ALL FOR LOVE.

CHAPTER XIX.
THE SECRET WILL.

"No, dear, not to get the money. I understand that," he replied; "but since we are no longer in doubt regarding our attitude toward each other, we may just as well avail ourselves of the conditions of the will, and save the fortune that rightly belongs to you."

Beth shook her pretty head with decision.

"No, I should always feel that I had had its influence with one or both of us, and I should hate it every day of my life. Then everybody else would think and say it was a marriage of convenience; so I'd rather have the benighted heathen get every dollar of it, and I never want to think of that hateful will again."

Philip saw that she had taken her stand, and he was nonplussed for the time being. At length he asked:

"But when will you marry me, Beth, if you will not comply with the conditions of the will? Now that I have won you, I want you, and there is no sense in waiting indefinitely."

"Well," she thoughtfully replied, "if you wish, let it be as soon as you like after the date set by Aunt Eliza. I will even make it the day following my twenty-second birthday, one month from to-morrow, if that will please you, Philip."

Philip's face beamed in view of this concession to an early union; yet he was far from being reconciled to what he regarded as willful waste of a large amount of money.

"Well, if that is your ultimatum, I am only too glad to capture you at the earliest possible date. All the same—"

"Oh, Philip, pray do not argue that point any more. Please—please take me just as I am, without a penny, and so prove to me that you don't want that money," Beth pleaded in a tone the tremulousness of which told how deeply in earnest she was; and Philip, happy in having won her at any cost, resolved that he would not broach the obnoxious subject again.

Not so, however, with Mr. Russell, Teddy, and Muriel, and even gentle Aunt Prue, all of whom, though delighted with the prospective marriage, were agast in view of such an unheard-of sacrifice. Each and every one argued and objected collectively and separately with Beth, but the obstinate bride-elect would not "budge an inch, the little mule," as Teddy impatiently expressed himself after an hour of fruitless expostulation.

"Papa!" Beth blazed out at him one day when he had been more insistent than usual: "I'll live on a crust a day, I'll go without pretty clothes, I will even work to earn money, but I will not have that bone of contention, that has already caused so much misery, come into my life with Philip. If Aunt Eliza had given that money either to you or to me, as she ought to have done, I own I'd be glad not to go a dowdier bride to him. As it is, I want him to know that I love him for what he himself is, and I want the same assurance from him."

This ended the contest, and then everybody at once became absorbed in preparations for the wedding which was to take place at the farm, at noon, on the date Beth had named.

It was to be a very quiet, informal affair, with only her relatives and intimate friends present; but the numerous beautiful and costly gifts which poured in upon her from every quarter testified to her popularity in the social world, regardless of the recent reversal in the family.

Two hours before the ceremony, Aunt Prue handed Beth a legal-looking envelope addressed to her, which was accompanied by a note from Philip. The note explained that he had decided to resign the trusteeship of Miss Crawford's estate, and the day previous he had looked over some papers, which his father had left in his care relating to the matter. While thus engaged he had come upon the envelope he was sending to her, which was addressed in his father's handwriting, with instructions that it was to be given to her on her wedding day, or on her twenty-second birthday, if she were unmarried at that time.

Beth was in the midst of dressing for her bridal when she received this communication, and all the light suddenly went out of her bright face. "Oh, why need anything pertaining to that cruel will haunt my wedding day!" she ruefully exclaimed; then added resolutely: "I just will not let it spoil everything for me, and—tossing it carelessly into her traveling bag—"Phil and I will open it on our way to Boston."

Three hours later the happy husband and wife were on their way to that city en route for a quiet place in the Berkshires, where they were to spend a week, then back to the dear old Russell home, which Philip had rescued from an auction sale, and had been having renovated and refurbished during the last month, as a surprise for Beth, and his wedding gift to her.

During the first part of their trip southward they were so glad to be by themselves, and away from the confusion and excitement of the morning, they could think of nothing but their own happiness; but shortly after their stop at Concord, Philip said he was thirsty, and asked Beth for her drinking cup. Opening her bag to get it, she came across the legal-looking envelope he had sent her that morning. "Oh, what do you suppose this can be?" she exclaimed, holding it up and regarding it askance. "Why, haven't you opened it?" inquired Philip, in surprise. "No—I couldn't," Beth said, half laughing, but with an anxious cloud on her brow. "I was half afraid it might be something to prevent—"

Philip laughed out joyously as he caught the hand nearest him in a fond clasp.

"You silly child!" he cried, "did you imagine for a moment that I would allow anything to prevent at that stage of the game? But open it, dear. I am consuming with curiosity to know its contents."

"Have you any idea what it is?" queried Beth, still hesitating to break the seal.

"No—yet I surmised—"

"What?" demanded the young wife, eagerly.

One in a Thousand, BUT TRUE TO THE LAST

CHAPTER I.
BY OLD DEVICES.

"I never saw him," says Loys, regretfully.

"Nor I," I echo—I always follow Loys in everything; "but, then, I am so short-sighted that I could not possibly see him without a glass, and I dared not use one in church."

Theo offers no remark; she sits looking dreamily into the fire, and presently Loys speaks again.

"What is he like, Theo?" "Oh, so handsome!" cries Theo, clasping her pretty hands; "so very handsome! I told you that he was there last Sunday, and how he stared at me. Well, to-day he was there again, and once I saw him look at the name in my hymn book."

"Is it decently written?" I ask, seizing the book, in order to satisfy myself upon this point. "Why, Theo, there's a note! How wicked!"

"Nonsense!" cries Loys, snatching it out of my hand. Theo reads it quickly.

"Oh, I say!" she exclaims.

"What is it?" I cry, impatiently. So Loys read it aloud:

"Don't be angry with me for writing to you. Come down the garden to the wall at five this evening, and I will be there.—A. St. C. Do come, darling."

"Darling!" repeats Loys, turning it over. "Well, that's cool, isn't it? What fun for you, Theo!"

Theo is only sixteen, and school-girls of that age are proverbially romantic and giddy; their heads are filled with nonsense, which often leads them into danger before they know what they are doing. We three sisters—Theo, Loys and Audrey Luttrell—are at a boarding school where the discipline is lax in the extreme—one of those old-fashioned, yet high-class, establishments where manners and accomplishments are highly cultivated, and the girls very little teased by the more solid branches, and never expected to go in for middle-class examinations at all. "I don't profess to train governesses," is a favorite remark of Mrs. Dickenson's; "I make gentlemen."

There are only twelve pupils, and they are all boarders. We three "Luttrell girls" have a room to ourselves, overlooking the garden, and when afternoon school is over, we are free to stay in it, if it pleases us, until the bell rings for tea at six o'clock. We are very loving sisters, and generally avail ourselves of what is called the "free hour" in crouching over the fire—for Loys is not strong, and, as our father is very indulgent, we have a fire in our bedroom during six months of the year—chatting of home, writing our letters, or any other occupation which pleases us.

As I said before, girls of sixteen are not very often staid. Loys and I think it is a fine thing for our pretty sister to have a lover, and a romantic meeting in a garden in October; it is the next thing to having the like ourselves. We quickly smother any qualms of conscience which Theo may be feeling, and, as the autumn twilight falls, watch her go, ghostlike, down the garden walk to meet "A. St. C."

"I hope it will be all right," says Loys, with a nervous shiver. "There will be a frightful row, if it comes out. Suppose Mrs. Dickenson asks for her?"

"Oh, she won't!" I answer, gravely. "Old Dickey is fast asleep before the drawing-room fire. Mademoiselle has gone to tea with the French governess at St. John's, and Miss Burleigh is telling 'dear Jack' that she is counting the days until he comes back; then she will leave all this drudgery, and be transmogrified into his loving, little wife, and so on, ad libitum, until four sheets are filled, all of which 'dear Jack' will devour at Port Said or Malta, or wherever the letter may find him."

Loys laughs at my very poor wit, but suggests that one of the servants may go down the garden. The minutes glide slowly by, and Theo does not return. Apparently, she finds "Mr. St. C.'s" society very entertaining.

"I wish she would come back," says Loys, in a frightened tone. "Suppose he runs away with her altogether!"

"Not he!" I laugh. "Besides, Theo has too much sense for that."

"Well, but just suppose anyone comes in here?"

"No one will come," I say, shortly, though I wish myself that Theo was back.

"She is coming," says Loys, with a sigh of relief. "I hope it is all right."

A light step sounds on the back stairs, which are close to our door, and Theo rushes in, shuts the door with a bang, and "plumps" down upon the hearth rug between us.

"Well!" we say, vaguely.

"Oh, he is splendid!" she exclaims, rapturously; "he is splendid—so big, so handsome, so—so—so everything, in fact!" stretching out her arms, with an expansive gesture.

"And what is his name?" "Arthur St. Clair."

"What made you stop so long?" I ask, anxiously.

"He wouldn't let me come away," answers Theo, with a newly acquired air of importance, which we two think extremely grand; "he would not, really. He said he had been waiting and watching and lingering for a glimpse of me so long that he would keep me when he had me. In fact, he wanted to carry me off altogether."

MUNICIPAL MATTERS.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Sir—The two patriotic letters from Mr. Gosling on civic management, which appeared in last week's issue of the Telegram, should awaken every right thinking citizen to seriously consider the rights, duties and responsibilities of citizenship especially when it is to be considered that the success or failure of Municipal Government is solely dependent upon the intelligence and patriotism of the individual citizen. In addressing a large assembly of citizens in one of the western cities of the United States, John M. Cook, an ardent advocate of Commission Government had this to say:—

"The city is like a great partnership in which each member has equal power and responsibility with every other member, with its success depending upon the uprightness and fidelity of its members. It is a copartnership in which there should be no silent partners, no idlers, no incompetents. Its strength depends absolutely upon the individual parts. The disaffection of any member, his negligence or indifference, his failure to keep himself informed of the needs of the copartnership, or any other fact or condition that affects the willingness or ability to strive for the highest and best in the conduct of its affairs is an elemental weakness."

The most casual observer cannot fail to see that the elemental weakness is too prevalent in our midst for it cannot be denied that there is much indifference and neglect of duty on the part of too large a number of the electors the past few years. Are they losing sight of the fact that the right of suffrage is not alone a privilege or something to be used for their own benefit, but that it carries with it an individual patriotic duty and obligation and that each citizen is in duty bound to exercise the right of suffrage intelligently and conscientiously for the good of the whole city in the interest of every other citizen as well as for himself? If we fail to recognize this sacred obligation and to properly discharge it we are very unworthy citizens, in fact not at all fitted for the responsibilities of citizenship.

"I do not know what was in the minds of the framers of the Municipal Act when they limited the remuneration of the Council to $1,500 per annum, $600 of which goes to the Mayor and $150 each to the Councillors; but if they were participating the entry into Municipal affairs of the wealthy citizens of the community who having made enough to more than meet the requirements of this life, would devote the rest of their days to serving the community which helped in the creation of their wealth, than they have been very much mistaken. We have no leisure class here upon whom we can call to perform the duty of governing the city as a labor of love. From this it is quite evident that the only labor of love the wealthy class of the city perform is the labor of dollar getting. There are quite a few in this class who have accumulated more than they can usefully spend upon themselves while on this earth and as for the other world if it be true that the rich man will find it as difficult to get in through the Pearly Gates as the camel through the needle's eye, he'll never get through with bulging pockets. In contrast with this unpatriotic attitude of such principal citizens stands out the patriotism of those who though of very limited means and with very limited time have taken up the conduct of the city's affairs and are doing it so well for what Mr. Gosling has rightly termed the beggarly sum of $150 a year. But while the service rendered by our Councillors is worth more than the remuneration given we cannot close our eyes to the facts outlined in Mr. Gosling's letters that we are not getting that efficiency which is absolutely required for the proper conduct of Municipal affairs. Councillors who have little or no private means of their own cannot live on $150 a year and must necessarily follow other occupations, which taking up the greater part of their time leave but little opportunity for studying carefully the requirements of the community some of which could be met even with the limited powers at their disposal.

"Passing through the streets of Denver, Col. some time ago, a traveler was surprised to see the firemen out cleaning the streets. Asking an acquaintance of his who lived in the city why this was so, he was told that the Commissioner of Safety had found that the members of the Fire Department had some leisure time which could be profitably spent for the city by keeping its streets clean and thereby help to guard the city's health. The firemen worked in conjunction with the sanitary staff but their operations were confined within a certain radius of the Fire-Halls so as to be of easy reach when required in case of fire. The result of this work of the firemen was a saving of expenditure to the city in the sanitary department which did not require as many men as formerly, and without in anyway impairing the usefulness of either department. I am not criticising the present Council, with Mr. Gosling I agree that it is not the Councillors who are at fault so much as our system of government and that any change for the better lies in the adoption of some such form as will make it effective for the good of the city. The one form which is now being rapidly progressed throughout Canada and the United States is the one suggested by Mr. Gosling, government by Commission, and with your permission, Mr. Editor, I will outline in another letter how it was done in some of the Massachusetts cities with the hope that it may add more interest in the discussion of our city's welfare.

The Home In Trouble.

The Reid and Co. had a wire Saturday afternoon from Capt. Harbin, of the s.s. Home, saying that the ship had struck a rock while leaving Nipper's Harbor. The blow carried away the rudder and considerably damaged the stern of the ship, though she did not make any water. She could not continue the service and the Invermore coming south from Labrador was ordered to proceed to the scene and take the Home in tow to St. John's, while the Clyde was ordered to take up the passengers and finish the trip to Lewisporte.

Gower St Church

Owing to the illness of several members of Gower St. Church, the Mendelssohn Recital was postponed until next Sunday after the evening service. At the service last evening, the Pastor of the Church, Rev. Dr. Rogers, referred to Mr. King's retirement as Organist and Choir Master, in the following terms:—"Next Sunday evening's service, I understand, concludes Mr. King's connection with Gower St. Church, as Organist and Choir Master. As I may be away then, I want to say this evening what I would say next Sunday if I were here. First, that our Trustees Board when it received Mr. King's resignation, passed a resolution expressing an appreciation of the services he has rendered this Church as conductor of the musical part of our services, and also of the assistance so readily given by Mrs. King. The Board expressed deep regret at their leaving us, and best wishes for their future welfare. As Pastor, I wish to say that during the years of a long ministry, I have listened to and have had to do with many adept and expert organists, but I never listened to one with greater delight than to Mr. King, and never had to do with one more cheerful and cheerful bearing, and more obedient in spirit. Our associations have been of the most pleasing character, and the services of praise conducted by him, and in which Mrs. King has taken a conspicuous part, has ever been a help to me in my humble efforts from this pulpit. I cannot but express my feeling of regret, which I am sure is shared by the whole congregation, and you will all I know, join with me in the heartiest good wishes to Mr. and Mrs. King, who have contributed so largely to the helpfulness of our services."

Digby Arrives.

Forbush Lined Two Days.
The Furness Liner Digby, Capt. Trickett, after being fogbound for practically two days, arrived here from Liverpool at 5:30 p.m. yesterday. The ship left Liverpool on the night of the 14th and conditions were favourable until about midway across the Atlantic when a strong westerly gale was encountered but did not retard progress. About 300 miles off St. John's fog was run into. The speed of the Digby had to be reduced and Captain Trickett had to nurse his ship along carefully; also a sharp lookout was kept for the icebergs that were around. Saturday evening the ship was within speaking distance of Cape Scur but owing to the very thick fog that prevailed it was next to impossible to try and make port without mishap. From eight o'clock Saturday night until half past four before she entered port the fog was stopped. Sixty tons of packages of mail matter, 450 tons of cargo and the following passengers in saloon—Mrs. Beard, Mrs. W. V. Drayton, W. Gibbons, Dr. B. Gill, Rev. R. Godden, Hon. A. F. Goodridge, W. Goodridge, Misses G. and M. Goodridge, Miss Frances Hutchings, H. LeMessurier, W. and Mrs. Martin, D. Martin, A. Montgomerie, Mrs. J. Murray, Rev. H. G. Peck, Major H. F. Shea, Miss N. Taylor and children in second cabin. There are twenty-four passengers on the ship in transit for Halifax. Owing to the delay by fog and the desire to give the ship a quick despatch, work of discharging her commenced last midnight. She sails for Halifax about six o'clock this evening.

Ventures Sail.

STOKERS GRANTED INCREASE.
The Canadian Government decided on Saturday, to pay the firemen on the s.s. Bonaventure and Bellaventure the wage they asked for, $40 per month—and both of the ships are at Halifax yesterday. The Bonaventure sailed in the morning or twelve hours ahead of her consort the Bell. Both sailings were in communication by wireless last night just before the Bell left port. The Bon's position then was ten miles off Cape Pine in a thick fog.

Lintrose Passengers.

The Lintrose arrived at Port aux Basques at 6:25 a.m. yesterday, bringing W. H. Fleagle, L. E. Sanford, Prof. N. Parrard, G. E. Roberts, P. M. Wright, A. M. and Mrs. Brewster, Mrs. J. A. Willard, Mrs. E. F. Berson, Miss H. LeFolien, Miss Pike, B. and Mrs. Elliott, D. W. Genuin, Rev. W. Russell, Rev. J. McNamara, P. J. Summers, G. T. Carter, G. B. French, Mrs. M. Bogan, Miss Seymour, L. Chase, J. M. Ferguson, Eddie Elliott, Miss A. Pike, Miss H. Oake, Mrs. N. Ash, Mrs. M. McDonald, Miss D. Mowbray, Mrs. F. White, Mr. J. Ivey, A. D. Syme and 23 second class.

Quick Trip.

The S. S. Portia, Capt. A. Keas, arrived from Western ports on Saturday evening, after an excellent round trip of nine days and a half, bringing in saloon these passengers:—Miss Eagan, Miss Power, L. Kennedy, P. M. O'Brien, Miss Curtin, Mrs. Foley, Mrs. Sommerville, Miss Newman, Miss Keland, Mrs. D. Gibson, C. Sutherland in saloon and 16 in steerage.

District Sunday.

At Wesley Church yesterday, the presbytery appointed, the District Session of the Methodist Church held last week, were the Rev. Stanley Williams, in the morning, and Rev. Thomas H. Fitcher, in the evening. The former came here on probation four years ago did well on his mission and has passed well in his College course. His discourse from the 105th Psalm, was on "Gratitude and Praise for the mercies of life," the many blessings we fail to see and which demand increasing praise to the Almighty Giver of all we enjoy. In the evening the church was crowded to hear one known to many in the city as he was some years in business, but felt the call and retired to his chair, he has done exceptionally well at Mt. Allison University, and will be ordained at Garrison Conference next week. His subject, "Changes in this World," by the Spirit of the Lord, 1st Cor. 3rd chap. 18th v., was well handled and the illustrations and choice, and very telling, and the earnestness in delivery touched his hearers hearts. At the close of the sermon, Mr. Chas. Leitch sang the old and much loved hymn "I am the Love of my Soul," to a new setting never heard here before. It was grand and uplifting and his cultured voice, rendered the piece from its softest parts to the full chords, accompanied by Mr. Pratt at the organ.

Temperance Sunday.

A grand temperance rally was held at George Street Church yesterday, both by the school children and adults. Mr. C. R. Steer gave an address on "Why we should be abstainers." An interesting discourse was given by Dr. Roberts on the detriment of alcohol to the system. The Adult Bible Class then sang a hymn, followed by a recitation by Mr. Deing, a trio and duet by boys and a closing address by Mr. C. P. Ayre, who exhorted all to pledge themselves against the use of alcohol. The meeting was a very bright and a pledge and will take an active part in the temperance movement. Mr. C. Pratt presided during the session, Rev. Mr. Barter pronounced Benediction at the close.

Fishery News.

The Portia brings word that there is an improvement in the fishery on the southwest coast. Prospects for a good banking voyage are bright at present. Nearly all the vessels operating on the Grand Banks have returned to the home ports with their first trip. Some of the banks have as much as a thousand quintals each under salt already. Caplin are very plentiful just now on the coast and bankers are baiting. There is a notable change in the lobster fishery since the Portia was west last. Those engaged will make good money before the season closes.

PRESCRIPTION "A"

CURES INDIGESTION & DYSPEPSIA IN ALL ITS FORMS.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after full meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing."

I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed and I often wake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden.

Nov. 15, 1912. I received a bottle of Prescription "A" for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Prescription "A". A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, STAFFORD'S PHARMACY, Dackworth Street.

Personal.

Mr. H. LeMessurier, fish agent for Newfoundland at Naples, was a passenger by the s.s. Digby. He is on a long business and pleasure combined. Rev. G. R. Godden, Rector of St. Thomas's Church, returned from England, by the s.s. Digby. Major Harry Shea, son of Dr. Shea, is here on a visit. Mr. and Mrs. W. Martin were passengers by the Digby, yesterday. Hon. A. F. Master W., and the Misses Goodridge, also came on the S. S. Digby.

Notes and Comments.

The Harbor Grace Standard complains that the Government has not taken effective steps to cope with the spread of potato canker. "Half or quarter measures are no good. To eradicate canker would have taken a few hundreds or thousands of dollars at the outset. It will cost more now. It will cost far more as neglect goes on. But when money can be found for so many objects of less importance, should it be grudged for this that concerns the chief food outside flour of our people at large?"
Money has been wasted in extraordinary amounts on the Morris Agricultural policy, which is little more than a system of pensioning, patronage and giveaways. Instead of the employment of a good agricultural expert as was the course laid down by the Liberal Party, three members of the House of Assembly were found jobs as Agricultural Commissioners. The scope of the Placemen Act was curtailed in a mysterious way in order that this could be done. We have denounced this action of the Government and the People's Party in the strongest terms, and we find now that the Gibbs organ, the Western Star, is denouncing Mr. Downey as a pensioner of the Government, and as such a person not fit to represent St. George's Bay.
"Whenever the representative of any district becomes an annual pensioner of the party in power then the interest of that district will suffer, because the mouthpiece of the people is stopped by the Government bounty, and his voice is silent in the party caucus, and he is gagged on the floors of the Assembly.
"This is why we are the laughing stock of the other districts. This is why we have no roads and bridges. This is why we are told to tax our-

Yesterday at Cochrane St. Church.

Yesterday, being District Sunday, two young men, Revs. Davis and Pike, probationers for the Methodist Ministry, preached at Cochrane Street Church. Both sermons were seasonable, and we bespeak for both these young men, many years of usefulness in the Master's vineyard. At the close of the evening service an old-fashioned song service was held, a number of familiar hymns were sung by the large congregation present. Miss Jean Trapnell sang with much expression, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." Miss Trappnell, although quite young, gives promise of doing good work.
In the afternoon a public Sunday School Temperance Meeting was held presided over by Mr. G. M. Soper. Mr. H. E. Cowan, of the Congregational Church, delivered a very fine address on the Temperance question, and the Rev. C. A. White, M.A., ably pleaded with the boys against the use of the cigarette. The programme also consisted of a solo, reading and a recitation.

Rossley Star Theatre.

The very best act ever produced at any theatre will be presented at Rossley's Theatre to-night,—a regular little Broadway production and the same in every detail as played by the talented Lorraine Buchanan and Billy Devan on 5th Avenue Theatre, Broadway, New York City. "Mayme" is a thrilling little picture of Bohemian life. Billy Devan will be seen as the music master, a lovely character. Harry Ingram, the young tenor, who is going up the theatrical ladder in leaps and bounds will play the part of Otto, the student and pupil of the Professor. Miss Buchanan plays the title role, that of a big-hearted, sound-headed, rough little Boverly girl. Two beautiful musical numbers will be introduced. Bill Devan will sing in German, the well known ballad, "Still as the Night," and Harry Ingram, the well known duet, "Life's Dream is O'er," those two fine singers together will be worth hearing. This will be a splendid night's entertainment, and one that simply can't be beat anywhere.

OBITUARY.

The death occurred on Friday last of an old and respected resident of Water Street West, in the person of Mrs. Catherine Courtney, widow of the late Richard Courtney, butcher. Mrs. Courtney who had been ill for several months had reached her 78th year at the time of her death, and was a type of the kindly, charitable old stock now, alas, fast disappearing. There are left to mourn her Sergt. John Courtney, of the Constabulary, William and David, Mrs. M. Bridge, of the United States, and Mrs. Stamp, wife of Const. Stamp, of the Constabulary. The funeral of the deceased lady took place yesterday afternoon and was attended by a concourse of citizens. Mr. J. T. Martin was undertaker and interment was at Belvedere Cemetery. To the bereaved relative the Telegram extends its sympathy.

The Police Court.

Two drunk were released on payment of $2 each. John Ashkey, aged 75, who was on remand for a couple of months, charged with indecent assault, came up for trial this morning before Judge Knight. The accused was sentenced to six months imprisonment. At the expiration of that term he will pay a fine of $100 or serve another three months; also to give two sureties of $200 each or give his own bonds at $400 or three months.

Fish Never So Plentiful

Letters received from Peter's River say that caplin have just struck in there. Cod are also plentiful and as a result fishermen are reaping a harvest. There are eight traps operating at Peter's River and in one of them 50 quintals of fish were found in a single haul one day last week. The oldest inhabitant cannot remember seeing fish so plentiful; also there is a good sign of sea trout. The weather, however, is backward, gales being frequent and hindering operations.

Who Gets Hurt?
Come, let us swat the peanut trust, which fills all people with disgust. A few ungodly plutocrats all decked with pens and stovepipes & a c.e. control the country's peanut trade and laugh to scorn our shrieks for aid. Oh, let us hound this monster down, upon them let Dame Justice trounce! Of all their schemes, made drakes and ducks, and fine them half a million bucks! Which being done, the plutocrats, in diamond pins and stovepipe hats, will rise uninjured from the dust, and quickly form another trust and hire more legal lights to break such little laws as we may make. And when the little rats are run, and we size up the work we've done, we find the fellow who got hurt is he who plows and hoes the dirt and wrestles with his stony field to gain the meagre peanut yield. And this it is for aye, cogs wound! When you so kicking rusts around, the trusts don't sweat or turn a hair, but poor employees know a despair. The misbegotten trust economies to square up for their lawyers' fees, so they can meet their law's demands—and so they fire a thousand hands. The innocent must always pay the way. We fight the trusts to-day. We cannot tame the combines' backs, but that the toiler gets the ax.

Anglican Synod And Church Union.
Toronto, June 14.—Only one reference was made to church unity in the report of the committee on the state of the church to the Anglican Synod of the Diocese of Toronto and it was advised that the church should move slowly. It was adopted without discussion.
The report said: "It would seem to your committee that our Canadian churchmen would do well to exercise a wise self-control, and to watch sympathetically and follow the great movement inaugurated in the American church for the consideration of faith and order and that in the meantime we can make our best contribution to the satisfactory solution of the problem by giving close attention to the task of the church."
TRAP FISHING.—At Portugal Cove this morning, the traps secured from 4 to 7 qtis. each.

Death of Mr. Coish.

The death occurred at his residence, Brazil's Square, yesterday morning after a long and painful illness of an estimable citizen in the person of Mr. Edward Coish. The deceased was watchman at Monroe's premises for several years, and last year while saving a man who had gone overboard held him for over an hour before help arrived to extricate him, a task Mr. Coish could not perform alone. This strained the man so severely that it led to the illness which caused his death. Deceased leaves two sons, Messrs. George, of Jesse Whitway's, and Samuel, printer at the Gazette, with two daughters in the U. S. To the bereaved family we tender our sympathy.

McMurdo's Store News.

MONDAY, June 23, 1913. A trifling cut on the face during shaving will often cause a good deal of annoyance, but if you have a Styptic Pencil at hand, you can obviate the annoyance quite easily. The application of the pencil soon stops the bleeding and heals the cut. A Styptic Pencil is quite indispensable to the self-shaver. Price 15c. each. Cantharidine Hair Tonic is quite one of the best of its kind, and retains its popularity because it produces effects. For a clean scalp and a luxuriant growth of hair, use Cantharidine. Price 25 and 50 cents a bottle.

Dispute Arranged.

Because of the attempt to rule out from all sports at Bell Island parties, who were not three months resident of the place, the D. I. S. people recently decided to withdraw from all games there and participate in football, rowing, etc., in St. John's. It persisted in this would have killed sports on the island, but recently the D. I. S. N. S. and Wabana teams met and the matter was satisfactorily arranged. The island regatta promises to be a very interesting affair.

Petty Theft.

This morning Sergt. Mackey arrested an eleven year old girl charged with theft. The accused entered a boarding house on Bond Street, and putting her hand into the pocket of a coat that was hung in the hall stole a purse containing $5.50. The money belonged to Mrs. Brown, of King's Cove, who was staying in the house. The unfortunate young girl was released from custody this morning with a caution, as the money was restored to the owner.

Personal.

Mr. Arthur Pridoux, son of Mr. W. Pridoux, of the Pooy Asylum, arrived here Saturday. Arthur is in the Audit Department of a large Paper Company in Portland, Me., and is doing well. He will be here for several weeks. Miss Julia Blackie left here by the Florida, Saturday, for Turco, N.S., where she will reside in future.

New Opera House.

A gentleman is now in the city from the States and we hear is trying to purchase the block on Water Street, fronting opposite St. M. Jackson's and running back to George Street. If he is successful, an opera house will be built there.

SHIPWRECKED CREW.—The Fogota brought up to Bay Roberts the following crew of the schooner Kangaroo, wrecked at Dotting Cove, who escaped with their lives in a trap skiff and landed after enduring the greatest peril. They are: Capt. N. Parsons, James Brown, Joseph Morgan, W. Snow, Jas. Brown, Geo. Parsons, and Miss V. Brown, who was also on board. Their trap boat and motor boat and other supplies were also brought along.

Ice Cream Soda Hits Paris.

Paris, June 9.—The popular swing that the American box fight, the American turkey trot, the American bunny hug and the American cocktail have enjoyed, are now enjoying and apparently are to continue to enjoy indefinitely in the French capital has inspired the wholesale invasion of another Yankee institution—the ice cream soda. The promoter is James A. Bowden, of New York, who has installed a regular soda water fountain in a big shop on the grand boulevards, and Paris shows every indication of being inclined to make a rage of the sweet, foamy, syrupy beverage and pro-nounced as a joy forever the icy delectability of the nut sundae. Bowden has now engaged confectioners to make ice cream in American fashion and is importing American flavoring syrups, gas fountains, mirrors, counters and all other accessories for dealing out the fizzy water with its foaming top of ice cream. "I'm not only expecting patronage of American tourists, but I'll probably get the ribbon of the Legion of Honor when ice cream soda water replaces heavy wines, absinthe, cordials and aperitifs at all the Parisian cafes."

Here and There

NASCOPIC LEAVES.—The s.s. Nasopic sails from here on Thursday for Montreal. From there she will load supplies to bring to the Hudson Bay stations.

TWO FOR HOSPITAL.—Charlotte Purchase from Change Islands; and Michael, Lanely from Seldom, arrived by the Fogota for Hospital. Both are very ill.

For St. Bon's College and U. L. B. and C. C. C. Brigade Ribbons, Caps, Belts, Shirts and Pants, go to W. P. SHORTALL, The American Tailor.—ju23,61

L. O. O. F. MEETING.—Atlantic Lodge, I. O. O. F., will install its officers to-night at the meeting to be held when a Delegate to the Grand Lodge will likely be elected.

THE FREAK PHRASE MAN.—The freak phrase man of the News seems to be "dotty" as to the "infuse" of passengers by the steamer. He sees hordes coming back because 12 came in one boat and 22 in another. No doubt for it is splendid and lengthy advocacy of the Government the Premier will in time, say about 1940, square that "supervisor" dream. When did the City of Sydney leave, know it!

Tremendous Fa

In a quite notable leading article the "Times" points out the significance of the tremendous struggle between the Balkan Allies and the Turks, which has just ended, and what it means for the future.

"The practical extinction of the Ottoman dominion in Europe and the rise in its stead of new and vigorous young communities, akin in blood and in creed to the rest of Christendom, is an event so rich in memories and so momentous in possible results that it stands beyond and above the reach of imagination and of judgment. As we look back the mind is overburdened by the story of a struggle in which the Crusades were but an episode and the rise of Islam a fatal incident—the secular struggle between the civilizations of the East and of the West. As we look forward, we are conscious of a future so dim and so uncertain, fraught with such untold possibilities of good and evil, that the wisest must shrink from prediction of its course. Time alone can enable us to grasp the full significance of this new Risorgimento, and help us slowly to see what seed will grow and what will not of those that it has sown."

"The very manner in which the downfall of the Ottoman Empire in Europe has come about is itself a lesson in the shortness and the fallibility of political prediction. It has been foretold for centuries; but a very few years ago that the Balkan States would have wrought it in one brief campaign by their own unaided strength? The main features of the wonderful contest are still fresh in our minds. From first to last they utterly falsified the opinions of the shrewdest judges, and filled the chief actors themselves with astonishment. "The military power of one of the foremost fighting races in the world collapsed at the first touch, and showed no real recovery until the enemy were almost at the walls of their capital. Lule Burgas sealed the doom of Turkey in Europe. After that the Turks made but little resistance save behind the walls of their fortresses, and that little was made without hope. The great surprise of the war was not, however, the victories of the Bulgarians, but the triumphant advance of the serbians and of the Greeks. These peoples, whose military reputation had been dimmed by relatively recent events, suddenly developed all soldierly qualities in a degree that astonished those who knew them best. They swept their old rulers before them as readily and as swiftly as did the Bulgarians, and marched from conquest to conquest until the completeness of their success became itself the chief danger to the Alliance.

End of a Fear. "The expulsion of the Turks from Europe by their own former subjects has freed the Powers from a fear which has haunted them ever since the natural progress of Russia brought her into rivalry with Austria in the Near East. All of them have regarded the liberation of the Christian provinces as inevitable, and all have looked with terror at the European war which they foresaw as its inevitable instrument. European interests in the Balkans appeared to be so immediate and so irreconcilable that diplomatists despaired of finding a peaceful accommodation of them. Sovereigns and statesmen shared the general alarm, and the archvicer of the Great Powers are filled with projects and counter-projects, laboriously fringed and negotiated for averting the impending Armageddon."

The World as a Playground.

It has come to be a part of the nature of the Briton that he should regard the world, and even its most remote corners as his playground; that he should travel in it; find in it new sports and pastimes; seek enjoyment in its unfamiliar customs; and even turn to one part of it or another, when necessity arises, in search of health." says the Westminster Gazette. "He is known in every country as a tourist or as a sportsman; and it is surprising that nobody has had the idea until now of collecting the knowledge and applying the experience that centuries of this wandering have supplied and making an 'exhibition' of them. The thing has been done at last, or rather, is in the doing—and in rather less than twelve months' time Earl's Court will be the home of an 'International Exhibition of Tourism,' in the preparation of which very influential committees, both at home and abroad, are already at work. "Travel and Sport," it is announced, are to be the sole interests of the exhibition; and full and very careful consideration is being given to both of them. The British Isles will be made to appeal to the foreign visitor—and, incidentally, to the native who knows Otago and Trouville, perhaps better than he does the charms of his own country. Countries that are beyond the seas will be enabled to show something of the beauties and of the ways of their people, and to make their appeal to restless people who are longing for something new in the travel section, particularly, it is the aim of the organizers to give orientation." Anybody who wants to go anywhere will be able to find out all about it—routes and time-tables, hotels and prices, motor-roads and the cost of petrol locally. The various spas and their medicinal values may be studied in elaborate detail. Itineraries will be mapped out to order. Medical experts from the various countries will meet in conference and exchange views for the benefit of the traveller in search of health; and lectures will be given on the countries and even the districts that may tempt the traveller.

"The games of the different countries will be played by native experts—the fascinating pilots of the Spaniard, for instance; and a Hungarian game—one of many that will be entirely strange—quite unknown in England, that one man may play in a room, or a team of men in the open. Popular centres for winter and summer sports will be reproduced in miniature; and 'sport festivals' and competitions will be held."

A Title for Married Men.
 By RUTH CAMERON.

A western woman has recently astonished her acquaintances by calmly prefixing "Mrs." to her name. There is no "Mr." in the case. She has simply become tired of being called "Miss" and decided to be "Mrs." in the future.

Of course the self-made "Mrs." has been asked what is the reason for her unusual act, and she has promptly countered by asking her questioners why she shouldn't do this. "Why," she says, "should a woman's marital relations be advertised in this way to everyone she meets, and who hears her name spoken. Men don't have to be labeled bachelors or bachelorettes every time their names are uttered. Why should women be tagged in this way?"

Don't you think her objections are logical?

I do.

But I don't think I wholly like her solution of them. Some years ago a similar question arose as to why married women should go about the world labeled as wives by their wedding rings, and married men should wear no such label, although of the two, men certainly need the label the most, since they have always been more apt to pose as unmarried. Now, following the logic of the western lady, unmarried women would have taken to wearing the wedding ring in order to confuse the issue. You know what has actually happened. Equality in this matter is being established by the use of the wedding ring by both sexes. In two-thirds of the weddings which I have attended in the last ten years, the beautiful double ring service has been used; and whereas twenty-five years ago it was thought peculiar for a man to wear a wedding ring, it attracts no attention whatever to-day except on the part of the woman who wants to find out whether he is married or not. Isn't this a much better way to even things up than to take all its meaning away from the wedding ring in order that woman might not be unfairly labeled?

I think so, and I wish this same thing might be extended to the engagement ring. Now don't scoff at that. There were plenty of people twenty-five years ago who scoffed at the idea of wedding rings for men. Who knows but twenty-five years from now it will be as common for an engaged man to wear some sort of a pledge of betrothal as it is to-day for married men to wear the wedding pledge.

Suppose then we solve our bachelor lady's trouble in the same way, and instead of doing away with the title of "Mrs." or letting unmarried women assume it at will, suppose we invent a corresponding title for married males; have them put it on their cards, address them by it and introduce them by it wherever they go. Surely no faithful husband could have any logical argument against that. The man who would object to it would probably be the who need it most.

Fashions and Fads.

The narrow frills of tulle turning away from the neckline is the most favored finish.

The scarf of lace, tulle or chiffon occupies an important place in the evening costume.

A new type of coat is very broad shouldered and draped. The material is a Scotch plaid.

White crepes are embroidered in colored sprigs, a reminiscence of the old-time sprigged muslin.

At present shoes of black patent leather with tops of white, tan, violet or blue kid are worn.

A touch of colored ribbon is invariably introduced at the waist and neck of the costume of white.

The newest hat is flat and oval in shape, with stiff sides and with a bow of ribbon directly in front.

Among the new tailored suits are a number of checked materials, trimmed with a bright touch of color.

Twitching of the Nerves
 A Distressing Symptom of Nervous Exhaustion Cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. John McKellar, 11 Barton street east, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I was injured some years ago, and that left me with a broken-down nervous system. I could not sleep, and suffered from twitching of the nerves and disagreeable nervous sensations. 'I then began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that I never used any medicine that did me so much good; in fact, I am entirely cured of my old trouble. The Nerve Food not only strengthened the nerves, but also built up my system in every way." Under date of Aug. 29, 1912, Mrs. McKellar writes, confirming her cure, and states that she has had inquiries from many people who had heard of the great benefits she obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Death on the Golf Course.

A tragic incident was witnessed by Bonar Law, the Unionist Leader, at the Malahide golf course, near Dublin, when Dean Webster, of the Chapel Royal, suddenly fell dead whilst playing at the eighth hole. At the time that the dean collapsed, Bonar Law, who was engaged in a foursome with J. H. Campbell, M.P., Sir A. Jackson, M.P., and Mr. Lunn, was at the sixth hole. Dr. Crawley, who was with Dean Webster, went to his assistance, but his efforts were in vain, as death was instantaneous. All play was immediately stopped, and the body was conveyed to the pavilion, where Mr. Law expressed his deep regret at the painful occurrence. An inquest was subsequently held at the Grand Hotel, and a verdict of heart failure as the cause of death was returned. The Very Rev. Reginald Godfrey Michael Webster, M.A., was chaplain to the household of the lord lieutenant, and canon of St. Patrick's Cathedral. He was a very well known figure in Dublin, and his death will be widely regretted.

The Lawn Mower.
 By H. L. RANN.

The lawn mower is a graceful implement which when pursued with feverish energy by a tall, bow-legged property owner without collar, necktie or suspenders, makes a pleasing landscape decoration. It is used to reduce the growth of brush on the front lawn and make it so that a man can play croquet on it without having to hunt for the end stakes.

When a man buys a lawn mower for the first time he is filled with enthusiasm and circulates around the premises with it on the dead run, finally bringing up against a cone from a pine tree and having his breastbone set back several inches. After a few of these comes have caught in the teeth of the mower and thrown him over the handlebars, his enthusiasm will ooze away at a rapid gait and he will decide to stick to his profession.

It is harder to plow a straight furrow with a dull lawn mower than it is to drive a drooping-tipped mule on a bee line. Many a man has been rendered cross-eyed for life in the attempt to square a lawn mower with a telephone pole out in the road and has come into the house looking like a small boy returning from a three-ring circus.

The lawn mower has teeth which catch everything that comes along and refuse to let go until somebody has been maimed in the region of the stomach. It is excellent exercise to push a lawn mower through grass that is knee deep, as it chokes up every few feet and has to be pounded on the back until it can draw a full breath.

People who have gotten into the habit of waking up at an unearthly hour during the summer, invariably rush out of the woodshed before breakfast and gallop up and down next to some neighbour's sleeping porch with a lawn mower that hasn't been oiled since infancy. Between times, in order to be sure that everybody in the block is awake, they will drag the mower over a cement walk on its hind legs, causing it to scream with agony at every step. This is a reprehensible pastime and ought to be taken in hand by the grand jury.

Arson squads were out last night at St. Andrew's, Scotland, and the south end of the Thames, and caused considerable damage. At St. Andrew's they destroyed the marine laboratory and many valuable charts and maps. In the south end the object of attraction was St. John's Church. The building was set fire to, but the damage caused is not great.

ATHENS, June 22.
Despite Russia's efforts for peace, little hope is entertained in political circles here for a friendly understanding among the allies regarding the new frontiers, owing to Bulgaria's attitude. Bulgaria has almost completed the concentration of her troops in Macedonia and seventy thousand men are facing the Greeks with the object of cutting communications between the Greek and Serbian armies by seizing the Saloniki railway. In the event of a general Savoff will operate against the Serbians, and General Ivanoff against the Greeks. Their headquarters are at Sofia.

PRESNO, Cal., June 22.
Fred Williams, a farmer, is here with a chunk from a meteor, which he says he found on his ranch at a depth of 16 feet, while digging a well. A number of local jewellers pronounce it crystallized gold. Williams says the mass must weigh twenty tons. Assayer Martin, of the State Mine at San Francisco, states that gold is sometimes found in crystal form, especially in Australia, but so far as he knows gold has never yet been found in a meteor. If Williams' discovery is not exaggerated, he is worth about ten millions more than he was worth before his find.

VIENNA, June 22.
It is believed here that war is almost certain. The Bulgarians occupy a much stronger military position and it is expected that they will attack the Serbians and Greeks on the River Vardar. According to reports to the Austrian newspapers, the co-operation of the Greek and Serbian armies has been accomplished. The Serbians are concentrating their troops on the right bank of the River, and three brigades of Montenegrin infantry are advancing to join them. The Bulgarians occupy positions on the opposite side. The River Vardar runs through Macedonia to the Gulf of Saloniki.

LONDON, June 22.
A story from St. Petersburg says the Monks of St. Michael's Monastery at Malkop, in the Caucasus, have gone on strike for more food, leisure and clothing. Father Ambrosio, Superior, refuses to grant the demands, and the strikers' services have been suspended. The Superior thinks devotions better than rallies. The long-suffering Monks bore their privations quietly until Ambrosio refused to allow them trousers, which he regarded as an unnecessary luxury. One cold day, while working in the fields, they became acutely conscious of their needs, and all refused to return to the Monastery. They are now being fed and housed, presumably by the peasants, who sympathize with them.

LONDON, June 22.
Bulgaria in a note sent to Greece, has assumed the same attitude she took in her address to the Serbian Government on Thursday. The note says that Bulgaria declines to cease the concentration of troops on the Greek lines or demobilize her forces unless Greece consents to a joint occupation of the disputed territory. According to reports Bulgaria will require another ten days to complete the concentration of her forces against Serbia and Greece. Numerous small skirmishes between the opposing armies are reported. Unless Bulgaria and Serbia can be induced to take up a less uncompromising attitude in the dispute over the division of their territorial spoils, or the Powers put prompt and effective pressure on them, a renewal of the war in the Balkans seems probable. All Europe is anxiously awaiting the next move.

Scenery vs. Sanitation.

New York, June 14.—Vaccination before vacation is the advice advanced officially by Health Commissioner Lederle, in a public statement to-day. Typhoid is "often centralized from infected food and well water in the country, and the disease is brought back to the city, where it develops in a few weeks, he declares. For persons who cannot afford to pay, vaccination against typhoid will be given free, announces the commissioner, who advises those persons seeking recreation outside the city, "pay more attention to their sanitary surroundings and less to the scenery."

MINARD'S LINIMENT LUMBER-MAN'S FRIEND.

Rapids Swept Two Men to Death.

Montreal, June 11.—Before the eyes of their fellow workers on the mainland, who were unable to aid them, two engineers in the employ of the Cedar Rapids Power Co. were caught in the fast flowing currents of the Cascades rapids yesterday afternoon and swept to their death. The bodies have not yet been found, but the boat from which they were lost was seen this morning swirling around in the grip of the rapids.

The two men, Milo Angel and M. C. Jameson, were crossing in a small row boat from the mainland to one of the numerous islands, when they went too far down stream and were caught by the rushing waters.

Unable to stop themselves from being drawn into the deadly rapids, the men were seen from the shore of the mainland making frantic efforts to save themselves.

Officials of the Power Company jumped into an automobile and dashed along at high speed and tried to get to Cascades Point in time to dispatch a launch which might be able to save them. The launch was sent out but no trace of the men could be found.

Sold Out And Out.

"And be sure to bring back a bottle of sea-water with you. They say as how it's so good for the rheumatics," remarked old Mrs. Giles, by way of final exhortation.

Then, a moment later, the excursion train steamed out of the station on its journey to the coast, bearing among its human freight the aged form of Thomas Giles, a true son of the soil.

But at the seaside, although amazed by the vastness of the ocean, he did not forget himself so far as to neglect his wife's behest. So, observing two mariners standing on the sands, he approached them, and inquired of one of them the price of a bottle of sea-water.

"A shilling a bottle, sir," replied the salt, with a knowing wink towards his companion.

Cheerfully Thomas paid his shilling; then retired inland to see the sights and get food. Some two hours later, having examined the church, the squarium, the museum, and a local eating-house, he returned again to inspect the sea. But, lo and behold, where the sea had been now stretched miles of sand. Hardly able to believe his eyes, Thomas hastened to his old sailor friend, and—

"By George! You've had a busy day!" he cried enthusiastically. "Sold out already! Well, well, well!"

Two Score Men Killed or Injured.

Racine, Wis., June 11.—Two score of men were either killed or injured to-day when the boilers on the coal barge C. K. Peck, unloading coal at the Pugh Coal Company docks blew up shortly before eleven o'clock this morning. The entire deck of the steamer, a mass of debris, was thrown into the harbor, and the Peck caught fire. Twenty-five men were on the steamer barge, but how many were killed has not as yet been learned.

The first reports gave two men dead and four badly injured. It was thought also that three victims were still aboard the blazing boat.

The boiler of the barge was blown forty feet into the air and landed some 200 feet astern of the vessel, crashing into the coal company's yards.

The latest and dangerous practice indulged by thoughtless boys is to fill their mouths with kerosene oil, holding a lighted match in one hand, then blowing the inflammable liquid at the light causing a blaze. Only a few days ago a lad named Carter while trying the trick got his face badly scorched.

Lord Murray Willing to Testify.

London, June 11.—The Parliamentary committee which is investigating the "scandals" connected with the Government wireless contracts, to-day received a cablegram from Lord Murray, of Ellibank, who is now at Quito, stating that as Chief Whip of the Liberal Party he had bought three thousand American Marconi shares, which he still holds. The fact of the purchase was revealed during the evidence given yesterday at the sittings of the Parliamentary committee.

Lord Murray further says that he did not inform his successor, P. H. Illingworth, of the transaction, because he did not wish to involve him in the muddle. He further confirms the evidence of Attorney General Isaacs and Chancellor Lloyd George as to his joint interest with them in Marconi shares, but declares that outside the foregoing he never had any interest in American Marconis.

Despite business obligations at Quito, Lord Murray announces his willingness to return to London at once if further evidence is required of him.

Obituary.

There died at Portugal Cove, on the 16th, Mrs. Jane Murphy, widow of the late Thomas Murphy. Mrs. Murphy, who lived to the good old age of 82, always enjoyed the best of health up to the past year, never having been known to take any kind of medicine during her life. She was always deeply interested in her household work and attending to her gardens. Those who visited her home always found hospitality. In her early days she was engaged for twelve summers on the Labrador. She leaves a son, Wm., who lived with her, and a daughter, Mrs. Michael Hall, of the city. Her funeral took place at White Hazel Ridge and was largely attended.—Com.

TWO PRISONERS.—The police arrested only two prisoners Saturday night, ordinary drunks. One was released on deposit yesterday.

It Hardly Seems Our Business To Apologize For Tea and Coffee

But simply to place the truth before people and let them act as they see fit.

That easily explains the cause of many a tea and coffee drinker's disturbance of heart, stomach, liver and nerves.

It's a good idea when the body begins to show disturbances, to quit tea and coffee and use

INSTANT POSTUM

This pure food-drink, sold by grocers everywhere, is warranted pure and absolutely free from the tea and coffee drug, caffeine. It feeds and nourishes where tea and coffee destroy the tissues.

Instant Postum is made of prime wheat and the juice of sugar-cane, roasted and blended to produce a rich, snappy flavour.

A level teaspoonful of Instant Postum in an ordinary cup of hot water dissolves instantly, and makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water.

SYDNEY, N.S., To-day.
Number two, one of the piers belonging to the Dominion Iron & Steel Co., was damaged by fire yesterday. The fire started in the engine room under number one tower, and quickly spread through the shores. The loss, although not very much over a $1,000, will probably tie up the work on the pier for three or four days.

HALIFAX, To-day.
The fire is still burning in the third seam slope of Alban mine, one of the most productive of Pictou County's coal fields. Flooding the mine is the last thing resorted to. Should the flames prove to be uncontrollable this would have to be done by letting in the river through an old ford pit which after months of labor has been pumped dry.

Met Horrible Death.

From the men of the Fogota, we get particulars of the death of a young man named Hicks, at Carmanville, on Wednesday last. He and his brother at the bottom of the bay, crossed a large pond in their boat to go fishing and brought a gun with them to shoot any birds that they might come across. When they reached their destination the older brother handed the victim the piece which was loaded with heavy shot. As he did so it struck the thwart and the whole discharge entered the young man's body below the ribs inflicting a terrible wound from which the life current flowed in torrents. His brother, did his best to staunch the flow of blood, and after making him comfortable rowed back over the lake and returned with his friends and relatives as quickly as possible but unfortunately only to find the dead body of the young man. The wound received was a fearful one as the intestines were cut and there was a gaping aperture in the side. The body was brought home and all the friends of the deceased were grief stricken over his tragic demise.

Died Yesterday.
The man, Samuel Hutchings, who was stabbed by P. Clarke, in the abdomen on the Smith Co's wharf, at 10 a.m. on Monday last, died at the General Hospital at 1.35 p.m. yesterday. The patient, we learn, was very ill and early yesterday morning his symptoms showed signs of the approach of dissolution. His friends were at his bedside and he passed peacefully away at the hour named. From the beginning the prospects of his recovery were poor as the liver was injured by the knife and there was a good deal of internal hemorrhage. The deceased was 23 years old, and the remains were conveyed to his late home last evening to be prepared for burial.
