Frederick's Mausoleum.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—Emperor Frederick's magnificent mausoleum was consecrated by the court chaplain, Dr. Kogel, in the presence of the Prussian royal family and a number of princely relatives. The mausoleum is a rotunda of Silesian sandstone, roofed with copper. The chapel is an exact reproduction of Von Paprion's beautiful building at Junichen in the Tyrol. It contains a copy of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem under a canopy supported by six pillars.

The Salvation Army vs. the State Church.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Daily News, commenting on the grand scheme for the regeneration of the world proposed by General Booth, confesses that nothing can be done for the souls of the millions until something is done for their bodies. "This scheme," it says, "is one of the most remarkable productions of the age, and deserves to be allowed a fair trial. We are forced to the conclusion that as far as the lapsed masses are concerned, the gospel of Christianity has lost in our day its power and charm. When we consider her vast resources, Booth's project puts the State Church in a very disagreeable position."

Rifled Guns vs. Protests.

ZANZIBAR, Oct. 20.—Advices received here by British vessels which have arrived from the Zambesi River state that the British gunboats entered the river Oct. 8, despite the protests of the Portuguese authorities. In their company was a steamer belonging to the British African Lakes Company, which had in tow a flotilla of lighters and canoes, laden with stores and munitions of war. The entire native population lined the banks of the river, shouting, dancing and clapping their hands. The Portuguese made a verbal protest against the gunboats entering the river.

The Governor of Montzamlique has notified the Portuguese Government that the British have occupied Mutassa and Dea. The Governor states that the invasion of the Portuguese, State of Manica, occurred before Governor Sousa was summoned by the King to form a cabinet, and that if anybody is responsible for the invasion it is Sen Ferrari.

Storm and Fog—Many Casualties.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The storm that prevailed along the North British coasts Saturday was followed by a dense fog. Vice-Admiral Sir Michael Seymour and the 240 officers and men belonging to the British fleet who were left on shore at Scarborough Saturday morning when the squadron put to sea to escape being blown ashore, made an attempt to rejoin their vessels this morning. The heavy sea had gone down, but the fog was so thick it was impossible to find the vessels, and the boats returned to the town. When the fleet ran out to sea the gunboat Speedwell had only one officer on board. Shortly after noon to-day the fog lifted and the fleet having returned the Vice-Admiral was taken on board the Camperdown. Here it was found that while slipping the anchor Saturday the cable had given way and severely injured thirteen of the crew, their legs and arms and ribs being broken. Three other vessels belonging to the fleet have signaled that fatal accidents occurred on board of them during the storm.

"How Not to Do It."

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Mr. J. Tuke, the good old Quaker who helped administer the famine funds in Ireland in 1846-48 and in 1879-80, has communicated to the Times the results of his recent inquiries. He is confident that there is no danger of a general famine and apprehensive that evil may follow the indiscriminate distribution of money from America or England, but in certain districts of Donegal, Mayo, Galway, Kerry and Cork, the Government will have to interfere actively, provide work for the people, and use every means in its power to avert or minimize distress. But this is precisely what is not being done. Not one of the much-vaunted public works promised by the Government has yet been commenced, and some of the districts enumerated by Mr. Tuke have not been included in the official schemes. Mr. Balfour says he has received many exhaustive reports, but he has not yet acted upon them, and Dublin Castle will for the first time in its history belie its evil repute if it does not blunder atrociously in this matter. Even Mr. Tuke is evidently uneasy on this point. While exhorting the Government to do its duty he expresses the opinion that after December there may be opportunities for the exercise of private charity, and suggests as two methods of meeting the distress the supply of wheaten flour, Indian meal and potatoes at market prices in the congested districts and the assurance that "from one source or other" a supply of the best seed potatoes and oats shall be forthcoming.

A Honeymoon Expedient.

Mrs. Nouveau-Marie—What's the trouble now, Mary?

Mary—Sure an' there's thrubble enough, mem. Here we do be with company for tay, an' nary a bit o' bread in the house.

Mrs. Nouveau-Marie—Oh, well, never mind. Make some toast.

A Four-Thousand-Pound Cheese.

At the cheese factory in East Otto last Thursday there was put in the hoop the biggest cheese ever made in this region, and probably the largest ever made in the United States. It measures 5 feet in diameter and is 39 inches high. Its weight when cured will be 4,000 pounds, and fully 38,000 pounds of milk was used in its manufacture. The abundant pasturage made the September milk unusually rich, so this huge cheese is expected to be of prime quality. About four weeks will be required to cure it thoroughly. This record breaker was made for a grocery house of Cincinnati, who are about to occupy a large new building. It is wanted as an attraction for the opening.—[Buffalo Commercial.

The townships of Aldborough, Dunwich and Southwold are fully organized, and have each held conventions during the year. Rev. W. H. Claris read a paper on "The best methods of conducting quarterly reviews. Rev. R. D. Hamilton, of Fingal, Superintendent Hatch, of Corinth, and others freely expressed themselves on the subject. BAPTISTS IN COUNCIL.

The College Question Discussed — A Vote of Censure Rejected.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 20.—The Baptist Convention devoted its Saturday sessions to educational matters. Hon. John Dryden presented the report of the Board of Governers of McMaster University. Then Rev. R. G. Boville moved an amendment rebuking the Board for taking the foundation of McMaster University into its own hands, which brought on an interesting debate over the whole question.

Rev. Alex Grant bade the convention farewell, putting in a last word or two as to the great need of the mission field in Manitoba and the Territories. A telegram of greeting was received from the Michigan Baptist Convention.

The annual report of the Board of Governors of McMaster University referred to the faithful labors of Prof. McGregor, expressing sincere regret at his death. The retirement of Dr. Malcolm MacVicar from the chancellorship and Theological Chair was reported and credit given him for the founding of Moulton College and the conception and putting well on the road to success of the Arts University, in connection with Toronto Baptist College. These two losses were speedily followed by the death of Rev. Dr. Castle, who had done so much to build up Toronto Baptist College. It had been impossible at this time to fill all the positions vacated, so the board did nothing but fill the empty professorial chairs. The report recounted the recent changes made in the staff of the college. During the year 1889-90 Toronto Baptist College had 32 students and 13 graduates. Woodstock College had 151 students and Moulton College 144 pupils.

The Treasurer's report showed general receipts were: McMaster estate, $41,293; interest on old endowment, $5,629. There was a deficit at each of the colleges as follows: Toronto Baptist College, $16,603; Woodstock College, $12,112; Moulton College, $3,346; a total deficit of $33,838. This was met by the general receipts and a credit balance left of $10,035. There were debt balances in the ministerial education fund for 1888-89 ($257), capital account ($18,731) and in the last annual statement ($12,562). Credit balances were shown by ministerial education fund for 1889-90 ($541) and the suspense account ($16,024). This left a general debt balance of $4,900.

In moving the adoption of the report Hon. Mr. Dryden explained that the report contained merely the result of the labors of the Board of Governors. They had not, of course, always seen eye to eye, and these conclusions were reached after much debate and arduous labor. Woodstock College had done much excellent work, and now the university was preparing to take a creditable place in the country. Some had thought they had not looked sufficiently to the theological department, but he would say that in his opinion the theological department was their great work. (Applause.) Still he believed that what had been done in the arts department and in Woodstock College would greatly benefit the Theological College. What they needed now was unity. The Baptists had at this time in the country a splendid opportunity to build up a mighty educational power, but they must stand firmly together and the results would be most creditable to the denomination.

Mr. A. A. Ayre, of Montreal, seconded the adoption of the report.

Dr. Newman made a plea for the students' aid fund. They had a great need for educated men now in the ministry, and it had been a crying evil that men had gone to Woodstock College and then left it for the pastorate long before they had graduated. With proper assistance this need not occur.

Rev. R. G. Boville wished to move an amendment to the report. He did not believe that the time had come for the establishment of an arts college. They needed now money for the securing of a library, the erection of a university building and of a science hall, if they were to make their arts college effective. Where was this money to come from? He would like to have it settled whether our boards were independent or whether they report to the convention. Now that they had an arts college they would all work for it, but the Baptist Convention ought to safeguard its own independent rights. He moved the following amendment:

That while adopting the report and pledging ourselves to the hearty support of all the branches of our university, we instruct our boards to submit all educational departures involving possible financial burdens on the denominations to this convention before calling them into existence.

Rev. E. W. Dadson seconded the amendment. He believed that policy is the business of the convention and not of the board. He had not thought they needed an arts college, but now one had been established. They must all help to build it up. But they could not tell what the boards would do next. They should have come to this body and said, "What is your will, brethren."

Dr. Rand defended the governors. Rev. Elmore Harris said they must face the fact that the Boards were independent.

Rev. James Grant was with Brother Dadson in opposition to an arts college. He charged the Board with stealing a march on the convention in founding the arts college, and spoke of the expedients used at the Ottawa Convention to delay and defeat certain motions.

Mr. D. E. Thompson indignantly called Mr. Grant to order.

Rev. James Grant withdrew the word "expedients," as it gave offense, and continued to argue against the establishment of an arts college on the ground that it would injure the theological school.

Hon. John Dryden closed the discussion with a brief speech. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 68 to 48, and the report was adopted by a large majority.

The scrutineers reported the election of six members of the Board to the vacancies to be filled this year. They were J. S. McMaster, Hon. John Dryden, Vice-Chancellor Boyd, Rev. E. N. Dadson and Rev. John McLaurin.

Rev. Prof. Trotter reported from the Committe on Resolutions a motion strongly commending the Grand Ligne mission to the French-Canadians.

Mr. A. A. Ayer appealed to the young men to offer themselves for a life's work in Quebec.

A resolution was adopted to appoint a committee to prepare a report on Sunday school work to be presented to all future conventions. Thomas Urquhart, of Toronto, in speaking on this subject showed that over 40 per cent. of the babtisms during the past year had been from Sunday schools. Mr. Eden Sherman quoted statistics to the effect that 83 per cent of the membership of Protestant churches came from the Sunday school.

A resolution by Mr. H. H. Beri's "That in the opinion of this convention the time has arrived when some hymn book shall be adopted as the hymnal of the Baptists of Canada," was discussed and temporarily withdrawn.

The receipts for Baptist home missions this month are shown to be $3,945 63, making a total to date of $16,613 64, leaving a balance of $3,296 24.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 20.—The public educational meeting brought together a large audience of Woodstock people. Rev. Mr. Dadson presided, and addresses were delivered by Principal Huston, of Woodstock College; Dr. Newman, of Toronto Baptist College; Rev. Dr. Rand, chairman of Mcmaster University and the staff. Dr. Newman dwelt upon the need of opening up their colleges to the children of all their people, poor as well as rich. He would like, too, that free board could be given some students.

Rev. Dr. Saunders, of Nova Scotia, spoke in terms of strong commendation of the fidelity to principle of Ontario Baptists in not asking State aid for their colleges at any time, reminding them of the occasion on which when the buildings of Woodstock College lay in ashes Dr. Fyfe, with the Board of Governors, declined aid from the Town Council of Woodstock. He was glad that they had not put McMaster into federation with Toronto University.

A BRAVE ENGINEER.

The Most Wonderful Escape on Record —150 Passengers Imperiled and No One Killed.

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 20.—A horrible catastrophe was averted on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway yesterday near Silver Creek, through the bravery and cool-headed conduct of an engineer. A detached section of an east-bound freight train had been run into by another section of the freight, and a portion of the debris was thrown on the west-bound track, just as No. 5 fast train was going west. Engineer John Burns, of Buffalo, of the passenger, was booming down the hill at the rate of 50 miles an hour. He saw a truck ahead, and then a freight car. He saw an attempt to stop his train and jump would sacrifice the lives of his 150 passengers. His fireman had left him, and freight cars mounted one on top of another were ahead. In a flash of a second Engineer Burns resolved to stand by his post, and, springing from his seat behind the boiler, put on every pound of steam, and opening his sand box so as to get a firmer hold of the rail, the iron monster, "Ed Gallop," gave a snort and sprang forward, threw the truck, and cut through the freight car and other debris. Burns, with wonderful fortitude, held the lever, and the moment he had cleared the obstruction reversed his engine and threw on the air brake as the train entered the wreck. The sides were torn out of three coaches and the screams of women rose high above the screeching of the steam. Although the engine was dismantled, brave Engineer Burns emerged from the debris alive, but covered with scars and bruises. Stout-hearted men embraced the brave engineer hysterically, realizing that his heroism had saved the train. But one passenger was seriously injured, and that was Mrs. Mary Kane, of Denniston, O., who was in the smoker. Her injuries are internal, and several ribs are broken. Joseph Meyers, of Cleveland, was badly hurt about the head. Little Sissie Heitner, daughter of David Heitner, of Chicago, shoulder dislocated; News Agent John Quinn, of Buffalo, arm hurt. A number of others were slightly injured. After the people got quieted, C. M. Spitzer, a Boston banker, headed a list and over $400 was presented to Engineer Burns by the passengers.

THE WORKING WORLD.

About 50 young women employed in Indianapolis steam laundries have formed a union.

An official of the International Brotherhood Locomotive Engineers states that the engineers would not federate. The grand officers will be instructed, however, to confer with the officials of the Federation and report some method whereby the organizations work not only in harmony, but in unison, and, if possible, in conjunction in case of trouble.

A VERY BAD MAN.

The First Congregational Church Accepts His Resignation.

A Man Who Lived With Another Man's Wife,

The last scene in the short but eventful pastorate of Mr. R. Moffat Neill was enacted in the basement of the First Congregational Church on Sunday at the conclusion of the morning service. The management of the church requested that the congregation should meet the deacons there and receive their ultimatum with respect to the disposal of the pastor who had caused so much commotion by the irregularities of his conduct. When the meeting was brought to order the statement of the deacons was read pronouncing against the man in most unmistakable language. The following resignation had been sent in on Saturday:

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, }
LONDON, ONT., Oct. 18, 1890. }

Mr. J. D. Jones, Secretary of First Congregational Church: Dear Sir,—As I stated on Thursday evening last that I should hand you my resignation, I hereby desire to ask the church through you to consent to the dissolution of the pastoral relation between myself and this church, the same to take effect the last day of this month. Praying that God will bless all his people that worship him in spirit and in truth and commending them to his loving care. Sincerely yours, R. NEALE.

The reason for thus suddenly agreeing to the resignation of Neil is to be found in the information which had recently come to the ears of the deacons, which, however, had been preceded by the facts made public by Mr. Ashplant and others, as well as by the affidavit which was procured from Mr. Colwell, issuer of marriage licenses, which went to show that Moffat Neill had changed his name to "R. Neale." Neill's explanation on Thursday night last was not deemed satisfactory, but a letter that came into the hands of the deacons on Saturday put the matter in a far worse light. The deacons, therefore, decided to ask for his resignation and pay his salary to the end of the month, and he accordingly went away from the city by a late train on Saturday night.

The following is the declaration read to the church meeting which was held after the morning service yesterday. It was signed by the deacons and was addressed to Neill:

LONDON, Oct. 12, 1890.

Dear Mr. Neale,—Your letter to Mr. Jones that you wished laid before the deacons, and also your several letters to individual officers of the church, are duly to hand. At a meeting of the officers of the church held on Sunday, Oct. 12, it was unanimously resolved that the following statement is the ground upon which you are asked to refrain from occupying the pulpit and upon which, unless disproved to the satisfaction of ourselves as officers and to the satisfaction of the church, we shall be compelled to advise the church to accept your resignation and elect another pastor. The following are the facts referred to above:

1. On Saturday, Oct. 4, a letter of which a copy is inclosed, was received from Mr. Hicks, inclosing a sworn affidavit, a copy of which is also inclosed.

2. On Friday afternoon Oct. 3, in Marshall Bros'. office, and in the presence of Messrs. Marshall and Rev. Mr. Carr, you denied ever having signed any document in this city as R. Moffat Neill.

3. An application for a marriage license now exists in the office of Mr. Colwell, which has been seen by the majority of us and others connected with the church.

4. This document is signed as represented by Mr. Colwell's affidavit.

5. The signature to this application is in the opinion of those who have seen it, (four or five), very similar to writing which is known to be yours.

6. Man's age in application is given at 45.

7. Your 46th birthday was celebrated this year.

8. Residence of parties is given as Pittsburg.

9. It is admitted that you and Mrs. Neale were employed in Pittsburg.

10. Lady's name is given as Cora Clement Hunt.

11. You have admitted to us that Mrs. Neale's name was Cora C. Clement.

12. Rev. Canon Innes married the couple referred to in application.

13. In Cannon Innes' register parents of bride are entered as Clement.

14. You admitted to us that Mrs. Neale's parents' name was Clement.

15. In Cannon Innes' register the occupation of the couple is given as engaged in newspaper work in Pittsburg.

16. You admitted that Mrs. Neale and yourself were engaged in newspaper work in Pittsburg.

17. When these matters were laid before you you stated that it was untrue and that you did not sign the document.

18. When asked if you would take an affidavit denying that you signed that document—in order to give your friends, who were anxious to defend you, a chance—you refused to do so.

19.—The above are indisputable facts that were in our possession and upon which we resolved to ask you to refrain from preaching. Since that time the following has occurred, and it is upon the foregoing and what follows that unless absolutely disproved we shall feel called to recommend the church to accept your resignation, knowing as you did that on Sunday morning you were not judged, but merely advised, to refrain from preaching until matters were looked into.

20. You sent in resignation to the Board of Deacons.

21. You left London at 4 o'clock Monday without waiting to hear in a formal way what charges you had to meet.

22. You admitted to Deacon Jones that you were married by Dean Innes.

23. Since leaving London you have done nothing definite towards refuting the charges of falsehood made against you.

It is therefore our unanimous conclusion that without at this time pronouncing any opinion as to your guilt that you have acted very unadvisedly—that it is not a question of your friends standing by you, but of your standing by those who had the fullest confidence in you. It is within your power to immediately bring this matter to an issue. First, by making a sworn affidavit that Mr. Colwell's affidavit is false; and secondly, by meeting Mr. Colwell and Dean Innes in our presence. After that is done arrangements can be made to bring the matter to trial before a proper tribunal. Unless this is done without delay we feel that your usefulness as pastor of this church is gone, and we will recommend the acceptance of your resignation.

This is the unanimous conclusion of us all.

The document was signed by about eight deacons and three members of the Board of Finance.

Secretary J. B. Hicks afterwards briefly addressed the meeting. He said he had in no degree been prompted by malice in the action which he had taken, and that the decision of the deacons and of the congregation had fully vindicated the stand he had taken.

Letter from Mr. Ashplant.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Mr. R. Moffat Neill having stated to many persons that I made an apology to him regarding my letters in your issues of the 4th and 6th insts., I desire to say that such is, in plain language, another lie added to the many by which this imposter has already perjured himself. I have made no such apology, nor am I likely to do so, being in possession of information which stamps Mr. Neill an adulterer, fraud, and general humbug of the first water. I have been blamed in some quarters for questioning an earnest and innocent Christian man. Mr. Neill's "skedaddle" on Saturday night is my best defense. He has once more descended, like a burst balloon, from the sublime to the ridiculous. Further developments were too much for him. In conclusion let me say, on behalf of Mr. Hicks (our church secretary), towards whom Mr. Neill has shown special spleen, he has with myself been honest in his endeavors to serve the best interests of the church in question, and I trust in view of facts Mr. Hicks will be more favorably considered by his colleagues in office. Thanking you for space at various times on a very distasteful matter, I am, yours respectfully. HENRY B. ASHPLANT.

London, Oct. 20, 1890.

It is alleged by a prominent member of the church that on being made acquainted with the subject matter of the communication referred to in the foregoing letter, that Deacon Jones visited Mr. Neill at his house on Saturday evening and insisted that he leave the city at once. Neill took the hint and a ticket for the East.

The Former Husband's Testimony.

The statements made by Mr. Ashplant in the above letter are very strong. The foundations for them are to be found in a letter which was received last week. It was addressed to the pastor of the Baptist Church and was returned by the deacons to the postoffice authorities, because the church was without a pastor. The postal authorities advised the deacons to open the letter and upon doing so they found that it was from a Chicago man, who claimed, as Deacon George Nicol related, that Mr. R. Moffat Neill had eloped with his wife and that since her elopement he had secured a divorce. Mr. Neill was furthermore charged in the letter with having deserted his own wife and two children. The letter, so the narrator said, concluded with a warning that if the congregation to which Mr. Neill had been called wished to remain virtuous it would be necessary to keep Mr. Neill away from them. Two members of the Congregational Church called at the house of Deacon John Westland, Talbot street, with whom the letter was left, and asking for it the letter was given to them, and had not up till this afternoon been returned.

It has since been ascertained that the name signed to the mysterious letter was signed "Hunt" being the same name as that given by Mr. Neill's bride when married in this city about a year ago.

MINISTERS IN SESSION.

Stirring Temperance Lectures by Mr. P. A. Burdick.

Meeting for Men Only at Victoria Hall in the Afternoon—A Very Large Gathering at the Princess Rink in the Evening.

The temperance campaign, instituted by the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Ministerial Association and the Young Men's Christian Association, to be held in the city during the coming two weeks, was successfully inaugurated yesterday. On Saturday evening the celebrated temperance orator, P. A. Burdick, of Alford Center, N. Y., arrived at 6:50, and was met at the Grand Trunk station by a large delegation of people interested in the work. Rev. A. C. Courtice, on behalf of the above-mentioned societies, tendered a cordial address of welcome to Mr. Burdick, who replied feelingly. He is at present the guest of Dr. Arnott.

The first meeting was announced to be for men only, and commenced shortly after 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Victoria Hall, which was completely filled, body and gallery. Secretary C. R. Sayer, of the Y. M. C. A., presided, and on the platform were Rev. Messrs. H. C. Speller, Geo. Boyd, G. W. Henderson, G. T. Carr, M. P. Talling, W. Hayhurst, A. C. Courtice, W. T. McDonagh, also an impromptu choir led by Mr. Spencer, who officiated at the organ. Rev. Mr. Carr opened with prayer, followed by the singing of a hymn and a Scriptural reading by Rev. M. P. Talling. Mr. Sayer, after a short prayer, made a few remarks referring to the temperance question and the assistance which the members of the association he represented intended giving in the coming campaign. He had pleasure in introducing one whom he knew and loved to the audience.

Mr. Burdick spoke for about twenty minutes, making a very agreeable impression by his free and easy manner and genial, unaffected style of delivery. He possesses a method of interspersing his admonitions and deduced lessons in the relation of some interesting incident by prolonging the climax, thus tending to retain the expectant attention of his hearers. Having recently sprained his ankle severely he is compelled to resort to the temporary use of a crutch.

In opening he cautioned the audience against entertaining any expectation of hearing a polished speaker, although he could be that if he wished. (Laughter.) He was a lawyer by profession, and on his first case he prepared his address with great care. He desired to make an impression on judge and jury, and he succeeded. But he never cared for creating such an impression again, and he made up his mind to say everything in the simplest possible manner in future. He remembered hearing when he was a boy, "the old men for counsel and the young men for war." They had both there to-day, and he believed the interest that had been awakened in the city augured well for the work which looked toward the uplifting of humanity and the establishment of Christ's kingdom upon earth. In the last thirteen years or over he had become convinced that this world was lagging for a lack of practical common sense—Christian work. They had had theory enough to have converted the world long ago. What they wanted was for every man to feel with the work, which could not be successful until they took hold of it. He did not want any individual to take it into his head that the work could not go on without him, for the world went on before he came. (Laughter.) God had placed each one here for some purpose, and that purpose could not triumph with the significant power it ought unless he tried to fill the very position that God has designated to him, and when this was accomplished he expected a complete revolution on this question. The speaker related an instance of what he termed practical Christian work. He was stopping at a hotel when a young man, a member of the Y. M. C. A., came round to his room and invited him to go to church the following Sunday morning. He was amazed, as he had never been asked to go to church in a hotel before, although he had often been requested to take a drink, which he had never refused. Every guest in the hotel was invited by the same young man, and next morning 49 of them went to church, 27 of whom were lawyers. (Laughter.) He called that practical Christian work; there were too many broadcloth and kid glove societies in existence altogether. When he went to the church that morning he was cordially received and shown a seat. The congregation might be taken for a hand-shaking society, for when he came out everybody shook hands with him—not one of those finger shakes that always felt to him like a dead fish, but a hearty, whole-souled, Christ-like shake. (Applause.) Those invitations were the means of converting one, to save whose soul alone, if to do no other good, was worth the institution of all the Y. M. C. A's. in the country. There were some churches that had such good carpets that in a revival meeting of the church, they would go down in the session room for fear of soiling the carpet. He would like to see such carpets plastered with mud brought in on the feet of sinful men. (Applause.) Some people could not appreciate the truth. There were two ways to tell the truth—one to hammer a man when he was down; the other, to tell the truth for truth's sake. There were men enough in the hall to take this city for God, because his spirit would be with them and their efforts blessed.

The meeting concluded with singing and prayer.

Fully 1,500 people found their way to the evening meeting at the Princess Rink. The time of commencement was fixed at 8:30 o'clock in order to allow the church attendants to be present after their services. Two organs, presided over by Miss Slaght and Mr. W. J. Birks respectively, had been stationed in the rink, together with a temporary platform. The members of the Dundas Street Center Methodist Church choir kindly volunteered their services. Rev. A. C. Courtice occupied the chair, and after prayer by Rev. Mr. Hayhurst, introduced Mr. Burdick with a short preface of welcome.

Mr. Burdick said he was glad that when he sprained his ankle he did not hurt his head, and while the ankle might trouble him he hoped the other would not. It was indeed a great pleasure to be welcomed in a work of this kind with the genuine heartiness which had characterized his reception there. The success of these meetings would entirely depend on his hearers. It would be well to understand each other; no doubt they had formed a wrong impression of the servant who came among them. He could do just one man's work and that was all; he could not do theirs, and would not if he could, for the Lord would not let him. God had appointed everyone a duty, and expected it to be done, and the success of this work, as evidenced before, was going to be measured just in proportion to the number of men and women who went about in this city with love on their lips and Christ in their hearts to plead with their fellow-men that were in the power of sin. He had not come there to talk of the evils of intemperance. A man or woman who knew nothing about the evils of intemperance knew nothing at all. The point was what they could do to save society from the curse of drink. What could they do to reach the men who were slaves? How could they warn the young men never to become slaves? How could they awaken the powers and influence of citizenship to the annihilation of the liquor traffic? The great mass of our citizenship had no conscience on this question. They did not understand it as a sin and as a crime. He could appreciate that condition of affairs from his own experience. He never was brought up to believe that drink was sin or half a sin. He was brought up in the impression that the sin was in the excessive use of drink. Why was he brought up like that? Simply because of the peculiar views his parents took. Why did they hold their peculiar view? Their parents did before them. People were largely what they were by the circumstances which surround them. They read their papers and believed they told all the truth and the others all the lies, and the other men think just the same thing. He (the speaker) was born and brought up under influences that made him regard only the excessive use of intoxicants as a sin; but now he believed to make at all, to sell at all, to drink at all, was a sin against God, a crime against society, and treason against good law. (Applause.) What they must try to do was to educate people, to make them understand the primary principles connected with the great reform. His mother and father held peculiar views because of their education. His grandfather was a very good man, and yet his (the speaker's) brother has decanters that his grandfather kept on his sideboard in 1795, when he came to this country. There was hardly a Christian minister in the United States to-day but was too jealous of his reputation to drink at all. His father drank with moderation, and thought it was all right until one of his boys became a drunkard. There are people who can be other people's misfortunes with a good deal of resignation, but when it comes to their own in which all their hopes and missions are centered, they want men and angels to save them. That seemed to be the only way God could reach the speaker's father, by bringing the cross into his own home. It was indeed laughable to compare some of the earlier efforts with those of the present time, some of the principles advocated years ago, and the principles advocated to-day. General Riley, one of the oldest temperance workers in the States was authority for the statement that the first pledge ever known in this country was made 147 years ago, when eleven men shook hands and said they never would get drunk again at a funeral. (Laughter.) He remembered when a small boy going to a funeral. After the event the lawyer read the will, those present were invited to dine and four kinds of spirituous liquors and four kinds of wine were provided for good cheer. There was more feeling displayed in that than at the funeral. (Laughter.) One of them got drunk and then they called him a brute, simply because his physical organization could not stand as much hospitality as that of the others. An observer would find that every man when drunk showed some distinctive trait. One would want to sing a song; another would be religious; another brag about his wife—and then go home and beat her; another becomes confidential and put his arm around your neck, and another will want to whip the whole company. The reason was because God had not given every individual the same temperament. The speaker referred to the dangers of drink and declared, although a great many looked upon the campaign as a spasmodic effort, the agitation never would be stopped. If every temperance advocate were to be crushed and stamped out in the city the barbarity and cruelty would soon raise an army of adherents. He met a man at a hotel in Pennsylvania who was boasting of his ability to obtain liquor anywhere in Maine. Some one disputed his assertion and he referred to the speaker to bear out the statements. The latter replied in the affirmative and the man becoming jubilantly over the supposed proof of his bragging, Mr. Burdick continued, "Yes; because your face would be a passport to any criminal society." (Laughter.) What they wanted to-day was that conscience as taught in God's own word, and if they had there would not be a dram-shop in the city of London six months hence. It was that conscience they wanted, and God being their help they meant to have it.

Mr. Burdick closed a half hour's address with a brilliant peroration. It was announced that meetings would be held week nights in the same place, and that some arrangements would be made for heating the building, in which the temperature last evening was rather cold. Mr. A. Taylor assisted the musical service with the cornet.

BORDER-STATE BRIEFS.

The Valley City Street and Cable Railway Company stockholders of Grand Rapids voted to authorize the directors to bond the road for $2,500,000, to be used in the equipment and extension of the service in Grand Rapids. The rapid growth of the city and increased demands of the people caused this important decision.

Dwight Stewart, a 6-year-old son of Rev William C. Stewart, of Lexington, met with a painful accident Friday evening. He was running up the steps of his father's house when he stumbled and fell on a case-knife which he had in his hand. The blade passed through his under lip and cut about one-half inch of his tongue nearly off.

Mrs. Selye Burrett, of Belleville, Mich., was struck by a train Friday morning at the Little Ridge crossing on the Charlotte branch of the New York Central Road and instantly killed, her neck being broken. She was going to Rochester, N. Y., in a one-horse wagon, her father being the driver. She was 48 years old, and leaves a husband and four children.

James Egan, employed on the G. T. R. transfer boat Huron, which plies between Fort Gratiot and Point Edward, was drowned Sunday morning. While leaving the dock at the latter place, the boat struck some piles, causing it to lurch suddenly, and throwing Mr. Egan overboard. He was a good swimmer, but he sank before assistance could reach him. He was a brother of Capt. Egan, of the Huron, was 42 years of age and unmarried.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Michigan Synod held its eleventh annual convention in Lansing last week when the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. R. S. Moore, Detroit; corresponding secretary, Mrs. D. M. Cooper, Detroit; recording secretary, Mrs. Geo. W. Buckingham, Flint; chairman freedmen's committee, Mrs. M. L. Skinner, Ypsilanti. The next annual meeting will be held in Adrian the first week of next November.

Friday night the large circular saw, shingle and lath mill, owned by Louis Sands, Manistee, was burned. The fire then passed to the large salt block, destroying the greater part thereof. There were in the salt block 60,000 barrels of salt ready for shipment, all of which is damaged. There were on the dock some 3,000,000 feet of lumber and 3,000,000 shingles, part of which were thrown into the lake, but the greater part thereof was burned. The dock was damaged greatly. The loss is about $175,000; insurance $89,500.

The average per acre is 16.58 bushels in the southern counties, 16.35 bushels in the central, 14.02 in the northern and 16.48 bushels in the State. The average yield per acre was nearly one-fourth of a bushel greater than the annual average for the last ten years. Oats in the southern counties yield 25.61 bushels, in the central 30.06 bushels, and in the northern 18.92 bushels. The corresponding figures one year ago were 31.97, 33.20 and 21.06. Barley in the southern counties yield 19.45 bushels, and in the State 18.76 bushels per acre. Corn is estimated to yield 50 bushels of ears per acre in the southern counties, 60 in the central and 62 in the northern, the average for the State being 53 bushels. Potatoes in the southern counties will yield one-half of an average crop, in the central counties 58 per cent., and in the northern 90 per cent of an average crop. The average for the State is 58. The estimates for winter apples are 23 per cent. in the southern counties, 36 in the central, and 27 per cent. for the State, comparison being with an average crop.

Indigestion

Is not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

AN ADVENTURER'S EXPOSURE.

R. Moffat Neill has fled the city. The labored statement which he made to the members of the First Congregational Church at its recent meeting could not, and did not, stand investigation, as responsible citizens affected by it have already pointed out.

The fact is that this man was posing under false colors. He was occupying the pulpit of a Christian church when he must have known that his past conduct was such as should deter him from assuming a position that requires of a man that he shall be moral, truthful and upright

It has been uphill work to secure the exposure of this unworthy man. He came here a comparative stranger, but he had a winning manner and a good deal of ability, and coming to the city at a time when there was trouble in the First Congregational Church, his imposture was probably rendered the more easy. He protested his innocence of any shortcomings all along, and was not averse to having it believed that any opposition to him arose from disaffection growing out of the division in the congregation.

Taking into consideration the manner in which he came to the city, and the fact that he had not been a regularly placed minister for years before he came here, it would certainly have been better if the managers of the church had acted with greater promptitude when it was alleged, and sworn to, that the man had been living under an alias. They should have known that responsible citizens, who had no interest whatever in their church management, would not be privy to such an exposure unless they were in possession of undoubted proof of the truthfulness of their allegations. The same remark holds good of the ADVERTISER. It is scarcely necessary to say that in dealing with the matter this journal has but done its duty to the public. It had too much respect for the Christian religion to believe that any worthy minister of the Gospel would find it necessary to suddenly change his name, and have no better excuse for the action than that it was a common occurrence. This view was not modified when Neill delivered himself of his extraordinary declaration on the subject of his being twice married to the same woman.

That the First Congregational Church should have been compelled to pass through such an experience is much to be regretted, but the trouble will not have been without one redeeming feature if it renders congregations increasingly careful of the standing of those whom they place in authority. They cannot be too careful. It is a mistake to take anything for granted. A good man will not object to state his antecedents to even the humblest member of the flock. It is better to err on the side of thoroughness than to be duped as this congregation has been by a clever adventurer.

COMMERCE OF THE LAKES.

The commerce of the lakes is now assuming proportions which exemplify in a striking manner the utility of the waters to the States and Provinces that border upon them. The trade between the States and Provinces is comparatively a limited one, being affected at once by restrictive tariffs and by illiberal navigation laws. The vessels trading wholly between Canadian ports are few in number, although several are of large tonnage—notably those employed upon the upper lakes. They cannot hope, however, to do a larger business than the country offers, and this is necessarily limited by population and the diversities of production. It is upon the United States side that the greatest development would naturally be looked for, as on that side are a number of cities, each of which is a large commercial center, gathering and distributing the varied productions of great areas of territory. There are cities like Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit, Milwaukee, Chicago, and many others of lesser note. There are also the States of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Then, too, there are the New England States, with their great manufacturing industries, and the Western and Northwestern States, with their extensive areas of farm land, each contributing to the wants of the other. Between such communities, with no barriers to trade except distance, it is little wonder that the natural highway of commerce which the great lakes afford should be freely employed.

It is no surprise to be told, in view of the straitened effects of the United States tariff upon trade with foreign countries, that the tonnage constructed by lake builders last year was very nearly equal to that of the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific shipyards combined, nor that the vessels were of a larger and better class. Of the whole steam tonnage of the United States about a third is on the lakes, and of steamers between 1,000 and 2,500 tons they have more than half the total. The sailing tonnage is not great, but it is 50 per cent. more than that of the Pacific slope; and as an indication of their size it may be stated that 21 which sailed the lakes last year were of more than 11,000 tons each, and 156 between 500 and 1,000 tons.

Three years ago, that is for the year ending June, 1887, there were 31 American boats built on the lakes, valued at a little over $4,000,000, whereas for the year ending June, 1890, the number was 56, valued at nearly $8,000,000. In recent years, too, the tendency has been towards iron and steel for large ships, ten of which built at Cleveland in 1888-9 had an aggregate capacity of 22,989 tons. During the present year Chicago has begun the building of steel ships, and the keels of two were laid in the month of July. And of course great things are expected of Chicago, for besides having the largest steel works in America that city has a courage and an enterprise which will stop at nothing short of the first place.

Of the extent of the commerce of the lakes on the American side some idea may be formed when it is stated that during 234 days of navigation last year tonnage passed through the Detroit river to the amount of 10,000,000 tons more than the entries and clearances of all the seaports in the United States, and 3,000,000 tons more than the combined foreign and coastwise shipping of Liverpool and London. How much greater the trade of all the lakes is may be imagined when account is had of what takes place between the various ports of Lakes Michigan and Superior, and of Lakes Erie and Ontario, not included in the figures of Detroit River navigation. Another evidence of the extent of the lake traffic is afforded by the records of the Sault Ste. Marie canal, which show that in 234 days of open navigation vessels passed through having an aggregate capacity of 7,221,935 tons, or 438,748 tons more than the traffic of the Suez Canal which was open all the year round.

These are stupendous figures when we reflect that many of the Western communities with which trade is carried on are not yet half a century old. What they will reach half a century hence, it would be folly to try to forecast. But who can doubt the great share of the Canadian commonwealths in that commerce of the lakes were it free from the restrictions of tariffs and navigation laws?

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—On Wednesday next, the election for the seat in the Imperial Parliament for Eccles (Lancashire) takes place. It is a Tory constituency, but as elections have been recently going it would not surprise us to see it won by the Liberals.

—They are not all fire-eaters in Toronto, and it is not fair to judge of that city by the boys who are said to have hissed the American flag at one of the public schools on a recent occasion. The meetings of the Association for the Advancement of Women were held in the evenings at the hall of the Agricultural Gardens, a building owned by the city. The wall at the rear of the platform of this hall was draped with three or four British flags, but high above them was suspended a handsome American flag, bearing the stars and stripes. It does not appear that any one objected to the United States flag in this public place, and its appearance does not seem to have called forth a remark of any kind. Nobody thinks it worth while to telegraph the fact to the newspapers of New York or Chicago, and yet as an evidence of kindly feeling towards our neighbors it is of far greater importance than the hisses of a few schoolboys.

—The election of the president and officers of the Osgoode Hall Literary and Legal Society, which took place in Toronto on Saturday, was the most remarkable contest of the kind that has ever taken place. As usual two tickets were in the field, the Province was scoured for barristers and law students to go and vote, oyster suppers were held almost every night in the last two weeks—to consolidate the respective "parties," we suppose—several thousand dollars were expended, and horse play was indulged in to such an extent that the police had to be called in to bring order out of chaos. For what? To secure the triumph of one or other of the "tickets" put in nomination. Mr. Geo. Kappele was elected president, and his entire ticket was victorious—an unusual occurrence. Mr. Kappele affords another illustration that preacher's sons will get on the top once in a while. He is a son of the Rev. Stephen Kappele, formerly Methodist pastor in Glencoe, a gold medalist of the Law Society, and one of the keenest among the younger members of the bar. He received his early education in Hamilton, and is a graduate from the office of Mr. John Crerar, county crown attorney for Wentworth, a former resident of this city.

—Mr. Gladstone will doubtless pay his respects to Irish Secretary Balfour and his new theory of political morality in the course of the great oratorical campaign which he opens at Edinburgh this week. The Liberal leader was in Liverpool yesterday, and to-day he started for Scotland. A cablegram informs us that his speeches are looked forward to with extraordinary interest and are expected to have important results. They will be more varied than usual, as, in addition to questions of purely home policy, they will include an impeachment of the Turkish Government for its cruelty to the Armenians and a defense and exposition of free trade principles apropos of the McKinley tariff. The Grand Old Man, it is asserted, has been of late bombarded with pamphlets and letters from economic heretics and has been roused to scornful indignation by speeches by obscure Tory members of Parliament and by editorials in Tory newspapers all predicting England's ruin unless it be averted by retaliatory measures against the United States. Mr. Gladstone, the friend of Cobden, has no sympathy with or tolerance of such "damnable heresies."

—A cablegram from London, England, contains further particulars about Henry M. Stanley and his forthcoming lecture tour. The famous explorer will sail from Liverpool for this continent on the Teutonic on the 29th in company with his wife, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Tennant, and his wife's cousin, the author of "Doctor Bill." His first public act in this country will be the giving of a lecture in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, on Nov. 11 in behalf of the Summit Convalescent Home. His subject will be "The Rescue of Emin Pasha, the Forest, Pigmies and March Across Africa." After this he will go on a long lecture tour throughout the United States and Canada, including this city. Major Pond, who is acting as business manager, says that Mr. Stanley is in excellent health, and that he is quite strong enough to make his voice heard in the largest hall. Mr. Stanley has written to Major Pond saying that he expects the trip across the ocean will completely restore him to good health. Mrs. Stanley writes that she hopes her husband will be able to rest in this country when he is not engaged in lecturing. The invitations to receptions in Europe which he received were much in the nature of commands, which he did not think it advisable to disobey.

EAST YORK REFORMERS

UNIONVILLE, Oct. 20.—The annual meeting of the Reform Association of the East Riding of York was held here Saturday afternoon with a good attendance. The election of officers resulted in the return of the following gentlemen: President, J. C. Clarke; vice-president, Walter Scott; secretary-treasurer, A. Forster (re-elected).

Business being over, speeches were delivered by the more prominent members on the political outlook of the present time. Mr. G. B. Smith, M. P. P. for the riding, made an able address, in which he advocated unrestricted reciprocity.

Mr. Corson, who followed, spoke of the fight of their honored member, Mr. Mackenzie, for free trade. If in 1878 he had been less firm in refusing concessions to the manufacturers he might have remained in power. But possibly it was as well. It took Israel a long time to get out of Egypt. There was a plague of flies and lice and such things before they were allowed to go free. Canada with protection was in very much the same position. He then moved, seconded by Neil MacKinnon:

That this meeting express the utmost confidence in its representatives for the riding, the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie and Mr. G. B. Smith, both of whom have carefully watched the interests of the riding—the veteran grand old man in the Commons, as far as his health will permit, and the energetic and vigilant Local member who has so carefully and successfully guarded the interests of his constituents and so ably rendered assistance to our model Local Government, of which the Hon. Oliver Mowat is Premier.

In seconding the motion, which was enthusiastically received and adopted, Mr. McKinnon said the young men of the country were for Reform. He referred in eloquent terms to the great things done for Canada by the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, a grand old man who should be treated with increasing honor.

THE MANISTEE SMASH.

Far-Reaching Results of the Peters Failure—Liabilities Estimated at $2,500,000.

MANISTEE, Mich., Oct. 20.—No official statement of the liabilities and assets has as yet been filed by the assignee of the R. G. Peters' Salt and Lumber Company, and R. G. Peters' individual property, and any statement as to liabilities and assets is mere conjecture, but parties well informed place the liabilities at upwards of $2,500,000. A slight run was made on the Manistee Bank, but every demand was promptly met. Mr. Peters has been an active business man in this community for the past 30 years. He came here with $2,000 and has been active in nearly every enterprise started in this city. Unfortunately his money has been invested in other States and Canada, where he has not been able to give the business his personal attention. Mr. Peters' intimate friends have been apprehensive of financial disaster for the past three years, and have solicited him to shuck off some of the leeches, but he was in hopes of pulling through each one and held on until he went down. He has been active in politics, contributing largely of time and moneys at each election to the support of his friend, Gen. Cutcheon. His charitable acts, both of a private and public nature, have been almost unbounded. He has supported entire families who were needy, educated young people and not a church in the city has been built but what he has contributed hundreds of dollars. He, at an expense of $20,000, built the Union Hall and donated the same to the W. C. T. U., and built Evelyn Hall at Bay View. He donated $50,000 to the Oberlin College Theological Seminary at Evanston and Olivet College respectively, and the large hall recently built at Oberlin is named after him. It is impossible to give any estimate of his assets, but it is feared unsecured creditors will realize but little.

GRAND RAPIDS, Oct. 20.—There was a heavy run on the Fifth National Bank, caused by the R. G. Peters failure, as Mr. Peters was a director of the bank, and Wm. Dunham, its president, was interested with Mr. Peters, and is probably involved to the extent of $100,000. The bank promptly met all claims with dollar for dollar. President Dunham tendered his resignation and Vice-President James D. Robinson was elected to succeed him.

The firm of Arthur Meigs & Co., in which Mr. Peters held a half interest, has gone to the wall. The banks in this city are involved in the failure to the amount of about $120,000 all told, and this is secured to a great extent.

The Detroit banks are involved to the amount of about $400,000. The Milwaukee and Chicago banks are deeply interested, and so are banks at numerous other points.

SAGINAW, Mich., Oct. 20.—Albert M. Henry, of Detroit, assignee of the R. G. Peters Company, of Manistee, does not think the liabilities will exceed $2,000,000, and the assets, though largely scattered, will largely exceed that amount. He attributes the failure to over-expansion and a close money market. The creditors are in all parts of the country, especially in the moneyed centers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—The Union National Bank and the Commercial and American Exchange National banks, and the Continental National Bank are interested in the Peters failure, but claim to be fully secured.

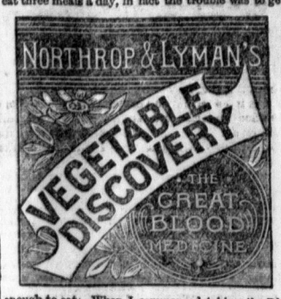

MONTGOMERY, Oct. 20.—Information is received here of the assignment of the Peters Lumber Company, at Alco, below Brewton. The Peters Lumber Company was the largest lumber manufacturing company in the State of Alabama, if not in the yellow pine territory.

How Can I Get Rid

Of my tormenting corns: get rid of them without pain: get rid of them quickly and effectually, without possibility of return? The answer is, use Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Cure, the great corn cure. Always sure, safe and painless. Putnam's Extractor. Use it and no other. Frauds are in the market. Don't run the risk of ruining your feet with such caustic applications.

A MAN'S LIFE SAVED

I WOULD not be doing justice to the afflicted if I withheld a statement of my experience with Jaundice, and how I was completely cured by using Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. No one can tell what I suffered for nine weeks, one-third of which I was confined to my bed, with the best medical skill I could obtain in the city trying to remove my affliction, but without even giving me temporary relief. My body was so sore that it was painful for me to walk. I could not bear my clothes tight around me, my bowels only operated when taking purgative medicines, my appetite was gone, nothing would remain on my stomach, and my eyes and body were as yellow as a guinea. When I ventured on the street I was stared at or turned from with a repulsive feeling by the passer-by. The doctors said there was no cure for me. I made up my mind to die, AS LIFE HAD LOST ALL ITS CHARMS. One day a friend called to see me and advised me to try Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I thought if the doctors could not cure me, what is the use of trying the Discovery, but after deliberating for a time I concluded to give it a trial, so I procured a bottle and commenced taking it three times a day. JUDGE OF MY SURPRISE at the expiration of the third day to find my appetite returning. Despair gave place to Hope, and I persevered in following the directions and taking Hot Baths two or three times a week until I had used the fifth bottle. I then had no further need for the medicine that had SAVED MY LIFE—that had restored me to health—as I was radically cured. The natural color had replaced the dingy yellow, I could eat three meals a day, in fact the trouble was to get enough to eat. When I commenced taking the Discovery my weight was only 132½ lbs, when I finished the fifth bottle it was 172½ lbs., or an increase of about half a pound per day, and I never felt better in my life. No one can tell how thankful I am for what this wonderful medicine has done for me. It has rooted out of my system every vestige of the worst type of Jaundice, and I don't believe there is a case of Jaundice, Liver Complaint or Dyspepsia that it will not cure.

(Signed) W. LEE, Toronto.

WHAT IS IT?

This celebrated medicine is a compound extracted from the richest medicinal barks, roots and herbs. It is the production of many years' study, research and investigation. It possesses properties purely vegetable, chemically and scientifically combined. It is Nature's Remedy. It is perfectly harmless and free from any bad effect upon the system. It is nourishing and strengthening; it acts directly upon the blood, and every part throughout the entire body. It quiets the nervous system; it gives you good, sweet sleep at night. It is a great panacea for our aged fathers and mothers, for it gives them strength, quiets their nerves, and gives them Nature's sweet sleep, as has been proved by many an aged person. It is the Great Blood Purifier. It is a soothing remedy for our children. It relieves and cures all diseases of the blood. Give it a fair trial for your complaint, and then you will say to your friends, neighbors and acquaintances: "Try it; it has cured me."

"THE BEST ARMOR AGAINST DISEASE IS GOOD DIGESTION."

It is a hard, uncontrovertible fact that more disease is directly attributable to disorders of the Stomach than to all the other organs combined; this is not hard for even the unprofessional to understand when we take into consideration the mass of food that it is made the receptacle of for a time, there to be churned, digested and so assimilated.

"Stone Dead"—A Narrow Escape.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 20.—Saturday afternoon a man who had just arrived in the city per C. P. R., put up at the Wilcox House, and gave his name as W. Stewart, of Yarmouth township. He came down stairs at 6:50 yesterday morning, and a few minutes afterward was found seated in a chair in the sitting-room with his head resting against the wall, stone dead. The cause of death is supposed to be heart failure. He had no money on his person and nothing by which he could be identified, and from the clothing, boots, etc., it is supposed he was a laborer. He was about 45 years of age, six feet high, black hair and gray whiskers.

J. H. Smith, of the Ridgetown Collegiate Institute, had a narrow escape while experimenting in the laboratory making Dutch liquids on Wednesday. Thinking all the gases might be absorbed, he was rising the vessel to make an examination when something attracting his attention caused him to bring it to a level with his mouth, when he inhaled the gases and was nearly strangled. After some time he was able to reach the pump, where he got water, and was slightly relieved after spitting up a quantity of blood.

BISHOP O'CONNOR.

Imposing Consecration Ceremonies at St. Peter's Cathedral.

Right Rev. Dr. O'Connor Installed as Bishop of London.

The Proceedings Witnessed by an Immense Audience—Sermon by Bishop Foley.

Yesterday's rain no doubt kept many citizens at home who would have otherwise made an attempt to gain admittance to St. Peter's Cathedral and witness the consecration services of Dr. D. O'Connor, London's new bishop. In spite of the disagreeable weather, however, there was a very large audience present when the ceremony began, and after the excursionists from the West had arrived at 9:45 o'clock even standing room was at a premium. The special from Windsor was delayed for some time, as the weather looked too threatening, but the excursionists finally made up their minds to come, and boarding the train were landed at the G. T. R. station a few minutes before 10 o'clock. The Knights of St. John from Windsor and Detroit and the band of the Twenty-first Fusiliers of Essex accompanied the visitors, and the whole party were met at the Richmond street depot by delegations from the C. M. B. A. and E. B. A. headed by "D" Company, I. S. C., band. A procession was formed in the drizzling rain and the company marched to the cathedral.

The London Diocese clergymen present were: V. R. Dean Wagner, Windsor; V. R. Dean Murphy, Dublin; V. R. Carmel, and Gahan, Kennedy, Noonan, Tiernan, of London.

The celebrants of the mass were Archbishop Walsh, assisted by Deacons of Honor Wagner and Heenan, and Deacons of Mass Flannery, O'Brien and Kilroy; Bishop-elect D. O'Connor, attended by Revs. Cushing and Marigon; Bishop Foley, attended by Revs. Donovan and Brennan; Bishop Dowling, attended by Revs. Doherty and Quinlan; Archbishop Cleary, attended by Revs. Cassidy and Murphy; Bishop Mahoney, attended by Revs. McGuglickin and Brennan; Bishop Maes, attended by Revs. O'Connoll and Paul; Bishop Richter, attended by Revs. Pulcher and Campbell, and Bishop O'Connor, attended by Revs. Walsh and Molphy. The chanters were Revs. McGee, Von Antwerp, Aboulin, Cote, Baubat and Gerard.

The Consecration.

A few minutes after the appointed hour the ceremony began and was followed with close attention by the immense audience which had by this time taken possession of all the seating accommodation in the edifice. The imposition of hands, the essential rite by which the power of episcopacy is communicated, the delivery of the emblems of pastoral authority, and the various other parts of the impressive ceremony of consecration were well calculated to interest and deeply impress even those accustomed to the displays of a church noted for its ritual. In the chancel two chapels were prepared one for the Archbishop and one for the Bishop-elect; in the latter were the pontifical vestments and articles required for the performance of the ceremony. A few minutes past 9 o'clock the procession came down the center aisle to the chancel, the Archbishop, vested in full pontificals and attended by pages, while Dr. O'Connor wore the amict alb cincture and stole crossed upon his breast.

The consecrator then seated himself at the altar and the elect wearing his small cap was led up to him by the assisting bishops, and after saluting the Archbishop they seated themselves. Rising again in a few moments one of the bishops assisting addressed the Archbishop with the Latin words equivalent to:

Most reverend father, our holy mother the Catholic Church, requires you to raise this priest to the burthensome office of a bishop.

The consecrator in reply asked the petitioners if they had the apostolic commission, and the same being presented and read, the Archbishop concluded with "Thanks be to God." Dr. O'Connor being sworn as to duty and fidelity he and his assistants seated themselves, and he was thereupon subjected to a rigid examination, in the course of which he solemnly declared his determination to adhere to traditions of the orthodox fathers and to be governed by the holy and apostolic see.

On the conclusion of the examination the bishop-elect was led around to the consecrator, and kneeling before him kissed his hand, after which the Archbishop laid off his miter and turning to the altar proceeded with mass in the usual way, with Dr. O'Connor on his left hand, and receiving the confession, continued the celebration of mass, while the assistant bishop led the elect to this chapel. Here the cope was laid aside, and opening the stole he put on the pectoral cross, and then girded on the stole without crossing it as before. He was also in turn vested with the tunic dalmatic and chasuble, and, standing at his altar between the two bishops, read the mass.

Mass concluded, the consecrator and assisting bishops knelt forward upon their seats, while the bishop-elect prostrated himself on the left hand of the Archbishop and with the rest of the clergymen kneeling, the Litanies of the Saints were sung and the blessings given. The consecrator then rose, as did also the assisting bishops, and the bishop-elect rose to his knees. The book of the Gospel was then laid on the neck of Father O'Connor and the consecrator and bishops simultaneously placing their hands upon his head said in chorus, "Receive Thou the Holy Ghost." The Doctor's head was then bound with linen and Archbishop Walsh dipping his thumb in the chrism anointed his head. A special prayer for the bishop-elect was then offered by the Archbishop, which was in turn followed by an antiphon by the choir. This concluded, the hands of the bishop-elect were anointed and another prayer was offered for his guidance and strength. The new Bishop then rose and the crozier being blessed, was sprinkled with holy water and delivered by the consecrator to the consecrated, who received it while on his knees. The ring also after being blessed was placed upon the Bishop's finger by the consecrator, after which the Bible was presented, and on the book being touched by the consecrated, he was charged to preach the Gospel to those committed to his care, after which the kiss of peace was again exchanged.

The newly-made Bishop then repaired to his chapel, where his hands were washed, after which he again appeared before Archbishop Walsh and made the customary offerings. The miter of Bishop O'Connor was then formally sprinkled with holy water and placed upon the wearer's head, the action being accompanied with an appropriate prayer.

The Sermon

Bishop Foley, of Detroit, preached the sermon. Possessed of a rich voice and a good flow of language, he held the attention of his audience until the last word was uttered. In the first part of his discourse he explained the scenes which they had just witnessed. "The ceremonies dearly beloved," said he, "that have been carried out beneath the roof of this grand cathedral evidence the sublime dignity of the divine character that is conferred upon the priests of the living God when elevated by the church to the hierarchy. Moved by divine goodness the Almighty God in the plentitude of time sent his only son to become man for us, 'and the word was made flesh and dwelt among us.' He came in all the humility of Bethlehem and in all the lowliness and poverty of Nazareth that he might become first the model and exemplar, and then the leader and teacher. In God's own good time he came forth and commenced the grand work of announcing the truths of the revelation to all men and teaching them the way whereby they might obtain salvation for their immortal souls. He came not only for those who heard his voice then, but for those as well who should live 2,000 years after his incarnation." The preacher then described the methods adopted by the Saviour in forming his church on earth, his leaving of the Book of Holy Writ for the guidance of those who came after him, his calling of the twelve apostles together, and the charging of them to go into all the world and preach the Gospel, with the assurance, "Behold I am with you all days, even unto the consummation of the world," described how the church was constituted, and how the apostles were made participators in Christ's work, being co-equal with him. Armed with this wondrous power, he pictured them preaching the same truths and doctrines which Christ himself had announced in every part of the known word, irrespective of the prejudices of the people among whom they were sent. He pointed out how the apostles, after planting the seed, had by the imposition of hands and the invocation of the divine spirit communicated their apostolate to successors; how the apostles were set as the foundations of the church, and Rome chosen as the center and head; how Simon Peter was elected head of the church on earth, and had conferred upon him a singular prerogative, evidencing his superiority and supremacy over the other apostles; how he had afterwards been three times compelled to answer the question, "Peter, loveat thou me?" and had each time more fervently replied in the affirmative; and how he had as often received the injunction, "Feed my sheep." "Our episcopacy comes from Jesus himself," said the speaker, coming to the second head of his discourse, "being delivered by the apostles to their successors, enduring and living through all ages. It is this fact of our unity with the root, of our adhesion to the rock, which makes indestructible the Catholic episcopacy and the Roman Pontiff, that has continued the ministry and mission of the apostolate in all ages and will continue them until the consummation of the world. Men may talk of branches, but what is a branch that has been cut from the trunk? Take any quantity of branches, separate them from the trunk whence they derive their vitality, and what are they? Only withered and useless. There is no life in the foliage. All the genius of man cannot vivify a severed branch. Separation from that rock that Jesus Christ established, separation from that trunk that has grown up during the 2,000 years, from the days of Peter until the time of the present Leo XIII., produces the same effect. The church was instituted as one, with the same doctrine for all ages and for all places, and will continue the same as long as God reigns triumphant in heaven. Since its establishment empires have risen, flourished and fallen; the whole map of the world has changed; new worlds have been discovered, new persecutions adopted; but the church remains unchanged. How insignificant do the persecutions of modern men appear when contrasted with the mighty efforts of pagan Rome to crush the successors of Peter. They have all the malice of their pagan predecessors, but lack the courage."

In conclusion he said: "I congratulate the people of London Diocese upon the mercy and goodness of the Almighty in securing for them so worthy and distinguished a prelate. No feeble words I may utter could add one iota of beauty to the character of him upon whom the Holy Ghost has just descended. He has been among you from infancy. You have known him as a child and as a seminarian, as a priest of the living God, and as the head of a noble institution that by his wisdom and his administration holds so high a place among our educational institutions. While I congratulate you, the people of London Diocese, I must sympathize with the institution which has been deprived of so valuable a head. Right reverend father, I offer my congratulations for this day, and welcome you in the name of the esteemed prelates of the Apostolic College. May your episcopate be bright, and may it be continued for many days."

At the conclusion of the sermon the assistant bishops, wearing their miters, led the newly-consecrated Bishop through the church and the congregation kneeling reverently received his blessing as he passed. On the return to the altar the Archbishop repeatsd a few short sentences invoking the blessing of the Almighty upon the Bishop. A short service at the Gospel and epistle sides of the altar and the kiss of peace concluded the imposing ceremony.

Address from the Laity.

After Bishop O'Connor was formally installed in his own chair and the clergy had kissed his hand, he was waited upon by a delegation from the laity, composed of Messrs. Thomas Coffey, D. Regan, J. Keary, H. Beaton, S. R. Brown, J. Loughlin, R. Hough, A. Wilson, J. O'Meara, J. Wilson, F. McNeil, F. Harper, and others, and the following address was read to the Bishop by Mr. Thomas Coffey, publisher of the Catholic Record:

My Lord,—On behalf of the Catholic people of your Cathedral parish we desire to tender our warmest welcome on the occasion of your assuming the exalted position of bishop of this diocese. Its history does not go far into the past, but during the time of its organization much has been accomplished for the good of religion, its condition to-day in every parish proving that the first foundations were laid wisely and well, and its growth and advancement watched and guarded with a care and a prudence that will for generations to come reflect honor on the name of the present illustrious Archbishop of Toronto. But while we have abundant reason, my Lord, to be grateful for the blessings bestowed upon us in the past, we feel satisfaction in declaring our conviction that we should likewise be most thankful because of the bright future so full of promise which is spread out before us.

You come to us to-day as our chief pastor, and joy is felt and satisfaction expressed amongst your people. You are not, my Lord, a stranger amongst us. The years of your priestly life have been spent in the diocese and important and responsible duties have been performed by you in a manner which called forth commendation on every hand. When, then, the See of London became vacant, priests and people were imbued with the fervent hope that you would be named to assume the duties of the Episcopate.

Their hopes have been realized, Rome has spoken; and we are given one more illustration of her foresight and prudence. She has sent us a bishop who will be dear to the Catholic people; for what can be more consoling than the presence amongst us of one who will be our trusted guide when the way seems dark and uncertain—our friend when the hand of misfortune is placed heavily upon us—and our counselor when doubt and perplexity overshadow our pathway as we proceed on the road of life. All this we have full assurance you will be to us. We know that as a priest your every thought and every act have been in strictest fulfillment of the solemn pledge you made on the day of your ordination. This day, then, is to us a period of joy—it is the beginning of another era of progress for the church; and we desire to assure you that in every undertaking you may contemplate for the advancement of religion, for the promotion of Catholic education, and for the care of the poor and afflicted, you will find us ever desirous to second your efforts.

All this we solemnly promise you, my Lord, and we humbly beseech our Blessed Redeemer to grant you length of years in his service as bishop of the Diocese of London.

Asking your blessing for ourselves and for our families.

We remain, my Lord, your obedient children:

D. Regan, chairman; F. Harper, secretary; Thomas Coffey, M. Masuret, S. R. Brown, John Garvey, James Wilson, J. D. LeBel, P. Pocock, J. V. Vining, Stephen O'Meara, J. O'Higgins, B. C. McCann, J. P. O'Byrne, P. Mulkern, F. McNeil, John Pocock, P. F. Boyle, Arch. McNeil, Jas. Egan, T. J. O'Meara, John Dromgole, J. M. Keary, Wm. F. Harper, Dr. Hanavan, Dr. Bourk, John Forrestal, Thos. Connors, Patrick Kelly, J. D. Dewan, M. F. O'Meara, M. Gould, M. O'Meara, H. Dignan.

THE BISHOP'S REPLY.

The Bishop in reply thanked the laity for the kindly feeling exhibited in their address. He expressed his pleasure at being fortunate enough to secure so readily an evidence of the hearty support of the laity of the church, and predicted that with such support and the favor of the Most High his mission would most assuredly be a success. The speaker acknowledged the eulogy of Archbishop Walsh, which the address contained and considered the tribute well placed, but modestly refused to receive like commendation for himself. He concluded by invoking a divine blessing upon his visitors.

The musical programme for the morning service was: Lambilotte's "Te Deum," Zwing's "Kyrie," "Gloria" and "Sanctus"; duet, "Agnus Dei," Mr. Watt and Miss Milligan; solo, "Child, Give Me Thine Heart," Miss Mamie Coffey; solo, "Ave Marie" (Cherubini), Miss O'Keefe, of Strathroy.

NOTES OF THE DAY.

During the afternoon Bishop O'Connor was serenaded by the visitors from the west and invited to speak. He accepted the invitation and took occasion during the course of his remarks to thank the Roman Catholic and Protestant citizens of London for the very hearty reception he had received.

Bishop Maes, of Covington, Kentucky, preached the sermon during the evening service. The following programme was presented: Plain chant vespers; Lambilotte's "Magnificat," chcir; solo, "O'Salutarus," Miss O'Keefe; quartet, "Von Winter," Messrs. Watt and Ranahan, and Misses Dibbs and Hennessy; Goebe's "Tantum Ergo," Mr. W. C. Davis, and Millard's "Ave Verum."

Supplies for One Fragile Creature.

A cynical doctor, with a la man of wonderful resources and quick mind, lives on one of the avenues on the south side. He was in his study a few nights ago when a young man came in and began questioning him about his (the young man's) propriety of marrying. The young man foolishly raved over his sweetheart and called her angelic and so on. He was afraid that she was too fragile for this world. The old doctor grunted.

"Fragile, eh?" he asked. "How fragile? Ever test her fragility? Let me give you some figures about her, and womankind in general, showing how fragile they are. Let us suppose that this piece of perfection is in moderately good health. She will live to be, say, 60 years old. Women don't like to die any more than men do—not as much—for women never grow old, you know. Listen to me: She will eat one pound of beef, mutton, or some other flesh every day. That's 365 pounds of meat in a year. In sixty years it's 21,900 pounds. How's that for fragile? She will eat as much bread and as much vegetables per diem, and there you have it in sixty years 43,800 pounds of bread and meat. If she is not too angelic she will drink daily no less than two quarts of coffee, tea, wine, or beer. And by the time she is ready to have a monument she will have consumed 175 hogsheads of liquids. Fragile?

"Now, young man, these figures do not include the forty or fifty lambs she will worry down with mint sauce. It does not take into consideration the 2,000 spring chickens, the 500 pounds of butter, the 50,000 eggs, and the four hogshead of sugar she will consume in 60 years. It doesn't take into consideration her ice cream, her oysters, her clams, and such. All this means about 45 tons. Fragile? Think of your affinity in connection with these figures, and then rave over her being fragile. Young man, you are a fool. Boof!"

The Cost of Filling Teeth.

DISCORDANT DISCUSSION.

The Water Commissioners Will Not Disgorge $60,000.

Mayor Taylor Promises that as a Result the Rate of Taxation Will Go Away Up—The Debenture Dispute at the Commissioners' Meeting.

The much-talked-of waterworks debentures promise to figure prominently in the approaching municipal campaign and will no doubt be handled by the ward politicians as "Exhibit A" when they begin to hanker after the breath of the electorate. The trouble which has been brewing between the Water Commissioners and the City Council over this matter was brought to a head on Saturday evening when the following letter was read from Mayor Taylor at the commissioners' meeting:

THE MAYOR'S PROPOSITION.

Dear Sir,—On the preliminary calculations for striking the rate for the current year a rate of 22 4-10 mills, is found to be necessary which can be reduced to 20 mills if the sum of $37,000 from the debenture issue on waterworks account can be made available. I think this ought to be easily arranged and if you can get Mr. Essery's confidence, I will advise the issue of the remaining $60,000, the balance of $23,000 to be left in the hands of the Water Commissioners until it is seen how much of it will be required and the $37,000 to be handed back to the city forthwith. If this cannot be agreed to, your Board must be prepared to assume the responsibility to the citizens for the higher rates. An immediate reply will oblige, as the estimates are now in hand. Yours respectfully,

GEORGE TAYLOR, mayor.

THE COMMISSIONERS' DEFENSE.

A few minutes silence which followed the reading of the communication was broken by Commissioner Essery who made the following motion:

That the letter of Oct 18 now read and signed by Mayor Taylor be entered upon the minutes and filed for future reference, and that the Secretary be instructed to inform the Mayor in reply that the Water Commissioners are not responsible for the actions of the City Council as to the rate of taxation they impose upon the citizens. Also that the Water Commissioners are further of the opinion and always have been, that a sufficient amount of waterworks debentures should be issued for, the purpose of providing for all the extraordinary expenses of the year, such as laying of mains in South London and other parts of the city and a few other necessary waterworks extensions, but they protest against waterworks debentures being issued for an electric light plant, cedar blocking and other municipal purposes as proposed by the Mayor and other members of the City Council.

Speaking in support of the motion he said: I think it is a fraud upon the citizens of London and the waterworks department, and upon the Ontario Legislature, that an attempt should be made to obtain debentures on a side wind. This is a broad statement to make, but I am prepared to prove it. It was the duty of the Mayor and Council if they wished to raise $60,000 for general city purposes to have obtained the money as provided for by statute. If money was to be issued for that purpose they should have been honest enough to have asked the Legislature for it. The Water Commissioners are willing to carry out the wording of the by-law authorizing the issuing of the debentures to the letter, but we are not going to be handicapped by a mayor who is serving two masters, because you all know the story of the man that served the two masters. The Mayor did not require to write such a letter as this one, and if my motion carries it will be recorded in the minutes. Had the city called for debentures for $60,000 for an electric light plant, the application would have been rejected, because the Legislature would have required a vote of the citizens, which would not be secured. This is the fourth time that the Mayor has made an attempt to place the commissioners in what he calls a tight place, and by the time this present job is settled, and he has appealed to the great bar of public opinion, he will find that he is no better off than on previous occasions. He will find that there is one commissioner who picks up his letter and bid him defiance. The Council charges the commissioners with dishonesty, but such is not the case. As a member of this Board I am not responsible for the rate of taxation outside of that fixed in the waterworks office.

Mayor Taylor, in reply, explained that $60,000 of the $130,000 was to be handed back to the Council should the commissioners not require it. The debentures read "for waterworks purposes," but it was understood that part of it should be applied to general purposes of the city. The compliance of the commissioners with the Council's request would insure a reduction in the city's rate of assessment. Last year the City Council decided to purchase an electric light plant, but there was no money forthcoming to pay for the purchase and the Council had no power to issue debentures, and so the above plan was resorted to. During the past five years about $60,000 has been spent by the commissioners in extensions in the city, and this was raised by direct taxation from the city. The aldermen decided that debentures should be issued for $130,000 and that the amount spent on capital account during the term would be returned to them. "The statement has been made," said the speaker, "that I was advised that I could not issue debentures for the purchase of an electric light plant. I was never so advised. The Council made application to raise $60,000 for general purposes, but this was eventually changed to $130,000 for waterworks purposes, on the understanding that the $60,000 would be handed back after the work of extending mains in London South and the purchase of the spring extensions had been effected." Continuing, the speaker said he thought the Council's action perfectly consistent and honest, and if the rate was not reduced the commissioners were responsible.

Chairman Davis then placed himself on record. He had allowed the discussion to go on, that each member might place himself on record before the public. As for himself, he said: "I will never be a party to the issuing of any debentures other than waterworks debentures. If the Council had kept faith with us I would have seen, as far as I was concerned, that we kept faith with them. I do not, however, think much of a man who assures me that he trusts me and then proceeds to lock up his valuables, and this is the course that the City Council has shown in dealing with the commissioners. The debentures read for $130,000 and we will spend all of that amount if we require it, but what we don't require is to go back to the Council. If the Council says anything else now, they are not acting fairly with this Board, and if the Council raises the rate of assessment they are responsible and not the Board of Water Commissioners. If the Council had acted fairly they would not be in the position that they now find themselves or compelled to levy so heavy a rate. For these reasons they now find themselves in the hole, and they are not going to get out with my vote.

Mayor Taylor—Well, suppose the Council was wrong in the stand they have taken. On account of the Council not doing what they should do, you are going to impose a rate almost 3 mills higher than need be.

Chairman Davis—I expect very soon to retire from public life, and I want to be only directly charged for moneys which I have had to do with in expenditure. When I was in the Council I had to do with expending money for hospitals, sewers, cedar blocking, etc., but I did not come to this Board for that purpose and I am not going to be charged with the expenditure of $60,000 with which I have had nothing to do. These are the reasons why I will second the motion.

The motion was then put and carried, Commissioner Essery and Chairman Davis voting for it, Mayor Taylor being recorded as a "nay."

Mayor Taylor moved a reduction in the rates to manufacturers.

Commissioner Essery said he could not see why the Mayor brought this matter before the Board unless that it was that elections were drawing near. The Mayor had brought forward no motion regarding rearranging the rates.

Mayor Taylor said he had brought the matter forward, but he had been told to leave the matter over.

Mr. Essery asked for figures which justified such action. He was against class legislation.

Mr. Davis moved in amendment that action be deferred until the entire subject of revision of rates came up. Mr. Essery seconded the amendment, and it was declared carried.

Inspector Platt reported that it would take 132 feet of pipe to supply the houses of Mr. Childs on Beecher street. The Board decided to lay the mains.

Mr. Thomas Marshall's communication respecting the copying of the rolls was again laid over.

The Board then adjourned.

Finance Notes.

On the Berlin Bourse business was stagnant during the week past. There was a steady fall in quotations.

At Paris the past week witnessed a general decline in prices on the Bourse. The downward movement was slightly checked Saturday.

On the London (Eng.) Stock Exchange Saturday the tone was more cheerful than for a week past. American railway securities were extremely depressed on Thursday, when New York buying altered. The tone encouraged a small flow of English buying. The reaction was marked.

The Dairy Markets.

LONDON.

At Saturday's cheese market 25 factories boarded 16,320 boxes, 355 being August make, and the remainder September and balance. No sales were made. For August, 9½c was offered, and for September and balance 10¼c. There is no doubt 10½c would have cleared the board, many being willing to accept 10½c. Contrary to the experience of former years the great bulk of September and balance, cheese is still in the hands of the factorymen. The advance at Liverpool has raised a helpful feeling among the factorymen, although values will have to move up several shillings before their expectations can be realized. The make during the past six weeks has been a heavy one and the factorymen are no doubt becoming desirous to unload. The latest cable advices show a firm feeling in finest goods, and some buyers state that choice Western Septembers, white or colored, cannot be had under 10½c in this market, while others say they have bought in the country at less money, so that 10c to 10½c would probably cover the range for finest. The Liverpool cable registered 49s today, an advance of 18d. Following were the factories represented:

—The police department has received the winter clothing supply. The uniforms will not be donned by the men just yet.

—The jury on the death of Augustus Depper, the old man who was found dead Saturday, returned a verdict of death from natural causes.

—D. M. Campbell, Banker street, just outside of the city limits, has some raspberries he has just picked from his garden. It is a new kind called the "Crimson Beauty," and while it is not as sweet as the usual growth, it is just as large, while the plants are bearing just as many. He has two rows all beaming.

—Lieut.-Col. Lewis, of London, Ont., late colonel of the Seventh Fusiliers and proprietor of the Ontario Stained Glass Works, arrived in the city yesterday on a trip to the coast, accompanied by his brother-in-law, John Inglis, of Toronto, head of the firm of John Inglis & Sons.—[Winnipeg Free Press.

—The following gentlemen were ordained to the eldership of St. Andrew's Church at the morning service Sunday after an interesting discourse by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Murray, on "Why We Are Presbyterians": Messrs. H. E. Nelles, C. McCallum, Geo. McGillivray, Jas. Gordon, Rev. Jas. Gordon, M.A., Geo. Cairncross, Robt. Morrison, M. Hutchinson, J. L. Gibson, J. M. Lochead.

—Mayor Taylor was spoken to this morning regarding the difficulty between the Council and Water Commissioners as to the debentures recently issued. "It would have been wiser to have had the $60,000 issued as general purpose debentures, no doubt," he said, "but it was Mr. Meredith's opinion that it could best be done in the way which we adopted—having the $130,000 issued as waterworks debentures with the residue to go to the Council for general purposes. The commissioners having used $60,000 of waterworks revenue in extending mains, instead of handing it over to the city, caused the City Solicitor to advise the action, with the idea that $130,000 was asked for, but $60,000 of the amount had already been spent.

A Terrible Accident.

A Windsor dispatch says: "Henry Kelsey, colored, aged 17 years, was determined to go to London Sunday morning, but got drunk and lost his ticket. He boarded the train, however, but the conductor put him off. Shortly afterwards he was found lying under the front wheels of the tender. When pulled out his face was covered with blood and his head terribly cut. It is thought that his skull is fractured. Kelsey no doubt received the wounds by falling on the rails.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

This always popular play will be presented in the Grand Opera House Thursday night, Oct. 23. The Hamilton Times thus speaks of the troupe: "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was presented at the Grand Opera House last evening before a large and well pleased audience. The play was well rendered and put on the stage in excellent style. The characters were finely represented. The two Marks and two Topsys did some excellent business. Eva was as angelic as ever and Uncle Tom as religiously inclined as of yore. Eliza was in the same dire distress as she has always been, Legree was as tough as they could make them, and the donkey and the bloodhounds looked like old friends. The company is a good one, and the piece was made as funny and entertaining as it well could be.

The New Comic Opera.

"The Sea King" will receive its initial production in London at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, Oct. 30, by the William J. Gilmore Opera Company. Much interest is taken in the event by the theater-going public, and certainly the announcements that are made warrant it, for few visiting companies have been better prepared to face criticisms. The cast includes no small number of recognized comic opera favorites, together with rich costumes designed by Baron de Grimm, scenery painted by Emens, Maeder and Schaeffer and a large and well-drilled chorus, the opera has every chance of pleasing the public of London as it did the New Yorkers, where it was given to the largest business ever accorded any opera organization at Palmer's theater the past summer.

Sunday School Anniversary Service.

The Sunday school anniversary services at the Wellington Street Methodist Church yesterday proved highly interesting. A crowded congregation greeted Rev. George Boyd, of the Queen's Avenue Methodist Church, in the morning. The reverend gentleman preached a sermon specially adapted for children and parents from the book of Samuel: "Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth." In the afternoon the Sunday School meeting, open to the public, was particularly attractive. Rev. W. J. Clark and Rev. Walter M. Roger gave appropriate addresses, which riveted the attention of all present. Rev. C. E. McIntyre preached in the evening from Psalm lxviii., 6. The musical portion of the services, conducted by Mr. A. Jones, was a feature of the day. Orchestration was included, those assisting being Messrs. Roselle Pococke, Creek, Gorman, Foote, Brown and Misses McDonald and A. Croden, together with Miss Dance, of Detroit. Miss Boothe presided at the organ with her usual efficiency. A concert will be given this evening.

WHEN WILL THE GOOD TIME COME?

Christian Guardian.

Truly, in a commercial sense, the many different nations are members of one body; and one member cannot suffer without affecting the well-being of the others. Is the time coming when nations, as such, will be as watchful and concerned about each other's religious welfare as they are about the ebb and flow of trade?

YOU ARE YOURSELF RESPONSIBLE.

Christian Guardian.

Many of our temperance people have not waked up to the fact that the legislation of the last session of the Ontario Legislative Assembly has given us an important local option law, which may be used with good effect to restrict and repress the liquor traffic. This act provides that any township, city, town, or incorporated village may by a popular vote secure the prohibition of the traffic within its limits. The township of Lanark has led off in this movement. The Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance refers to this in a recent address as follows: "The first voting under the new Local Option Law took place on Friday, Sept. 12, in the township of Lanark. A very good vote was cast, and nearly every woman who was on the voters' list for the township went to the polls. The fight was a hard one, but the result was a grand victory for our cause. Prohibition was carried by a majority of 105. We 'thank God and take courage.'"

DON'T LET THEM BAMBOOZLE YOU.

Winnipeg Free Press.

In the Dominion contest which is approaching it is desirable to avoid all questions that are calculated or intended to cloud the real issue. This is both calculated and intended to serve that purpose. The United States is not endeavoring to force Canada into annexation, and it is therefore not shaping its fiscal policy with that object in view. We are making entirely too much of ourselves to suppose or to suffer ourselves to believe anything of the kind. When we are asked, therefore, to support a jingo policy as an answer to the designs of the United States, we shall do well to disbelieve the professions that are advanced as a sufficient reason for it. When we are told that the United States is hostile, and that it would ill become us to manifest the least meekness of spirit in the face of that hostility, we shall do well to put it down as buncomb. When any attempt is made to complicate the one square issue on the trade question by references or representations to the effect that the United States is anxious to gobble up Canada, and that it will not trade with us on fair terms under any condition, we shall do well to conclude that the person so representing is either a demagogue or himself the victim of demagogy.

SOUND WORK.

Christian Union.

Carlyle's instinct was sound when it fixed upon honesty and veracity as the foundations of character, and exalted the Germanic races because they possessed these fundamental traits. Without honesty and veracity the superstructure of character, however ample and beautiful, rests on an insecure foundation. With honesty and veracity at the base, the widest opportunities, the greatest gifts, and the most ample fortune may be possessed and used without fear of deterioration. Carlyle's instinct was equally true when it fastened upon the soundness of old English workmanship as the best evidence of English veracity and honesty. To do the thing one has in hand thoroughly and competently is to give the only convincing proof, to furnish the only overwhelming demonstration, of the possession of honesty and veracity. No man can be thoroughly honest and true whose work is slipshod, careless and incompetent. Character expresses itself in work. As a man does with his brain or his hand, so is he in his heart, and there is nothing which reveals him so unmistakably as his work. Good faith with himself and with his fellows demands of each man that, whatever else he may fail to do, his work from day to day shall be done thoroughly and competently, not because this is the first duty, but because it is the expression of his character. No one can hope to gain the force and impulse of a strong life whose work does not bear the impress of an inward honesty, which is so much a part of the nature that every piece of work is done as if in the doing of it lay the whole duty of life. Longfellow has reminded us that in older times builders fashioned every detail with the greatest care, because the gods see everywhere. An honest man does his whole work honestly, not because it is to be supervised and examined, but because he is incapable of doing it in any other way.

Desperate Remedies

By Thomas Hardy,

AUTHOR OF "A PAIR OF BLUE EYES," "THE TRUMPET-MAJOR," ETC.

In bed and in the dark, Miss Aldclyffe haunted her mind more persistently than ever. Instead of sleeping, she called up staring visions of the possible past of this queenly lady, her mother's rival. Up the vista of bygone years she saw, behind all, the young lady's flirtation, little or much, with the cousin, that seemed to have been nipped in the bud, or to have terminated nastily in some way. Then the secret meeting between Miss Aldclyffe and the other woman at the little inn at Hammersmith and other places; the commonplace name she adopted; her swoon at some painful news, and the very slight knowledge the elder female had of her partner in mystery. Then, more than a year afterwards, the acquaintanceship of her own father with this his first love; the awakening of the passion, his acts of devotion, the unreasoning heat of his rapture, her tacit acceptance of it, and yet her uneasiness under the delight. Then his declaration amid the evergreens; the utter change produced in her manner thereby, seemingly the result of a rigid determination, and the total concealment of the reason by herself and her parents, whatever it was. Then the lady's course dropped into darkness, and nothing more was visible till she was discovered here at Knapwater, nearly fifty years old, still unmarried and still beautiful, but lonely, embittered, and haughty. Cytherea imagined that her father's image was still warmly cherished in Miss Aldclyffe's heart, and was thankful that she herself had not been betrayed into announcing that she knew many particulars of this page of her father's history, and the chief one, the lady's unaccountable renunciation of him. It would have made her bearing towards the mistress of the mansion more awkward, and would have been no benefit to either.

Thus conjuring up the past and theorizing on the present, she lay restless, changing her posture from one side to the other and back again. Finally, when courting sleep with all her art, she heard a clock strike 2. A minute later, and she fancied she could distinguish a soft rustle in the passage outside the room.

To bury her head in the sheets was her first impulse; then to uncover it, raise herself on her elbow, and stretch her eyes wide open in the darkness; her lips being parted with the intentness of her listening. Whatever the noise was, it had ceased for the time.

It began again and came close to her door lightly touching the panels. Then there was another stillness; Cytherea made a movement which caused a faint rustling of the bed-clothes.

Before she had time to think another thought a light tap was given. Cytherea breathed; the person outside was evidently bent upon finding her awake, and the rustle she had made encouraged the hope. The maiden's physical condition shifted from one pole to the opposite. The cold sweat of terror forsook her, and modesty took the alarm. She became hot and red; her door was not locked.

Only one being knew her Christian name in the house and that was Miss Aldclyffe. Cytherea stepped out of the bed and went to the door, and whispered back "Yes?"

"Let me come in, darling."

The young woman paused in a conflict between judgment and emotion. It was now mistress and maid no longer; woman and woman only. Yes she must let her come in, poor thing.

She got a light in an instant, opened the door, and raising her eyes and the candle, saw Miss Aldclyffe standing outside in her dressing-gown.

"Now you see that it is really myself; put out the light," said the visitor. "I want to stay here with you, Cythie. I came to ask you to come down into my bed, but its snugger here. But remember, you are mistress in this room, and that I have no business here, and that you may send me away if you choose. Shall I go?"

"Oh, no; you shan't indeed if you don't want to," said Cythie, generously.

The instant they were in bed Miss Aldclyffe freed herself from the last remnant of restraint. She flung her arms round the young girl, and pressed her gently to her heart.

"Now kiss me," she said.

Cytherea gave her a very small one, as soft in touch and in sound as the bursting of a bubble.

"More earnestly than that—come."

She gave another, a little but not much more expressively.

"I don't deserve a more feeling one I suppose," said Miss Aldclyffe, with an emphasis of sad bitterness in her tone, "I am an ill-tempered woman, you think; half out of my mind. Well, perhaps I am; but I have had grief more than you can think or dream of. But I can't help loving you—your name is the same as mine—isn't it strange?"

Cytherea was inclined to say no, but remained silent.

"Now, don't you think I must love you?" continued the other.

"Yes," said Cytherea, absently. She was still thinking whether duty to Owen and her father, which asked for silence on her knowledge of her father's unfortunate love, or duty to the woman embracing her, which seemed to ask for confidence, ought to predominate. Here was a solution. She would wait till Miss Aldclyffe referred to her acquaintanceship and attachment to Cytherea's father in past times; then she would tell her all she knew; that would be honor.

"Why can't you kiss me as I can kiss you? Why can't you." She impressed upon Cytherea's lips a warm motherly salute, given as if in the outburst of strong feeling, long checked, and yearning for something to love, and be loved by in return.

"Do you think badly of me for my behavior this evening, child? I don't know why I am so foolish as to speak to you in this way. I am a very fool, I believe. Yes. How old are you?"

"Eighteen."

"Eighteen! Well, why don't you ask me how old I am!"

"Because I don't want to know."

"Never mind if you don't. I am 46; and it gives me greater pleasure to tell you this than it does to you to listen. I have not told my age truly for the last twenty years till now."

"Why haven't you."

"I have met deceit by deceit, till I am weary of it—very weary—and I long to be what I shall never be again—artless, and innocent, like you. But I suppose that you, too, will prove to be not worth a thought, as every new friend does on more intimate knowledge. Come, why don't you talk to me, child? Have you said your prayers?"

"Yes—no. I forgot them to-night."

"I suppose you say them every night as a rule."

"Yes."

"Why do you do that?"

"Because I have always done so, and it would seem strange if I were not to. Do you?"

"I? A wicked old sinner like me. No, I never do. I have thought all such matters humbug for years—thought so long that I should be glad to think otherwise from very weariness; and yet such is the polite world, that I subscribe regularly to missonary societies and others of the sort. Well, say your prayers, dear—you won't omit them now you recollect it. I should like to hear you very much. Will you?"

"It seems hardly——"

"It would soom so like old times to me—when I was young, and nearer—far nearer Heaven than I am now. Do sweet one."

Cytherea was embarrassed, and her embarrassment arose from the following conjuncture of her affairs. Since she had loved Edward Springrove, she had linked his name with her brother Owen's in her nightly supplications to the Almighty. She wished to keep her love for him a secret, and, above all, a secret from a woman like Miss Aldclyffe; yet her conscience and the honesty of her love would not for an instant allow her to think of omitting his dear name, and so endanger the efficacy of all her previous prayers for his success by an unworthy shame now; it would be wicked of her, she thought, and a grievous wrong to him. Under any worldly circumstances she might have thought the position justified a little finesse, and have skipped him for once; but prayer was too solemn a thing for such trifling.

"I would rather not say them," she murmured first. It struck her then that this declining altogether was the same cowardice in another dress, and was delivering her poor Edward over to Satan just as unceremonously as before. "Yes; I will say my prayers and you shall hear me," she added, firmly.

She turned her face to the pillow and repeated in low soft tones the simple words she had used from childhood on such occasions. Owen's name was mentioned without faltering, but in the other case, maidenly shyness was too strong even for religion, and that when supported by excellent intentions. At the name of Edward she stammered, and her voice sank to the faintest whisper in spite of her.

"Thank you, dearest," said Miss Aldclyffe. "I have prayed too, I verily believe. You are a good girl, I think." Then the expected question came.

"Bless Owen and whom did you say?"

There was no help for it now, and out it came. "Owen and Edward," said Cytherea.

"Who are Owen and Edward?"

"Owen is my brother, madam," faltered the maid.

"Ah, I remember. Who is Edward?"

A silence.

"Your brother, too?" continued Miss Aldclyffe.

"No."

—In the course of his sermon at London West Methodist Church, Rev. William McDonagh referred to all Christian Scientists as infidels, and said that "persons who went to them for treatment were fools—yes, worse than fools." He referred to the alleged readiness of newspapers to publish columns regarding trouble in any church, and declared that the very same papers begrudged a report of a few inches for a sermon.

—On Saturday evening a young lady, Miss Margaret Lowry, was knocked down by a buggy on the corner of King and Wellington streets. The man who was driving was an implement agent in business on Talbot street. He was speeding the horse, as he was thinking to purchase it. Joe Hess.

The Hamilton correspondent of the Globe says: "Joe Hess, the temperance reformer, bade good-bye to his Hamilton friends Friday at a meeting in the Palace Rink. He had received a message from Buffalo stating that his mother was alarmingly ill. Hess has addressed very large meetings during his short stay here and made himself a favorite with his hearers. Six hundred pledges were signed during the week's meetings, and the ladies of the W. C. T. U. believe that much good was accomplished by the cheery, good-natured evangelist."

Service of Thanksgiving.

The annual thanksgiving service was held on Sunday at the Church of the Hosanna, Hyde Park, Rev. Canon Richardson, of the Memorial Church, this city, officiating, assisted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Diehl. The church was beautifully decorated with fruit, flowers, grain and the various products of the land, the contrasting colors forming a beautiful picture and demonstrating the taste of the ladies of the congregation and those who so kindly assisted in the work. The sermon was taken from Genesis viii., 22: "While the earth remaineth seed time and harvest and cold and heat and summer and winter and day and night shall not cease." The congregation taxed the capacity of the church to the utmost. After an eloquent sermon a liberal offertory was taken, amounting to $46 46, which will be applied to the building fund.

WHAT A FAMILY COSTS.

Extract From the Diary of a Practical Man—Shoes Beat Everything.

What does it cost to bring up a family? A gentleman, whose experience will be recognized as having points in common with other householders, has preserved an account of the expense to which he has been in rearing a family of four children. To-day he entered the following statement in his diary. It might be a valuable fact for the census takers:

"To-day I close my diary. Twenty-six years ago to-day I undertook to keep an accurate statement of all my earnings and expenses, so that I might know actually how much it costs to live in a married state. Then all was anticipation. I and my young wife counted our resources and our expectations. I received $15 a week, with the promise of more. I owned a house comfortable enough for frugal young people to begin life in. We were spared house rent, therefore, and our expenses have never included this item. Retrospectively, I see that we have brought up four children in comparatively easy circumstances. My health has been good, and my earnings have been constantly received. I now receive $30 a week, and we still own the homestead, without any great additions to its wealth except in an increased amount of furniture. I have little more money than I had when first married. Perhaps, all told, I have $3,500 now of assets, then I had perhaps $2,500. We have never wanted for bread. Sometimes we have felt in need of more money. Three of the children are now making their own way. Next week the fourth graduates at the high school, having received the same schooling that the others have had, and will begin to look out for himself.

"I shall not necessarily be at any more expense on account of my children, and the diary properly ends now. Would I be able to go through the same experience again of raising a family? I asked my companion, who had borne the greater part, this question, and I know that she spoke with a heart full of love, but was compelled to say: 'Not for all that money could buy would I go through again what has been necessary to rear a family.

"Expressed in dollars the totals are these: In 26 years we have received from my wages and incidental moneys that came through my wife and children, $40,900—or, say $40,000—besides the amount of increase in the permanent assets. Given a plant of about $3,000 and two employes, a man and wife, it has taken, therefore, about $10,000 to each man produced. This, of course, included all employes' expenses. The plant is slightly enhanced in value, but the employes have seen their best days. The quality of the goods is yet to be demonstrated. Prospects happily point to cessation of labor and an increase of receipts, but there is no certainty about this. The employes are proud of their work, but don't want another job.

"Some of the items of expense have been these: Doctor's bills (27 years), $2,100 (and all paid, probably the only instance on record); groceries, average per week first five years, $7; next three, $9; remainder of the 26 years, $43 a week. For ten years it has taken on an average one pair of shoes per week for the family, including myself and wife. The most annoying thing I have ever known is the rapidity with which children wear out shoes. Only one thing approaches it—the high price of children's shoes. I never could understand how, with all the civilization of the age and the demand for cheaper results, children's shoes have not been reduced in price. The human shoe is a failure. No man not rich can afford to buy shoes for a family, and if I had it to do I would go to Timbuctoo, where neither horses, mules, camels nor men are shod."

Not Loaded, by Any Means.

Miss Terriut—When mommer and I were in Yurrup, oh, the awfulest thing happened! There was a prince—and a count—and—and they fought a duel—about poor me—with pistols.

Yabsley—Ah! were they loaded?

Miss Turriut—No, they weren't! They were just as sober as could be.
