CHAPTER XV.
A DAY WITH NATURE.

"EVERYONE is nature mad nowadays," remarks Len, a day or two later. "We may as well be in the fashion, and I have planned a day in the woods. Just a small party of you, you know, and absolutely informal. Of course, the Clitheroses will join us. I have already talked the matter over there, and they are enthusiastic about it. Come, girls, what do you say to it? Will you come? Gwen—Miss Clitheroe—will be desperately disappointed if you don't; and you'll lose no end of a treat for we're going to have a good time," he adds, with the eagerness of a schoolboy.

"Since when have you been so fond of picnics, Len? I always thought you detested all kinds of rural delights!" I reply significantly.

"But who is to be there?" Addie interrupts, looking up as she speaks from an interesting-critique on the last new novel.

"Oh, just ourselves; it isn't worth inviting people to, you know—a little impromptu, outing like that—Mr. Clitheroe and his two daughters, your girls, myself, and Warden—who has promised to bring that new friend of his, young Denton."

"And it is this afternoon?" Addie inquires, her face brightening unmistakably at the mention of Warden's name. "Rather short notice, is it not?"

"I don't very well see how it could have been longer, since the thing was not thought of until about an hour ago. It happened this way," Len explains: "Warden dropped in at the rectory while I was there on some business of the rector's, and, talking of the weather, expressed his opinion that it is a positive sin to stay in the house poring over books and parchments such a day as this, upon which somebody—I think it was Florence Clitheroe—started the proposal for this afternoon's outing—a proposal that was carried unanimously. There, girls, now you know all about it."

"What do you say, Lesley? Do you think we can get ready?" Addie inquires, with unmistakable interest. "Shall we go?"

"Of course you will go," exclaims Len, without waiting for my reply. "Why, it's all settled. The rectory servants are to be sent on in advance with the baskets of cake and things, under the charge of Mr. Smiles, the new curate, who has good-naturedly undertaken to see to the commissariat transfer. The rendezvous selected is one of the prettiest spots in Firley Wood; where we are to boil our own kettle over the orthodox rypsy fire; make our own tea with water nicely flavored with wood smoke, and drink it afterward sitting on the grass. After that there is to be strawberry picking in the woods, and a walk home by the ravine road in the cool of the evening, with as many unrehearsed adventures and incidents as chance and our own ingenuity can devise. What do you think of the program?"

"Very good indeed," I reply, conscious of certain reasons of my own for regarding the project more favorably than at first. "By the way, Len, who is this new friend of Ernest Warden's? I met the two together in Han-bury high street yesterday, and, to my surprise, recognized in Mr. Denton the hero of a certain little adventure of mine."

"Of yours!" is the amazed response. "Why, Lesley, what do you know of young Denton?" asks Len, with severity.

"Oh, you think I can't have adventures, I suppose!" I reply, preparing to make a virtue of necessity, and tell my story, though not at all averse to exciting as much curiosity as possible before I explain.

Mr. Denton is to be at the picnic this afternoon, it seems, and, unless I give an account of my escapade now, it may all come out more awkwardly still by and by, I decide, so, calling my utmost powers of narrative to my aid, I proceed to give as brisk and sang-froid a description of that ridiculous little reading of "Dark Deeds" in the buttercup meadow as I know how.

"Oh, come!" exclaims Len, with a remarkable broad grin, "there must be a strain of Irish blood in the family, somewhere or we couldn't possibly distinguish ourselves so grandly in blunders."

"Just like one of Lesley's scrapes!" smiles Addie. "Fancy that child attempting to write a novel! Why, your poor little thing, didn't it make your head ache?"

"Oh, dreadfully," I reply. "I found that the fearful strain was having a most injurious effect upon my brain, so I don't think I shall ever attempt it again."

"What a talent that child has for putting her foot into it," is Len's very fraternal remark. "Mr. Denton must have gone away with a remarkably high opinion of your literary abilities, my dear. He ought to have been deeply impressed by 'Dark Deeds.'"

"Oh, he was!" I return, preparing for any amount of badinage on the subject of Mr. Denton and novel writing, now that Len knows of it. "Nothing but my natural modesty prevents me from believing that I have made a complete conquest of that young man."

"But who and what is this Mr. Denton?" Adelaide inquires, with her languid interest. Evidently Mr. Warden and Mr. Warden's friends are birds of a very different color in Addie's eyes.

"Oh, some new importation from the land of the Stars and Stripes, I believe," interposes Len. "An Englishman by birth, I think, though I did not find him very communicative on the subject of his nationality. He has traveled about a good deal, it

"Barber's Itch"

Annoying, isn't it? But you can soon get rid of this form of eczema by applying Dr. Chase's Ointment after shaving.

This soothing ointment heals the irritated skin and keeps it soft and pliable. By its antiseptic influence it prevents the spreading of skin trouble.

You will not suffer from tenderness of the skin if you apply Dr. Chase's Ointment after shaving. It acts as a food for the skin, keeping it smooth and velvety.

seems, and has just come from California, where he has made a fortune in oil. Some fellows do have that sort of luck, you know," adds Len, rather ruefully. "I'm sorry to say it never fell to my lot, though. He is making a tour of Europe at present, it seems, though what should have brought a young fellow like that, with good looks and plenty of money, to an obscure little hole like Hanbury, I can't conceive. But, come, girls, there is not much time to lose. Hadn't you better go and dress? They are to call for us at three. The rector and his daughters are to pick me up in the basket carriage, while Warden, with his friend, Denton, will call for you girls in the dogcart. We drive over to Firley Wood, but the traps are to be sent back, and the journey home accomplished on foot, with a stoppage at Forton rectory for a little music and supper."

Nothing averse to the prospect before me, I run upstairs with the resolute determination of making myself look as pretty as possible.

I may not be a genius, but, as even Len admits, I am good to look at; and, for certain reasons of my own, I mean to look my very prettiest to-day.

Mr. Denton—since that is the name of my good-looking unknown—is to be there; and whatever he may think of me as an authoress, he shall see that I am not to be despised as a woman. I decide, as, attired in my pretty pink cambric, I fasten a big black bow over the coil of hair dressed low on my neck.

CHAPTER XVII.
HAUNTED BY A FACE.

PICNICS do not come every day in the week, and I am sure no one will blame me for spending rather more time than was necessary before my mirror. But at last I feel that I have done all I can to make myself look pretty. Then, with a final peep, to see that my hat is arranged at the proper angle to display the wavy tresses that fall over my forehead, I go down to await the others.

At the appointed time, the rector, Mr. Clitheroe—a stout, easy-going man of sixty, whose still handsome face shows plainly whence his children derive their good looks—drives up with his two daughters in the basket carriage.

Florence, looking very pretty and fragile as usual in her pale-green muslin and picture hat with clusters of white daisies; and Gwendolen, more royally beautiful than ever in her fashionable but exquisite costume of pale blue, with a jaunty hat and snowy plume crowning her fair head.

Perfectly—faultlessly lovely, I admit, with a sigh, as I glance at the creamy skin, the violet eyes, and graceful head with its mass of shining gold. Ah, poor Len! What wonder that she should have bewitched him so completely, I think, as she gives him her hand, with her lovely smile, the sweet eyes drooping with becoming consciousness under the ardent gaze that tells but too plainly how well he loves her.

Dear old Len! How can any woman have the heart to look up into that kindly, loving face and deceive him? But is she deceiving him, I wonder? Perhaps I have misjudged her all along, and she is really learning to care for him, after all.

"Here they are!" cries Addie, as the dogcart turns the corner of the lane; and the next moment that well-appointed vehicle, with Mr. Warden and the hero of my adventure in the buttercup meadow, dashes up to the gate, and, amid a good deal of laughter and merriment, Adelaide and I are assisted to our seats, and the little cavalcade is in motion.

"Such a perfect day!—such a delightful spot!" are the exclamations with which, on our arrival at the rendezvous, we gather together, and hold a little council of war as to what is to be done next.

"But dreadfully warm! Think!" interposes the rector, taking off his hat and mopping the perspiration from his face and head, with an air of utter exhaustion. "Well, now, young people, I hope you don't expect me to assist in any of your culinary arrangements. I've come just to please you, but I give you my word that I don't know anything at all about kindling fires and boiling kettles. My forte rather inclines toward tea-drinking than tea-making, I think!"

"I believe that," laughs his daughter Flo; "but, do you know that, according to the laws of this community, those who do not work shall not eat?"

"Never mind, Mr. Clitheroe," I exclaim. "We know your weakness, so we will let you off easily. There are plenty of sticks lying about, and Mr. Denton is going to light the fire. He knows all about it, because he has camped out with the cowboys on the great prairies of the Far West. Adelaide and Mr. Warden are to assist Gwendolen and Leonard in unpacking the baskets. Florence and I will make ourselves useful in cutting up pound cake, while Mr. Smiles goes to see whether old Bell has gone to sleep on the road, or drowned himself in that pail of water he was sent to fetch from the spring."

A commission from which the curate is evidently not altogether sorry to be relieved by the tardy appearance of old Bell—a solemn-looking personage who performs the double function of sexton and gardener at the rectory—with the long-delayed pail of water.

Everybody is busy—everybody is happy. Even Mr. Clitheroe, stretched on the grass at a safe distance from the smoke of the fire, is evidently enjoying a lazy felicity that suits him admirably.

"How lovely it all looks!" exclaims Addie, pausing with a basket of wild strawberries in her hand to contemplate the group gathered about the banquet Flo and I have been so busily spreading. "Why, it is like a picture," she adds, looking like a picture herself in her white dress, the sunlight lighting up her sweet, grave face, with its perfect profile and dainty mouth, wreathed just now in a smile of pleased approval. "Oh, what a pity it is that life cannot be made up of just such days as this!"

"Never stop to think of that, dear," is Warden's whispered reply, drawing her to his side with an air of tender proprietorship. "Let us be happy while we can. Heaven alone can tell how long it will last!"

School Girls' Nerves

When an undue amount of nervous energy is consumed in the brain there is bound to be failure of the other functions of the body. Digestion is impaired—the head aches—you cannot sleep—and irritated—feeling tired and lack energy.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a creator of rich, red blood and a builder up of the exhausted, nervous system.

liked by the men themselves, he said. Nor do either the British or French understand why big strong men like the Americans should be tagged with such a nickname. The British soldiers call their American comrades, Yanks.

DECREASE IN SINKINGS.
PARIS, Aug. 14. (Havas Agency.)—The Allied and neutral shipping sunk by submarines during July amounted to 270,000 tons, compared with 534,839 tons sunk in July, 1917. This radical decrease in losses is doubly significant when the increase in merchant marine navigation resulting from the American ship-building effort is considered. The Entente nations constructed during July a tonnage in excess of 230,000 to that destroyed during the month by enemy operations. The Entente tonnage sunk in 1917 was fifty per cent. less than that lost in 1918.

POLES FIGHTING.

AVIATION OPERATIONS.
LONDON, Aug. 14. (Havas Agency.)—Twenty-one German airplanes were brought down out of control yesterday, according to an official statement issued to-night on aviation operations. Six British machines are missing as a result of aerial encounters. British and American air squadrons cooperated in an attack on an enemy airfield, and destroyed six machines parked near the hangars. Fifty-eight tons of bombs were dropped during the last 24 hours on various objectives. 21 tons by day and 37 tons by night.

LOVD GEORGE'S CONGRATULATIONS.
LONDON, Aug. 14. (Havas Agency.)—Premier David Lloyd George has in the name of the British nation sent his congratulations to Field Marshal Haig the British commander in the fighting in Picardy. The Premier's message reads: "The Imperial War Cabinet wishes to convey to you and officers and non-commissioned officers and RIBECOURT TAKEN.

PARIS, Aug. 14. (Havas Agency.)—The town of Ribecourt on the Ypres-Neuve Chapelle road, which has been held by the Germans since the capture of this town by the British in 1917, has been recaptured by the French according to the official statement issued to-night.

THE AUSTRALIANS SHOWING THEMSELVES.
PARIS, Aug. 14. (Havas Agency.)—All hostile positions between the western outskirts of Bray and Etienneham have fallen into the hands of the Australians, thus placing the river banks southwest of Bray under the control of the British. The Australians also have cleared the enemy from Cateaux wood.

THRUST FOURTEEN MILES DEEP.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. (Havas Agency.)—Official reports to the American Government show that the Allied thrusts in Picardy attained a maximum penetration of fourteen miles up to yesterday. General March, United States chief of staff, disclosed this today in his semi-weekly conference with newspaper correspondents adding that at no point in the enemy now within fifty miles of Paris. The chief of staff took occasion to urge newspaper men to discourage the use of the nickname Sammy in speaking of American troops. The term is dis-

AMERICAN ARMEN IN ACTION.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. (Havas Agency.)—American aviators have conducted successful raids on the railroad yards at Comblains, Longuyon and Demmary Barcourt, General Pershing reported in his communication for yesterday which was made public to-night by the war department.

MACHINE GUNS PROMINENT.
WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 14. (By the A.P.)—The battle for the Chateau area, which is going on, is only a small part of the operation in progress, and developments in other parts of the line may modify the situation before the battle is re-opened here. The Germans have had one advantage here as elsewhere, in that they have been falling back on the supplies while the French have been obliged to bring up theirs over a difficult country. So far, General Humbert's troops have had four days of continuous fighting, fully half of which has been spent in gas-infested sectors. During all this fighting, it was the machine-gun against the rifle, the Germans having comparatively few infantrymen in the front line, but being plentifully supplied with machine guns, virtually one for each man and all ambushed. When the nests of quick-brewers were discovered and a move against them began, this move had to be in the nature of an outflanking process, which was trying work in this rough region. Besides holding the important crests of St. Claude farm and Ecouvillon, the French have added to their captures Monolithe, another high plateau, which commands a considerable extent of ground to the north and east. From Ecouvillon the French have a good view of the Divette valley, where the Germans appear to be trying to establish a position with the aid of their old earthworks which were constructed in 1916.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.
LONDON, Aug. 14. (Havas Agency.)—Marshal Haig's communication issued to-night says: Local fighting has taken place to-day on the battle-front in the neighborhood of Parfliers. Our troops have made progress and have taken several prisoners. Following upon his recent withdrawals in the Hebuterne sector the enemy has evacuated his forward positions at Beaumont Hamel, Serre, Puisieux, au Mont, and Bucquoy. Our patrols are pushing forward in touch with the enemy, and have gained ground about these villages. A few prisoners have been taken by us.

FURTHER BRITISH ADVANCE.
LONDON, Aug. 14. (Havas Agency.)—British troops have gained further ground at the apex of the Lys salient in Flanders, says the official statement from Field Marshal Haig to-day. East of Meteren the line was advanced slightly while east of Vieux Berguin south of Meteren patrols established a new line.

GERMAN SUBS APPROACH NEW YORK HARBOR.
NEW YORK, Aug. 14. (Havas Agency.)—The Associated Press this morning carries the following: German submarines approaching the very gates of New York Harbor sank the oil tanker Frederick B. Kellogg off the Ambrose Channel last night. Thirty-five members of the crew brought here to-day reported that seven others are missing. These survivors were picked up by an American steamer. The Frederick B. Kellogg was bound from San Pedro, Mexico, for Boston.

COULDN'T SPARE THEM.
GENEVA, Aug. 14. (Havas Agency.)—Twenty divisions of troops were demanded of Germany's allies by General Ludendorff during the retreat from the Marne, according to the Democra, which received the news from German sources. Austria-Hungary refused, but after General Ludendorff had made a threat, Vienna sent two divisions to the western front. For this reason the Austro-Swiss frontier was closed recently.

We Told You So.
Yesterday at 1 o'clock the horse of Mr. Helwell, which had been standing on Pilot's Hill, suddenly took fright, and dashed down the hill, across Duckworth Street and right over the wall adjoining the Custom House Building. This wall is surmounted by a rickety, unsightly old fence, and afforded no protection at all. Fortunately the horse, after his ten-foot dive, was not hurt, and beyond the lamps being broken, the carriage attached was undamaged. Several times we have advocated having a new, strong fence put along this place, but this accident had to come before a move is made. Let us hope that the needful will soon be given, and thereby avoid further and perhaps more serious accidents.

Gilt the Inscription.

We desire to draw the attention of the proper authorities to the large granite monument, in the Government House grounds, just off the Mall, and facing Military Road. This monument is enclosed within an iron rail fence. At one time there was carrying on the stone explaining that it had been erected in honor of a brave man who gave his life in endeavoring to save the lives of two others from drowning in Deadman's Pond. Signal Hill. However, now the inscription is completely erased, and cannot be read. We would advise a recarving and then a gliding over so that the many tourists and others who pass there may understand for what purpose the monument has been erected, namely, to honor the memory of a hero who died a heroic death.

Potato Prices.

Potatoes are selling at the rate of $18 a barrel. To prove those figures exorbitant, we have only to give the following: Seed cost $5 a barrel, calculating the cost of preparing the ground and planting the barrel of seed, and paying other expenses we might estimate at $10. Then add another $5 for further expenses, of weeding, etc., and it amounts to $15. Then add $5 for digging, and transferring to the buyer, and the total cost would be $20 a barrel. Now, from a barrel of seed, if the potatoes grow any way fairly at all, 10 barrels would not be an over estimate. Twenty would be nearer the mark. Ten barrels of potatoes, at $18, is $180, and less expenses, the gain on the barrel of potatoes at present rates would be $160, or $500 per cent profit. What is the Food Control Board doing?

Motor Accident.

Yesterday afternoon an automobile backed against the sidewalk into the store of Mr. Connors, druggist. Fortunately the big plate glass was not broken, the only damage occurring being the breaking of a small window under the plate glass one.

Official Evidence.

The quality of mercy is the hall mark of the Britisher, and no further evidence is needed to prove that he possesses God's attribute, than the treatment accorded German prisoners during the present war. From the moment of their surrender, the men of the enemy have been better looked after, have received more careful attention, have been given better quarters and food and altogether have been treated in a manner which has brought out some very hostile criticisms of the authorities for what has been styled "Coddling the Hun." There have been, we admit, a deal of slopping over in the methods adopted in England for taking care of war prisoners, and the same thing perhaps applies to interned aliens on this side of the Atlantic, but all of it perhaps is but part of the Britons' creed to never kick a dog when he is down. A comparison of the German way of dealing with war prisoners does not show up to the credit of the enemy. English soldiers captured, and exchanged subsequently, have many tales of the brutality shown them by German men and women and the strangest part of it is that the women outdid the men in the cruelty and spleen, which they vented on our defenceless and helpless soldiers.

A pamphlet has recently been published, edited by Kettle Howard, containing in part the statements of 128 soldiers, 48 officers and 77 N. C. O's and men, who were prisoners of war in Germany. It is claimed that the Germans treated their first British prisoners of war with deliberate, intentional cruelty and organized cruelty. On the few occasions when any kindnesses were shown, they came from educated officers, but from illiterate privates. The behavior of the German Red Cross was so vile as to be almost incredible. Any appeal to the people who bore on their arms the sacred symbol of eternal charity was met with foul words and foul deeds. But the bad conduct of the men was utterly surpassed by that of the German women, especially the educated and wealthy class. These "angels of mercy" jeered and spat at the wounded soldiers they met behind the lines, and showed the qualities of German "Kultur" in many other ways. The evidence in favor of the enemy is very limited. The private soldiers showed little kindnesses when they were sure of not being detected by their officers, but beyond that, the friends of our suffering heroes, to quote the text were "Blacks, sentries, poor Belgian girls and dogs."

Here are a few pictures from the other side of the slate. "At Colons Lieutenant-Colonel Neish of the Gordon Highlanders saw a Red Cross woman, attending the German escort with coffee, deliberately pour the remaining contents of the can on the ground when asked by the prisoners for some. Major E. H. Jones, R.F.A. tells that Red Cross women gave their guards coffee, food, cigars, etc., but absolutely refused to give the English prisoners a drink of water. "At one station" Major A. S. Peables of the Suffolk, testified, "We asked two Red Cross ladies for a glass of water, but they burst out laughing and said, 'Nothing for you English.'" "Very frequently," said Lieutenant-Colonel Collingwood, R.A.M.C., "when our men asked for soup or coffee, the Red Cross workers spat at them." Major Furneaux of the R.A.M.C. tells that the Red Cross workers were the most venomous. When serving food to prisoners they spat on it. At another place, Captain Fraser, R.A.M.C., tells that Red Cross officials and women brought soup to the trains, showed it to the British and then took it away, calling them swine and blackguards. Lieutenant Denny of the Somerset Light Infantry was compelled by a German hospital nurse to walk a hundred yards, through a crowd of Germans, utterly naked, save for a pair of socks. The stories of the men who ply bear out the behavior of the "German ladies" who took delight in spitting in the faces of the British prisoners. These quotations could be multiplied, but sufficient has been printed to show the difference between the British and German treatment of war prisoners. Excessive kindness on the one side, inhumanity and brutality on the other, and yet some people are silly enough to believe in German goodness and virtue. But the reckoning must be paid. German soldiers and officers as well as German Red Cross officials, male and female, and the entire guilty German populace must pay it. The German civilian is not the long suffering and kindly creature some of us might think he is. He is not the victim of the militarist party. He is as he was born, and will always be—a Hun.

Yesterday's Cricket.

The first cricket match for the season took place at St. George's Field yesterday afternoon between the Shamrocks and Nondescripts, and resulted in a win for the former by nine wickets. It was evident that both sides lacked practice, particularly in batting, but in spite of this the match proved interesting, and was not the walk-over the score would indicate. Going first to bat the Nondescripts fell easy victims to the bowling of Trenchard and Ryan, scoring only 29 runs. The Shamrocks then went to bat and by careful play succeeded in notching up 61. The Nondescripts in their second innings scored a little more successful, scoring 55 for nine wickets. This left the Shamrocks only 24 runs to make, which they did with the loss of one wicket. The following are the scores:—

"Fish Luncheon."

Yesterday afternoon Mr. H. D. Reid entertained Mr. H. B. Thomson, Canadian Food Controller and party, together with a number of prominent city men, at a Fish Luncheon. Every course served comprised fish from Newfoundland waters, all having been taken from the cold storage plant of the Atlantic Company. The different varieties were, Caplin, Salmon, Cod, Halibut, Turbot, Haddock, Wolf fish and Flounder. Mr. Thomson expressed his appreciation of the food and was most enthusiastic on the flavour and taste of our fish. Notwithstanding that those served had been taken out of the refrigerating room, it was impossible to tell that by eating as there was no difference between the frozen and the newly caught. After luncheon the Canadian visitors motored to the "Exon" grounds, and enjoyed the hospitality of the Orphanage Committee.

Mr. J. McGrath Injured

Yesterday afternoon, while painting his house, on McParlane Street, Mr. McGrath was standing on a scaffold when it collapsed, precipitating him to the ground, a distance of 18 feet. When picked up it was seen that he was severely injured, and a doctor was immediately summoned. The doctor soon diagnosed his injuries as a badly fractured leg, while the other was dislocated at the knee. The injured man was conveyed to hospital by the ambulance where the broken limb was set, and the other replaced in joint. Mr. McGrath also suffered badly from shock, but is doing well at the hospital.

The Whirligig of War.

MEN WHO HAVE SPRUNG TO THE FRONT.

The whirligig of war has wrought strange revolutions in the lives of many men. Four years ago Sir Eric Geddes was absorbed in his work as deputy general-manager of the North-Eastern Railway, little dreaming that soon he was to blossom into major-general, vice-admiral, and ruler of Britain's Navy. And his brother, Sir Auckland, who to-day is our Minister of National Service, was peacefully delivering lectures on anatomy at the McGill University, Montreal.
 Sir Albert Stanley, President of the Board of Trade, was happy in his work of reorganizing London's underground railways. Lord Rhonda was busy amassing riches from his South Wales collieries, without a thought of war or office. Lord Beaverbrook was a little-known member of Parliament, with never a dream of coronets and the King's Ministry; and Lords Northcliffe and Rothermere were absorbed in the vast business they control.

 Sir Samuel Lewis, Financial Secretary of the Treasury, was doing accountants' work in the States. Sir Joseph Mackay was a very peaceful Glasgow shipowner, like Mr. Andrew Weir, who, as Surveyor-General of Supply, is saving the country $50,000,000 a year.

Mr. Henderson and Mr. Barnes, as more or less obscure M.P.'s, seemed as far removed from the Cabinet and war-waging as from Mars. And Sir David Shackleton, Mr. Bruce, Mr. Roberts, Mr. Clynes, and other sons of Labor, who to-day are Ministers of the Crown, were scarcely known by name to the "man in the street."
 And no less dramatic have been the revolutions in the lives of soldiers whose names to-day are "household words." Sir Douglas Haig was known in the Army as a clever soldier, but to the outside world he was unknown. Sir William Robertson had risen from a private of Lancers to major-general but outside the Army he was only known to a small circle of friends.

And Sir Henry Wilson, his successor as Military Chief of His Majesty's Armies, was a modest, painstaking soldier, of whom the world had hardly ever heard. Major-General Byng, the hero of Vimy and Cambrai, was low on the list of major-generals after twenty-six years' service. And Generals Alton and Horns, Trenchard, Sykes, Salmond, and many another who have achieved fame, were unknown names to the world outside the Army.

Comparative Values in Footwear!

With the majority of people, price is the chief consideration in purchasing footwear. That's why there are so many uncomfortable feet in Newfoundland to-day and so many dissatisfied shoe purchasers.

For low-priced shoes cannot be good shoes—the high cost of good materials and skilled labour won't permit. Then why experiment—at the expense of your comfort—with low-priced shoes? Why not wear

A DOSE OF POISON.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Would you, just for the sake of proving a point or of letting some unimportant person know what you thought of him, take a small dose of poison? It sounds absurd and yet that is what many of us do over and over again.

Anger is a poison. I repeat that fact as to be from the "Midwest" speaks of anger "clearing the mind." The Chinese have an old proverb: "This fire kindle for your enemy often burns yourself more than him."

Hasten hardening of the arteries. Recently, scientific investigators have found out that anger does produce a blood poison which has such actual physical effects as to upset digestion and hasten that dread process of hardening the arteries.

And still we get angry. And not just at big, important things, but at all sorts of little unimportant matters. The reason I write with such fervor, is this:

What a Triumph For her! I have just let myself get angry. The person who was the cause thereof, is a woman who means nothing to me or, rather, less than nothing. She is an ill-tempered, ignorant, narrow-minded woman (how I do enjoy those adjectives!) I shall read this over later and see if I ought, for justice' sake, to take any of them out with whom I am obliged to have dealings in a trade way. I felt that she had not been fair to me in certain dealings and I said so. She answered me like a fishwife. And then I saw red. When I came back into the house, my cheeks were burning. I felt deathly sick and I was trembling. And I had forgotten that woman to do that to me. What a triumph for her!

Often people who are arguing abstract questions get quite angry, and surely nothing could be more foolish than that. Nothing that really has to be adjusted or arranged, and yet, just because one cannot make others think as one thinks, one injures oneself by getting angry! I am a great believer in argument. I consider it splendid gymnastics for the mind if one argues fairly and with a real desire to get at the truth. But the minute one finds oneself getting angry—stop!

Times When It is Right To Be Angry. True, there are times when it is right to be angry, and namely pangs not to be. The man who would go about the world refusing to get angry at wrong and injustice for fear he would make his heart beat too fast, would be a pitiful sort. Even the saintly Boethius said, "A man that does not know how to be angry, does not know how to be good. Now and then a man should be shaken to the core over things evil."

But to get angry over little things and with little people, is to be as petty as they.

(I decided not to take out any of the adjectives.)

Germany's Former Colonies.

At a meeting of the Council of the Royal Colonial Institute held on June 7, the following resolution was passed: "That the Council of the Royal Colonial Institute, in view of the coming Imperial Conference, wish to express with all respect, but in the strongest terms their view, which they believe to be almost universally shared throughout the Empire, that, alike in the interests of the Empire and in the interests of the Native Races concerned, no one of the former German Possessions beyond the Seas, should be restored to Germany." There cannot be the least doubt that this resolution accurately sums up the wishes of, or rather, the determination of all Overseas Britons, as well as of the great bulk of the Home population, who have spared a thought to the subject. Among many of those holding the view will be some who will regret that the British Empire should receive any additional territory as a result of the War; but they realize that there is practically no alternative, as no one would dream of selecting an international administration where a single Power is clearly marked out for the task of Government. The use of the native races has been put with much force by the Bishop of Zanzibar in the form of an open letter to General Smuts, and no one acquainted with Germany's role in the territories that once were hers in Africa, will fail to realize what the restoration of that rule would mean to the unfortunate population who have welcomed the advent of British administration. It is to be hoped that the Imperial Cabinet will record a formal decision on the question of the future of the former German colonies in order that misgivings in the Dominions may be dispelled once and for all.—United Empire.

USEFUL LESSONS.

The war is teaching me a lot I never seem to learn. I know, for example, that each day some lesson hits the spot, and keeps my knowledge growing. I'm learning how to seek the silver, which may avert disaster; this was a graft in former times I never seemed to master. On payday I would draw my mon, and then would let it tickle, and always, as the week was done, I had to seek my tucker. But war has shown me it's a sin to waste a single nickel, and now I take my hard earned tin, and put it down in a pickle. It's hard to start this saving scheme, for one who's seen a spender; he thinks that thrill of a tightwad scheme—he'd blow his legal tender. But having sailed down a plank, the next is quick to follow; he finds collecting silver junk beats howling at all hollow. The war is teaching lots of things to put away the shillings; slim comfort, you will say, perhaps, for all the blood and killing. But it is good to know that war has one redeeming feature (perhaps that's what it's fashioned for)—it's useful as a teacher.

Milady's Boudoir.

THE EFFECT OF CARE IN DRESS.

The stout woman should study the effect of dress, by so doing she will be able to overcome to a certain extent the appearance of stoutness. To my face and chin are the members that first convey the truth to these you meet. The manner in which you dress the neck will either enhance or reduce the stout appearance.

If the face is too fat it is usually accompanied by a equally fat body. The cause of obesity is a too abundant accumulation of fat in the cellular tissues of the body, and when not hereditary, it arises from numerous causes, such as, over-indulgence in sweets, and fatty foods, or possibly want of exercise.

It means a great deal of time and patience if the stout woman would keep her flesh within fashion's boundaries. The present day mode of hairdressing does not permit of straight lines, and in consequence artificial means must be resorted to. Heated irons should never be used for curving the hair. Their use will injure the hair follicles, causing the hair to split, become dry and come out.

If one finds difficulty in keeping the hair curled even when it has been done in kid curlers, moisten the hair lightly with glycerine and rose water. This solution causes it to become a trifle sticky and more adaptable to the curling process.

About Thrones.

The throne of Russia was, and is, for, although it stands empty, it has not been injured or dismantled—a wide chair, placed upon a dais approached by several steps, at the end of an enormous hall of costly marbles. Four pillars with huge carved bases paws for feet, support an ornate canopy above it. The chair itself is of gold, ivory, and precious woods, ablaze with inset jewels. It is upholstered with ermine.

Of almost equal splendour is the throne of the Kaiser of Berlin. It is massively built of costly woods, much carved, and is said to have cost $24,000. The arms are in part of solid gold set with emeralds. Its very high back is adorned with the Imperial coat-of-arms, in gold, and the Kaiser, when he occupies it, sits beneath a canopy of cloth of gold, with one foot resting upon a cushioned stool covered with the same material.

Great Britain preserves a taste for splendour on splendid occasions; but the throne of King George, in the House of Lords, is built fundamentally of material chosen for sentiment rather than for magnificence. It is of British oak adorned with ivory, gold, and silver, and is draped with priceless tapestry. On the back of this chair of State are the emblematic lion and unicorn, carved and gilded. The arms of the throne terminate in a pair of lions' heads of gold with open jaws.

Presumably, however, there will never be a throne to compare with that of the Mogul emperors of Hindustan. The famous "peacock throne" at Delhi cost at least $4,000,000—possibly twice that sum. Behind it stood two life-size peacocks, enamelled with rubies, sapphires, emeralds, and other precious stones of colours appropriate to represent the birds of life.

The chair was of solid gold profusely studded with gems and surmounted by a canopy upheld by twelve golden pillars. On either side was an umbrella (an Oriental symbol of sovereignty) of crimson velvet embroidered and fringed with pearls. But thrones pass away. This one was carried off to Teheran in 1739 by Nadir Shah, the Persian conqueror, after the sack of Delhi, and was eventually broken up.

COMPARISON.

"Life's like a year of toil," said he, "a spring a summer and a fall. Are in the course of time bestowed by God, above, upon us all. We sow the seeds in early youth, we labor through the summer sun, Then in the autumn of our years we reap upon the work we've done. And so I hope when I shall reach the fruitful harvest of my years, My life will look as golden then, as every field of wheat appears."

"The fields are dreary in the spring—there seems no hint of harvest, then. So to the eyes of eager youth appear the humble tasks of men. Then comes the summer time of strife, when courage labors in the heat. And he who falters in the field reaps but the sorrow of defeat. But he who toils from day to day, who sees the hills and dares to climb. Shall win the rich rewards of peace when he shall reach life's autumn time. 'Out of the rain of strife and care, I hope some golden hue will glow; I would not lose a life's acres here when it shall come my time to go. I'd like to settle back and gaze across my little stretch of soil. And see some beauty here and there to mark my summer time of toil. How glorious the orchards are in days before grim winter nears! I pray my life will look as fair when I approach my clover: : era."

SPLENDED WORK.

LONDON, Aug. 12. (Canadian Press dispatch from Reuters, London).—The glorious record of the Canadian cavalry and motor brigades in the Dardanelles is a subject from which the official correspondent of the Canadian military with the Canadian forces in the Dardanelles, Lt. Col. (ret.) J. H. Macdonald, writes a brilliant picture of their own brilliant part in the Dardanelles campaign. One section of Canadian horsemen under a splendid young officer, Lt. Col. (ret.) J. H. Macdonald, was with the French cavalry in the Dardanelles. They were slaughtered and their own brilliant part in the Dardanelles campaign. ### Thoughts Upon the Times

(By PATRIOT.)

It is now the middle of August and still there are no prices yet fixed for this year's fish. Mr. Coaker's attempt to limit the price to $12 per qll. will be resented by every fisherman in the country. They know, as well as he does, that when everything is taken into consideration this is not a proper market value for fish. It does not represent a ten per cent. increase over last year's price. Codfish today is selling from $20 to 40 per cent. higher in the European markets than last year, then by all means let the fisherman have their proportional part of the increased profits. It is only fair. Why should Mr. Coaker be prepared to pay for fish buyers and ship owners have all the profit and the fishermen none.

Everything which Mr. Coaker and his merchant friends sell to the people have gone up in price, in some instances over 100 per cent. then why should not fish? The farmer's produce has increased in value a hundredfold. It would appear that the fishermen, with their great F. P. U. organization, are worse off now than even they were before. Even their own President has attempted to fix the price of their produce at a figure below that which almost any buyer is prepared to pay for it. It is the unkindest cut of all.

The Earl of Devon has again been sent on the northern coastal route while the people keep crying out for the Prospero. What have the good people of the north done to deserve this unjust discrimination as compared with the people on the South West and West Coast? The people should demand an immediate explanation from Mr. Coaker and the sailors of the Union—Messrs. Cashin and Crosbie. They are the responsible parties.

Mr. Coaker, with the assistance of Sir Edward Morris, placed himself in the public position which he now occupies. For years he "fed us up" with the idea that no one could rule the country better than he could. He has now had twelve months' experience and is not measuring up to the standard which he led the people to expect of him. In fact he has disappointed even his most enthusiastic followers. Things political have gone from bad to worse. The country to-day is in the grasp of a combine worse than any which ever had control of our public affairs before. They do what they please, their own interests come first, the people's last. How long this state of affairs will last is problematical, but it will last just as long as public spirit remains dormant.

The Florida Water evil is still permitted to hold sway in the city. Is it to be one of the permanent results of prohibition? If so, it were better we went back to pre-prohibition days, for no licensed publican would dare hand out to a customer the vile stuff which is now sold by the foreign fraternity in this city. If the present authorities have not the moral courage to deal with the question, the people themselves should settle it. It is high time something was done to put a stop to it.

AN APOLOGY—Oh, no! No apology is needed for Marsh's Wines, etc. They are guaranteed by the manufacturers, who also hold themselves responsible for the good quality of their product. Two shipments are expected daily. For sale at advertised stores.—jy20,ead,lm

"Shower of Socks."

Miss Armored Harris has kindly forwarded for publication the following extract from a letter written by her mother, Lady Harris, which will be read with much interest:

"I was invited to be present at St. James's Palace when the Silver Wedding gifts were presented to Her Majesty last Monday. There were three or four huge rooms packed with the many and various things that have been sent. They took three weeks to unpack and there are still articles awaiting transport from the docks.

"You never saw such a collection of useful and delightful things. Your socks from Newfoundland made a splendid wall reaching up ever so high in the room where the Queen made her speech, and I stood by them as Newfoundland's representative. Her Majesty shook hands and stood in astonishment, gazing up at the huge barrier of socks, and said, 'Wonderful—surely not all done by hand!' And I replied, 'Everyone, nearly 6,000 pairs—men, women and children of Newfoundland contributed.' She was very pleased and said again, 'It is wonderful.' One of the ladies of the Q.M.N.G. standing near me said, 'Newfoundland is wonderful, she has done well. I have just sent out 210 badges.'

"The whole place was simply packed with beautiful things, all sorted and put together—beautiful blankets, gauze dressings, towels, soaps of all kinds, shirts galore, crutches, even beautiful books and any amount of games, and every conceivable thing that could be useful and give pleasure. Her Majesty made a tour of everything and all the presidents were presented to her later we were photographed."

Government House, Aug. 13.

THE LATEST DRINK is Marsh's Black Cherry Wine, made by the manufacturers of Marsh's "Par Excellence" Port Wine and soon to be placed on the local market. It's the best thing yet, and got more "go" in it than any other drink on the street.—jy20,ead,lm

C. of E. Orphanage Garden Party.

The Church of England Orphanage Garden Party, which was held yesterday afternoon at Exton, proved a big success. Among those present were the Governor, Miss Harris, Captain Campbell, A.D.C., Lt.-Col. Knox-Vivian, Sir Jos. Outerbridge, Mayor Gosling, Hon. M. F. Cashin, Acting Premier, Mr. R. B. Job and many other well-known citizens. The grounds were dotted with tables scattered around arranged in artistic profusion. There were fancy work stalls, and a Flower League stall, in charge of Miss Bessie White, daughter of the Lord Bishop. Mrs. Norman Alderdice and Mrs. Gordon Winter attended to the ice cream and Messrs. Arthur Gosling, Outerbridge and Carter looked after the drinks. The usual side shows, such as fortune telling, etc., were in evidence and were well patronized. The attendance was large and the receipts were up to expectations. The C. of E. Band was present during the afternoon and night and rendered some splendid musical airs.

The Vigil on the Coast.

NIGHT AND DAY A CEASELESS WATCH IS KEPT ON THE SEAS FROM OUR SHORES.

A way to the north appears a blotch of dirty-looking smoke. From our twenty-foot staff two gaily-coloured pennants fly briskly in the stiffening breeze. We are signalling. One man holds the signal-halyards. Another sorts the flags, while a third consults a large, uninteresting-looking tome.

Each one of these three men is old. Probably none is under sixty, and they look every day of it. Their faces are seamed and tanned with salt and sun, their hands are blistered and cracked; but they do not mind these things.

On each man's arm is a navy-blue band on which are inscribed in red letters, "C.W." These three men are the coast-watchers.

Their work is as multifarious, but more striking to the eye, than that of the "gobbies" or coast guards. These latter are old naval men, the coast-watchers are drawn from maritime pursuits. Some have been pilots, some skippers of coasting craft, and others able seamen. And round the coasts are hundreds of them.

Nearer and nearer draws the smoke. We make wild conjectures as to what class of boat is approaching. At last she is found to be a coasting-steamship of 400 tons burden, light, and bound south. Right in front of her funnel float four bright-looking square flags. These flags denote her name. Every vessel signals thus in four consonants.

Then begins our "talk." Flags run up and down the staff, answering flags from the ship, the while she slowly turns in circles, blowing off clouds of steam. We may have instructions for her—often enough we have—and these given, the vessel steams away on her run, with the best wishes of all at the watch-station.

Another blotch appears. This time it is not a slow-moving cargo-boat, but a long, dark destroyer, bowing along at a good thirty knots. She signals her "number"—nothing more—and passes swiftly away.

Now our spell of signalling is over. We are relieved by two more watchers and a scout, and he us down to the town for some rest. We go on again at night.

Night has come, and sees us at our allotted stations again. Night is the exciting time on the coast. Maybe a pointer light or a far-off row of bells of a tragedy in the dark. It is pitch black. There is no moon. From out the darkness comes the monotonous peal of a rolling bell-buoy. It is uncanny, but it goes on always. All is dark and silent. The signal-flags are laid carefully away in their lockers. No. 1 is outside, watching. No. 2 is cleaning his Morse-lamp, while No. 3 is writing up reports.

"Ship signalling!" reports No. 1. Immediately we get to work. Sharp, yellow stabs of light flash out in long and short rhythms, and are answered, and this is the answer:

"I have a shipwrecked crew on board."

Telephone-bells ring, harbour authorities are warned, and a message is flashed to the waiting steamer. Half an hour later we hear the hoot of a siren, and know she is safely berthed.

The dawn breaks cold and dull, with a sudden inshore roll. Tramps are laboring in the yards, tugs, while smaller boats, scanting a storm, are making harbor at top speed.

Another job for the watchers. These boats, if strangers, have to be piloted in. The watcher puts off in a jolly-boat, and boards the stranger, and berths her safely in port.

Captains have to be interviewed, instructions taken and given, sickness notified. Damage done to steamers must be carefully stated. Boats that visit us are entered in the books. There is never an end to the duty of these brave old salts of England, who daily give up the comforts of fireside and home to sit in a cold station and gaze out at sullen seas, to do their "bit" for their country.

Oh no! We are not going out of business, as is rumored about town, but we anticipate a substantial increase as time goes on. While I will not be always in attendance myself, the various branches will be conducted by trained people who know their work thoroughly. R. H. TRAPNELL—aug15/18

Household Notes.

Frosted sarsaparilla is made with ice-cold sarsaparilla poured into one-quarter glassful of sweet cream. Finish with whipped cream on top.

When blanching fruits and vegetables for drying and canning it is important to know just how many minutes in boiling water are necessary for each variety.

A good meringue is made with whites of 3 eggs, 4 tablespoonfuls of maple syrup and 1/2 teaspoonful vanilla. Beat the whites till stiff, add syrup gradually and the vanilla last.

An excellent luncheon dish is made of onions, tomatoes and cucumbers sliced, placed in a baking dish in layers, with plenty of salt, pepper and fat of some kind, and baked very slowly.

A good fish loaf is made with mashed potato, chopped cooked fish, eggs and milk enough to hold it together and salt and pepper seasoning. Bake in a deep dish set in a pan of water.

Electric Lighting For Outports!

For a number of years there has been a growing demand for a satisfactory electric lighting system for use in the outports. There are dozens of so-called "farm lighting systems" on the market. Almost without exception they are unable to produce a steady flickerless current, without first charging storage batteries and then taking the lighting current from the batteries. In using this system they are up against many difficulties—batteries of fair capacity are expensive; they require constant attention. When they are new, about 15 per cent. of the current is lost when passed through batteries; after one or two years this proportion rapidly increases; this means that a large portion of the current is wasted; batteries that will produce 110 volt current are very expensive, therefore the manufacturers of most battery systems use what is known as low-voltage. A low-voltage current will only give a satisfactory light when used close to the battery. If the current is carried by wires to other buildings a short distance away, a great deal of energy is lost and it gives a poor light.

Low-voltage systems cannot use standard lighting equipment such as lamps, electric fans, electric irons, electric toasters, etc., but require special low-voltage apparatus from the factory.

After comparing the various lighting systems on the market, we found one that overcomes all these difficulties. It is known as the Unielectric Lighting Machine, which is the only machine of its kind made. It consists of an engine specially designed for electric lighting purposes, directly attached to a special dynamo and electric governor. This outfit will produce a steady flickerless 110 volt current without having to depend on batteries; it will use all standard equipment in common use. Wires can be run from the engine in any direction up to two thousand feet without change.

Three of these lighting machines have been in use in Newfoundland from one to two years and are giving perfect satisfaction. Monsignor Reardon, Placentia, lights Church and Presbytery; Rev. Father Maher, St. Lawrence, lights Church, Presbytery, Convent and School; G. C. Fearn & Son, Placentia, light their shop, office, fish stores, saw mill, blacksmith's shop and ship yard. We have also ordered for them an electric boring machine to be run by current from Unielectric machine and to be used in shipbuilding.

We are now installing the Unielectric Lighting System for Mr. Fred Ayre in his country residence. The Unielectric Corporation of Detroit are doing their best to supply the demand for these machines, but do not expect to be able to furnish them at present prices except for a very short time. They have promised us three more machines at present prices if orders are sent in promptly.

Anyone interested in the best country lighting system ever made will receive one of our catalogues and full information by writing us.

The Unielectric Engine is built for continuous service. The engine is equipped with the sliding sleeve valve and is guaranteed for five years.

A small inexpensive battery can be attached to wires to allow the use of a few lights when machine is not in operation.

DAYTON Money Weight Scales!

After deciding to locate in Newfoundland, we wished to obtain agency for the best computing scale made. We visited all the leading cities of the United States and Canada as far west as Chicago. We visited three computing scale factories, all of which offered us their agency. We talked with hundreds of users of various types of computing scales. The result of our investigation showed us that the Dayton Money Weight Scale was absolutely the best computing scale made, and that it would outwear any two computing scales of the swinging pendulum type.

We therefore closed the contract for the sale of Dayton Scales and have sold a number of them in St. John's and the various outports. Every scale sold is giving perfect satisfaction.

We are also agents for the Dayton Silent Meat Slicer and Dayton Cheese Cutter.
