Aside from its enjoyable nature the meeting accomplished two ends, in both of which the Farmer takes pride.
The corner stone of the county association movement was well and training threshed out the college questions so that the position of the farmers no longer admits of doubt, the attitude of some eity dailies to the contrary not withstanding. The attendance through out was the largest on record.
"OUR FRIENDS, THE BIRDS." Harold Jones, of Ontario, came be fore the farmers with a new subject and one which he considered outers more importance than was generally supposed.
There were many birds that were conceded by everyone to be benefician and oneers as planly injurious, but hanits of some of those who were generally placed in the doubtind class. The mentioned first the hawks, persee outed by almost every one. That's the benefit of consolidation, more unity, less expense per capita, more hygienic surroundings, healthful conditions, less of the survival of the liftest. These do not demand huge buildings, not at all. Yet many schools are little more than decent, with sur-roundings that are far less than de-cent. Fine places they, for the devel-opment of young life! Let us make a campaign for this and join hands on it. Only 48 per cent of children in rural districts go daily to school. Have a dairy head with only 40 per cent of the milk going to the creamery and see where the profits go. Why, then, tolerate such a state of things in schools? Why not have our graded schools and good teachers, when it has been demonstrated as an outstanding success? JACK TAR'S SURPLUS., (From the San Francisco Coast Sea-men's Journal.) A captain of one of the steel trust boats asked one of his wheelmen (un-ion) what he did with his surplus carnings. Here is the conversation: "How do you like to work for the company?" he was asked. "Pretty well," answered the man at the wheel. "How much do you make a month?" "I make more than I get, which is $52.50," the wheelman replied. "What do you do with it all?" "Oh, I pay grocery bills, butcher's bills and support myself and family." "What do you do with the rest?" Trail, trail, trail, The labor you never shirk, Through filthy flood and slush and "I pay doctor's bills, because, you know, people will fall sick sometimes." We could surely allow such a seavenger as this to take a few liber ties with our cherries for only two weeks in the year when he is working hard in our interest for the rest o thetime. He firmly believed that if al-bird life were destroyed, in later years we would not be able to bring one rop to maturity. It was a shame, he said, that the aesthetic part of our natures was not more cultivated and that shade trees and shrubs did not occupy more of the space around our houses, and thus afford beside the nat ural benefits of shade, beauty and cool-ness, a better protection for our friends In closing, he urged us to study more of bird life and thus to understand more of their habits. aster rules for covereropping can carcely be laid down. The use of lover has very great advantages, by increasing plant, tood, adding mineral constituents and humus, and serving as a fall catch crop. Compared with barn nanure, the latter contains 10 lbs. itrogen, 5 of phosphoric acid and 9 of potash. Ten tons per acre adds, there-iore, liberally of all three. Clover may yring its acid and potash from the oil but they come from the great lepths and the humus added is an ad-itional factor. Considerable experi-nental data 'was quoted in proof of the points made. Commercial ferti-izers bring no humus to a soil, add nothing to its water-holding power and are of value only as they add di-rectly to the growing crop. Many tests have shown how the sowing of dover improves this power in all soils. The amount of lata presented by the Director pre-luded securing an off-hand report and the questions asked were mainly rel-evant to the matter of fertilizers. M. G. DeWolfe asked as to the value of wood ashes and was told that a bar-rel of 100 pounds containing 40 cents worth of potash, 12 cents in phosphor-ic acid, and the lime, would not be "xcessively dear at 60 cents. T. H. Morse inquired as to the fertilizers necessary for exclusive manuring on rood land. Dr. Sauiders recommends 50 to 60 lbs. nitrogen, 30 to 40 of botash, 15 to 20 of phosphorie acid, that being about the amount of mater-ial taken from the land by each good crop of fruit. This gentleman regards the system of tillage now in vogue as pure robbery and can see little excuse for such a tendency, in view of the wealth of agricultural literature now contin-nally before our people. The apparent neglect of so splendid opportunities is most regrettable, and Mr. Messenger, too, thinks well of the agricultured college as a corrective influence and a means of raising the standard of farm-ing generally.
