Mail Contract

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the Postmaster General will be received at Ottawa until noon on Friday, the 3rd of June, 1921, for the conveyance of His Majesty's Mails, on a proposed contract for four years, six times per week, on the route, East Baltic Rural Mail Route No. 1, from the first October next.

Canadian-West Land Regulations

The sole holder of a family or any male over 18 years of age, who was at the commencement of the present war and who has since continued to be a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta.

A settler after obtaining homesteaded patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Prices $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and a house worth $300.00.

When Dominion Lands are surveyed or posted for entry, returns of soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agent). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence status under certain conditions.

Unique Letter of Bishop Koudelka

(Catholic Bulletin.)
(Through the kindness of Mgr. F. J. Mueller, chaplain of St. Mary's Hospital, Superior, Wis., we take pleasure in publishing the following letter. It was placed in his hands by the late Bishop Koudelka, of Superior, to be kept private until after the Bishop's death.—Ed. Note.)

I am feeling that my strength is giving way. Is it a premonition of approaching death? I greet death as my best friend, who will deliver me from this valley of tears and open the gates of eternal bliss to me. O Death, my friend, I greet thee, thou art welcome to me! I am now putting down a few notes, expressions of my will and intentions, should death overtake me. (Here follow certain personal directions, and then the letter continues:) I desire that my funeral be as simple as possible, no costly coffin and wordly show of pomp. I die a poor sinner, craving only God's mercy. I forgive with a cheerful heart all who think that they have offended me, and humbly I ask pardon of all whom I may have grieved or offended. May God be merciful to me!

I thank the priests of my diocese for all their kindness, respect and loyalty shown to me. I hope they will remain true and devoted priests to their dying hour: "non quarenes quas sustinet Jesu Christi," loving poverty, detesting money, and especially avoiding the narrow spirit of nationalism, the cause of so much uncharitableness among priests and injury to the Church. I suffered under it, but I carry no grudge against anyone. I forgive all with my whole heart, even as I hope that God will forgive me. I thank the many clerical friends outside of the diocese who helped me with Mass Intentions to support my needy priests, and especially that institution of Christian charity, the St. Joseph Orphan Home. The good Sisterhoods who have been of so great help to me will, I know, continue to remember me in their prayers. Their prayers have been my strength in life, they will be my relief in the next world.

And my little darlings, the darlings of the most Sacred Heart—my orphan children—how I love them! For them and their comfort I would sacrifice my life. I know they will pray for me, and God will hear the prayer of their innocent hearts. Dear and beloved children, pray for me every day, especially at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, and offer for me, as often as you can, the Holy Communion. God will be merciful to me on account of your innocent prayers.

For all eternity will I thank God for the gift of the true faith. I will bless His mercy for ever, I preached the Catholic truth all over the United States, especially among the Slav people in the East. Since I became bishop I gave over one hundred missions outside the work in my own diocese. Through these missions I brought thousands back to peace with God—made them happy here and prepared them for happiness in the world to come. The prayers of these converted sinners will plead for me at the throne of our Heavenly Father.

HEARTBURN.

The very common trouble, especially with those who are hearty eaters. There is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach, attended by disturbed appetite, caused by great acidity. MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

My body shall be buried in Cleveland in St. Mary's cemetery, among the children of St. Prokop's and St. Michael's congregations; under the green sod, where also my parents rest. I trust in the boundless mercy of Jesus, which I preached hundreds of times on my missions, to fill the hearts of poor sinners with confidence and love—I trust in the Blood which my Saviour, for whom I sacrificed my life, has poured out for me on Calvary, May it wash out all my sins! And thou, sweetest Mother Mary, Queen of Priests in a special way—whom I loved so tenderly since my childhood—I hope to see thy immaculate beauty in heaven. Come to the rescue of thy unworthy child! Mary, divine mother, pray for me at the hour of my death! O holy Joseph, my patron, whose name I received in baptism, my best father and protector, assist me in my journey to Jesus! My dear Guardian Angel intercede for me, a poor sinner.

An Electric Rosary
In St. Mary's Church, Quincy, Ill., there has been installed the only thing of its kind in the world, an electric rosary—a mammoth rosary with the beads formed of miniature light bulbs of different colors. The rosary was first exhibited to the public on a recent Sunday afternoon, when it was unveiled by Rosa Zwick, the ten-year-old daughter of the inventor and patentee. The effect of the illuminating of the rosary is startlingly beautiful.

The electric rosary at St. Mary's Church surrounds the figure of the Virgin Mary painted by Sister Engelberta, the venerable member of the staff of St. Mary's Academy teachers, who has devoted her life to the giving of instruction in the art of painting. The pendant cross is flanked by lilies, and in scrolls are the words Sancta Maria and Ora Pro Nobis, the whole enclosed in a heavy frame. The inventor, Frank Zwick, worked on the idea of an illuminated rosary for use in churches for several years before reaching that degree of perfection that warranted him in applying for a patent, and the papers were only recently received from the patent office in Washington.

The electric rosary is in dimensions 6x2 feet, and the illumination is done by sixty-six miniature bulbs, the lights switched on and off by a button, as in all such clustered lamps. The effect in a darkened auditorium is really beautiful and as well as impressive in forming part of the church service. Mr. Zwick has given to the church and to the world the first electric rosary, and is proud of the fact, and hopes to live to see it introduced in all Catholic Churches located where electric current is available.

Press In Palestine

Four Catholic periodicals, which began their career in the Holy City with the opening of the new year, are making progress and doing a good work in promoting activity in behalf of Catholic interests in Palestine.

The Latin Patriarchate of the Holy Land inaugurated an Arabic monthly, Raghib-Sabine (The Sentinel of Zion), which has since become a bi-weekly. The Custody of the Holy Land has issued La Terre Sainte, La Terra Santa, and La Tierra Santa, in French, Italian and Spanish, as the respective names indicate.

The three last-named publications are intended to supply the needs for periodicals regarding Palestine in countries where the Commissariats of the Holy Land do not publish a Crusader's Almanac.

Watch Your Stomach.
DON'T GET DYSPEPSIA.
Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach, there is to cure. You eat too much. Drink too much. Use too much tobacco. You make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of a short time before dyspepsia follows.

Canada And Its Timber

Our Canadian grandfathers, many of them, held tree an enemy, and spent their lives harraying them with fire and axe. Some of their grandchildren hold that man an enemy who cuts down any tree in any place. The attitude is in both cases illogical. If a tree is worth more than anything else that will grow on a particular piece of land, then it should be protected till it is mature; and on the other hand there is no virtue in abstaining for ten years from cutting down a mature forest in the hope that the quantity of timber will be greater at the end than at the beginning of that time. It has been ascertained by foresters that in mature forests the gain from the growth of the younger trees is offset by the loss through the death and decay of the older trees. A mature forest ought to be cut down and marketed as soon as conditions are favorable, but if the land is not suited to grow agricultural crops provision should be made for bringing on a new crop of trees, and to protect that crop from fire and insects. To do this economically is the work of the forest engineer, that representative of the new profession to which so many young Canadians are turning. Canadians whose country owes so much to wood, should pride themselves on knowing what the different timber terms mean. Sometimes persons speak of a certain article as made of deal. When they are asked what kind of tree deal is they are at a loss. As a matter of fact deal is not a kind of tree but a piece of wood. A board is one inch thick; a plank, two inches thick; and a deal three inches thick. The word is not used in the lumber trade in the United States, and in Canada it is chiefly used in connection with the shipment of timber to Great Britain. It is shipped in this form because it is a convenient size for certain British wood-working industries. Since deals are chiefly made of spruce, balsam fir, pine and sometimes hemlock, a secondary use of the word in England is to indicate some kind of "soft" wood, or wood from a cone-bearing tree. In Canada, however, the word is not used in this sense and "deal" always means a piece of wood of a certain thickness. Airplanes were used in the latter part of last season in patrolling Dominion forests reserves in the West and the experiment will be continued and developed this season. This is the latest method of patrol, but patrols will be continued with the aid of horses, canoes, launches, and railway velocipedes, and on foot. Hundreds of miles of telephone lines have been erected on Dominion forests to give quick communication between look-out stations and forest headquarters. Lookout men stationed on mountain peaks or high towers scan the horizon throughout the danger season and send in warning at the first sign of smoke that fire-fighters may be sent at once to the spot. Where there are no telephone lines a system of flash-light signalling, using heliograph by day and lanterns by night, has been worked out. So far as the funds available permit the most modern methods and devices are employed to protect the forest reserves in our Dominion forests.

One of the great leaders in forest conservation says that the most harmful thing ever written about forests was the poem beginning: "Woodman, woodman spare that tree."

This may seem odd at first sight but the point the forester desired to make was that the object of forest conservation is not sentimental but practical. The forester protects forests from fire and other enemies not for the sake of the trees but for the sake of men and women. When forest trees are ripe they should be cut and put to some use, as quickly as possible. There is no more virtue in keeping a forest till it is over-ripe than in keeping a field of wheat uncut when it is fit for the reaper. Until a forest is ready for the saw it should be protected, and when cut down the soil on which it stood, if not fit for agriculture, should be left in shape for the immediate starting of another crop of trees. Of course, the commercial forester, while primarily concerned in growing forests for the saw, does not ignore the immense value, both practical and sentimental, of park and roadside trees. It pains him to see a fine tree butchered because of ignorance or carelessness, and he realizes that the cause of forest conservation gains much from the support of men and women whose interest is not so much in the forest as a whole as in some individual tree or grove. Thus all citizens, whether they think of the commercial side, or of the condition of the trees around their homes, can join wholeheartedly in the work of forest conservation.

Disarmament Conference

Some progress with the question of disarmament should result from the passage by the House of Representatives at Washington of Senator Borah's resolution, which had previously passed the Senate, calling upon the President to confer with the Governments of Great Britain and Japan on the suggestion for a curtailment in naval armament over a period of five years. The vote on the resolution reflects the growing interest of the American people in the question. It was adopted by a vote of 330 to 4. President Harding, who had not hitherto shown much enthusiasm for proposals of the kind, indicated a change in sentiment in a message to the Republican House Leader, advising that his attitude should be favorable to world disarmament. It is now up to the United States to take the initiative. There has been indication from Britain and Japan that they will gladly approach the question in conference with the United States. The way should be open to better understanding on the matter among these three nations, at any rate. London Daily News: In a fine passage in his speech at Manchester recently, Mr. Asquith defined what he held to be "the greatest, the most fruitful and the one really permanent lesson of the war." "The war has taught, or ought to teach, mankind," he said, "the independence, moral, social and economic of all the communities which make up the civilized world." Yes; but where will the reader, glancing through today's news, find any evidence that the lesson has been taken to heart? He need not stray far into the civilized world to test the matter. We have our communities at home, and any who cares to do so can examine for himself how far the truth of their "independence" is recognized.

Character Sketch

BY A PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT (Charlottetown Guardian)

That Prince Edward Island's interests are fully represented in the present Dominion Parliament, is indisputable, and it is gratifying to know that the government is in complete sympathy with the needs of the Garden province. During the past four years Mr. James McIsaac, M. P., has proved himself not only a worthy representative but one of the most energetic and enterprising members of the House of Commons and it is safe to say that the Island has never had a representative more trustworthy and dependable in every respect. Mr. McIsaac has won for himself an enviable record during his term in Parliament, and he has done so by the judicious exercise of talents which unfortunately do not characterize all the members of Parliament. The subject of this sketch is a forceful speaker, and a convincing debater, and it is generally admitted that for purity of diction and vigour of language his speeches rank with the best in the House. While his language is never pedantic—the modesty of his character, the sincerity of his manner, and the severe common sense of his opinions would belie the suggestion—it is nevertheless always free from any taint of trite colloquialism or hackneyed quotation, and is seldom without a literary flavour. To the most prosaic subject he can impart the charm of rhetoric, and this with a natural facility and grace that at once command admiration and rebut the charges of affectation, and like Gladstone, even forbidding facts and figures he can present in a verbal dress that robs them of half their ordinary dullness. In this respect Mr. McIsaac is emphatically the old school of orators and rhetoricians, of whom almost the only other surviving example is Sir George Foster. In these days of rush, it is difficult to find in parliamentary life a man who can truthfully be called an orator; the art of elocution is no longer studied in connection with politics. Some members of Parliament make brilliant speeches; most of them make merely grammatically precise statements of fact; very few deliver orations. And in the latter category Mr. McIsaac finds a prominent place. Whatever he says, he always says with feeling; his utterances are extempore and are therefore charged with the passion of the moment, and in this very fact lies his power in debate. Unfettered by staid obedience to memory, he can pursue his logical conclusion without fear of losing the main thread of his remarks. With the rare gift of repartee, too, he is amply endowed, as more than one member of the Opposition knows from experience. He never seeks to perpetrate a joke, but he can promptly turn the tables, and from a vast store of anecdotes he is rarely at a loss to apply an apt allusion to the discomfiture of an opponent. Mr. D. D. McKean, quondam leader of the Opposition, on one occasion shortly after Mr. McIsaac's debut in Parliament, mistaking his reserve for timidity on the part of the latter, ventured upon remarks calculated to discredit him. Mr. McIsaac, amid loud applause from his confederates and constrained laughter from Liberal benches, so completely and effectively routed that gentleman that he has ever since entertained a wholesome respect for, and kept at a discreet distance from, the member for Kings. Among his accomplishments, Mr. McIsaac has the valuable ability to understand, and fairly fluently to speak, the French language, and several times—once in a house in a request from the other side to say something in French—he has acquitted himself with distinction in this direction. Mr. McIsaac is held in high esteem outside of his own party, and he is one of the few members of Parliament who are kindly regarded in every quarter, irrespective of political affiliation. While politically he is uncompromising in his allegiance to the party with which he has cast his lot, personally he is a most agreeable companion, and his friendliness is sought by everyone; for his sense of honor, his scrupulous regard for truth, and his frank attitude to improper conversation mark him as a sober counsellor in serious discussion. One of the happiest of his characteristics is his admirable sense of the fitness of things—a faculty that is deplorably rare in Parliament. Mr. McIsaac will not speak unless he has something definitely helpful to contribute to the deliberations of House or Committee, and because he refrains from the irritating habit of teasing ministers in Supply, his representations are received with the greater courtesy and consideration and seldom fail of their purpose. But Mr. McIsaac's highest attribute is his jealous regard for the sanctity of his pledged word; and this is pre-eminently characteristic of the man. He never makes rash promises, for every undertaking which he gives, he is determined to carry out. He considers the circumstances, weighs the probabilities, and makes allowances for every obstacle; and in the light of mature judgment he either gladly pledges his help or withholds any promise. Whenever he gives a promise, therefore, he carries with it the assurance that its fulfilment will be a matter of course, so far as his own power and influence are able to secure that end. Altogether, the member for King's, Prince Edward Island, is a representative in the fullest sense of the word, and in him the province from which he comes, and the constituency whose interests he particularly and zealously espouses, have a member of whom they may justly be proud.

Appreciate Services

Of Governor General

A cablegram of appreciation of his services while Governor General of Canada has been received by the Duke of Devonshire from the Secretary of State for the Colonies. The cablegram is as follows: "His Majesty's Government have observed with great pleasure the terms of high appreciation in which your services as Governor General of Canada are acknowledged in an address presented to you at the closing of Parliament, and in the speeches on the Address made in both Houses. They are much gratified to note the recognition in all quarters of your devotion to Canada, and Canadian interests during your term of office, and they feel that you have thoroughly rendered notable service to the whole Empire. I should be glad if you will communicate this telegram to your Government." "CHURCHILL, Secretary of State for the Colonies." Improved Relations

Home, July 1.—Secret negotiations between the Catholic Church and Italian Government have been practically completed for renewal of relations between the Vatican and Quirinal after being severed more than forty years. Neither side is willing to admit officially that negotiations for resumption of relations have been finally crowned with success owing to expected opposition by Socialists, but a propitious time is being awaited when the announcement can be made timely. This moment is expected to fall due next autumn, when the body of Pope Leo the Thirteenth will be transferred from St. Peter's Church to the Cathedral Church, where he expressed his desire to be interred and where his empty vault awaits him. On this occasion Pope Benedict will leave the Vatican—for the first time any Pope left it since 1870—and march with the procession escorting Leo's remains through the streets of Rome between files of Italian soldiers and

Heat Wave Hits Ottawa

Ottawa sweltered again over the week-end in the throes of a continued wave. Wednesday was recorded as one of the hottest days this year, and at two o'clock in the afternoon the mercury had climbed to 95 degrees. The intense heat, however, was slightly modified by a slight westerly breeze, which helped considerably in preventing any possible heat prostrations. Although thousands had journeyed to cooler spots for the holiday period, the local parks were again the Mecca for those who remained in town. Rockcliffe Park was visited by hundreds of persons, who took advantage of the opportunity to stay cool until late during the evening. Britannia also drew its hundreds all day long. Every available piece of pleasure craft was pressed into service, with the result that the rivers below and around Rockcliffe and at Britannia and along the Rideau were crowded with boats of all sizes. Automobiles took many to shaded nooks, and an endless stream of cars to the Gutierrez district were to be seen bound in that direction. The weather man sees no immediate prospect of relief from the heat wave which has centred over Ontario and western Quebec for several days. The programme is fair and warm for each day. The high temperature, however, seems to be moving eastward, and relief may come very soon. Since Saturday rain has fallen over the western provinces, while Ontario has been sweltering, but they are promised fair and warm weather for Monday. Manitoba will be comparatively cool soon, with some showers. Saskatchewan will see the tail end of the rain clouds while Alberta will feel the temperature rising again.

A bad electrical storm at Montreal on the 8th interrupted to a considerable extent telegraphic service.

Two polar bears with Ringling Brothers' circus, at Schenectady, N. Y., succumbed to the extreme heat. One of them had been packed in ice.

The priests of this diocese are attending their annual retreat at St. Dunstan's University this week. Rev. Father Coyle, S. J., is conducting the exercises of the retreat.

Harold Munro, aged 19, dislocated his neck when he struck his head on bottom in diving at the Parkdale Toronto Canoe Club into four feet of water. He died a few hours later.

A local machinery concern at Hamilton, Ont. has received an order for a thresher to be shipped to Palestine. This is the company's first business dealings with the Holy Land.

According to intelligence from Edmonton, Alberta, wireless telephones may be used by forest rangers, in their duties to protect the reserves in the vicinity of Lesser Slave Lake.

A young lad named Smith, whose parents reside at Minden, Ont., was drowned in Gull river while trying to walk a taut rope over the water. He was a good swimmer and it is believed he was a victim of heart failure.

The Dominion cabinet on the 7th passed an order in council setting aside a portion of the moneys to be received from the expeditionary force canteen fund to be used for the purpose of relief among indigent veterans of the late war.

The city's water supply of Allantown, Pa., was cut off several hours during an invasion by an enormous army of frogs. They clogged the filters and mains and were extracted with difficulty.

Following a terrible hail, rain and electrical storm, which swept the Canora, Saskatchewan district, an astral phenomenon in the shape of a comet tore through a clear sky in a rain of sparks and exploded leaving a small cloud in the sky.

Charles H. Jackson of Brockton, Mass whose friends claimed he was the largest man in the world, died at the hospital in Cambridge on the 6th. In 1916 he weighed 630 pounds but a five years illness had reduced him to 400 pounds. He was 61 years old and was six feet tall.

Great Britain, through Premier Lloyd George, on the 11th, virtually accepted President Harding's invitation to participate in a disarmament conference. Addressing the House of Commons, Lloyd George said he welcomed with the utmost pleasure Harding's "wise and courteous initiative." "No effort will be lacking on the part of the British Empire to make the proposed conference a success," Lloyd George said.

Miss Phoebe J. Fairgrave, 18 years old, of St. Paul, Minn., established what was said to be a new world's record for a parachute drop for women when she dropped 16,200 feet from an airplane at Curtiss Flying Field near that city on the 10th. It took exactly twenty minutes from the time Miss Fairgrave leaped until she alighted safely in a wheat field. "It was terrible," said Miss Fairgrave later. "I never want to try again."

A very singular accident happened in the blacksmith shop of M. Bailey, Winchester, Ont., on the 7th, by which William Link, of Cass Bridge, lost a valuable horse, worth, it is claimed, over $200. The horse, which was a highly excitable and nervous animal, was taken in to be shod. Above its head hung an electric wire for light. The horse, in its nervous state, made a snap at the wire, and caught it in its teeth. It immediately fell to the floor dead. There was no mark of burning about the horse's mouth.

William Craig of Tryon, 16 years of age, while bathing, with two other young men, in Lord's mill pond, North Tryon, on Monday last, went beyond his depth and, unable to swim, was drowned before he could be rescued by his companions. The body was recovered about forty minutes after the occurrence; but despite medical efforts resuscitation was unavailable.

The schooner Maud, of Captain Amundsen, the Arctic explorer, has been found by the United States coastguard cutter Bear, and both vessels now are at Whalen, Siberia, the Treasury Department at Washington recently announced. A radio message from the Bear, sent out to find the Amundsen craft, which the explorer was forced to abandon, when it became frozen in the ice, stated that the cutter would tow the explorer's ship to Nome, Alaska, as soon as weather moderated. Amundsen and the crew recently reached Alaska. Whalen is a small Siberian village about 200 miles from Nome.

Paris is sweltering in unusually hot weather and a rush for the seaside resorts is on. The usual July 14 exodus from the city to make room for the influx from the provinces, which always characterizes the national holiday having been advanced by a few days. The thermometer on the 9th registered 95 degrees Fahrenheit, while at three o'clock next afternoon the mercury made a record climb, reaching 35 degrees centigrade, or 99 degrees Fahrenheit, the first time this mark has been struck in 42 years. There was little or no breeze and the percentage of humidity was high. Three cases of heat prostration were reported and one death from heat.

One of the longest intense heat spells in the history of Massachusetts culminated in Boston on last Saturday, in the heaviest electrical storms for over thirty years, and the greatest rainfall ever known since the Meteorological Bureau was established. The first storm was from two to six a. m., the second from eight to ten, and the third from seven to ten a. m. There were continuous flashes of appalling chain, bolt and sheet lightning, with constant terrifying crashes of thunder. The Weather Observatory states that a cool east wind came in from the sea, and meeting the hot and humid atmosphere caused a hitherto unheard of disturbance. The rainfall was nearly six inches, one inch descending in ten minutes.

W cater to the men's trade, and no other. If you were sick you wouldn't call to see a Tailor, or a Blacksmith, about the condition of your health. Of course not; you would call to see a Doctor.

If you wanted a Suit or an Overcoat would you go to see a Doctor, or a Shoemaker? Not at all. You would go to see a First Class Tailor.

WELL, there's where we shine!!! We study the business! We know what suits a young man, we know what suits a middle-aged man, and we know what suits the old gentleman—both in goods and in style. It does not make any difference whether you want your clothes Ready-to-Wear, or Made-to-Order. We are equally in a position to suit you. We do not let a suit or overcoat leave our establishment until it suits and fits the man who is buying. Our prices are always right when you take the quality into consideration.

Do not forget that we are sole agents for the famous J. W. H. Leishman & Co., Wholesale Custom Tailors. We have an elegant stock of Overcoats to show you at the present time.

Song

Because the rose must fade, Shall I not love the rose? Because the summer shade Passes when winter blows...

The Umbrella

I'm always so glad about that umbrella mistake. It came about in this fashion. Sarah had donned her very best suit, and I had nothing on I wanted to spoil...

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning that it is extremely hazardous to neglect...

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Purifies the blood, cleanses the system, restores the vitality of the kidneys and liver, and builds up the whole system.

I persuaded her to come in and warm herself at the cheery grate fire. I discovered that she had quite a bright face only she looked so very tired...

'Did your mother leave you nothing?' I asked anxiously. 'Only a message,' Kate replied softly and when I looked inquiringly at her she said:

'Mother's last words were, 'You'll have a hard struggle, but don't go under.' Some way, I couldn't say a word and Kate dashed away a big tear, and went on with her story.

'For a year I managed to keep a roof over our heads but the wages were so poor and then little Bennie got sick and died and Jessie was all I had left. I was so afraid that she would leave me, too, for she was never strong, that I put her in a home. That was two years ago, and did last spring I'd saved enough to send for Jessie, and now we're in a room down on John street.'

'And is Jessie stronger?' I asked eagerly. 'She's always delicate like,' Kate replied anxiously, 'but I'm addressing envelopes nights now, and Jessie is having an extra pint of milk every day, and the child looks so much brighter.'

'Then you work day and night, too?' I said soberly. 'Oh, addressing envelopes isn't hard work,' Kate answered bravely. And then I asked her if she had friends, and she made this reply:

'No, Miss; girls who live in one small back room can't very well have friends. But we have each other, and please God, whatever comes, were not going under.'

And now you know why I'm glad about that umbrella mistake. If we hadn't had umbrella Number Three that rainy March Sunday, I shouldn't have had Kate Howard, and that would have been a real loss to me.

She's living now in an airy, bright room, and her new office position stands for good, smart, up-to-date wages. Among us we've got Jessy off to the country for the summer, and on fresh eggs and milk and yellow butter she's getting rosy.

And so, you see, Kate Howard didn't go under. But when you come to think of it, did you ever know a girl every whit honest and plucky who did?

A WONDERFUL REMEDY. Mr. E. S. Gable, Clarendon, Ont. writes: "It is with great pleasure I write you to say that I can't speak too highly of your wonderful remedy, Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I was troubled with diarrhoea and tried everything I could think of to relieve me but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was advised to try 'Dr. Fowler's' and found it great. I would recommend it to any one suffering as I did."

have no respect for age or condition when she wants to show her capacity for 'taking off' people. I once heard her mimicking a very dear old lady and she did not know that the old lady's niece was in the room. Another time I saw her 'take off' poor old Miss Lane, who is crippled and walks with such a particular gait. Do you think that the physical affliction of anyone should ever be mimicked?

'I suppose not. Probably Lyra never thought anything about that. She likes to make people laugh over her cleverness. I don't think that she means to be unkind or rude.'

'But that does no lesson the unkindness or the rudeness, and I know very nice people who will have nothing to do with Lyra because of the way she is always 'taking off' other people. She is very clever, I admit, but it is a dangerous kind of cleverness, and those who have this gift are almost sure to violate the Golden Rule and to sooner or later offend others when they allow themselves to give full rein to this gift.'

'Well, Huldah,' said Belle, 'I guess that you are right about that, and when I come to think of it, I can recall instances when Lyra gave down right offence by 'taking off' others. I don't suppose that I would like it if I discovered her 'taking off' any of my relatives or myself. There is really a certain heartlessness and coarseness about it. As you say, Huldah, it is a dangerous gift.'

NERVOUS HEADACHES DIZZINESS COULD NOT SLEEP.

Mrs. M. Damgaard, Young's Cove Road, N.B., writes: "I was bothered very much with my head and nerves; had nervous headaches and dizziness, could not sleep at night, and my appetite was all gone. Furs. Furs.

—SHIP TO US DIRECT— THE TOP MARKET PRICES PAID AND EQUITABLE GRADING MADE —NO DELAYS AT ANY POINT—

We are registered with and recognized by the United States War Trade Board and all of the Collectors for Customs under licence P. B. F. 30 and you can send your furs to us direct by our tag or any tag, changed to suit to marked "Furs of Canadian Origin," and your furs will one right through.!

FAIR GRADING

The rules and ethics of the exchange do not permit us sending out shaming price lists, yet we give you an exact and expert grading and pay you at a rate of five to twenty five cents more on the dollar than the average advertising fur company, as we cut out all middleman's profit in dealing direct with you.
