply. Long live Cuba and Cuban in-

'Why not?" "It is surrounded by Spanish soldiers."

Fernandez paused. He had been has ty in giving a definite answer. "Am I to be taken from here immediately?" he asked.

"Unless you recall your reply." "Give me time." "My instructions are to require an answer within twenty-four hours." "Very well. Before tomorrow noon I will choose between life for Spain or death for Cuba."

. . . . The Spanish fleet had been destroyed. Santiago had fallen. Cuban independence had been achieved. Sufficient time had elapsed for the Pearl of the Antilles to become the pearl of her own people. Enrique Fernandez was now a judge on the bench. Quite often it was his duty to pass upon a matter arising from the antagonism existing between Cuban liberators and Spanish adherents during the revolution. man whose hair was prematurely white was brought before the judge on a charge of having legally executed a man by order of the king of Spain. The culprit was supported by his daughter, who was doing all in her power to encourage him. "Jose Molina," said the judge, "do you remember me?"

"I do."
"When last we met you demanded my support of the Spanish cause or my life. I was given a day in which to arrive at a final decision. The decision was not given, for that night I escaped from your house. You were only partly to blame for these acts of tyranny, for you were the unwilling tool of the tyrant. You gave me my choice between Spain and death, and yet I am under a great obligation to you, not to you directly, but through a member of your family."

The prisoner stood waiting for the judge to explain.

"It is to your daughter that you owe the life that I am about to give you, for it was she who provided for me the means of escape from your home What I owe to her I give to you. Go free. We have had enough of these reprisals since the revolution. I will hear no more of them."

Then, turning to Rosa Molina, the judge continued: "Seporita I once offered to give my life to solve a problem that distressed you. You repaid me by giving me a freedom which enabled me to fight for Cuba. If I had a hundred lives with which to repay this debt I would give them all to you."

As Senorita Molina led her father out of the courtroom she turned and looked at the judge. What was in that look he understood, for not long afterward when she and her fathe had returned to her home a wedding was celebrated there, Judge Fernan dez being the groom and Senorita Mo-

•••••••••• NECKWEAR NOTES.

Neckwear always has a fascination notwithstanding that a woman may possess dozens of collars, fichus or jabots. Among the newest effects is the double decker collar of organdie made in the Quaker or cavalier style and finished with broad revers. The latter breaks the broad line across the shoulders and offers a chance for hand embroideries or a tiny lace frill edging.

For the slender girl there is a collar fashioned on the lines of a baby's bib, rather small and round and fastened down the back with small buttons. This collar has the semblance of an impromptu yoke and in many instances gives just the needed touch of freshness to a taffeta or linen frock.

For the athletic girl there are sport stocks of plaited batiste, combined with folds of handkerchief linen. These in a way take the place of the old time Ascot and four-in-hand. They are worn with linen or silk shirt *****

Accessories

The latest novelties in artificial flowers are those in tinsel tissue and the huge transparent ones in white gauze with each petal modeled and outlined with a firm, invisible wire incased in the twining at the edge. A cluster of yellowish pistils represents the heart. Butterflies are treated in a similar artistic way.

Dainty sachets are edged with light ouffings in green gauze. The embroidered center is also shaded with a veiling of green gauze.

A coatee of taffeta or chiffon is an appropriate accompaniment to the summer dress of voile. The newest silk purse bags have no tassel at the bottom.

A TURK AND A TELEPHONE

The Grand Vizier Looked on the New Scheme as an Evil One.

Long years ago, before the Young Turk party was born or thought of, the present writer was intrusted with negotiations for the issue of a "firman" (concession) permitting the installation of the public telephone in Constantinople, says a contributor to the London Chronicle. Said the then grand vizier, "This talking machine of which you speak, can it be placed any where?"

"Anywhere, highness," Then followed an exhaustive explanation of the conveniences of the system and the advantages certain to attend establishment of telephone communication between his highness' private residence and the imperial pal

"I think I understand; correct me if am wrong," said his highness. "It is night. I am fast asleep. Suddenly, my slumbers are disturbed by the ringing of a bell within a few inches of my head. Is that so?"

"That is so, your highness." "I rouse myself. I take a part of the machine in my hand and hold it to my ear. I recognize a voice from Yildiz.'

"Exactly, your highness." "Exactly. The voice tells me to proceed at once to the palace, as his majesty wishes to see me immedi ately." "Your highness' grasp of the procedure is wonderful!"

"That would happen every night. I should never have a moment's sleep. I suffer quite enough from the palace as it is. Take the thing away. It is an invention of the evil one, and I will have nothing to do with it."

They have a telephone system now in Constantinople. But it took over twenty years to establish it, and it is more than probable that the view entertained by the average Turk with regard to its merit does not materially differ from that expressed by his highness, the grand vizier.

DEEP SEA LIFE.

Why It Cannot Exist Much Below the Four Mile Level.

In the American Magazine Cleveland Moffett describes the discoveries made by scientists who aboard the steamer Albatross fish all over the globe at a depth of three or four miles and bring up specimens for museums. Dr. Austin H. Clark of the Washington National museum, was the scientist in charge of this interesting vessel during one of her recent cruises in the Pacific. In the following extract taken from his article Mr. Moffett reports a conversation that he had with Dr. Clark: "I inquired how far down in the ocean life is found, and the scientist replied that while sour ings have been taken to a depth of six miles no traces of life have been found much below the four mile level, and occanographers believe that at the bottom of the great ocean abyss, say at the five or six mile levels, no life exists or can exist. "Because of the immense pressure?"

"No because of the lack of food You might think that food would sink to the bottom, since some of the deepest areas are near the shores, notably north of the West Indies, east of Japan, south of Newfoundland and, deepest of all, east of the island of Guam. Undoubtedly there is an abundant food supply on the surface of the ocean at these points, yet none of it in sinking will reach the bottom for the reason that whatever is not devoured on its way down by creatures of the sea will be dissolved in the lower levels, where the solubility of water is greatly increased, owing to the increased pressure. Not only is it believed that practically all animal and vegetable matter is dissolved at a depth of five or six miles, but the softer bones of animals are probably dissolved, leaving only the very hardest ones to reach the bottom. Thus the trawl nets bring up from great depth sharks' teeth and the ear bones of whales, which are extremely hard, but very rarely other bones.

Transparent hems are very popular, but so are the applied hems of colored materials which appear on many of the plain white frocks of handkerchief linen, batiste, voile, swiss, lawn, organdie and net. All sorts of tricks are done with these hems. Some are cut out in a Wall of Troy or Greek key design, while others are of conventional pat-terns in floral and cubist de-tier than a girlish frock of white net with an applied hem of pink organdie cut to represent a garland of wild roses? The edge of each petal and leaf is buttonhole stitched with pink thread, and this delicate form of trimming is repeated about the neck line and on the sleeves. Wild roses are not the only favored flowers used for the applied hems, for another exquisite frock of white batiste has yellow tulips growing in graduated heights from the hem to form a border. Festoons of pink roses are draped and caught with pale blue bowknots about the hem of a white frock of handkerchief linen.

With a leghorn hat wreathed with roses and tied beneath the chin with blue ribbon streamers to complete this picture in pastel coloring the girl of 1915 would be a ravishing vision of summer loveliness.

WIGS FOR OPERA STARS.

They Are Large and Costly and Diff-cult to Adjust Properly.

The largest and longest wigs made for the market are made for the operatic stage, and the largest, of these are made for Wagnerian parts. Most actresses play in their own hair, supplemented by a switch, but in opera any singer would look absurd if she sang a role in her own hair. Much of the effect of heroic size and stateliness that operatic singers get is due to their luxuriant tresses. They Are Large and Costly and Diffi-

Operatic wigs, even the most beau-tiful, do not cost more than $350 or $400, because they are made of short hair. It is the long hair which is made up into wigs and switches for private personages that costs. Out of each head of hair that the wigof each nead of hair that the wig-maker buys he saves the longest hairs (about one-sixth of each head) for his private trade. One switch may be made up of the long hairs of half a dozen heads. If the shade is an uncommon one this makes long switches very expensive.

The operatic wigs are made up of short hair, set into soft linen strings. short hair, set into soft linen strings. Each of these strings is called a strand, and into each thousands of hairs, from a foot to a foot and a half long, are woven. Each strand looks like a very heavily furred tail. Some wigs are made up of eight or ten strands, and some of the largest have as many as twenty. have as many as twenty.

The more hair of her own the

The more hair of her own the singer has the harder she finds it to make her wig look natural. She first braids her own hair tightly and winds it about her head. Over this she winds cotton gauze—surgical gauze—bringing it low about eal gauze—bringing it low about her forchead. When she puts on the wig she pins it firmly through the gauze into her own hair, then brings the face locks of the wig down and pins them to the low bandage that comes about her forchead and behind her cars. No matter how wild comes about her forehead and behind her ears. No matter how wild a scene she is called upon to enact, the hair about her face does not become disarranged. The strands of the long wig behind, being made up as they are of short hair, do not become tangled. They divide beautifully and smoothly. The singer can bring a long curl over her shoulder, or one over cach shoulder. If the or one over cach shoulder. If the wigs were made of long hair as they look to be, the hair would tangle terribly, and at the end of a dramatic scene the singer's locks would be an untidy mess.—Every Week.

Religion in Holland.

The following incident was told by Lecky in somewhat whimsical illus-tration of his belief that if religion were to die out of all other European nations it would still survive in Holland: A Dutch peasant was in sore straits about the impossibility of making his hens observe Sunday. He came to his pastor with a present of eggs. He regretted, he said, that he could not prevent his hens from laying these on the Sabbath, but he made what amends he could by giving them to God's minister that they might be handed over to the poor and infirm.—"Old and Odd Memories." "That's queer talk for a man about to be married."

The Iron Crown of Italy.

Napoleon in 1805 was crowned king of Italy at Milan, and with his own hands placed the ancient iron crown of Lombardy on his head. This most famous crown of Europe is so called from a narrow band of iron, miraculously preserved from rust, attached to the inner circumference of the circlet. It is composed of Jewels and embossed gold, the workmanship of which bears strange resemblance to that on the enameled gold orna-ment belonging to King Alfred which was found in Somerset and is now preserved in the Ashmolean museum at Oxford.—Westminster Gazette.

Wild Animals in Borneo.

A peculiar feature of Borneo is that it is practically an immense game preserve. The white inhabit game preserve. The white inhabitants are government officials, planters, and business men and have neither time nor inclination to do any hunting. The result is that the game with which the country abounds is rarely disturbed. Elephants and rhinoceroses are so plentiful that they are a misance to rubtiful that they are a nuisance to rub-ber and cocoanut estates by destroy-ing young trees.

A Letter From Glen Nichol

The following letter from Pte. W. G. Nichol to his friend, P. J. Dodds, will be found interesting to his numerous friends in this vicinity:—

"The Translate "I Sent 8th 1015" "The Trenches," Sept. 8th, 1915.

DEAR PETER—Vou are no doubt won-dering why I have not written to you oftener, but really there is so little we can put in black and white that it really seems impossible to find news at all. Otcourse exciting incidents very often take place which have a tendency to break the monotony for us but we are forbidden place, which have a tendency to break the monotony for us but we are forbidden to relate them. At present we are in the trenches but will make our exit this evening for a few days' recuperation and to enjoy the pleasure of a much needed rest—six days I believe. The weather during the past week has been ideal, but that of the week previous was very rainy. The trenches are dry which makes it easy to move around and also more pleasant. Heavy bombardment has been much in evidence this and last month and is still going on.

Oh, we certainly get a variety all right—even in the brand of lice, This morning I have taken the lives of three different breeds, but hesitate in stating the number of each kind. I'm not alone in my troubles, "we'er all doing the same."

Had the pleasure of meeting F. Yerkes, one of the Potter boys, of Watford, and a number from Petrolea, while convalescent in England. Not many of the bone who left Watford are with us now.

valescent in England. Not many of the boys who left Watford are with us now, of course a few are still in England, not of course a few are still in England, not having fully recovered from their wounds as yet. Those of us here are Sgt. F. C. C. Newell, Cpl. Welch, Cpl. Cunningham Pte. Hec Johnson and myself with this company, Robt. Bally with No. 4 conpany, M. Blundell with the machine gun and Fred Phelps with the Divisional Train. A very different bunch from that which left Watford slightly over a year $800.

Those of us here are well and making the best of things, and looking forward to the pleasure of once more returning to our native land after we have done our best by King and country. I receive the 'Guide regularly and, believe me, everyone awaits its arrival too. I thank them for same as it is like a letter from home.
Lieut. Stapleford arrived o. k, and we were all glad indeed to learn of his safe journey home. He certainly deserved a journey home. He certainly deserved a good reception as he acted nobly while here and he deserves the utmost praise. He was wounded just a moment before the charge took place but he never faltered, rallied his men and led them over the parapet. We are very much worried concerning Capt. Swift as we have had no word pertaining to his whereabouts, but sincerely pray that he is still alive and recovering from his wounds. No praise can be too high for him, also, we have every hope of his being a prisoner.

Must now bring this letter to a close, but perhaps will have time to write in the near future. Give our best regards to our friends.

MONDAY was a beautiful day for a holiday and everyone who possibly could enjoyed the day out of doors. Almost everyone owning a car went away from town and the railway carried quite a few people to Port Huron, Sarnia and London. In the afternoon the baseball game was a big attraction and a large number of people came here by autofrom neighboring towns. After the game the main street presented a lively appearance and it is said that over forty cars were in sight at one time.
