FRIENDSHIP

is no Criterion in the selection of an EXECUTOR

Quite the contrary. As a rule, the less personal interest an Executor has in an Estate, the better its affairs are administered. The selection of an Executor is a matter of business, not of friendship. Friendship should, therefore, give way to sound business judgment.

Appoint this Company your executor.

UNJUST TAXATION.
Taxation is the one great burden that every House-owner and Tenant is greatly concerned about. Many are continually at their wits end to know how to meet it, in fact, we are being bled white with taxation to-day, more particularly Unjust Taxation.
I have been approached by scores of voters the past fortnight concerning the new Assessment—the City's Form of Taxation. Properties are being rated at a time when values are temporarily inflated. This tax is being unjustly levied. I have heard of cases in which the taxes are about to be increased anywhere from 10 to 250%, others to remain as before. Why such discrimination? I have yet to learn of them being reduced; is it because Householders elect to keep their homes clean and bright and take delight in decorating the exterior, thereby beautifying their locality and the city in general, that they are a mark to be feared for more taxes? The system is rotten, rotten to the core.
We are politely told by the Civic authorities that such is the Law; therefore you will agree with me that the Law should be amended. I pledge myself that with your help, that is, the help of every House-owner and Tenant in the city, that I will move an amendment to it. Voters just think of it, wages and salaries being throttled down and city taxes soaring skywards. Are you going to stand for it. You have the means; show your disapproval by voting for

Shirriff's FLAVORING EXTRACTS NON-ALCOHOLIC

"Flowers of the Valley,"

MABEL HOWARD, OF THE LYRIC.

CHAPTER XXIII. ACROSS THE STREAM.

"Don't you understand that it is just the opposition that gives the thing a zest? If he had fallen at the first shot I think it is very likely that I should have scarcely cared to stretch out my hand to secure him, but—her eyes flashed—it is because he sets me at defiance, and treats me with indifference, that I feel I must have him at my chariot-wheels; and I will!" she added, with quiet determination. "Go and fish, or take a ride, papa, and leave me to myself a little while."

Lord Foyle looked at her attentively for a moment; then raising his hat, he walked off, with his brows knit thoughtfully. Lady Lillian slid off the couch, and walked up and down the room, with a slow, gliding motion, her hands clasped in front of her, her eyes fixed on the ground.

If any one had told her that she had fallen in love with Heron Coverdale, she would have quietly laughed the idea to scorn, and yet—and yet! Was it ambition, or craving for wealth and power only, that supplied the motive? With a short, sharp sigh, she went upstairs, to her own outdoor things, and went out, with her book in her hand.

Taking the road that led to the Rectory, she ascended a hill, and stood for a few moments, looking at the great pile of buildings that shone whitely in the sun. It was a prize well worth scheming for: to be the Countess of Coverdale, and the mistress of Knighton Rectory!

Then she descended the hill, and, turning to the right, made her way toward the stream, and, finding a shady nook beneath some trees, sat down and opened her book, and waited patiently, for, with the aid of a good pair of glasses, she had observed from her window at the Rectory that it was Lord Heron's custom to walk beside the stream about this time of the morning.

Half-an-hour passed, and, though the book lay open in her hand, not a page had been turned; then she caught a glimpse of a tall, stalwart figure coming along the valley.

It was Heron Coverdale, with his fishing-rod. She watched the graceful figure thoughtfully. It was evident that he was not very intent upon the trout, for every now and then he stood, with his rod in his hand, looking moodily at the sunlit hills, while the stream babbled by him unheeded.

Presently he came opposite her, and, as he stepped back to throw a fly, he saw her. He started, and his face flushed for a moment. She was sitting on Exquisitely delicious in flavor, Shirriff's Non-alcoholic Extracts will add to the appetizing goodness of your most favored recipes. Made by the largest extract manufacturers in Canada, Shirriff's is the favorite wherever non-alcoholic extracts are in demand. Extra economical—only half the usual amount is needed.

the very spot where Iris had stood at their first meeting! For a second he remained motionless; then, recovering himself, he raised his hat, and came toward her.

Lady Lillian looked up from her book, and uttered a little exclamation of surprise as he spoke.

"Oh, Lord Coverdale, is it you? You startled me! I thought, like Robinson Crusoe, I was 'monarch of all I surveyed!'"

"I beg your pardon," he said, gravely, looking down on her.

She was dressed in exquisite taste, in a light, soft material, combining simplicity and elegance. A straw hat, with a pale-blue ribbon, crowned her golden head, her hair bound in a tight coil, that Venus herself might have envied.

When he had last seen her, she was in ballroom costume, and the contrast struck, and at the same time, vaguely pleased him. His conscience smote him, too. Though Lord Foyle and he were old friends, he had done nothing to welcome them to the neighborhood, beyond making a formal call, and, as they were not at home, leaving a card.

"What a lovely morning!" she said, lifting her straw hat from her brow. "I came here to read, but it is so beautiful that I can scarcely fix my attention on the book—which is rather a stupid one. You are fishing?"

"Yes," he said, moodily. "Let me see what you have caught," she said.

He slung the creel off his shoulder, and opened the lid. "Poor things! How pretty they look!" she said. "But you have not got many. Are they not rising?"

"Yes," he replied; "but I am not very keen this morning. How is Lord Foyle?"

"Papa? Oh, he is very well, thanks. I left him, smoking his eternal cigarette, and deploring the dullness of the neighborhood."

Lord Coverdale frowned involuntarily. He had certainly done nothing to make Knighton lively for his old friend.

"I am afraid he has found it dull," he said, "and I feel guilty. I ought to have called again, but—"

He stopped short. What reason could he give? Lady Lillian laughed softly. "Oh, please don't," she said. "Don't think me rude, but we came down here for quiet—at least, I did," and she smothered a sigh.

Lord Heron looked at her with faint curiosity. He, with the rest of the world, had regarded Lady Lillian Foyle as a mere butterfly, basking in the sunlight of gayety and admiration and "quietude," and she seemed so very antagonistic!

"I cannot imagine Lady Lillian being smothered of quietude," he said, with a slight smile. She looked up at him with a quick glance, of reproach, as it seemed.

"You think me the embodiment of levity, no doubt?" she said. "There is a very trite saw that says, 'Don't judge by appearances,' Lord Coverdale. Then, before he could make any response, she said: "Do you know, I think I could catch as many fish as you?"

"Can you throw a fly?" he said. She laughed her musical laugh, and shot a glance of pleasant mockery at him.

"You think I can only dance and pour out tea—confess, now!" she said. "Will you lend me your rod?"

"Willingly," he replied, "and I hope you will make better use of it than I have done."

She rose, and took the rod from his hand, and they walked, side by side, to the stream.

Lady Lillian had learned to throw a fly when she was a little girl, and ignorant of the world and its vanities, and, as she stood, with one foot on a jutting stone, and her rod held lightly, but commandingly, Lord Heron saw that she had made no vain boast.

Light as a feather, the fly descended on the water, and, as the line tightened, he saw that she had hooked a fish.

"Shall I help you?" he said. "You have got one!"

"No, thanks," she said, coolly, and playing the fish carefully, she landed it dexterously at his feet; "but you may take it off the hook, please; that is a part of the performance I don't at all like."

He unhooked the fish, and threw it in the creel, and she made another cast. Lord Heron walked beside her in silence. He had always regarded her as a woman of society; a belle of the ballroom, just an ordinary London girl, and her skill amused and amazed him. She was so absorbed in her work that, apparently, she had quite forgotten him, and they followed the stream for a mile with scarcely a word passing between them, except when Lord Coverdale made some remark upon the size of the fish which he consigned to his basket.

"Then, suddenly, she stopped; and, turning to him, with a smile, as if she had suddenly remembered his presence, she said: "Have I not kept my word?"

"And more," he said. "You have caught two to my one." She laughed. "Women can do all that men so pride themselves upon," she said. "But I must be going home. What is the time?"

He looked at his watch. "Nearly two," he said. She made a little grimace. "Poor papa! I have kept lunch waiting. He will be so angry." She looked round. "Isn't there a near-cut from here to the Rectory? This stream has twisted and curved so."

"Yes," he said. "The Rectory lies nearly opposite us—but the stream lies between. There is a bridge a mile lower down."

"A mile!" she said, raising her eyebrows. "That will take ever so long. And papa will not begin lunch until I get home. He hates eating his meals by himself. Can't I cross the stream?"

Lord Coverdale looked at it. It was broken here and there by big stones, almost large enough to be called bowlders; a man might have waded or chanced it, stepping across from rock to rock, but for a lady such a task might result in wet feet.

"I am afraid not," he said. "There is nothing for it but going back or making the bridge lower down." She looked at the stream wistfully. "I think I could cross," she said. "I have a very steady eye."

He shook his head. "I do not think you could; the stones are slippery. I could carry you," he added, with a smile.

She laughed. "No, thanks. I am not so light as I look. Besides, I would rather trust to my own feet. I shall try it."

"Don't!" he urged. "You will be certain to slip."

"I'll risk it," she said, brightly. "Good-morning!" and she handed him his rod, and sprang lightly onto the nearest stone.

Lord Heron threw the rod on the ground, and waded into the water to help her with his hand, but she called back to him, laughingly: "Please don't! You'll get wet! I'm anxious to prove that I can cross a stream, as well as fish it!"

"Take my hand," he said, extending it. "You had much better have let me carry you."

"We might have both got wet, then, she retorted, and, disregarding his proffered assistance, she made a spring for the stone in front of her.

The stream was strong and turbulent, and came over Lord Coverdale's stockings, but he succeeded in reaching her before she could make another move, and grasped her arm.

"Pray, take care," he said, gravely; "if you were to slip you would get wet through! Please let me help you!"

"I shall not slip," she said, and made another spring. But, as if in mockery of her vaunting, she made a false step; the slippery rock seemed to give way beneath her light weight, and she tumbled sideways.

Lord Coverdale saw what had happened, and he caught her in his arms. "Oh!" she exclaimed, in a tone of vexation. Then her face grew pale, and her lips quivered.

"What is the matter? You are hurt?" he said, anxiously, for she lay in his arms, almost a dead weight. "I—I don't think so," she said, faintly. "My ankle! A sharp pain shot through it!"

Headaches Gone

Perhaps you can imagine what this means to one who had suffered terribly with headaches for ten years.

Read about it in this letter. Mrs. Tena A. Smith, Country Harbor Cross Roads, N. S., writes:

"I feel that if anyone can recommend Dr. Chase's medicine I certainly can. I suffered for ten years from severe headaches, and although I took all kinds of headache powders they just relieved me at the time. I became very nervous and run-down, and everything seemed to trouble me. I have taken eighteen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and it has made an entirely new person of me. I feel that I could not have lived without it. I do not have one headache now for every hundred I used to have, and my nerves are good and strong. I just weighed 109 pounds when I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and now I weigh 121. Knowing what this treatment has done for me, I cannot too highly recommend it to others."

The Kaiser's Withered Arm.

Frequently in history, past and present, mysteries have arisen which have never been satisfactorily solved. This is the story of the Kaiser's physical deformity, according to The Kaiser's Weekly.

Ever since the early eighties, when Wilhelm II., former Emperor of Germany, first came into international prominence, the world at large has speculated upon the secret which concealed behind the withered arm of the Kaiser—a deformity which the emperor attempted to conceal from the public by always having his official photographs taken from the right side, or, if the camera was in front of him, by placing the arm in an inconspicuous position as possible.

Many chroniclers of current history for the deformity, but none of them have been able to produce the proofs essential to a definite statement. The most generally credited story is that the mother of the German Emperor—daughter of Queen Victoria of England—insisted upon riding horseback against the express wishes of her court physician and also insisted upon taking Prince Wilhelm with her on the horse.

Thrown from a Horse.

One day, according to this report, the queen's horse stumbled and threw the Prince heavily to the ground, injuring his left side and paralyzing some of the nerves so that the arm failed to attain its natural size.

Those who lean towards this explanation of the withered arm of the Hohenzollern also see in it a reason for the hatred which Wilhelm had for his mother and, through her, for the English in general—a hate which was first demonstrated in his virtual imprisonment of the Queen Dowager soon after he had ascended the throne and which later culminated in the launching of the World War.

According to another version of the affair, the deformity dates from the birth of the Emperor, and is ascribed to the ignorance or inexperience of the attending physician, while still another theory is that the withered arm was a natural deformity due to no particular cause.

Can Play the Piano.

Only a very few persons know which of these versions—if any—is correct, and the true solution of the mystery may never be revealed unless the former Kaiser sees fit to do so in the memoirs which he is reported to be writing in Holland, memoirs which will undoubtedly throw new light upon many incidents in continental history which are distinctly cloudy.

Meanwhile, however, it is no secret that the former Emperor's left arm is four inches shorter than his right, and that it ends in a malformed hand with only rudimentary fingers.

The left arm is also so difficult to move that Wilhelm has to lift the hand with his right, even to place it on the keys of his sword or in the breast of his coat, where he usually carries it when out of the saddle. At the table, it is stated, he makes use of a combined knife and fork which slide into each other, but, strange to relate, he has acquired a remarkable dexterity in playing the piano, using both hands for its entertainment, of which he is extremely fond.

An Additional Anecdote.

In addition, thanks to long practice and a very light type of gun, Wilhelm Hohenzollern early attained great skill with a rifle and shotgun, often stating that he yielded precedence to no one in the empire in his accomplishment despite—and here would follow the shrug and the half-smile with which the former Emperor always indicated any reference to a deformity which he did not care to discuss directly.

In addition to the malformed arm, the ex-Kaiser also suffers from another inherited or early acquired affliction which is regarded by many as being at least partly responsible for his sudden and irrefragable fits of temper and his obstinacy when crossed.

This is a malady of the ear, which gave rise to great pain in the ear-drum, despite the repeated attempts of the leading physicians of Europe to cure it.

Worse in Wet Weather.

About all that is known of this affliction is that it grows worse in cold or wet weather and, prior to the de-thronement of the Empire, it was a by-word in Berlin circles that: "It isn't wise to approach the All Highest until the weather is warm and dry. Physicians disagree as to the character of this ailment and Wilhelm himself has never been alarmed about it, in spite of the fact that it caused him considerable pain at times. At any rate, it was not visible to the public eye, as was his withered arm, and therefore the vanity of the German Emperor made him feel that the latter was by far the greater trouble.

All Mother's Fault.

"Look here, Elsie," angrily exclaimed the French teacher, "I've spent hours trying to drum this lesson into that thick head of yours, but it seems to be hopeless! On top of this I have just seen your homework. Your French is disgraceful! I shall have to write to your mother about it!"

"Mamma will be very angry," replied Elsie calmly.

"I'm afraid she will," said the teacher; "but you deserve it."

"I don't mean with me," retorted Elsie; "I mean with you. You see, my mother does my French lesson for me!"

The Same But Different.

"That is easily explained, sir," said the customer of Feedwell's restaurant. "Every day I come in here you charge me a little more than the day before."

"Well, sir," replied the proprietor soothingly. "You must surely know that meat has gone up in price."

"Yes," grudgingly admitted the diner; "but surely that doesn't account for the smallness of the portions of steak I receive."

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Gently and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is clean, simple, but very prompt in action. Under its soothing influence, the inflamed membrane, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with simple syrup. ### The Dominion's Favorite

Grape-Fruit Jelly

This dish may be served on lettuce as a salad or with whipped cream as dessert.

1 envelope Knox Gelatine
2 cups grape fruit juice and pulp
2 tablespoonfuls lemon juice
1/2 cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
1 cup sugar

Soak Gelatine in cold water five minutes, dissolve in boiling water and add sugar. Strain, and when mixture begins to thicken add remaining ingredients. Do not pour into molds that have been dipped in cold water until jelly is ready to set in order to avoid setting of pulp. Cut in cubes and arrange in baskets made from grape fruit skins. Garnish each with a teaspoonful of red Ba-le-duc preserve.

NOTE.—Knox Acidless Gelatine, which comes in a blue package, contains an envelope of lemon flavor, which takes the place of lemon juice—saving time, labor and expense.

Get a box of Knox Gelatine at your grocer's to-day, and try the above recipe.

Britain Wishes to Settle Down to Works of Peace.

Winston Churchill Advocates New Alliance--Sir James Craig Defines Ulster's Attitude--Dominion Coal Company Curtailing Operations.

DOPE NOT YET EXTINGUISHED, SAYS CHURCHILL.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Winston Churchill in a speech in London to-night, spoke strongly in favor of continuing the Irish negotiations as he believed hope had not yet been extinguished. Mr. Churchill warmly welcomed the action of President Harding in calling the Washington Conference, which he declared promised to bring about a triple understanding between the United States, Britain and Japan on Pacific problems. The Colonial Secretary advised another triple understanding between Britain, France and Germany as the only possible means of the financial and economic restoration of Europe.

BRITAIN'S ONE PURPOSE.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—An authorized statement, issued by Reuters says in part, "apprehensions expressed in various directions concerning proceedings at the Washington Conference are not shared in authoritative British circles. While the possibility of differences of opinion arising and temporary setbacks being experienced is not lost sight of, the British view is one of real satisfaction, and great hope, for on several questions alone more has been done than most people, before the opening of the conference, would have been prepared to expect. So far as Great Britain is concerned she wants to employ her unemployed, and pay her debts, and she is gravely disgusted by any symptoms which seem to threaten the continuance of insincerity and unrest, whether in Europe or elsewhere. The British Government is determined to answer the United States summons in every direction, in the general purpose of ridding the world of the menace of war."

THROWS NEARLY 1000 OUT OF EMPLOYMENT.

SYDNEY, Nov. 29.—The permanent closing of the machine shop at Glace Bay and the indefinite shutting down of two collieries was announced by the Dominion Coal Company to-day. Three hundred and fifty men were employed in the machine shop and 600 in the mines.

DESTRUCTIVE TIDAL WAVE IN PHILIPPINES.

MANILA, Nov. 29.—The entire town of Ibaay, in the Province of Capiz, was inundated by a tidal wave on Sunday and many houses and occupants were swept out to sea. The town of Masate in the same Province was also submerged and more than one hundred natives drowned.

DISASTROUS FIRE IN MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Nov. 29.—Forty families are homeless and thirty-three tenements are in ruins as the result of a disastrous fire on 9th Avenue, Rosemount, here to-day.

ANOTHER BOMB OUTRAGE.

BELFAST, Nov. 29.—One man was killed and two injured by an explosion to-night when a bomb was thrown from the railway embankment into a street in Low Market District.

SAILORS WOULD NOT OBJECT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The sailors are perfectly willing to have their fleets cut down, Admiral Beatty told the Lawyers' Club to-day. Those who served in the war had seen something of its devastation and would be glad to see war made impossible.

COMPANY HELD RESPONSIBLE.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 29.—At the close of the inquest yesterday responsibility for the flood which wiped out the town of Britannia Beach several weeks ago, and caused the death of thirty-six persons is placed upon the Britannia Mining and Smelting Co., which has head offices in New York, and which operates the copper mines at Britannia. The cause of the flood is shown to be in the railroad fill on the mountain behind the town, placed in such a way as to cause the damming an ultimate overflow of the mountain streams.

TURKISH MUNITIONS CAPTURED.

PARIS, Nov. 29.—An Athens despatch to the Havas Agency to-day says a Greek cruiser has intercepted off the Ionian Island of Cephalonia, a steamer bound south for Adalia, Southwestern Asia Minor with munitions alleged to be intended for the Turkish Nationalist Army. A search of the steamer revealed, it is stated, nine Italian airplanes, two million cartridges and other war material.

AN ULSTER OMBAN.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Preparations are being made to publish a newspaper with morning and evening editions, devoted to the cause of Ulster, according to the Daily Mirror.

Rare Tree.

Introduction in the United States of the chainmoogra to assure a permanent supply of the oil for the treatment of leprosy inaugurated by the Canadian authorities at their lazaretto, is planned as a result of a trip through Siam, Burma and Assam by Prof. J. F. Rock, formerly of the University of Hawaii.

Within eight years, it is believed, enough fruit will be borne from these plants to initiate a domestic source of supply of chainmoogra oil.

With the possible exception of a man named Kerr, an amateur botanist, Professor Rock is said to be the first white man to invade the region of Siam where he obtained his specimens. Natives of that country for many years had visited the tarakogon forests to obtain of the oil to meet their domestic needs, but they made these trips only every three years for fear of the beasts that inhabit the wild country.

While chainmoogra oil has been used scientifically for only a few years, Professor Rock said the natives of that part of Asia which he visited have been using the curative properties of the tarakogon tree for hundreds of years, but in such a crude way as to be unable to derive its complete benefits.

"In the Buddhist histories that date back one thousand years there is mention of this tree," Professor Rock pointed out, adding that "the crude oil of the tree was taken internally by the lepers and the legends say it was effective."

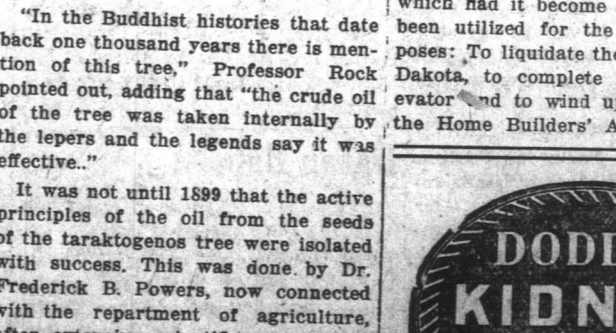

It was not until 1899 that the active principles of the oil from the seeds of the tarakogon tree were isolated with success. This was done by Dr. Frederick B. Powers, now connected with the Department of Agriculture, after extensive scientific experiments made in England in 1888 had resulted in the discovery that the wrong tree was being used for extracting chainmoogra oil.

Things Not Always What They Seem.

North Dakota has recanted. Once upon a time, and not so very long ago either, the electorate of that State entertained the idea of getting away from he old and tried methods of living. In a word they resolved to go in for State ownership. They created the Bank of North Dakota and incidentally drove out its rivals by adverse legislation; they started in to build mills and elevators and created a Home Builders' Association. These, of course, were all State institutions. Recently North Dakota held an election, the result of which was the turning out of office of the State ownership crowd and incidentally refusing to endorse the issuance of $7,750,000 bonds which had it become law would have been utilized for the following purposes: To liquidate the Bank of North Dakota, to complete a mill and elevator and to wind up the affairs of the Home Builders' Association. Co-operative marketing of products has been successfully carried out in various countries. They could be carried out in an equally successful manner in Newfoundland, if all concerned could be educated in their relative views on this subject.

CREW SAFE. Messrs. Balne Johnston & Co. have been advised that the auxiliary schooner June has been lost at Fort Mahone, Minorca and that the crew are safe. Full particulars of the vessel's loss are not to hand, but it is learned that a fire, which started in the engine room caused the ship to blow up. The June, Capt. S. C. Marshall, carried a crew of ten men and left Battle Harbour early in October with a cargo of fish, which was landed at Fort Mahone, Minorca and that the crew are safe.

No Wood Cutting on Government Account.

RELIEF WORK PLACED BY CONTRACT. Plans for relieving destitution in the outports have been completed by so extensively into wood cutting wherever possible. An agreement has been entered into with the Grand Falls people to increase their winter's cut by 30,000 cords. Mr. M. E. Martin has also been given a contract to cut 10,000 cords of pulp wood at Bay and St. Mary's Bay, where the timber runs 90% fir, and unsuitable for pulp wood. This provision will, it is thought, relieve the two Bays in Green Bay, White Bay, Bonavista and Trinity Bays contracts have been awarded, so that it has been decided to provide for in Conception Bay, where in some localities no wood is available, arrangements have been made to move those who will engage in the work along the line where the Grand Falls cutting will take place. The herring fishery, it is assumed, will relieve the situation at Bay Islands and Bonne Bay, but where the destitution cannot be relieved by work at herring centres pulp wood contracts have been given.

The Telegram has been informed by the Minister of Agriculture and Mines that the Government is doing no cutting on its own account, it being all given out to private contract with the understanding that the contractors are to give the labor to those who are in need of it. In the northern bays, where the cutting of pulp wood takes place, there is a specific agreement fixing the specifications in respect to length, diameter and peeling. Five dollars per cord are being paid the contractors after the wood is surveyed and taken over by the Government. Owing to the bottom being out of the pulp wood market the price had to be cut as low as possible in the hope of making it a saleable product. After various consultations it was found that work in the woods was the only avenue of employment open for this winter, with the exception of Bell Island, which is employing about 300 men. Grand Falls last year employed a maximum of about 2800 men employed, but this season the company proposed to put only very few in the woods, as they have a 20 months supply of high price wood on hand, at which the work of grinding is going on both night and day. The Sydney and Glace Bay have been found unsatisfactory from a labor standpoint, and it is useless for men to seek work in that quarter.

Hon. Dr. Campbell says that with the three big laboring centres out of the reckoning for this winter, there was no alternative but to turn to the forest on a rather extensive scale. Asked what measures were being taken to relieve unemployment in the winter, the Minister said that the matter is now under consideration, and will be handled by a separate organization. The probable cut of wood this winter will be in the vicinity of 10,000 cords, and averaging 8 cords of pulp wood to the acre, an area of 20 square miles will be cut over. In relation to the Grand Falls agreement the Company will cut 10,000 cords from its own area and 20,000 will be taken from Crown lands along the railway line.

"Lakeside Inn" Full.

GUESTS MUST WAIT FOR VACANCIES. Judging from the subjoined clipping taken from the Western Star, Curling, applicants for accommodation in the Lakeside Inn, otherwise known as the "pen" must wait for vacancies. It is reported that all the space, even in the cellars, has been allotted to those looking for accommodation in this popular resort, and already a waiting list is being prepared, and applications will be dealt with on a "first-come—first-served" basis. This is evidently one of the results of the Prohibition Act, which was going to empty the inn, the shipping is as follows:—"We understand that the authorities have been advised that the Penitentiary at St. John's is now full, and that prisoners for that institution are not to be forwarded until vacancies occur."

L. C. A. S. Sale Opened.

Mr. C. P. Ayré opened the annual sale of the Ladies' College Aid Society in the Methodist College Hall at 3 p.m. to-day. A large number of people were present for the opening. In his address, Mr. Ayré said that the L.C.A.S. had, with the Girl's Guild, been devoting themselves to advancing the interests of the Methodist College for a great number of years, by holding these annual sales. In this way they had greatly added to the college funds and had, at the same time, by their enthusiasm, done a great deal to stimulate all branches of the College work. He concluded by congratulating them on the manner in which they had overcome all the difficulties that had faced them.

"Deacon Dubbs."

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL PERFORMANCE. The second performance of "Deacon Dubbs" was presented at the Casino last night to another capacity audience. The acting was, if anything, slightly better than on the previous night, and the performers well deserved all the applause their efforts evoked. The simple story of the play was portrayed in so natural a manner that it won the hearts of the entire audience. Mr. P. F. Moore was again in his element as "Deacon Dubbs," and Miss Mary McCarthy also gave a splendid performance. In his portrayal of "Amos Coleman," Mr. P. Grace gave a masterly exhibition of his dramatic talents. The play will be repeated to-night and to-morrow night, a special performance will be given in aid of Belvidere Orphanage.

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 30. McMurdo's Cleaning Fluid is a real success with soiled gloves and other fabrics, and has remarkable cleaning and grease-dissolving properties, being superior to Benzine in this respect, and being much less unpleasant in odor. It is well worth trying, on any fabric or garment you may want to clean, and you will find that it will not dissipate. Price 30 cents a bottle. Coudray's and Pivers' Perfumes are deservedly high among toilet goods of French origin. Both have among them really exquisite odors and being nicely gotten up, are most suitable for presents.

Chinese Consul in Philippine Islands Unpaid.

The whole Chinese Consular force in the Philippine Islands has been unpaid since last April, and as a result the Consul and his assistants have been forced to live off the commissions for Chinese registration fees. Replying to repeated requests for funds, Pekin sent the following telegram:—"The Government is running short of funds, and when there is ready cash we will remit. In order to economize, please quit sending wires."

Two Men Drowned.

FELL THROUGH ICE. The Deputy Minister of Justice received a message this morning from Magistrate Fitzgerald of Grand Falls as follows:—"Enos Diamond, aged twenty-six, single, was out on a walk on Sunday afternoon. The deceased was walking on newly formed ice in the Arm when he fell through. The body was recovered 20 minutes later." The following is a message from J. W. James of Greenspond:—"Rev. Mr. Humphries has just passed on. He was 72 years of age, of Salvage Bay, aged 32, was drowned in a pond inside the bay yesterday. The deceased was crossing the pond on his way home when the ice gave way. The body was recovered this morning about 100 yards from the shore."

HIS DIARY. November 28.—To the Municipal Office to Mr. McHoney, he being Secretary-Treasurer, where I did some business with him, and he tells me how he is over busy conforming to the new Charter. The great talk of the town is the strange election that the city of St. John's will make shortly for Mayor and Councillors. Aid to Mr. Cook, that is candidate for Mayor, and his discourse of his committee, and how it will set to work this very night. To the club where I did hold discourse with Miller and Carr and their talk of the difficulties of the times and of politics and how they can see no Moses to lead us out of the darkness, save Sir Robert Bond. Greatly wrought with the printers, they making divers mistakes in the publishing of my journal, and there being no necessity for these, seeing how my writing is clear and legible, even as printed. To the Casino, to see "Deacon Dubbs," it being done by the Irish players. A very fair play and well acted. Comes Miller to my house to tell me that it is a false rumour and of no foundation, that six excellent men of business will be candidates for councillors. We did hold much discourse over a bottle of whisky that I did draw upon my private store for, and very fortunate to have it in these times, albeit with the cost of scripts and divers dues, it comes very expensive.

SUGGESTIONS 10 AND 11.

THE KING'S BEACH AND THE CITY SIDEWAYS. P. E. OUTERBRIDGE, ESQ. Dear Sir.—Being interested in your campaign articles since you have seen your intention to flush on Monday, there are one or two suggestions of very great importance to the city that I would like to call to your attention.

(1) KING'S BEACH.—The King's Beach is in the same condition as Cabot landed, the boulders protruding now as I suppose they did then, a disgrace to any city to have such a rugged hill appearing to the first of strangers (and sometimes Royalty) landing at the King's wharf. The Council cannot afford to put it in any better condition it would be better they would change the name. The improvement of the King's Beach could be done at small cost. It could be terraced as far as the tank and finished leaving a splendid square on the upper street which could be finished with iron railing. The square could be used, if it was decided, to erect the monument to Our Fallen Heroes. The road for horse traffic could be graded on the north side of the terrace could be done with waste and rough rock that the Council have, at times, to haul to the Concrete steps for pedestrians could be placed where the sidewalk now is the Mechanics' Hall, and on the east side by J. V. O'Dea's.

(2) SIDEWALKS.—The sidewalks of the city in general are in a wretched condition; take, for instance, King's Road from Governor Street to Dackery Street. I believe they are one of the reasons that there have been so many motor accidents of late, people taking to the middle of the streets which kept in better condition for animals than the sidewalks are for human beings. Yours, etc., (Sgd.) M. W. MYRICK.

SUGGESTION No. 12.

THE SOUTH SIDE. I am indebted to Mr. ThisDe of the Monroe Export Co., Ltd., South for the suggestion that an inexpensive plank walk with railing should be erected along the North side of the Southside Road, from St. Mary's to the East, for pedestrian traffic. There is no doubt about it that Southside residents have been badly neglected by past Councils in that this plank walk not erected years ago for their use, as walking conditions on the East Side are at most seasons of the year positively awful. I can assure Southside residents that, in the event of my return, I will advocate to the best of my ability that this very reasonable and moderate request of Southside residents be attended to.

While with the last instalment, embodying Suggestion No. 9, I had finally completed the plans of the platform on which I am asking the payer's support, I am prepared to add to the list of suggestions and, in the event of my return, to advocate any suggestions that may be made to the citizens, in the course of my campaign, providing that they are for the good of the city and are not impractical from the point of view of the taxpayer's pockets. I am therefore deeply indebted to M. W. Myrick, Esq., a former Councillor and a man of really practical ideas, for the following letter. I am taking the liberty of publishing, embodying two excellent suggestions.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

WORTH THEIR WHILE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29. Five thousand composers in New York took to the streets to-day to protest against the proposed increase in wages, fifty dollars a week for day work, fifty-three for night work, and fifty-five for those on midnight shifts, under a decision handed down by Dr. John L. Elliott, head of the Hudson Guild neighborhood centre.

FAMILY ROW.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29. (By Ben Deacon, Staff Correspondent Canadian Press.)—The controversy over the prospective "Association of Nations" which President Harding is reported to have endorsed, gathered momentum this morning. It has developed in a United States family row, which for the time being appears to be almost eclipsing the actual happenings of the Conference in general interest here. The outspoken opposition of some of the members of United States Senate to the plan, which they fear may involve United States in some form of "alliance" with other nations, and their declared purpose of opposing the proposal in the Senate, has again raised the whole question as to what the attitude of the Congress of United States will be towards whatever decisions are arrived at by the Conference.

JAPAN IN THE BREACH.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29. The Nine Powers Conference on Pacific and Far Eastern questions adopted resolutions providing for the relinquishment of foreign extra territorial rights in China. The resolution provided for the withdrawal of foreign Courts in China, should an International Commission which is to make a study of Chinese Laws and Court practice, find that the Chinese judicial system is adequate. Chinese delegates then pressed another of their points, that declaring for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from China, and also the abandonment of the foreign telegraph, radio and police wire systems. It was said the Conference was inclined to concede this demand, but Japan pressed for qualifications, and discussions of this matter will be resumed to-morrow.

AUSTRALIA'S CONTRIBUTION.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 29. The Australian Government has decided to contribute 250,000 dollars worth of meat and wheat to relieve the starving in Central Europe. Premier Hughes announced to-day.

OUTSPOKEN.

BELFAST, Nov. 30. The Evening Telegram declares it is useless for Lloyd George to try to fool Ulster with nebulous phrases, and that Dominion Home Rule means that any British Dominion has power to secede from the Empire by a formal declaration of its Parliament. The difference is, the Telegram adds, that while the Dominions cling with the deepest affection to the old flag, Sinn Fein has an intense hatred for the flag and the first act of Parliament, dominated by Sinn Fein would be to declare its independence, and this would be a disaster for the Empire and ruin complete for Ulster.

PRINCE AT JOHDPUR.

JOHDPUR, British India, Nov. 30. The Prince of Wales arrived here yesterday for a three days' stay. His welcome was enthusiastic and in marked contrast to Ajmer, where his greeting, though not unfriendly, was cool.

UNDER SUPERVISION.

DELHI, India, Nov. 30. Districts of Ambala, Karnal, Hissar, Rohtak and Guangan have been proclaimed under Seditious Meetings Act which gives the Government a wider scope in handling meetings of a seditious character. Lahore, Amritsar and Sheikhpura had been proclaimed under the Act previously.

A DEADLOCK.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 30. Turco-Italian negotiations have reached a deadlock, the Italians refusing to renounce their economic spheres and accept the abolition of capitulations.

WHERE WEALTH MEANS NOTHING.

MOSCOW, Nov. 30. It now requires two hundred thousand Russian rubles to purchase a dollar. In one day the dollar jumped from 150,000 to 200,000 rubles.

POWERS MAY INTERVENE.

LONDON, Nov. 30. Intervention in Portugal, as one result of the present grave internal situation there, is being seriously considered by the Powers according to the Times this morning. France, Italy and Spain are in favor of taking control of the situation, under a mandate, the newspaper states.

CONVENTION OPENS.

The F.P.U. Convention is believed to have opened last night, but no definite news has been received. Mr. Coaker's opening speech, which, according to common report, has been in type for some time, will probably appear in this evening's issue of the Advocate.

FISH AT PORTUGAL COVE.

Fishermen at Portugal Cove took some very fine codfish on the grounds yesterday. They were sold in the local market this morning and fetched good prices.

CHRISTIAN BROTHERS COLLECTION.

The publication of the names of those who contributed to the Christian Brothers Collection on Sunday last with the amounts donated will begin in the Telegram to-morrow (Thursday)

A SLIGHT BLAZE.

At 7 o'clock last evening the forge of Mr. T. Curran, Holdsworth Street, was discovered to be on fire. Constable Day and a number of citizens who were quickly on the scene, applied a few buckets of water to the blaze. Very little damage was done the premises.

NOTE OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Flood wish to thank Dr. E. Braham, Miss Reid, and Sister White; Nurses Snelgrove, Hamlyn, Thompson, and Queensland for their kindness to their little son Jack; also to thank all the kind friends who sent him eggs, fruit and books while at the institution.—MRS. G. FLOOD.

M. J. O'Brien

Asks his readers to duly consider the issue that is now before them in the selection of those who shall, by receiving most votes, govern the destinies of this city for the coming four years. Many have announced their intentions of being nominated but few have, as yet, set forth any policy as to why or what their intentions are, or of what they propose to do in making some improvements along civic lines. He, believing it is his duty as a candidate, to the citizens, who desire to hear and learn from those who would seek civic honors, has chosen the motto that it pays to advertise, and therefore you see every evening a plank of his policy placed before you for due thought. He believes that in this programme he has adopted is not only due voters but it will make them all the better acquainted with his ideas and sentiments as to why he proposes to seek their confidence in kindly asking you for your support and for one vote of the six you have the privilege of marking opposite those of your choice. He does not want to delude any taxpayer into the belief that he can reduce their taxes. This is a matter for property owners themselves largely to grapple. If rent that was ten dollars per month has been raised to thirty since the previous appraisal it must be only expected that taxes be increased when the appraisers, quite naturally in their interviews, learn such to be the case from the owners. He believes that it must be remembered that too much should not be expected from any particular body of citizens who may be elected. To those who have read his policy as it appears might after night in this paper it is readily seen that those improvements he suggests do not call for any extra taxation. They are in the main, simply better organization of our civic machinery with the adoption of modern methods of progress, sources have been shown by him whereby civic revenue may be increased by a little effort on the Council's part which, if drawn upon, will make the city financially stronger and enable her to have "something done." As O'Brien is only a young man and coming from the "Annex" he is no doubt looked upon as a "stranger" by many from the original municipality. Therefore on to-morrow night he shall present a short biography of the family from which he comes as well as the reason. His card announced him as a "retired mechanic" even if he is only thirty eight year old. He has no doubt that after you shall have finished perusal of the same that your decision, if not already made in the matter of voting for his policy, will be then finalized and your verdict will be, why, of course, I shall reserve ONE VOTE FOR O'BRIEN.

Household Notes.

Rubber sponges are excellent to wear when slicing vegetables. A slice of lemon poultice or clear soup is a dainty touch. Apple-mint jelly can be delicately tinted with green color paste. An apple and grape salad is suitable for the Thanksgiving dinner. Baked rhubarb and raisins make delicious fruit for breakfast. Before washing new pink goods, soak it in a vinegar solution. Keep on hand some gummed tape to mend the children's torn story books. If breadcrumbs are used in making plum pudding, use only the crumbs and if seven children aren't under twelve I'm best.

Fate of the Venus Di Milo.

That the Venus di Milo, undoubtedly the most beautiful statue in the world, once had arms is apparent from the most casual glance, but in what position they were sculptured, and what became of them, are mysteries which rank first among the secrets of the art world.

Some experts, basing their statements upon accurate measurements of the stumps of the missing arms, and the manner in which the muscles appear along the back of the statue, claim that the right arm was gracefully posed and attached to the draperies around the waist, while the left arm was raised at the shoulder and bent at the elbow—suppositions which are supported by the measurements reported by the manager of the statue, when it was first discovered on the Island of Melos in the Mediterranean.

But the first of the mysteries concerning the Venus is connected with the origin of the statue. Who was the sculptor? It is doubtful if this will ever be revealed, for, while it has evidently been buried for some 2,000 years, it bears traces of the characteristic handwork of any one of several famous Greek sculptors.

The modern history of the Venus goes back about a century, when Yorgos Bottonia, a peasant living on the Island of Melos, was working in a field on the side of a mountain. Bottonia was quarrying some stones, and accidentally came across a speck of vault. Excavating further, he was amazed to discover the figure of a woman, larger than nature, and radiant with the beauty of the immortal.

Who had sealed her there? Why, for some twenty centuries, had this marvellous form been a captive of the dark, standing motionless and unharmed? Had the statue been stolen and secreted, or had it been hidden in order to save it from the hands of vandals? These questions, like the others which concern the Venus of Melos, must also remain unanswered.

When old Yorgos found the statue—or so the story goes—it was complete and unharmed. What was more, it was made of two super-imposed blocks joined at the waist, while the left arm could be detached from the shoulder to which it was cunningly fixed by means of a iron tendon.

Shortly after the discovery, a certain French vessel stopped at the Island of Melos and a young ensign started on a tour of discovery for something out of the ordinary.

He heard of the Venus and at once sought out Yorgos. A bargain was struck, and the statue was to pass into the hands of the ensign as soon as he could produce the purchase price agreed upon—a sum absurdly small when the real value of the statue is considered.

The French vessel then sailed for Constantinople where the French Ambassador was informed of the treasure and, in a few days, the secretary of the Embassy was sent to Melos to complete the transaction.

When he arrived, he found that the primates of the island had arranged to present the statue to a certain Greek prince, whom they desired to please.

A French warship had been dispatched to Melos to bring the statue away with it, but, when she anchored in the harbour, on May 23rd, 1820, a Greek ship, flying the Turkish flag, was already at the dock and a party of Greek and Turkish sailors were preparing to load the statue on the Greek boat.

Both French and Turkish sailors were landed, and a fight ensued for possession of the treasure, the French being victorious.

When the melee was over and the French vessel sailed for Piræus, it is said that the Venus bore irreparable wounds.

But this is part of the mystery which surrounds the statue, for, as the story of the affair did not come to light until nearly half a century later, the details could never be substantiated, and there is more than a suspicion that the statue was broken during its trip on the warship, and that the story of the fight was concocted in order to explain the mishap.

In fact, the only undisputed points about this famous statue are that it was discovered on the Island of Melos and that it now stands, broken but magnificent, in the place of honour in the Louvre at Paris. All the rest is conjecture, rumour and mystery.—Pearson's Weekly.

Children Under Twelve.

One evening at seven o'clock a man with a wife and eleven children, many of them grown up, appeared at the entrance to an entertainment hall, bought two tickets, and demanded that the entire family should be admitted.

The doorkeeper declined to admit the family with two tickets only. "But all these are my children," said the man.

"Of course," said the doorkeeper; "but some of them are too old to be admitted free."

"Too old? What's that to do with it? Don't it say on your bills that children under twelve are admitted free with their parents?"

"Yes," "Well, I've only got eleven children, and if seven children aren't under twelve I'm best."

Had Him Nicely.

A commercial traveller got into a railway carriage, in which the only other occupant was a venerable-looking Dean.

Very soon they got into a light conversation, and the commercial traveller asked the Dean in a jocular way: "What is the difference between a Dean and a donkey?"

The Dean soon acknowledged that he did not know.

"Well," replied the other, "the one conversates, and the other brays."

"Very good," said the old Dean. "Now, it's my turn. What is the difference between a commercial traveller and a donkey?"

After a long consideration the traveller said he couldn't see any difference.

A small voice: "An accident."

"No, no!" cried the mistreat. "Supposing..."

He Was Used to It.

The school-teacher had been explaining to her class of small boys the meaning of the word "miracle". Finding, in spite of her explanation, that they still were not clear on the subject, she said she would give them an example.

"Supposing," said she, "a painter on top of a tall ladder fell to earth and immediately got up and climbed to the top again uninjured. What would you call it?"

A small voice: "An accident."

"No, no!" cried the mistreat. "Supposing..."

"Another voice: "A coincidence."

"No! Suppose for the third time he fell, and went straight up again. Now, boys, think! What would you call it?"

"Please, miss," said little Blitto, "I should call it an 'abbi'!"

The Prince at Malta.

FIRST PARLIAMENT OPENED BY H.R.H.—HISTORIC SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

Malta inaugurated a new era this week when the Prince of Wales paid his first visit to the island and opened its first Parliament. When H.M.S. Renown cast anchor the Governor, Field-Marshal Lord Plumer, the Archbishop of Rhodes and Malta, Admiral Sir John de Robeck, and H.R.H. Prince George were on board. At 10 o'clock the Prince of Wales landed amid a picturesque pageant, his pinnace steaming through a sea lane formed by ships' cutters, a striking sight against the warm brown-gold historic background of the fortifications. Sir M. A. Refalo, Chief Justice of Malta, welcomed him, and after having inspected the naval guard of honour the Prince drove up to Valetta. Near the densely crowded streets. At the Governor's Palace the Prince inspected a guard of honour from the Essex and Malta Regiments, and then proceeded to the Great Hall of St. Michael and St. George in the Palace, where the members of the Senate and the Legislative Assembly awaited him, besides a large concourse of the leading naval, military, ecclesiastical, and civil officials. Lord Plumer then read the King's Commission authorizing the Prince to inaugurate the Parliament. In the course of his speech, the Prince recalled the ancient glories of the island. "Since the time, 120 years ago, when, by their own request, the peoples of Malta and Gozo became a part of the inheritance of the British Crown, their story has been one of peace and prosperity. They have given many tokens of loyalty, and on their part felt I trust the benefits of wise, sympathetic administration. Malta was held in affectionate regard by my grandfather, and my father retains pleasant memories of his visits to the island and his naval duties here. Now that in the fullness of time His Majesty's

Grants Responsible Government
Malta and its dependencies, it is evident that the old loyal spirit still prevails, and that the people will so administer affairs as not only to advance the welfare of their own community, but to further the interests of the Empire as a whole. No one who knows the patriotism, thrift, and industry of the people of Malta can doubt that they will worthily acquit themselves of this trust. The Government of Malta is assuming office at a time when difficult problems present themselves everywhere to those in authority. The war, in which Malta played a distinguished part, is over, but has left in its wake in all countries an aftermath of poverty, dislocation, and unrest, from the effects of which the people of Malta and Gozo are not exempt. These times and their ordeals call for wisdom, courage, and perseverance on the part of all classes and sections of the people. I cannot doubt that good years will return, and that a happy, prosperous future awaits these islands, whose people, ever clinging closely to the religion of their fathers, have steadfast faith in the guidance of the Almighty." After this speech, which made a great impression throughout the island, the Prince declared the Parliament open, whereupon the Governor asked the Prince to honour the Maltese patriot, Mr. Filippo Selberras, by conferring upon him the honour of knighthood, and the accolade was given amid great cheering. Then followed the presentation of the leading officials of the University of Malta and the

of a sailing boat to the Prince, who then motored to the Cathedral of St. John, where Mr. Caruana, the Archbishop-Bishop, and his clergy received him. After luncheon at the Maltese Club the Prince attended a garden party at the Governor's country house at San Antonio, where he shook hands with all the guests. In the evening there was a gala performance of "Aida" at the Theatre Royal. Inside the theatre all the company sang the National Anthem, and the audience rose and clapped and cheered. After the end of the second act the Prince went into the foyer amongst the people. Next day was made a public holiday; the shops were closed and all business was stopped. Wherever the Prince went the route was packed with people. After visiting the battlements Iron Duke and Benbow and the naval establishments, he inspected some Maltese ex-soldiers, and presented a banner to a civilian band. The Prince lunched at Admiralty House, and afterwards played polo at a gymkhana. In the evening there were illuminations in the harbour, and a State dinner and ball. When the Republic called the next morning thousands of people gathered on the foreshore and gave the Prince a rousing send off. The next place of call is Port Said. —News of the World, Nov. 6.

DIFFERENT IN YE OLDEEN DAYS.
NEW YORK. (Associated Press.)—"To one freedom of the city—6 beaver skins." Entries like this would have dotted the debit side of the expense accounts of Foch, Diaz, Beatty, Jacques and others of the brilliant procession of old world figures, drawn to America in the wake of the world war, had they come about three centuries earlier. And instead of riding at the head of triumphal processions to the city halls of various municipalities, there to receive the freedom of the city at the hands of respectful mayors, to the accompaniment of bands and cheering throngs, they would have had to file petitions in court for their freedom and take oaths not to offend against the law of the land. Conferring of the freedom of a city on a visitor has come to mean almost precisely the opposite of what it meant in the young days of America and—earlier—in the medieval days in Merrie England.

Lost in Antiquity.
"The origin of the custom of granting the freedom of the city to aliens is virtually lost in antiquity," said Professor Harold McBain, instructor in municipal government at Columbia University, commenting on the round of brilliant receptions that have kept the mayors of New York and other cities almost constantly in tall hats and frock coats in recent months. It appears, however, to have grown directly out of the medieval organization of industry on a monopolistic basis, and was originally an economic measure, pure and simple. In the old English borough it amounted to a license to carry on business and, later, to vote. Without the status of a freeman, conferred by the grant, a man could not rise above the class of employee.

Six Beaver Skins the Fee.
The early Dutch settlers of New Amsterdam—now New York—set up a similar status, called the Burgher Right, in 1648, as a protection against "Scotch Merchants and Petty Traders who spoil trade and business by underselling." Persons not holding the Burgher Right were prohibited from conducting business either with Christian or Heathen. The fee was sixgratuitous, honorary freedom of the city appeared. Early New York records recite the bestowal of the freedom of the city of New York on Capt. Sir Peter Warren for his exploits against the French and to Generals Shirley, Monckton and Gage. Later there is an entry showing the honor was bestowed on three sailors of a vessel lying in New York harbor, in recognition of their services in helping extinguish a disastrous fire. The formality had nearly died out when the termination of the war brought a revival, designed to honor noted visitors. Professor McBain said he knew of no records showing the origin of the practice of delivering the "keys of the city" to persons receiving the honor.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DON'T GET THIS HABIT, OR LET IT GET YOU.

WATERLOO

"I don't think J. R. likes me," a man said to me recently, speaking of another man whom we both know. I did not attempt to combat the idea. "No," I admitted frankly, "I don't think he does. But," I went on, "will you please name me one person whom you think he really, unqualifiedly likes?" He thought a minute. "By George," he said, "I don't believe I can." I don't believe he could either. I am sure I couldn't. J. R. is a man whose position has obliged him to see the least attractive side of human nature even in those who pass as his friends. Think of it, Nobody in the World. He himself is a very interesting man and he is much enjoyed by many people with whom he comes in contact. In return he enjoys the company of some of these, but as for really liking anyone, in a hearty, cordial, reasonably unqualified way (I am aware that we all criticize our friends sometimes, even those we like best) I don't think there is anyone toward whom he entertains such a feeling. The thoughtful comment which the man with whom I was discussing J. R. ended the conversation in illuminating and interesting I think. "Poor J. R.," he said. Just that and nothing more. But, it meant a good deal to me. Because it said that he felt as I do about the habit of dislike. I think the habit of dislike is one of the unhappiest, one of the wickedest, habits anyone can get into. Liking People Keeps Our Hearts From Ossifying. Do you remember the last time you found a new friend, do you remember the glow of delight that permeated you, the sense of warmth and upliftedness that your liking for his new personality sent through you? That is typical of the sort of thing liking someone does for you. It opens up your heart, it enlarges it and warms it. It keeps you from ossifying. To stop "liking people is a dreadful thing much worse for you than for them. They can get along without your liking but you can't get along without it. Of course a case like J. R.'s is rare but as we grow older many of us form the habit of not liking people easily, and are foolish enough to be proud instead of ashamed of it. It isn't going to happen again, I hope. I caught myself at a trick like this recently. We met some new friends of our neighbors the other evening. "How do you like the C's friends?" I said to the Authorman. "Not very well," he said, and I agreed having been fishing for that answer. But the next time we met them we got to talking as we hadn't the first time and found out how unjust had been our hasty judgment of them as negligible. "Guess we weren't prepared to like them," said the Authorman. "Guess we rather meant to dislike them." And that had been the trouble. But it isn't going to happen again. To-morrow—Letting Your Pen Save Your Heels. Stafford's Ginger Wine for sale at Knowling's Stores, East, West and Central—Nov 14, 15. An Old Bird. Mrs. Newlywed had very little experience of domestic and household matters. However, by way of compensation for this little weakness, she was endowed with much sense and still more determination. One day she approached the stall of a poultry-dealer and, feeling the breastbone of a fowl, inquired: "Is this a good chicken?" "Oh, yes, ma'am!" said the market man. "Then the old saying is wrong, I suppose?" "What saying, if I may inquire?" asked the seller of eggs and birds. "The saying that 'the good die young!'" retorted Mrs. Newlywed, as she moved away.

Why Guess About It— When You Can Know About It?

Suppose a guide said—

"This way there's a safe and pleasant road to your destination, with no risks or troubles on the way," and—

"That way there's a road that a good many have stalled on and turned back from, but you may get through."

Which would you take?

Postum is a thoroughly agreeable and satisfying meal-time drink, and you're sure that it's perfectly safe for health. Tea and coffee contain drug qualities which disturb and harm the health of many.

Postum or tea and coffee? Which road?

Why guess when you can know?

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum-Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

Delies Nomenclature Committee.

WILL NOT ACCEPT NEW NAME BESTOWED.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—Some time ago I noticed by proclamation published in the Evening Telegram that Caplin Bay was to be renamed, or nicknamed Calvert. At a public meeting held here last night, it was decided that we will not by any means consent to be christened by this Nomenclature Committee, or any other board in defiance of our wishes. I think that on such a matter—I will not say of vital consequence—that at least the wishes of the people of the place might have been sought before. But as this wonderful board, with I presume nothing else to do but dig up old names of the Downs, sought to christen us Calvert without our wish or consent, now as Calvert possibly never set his foot in Caplin Bay, I do not see why we should be put under his sheltering wing. It was decided at the meeting to have Caplin Bay re-named in honor of our beloved Archbishop, and consequently we decided to have our village renamed St. Edwards, and will not accept any other name. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, in anticipation for printing soon as possible. Yours sincerely, SEBASTIAN LEDWELL. Caplin Bay, Nov. 28, 1921.

WINTER WORRIES.

Winter brings its own diseases, calling for a change of pills; when the climate ups and freezes, there's a brand new set of pills; so I put away the bottles that the summer saw me buy, for the frigid winter throats of the ailments of July. And with jubilant motions to the pharmacy I scoot, and buy up new pills and poisons, hoping they are worth a hoot. Thus the winter time is giving satisfaction manifold; for a change makes life worth living, and it's routine makes us old. Every form of stern endeavor should be mixed with harmless play; doing one's old thing forever, takes one's pep and vim away. I was tired of taking bitters for my sunstroke and my hives, summer dope that human critters must consume or lose their lives; now I have my winter ailments, rheumatism, croup and flu, with the usual demerolts of a wishbone or a thew; ailments more or less distressing, foreign and domestic; but I count it quite a blessing to confront new kinds of pills. There is always something cheering, in this happy life we lead; always some attraction near, if we only give it heed. When the cold no longer pleases, and the winter forebears a grind, spring will usher in diseases of a new and piquant kind. Novelties are to us trooping, always something new and strange, and the old world goes a-whopping down the ringing grooves of change.

Household Notes.

Ammonia will remove iodine stains. Oyster and onion puree is quite delicious. Lemon sauce should be served with pineapple fritters. Baked onion dumplings are nice served with white sauce. Remember that twice-cooked meats are hard to digest. A little peanut butter gives an additional richness to fudge. Breadcrumb griddle cakes are delicious with caramel syrup.

THIN, FADED HAIR NEEDS "DANDERINE" TO THICKEN IT

35 cents buys a bottle of "Danderine." Within ten minutes after the first application you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, helping your hair to grow long, thick and luxuriant. Girls! Girls! Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, thin, scraggy. Apply a liberal quantity of Danderine to the beauty and radiance of your hair and make it look twice as abundant.

Like Hunted Animals.

STARTLING CONDITIONS OF HUMAN BEINGS.

SAMARA, ON THE VOLGA. (By a Staff Correspondent of the Associated Press).—The numerical and geographical extent of the great famine cannot be given. There is to-day and has been as much food available in Samara, for those who have money, as in Baku, on the Caspian Sea, 2,900 miles distant. The Russian refugees from Bolshevism in Constantinople are suffering from hunger, and lack of clothes, almost as much as those Russians in Poltava and they in their turn as much those in Orenburg. The Associated Press correspondent completed a journey from Constantinople to Moscow by way of Tiflis, Baku, Astrakhan and Samara, and everywhere found intense misery, the most sordid of which was seen in the dreary steppe region between Tiflis (Georgia) and Baku (port of Azerbaijan, on the Caspian Sea). There revolution after revolution, for five years, has left a trail of destruction and ruined houses and wrecked railway stations which cannot be matched in Russia. Added to the lack of food is the constant battle with malaria, cholera, and typhus, and added to these is the cold against which there is little shelter or fuel. No more pathetic sight was seen than that of the Baku central railway station where thousands of men, women and children, going nobody could say where, were camped on dirty sidings, for the most part dressed in rags and eating scraps of food like hunted animals. To the north, along the Volga in Russia, the misery is often of the respectable, cleanly kind. At Czaritzyn thousands of families are living in railway cars. Others have been housed in villas and palaces. Beggings is rather the exception than the rule everywhere in the famine regions. No Difference in German Villages. The German colonial villages and towns along the Volga are so cleanly and orderly, surrounded by such fertile luxuriance of field and forest, that it is hard to believe their people are suffering from hunger. As everywhere in Russia, the churches are open, and services are held. At Volsk, when the correspondent attended vespers, he was followed out of the church by one of the priests who begged that food come from America before his people starved. In the worst areas there is far more hunger, swelling than was seen in Vienna in the winter of 1918. This is the last stage of starvation and when it comes neither food nor medicine will help. The majority of such cases are to be seen in the cities, about the railway stations, in the towns or about the landing stages and on the steamers of the Volga, where hundreds of thousands of peasant wanderers are seeking to reach friends in districts where they imagine food conditions are better. The government is trying to discourage such wanderings, but they are continuing. The distances made by peasant families are incredible. About Saratov, about the river front, may be met families from Orenburg going towards the Ukraine, where the crops did not fail, and then families from Astrakhan going up river to some one of the German villages such as Volsk or Varonov. While on every hand the individual struggle for life, for daily food, is bitter and hard. No one thinks of anyone else. Robbery is limited, as robbers are shot when caught, but trickery in small trading is the rule. A warm place to sleep, something to eat, and clothing, are the beginning and end of daily life. Children are brushed aside, ignored, or treated like little animals. A person invited to a meal will eat twice what good manners would permit. He is laying in a stock of food, building up his body, he figures, for the winter cold. Those with money are hoarding food. In some places peasants refuse to sell bread at any price. They are afraid of the winter famine. Stewed figs and cranberries, flavoured with a little lemon, make a delicious pill filling. MINARD'S LINIMENT USED BY PHYSICIANS.

Photographing the Voice.

Considerable interest has been aroused by the report of a Swedish invention called the photophone, which is said to photograph the voice as well as the figure of a speaker and reproduce both synchronously.

A description of the instrument, written by W. Bayard Hale, was printed in the London Times recently. There is neither disk nor needle, nor any of the characteristic appliances of the phonograph about it, says Mr. Hale. It actually photographs the voice.

The vocal recording machine is equipped with "a device diaphragm of rock crystal," upon the back of which "is reflected onto the camera," which "is reflected into the camera." When the crystal diaphragm is actuated by a speaker's voice, the ray of light is reflected into the camera at a constantly changing angle, with the result that it writes on the film "curves corresponding to the sound waves which are actuating it." This film is the photographic record of the voice.

To convert this record into vocal sounds the projecting machine employs the substance known as selenium, "which possesses the curious property of resisting the passage of electricity, in proportion to the degree of light in which it is bathed."

The film is projected upon a selenium cell incorporated in an electric current. "As the current passes through it, this cell controls and modifies its strength to an exquisite degree, as there falls upon it the flicker of the lights and shadows of the sound film. The electric current, as it emerges from the selenium cell, is vibrating in precise correspondence with the vibrations of the light-waves, and with the sound-waves of which they are a reproduction."

The current, amplified, is conducted to the horn of a loud-speaking telephone, from which the speaker's voice issues. The synchronizing of the voice and its accompanying moving pictures is accomplished by exposing through the selenium cell the visual and the vocal, from a common shaft.

Mr. Hale writes that he witnessed a thoroughly satisfactory demonstration of the photophone in the Experimental Laboratory of Brevet, near Stockholm, and that he has been told of "new and enormous possibilities of amplification, which suggest the possibility of lighthouses, which shoot their names over sixty miles at sea." Severe Alison Bergland, Mr. Hale adds, is the "leader of a band of inventors" who have been working on the photophone for twelve years.

MOTHER!

Your Child's Bowels Need "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry Mother! A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" will thoroughly clean the little bowels and in a few hours you have a well, playful child again. Even a cross, feverish, constipated child loves its "fruit" taste, and mothers can rest easy because it never fails to work all the sour bile and poisons right out of the stomach and bowels without griping or upsetting the child. Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother, you must say "California." Refuse any imitation.

What Is Its Secret?

The best brains in America's secret service are puzzling over a cipher invented by an Englishman over 800 years ago. This cipher, which is the work of Roger Bacon, who made the first magnifying-glass and also introduced gunpowder, is so complicated that, after centuries of labour and study, only a few lines have as yet been unravelled. Experts say that it consists of six ciphers in one, and that to fathom its meaning a knowledge of a certain old Greek shorthand system is essential, as well as of Medieval Latin, chemistry, astrology, and occult matters. The first letter in the manuscript is a capital O, which is divided into twelve sections, each visible only under a strong magnifying-glass. Each contains 173 Roman letters, and as there are 30,000 words in the manuscript it looks as if the decipherers will be kept busy for some time to come. It is believed, however, that a solution will be found and that, when it

MARSH'S LICTUS

Why do they cheer for Marshal Foch? A small boy asked his dad. "Why do they wave their hats and shout?" "Why is the town so glad?" "Why are the flags hung out for him?" "Why is the music played?"

Why do the people clap their hands? Why do the soldiers parade?

"He looks to me like men I know. Like you and Uncle Jim. Or Mr. Smith who lives next door. Why do they cheer for him?"

And the father said: "He kept his faith. When dangers great arose. He served the truth through many days. And conquered freedom's foes."

"Men cheer because he kept the faith. And if you're faithful, too. And serve your country to the end. The throngs will cheer for you."

IT BEATS—AS IT SWEEPS—AS IT CLEANS.

It is no longer considered good housekeeping to overlook, between semi-annual housecleanings, the continual accumulation of germ-breeding dirt in the depths of one's rugs. For a new standard of cleanliness, that of rugs kept totally free of dirt the year around, has been introduced by The Hoover. This efficient cleaner thereby minimizes the danger of sickness and repeatedly saves its moderate cost by preserving all rugs from wear. In one easy, rapid, dustless operation, guaranteed to prolong rug life, it gently beats out all germ-laden, nap-wearing grit from beneath rug surfaces, electrically sweeps up stubbornest litter, erects trodden nap, revives colours and suction cleans. Only The Hoover does all this. Get a Hoover and live in an ever-clean home.
