LISBETH'S LESSON.

By Lester Rose.

Lisbeth straightened up with a sigh and wriggled her fingers, bent almost most distorted by constant work with the needle. The sharp-eyed forewoman hurried toward her.

"So you have it done at last?" she asked. "Was beginning to think that you never would get it done."

"I hurried all I could," said Lisbeth impatiently. "There is an awful lot of stitches in that dress, Miss Brady."

"All the more need for working quickly," snapped the forewoman. "Mrs. Cryder has telephoned three times since four o'clock."

As she spoke she was rapidly examining the work, but even her critical glance could not discover any defect, and with a last deft touch she shook out the heavy folds and prepared it for packing, while Lisbeth hurried off to the little parlour, by courtesy termed a dressing room, and exchanged a few working clothes for the neat street dress.

She made what speed she could, for Corny Hanson was coming to take her to a dance, and she must have time to prim herself before she could make her appearance in the evening dress. She had reached the door when Miss Brady's shrill voice arrested her.

"You'll have to take this home," she declared. "I told Sally to wait for it, but here she's gone. I suppose she'll turn up in the morning and declare that she never heard me. That girl is the daughter of Ananias."

Miss Brady extracted the parcel and she stuck through her back hair and wrote an address on the box; then she searched her pocketbook for a time. Something in Lisbeth's face caught her attention.

"The erry if you're going out this evening," she said more kindly. "But you know what Mrs. Cryder is, and if I send it up by her messenger, she'll top to play craps on something. Were you going out?"

Lisbeth nodded. "A friend's going to take me to a dance," she explained simply. "I guess I'll be in that, though."

Miss Brady caught up a box of ribbon from the work table and gave it to the girl.

"Pin that in your hair when you dress," she said kindly. "I'll look against your black ribbon. Your hair'll pop when he sees how fine you are."

"I won't do no good," confided Lisbeth. "He did pop. I don't want to marry a man who can't make a home for me. I'd have to keep on working if I married Tom."

"There's worse things than work," reminded Miss Brady as she helped Lisbeth through the door with the box.

The ears were crowded with hangers as Lisbeth came out upon the street. Not even the gift of the box lightened the gloom upon her usually pretty face, and as she lunged to a strap and sought to protect the precious box from injury she gave vent to her indignation.

"Mrs. Cryder, for whom the dress was intended, was one of Miss Celestia's best customers. Lisbeth knew her as a good, pale lady, whose dresses were the envy of the whole shop. The girls searched the society columns of the papers for the troubles she specified, that she was a guest and took a half-personal pride in the descriptions of her elaborate costumes.

It was Mrs. Cryder who had given Lisbeth her dislike for the life she led. The girl had once helped Miss Brady

Preacher's Opinions

Rev. P. K. McEneaney, Forth Baidock, O. B.: "I always count it a pleasure to recommend the Dr. Slocum Remedies to my parishioners. I believe there is nothing better for throat and lung troubles or weakness or run-down system. For speaker's sore throat I have found Psychine very beneficial."

Rev. W. H. Stevens, Paisley, Ont.: "Psychine seemed just the stimulant my system needed. I shall add my testimony as to its efficacy at every opportunity."

Rev. R. M. Browne, Amherst Head, N.S.: "I have often recommended Psychine since taking it myself. For it is a cure for the troubles you specify."

Rev. Chas. Stirling, Bath, N.B.: "I have used Psychine in my family; the results were marvelous. I have visited people who state that they never used it equal. I strongly recommend it."

Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, Markdale, Ont.: "I have taken two bottles of Psychine and am pleased to say that I am greatly improved in health. I was troubled with my throat, but now I find it about restored to its normal condition. I find my work very much less taxing. I believe Psychine is all claimed for it."

These are earnest preachers of the gospel of Psychine. They know whereof they speak. Psychine cures all throat, lung and stomach troubles. It is a great voice strengthener, acting directly on the vocal, respiratory and digestive organs, thus specially adapted to public speakers. At all druggists, 50c and $1.00, or Dr. T. A. Slocum, Ltd., Toronto.

England's Late Premier

The following additional particulars of the death of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman were received by cable yesterday afternoon.

In the death chamber when the ex-premier breathed his last were his wife, Mrs. Campbell, who had acted as his personal physician, and the death of Lady Campbell-Bannerman, a little more than a year ago. Dr. Burnes, who was Mr. Campbell-Bannerman's personal physician, and who had been in constant attendance during his long illness, and Sir Henry's latter. The ex-premier had been unconscious most of the time during the last two or three days and his sinking was gradual. A few hours before his death telegrams were dispatched to King Edward, who with Queen Alexandra is visiting the Danish royal family at Copenhagen, the Prince of Wales and his cabinet ministers.

Immediately after the ex-premier's death a crowd assembled in Downing street, but all persons were barred from approaching the house by a cordon of police from Scotland Yard nearby.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's final illness dates from February 1907, when he participated in an entertainment in honor of Emperor William at the Guildhall.

On November 1907, after addressing a political meeting at Bristol he was seriously stricken with heart weakness, and later pneumonia was added to his heart trouble, resulting in his death. The ex-premier fully appreciated his condition and realized that his recovery was impossible. He offered to give up office some time before he finally resigned early this month.

Few invalids have been the object of so much solicitude and attention as was bestowed upon Sir Henry; there having been a constant stream of callers at his Downing street residence, including King Edward, who visited him on two occasions, Queen Alexandra, the Dowager Empress of Russia, the Prince and Princess of Wales and many prominent men in public life.

There will be a funeral service in Westminster Abbey at noon on April 25, attended by representatives of King Edward and Queen Alexandra, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the final interment will occur the following day at Meigle, Perthshire, beside the body of Sir Henry's wife.

Messages of sympathy were arriving all day long from every part of the world. Among the many callers were Whiteley Reid, the American ambassador to the court of St. James, David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, on receiving the news of Sir Henry's death, said:

"I never met a great public figure since I have been in political life who was so completely the attachment and affection of men who came in contact with him."

THE WOMEN'S AUXILIARY MEET AT LUNENBURG.

LUNENBURG, April 22.—A large number of delegates of the women's auxiliary arrived on the train yesterday morning. They were welcomed to the parish by a reception held in St. John's hall in the afternoon. An energetic reception committee introduced the guests to each other and served them with refreshments. Miss Henry, of Liverpool; Mrs. Hebb, and Mr. Haslam furnishing the music. An executive meeting was held in the evening. The opening service of the convention took place in St. John's church, the preacher being the Rev. Mr. Underwood, of Bridgetown. The sermon was based on the text taken from St. Matthew 16 and 42. The congregation was large, the communicants numbering about 120. The following business meeting took place in the afternoon, the address of welcome being given by Mrs. Wallis and responded to by Mrs. Parke of Aylesford. Tonight there will take place a public missionary meeting addressed by his lordship the bishop, and others.

WERE BURNED TO DEATH.

OSMOND, Neb., April 22.—L. K. York, and his son, Earl, were burned to death here yesterday. They were in a hay-stack during a thunder storm. Lightning, which rendered them unconscious, started a fire which rapidly consumed their bodies.

Squall Upset the Boat.

LUNENBURG, April 22.—A very bad accident took place last evening shortly after six o'clock at Lahave, whereby Stephen Hartman, of Middlebury, lost his life by drowning. The young man and his brother Robert worked at Boehner's mill at West Laffave and after work they left for home in their boat. When about half way across the river a squall struck the boat, upsetting it and throwing the occupants into the river. Robert was rescued, but the other poor fellow, his body was recovered about twenty minutes after the accident, he being entangled in the ropes. The young man was of sterling character and regarded as one of the most prominent young men of the settlement. He was 22 years of age, and married to Miss Faney, of Italy Cross. The sympathy of the community is with the bereaved relatives.

Pain, anywhere, can be quickly stopped by one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. Pain always means congestion—unnatural blood pressure. Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets simply congest blood away from pain centers. These Tablets—known by druggists as Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—simply equalize the blood circulation and then pain always disappears in 20 minutes. 50 Tablets 25 cents. A TALL STORY.

A despatch to the Tribune from Boston says: The German freighter Braundels came into port this afternoon from Calcutta after a series of adventures. When the freighter left Calcutta she had aboard four hundred monkeys, a lot of tigers, leopards and snakes and a big cargo of rum and molasses. When about a week out on a stormy night the cargo was blown around breaking open the monkey cages. Before the crew could stop him, the four hundred monkeys were roaming around the decks. They got into the cargo, got drunk on rum and smashed molasses over everything. The crew was powerless and the ship given over to the animals until she was stocked.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 22.—Ballou number ten, of the signal corps of the United States army, which left Washington this afternoon, landed at 2:15 this evening, one mile above Delaware City. The ballou was in charge of Captain C. DeForest Chandler and had as passengers Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Captain Fitz Hughes Lee, and Captain Robert O. Venable. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., sent several messages from Wilmington before leaving. One of these was to his father and the other to his sister, announcing his safe landing. The distance traversed by the ballou was 135 miles.

FRIDAY, April 24th, 1908.

The semi-weekly service which we introduced the first of the year as a venture, is, we regret to find, not proving altogether satisfactory either to our readers or ourselves. Many four old Monitor numbers, to be sure, would like to see the Monitor return to its former size and would be satisfied with a week's news service. For our own part we have not found the extra outlay of time and expense in publishing semi-weekly a profitable feature, therefore we have decided with this issue to continue the Western Annapolis Sentinel as a separate publication. As the publication of the district local news has proved an attractive feature we shall continue this as a feature of the combined papers. Although circumstances may prevent us from carrying out our full intentions in the next issue of the Monitor, it will be our aim as in the past to constantly improve and raise the standard of our paper, and we feel that we can confidently count upon the loyalty and appreciation of which we have had abundant evidence from our subscribers though sometimes put to a rather severe test in the vicissitudes and changes through which the paper has passed during the last two years.

A despatch from Ottawa says E. D. Arnaud, Canadian commissioner in Newfoundland, formerly of Annapolis Royal, reports to the department of trade and commerce that some of the sealing vessels of Newfoundland fleet have arrived in port with good catches. These vessels have been lost through being crushed in the ice, and several had very poor luck. The estimated catch is 130,000 seals, which is 10,000 less than the average.

W. D. McCallum of Truro, accompanied about 26 settlers in all arrived in Halifax on the S. S. Victorian, on Gold Friday, and came on to Truro last night, says the News. These people all intend to buy farms and settle in Nova Scotia. A further account will be published of Mr. McCallum's busy trip through "merrie" England, Scotland and Ireland.

The stock list of the Kentville Rink Co., is growing apace. It is confidently expected that by the first of October next an up-to-date building, for the Nova Scotia Horticultural Exhibition will be ready and by the seventh of that month will contain the finest show of apples ever seen in the province.

Don't growl about your home merchants living in fine houses, when you send away your money to keep up mansions for those who do not know you.

Don't expect your children to earn high salaries, unless you spend your money hard at home and all work to gether in trying to build up your own province.

The Independent Press

NEW YORK, April 22.—There was a notable gathering of editors and publishers at the Waldorf-Astoria tonight, the occasion being a joint banquet of members of the Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' association, both of which organizations are holding their annual meeting in this city. The grand ball-room was filled to the limit of comfort when the 600 diners had found their places.

At the president's table were Messrs. Charles H. Taylor, of the Boston Globe, the toast master; Herman Ridler, editor and publisher of the New York Staats Zeitung and president of the American Publishers' association; F. B. Hayes, of the Chicago Record-Herald, and president of the Associated Press; Senator Knox, Mr. Bryan, Bishop Frederick Burgess, of the Long Island Diocese; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of the Free Synagogue; Patrick Francis Murphy, officials of the two organizations, and others.

"In the name of Frank B. Hayes, the president of the Associated Press, and in behalf of the American Newspaper Publishers' association," said Mr. Ridler, "I bid you all to-night, our guests, a warm and hearty welcome."

Mr. Ridler then explained, jokingly, that he had promised not to make a speech. Accordingly he was obliged to blantly introduce "one of the most distinguished journalists of this country, the editor of the Boston Globe—General Taylor." This gave General Taylor's applause, an opportunity tumultuous applause, an opportunity which have tied Mr. Ridler down in such a way that he could not give me some complimentary praise, for I own to you that I am one of that ordinary sort who would rather have an ounce of taffy while I am alive than a ton of epiptaph after I am dead."

"In a more serious vein, General Taylor replied to the charge that a tinge of commercialism had come into the press in the last quarter of a century. After pointing out that there are eight page papers 25 years ago and 41 for four cents a copy, the tradesman received from 8 to 24 pages for two cents, or even one. He added that there was not a set paper in the country but that was worth two cents.

Rabbi Wise addressed the diners and for half an hour he kept them in rapt attention in a more serious vein. He discussed the influence of the press, saying that he "would venture to say tonight that the man with the greatest power, the man who perhaps does more to shape things in the United States than any other is the manager of the Associated Press."

Mr. Bryan then spoke as follows: "I take this opportunity to express my appreciation of the treatment that has been accorded me. The association has asked me for advance copies of a great many more speeches than I have been able to give it, and in asking for an advance copy it has furnished the best proof that it wanted to treat me with fairness. Through the Associated Press I have been able to get my ideas and my arguments before the readers of republican papers and I have been less concerned about the editorials of republican papers than about the correctness of the news reports.

"It seems to me that this is a good place to present a thought which I believe to be worthy of consideration. The Metropolitan newspaper business is booming more and more a caterpillar. The advertising columns of the big papers are non-political, and where the circulation is large, the readers are so divided politically that the paper is by this very fact restrained from aggressive partisanship.

"Then, too, the owner of a large newspaper is seldom able to do his editorial work and as he must depend upon others to write the paper economic loss and less the representative of the personal opinions of any one."

"As the years go by, and as the circulation and advertising patronage increase, the papers show an increasing inclination towards political independence. In view of this tendency in modern times, it seems to me that the time is ripe for change.

"If the proprietor really wants to reach a non-partisan paper and the people really want to subscribe for a non-partisan paper, why don't the proprietors have it so that the paper may report through its news columns news in favor of both sides? Why should it not employ a representative of each of the parties to furnish editorial material on political questions? Should a paper would apply to an impartial and especially those who are anxious to know both sides of every public question. Is it not an experience worth trying? The co-called independent paper is very apt to become partisan just before the election. THIS IS IT IS SURE TO DISAPPOINT."

THOSE WHO DEFER FROM HIM and who have been subscribers because of the claim of independence. If the proprietor honestly desires to take his paper out of politics and make it purely a newspaper, the partisan plan enables him to carry out his purpose. No paper can be entirely neutral in a campaign and no editorial writer can conceal his own bias when he writes on political subjects. If a man can write equally well on both sides, he cannot write very well on either side. Such an editorial policy would be entirely in harmony with the news service which the Associated Press was organized to give and for that reason I present the suggestion at this banquet."

Senator Knox followed Mr. Bryan with an elaborate speech. After paying a tribute to the press, he said in part: "I venture to remind you of your own great share of responsibility for that public opinion which will either make or mar the greatest republic of the world. Your duty to better the country, and the best ideals of the republic are as great as any one's effort of the law, or even the rebel justice."

"What is true of the judges in the courts of law is true of your judges, who, in your editorial offices, pronounce not the sentence of law, but the equally great sentences of public opinion. The great need of our country today is peace between all interests and confidence in ourselves. With these, the final conviction of the last year will soon pass away, and the American press more than any class of public servants can, by calming popular passion and promoting confidence, bring back again in even greater measure the prosperity of our common country.

"The affirmative and negative powers of the press should be exerted to effect a consistent, harmonious, and cumulative evolution of legislation and administration, upon the fundamental purposes of the republic. The press should lend its influence to strengthen the power of the states in matters and should exercise exclusive control and to strengthen the federal government in matters committed to it exclusively.

Easter Egg Rolling

The egg rolling of Easter Monday at Washington is the most interesting of American Easter practices. The fair is held on the White House grounds, as is well known. Thousands of children are admitted to the broad green sloping lawn to indulge in competitive egg rolling, egg knocking and other games, a scene unrivalled in picturesque and happy interest. This Easter Monday celebration has been emulated in other places in America. In Atlanta, Ga., recently the park commissioners at their own expense procured 10,000 eggs, had them prettily decorated and hid them in one of the city parks, concealing them just sufficiently to give zest to a hunt, to which all the children in the city were invited.

Toronto doctor says that, at least, one hundred babies have been starved to death in that city, during the month of January this year.

The District Division of the Sons of Temperance met with old Colony Division here on the 16th inst. There was a very interesting and profitable meeting held in the afternoon when various matters were discussed pertaining to the good of the order and in connection with the furtherance of temperance generally. In the evening a very enjoyable and profitable public meeting was given by the delegates and others. The hall was well filled and the speeches and the program given were exceedingly good and the influence of these meetings cannot help but have a good and lasting effect in the community where they were held. Old Colony hopes to have a lesson of this kind repeated when the time again is opportune.

An old pineapple grower tells strange stories about the effect of the juice of the fruit upon certain substances. The juice of the pine is supposed to do more for the larva than anything else in the world. Says the grower, "Drop a piece of leather into a glass of pineapple juice, and see how quickly it will be eaten up."

STOWAWAY ON ANnapolis Schooner

ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, April 21.—The Schooner Mercedes, Captain Muesel, arrived at Clementsport, from the West Indies, Saturday, with a queer stowaway in the nature of a young mulatto girl, about twenty years of age. Before leaving the West Indies the ship was carefully searched for stowaways, and it was not until the Mercedes was two days out that the girl was discovered. During the voyage home she acted as laundress to the crew. The question that now presents itself to the ship's owner is what to do with the girl, as the authorities refuse to allow her to land as she has no means of support. The Schooner is not returning to the West Indies, in the event of which she could be returned, but will head for the United States. Therefore the girl will have to remain on board the vessel until some means of returning her to her home presents itself.

The Annapolis Spectator Says:—It is reported that a colony of beavers have established themselves in a brook not far from this town. The Annapolis Royal Branch of a people's Game Association wish to ask any who may lead them to be careful not to disturb them and to report to an officer of the Association any attempt that may be made to trap or otherwise molest them. This interesting animal is becoming very rare, and if this colony becomes established another our town will prove a source of attraction to tourists and others interested in animal life.
