 STORY OF LOVE, INTRIGUE AND REVENGE

CHAPTER XIII.

Madame went to her couch. She was sure Sir Karl would excuse her; but the day had been warm and she was tired. The fact was her heart ached for her daughter; and if a tete-a-tete after a long absence could be useful to Lola, she should have it.

"If I should forget myself, Sir Karl, and fall asleep," she said, "you will forgive me. Assume me before hand of your pardon, and I shall be satisfied."

"I can have no greater pleasure than to see Madame comfortable," returned Sir Karl; and in a few minutes he saw by the closed eyelids that Madame was alone with Lola.

She made some half-laughing apology for her mother; but Sir Karl would not allow that one was needed.

"It is warm here," she said. "Let us go to the lawn. I should like to talk to you after your long absence."

That was just what he did not want her to do, but he did not like to tell her so. There was nothing for it but for him to follow her on to the lawn. Then he wished he had taken a chair; for, as though the action was quite natural to her, she held out her hand for his arm. He gave it to her with a low bow, and they went off together toward the lime-trees. All around was still; there was no sound save the sweet song of falling water. It was the very night for poetry and love.

"Sir Karl," said Lola, "tell me whether you think our friendship has prospered. Are you pleased with the results of it?"

"I cannot but be well pleased and grateful too," he replied. "Your letters have been a great source of pleasure to me. I must thank you for them. Owing to them, I felt as though I had not been far away from home—you have kept me so constantly acquainted with all that has happened."

"I am very glad that you are pleased with them. Tell me one thing more. Do you care more for my friendship than you did? Would you feel reluctant to lose it now?"

"Most certainly I should," he answered. "I should be more than reluctant—I should be grieved. But why should there be any fear of such a thing?"

"I hope there is not," she said. "I was merely wondering, if you were to lose my friendship, whether you would feel it acutely."

"We may be friends always," he responded. "I do not see anything to prevent it."

"You were wrong in one respect," said Lola, raising her bright, beautiful face. "You anticipated finding me married on your return. See how true I have been to our friendship."

"Your marriage need not have impaired it," he replied. "It, however, you had married some one who objected to it, your clear duty would have been to put an end to it."

His thought, hardly went with his words. He was wondering how Dolores looked with a widow's cap on her fair hair, whether she would be pleased to see him, how she would greet him, what her first words would be; and the emotion of the girl by his side escaped him.

She walked on in silence. At length she spoke. This was to have been a day of supreme happiness to her, and it did not seem to her as though it had fulfilled its promise.

"Is that all you have to say to me?" she asked slowly.

He looked down at her with a smile.

"Have I left anything unsaid which I ought to have said?"

"You must be the best judge of that, Sir Karl," she replied. "I am pleased indeed to see you, and hope you are equally delighted to see me."

"I have assured you of that," he said gravely.

"You seem distrustful and preoccupied Sir Karl—as though your thoughts were hardly here."

"Then I am ashamed of myself," he answered, "that would be unpardonable. The fact is," he added in a lower tone, "my mind is full of one great hope, and I am afraid that I lose myself in thinking of it."

Her heart gave one passionate throb; no doubt came to her as to what the great hope was that filled his mind; it must be the winning of her love; the very fact of his mentioning it proved it. She bowed her head in silence; the words were unutterably sweet to her. Why did he not say more? Surely he would! But he also was silent for some moments.

"Some day," he said then, "I will tell you, as we are friends, more of this great hope of mine. Now I must go, for it is growing late; and Scarsdale is some little distance from here."

"Must you go?" she asked, with the least pressure of her hand on his arm. "I wish you could remain one hour longer. This is, above all others, the night for a beautiful walk."

Who knew its beauty and its dangers better than he did?

"Do not wake Madame," he said, "bid her good-by for me."

"Shall I add that you will soon come again?" she inquired.

"Yes. I shall be busily engaged for the next few days; but I will ride over as soon as I can."

"I shall miss the pleasure of writing to you," she said; and the way in which she clung to his arm was almost caressing.

"I shall be here to listen to all your pleasant little gossip," he replied. "Speaking is better than writing."

"I could write more than I can say," she said, a flush on her face, her eyes averted.

He made no reply to that, but said "Good-night" to her gravely.

When the moon rose an hour later, its beam fell upon a beautiful figure lying, with its robes of amber silk and black lace, upon the dry, dewless turf, and upon a white, despairing face, raised to the sky, while the silence of the night was broken by the sob of a woman, who cried:

"Give me his love, O Heaven, or I shall die!"

CHAPTER XIV.

Sir Karl gave a deep sigh of relief when he found himself driving home in the bright moonlight to Scarsdale. He had dreaded the interview with Lola, and now it was over. He had forgotten all about his promise to go to Beaulieu first on his return to England; he would never have remembered it but for the coaxing little letter which brought it all to his mind. Then he knew that he must keep his promise, and guard himself from peril as well as he could.

However, it was over now; and he thought he had done a wise and diplomatic thing in telling Lola of his "one great hope."

That she should imagine that hope applied to herself never occurred to him; he thought he had let her see that his affections were fixed elsewhere.

Now he could visit Lady Rhysworth with a light heart; by noon to-morrow he should see her.

That one thought was enough for him—"by noon to-morrow." He did not know what he should say to her, or what the result would be—whether she would be pleased or not to see him, whether he should ultimately win her; he thought only of those few words—he should be with her "by noon to-morrow."

Early the next morning he started for Deeping Hurst. He had not forgotten that Dolores had a little daughter, and he took with him some marvelous toys which he had brought home for the child. He felt sure that the way to Dolores' heart would now be through her little daughter. So he rode on, his heart filled with happy thoughts until he reached his destination. He asked the servant who answered his summons if Lady Rhysworth was at home. He remembered that he had never seen her as Lady Rhysworth; nor had he seen her in her new home. He recalled his parting from her. What would his meeting with her be like?

The domestics at Deeping Hurst had forgotten him; he had seldom been there. When the servant asked him what name he should give, Sir Karl replied that he should prefer not to give his name, as Lady Rhysworth did not expect him. He was shown into the drawing-room, where he saw many traces of her ladyship's presence. The piano was opened, and one of her favorite songs stood on it; a dainty lace handkerchief was on the table, and a little white glove in a flagree basket; a book lay open, as though she had just put it down, and a jeweled fan near it. They were little tokens, all of them, but they meant so much to him. He took the little white glove; it should never go back to the flagree basket again.

That which struck him most in the room was a life-like portrait of Lord Rhysworth, painted by one of the greatest living artists. Sir Karl stood for some little time looking at it; he felt sorry for his rival's death, so sorry that if any wish of his could have brought him back to life he would have uttered it. He felt only reverence and pity for the man who had enjoyed his happiness so short a time.

"If ever the wish of my heart is realized," he said, "his child shall be as dear to me as my own."

When the drawing-room door opened, Sir Karl looked up with a sudden, startled glance. He trembled for the moment when his eyes should first fall upon the face he loved so well.

Wedding Bells

BYRNE-KOOLERY.

Miss Laura Byrne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Byrne, of St. John's, Nfld., and Jack Koolery, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Koolery, also of Nfld., were married Sunday evening, June 28th, at the R. C. Church of St. Michael's, Fourth avenue and Forty-second street, Monsignor Cherry officiating.

The bride was charming in a gown of white satin canton crepe and a tulle veil with a head-dress of lilies-of-the-valley; she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Mrs. George Brandeau, in grey georgette with a unique trimming of the same color and carrying a large bouquet of opublia roses was matron of honor and the bride's only attendant, Michael T. Cooney, was best man; George W. Brandeau gave the bride away; a reception was held at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. G. Brandeau, 462 Seventy-sixth street.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. McQuirk, Mr. and Mrs. R. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Best, Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Cooney, Miss E. Kelly, R. Kelly, Miss S. Herbert, J. Carroo, G. Moore, Mrs. E. Tompkins, J. Turner, Mrs. F. Guber, Mr. and Mrs. H. Best, Miss Minnie Guber, Mrs. J. B. Kelly and daughter, Elaine, Master Jack and Girard Kelly, William Best, Jr., Mary Best, Marie and Lillian Brandeau.

BOBBED HAIR BANDITS.

The bobbed hair bandits come and vex the weary peeler for a while; it's sad to see the gentler sex get down to ways of crime and guile. It's sad to see a lovely maid who must adorn a drawing room, take up the bandit's bootless trade and all his penalties assume. The bandit lady might proceed along a safer, saner way, and sell the works of Myrtle Reid, the stately tones of Bertha Clay. But such a pathway is obscure, it draws no space in public prints; the restless maiden can't endure a pathway where no limelight glints. And so she takes her little cat and tries the robber's age-old game; she works a night or two threat, the country's ringing with her fame. No doubt it's passing sweet to read the morning papers with their tale of how she pulled a daring deed, and gibes a grocer of his kale. No doubt it gives the maid a thrill to read how cops are breaking backs to gather in the countless Jill who takes the coin of trembling Jacks. So for a time the bandit belle prunes her graft beneath the stars; but just ahead's the prison cell, with walls of stone and rusty bars. And there she'll wear her youth away, all sad of heart and heavy-eyed there in her dungeon.

That which struck him most in the room was a life-like portrait of Lord Rhysworth, painted by one of the greatest living artists. Sir Karl stood for some little time looking at it; he felt sorry for his rival's death, so sorry that if any wish of his could have brought him back to life he would have uttered it. He felt only reverence and pity for the man who had enjoyed his happiness so short a time.

"If ever the wish of my heart is realized," he said, "his child shall be as dear to me as my own."

When the drawing-room door opened, Sir Karl looked up with a sudden, startled glance. He trembled for the moment when his eyes should first fall upon the face he loved so well.

Conference Agenda May be Subject of Dispute

Bernier off on an Artic Exploration Voyage—Democratic Convention Deadlocked.

CONFUSION WORSE CONFOUNDED.

NEW YORK, July 4.

The nomination of the Democratic candidate for the Presidency has reached the hotel room stage, the convention having been hopelessly deadlocked. The man who will be the standard-bearer of the now disrupted party will in likelihood be selected by a little group of leaders conferring behind the locked doors of some hotel bedroom. It has become obvious to all but a very few of the rival leaders of the deadlocked forces that neither Alfred E. Smith nor William G. McAdoo can be nominated. It has also become obvious that the vast majority of delegates are weary of the factional fight, and would quickly put an end to it if they knew where to go. Their leaders cannot tell them till the Smith and McAdoo managers have been convinced that their men have no chance and have been forced into line behind some compromise candidate. The deadlock has become a bitter factional warfare between the two rival groups, an insurmountable barrier of sectional and religious prejudices which has been engendered and fanned into flames of hatred by losing the long smouldering embers of fanatical "Dry" and equally fanatical "Wets." It is the so-called Progressive South and West against the "Wet" and Conservative or reactionary East and North. In the former the Protestant religion is dominant; in the latter the Catholic faction holds a strong position; or where that is not the case religious prejudices is the political factor. The estimate of sectional strength shows approximately 500 votes controlled or sympathetic to each.

MCADOO WILL FIGHT.

NEW YORK, July 4.

A declaration of his purpose to "fight until the last drop of blood runs out of me," was made by W. G. McAdoo, contender for the Democratic Presidential nomination, in an address to-day to hundreds of women who called at his headquarters.

FRANCE NOT IN ACCORD WITH MACDONALD.

PARIS, July 4.

The French Government is not in accord with Prime Minister Macdonald on the agenda for the forthcoming Allied Conference in London as set forth in the British Premier's invitation to the other Allies. It was said at the Foreign Office to-day, The French, it was said, will be unable to accept the British idea of taking from the Reparation Commission the prerogative of deciding when Germany shall have defaulted in the execution of the Dawes plan. Mr. Macdonald's instructions to the British Ambassador here in this connection are taken as mere suggestions concerning the agenda, and the French delegation to the Conference will have counter suggestions to present in London.

RALSTON WITHDRAWS.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 4.

United States Senator Samuel M. Ralston, of Indianapolis, candidate at the Democratic Convention for President, has telegraphed Thomas Taggart, his campaign manager, at New York, that he desires his name withdrawn from the contest.

BALLOTING CONTINUES.

MADISON SQ. GARDENS, July 4. Twelve hours full in the balloting was productive of but little rest for the tired delegates. Resuming on the 62nd ballot to-day the leaders showed up as follows: McAdoo, 469; Smith, 338½; Davis, 60½; Ralston, 38½. This was a loss of half a vote for McAdoo, a gain of 3 for Smith carrying him to a new high level, and a gain of 1 for Ralston.

WELL-KNOWN CANADIAN DEAD.

TORONTO, July 4.

Arthur Wellington Francis, K.C., President of the Standard Bank of Canada, well-known barrister and financial man of Toronto, passed away at his home here this morning, after a lingering illness. Mr. Francis was born in Toronto in 1848.

BERNIER LEAVES FOR NORTH.

QUEBEC, July 4.

A famous ship and a famous master, the Canadian Government vessel Arctic, and Captain J. E. Bernier, will sail from here to-morrow on an exploration trip to Canada's Northern Empire. For twenty years the Arctic has been collecting data and widening knowledge concerning the Hudson Bay and territory north of it, and Capt. Bernier has been with her all that time. He has travelled many thousands of miles on behalf of the Canadian Government Northern explorations. Last year he travelled twenty thousand miles and this year he has already gone six thousand miles, including a trip to England. F. D. Henderson, of the Department of Interior, will be in charge of the expedition and J. D. Soper will be in charge of research work. It is hoped to obtain this year information which will aid in weather forecasting, hitherto hampered by lack of knowledge of the northern influences. The Arctic, it was announced to-day, has been made a meteorological station and sensitive instruments have been sent by Sir Frederick Stupart, Director of the Meteorological Bureau at Toronto, and installed on her. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police posts in the North are also to be given the status of meteorological stations. Six mounted police officers will go north on the Arctic. Besides large quantities of provisions for the forty-five members of her own party the Arctic is taking north a year's supply for the mounted police posts which she will visit. A number of new posts will be established.

CANADA'S SUPERANNATION PLAN.

OTTAWA, July 4.

James Malcolm, who was chairman of the special committee of the House in regard to the Civil Service Superannuation Bill, explained its general features yesterday previous to its passing the committee stage of the House. It would apply, he said, to all permanent employees in receipt of $600 or over, and also to those classed as temporary but who really were permanent. Each employee would make a contribution of 5 per cent. of his salary. Retirement would be optional at 65 and compulsory at 70. After ten years service each employee would be entitled to allowance of one-fifth of average salary during the last ten years multiplied by the number of years of service not exceeding 35. Widows would be entitled to allowance of one-half of a civil servant while allowance for each child up to 18 would be ten per cent. The Bill now stands for third reading.

THE SPECIAL SQUADRON'S MOVEMENTS.

VANCOUVER, July 4.

The visit of H. M. S. Hood, Repulse and H. M. A. S. Adelaide is drawing to a close and the festivities which have prevailed since their arrival on June 25 will terminate Friday night at 8.15 a.m. Saturday the warships will raise anchor and pass out of the narrows to resume their world cruise. The Hood and Repulse have already steamed 28,000 miles and have about 12,000 miles yet to go before they reach England on September 2. The light cruisers Delhi, Daulness, Dragon and Danes will join the larger vessels off Victoria on Saturday and the squadron of seven will then head for San Francisco where they are due on July 7. After leaving the Golden Gate the ships part company. The Hood, Repulse and Adelaide passing through the Panama Canal, while the British light cruisers proceed down the west coast of South America and through Magellan Straits to the Falkland Islands.

BUILDING TRADES DISPUTES.

LONDON, July 4.

Despite the decision of the Minister of Labor to hold a court of inquiry into cause and circumstances of the Building Trade dispute and about the promise of employers conditionally to postpone threatened lockout in a week, it appears to be practically certain that operatives will cease work on Saturday next, in accordance with the decision of their National Disputes Committee, unless employers grant increase of hourly wage and introduce a guaranteed work week. The dispute affects 700,000 employees in building trades.

Govt. Candidates Sustained in Hr. Grace

The final count in the Harbor Grace bye-election received yesterday evening was as follows:—

Bennett	959
Russell	951
Archibald	559
Snow	432

The number of ballots cast was 490 less than in the General Election a month ago.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

July 4th—Another hot day, and do almost seem how if this weather keeps up, there will be little need to dam the Straits of Bell Isle to make Newfoundland a tropical country. A strange thing I hear to-day is of a cricket match which a city team would play in with the Constance but the city players coming on the field, no sign of the man-o-war's team, and is learned that they did no naught of the game, so all go home again. My lord Hag leaves this city for Salmonier and will fish there for salmon. But Lord, what trouble he will have there of the flies, which do swarm all about the place, and will indeed, I think, have more than a tangible remembrance of his visit to our country. At night, to see the boxing contests, mighty interesting, about the Navy men much better in the art than the local fighters, and do win all the contests. It is now given out that the House will meet next se'ennight for the despatch of business, but thought to be but a short session, and little legislation to be passed. The best news from Harbour Grace of the bye-election, being Bennett and Russell lectured by great majorities, and do show how the country is behind the Government without a doubt.

The Thrill of a CollisionOFF NEWFOUNDLAND'S NOTORI-OUS CASE.

Nine-thirty a.m., a dense fog, the hoarse wailing of the fog-horn sounding into the heavy atmosphere, the rhythmic beat of the engines, the engines stop, a short moment of silence, then a shock, a splintering crash, then fifteen minutes of shouts of excitement and nerve-racking suspense filled with tragedy and comedy heightened by the seriousness of the situation, in short is an account of the recent regrettable collision off New-foundland's treacherous Cape.

On board the Italian ship was rather a cosmopolitan crew. It consisted of about twenty-five Italians including the Captain, one Belgian, three Englishmen, two Scotchmen,
one South African and two Canadians. When the collision occurred all available hands were ordered to swing out the lifeboats. The Metagama quickly disappeared in a thick shroud of fog her deck like a mass of swarming beet. As she disappeared we felt strangely abandoned and alone as we stood on deck expecting to hear that we were sinking. The excitement was at its height. We could hear the mad ticking of the wireless. The excited staccato of the Italians giving orders was dominant.
We Britishers not understanding Italian and bewildered by the "chop suey" of language hurled at us, stood helplessly by or worked frantically what we caught the meaning of their copious gestures.

Nicola, a little short Italian fireman was hopping about the boats and tackle in his zebra-striped pyjamas like an excited sparrow.
Donato, an older fireman, had donned his Sunday suit which dated back at least to nineteen hundred and ten.
Evidently he was determined to sink or swim in style. But there was a tear in his eye for that suit as he tenderly buttoned it on, thinking no doubt of what hardships it must now pass through.

Jack, one of the Scotchmen, who during the trip had shown a marked attachment for the "vina," which he issued each day, had thoughtfully put a bottle into his pocket. In the other pocket he had put a brush and comb.
The wine, evidently to Jack's mind,
would serve perfectly as a lifepreserver, but what he intended to do with the brush and comb is still a mystery. Jack as Jack is as he had as a soup-bowl. As Jack stood speculating beside me waiting for the boat to be swung out, I heard him say, "If I had killed this wild cat stoppit at Montreal, a'dime think about this." There were more than Jock saying the same thing in their minds just about that time.

Into the midst of this excited and troubled company came the mate with the glad news that the damage was slight and that we would be able to proceed to St. John's. A silent prayer of thanksgiving went up with the hope that the Metagama would be as fortunate as we. This news was like oil upon troubled waters. The excitement died down and nowhere could there be found a happier crowd of men at that moment.

Obituary.

JAMES MANNING.

One of the saddest events in the history of Torbay, occurred there on Wednesday last. James Manning, a prominent citizen of the place, having returned from his usual work, was in the act of splitting a fish when he fell dead. On leaving home that morning, he had been in his usual good health, so the shock to his friends was a great one. James was a married man of twenty-eight, and descended from the Mannings—the first settlers of this historic place.
To-day Torbay mourns the loss of one of her stalwart sons, one who was always ready to render a service to others.

The funeral took place on Thursday, and the hundreds who attended testified to the esteem in which the young man was held. The burial service was read by Rev. J. Ashley,
P.P., who made use of the opportune time to exhort those present to have ever in mind the vanity of all earthly things compared with those of eternity. Left to mourn him, are father, mother, brother, two sisters, wife and three children, to whom in this hour of trial, the sympathy of the entire community is extended, in which the Telegram sincerely joins.

W. J. MARTIN,
Registrar General.Late Governor's Approval of Site

Editor Evening Telegram,
Dear Sir,—I can endorse what is said in the Daily News as to our late War Governor, Sir Walter Davidson, being strongly in favor of the King's Beach as the site of the War Memorial. Apart from his historic associations his main argument was that the Memorial would be for the whole Colony—the people of the Outports as well as those of the city—and that the first object to greet the eye of our fishermen and sailors when they come to St. John's should be the People's Memorial to their kinsmen who fell in the Great War.

Yours truly, O. R.

Ex-Service Men Meet

A very enthusiastic meeting of ex-

last evening. Commander Howley,

Many important matters were discussed, which will mean a great lot

One outstanding feature of the meeting was the unanimous decision of all present to loyally support the Great War Veterans Association thereby cementing strongly in the future the bonds of good fellowship with their Comrades-in-Arms.

COULD ANYTHING BE MORE FUN?

A friend of mine has had a wonderful time this spring making a garden. She is not only very fond of flowers, which is one thing, but of gardens, which is something else again, and for the first time in her life she has a garden of her very own and enough money to play around with it a bit. Hence the wonderful time.

Thinking Back.

"I'm being terribly extravagant," she confessed gaily, "you must see rose bushes I bought the other day. I keep thinking back to when I was a little girl and we used to have so little money for our garden. We always bent the rack and old paper money for seeds, and I remember how excited I was when the man was weighing it to see how much it was going to be. It was generally around 60 or 70 cents and we used to have a great time deciding just how to spend it. How much for nasturtiums and whether to get three five-cent packages of candytuft and two sweet alyssum, or vice versa. Then we always had one box of bought pansy plants. We used to pick these out at the green house, and it was a tremendous decision between the dark red or the dark blue. Haven't you wished it, too?"

"I often wish I could get hold of that little girl and give her 15 or 20 dollars to spend on that garden of hers. I can just imagine how her eyes would shine and the fun she'd have. In fact," she made the confession half shamefacedly, "I've even lain in bed and planned how she would spend it. —six boxes of pansies and six rose bushes, and all that sort of thing. But really there couldn't be any more fun in the world, could there, than to get hold of that child who used to be and give her the things she used to want so hard?"

A fantastic idea, of course.

But I wonder if there is anyone to whom it hasn't come now and then—this wish that he might get hold of that little boy or little girl who used to be, and gratify some of his desires, take him to the circus, or buy him all the all-day suckers he wanted, or take him to the soda fountain and let him have three ice cream sodas one after another. (It would have to be six of the sodas of to-day for there are only about half of the size of the old kind.)

About As Much Fun.

I think nothing in the world could be quite so much fun as that.

But there is something that would be almost as much.

Get some other little boy or girl to substitute for the boy or girl you can't find. Some little boy or girl who wouldn't go to the circus unless you took him, some child to whom an ice cream soda is an event, and a new dress an epoch. Yes, I know what isn't true of most of the youngsters you know, but there's plenty of the other kind left if you want to watch out for them.

that through her he can come to wield greater power than any other man in the world, he backs her propaganda for his own purposes. Everybody in the world but Anstett is converted and the millennium reigns for a few weeks—until the fact that Anstett had boasted of tricking Jane Maynard into advancing his material power causes a revision of feeling on the part of the public in which his son is killed. The grief-stricken Anstett is at last converted to Jane's doctrine and agrees to back her again, but she realises that the world is not ready to accept Hendricks' motto and leaves the Foundation which she has established in New York. She marries the reporter that Anstett had engaged to destroy her work, but who had fallen in love with her and been her staunch supporter. The story is intensely dramatic and with a deep significance which very few films possess.

WEEKLY MEETING.

The regular weekly meeting of the Council was held yesterday forenoon. Deputy Mayor Martin presided and Councillors Outerbridge, Vinicombe, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present.

Following the reading of the Minutes of the last Meeting, Dr. V. P. Burke, of the St. John's Rotary Club, and Mr. Barton, who is here at present in connection with the Playground Apparatus in the City Parks, addressed the Board on the subject of organizing games for the children.

The Rotary Club has again shown its generosity and interest in children of the City in the importation of some sixteen additional packages of apparatus, consisting of swings, seesaws, etc. Mr. Barton is looking after the erection of these new pieces and will also supervise the arrangement of games. The thanks of the Council and of citizens generally are due this Club, which since its inauguration has been unswerving in its endeavour to put our playgrounds on a level with those of other cities, and its efforts in this direction are highly commendable.

The new apparatus imported will be placed in Bannerman Park this afternoon and the City Engineer will put men to work immediately preparing the bases, etc., so that it may be placed at the disposal of the children with as little delay as possible.

A largely signed petition was read from the residents of Prescott and Victoria Streets, protesting against the building formerly occupied by the U. S. Picture and Portrait Company, Prescott Street, being used as a service station and garage. The petitioners pointed out that should the building be used for the purpose mentioned, it would tend to increase the insurance rates on surrounding property and would also depreciate the value of same. It was ordered, in view of the foregoing protest, that permit be withheld.

A letter was read from Mr. C. E. A. Jeffery, in relation to the above matter.

Mr. S. Elliott informed the Board that he had considerable quantity of gravel on hand suitable for road work, and that the Council could have same if they would undertake to excavate and remove it. This matter was referred to the City Engineer.

Permits are to be issued the following:—C. Thorburn, to erect dwelling, Hamilton St.; B. Stokes, to erect dwelling, Prince of Wales Street.

The Medical Officer of Health reported seven new cases of Scarlet Fever and one of Typhoid in the City during the past week.

The City Engineer tabled his report on the work performed in connection with the Water, Roads and other Departments during the week. The Roads Department was exceptionally busy in putting the streets in the vicinity of the National War Memorial in good condition, and the work reflects great credit on those in charge.

The Sanitary Supervisor submitted his usual weekly report.

Many minor matters were disposed of, and with the granting of requisitions, passing of weekly accounts, etc., the meeting adjourned.

The Harbor Grace Victory

The victory won by the Government candidates in Harbor Grace was never considered to be anything but a foregone conclusion, and has only resulted in an unnecessary expenditure of public funds, a hold up of our industries, and a delay in the opening of the Legislature and proceeding to business.

The people of H. Grace are to be congratulated on their consistency and their refusal to allow the obvious insincerities of the Opposition to affect their judgement. The Hons. J. R. Bennett and C. E. Russell are likewise to be complimented upon their victory and upon being confirmed in their offices by popular approval.

Civil Service Superannuation

The arrangement outlined in to-day's message from Ottawa with regard to the Superannuation of Civil Servants is one which should receive the careful attention of the Government of this country at an early date. Case after case has come to our notice where individuals have been given positions in the Service, without any regard to their qualifications either from the point of view of age or ability, and after a short time have been retired on a pension practically the same as that given to an official who has served faithfully and well for a lifetime. Even in cases of dismissal the same policy has been followed.

This abuse of the Service has resulted in killing incentive, in destroying loyalty and in burdening the country with an unnecessary expenditure. It is to be hoped that this matter will be adjusted at an early date and a superannuation system enforced based on service and merit.

Premier Hertzog's Message

The sentiment expressed by Premier Hertzog of South Africa since his election and his message of loyalty to the Secretary of State for the Colonies as expressed in yesterday's message reveals the new leader in a new light, and dispels the doubt and apprehension raised by earlier accounts which apparently were not untainted with political animus.

The people of the Union of South Africa have in no uncertain manner given ample demonstration of their sentiments towards Britain and the Empire, and their latest testimony of their loyalty is particularly significant, as it comes from a man who has never taken any pains to conceal his devotion to his own people. Accused of being an advocate of secession, he has proved himself an ardent supporter of Empire unity; charged with being a man of narrow views, he has shown himself broadminded and fully alive to the welfare of his country, and the Empire rejoices.

Playground to be Supervised

At last we have supervised playgrounds. These supervised playgrounds are for the purpose of keeping the boys and girls off the street and busily occupied in health-building and character-building games. While a boy or girl is playing hard at an interesting game, he or she is certainly not doing any mischief, and still more important than this, the negative side of the situation is the positive, constructive results to be gained—namely better boyhood and better womanhood. Play is essential to childhood. It develops children physically, mentally and morally. The boys and girls get more than "fun" out of the games, they get the deeper lessons of truthfulness, courage, unselfishness, co-operation, fairness and quick decision. Teach the children to play games fairly in childhood and later on they will play the game of life in the same way.

The Rotary Club of this city is sponsoring this idea of supervised play, and at their request Dr. Vincent Burke procured Mr. Richmond Barton, of Columbia University, New York City, to organize the movement. Mr. Barton is an experienced Playground Director.

The first playgrounds to be supervised will be at Bannerman and Victoria Parks; the one at Bannerman being for children of all ages, and the one at Victoria being for the younger children only. This is because at Bannerman Park there is a large area for playing, while at Victoria there is hardly any level ground which the older children need for their games.

There will be games for everyone, and we hope that every boy and girl in the city will be a member of a playground team.

[NOTE—In connection with the above we learn that the Municipal Council have authorized Mr. Barton to make all necessary arrangements. Instructors will be trained and appointed to supervise the work and organize the games and with the new equipment due to arrive on the 15th, the plans decided upon will be put into effect. The Council are to be congratulated on the practical manner in which they have supported the movement inaugurated by Rotary, and the result will be most beneficial to the children.—Ed.]

Earl Haig and Party at Pincent's Falls

FIELD-MARSHAL LANDS HEAVY-
ST FISH OF THE SEASON.

We have just received a message from Mr. J. Hannon, operator at Holyrood to the effect that Field-Marshal Earl Haig and party were at Pincent Falls, and were already thoroughly enjoying themselves and having good luck. Last night Earl Haig landed five salmon, one of which was the largest fish caught at Salmonier for the season. The other members of the party have also been successful. With beautiful weather and it is to be hoped, with the flies not too attentive, the Earl's visit to one of our fishing resorts will be a pleasant termination to what must have been for him a strenuous week.

Mrs. Harold S. Knight will be "At Home" on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, at her residence, 25 Leslie Street, July 11.

Rev. Canon Bayly Preaching at St. Michael's

At Evensong to-morrow at St. Michael's Church, the special preacher will be Rev. Canon Bayly, M.A., Rector of Bonavia, who has remained in town for this purpose. St. Michael's Congregational will welcome the learned preacher whose addresses are always highly appreciated.

Susu in Port

FISH REPORT SCARCE.
 S.S. Susu, Capt. Jacob Kean, arrived in port at 6.10 this morning from the Fogo Mail Service route. The ship brought a few packages of freight, and a number of passengers. Capt. Kean reports delightful weather prevailing all over the coast, but there is a scarcity of fish during the past week due to the off winds. Up to the 27th of last month the fishermen had done well with traps. A change of wind is badly needed.

Nfld. Stamps at Wembley

SOME RARITIES.

The displays in the Ceylon and Newfoundland Pavilions attracted the close attention of the King, whose collection of Imperial postage stamps is the finest extant, on one of his visits to Wembley. His Majesty commented particularly upon the array of the scarce and beautiful postage stamps of the Cingalese exhibit and the used copy of the 4d. dull rose and the 8d. brown of the same issue, shown both used and unused. In Newfoundland the chief d'oeuvre is the 1s. orange vermilion of 1887. Here also are some fine proofs of the early stamps of the New Isle. Air post collectors will find special interest in two "down covers" of the St. John's Halifax Air Mail Service and a photograph of a "Hawker" Transatlantic letter, surrounded by autographs of famous airmen, which was sold for a "record" figure on behalf of the Permanent Marine Fund of Newfoundland a year or two ago. A representative collection of British Indian stamps is prefaced by a fascinating display of proofs, essays, and colour trials, followed by the regular issues in their proper sequence. The most notable item is the rare error of the 4 annas, 1854, with inverted frame, causing the Queen's head to appear upside-down.—London Times, June 16.

Harbor Grace Citizen's Suggestion

Yesterday we received a message from a citizen in Harbor Grace urging that a visit to the Second City by Field Marshal Earl Haig and Lady Haig might be included in their programme. The message was received after we had gone to press, and could therefore not appear. The suggestion, however, has been made too late to be acted upon now, as the visit of our distinguished guests is all but concluded, and every moment of their time was arranged for previous to their arrival. We feel certain, however, that nothing would have afforded them greater pleasure had the arrangement suggested been made at an earlier date.

According to a report to the Board of Trade made by sub-collector Geo. Rose, the prospects for the shore fishery between Grand Bank and Grand Beach are not very bright. MIXING MATTERS IN NATIONAL CONVENTION.

NEW YORK, July 5.
 With 530 votes William G. McAdoo reached a new high level on the sixty-ninth ballot of the Democratic National Convention to-night. His previous high was 355% on the fortieth ballot. On the sixty-ninth ballot they stood McAdoo 530, Smith 335, Davis 64, Scatter 144, total 1077. This represented a gain of 41% for McAdoo, a loss of one and half for Smith, and eight and half for Davis. McAdoo was only twenty short of the majority. But 282 below the necessary two-thirds during the ballot, Smith delegates in the Pennsylvania delegation became aroused when a delegate tore down the picture of Governor Smith and threw them on the floor. In the fight that followed over the state standard Miss Malde R. Renshaw of Pittsburgh was struck on the head by the standard. She was slightly wounded and was removed from hall after her wound had been dressed.

THINKS COLONIAL SECRETARY'S SUGGESTION SHOULD BE TRIED.

DURBAN South Africa July 5.
 The Canadian Press comments on the suggestion made by J. H. Thomas secretary that the Imperial Conference should be recognized in order to make it more widely representative of all political forces in each constituent nation. The Natal Mercury says the suggestion has not been adopted in the past because of doubt to its practicability. "We are skeptical about its desirability as a general rule," says the newspaper, "but bearing in mind the precedent to the South African Convention, it certainly seems a good move to hold one conference on the lines suggested which should consider the constitutional position and scope of the normal Imperial Conference and ways and means of promoting the economic unity of the Empire."

STILL DEADLOCKED.

NEW YORK, July 5.
 Weary but undeviating after seventy rounds of balloting for a Presidential nominee, the Democratic National Convention was called at 10.30 a.m. to-day to begin a new desperate tug-of-war that has been carried to the end of its second week of sessions. After 3, 4th of July ballots, the leaders remained in practically the same positions they have occupied throughout the week. Each had demonstrated the veto power over the other, and neither camp was willing to concede that its maximum strength had been called out, or that its lines have shown signs of crumbling. On the contrary, both claimed to be more solidly entrenched than ever.

A TRIBUTE TO THE FOUNDER OF THE LEAGUE.

GENEVA, July 5.
 With snow crowded Mount Blanc looking on from afar, Geneva was never more glorious than when with the simplest ceremony the northern half of the famous Quai Mont Blanc was yesterday renamed "Quai Wilson." On the garden wall of the League of Nations palace overlooking Lake Lemna has been placed a plain stone tablet which bore the chiselled words "To the memory of Woodrow Wilson, President of United States, founder of League of Nations," and below "The City of Geneva." Before this tablet to-day gathered the members of Geneva municipality, Sir Eric Drummond, Secy-General of the League, Lewis Haskell the United States Consul-General, and a small company of people including officials of the League to participate in the tribute to Woodrow Wilson. Flags were blown in commemoration of the event by all foreign consulates, and participants in ceremony especially remarked the flag of Germany whose consulates are in the grounds of the league.

BOXING TOURNAMENT A SPECTACULAR EXHIBITION

Last night's boxing tournament in the Prince's Rink, was the finest that we think was ever staged in St. John's, at least within our recollection. Each and every bout was clean and hard fought, without any indication of viciousness, and in spite of the two technical fouls given without any suggestion of an attempt to take an unfair advantage. The local representatives were splendid types of fighters, and if they yielded the palm to the Navy it was not by any means through lack of grit. We heartily congratulate the boys in blue, and H.M.S. Constance, at having among her crew such a splendid aggregation of boxers.

Featherweight Bout.

The first bout was between A.B. Hawkins (Constance) and C. Froehlich, in the featherweight class. Both men appeared evenly matched as they entered the ring, but the sailor showed himself not only able to take punishment but also to carry the fight to his opponent. If anything he was the favorite in the first round. There was considerable in fighting both in the first and second rounds, and Hawkins' body blows began to take effect. A jab to the body made Brocklehurst groggy, and a second, for which Hawkins was disqualified by the referee, would have undoubtedly given the former the fight. Than Mr. Cullen we have no better exponent of the manly art, and his presence in the ring is a sure sign of fair play. If anything he errs on the right side, and this, we are certain, was the cause of the discussion which we consider unfortunate.

Waterweight Exhibition.

A.B. Caesar and A.B. Tate, in the waterweight class, gave a good exhibition, their taps showing what could have happened if they had been serious.

Lightweight Bout.

The lightweight bout between Vandenstein (Constance) and J. Phelan, was one of the best of the fights, and although Phelan was beaten by a better man he had nothing to feel sorry for as he put up a splendid showing. Perhaps the greatest weakness of our men is in neglecting to use both hands, and in failing to get home with body blows.

Heavyweight Battle.

The scrap of the evening was in the heavyweight class, between Goodyear and A.B. Davis (Constance). Goodyear had the advantage of weight by 17 pounds and used it effectively. In the first round Davis was forced through the ropes and fell to the floor; but regaining the ring in time, he soon showed that science could be combined with hard hitting with effect. Undoubtedly he had the best of all three rounds, and before the end Goodyear conceded him the victory. Davis was given an ovation, and deserved it. We are asked to correct the error which appeared in the News regarding the weights of the opponents. Weights were Goodyear, 187 lbs.; Davis, 170 lbs.

Middleweight.

The middleweight contest, between H. Diamond, 154 lbs., and A.B. Dabbs (Constance) 140 lbs., proved to be the liveliest bout for the night. In the first round both boxers exchanged clean lefts and rights to the face and body, with honors pretty evenly divided. In the second round Diamond forced the fighting and landed several hard rights to his opponent's jaw which made his man feel very groggy. The bell just saving him at the end of the round. Dabbs, however, came back strong in the third, and a terrific hitting was witnessed for the honor. At the end of the bout the judges declared the decision a draw, which necessitated an extra round. After a two minute rest, both boxers came to the ring again. Dabbs was awarded the decision, he having followed up the fighting and landed the cleaner blows. They were loudly applauded at the close.

An exhibition bout between Davis and Apps of the ship followed. Both men gave a clever exhibition of scientific boxing. They mixed it rather freely throughout and many were the many well directed blows landed.

Featherweight

The featherweight bout between R. Butt (Wireless Station) 112½ lbs. and Stone, 125 lbs., ended rather disappointingly, and just goes to show how a competitor has to act in keeping within strict accordance with the rules. The fighting in the first round was very tame, with boxers pretty evenly divided. In the second round Stone forced the fighting and sent over several solid lefts which shook his opponent, but after 1 minute and 55 seconds, Stone was ruled out for hitting with the front of his glove. Stone was awarded the decision.

Before the close it was announced from the Ring that Mr. E. Butler had challenged Davis of the Constance to a six round bout, to take place any time before the ship sails. The entire proceeds to go to the benefit of the G.W.V.A. This was considered very sporty of Butler, and following the announcement called for a big outbreak of cheering.

The prizes won at the last championship tournament were then presented to the winners by Capt. Fred Marshall, Chairman of the G.W.V.A. Committee, also gold and silver match boxes to the boxers who were acclaimed winners last night.

The proceedings terminated with the playing of the National Anthem by the Mount Cashel Band, who were in attendance all evening, and rendered pleasing airs.

There was very little business done by the Regatta Committee last night, owing to several of the members being unable to attend. The attraction was the boxing tournament, at the Prince's Rink. The President announced that Mr. H. D. Reid had given him instructions to have the racer Nellie R. placed in first class condition, and that Mr. Bob Sexton will undertake the work. The meeting was then postponed until Monday night next.

REGATTA MEETING POSTPONED.

The cricket match, City vs. H.M.S. Constance, which was scheduled for yesterday afternoon at St. George's Field, was called off. The ship's team was unable to be present owing to pressing duties.

TO-NIGHT'S FOOTBALL.

An exhibition game of football, will be played at St. George's Field this evening at 7.30, between the B.I.S. eleven and H.M.S. Constance. The Navy team will present the same line-up as in their game against the City on Wednesday night and a spirited game should follow. The B. I. S. will line-up as follows:—

AMERICANS TAKE POLO GAME.

ST. CLOUD, France, June 28.—(A.P.)—The United States Olympic polo team to-day defeated the French team, 13 to 1, in the opening match of the Olympic competition. The French team was outclassed in all departments of the game and only gave what appeared to be just a meagrely good team a satisfactory workout. The American ponies were superior to the French mounts, as were their riders. The French were outspurred and outmanoeuvred.

YANKEE FENCERS LOSE AT OLYMPICS.

PARIS, June 28.—(A.P.)—The United States Olympic fencing team was quickly eliminated from the competition to-day when it lost two series of matches to Denmark and France. Argentina, the only other trans-Atlantic competitor, however, made the semi-finals by eliminating Great Britain.

Americans Eliminated By The French And Danish Teams.

PARIS, June 28.—(A.P.)—The United States Olympic fencing team was quickly eliminated from the competition to-day when it lost two series of matches to Denmark and France. Argentina, the only other trans-Atlantic competitor, however, made the semi-finals by eliminating Great Britain.

The American team lost to Denmark by the score of 9 to 7, and to France by 13 to 3. The United States fencers were unfortunate in having to meet France so early and had no chance against the team that has won scores of big tournaments and had the advantage of long training in this sport.

The team from America made an excellent impression because of its appearance, knowledge of fencing and combativeness. Against Denmark, France was better than the 13 to 3 score indicates, for the trans-Atlantic team scored 46 touches against the Frenchmen's 17. Breed, Allison, Walker and Calman composed the American team against the Frenchmen. Calman won against M. Cottier, several times French National champion, by 5 to 4, and from M. Coutrot, one of the finest young fencers in France, Allison also beat M. Lebatut, a noted French fencer, 5 to 4.

The six teams remaining for the semi-finals to-morrow are those of Spain, France, Denmark, Hungary, Argentina and Belgium.

ROYAL BANK'S VIEW OF BUSINESS.

(From Halifax Chronicle, July 1st.)

While general business in Canada has continued comparatively quiet during the last month, certain favorable developments have taken place, notably a further increase in wheat prices, which advanced from $1.06½ per bushel on May 21st, to $1.16½ per bushel on June 21st, says the Royal Bank.

Since the middle of April, wheat has appreciated in value approximately 17 per cent. The indications are that the 1924 world crop will be smaller than that of 1923, the prospective decline in the production of the United States being a specially important factor. If the expected 88 million bushel reduction in their wheat crop takes place, their net wheat and flour exports for the 1924-25 season will not amount to anything very substantial. Under the influence of the tariff, prices for the better grades of wheat in the United States may easily rise materially higher than those in Canada, a situation which would further stimulate the export of Canadian flour.

Whether wheat prices, after their very substantial rise, will or will not be subject to a reaction. It is obviously impossible to say, but the fact that such an appreciation in value has been possible seems to indicate that a turn in the tide has come, and that we may expect better wheat market conditions in the future, with all that that implies in the way of a more prosperous West.

The situation which has existed in the Canadian West during the last few years has definitely held back the progress of this country, so that a solution of the problem could be expected to react favorably on business throughout the Dominion. General trade shows little change over the preceding month. A comparatively cold spring has tended to affect retail and wholesale trade unfavorably, but merchants are hoping that warmer weather will result in an improvement in sales.

are injuring our bodies and our baby's milk by the decay of the teeth. Unfortunately the teeth are decayed and had very often without teethache, and so it nothing is done we slowly take in a poison which hinders us from having good health.

We get tired easily.

We don't sleep well.

We don't enjoy our food.

We get thin.

And many even worse troubles than these, all because of bad teeth.

Odd Occupations

There are many queer ways of earning a living.

Do you know what an "empty searcher" is? He is a man employed by brewers to trace empty bottles, casks, and so on. A "getter-off" is another person whose duties are not generally known. He is employed in a host factory.

In the West of England an important industry consists in breeding maggots for fishing bait. It is not a pleasant job—a respirator has to be worn—but many women are bait-breeders.

"Johnny—come—fortnightly" and "absent" are names attached to peculiar jobs. The first is a pedlar and the second a man who hangs around a cattery in the hope of getting a few hours' work.

The "knacker-up" is a sort of human alarm clock who goes round waking those people who have to get up at an exceptionally early hour.

Alaska Bishop Will Visit

Seattle, June 23. (A.P.)—When the Right Rev. Peter T. Rowe, Bishop of the Episcopal Church in Alaska, reaches Point Barrow, Alaska, this summer, it will be the first time he has made an official visit within the Arctic circle for three years.

Preparations have been made by Bishop Rowe to sail from Seattle July 8th on the steamship Victoria for Nome, Alaska, and thence to Point Barrow on the revenue cutter Bear.

After his call at Point Barrow Bishop Rowe will travel by dog team southward, crossing the mountains and traversing the Tanana and Yukon Rivers, visiting his white and native congregations along the route. He expects to be absent from Seattle all next winter.

Utah School Children Fed

SALT LAKE CITY, June 23. (A.P.)—Chocolate tablets containing ten milligrams of iodine each are to be given Utah school children every week as a means of counteracting goitre, according to an announcement by state health officials. A recent survey showed approximately 41 per cent of the school boys and school girls to be afflicted.

A deficiency of iodine in the drinking water consumed by the children is the reason for the great number of goitre cases, according to Dr. J. Wallace, state epidemiologist.

Nature's Sunshade

During days of prolonged sunshine and tropical heat, it is not sufficiently realized that there is nothing specially healthy about a "tanned" skin.

The practice of exposing one's face to direct sunlight in order to get sunburnt is both absurd and dangerous.

Ultra-Violet rays destroy the animal tissues of the skin, but Nature's antidote is the brown pigment underneath which develops and, acting as a filter, shuts out the harmful influence.

The most obvious precaution is a big sun hat, and if the hint furnished by Nature be acted upon, the colour will be light brown.

TRINITY

CAPTAIN THOMAS BURRAGE.
1792-1815.

In an honest effort to rescue "against the tooth of time and rasure of oblivion," the names and history of the men who came to Trinity two hundred years ago and since; and who settled down in our midst, and had a share in the laying of the foundations of our spiritual and temporal life; it is well nigh impossible to be other than guilty, more or less, of a sameness in references to them. They came largely from the same places and from the same stock. Their early training was often the same, as were all their aims and objects; whilst the trade routes were so limited and so much alike, that the history of one became, to a large extent, the history of the majority in connection with their coming to us.

There were those, of course, on the one side, who were endowed with the spirit of leadership, and to whom we shall always be indebted for their methods of leading, and the heights to which they led. They realised the fullness of the meaning of noblesse oblige and acted accordingly. There were others, on the contrary, whose aims were low, and whose lives were more or less degraded. They, however, were comparatively few; and to a large extent they did not leave an hereditary influence for evil upon their fellows; hence their low standard of morals ceased to demand recognition after they had either left the country, or when God had called them into his presence for judgment. How much better even those men would have been, were it not for their individual lack of moral fibre, that made Jamaica Rum and Holland Gin such a fatal temptation to them. I am not prepared to say, I feel sure, however, that several of them did not do full justice to their better selves on this account; and that as we to-day visualize them and their temptations, we may say with truth, of ourselves as individuals: "There goes myself, were it not for the Grace of God."

Some time ago I gave a list of sea captains who came to us from the motherland, married and settled down in Trinity. The number was surprising even to those in our midst who are old enough to remember some of them. I also gave at different times an outline of Capt. John Sabin, Capt. Nicholas, Capt. Whitewood, and others. They represented a class of men whose influence, on the whole, was good, and no biographical history of Trinity would be complete without a reference to them. One of the men was Capt. Joseph Burrage. He was born in Thorncombe, near Chard, in Devonshire, in 1763; and when Peter Street established his business (on the Southside of Trinity) between Poole and Trinity, in 1792, Captain Joseph Burrage in the brig "Hiram," came to Trinity with the first cargo of general merchandise, consigned to him (Peter Street). Capt. Burrage came to Trinity with a like consignment, at least once a year, for the next few years, and during that time he was well known to, and highly respected by everybody in Trinity.

In 1795 the "Hiram" was purchased by Mr. Robert Slade, and as it was understood that she would be employed exclusively in the Poole and Trinity trade, Captain Burrage decided to make Trinity his permanent place of abode. The following entry in the Register of old St. Paul's marks his first step in that direction:—

"October 6th, 1795, Married—Captain Joseph Burrage, of Thorncombe, Devon, England, and Susannah Rowe of this Harbour."

This action on the part of the captain, was followed by his younger brother, who was boatswain with him on the "Hiram," and the following entry appears on the next page of the same Register:—"May 20, 1800, Married—William Burrage of Thorncombe, Devon, and Elizabeth Shambler of this Harbour (widow)." In the Register of Baptisms, the following entries give an outline of the progress of the family of Captain and Susannah Burrage, during the next seven or eight years:—"Baptized, Sarah Street, John, Elizabeth, Susannah."

During the first fifteen years after Captain Burrage's marriage, he came and went between Trinity and Poole with the regularity of clockwork. Then he retired from the sea, and for several years he carried on a business of his own on a strip of the shore just above Slade's premises that he bought from Mr. J. Jeffrey. During those years he became a still more familiar figure in Trinity, and his unselfish kindness to several young men, who took advantage of his invitation to his home during the winter evenings, for a smoke and a quiet talk on practical navigation, meant much to these young men in their after life as seamen.

In the early part of the year 1815 the Captain's health began to fail, and in the Burial Register of old St. Paul's is the following entry: Nov. 19, 1815, Interred—Captain Joseph Burrage of this Harbour, aged 52 years." On the same page is the following entry: "March 27th, 1816, Interred—Susannah, widow of the late Captain Joseph Burrage, aged 37 years."

eph Burrage, aged 37 years." The Captain's only son, John, went to sea and did not return to Trinity. The daughters all married. There was no child born to William and Elizabeth Burrage. Hence, within a few years, the name Burrage, as a surname, died out in Trinity. It is, however, still retained as a Christian name by a grandson of Captain Joseph, and Susannah Burrage, in the person of Reginald Burrage Mills, whose mother was their daughter Susannah, and Mr. Mills is 90 years of age.

Captain Thomas Burrage:—"His life was gentle, and the elements so mixed in him, that Nature might stand up And say to all the world, This was a man!"

—Shakespeare.

VACCINE AND TRINITY.

A friend of mine has sent me an illustrated clipping from a copy of "The Chemist and Druggist" re a Jenner Bells just discovered. The illustrations show the horns of the first cow used in connection with the discovery of vaccine by Dr. Jenner. Those horns of a cow from which the material was the property of Mr. G. A. Turner, F.S.C., London, England, and the inscription on them, in the handwriting of Dr. Jenner, is as follows: "The horns of a cow from which the material was first taken for vaccination, signed, Stephen Jenner." It is a far cry from that cow to Trinity, but there is a decidedly interesting connection. Dr. Jenner, of London, England, (the discoverer of vaccine) and Rev. Dr. Clinch of Trinity were great friends, and some of the vaccine thus prepared from this cow was sent by Dr. Jenner to Mr. Clinch, and was successfully used by him during an outbreak of small pox in Trinity, and thus for the first time in Newfoundland. To the casual observer, the cow and the cow's horns, etc., are very commonplace things; and the calling attention to it all may provoke a smile; but the civilized world is deeply indebted to Dr. Jenner for his discovery; and surely the cow that first supplied the material that proved the reality of the discovery is fully entitled to have her horns thus exalted and honoured—constituting as it does a vote of thanks for her unselfishness.

LOCAL ITEMS.

On Monday, June 23rd, with the setting of the sun, the soul of Miriam Crocker passed from earth into the presence of her God, aged 82 years. She was a daughter of James and Tameson Morris, of Godchold's Cove. On January 2nd, 1860, she married Patrick Crocker, who died in 1890. Since then she lived with her daughter, Mrs. Archibald Christian, and she died at her home. Her body was laid to rest beside that of her husband in the Church of England Cemetery on Thursday, 26th, till the Resurrection morning. Grant her Lord eternal rest.

Mrs. John Thorne (and Master Jack) of Bonavista, paid her annual visit to Trinity last week. We are always glad to see her in Trinity, and her presence carries us back to happy memories of her girlhood days, when, as Hannah Myers she was a general favourite, and a useful promoter of social pleasures, and every good work. We are not surprised at her many good qualities, for her father and mother were delightful persons.

Mr. Alonzo Courage, of the Royal Bank staff, St. John's, is spending his annual holiday in his hometown, Trinity. Those of us who know him, are not surprised to find him "happy all the day," for no one enjoys the quiet holiday of Trinity and the trout ponds and streams more thoroughly than he does. It is always a delightful holiday to him, and we are glad to have him with us.

Mr. H. Freeman of the Royal Bank staff, Trinity, spent a few days in St. John's during the Hays festivities.

Mrs. Pye of Brooklyn, B.B., was with her mother (Mrs. Crocker) during her last hours, and attended the funeral.

The little girl Violet Stone of Old Bonaventure who has been at the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, Halifax, N.S., since last November, has returned for summer vacation. She gives evidences of much improvement for so short a time there, and the per capita grant of money thus given by the Nfld. Government for this purpose is well spent.

The majority of the properties in the centre of Trinity are kept in good condition year by year. Mrs. John White's house has just received its annual attention, and it is ideal in its tidy and clean appearance. Along the same street, Mr. Ralph Pittman's house calls attention to its new coat of paint which has improved its appearance, as well as preserved the building. In addition to enhancing the value of the properties, all such actions add to the respectability of the town, and in this we are always concerned and hence glad to report it.

Mrs. Alec Mews and children, and Miss Marie Erikson came by the Monday morning train. We are glad to see Mrs. Mews looking so well after a serious illness, and we feel sure that the act of coming to Trinity (and breathing native air) will mean "touching the button," and the machinery of health giving properties will be set in motion and do the rest. We are always glad to have Miss Marie come back to us for her holidays. She is a creditable representative of Trinity in the City, and will, wherever she goes out in the bigger world, as the years go by. Miss Phyllis, and Master Willie Gent, who came to us last week, are pictures of health and happiness, and are storing it up for winter use, please God.

Mr. Gent and Master Willie are visiting Mr. Gent's sister, Mrs. William Bemister, New Perlican.

Miss Reader of Bonavista spent a few days last week with friends in Trinity. Glad to see her.

Mr. Fred White of Bonavista visited Trinity last week and returned.

Correction—I was misinformed and hence I gave wrong information last week re no meals on the Prospero in connection with reduced rates to Trinity. I find, meals are included if the passenger's ticket amounts to $2.00 first class, or $1.40 second class; hence, the ticket from St. John's to Trinity (and vice versa) being $2.25 first class, meals are included.

Trinity was fairly well represented in St. John's at the unveiling of the National War Memorial.

The Atlantic Cable

CONNECTING THE OLD WORLD AND THE NEW.

By H. F. SHORTIS.

There have been many discussions as to who was "the father of the mighty thought" to connect the Old World with the New with the Atlantic Cable. Frederick N. Gisborne, a telegraph operator and a man of great genius, rapidly and originally of thought and mind, as well as full of enterprise, was chief official of the Nova Scotia Telegraph Company, and had, no doubt, many ideas as to what might and could be done, and became eventually one of the prime movers in starting the work. He came to Newfoundland in 1851, and laid a project before the Legislature which was the Prospectus for an overland line from St. John's to Cape Ray, nearly five hundred miles in length, and then to communicate between Cape Ray and Cape Breton by steamer and carrier pigeons with the hope of eventually laying a submarine cable across the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The Legislature gave every encouragement to the project, and granted £500 (two thousand dollars) to Mr. Gisborne to explore and survey the proposed line to Cape Ray. They also passed an Act authorizing its construction, with certain privileges, and the appointment of Commissioners to carry it out.

Mr. Gisborne was strongly backed by the whole community, more especially by the illustrious prelate, Right Rev. Dr. Mullock, Roman Catholic Bishop of St. John's, to whom the honor and credit of being the prime mover is always given by the highest authorities, and it was on the initiative of a letter written by His Lordship to the "Courier" newspaper of this city of St. John's, November 8, 1850, suggesting this work, that really brought Mr. Gisborne to Newfoundland. Bishop Mullock when visiting the Western Coast, lay becalmed one day in the yacht "in sight" of Cape North, the extreme point of Cape Breton Island, and saw how Nature had provided an easy and suitable approach to the mainland on the West, and, upon arriving back to St. John's, he wrote the memorable letter to our local press contradicting the previous statements that had appeared in the press, stating that Halifax was the nearest point from America to Ireland, and proved conclusively that St. John's was really hundreds of miles shorter, and decreased the distance by two days by steamer. It must be remembered that at this time there was no submarine cable in existence, not even between Dover and Calais in the English Channel, which was afterwards the first cable to be successfully operated. I can only give a brief outline of events owing to the limited time at my disposal.

In the Spring of 1853 Mr. Gisborne went to work vigorously to complete his favorite undertaking of laying a telegraph line, chiefly under ground, between St. John's and Cape Ray. He had constructed some thirty of forty miles with every prospect of success, when most unexpectedly his financial supporters in New York, refused to furnish the required funds, and brought operations to a sudden termination. Mr. Gisborne, being the only recognized party, was stripped of his entire property, and was arrested to answer the claims of his creditors. He cheerfully and honorably surrendered everything he possessed, and did his utmost to relieve the extreme distress in which the laborers on the line were involved. Mr. Gisborne went to New York in January, 1854, to see his friends again, but they could give him no support. While staying at the Astor House, he met an engineer, Matthew Field, and through him he obtained an introduction to Cyrus W. Field, brother of Matthew, who was a merchant in New York, and although a comparatively young man, had retired from business with a substantial fortune.

Cyrus Field admits that the idea of a Trans-Atlantic Cable had long been a matter of speculation with scientific men, though their theories had never attracted his attention until Mr. Gisborne brought the project up, and when he grasped the idea, it took a strong hold on his imagination, and led him to entertain the Newfoundland scheme as a preliminary to the other. Cyrus Field then made his own enquiries with the best scientific authorities as to the possibility of laying this Trans-Atlantic cable, and being satisfied, he then formed up a new company, with Peter Cooper, Moses Taylor, Marshall Roberts and Chandler White as the first directors. They agreed to meet Monday morning and organize the New York Newfoundland and London Telegraph Company, with a capital of one and a half million dollars. It was in this company that I lined up in 1870. It afterwards merged into the Anglo-American Telegraph Co.

Gisborne had made a beginning at the earliest end, and now the hard work began. Able and practical men, like the late Hon. A. M. McKay (who rose to the position of General Superintendent and held it for 30 years or more), T. D. Scanlan and a few of the others were young operators, and the difficulties began to disappear, but it would take too long for me to narrate one-tenth of their adventures and hardships. For two years they

Our Political Problems

And How to Solve Them.

By ANALYST.

"Were half the power that fills the earth with terror. Were half the wealth bestowed on camp and court. Give to the human mind from error. There were no need of arsenals and forts."

Patriotism is innate in all men; the absence of it betokens a perversion of human nature; but it grows its full growth only where thoughts are elevated and heart-beatings are generous. "Of all human duties," writes Cicero, "none is more honorable and more estimable than to merit well of the commonwealth." Countries are the sons of Adam, and appointed the bounds of peoples. No nation is born into life, or vanishes back into nothingness without the bidding of Providence. More than a century ago a trans-Atlantic poet and philosopher wrote:

"Westward the course of empire takes its way. The first four acts already past. A fifth shall close the drama with the day: Time's noblest offering is the last."

Berkley's prophetic eye had discerned America. He had seen right in the mouth of the St. Lawrence the richly-endowed island of Newfoundland, and saw in her a fitting stepping-stone to the "vast Dominion of Canada" on the one hand and the "Great Republic of the United States" on the other; in each of which the people find

"The glory of a gracious land, Fit home for many a hardy race; Where liberty has broadest base, And labor honors every hand."

Some of us can still remember when the profession of arms was the only one to which high-spirited young men, even in the colonies, aspired. The church, the bar, medicine, literature, the arts, commerce were below them. Now, however, it is to the middle class we must look for our safety; the working educated man, the good clergy not corrupted into parasites by hopes of advancement, the tradesman rising in to many opulence; the men of letters in their quiet studies; these are the men we like to see and read about at the present moment. Proclaim this, and what light breaks through our leaden sky! The war-wave rolls then with only the impetus and weight of an idea.

"The sword—a name of dread!—yet when the freeman's thigh 'tis bound— While for his altar and his hearth, While for the land that gave him birth, The war-drum's roll, the trumpet's sound— How sacred is it them!

Whenever for the truth and right It flashes in the van of fight. Whether in some wild mountain pass that where fell Leonidas; Or, on some sterile plain and stern— A Marathon or a Bonnockburn; Or mid fierce crags and bursting rills— The Swiss Alps, gray Tyrol's hills; Or, as when sunk the Armada's pride, It gleams above the stormy tide.— Still, still, when'er the battle's word is Liberty—when men do stand For Justice and their native land— Then Heaven bless the sword!"

CONDITIONS NOT EASILY REMOVED.

Evil conditions, unjust laws, immoral and unhealthy surroundings, are not easily removed; nor are questions such as the Employment of the Unemployed, the Liquor Question, the Social Evil, to be dealt with, without united and persistent effort. It will be the endeavor of the present administration to adopt the most successful methods of moral and social reform. To quote the words of one of Premier Monroe's principal advisers: "We shall resort to all right and lawful means to remove graft and other existing evils, to improve the condition of society, and to elevate our fellow-countrymen. With the hearty co-operation of all the churches, of various denominations, all the charitable and labor organizations, and all other societies existing for the purpose of social and moral reform, we believe that much can be accomplished which is now left undone because efforts are desultory and sometimes conflicting."

WHAT THE GREED OF GAIN DOES.

It is the greed of gain that separates political parties more than anything else. The exaggerations of political organs do only too much to excite the passions of either side, and this lends gusto to the fighting during an election campaign. Shylock suggested that the Christians should stop in their Jew-baiting to consider how much they had in common with their victims. There is a curious sort of way, to the conclusion of the whole matter. If parties help parties in legislating for the good of the whole community, friendship ensues; if parties oppose parties on all questions, enmity is inevitable. But, when parties, like individuals, come to know and understand one another, it becomes increasingly difficult to embroil them with one another.

THE CHALLENGE OF DIFFERENT IDEAS.

To-day parties are urged into a greater activity by the challenge of different ideas, or conflict with new suggestions, and so they pass all such barriers in their pursuit of perfection. Is not that what is always inspiring the engineer and the writer, the inventor and the movie star, though perhaps they do not fully realize it? Something is working all the time under the clouds of present discontent in the political arena. The trend of it all is difficult to disentangle, for the same phenomena have different significance to the minds inspecting. Thus it is that those behind us often cry "Forward!" while those before cry "Back!" And it is by no means always those in front who have the clearest vision. In such circumstances you cannot jam the brakes on progress!

WHAT THE PRIME MINISTER REALLY REPRESENTS.

The Prime Minister undoubtedly represents a very large element in the thought of the country, because, as Gilbert wrote in "Iolanthe,"

"Every boy and every girl That's born into the world alive Is either a little Liberal Or else a little Conservative."

Many people like a safe, silent leader, who will listen to their views patiently, instead of interrupting them to express his own. It is curious how the news from Forest Road, in the last few weeks, has not been mainly of what the Premier has definitely said he would do or not do, but of what Representative Saunders or Mr. Stuchand has advised the Premier, or is thought to have told the Premier, to do. The Premier is still the composite figure that he started out to be, in much the same way as an average citizen who reads the papers is, in his thinking a composite of the views presented to his attention there.

DINNERS AND OTHER ENTERTAINMENTS.

The visit of Field Marshal Lord Haig reminds me that we are to have, during the current week, a number of dinners and other entertainments of an unusually interesting nature. It occurs to me, however, that the pleasantest dinners are those composed of average people, for although a brilliant galaxy of guests gives a dinner a certain distinction, it is just as likely as not to be a dull one. I have a very vivid recollection of a dinner composed of people each of whom was distinguished in our local sense of the word. It was given by the late Governor Boyle on a very important occasion. The Prime Minister, four or five cabinet ministers, two judges of the Supreme Court, one distinguished churchman, two or three outstanding journalists, a very able lawyer and several highly successful merchants made up a dinner which at first sight seemed to promise a rare feast of intellectual delight, but which one of the guests declared was the dullest dinner he had ever sat down to. The story of how a certain Prime Minister, not very long ago, with rare tact, decided to waive all regulations about evening dress, and invite the advanced party in the House of Assembly, who abjured general society, to dine with him at his private residence is so well known that there is no indiscretion in alluding to it. One has heard over and over again how they met, and under the soothing influence of a good dinner, wine and general hospitality, the conflicting elements were brought together, and they passed an evening as unique as it was hilarious. Dinner is the great levelling institution of society. As James Russell Lowell says:

"It is the thing that tests and tries men's souls. And shows what leading principle controls."

Crisco is economical, for you use one fifth less than you would cooking butter or lard. Then Crisco is smokeless and odorless and helps keep your kitchen clean.—adv.

Our Dumb Animals

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT S.P.A. WEEK ENDING July 4.

Called Sunday morning to look at a horse in a field off Warberry Street which had its leg broken in some unaccountable way, and under the advice of Veterinary Bishop I humanely put the animal to death. Attended to the landing of four carloads cattle and five horses, also two sales of cattle and pigs. Everything was very satisfactory. I also put to death at the request of the owners two dogs. One of these gentlemen contributed to the funds of the Society his subscription. There are a lot of complaints of dogs which are left out all night, one particularly at the corner of Springdale and New Gower Streets. People can't sleep at night in this neighbourhood. Owners must see that they are housed. I also received a report from a gentleman in the East End about people going to the country and leaving cats barred up in the house. It is a shame for people to go on their holidays and leave dumb animals shut in without food or water. I want householders that I will summon some offenders after this warning. Sent four horses in for temporary lameness. The Society also imported a Humane Killer for Mr. Wm. Campbell, the well-known butcher on Water Street this week. I paid particular attention to all horses at the Regatta and around town during the week, and find owners more interested than before in their animals. I do hope the boys and girls will continue picking up nails and everything that is injurious to animals feet off the street and place them out of harm's way. Phoned to shoot a dog which had been run over by a motor car on Water Street West. It had its hip broken. One on Hamilton Street was also hurt and died before I got there. I am very thankful for all messages received and for the great interest which is taken in the Society by the public. I might state I am at the call of all lovers of Dumb Animals every day and at any hour to relieve the suffering and distress of these creatures. Phone all complaints to 653.
