

SITUATION WORSE EVERY HOUR; HOPE TO AVERT WAR DIMINISHES

FATE OF EUROPE STILL UNCERTAIN; RUSSIA AND AUSTRIA TALKING TERMS; WAR SEEMS INEVITABLE

BIG POWERS DISCUSS SETTLEMENT, BUT CONTINUE TO PREPARE FOR CONFLICT.

Germany has Declared a State of Siege -- Mighty England's Navy Mobilized and Army on War footing waiting for Word--Whereabouts of British Sea Forces kept Secret-- Russian Squadron outside Danish Island, in the Baltic -- Communication across Europe cut off.

London, July 31.—In the desperate situation there are only two factors tonight giving the faintest hope of averting a general European war—first Russia and Austria are engaged in direct negotiations again. Second both Great Britain and France are using their utmost endeavors in favor of peace.

On the other hand, Russia has ordered a general mobilization, and Germany has declared a state of siege, which is undoubtedly a prelude to, if it does not cover, mobilization.

France has not yet mobilized, but at cabinet councils, which sat until late at night, issued decrees establishing a moratorium and taking other action which could only be determined upon the eve of war. Unofficially the French army is being virtually mobilized.

A very circumstantial, though yet unconfirmed, report, published in Rome, says that Germany is about to demand from both Russia and France the immediate cessation of mobilization. Yet another rumor has it that the German ambassador has notified the French government of his early departure.

Great Britain is practically, though not officially, mobilized and the smaller European states—Belgium, Holland and Switzerland—to protect their territory from being used as a highway for the belligerents; Norway, Sweden and Denmark to guard themselves on general principles. Italy makes no announcement, and although a rumor credits her with the decision not to take part in the struggle, there is little doubt that she is making ready by mobilization.

Communication across Europe has been cut off, and there is a universal application of the censorship, with the result that it is impossible to obtain any accurate knowledge of what military operations are going on in Serbia. All code telegrams are refused. In short, all the European nations are becoming isolated from each other by railway and telephone. Many American travellers have been held up by the suspension of international trains.

The withdrawal of three famous yachts from the Cowes regatta is significant.

All countries involved in the war have prohibited the exports of many products and all the stock exchanges in England and Scotland are closed. The European state banks have raised rates, and the Bank of England rate has been doubled.

London, July 31.—Facing the most perilous epoch in their history since they shivered before the spectre of a Napoleonic invasion, the English people are the calmest nation of Europe. Yesterday they felt that the decision, whether Great Britain was to be drawn into a general European war was hanging in the balance; today they believe it is a probability rather than a possibility.

There is no mistaking the fact that, with the exception of a minority of peace advocates, whose voice is hardly heard, and seems to carry little weight, the nation's mind is reconciled to war. There is apparent among all classes a sober and grim determination, if the government declares that the nation's interests and obligations require her to take up arms, side by side with Russia and France, to see the business through to the bitter end.

The belief of the average man is that the existence of the whole of Europe as an armed camp, nervous and jealous, could have but one ending, and if the hour for a general settlement has struck, there will be no flinching.

Tonight they are asking only, can the British fleet play its part in protecting the island from isolation? Which means, in the first instance, can it destroy the German emperor's navy? They are concerned also as to whether the food supplies can be maintained, and to what extent private fortunes will be impaired by the financial upheaval of the war.

ONLY WORD NEEDED TO SET FIGHTING MACHINERY IN MOTION

The military situation stands where it did last night. The mobilization of the naval forces has been completed, and the army is on a war footing, except for calling out the territorials. The machinery for their mobilization needs only a word to be set in motion.

The London evening papers published news concerning almost all the armies of Europe, except that of Great Britain, and regarding the whereabouts of the British fleet and the preparations of the British army they say nothing. There is a popular belief that the fleet is in the neighborhood of Flushing, in the North Sea, but the truth is known only to the members of the government.

Dover and Sheerness are virtually on a war basis and protective booms are ready to be drawn around at a moment's notice. These and other harbors have been mined. The Catala and Ostend steamers are likely to be transferred to Folkestone from Dover.

The war council of the British cabinet is composed of Mr. Asquith,

WOULD MEAN PARLIAMENT MUST MEET

If Regular Militia is Ordered Out—Mines in St. John Harbor if England Joins in War.

Ottawa, July 31.—If regular militia units are ordered for service, as distinguished from volunteer enlistments a special session of parliament would be necessary.

There are from 800 to 1,000 Canadian regulars at Halifax. These are now manning the guns of the seaport's historic forts. The outer entrance to the harbor is strongly guarded by forts and floating mines. General Sir Ian Hamilton, when here on his inspection tour last year, expressed himself as greatly pleased with the strength and efficiency of these defenses. Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes will be in Quebec on Sunday, to look over the defenses there. His frigate in military circles was unanimous today in declaring that in the event of Britain becoming involved in the struggle, Col. Hughes will resign his portfolio and head a Canadian contingent for the front.

There is a belief that the defenses of Halifax are ample, but that is the only Canadian port which can rely upon the protection afforded by guns.

For the defense of Montreal, Quebec, St. John, Victoria and Vancouver, mines will be laid along the English coastline.

There is a great tension of military men at Ottawa, and the headquarters of the Canadian militia are expecting every hour to receive a message that England is at war, and that aid from Canada will be accepted.

WALL STREET EXCHANGE IS CLOSED

New York, July 31.—The vast and complex machinery of the securities markets of the world came to a complete halt today for an indefinite period. It was an occurrence unprecedented in history. With all Europe seemingly on the verge of war, the continental exchanges closed several days ago, and the London market following suit today, the New York stock exchange would have been called upon to bear the weight of the world's done so all the week.

It was decided ten minutes before the hour set for the beginning of business today that the exchange would not be opened. That action closed the last great market of the world.

It was the impression tonight that the worst of the storm had passed. New York's leading bankers asserted unanimously that the position of the banks was sound.

How long the stock exchange will be closed is a matter of conjecture, the answer depends upon the course of events abroad.

Washington, July 31.—A despatch from Ambassador Penfield, at Vienna tonight said the situation was growing in seriousness, and the last line of Austrian reserve defence had been ordered mobilized during the day.

The prime minister, Sir Edward Grey, secretary of state for foreign affairs, Viscount Haldane, lord high chancellor, and Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty. They are the same ministers as directed the joint diplomatic and military policy of the country during the Agadir crisis, and the last line of Austrian reserve defence had been ordered mobilized during the day.

The general feeling among the bankers is that London has weathered a remarkable storm with great credit.

The bank rate was doubled from four to eight per cent, but during the Crimean War it touched ten and stayed there for six weeks. Short loans today commanded ten and ten and half per cent. interest.

While nothing occurred like a run on the banks, there were symptoms which caused anxiety to everybody. Banks doing an ordinary commercial business refused demands to pay cheques with gold, and paid partly in gold and partly in Bank of England notes.

ULSTER VOLUNTEERS READY TO SERVE, SIR EDW. CARSON SAYS

Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, announced today that a majority of the Ulster volunteers were ready for home service, and that a large contingent were willing for any service where they could be useful.

While the London stock exchange is closed for the first time in its history by the threat of war, and all the exchanges in England and Scotland immediately shut their doors on learning of London's action there has been no financial panic. Nor has there been any important failure.

HONG KONG BRITISH NAVAL BASE IN CHINESE WATERS

Peking, July 31.—Hong Kong is to be made the British naval base in Chinese waters, and in case of war the German possession of Tsing-Tau is to be blockaded.

Wies-Hel-Wal has no fortifications, while Tsing-Tau is fortified on both land and the sea. The Germans believe that the fortifications will afford them ample protection.

The British vessels on leaving Wies-Hel-Wal took every effective man with them. The crews from the British river gunboats, dismantled at Hankow yesterday, are to be taken on board the battleship Triumph, which hitherto had been manned by only a nucleus crew. The Austrian cruiser Kaiserin Elizabeth, on which the guard from five days ago, will not attempt the voyage home, but will remain at Tsing-Tau.

The Italian gunboat Caboto also is sailing towards Tsing-Tau.

NEVER PAID A DOLLAR TO JAIRES, NOTED SOCIALIST IS ASSASSINATED

Paris, July 31.—Jean Leon Jaures, the noted Socialist leader, was assassinated tonight while dining in a small restaurant near the Bourse. The assassin was arrested, but refused to disclose his identity.

Later he was identified as Raoul Villain, twenty-nine years of age, and said to be the son of a clerk of the civil court at Rheims.

M. Jaures was seated at a dinner table, near an open window, chatting with several Socialist deputies and the editors of the L'Humanite. As though by pre-arrangement, the curtain covering the window was lightly brushed aside, and a hand holding a revolver was thrust through. Before M. Jaures could make a move he received two bullets in the back of the head. Without uttering even an exclamation he fell forward and expired, with his head on the table.

M. Jaures had returned here yesterday from Brussels, where he attended the international Socialist conference to protest against war, and since his arrival had delivered an address with his usual eloquence on the subject. His campaign against hostilities is thought possibly to have had some connection with his murder.

Athens, July 31.—The Montenegrin royal yacht Desiara was almost captured today by the Austrian fleet blockading Antivari. The yacht was closed in the night, but when she sighted the blockading fleet turned and fled. She was pursued by Austrian destroyers, but arrived safely at Corfu.

Rio Janeiro, Brazil, July 31.—The financial situation in Brazil, which was already a very serious one, has been considerably aggravated by events in Europe.

The Brazilian loan, which was being negotiated in Europe, has now been made impossible, and it is said that the government intends to issue treasury bills to the amount of $50,000,000 in order to meet urgent requirements.

The Bourse has been paralyzed, and the price of provisions is soaring.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL MEETING

At a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council last evening the recent disturbances were discussed.

The T. and L. Council also discussed the matter of the arrest of certain parties charged with taking part in the riots. Surprise was expressed that all those arrested should be non-natives of the city. Some discussion took place as to whether the T. and L. Council should employ lawyers to defend the parties arrested, on the charge of rioting, but the decision in this matter was laid over to a future meeting.

At this meeting Dr. J. V. Anglin will preside and the report will be read by G. S. Hayes, the chairman of the committee. It is understood that the committee are unanimous on its recommendation, which, of course, is known only to its members.

Head of St. John and Quebec Railway Company on Stand at Hearing of Valley Railway Charges Yesterday Afternoon — Tells of Railroad Workings.

“You are Fighting for Your Miserable Political Life and you Know it,” Said Mr. Teed in Speaking to Carvell—Leader of the Unholy Trinity Called to Account by the Commissioners.

A. R. Gould of the St. John and Quebec Railway Company, on the stand at the hearing into the Valley Railway charges yesterday afternoon, solemnly swore that he never paid a dollar of the Railway Company's money to Hon. J. K. Fleming at any time, either before he received his contract, or in consideration of having received it. Mr. Gould also swore that his business with J. R. M. Baxter, K. C., was thoroughly honorable.

The session, yesterday afternoon, was one of the most interesting to date and was marked by the first class-trouncing given to F. B. Carvell by M. O. Teed and others of the Fleming counsel. Mr. Carvell, by his unfair questions and dirty insinuations, brought down on his head not only the just wrath of the Fleming counsel but also of the commissioners, who eventually were forced to impress their ruler upon the first member of the unholy trinity in no uncertain manner. Miss Wells, when rebuking the prosecution leader, took occasion to intimate that it would be far better if he confined himself to matters under consideration instead of playing to the galleries, with the apparent idea of securing political capital.

In one heated outburst the political curiosity proved his ability to occupy the position as a barker in a third class circus by bawling like a wild cat in a thoroughly caddish display of temper. When the noise had somewhat subsided Mr. Teed, turning to him, said: “You are fighting for your miserable political life, and you know it.” Mr. Carvell, realizing the truth of this statement, had no answer.

Mr. Gould proved a good witness and answered all fair questions in a manner that showed his thorough knowledge of railway building. His keen judgment in the disposal of the bonds, thereby saving the province $25,000, will be appreciated by all business men.

BANKING ACT IN ENGLAND LIKELY TO BE SUSPENDED

London, July 31.—Long lines of people had assembled at the Bank of England when the bank opened today to get gold for notes, and many were turned away at closing time. It was expected that the banking act would be suspended. This would mean that the Bank of England would not be compelled to redeem its notes with gold, but Premier Asquith and Chancellor Lloyd George with the governor of the Bank of England and representatives of other banks held a conference tonight and decided that the suspension of the bank was not necessary at the present time. They would be prepared to act when it was a legal holiday, and the banks would not open in the ordinary course which gives a breathing spell. The governors of the stock exchange were warned this morning by members, estimated at from one hundred to one hundred and fifty that if the stock exchange opened they would be ruined. A governor of the Bank of England is authority for the statement that there is practically no doubt that the banking act will be suspended before business is resumed, and the Bank of England will issue one pound notes to relieve the strain, the smallest notes at present being five pounds.

At all the banks today were lines of small depositors drawing one hundred or two hundred pounds which they thought would be needed as ready cash for buying food if atmosphere does not clear.

CLOSING OF LONDON EXCHANGE SAVED SCORES OF BROKERS

London, July 31.—Many depositors were quietly withdrawing their savings today and the eagerness of bankers to get currency from the Bank of England showed they anticipated the withdrawals would continue to be heavy.

While there was no chance of doing business, stock brokers spent the day standing on the street discussing the situation, reading and re-reading the notices closing the stock exchange, and staring at the big iron doors which heretofore had never been closed in the day time, except on holidays and Sundays.

Fifty brokers informed the stock exchange committee that they would be compelled to default on account of the postponement of the Paris settlement, and another fifty would have gone to the wall if the market had not been closed.

EXPORT OF GRAIN FROM FRANCE HAS BEEN PROHIBITED

Paris, July 31.—The French ministry of finance issued the following notice tonight: “The rise in the price of wheat in all the markets of the world, the probabilities that the harvests of France will be below the average, and the prospect of seeing this commodity go into hiding, as gold does on the eve of grave eventualities, have caused the government to prohibit the export of grain and farinaceous foods of all kinds. This measure was taken by Belgium and Germany today, and is implemented by the prohibition of the export of various products, which are considered contraband of war.”

UP-TO-LATE NEWS OF THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

HERE'S A PROGRAM FOR YOUR BENEFIT

The Gem has many excellent features for next week.

Several splendid feature productions have been booked for the Gem Theatre for the next week, all of which should afford pleasure to the patrons of that popular amusement house. Prime interest of course centres in the next installment of "Lucille Love, the Girl of Mystery." When last she was seen at the Gem the chapter ended with an adventure in which many had held their breaths fearing the outcome, and no doubt all will be anxious to see the charming young woman and the characters surrounding her on the showing of the fourth chapter in the great mystery serial on Monday and Tuesday next, when the adventures will be further advanced.

For the mid-week show the Selighearts News Pictorial will contain many features of leading interest including late news events from all quarters of the world. Besides this there will be a rattling fine comedy, and a two part Essany production of modern social life, with romance and adventure charmingly intermingled. It is entitled "When the Lightning Struck," and is replete with stirring scenes of life in the upper social classes and the gaily allowed wealth holds sway.

One of the old favorites in picture production which seems to hold an everlasting popularity is the western photoplay, and when it is well presented, it really makes a most interesting and captivating picture. In this regard the Kalem Co. have shone for a long time. They have produced many excellent Indian and western stories on the screen and their offering of "The Bottled Spider" at the Gem for Friday and Saturday next is said to be one of their best of recent issue. It bristles with the prairies and is alive with the activities of the early Redskins. In addition to this there will be two more reels one of which will be a Ford Sterling comedy, of the type which has already won such favor with Gem patrons.

MUSICAL REVUE FINE ATTRACTION

The Opera House has been Mecca of large crowds during week.

The Opera House has been the Mecca for all amusement lovers during the past week, Mack's Musical Revue being the magnet that has drawn crowds that have taxed the capacity of the theatre at every night performance. The company is popular—they "make good"—no matter what time during the performance one drops in there is always something going on that catches the attention and gives the worth of the money and the members of the company are very generous in responding to encourage them like the audiences and the audience like them. Everybody in town has been getting the Revue habit and it bids fair to be popular for some weeks to come. The night performances are always over in plenty of time for out of town patrons to catch their trains.

For the coming week, starting Monday matinee, an entire change of programme is announced, nothing being repeated from previous bills, the programme being replete with late song hits, good musical comedy features, scenic and electrical novelties and funny scenes and situations worked in by the three comedians.

OPEN THANHOUSER PARK AT NEW ROCHELLE.

Thanhouser Park, surrounding the Thanhouser studio, was dedicated by the residents of New Rochelle, N. Y., on Tuesday, July 7. Charles J. Hite, president of the Thanhouser Company, ordered open house on that day, and every man, woman and child in New Rochelle was welcome at the studio. The broad acres to the east of the main building in the Thanhouser group have been converted into a park, with driveways, rustic bridges, bungalows, and most wonderful of all, a fall over which water rushes and tumbles, just as though Nature had planned what Joseph Turner, Thanhouser's scenic artist, has built.

News Notes from Unique and Lyric

Unique patrons will regret to learn that Mr. Wm. Stewart, head usher of the Unique, has resigned his position. His place is being taken by Mr. Geo. Enos formerly of the Lyric staff.

The Million Dollar Mystery seems to have caught the fancy of local picture fans. Most favorable comment was voiced on the opening episode of the serial when shown at the Unique last Monday and Tuesday. The second chapter, "The False Friend," is said to be even more interesting and startling than the first. Not a few are wondering what became of the million dollars, and the popular contention seems to show the blame on the shoulders of the butler, it remains to be seen.

Miss Alice O'Brien of the Unique and Lyric staffs, leaves on Monday for a well earned vacation. Miss O'Brien will spend her holidays enjoying the beauties of one of the prettiest suburbs along the river.

The programme outlined for presentation at the Unique Monday and Tuesday of next week represents an excellent outlay of features. Besides the second chapter of The Million Dollar Mystery, the Keystone farcial oddity, "Mabel's Nerve," introducing the Keystone trick horse, and the Thanhouser study of life, "When the Wheels of Justice Clogged," will be shown.

Miss Vesta Gilbert who played the provinces some months ago in vaudeville, has joined Mack's Musical Revue at the Opera House.

The Simletta Sisters, who have been playing through Nova Scotia and New Brunswick for the past six weeks, will

PRETTY BATHING COSTUMES SHOWN.

A variety of pretty bathing costumes will be shown in "Ella's Aunt," a lively farce soon to be issued as a Komic Mutual release. The fun comes through a young man masquerading as a woman in order to go with his sweetheart to a Sunday school picnic. His identity is discovered, and he punishes the costume of the Sunday school superintendent, who is forced to don the woman's togs.

appear at the Lyric Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in their novel acrobatic act. The merits of this attraction is well vouched for in the fact that it has received more time through the Provinces than any other act of its kind.

Miss Elsie Metz of the Lyric staff is confined to her home with an attack of appendicitis.

In Mabel's Nerve at the Unique on Monday, a trick horse actually rolls over a steep embankment, and falls head long into the ditch below. Miss Normand is said to be the only person that can make the animal but even she sustained severe injuries while this scene was being enacted.

Ruth Briggs and Margaret (Tiny) Williams of Mack's Musical Revue, spent last Sunday at Baywater, the guests of Mr. Wm. Callan, Ferralds cottage.

Mr. Walden Whipple, a noted rube comedian will be at the Lyric the first three days of next week with The Simletta Sisters.

Our Mutual Girl Magazine, a dainty little book telling many interesting items concerning the Lyric and Unique, fashion hints, etc., will be presented to the ladies attending the matinee at the Unique next Wednesday afternoon.

Mack's Musical Revue has established an enviable name for themselves in St. John and are being greeted daily with crowded houses the energetic efforts of Miss Ackerstrom, the talented directress and Mr. McKay the manager coupled with excellent work by the members of the company are being justly crowned with success.

A Soul Astry, a two part drama by the American Co., based on Kipling's poem, "The Black Sheep," will be shown at the Unique Wednesday and Thursday in conjunction with chapter seventeen of "Our Mutual Girl," which shows Margaret on a visit to her country home, and the Keystone educational comedy, "Our Largest Birds."

To Mr. Nat Farnum, the comedian that has no trouble whatever in creating real laughter, the Unique says, "Thanks." He knows what for.

Wiken and Behan, two talented boys, with an act that stands alone for novelty, will be the feature attraction at the Lyric the latter part of next week.

A Domlino management production of the business world, that the Unique promises to be the best story of its kind ever presented at the cosy house entitled "Thieves," will be featured there next Friday and Saturday. With this will be the American Western playlet "Sheltering an Ingrate," and a Keystone combination of fun and education, "The Acres of Alfalfa."

The second chapter of The Million Dollar Mystery will appear in the Standard on Monday and be shown at the Unique the same afternoon and evening. It will also be repeated on Tuesday. The second edition contains many startling scenes and should not be missed.

The Moran Bros. and Lucille Tilton are winning new laurels for the Lyric. Both acts are very pleasing and will be seen for the last time tonight.

WILL SHOW MOTION PICTURES IN RAILROAD CARS.

A new idea in the exhibition of motion pictures has come to light in Springfield, Ill., in the incorporation of the Jones Brothers Railroad Moving Picture Shows. The company is capitalized at $2,000, and is to own, operate and control railroad cars for the purpose of exhibiting motion pictures therein. The incorporators are Edward B. Jones, Anna M. Jones and Ralph C. Jones.

Edward B. Jones, who heads the new company, has secured a copyright on his idea and proposes to offer the latest novelty in the exhibiting of motion pictures.

The first car of the new company will start out within six weeks, and it is proposed to exhibit in all the smaller communities, particularly those wherein there are no regular picture theatres.

LUCILLE TILTON
Man or Woman, which?

Lucille Tilton, the famous St. Petersburg collector, a five and one half foot stamper, this staff is made of a peculiar wood very much like ebony, but which reflects a blue color when it is held up to the light. Originally the walking staff was worn at the Russian court. It is said to have been the invention of a royal princess who used it to disguise her lameness, consequent from an ankle deformity. It is now seen at the famous spas of Europe.

Miss Snow explains the staff, now owned by her, and which she carries in "The Million Dollar Mystery," is more than fifty years old. A peculiar design, half heroic, half religious, is engraved on the gold handle. According to Col. Radanovich, the staff was discovered and he purloins the handle upon the gold handle has been mutilated, so that the name to the ruined house shall ever be a secret.

THE OLDEST MAN LIVING.
If asked about his corns would say they didn't bother him because he always used Putnam's Corn Extractor. For ten years he has used Putnam's, and the favorite because painless and sure. Try only "Putnam's," 25c. at all dealers.

"FLYING A" STAR IN MANY ROLES

Winifred Greenwood had varied career before she became Moving Picture Actress.

Winifred Greenwood, leading lady of the American films, had a long and successful career on the speaking stage before she appeared before the motion picture camera. She began in vaudeville, played in light comedy, musical comedy, melodrama, tragedy and then headed stock companies for several seasons. During this time she appeared in nearly 300 different roles.

From a part in "Babes in Toyland" to starring in "Camille" and "Sapho" was a long jump, but Miss Greenwood's versatility and her willingness to work and study enabled her to make it successfully. As a child she had a singing voice with possibilities and this led her to the stage, where she sang and danced before audiences all over the country.

Miss Greenwood is of French descent and is a student of the French language. She plays the mandolin and piano and also has literary ambitions, one of her poems having been recently published in a leading magazine.

DILLON JUDGES COSTUMES.

Eddie Dillon, the popular director of the Komic Company at the Reliance and Majestic Hollywood studios, had a most interesting experience when he was pressed into service as one of the three judges to pick out the prettiest costume at the bathing girls' parade held along the boardwalk at Ocean Park. More than 20 young women, attired in the most bewitching of bathing costumes, were entered in the parade. Dillon was one of the three men who acted as judges and awarded the prizes for the prettiest costumes. He admitted that he never had such a hard task in his life as picking out the winning costume. Two hours were consumed in deciding the winners.

THANHOUSER SERIAL A HIT IN CAPITAL

(The Motion Picture News.)
Washington, D. C., July 16.—"The Million Dollar Mystery" is making a big hit in Washington. The story is running in the "Times," and so great was the demand for the initial installments that the papers were exhausted long before the demand for copies could be supplied.

In order to satisfy the motion picture fans, the "Times" generously printed thousands of copies of the first two installments, which were given free to those applying at the office of the paper or at any news-stand. This was done to give the Washington public as much chance as possible to win that $10,000 prize.

Gardner Mack, the motion picture editor of the "Times," is adding stimulation and encouragement in his editorials. It was only a few weeks ago that some of the Thanhouser players were in Washington taking some scenes of "The Million Dollar Mystery." The picture and the prize have certainly caught the fans of Washington.

Buying Out of Season

MANY buyers of every class of merchandise come to decisions with respect to their plans and purchases during the summer months.

Aware of their needs they are responsive to influences, appeals and opportunities months in advance of the season of their necessities.

An advertiser who withdraws his messages to the buyers of his wares during the summer months chills buying ardor and postpones and endangers the gathering of the fruit of his manufacturing labor.

The buyer's resistance strengthens, and the buying impulse subsides, by the withdrawal or weakening of the pressure of advertising. The restoration of adequate pressure later on is accomplished at a cost which represents no saving in advertising bills, and the chances are that many sales have been hopelessly lost in the meantime.

The buying impulse which expresses itself in pre-season buying is capable of stimulation, and it is good business on the part of advertisers to maintain during the summer months their customary newspaper announcements.

You can obtain helpful advice on advertising free of cost and without obligation by consulting the Advertising Department of The Standard.

AN EMPIRE READY.

Every hour adds to the darkness of the European situation. Only a miracle can prevent a struggle so terrible in its consequences as to cause the whole world to gasp at the thought. Even in Britain the hopes for peace are reduced to a negligible minimum. From Land's End to John O'Groats all Britain seethes and boils with preparation for Armageddon. Every nation in Europe is an armed camp. Armies, cherishing resentment and hatred are massed almost within striking distance of each other. Creeping through the North Sea, fleets of Britain and Germany await the word to clear decks for action. The quiet, remorseless machinery of the various war offices are ready for the spark which will start the wheels, the stopping of which none can see. St. Petersburg, Paris, Berlin, Vienna and night, assuring for peace but unafraid of war. Assurances of assistance come from all over the Empire. Canada offers a contingent of her best and bravest. New Zealand and Australia are represented on the Empire's fighting line. And the world waits.

Out of the murk of yesterday came another evidence of the singleness of purpose with which all Britains will unite in face of danger. The Ulster covenants, a few days ago ready and willing to face British troops in defence of a cause they thought just, are now as willing to join with those troops in action against a common foe. It is a time for the burying of local jealousies and the smoothing of internal differences. Britain will answer the war drums of the world united and strong. It is a lesson for humanity.

The next twenty-four hours are likely to see the most important developments in the history of the world. The Sabbath sun will rise on a world prepared and may set on a world in blood. If, and the wish is almost impossible of fulfillment, the laborers for peace can still crown their efforts with success, the Sabbath bells will have a new and doubly blessed meaning. If the worst comes then it will bring renewed determination that the flag of Empire shall never suffer dishonor while a son of Empire lives. And so be it. Anxious for peace but willing for war if war comes. The Empire waits. And the Empire is ready.

"THE LIBERAL PULSE."

Says the Times: "There is a quickened beat of the pulse of the Liberal party in New Brunswick because of the promised visit of the revered chief, Sir Wilfrid Laurier."
If the respectable and patriotic members of the party of Laurier, at this juncture in the world's affairs, can look with enthusiasm, or even with equanimity, upon the prospect of a visit from their "revered chieftain," either they have poor memories or an inaccurate sense of the beat of the public pulse.

Those Canadian Liberals who believe in the integrity of the Empire cannot so soon have forgotten that this is the same Laurier who, on the last occasion when Britain's pretense above threatened, passionately declared that "not a man nor a gun shall go to South Africa." Or, if they have forgotten that, they should certainly remember the more recent occasion when, addressing an audience of his Quebec friends, he used the same fiery eloquence to inveigh against the "highbrows of Downing Street," those same "highbrows" who, today, are facing a bitter and costly war against a powerful foe rather than allow the prestige of the Empire to suffer.

Even if that does not arouse their patriotic ire against the Liberal leader, who placed party advantage above Empire's weal, they have only to read the list of the warships sailing from England's shores to do battle for England's flag. In that list they will see, side by side with such honored names as the Lion, the Queen Mary, the Princess Royal and the Agamemnon, the name of the New Zealand, the contribution of our antipodean brothers to the cause of Empire. Let them read the list and then ask themselves: Why is Canada not represented upon that splendid fighting line? Up to the top and front of every mind will come the one name—Laurier, and in that name they will find the answer, the reason for Canada's shame.

Laurier it was who, through his aides on the floor of the House of Commons, fought every step of the proposal made by Premier Borden to send an acquiescent reply to Britain's appeal for aid. Laurier it was who, when he found he could not strangle the voice of the loyal Canadian people upon the floor of the representative branch of their parliament, invoked the help of the puppets in the Senate who owed their political life and position to him. Obediently they bowed to the crack of the party whip, shamelessly they contributed their share to the blot on the escutcheon of Canada. And they did it for what? For Laurier; for the man at whose coming the Times tells us the Liberal pulse will "quickened."

In this hour the Times disgraces its party. It discredits the men who, during the next few days, may be overcome by stress of feeling engendered by British successes on land or sea, and raise their voices in cheering undison to the flag that protects them, the flag that Laurier refused to aid, or to allow others to aid. Instead of the "quickened beat of the pulse of the Liberal party," the Times should tell its readers of the blush of shame which should mantle the Liberal cheeks at the thought that it was this same Laurier who, venal and disgruntled, blocked the way when Canada sought to pay their debt to Empire.

Bearing in mind these cold, solid facts, remembering at the same time the debt all Canadians owe to Empire, and the position of that Empire today, the Times' statement is fairly open to question. Will the Liberal pulse "quickened" at the approach of the man who betrayed the Empire for his fancied political advantage? If the Liberals of the present day, who have had no opportunity of resenting the insult to their patriotism at the hands of their "revered chieftain," are as loyal to their country as we believe them to be, with one voice will answer, no. Laurier will find poor political encouragement among the Loyalists of New Brunswick.

MR. GOULD ON THE STAND.

Mr. A. R. Gould has appeared before the Royal Commission investigating the Dual charges in connection with the Valley Railway. Those who saw him in the court room yesterday afternoon, or who read his testimony as published in The Standard this morning, will, doubtless, find it somewhat difficult to reconcile the calm conventional business man who replied without hesitation to the volley of questions propounded by Mr. Carvell, with the alleged hand-painted by the disreputable Telegraph or the hypocritical Times.

Not long ago the Pugsley-Carvell newspapers were denouncing the president of the St. John and Quebec Railway Company in all the moods and tenses. If they were to be believed he came into this fair province with the full intention of looting it and, perhaps, departing for his home in the fastnesses of Maine with every dollar in the provincial strong box and half the pictures in the Legislative Chamber. Even after that scolding patriot, Frank B. Carvell, assisted by Mr. Friday, and through the mouth of Mr. Dugal, made his serious charges and Mr. Gould was required to testify in the ensuing investigation, the witness of yesterday was a source of much trouble, again assuming that the Telegraph and Times are correct. He was almost as elusive as the Mr. Pugsley they support, and such was his faculty of appearing and disappearing that it was necessary for Mr. Carvell to summon to his aid his faithful Carleton County sleuths with instructions to capture Mr. Gould dead or alive. Debec Junction was the scene of the final struggle where the much-wanted witness was served by a stalwart of the law, and yesterday he appeared.

Strange to say he did not seem in the least afraid of the man who had so untrillingly worked for his capture. On the contrary he was a willing witness, answering questions without the slightest sign of perturbation. And what did he tell? He did not say he had paid money to Mr. Flemming, or to any other member of the Provincial Government; he did not verify the Telegraph or Times statements dealing with the difficulty Mr. Carvell found in capturing him; he did not quarrel when Mr. Carvell, with most impressive manner and in sepulchral tones asked if he had paid to Hon. J. K. Flemming sums of money from the funds intended for railway construction. Instead he answered, unhesitatingly and truthfully, "Not one dollar." Also, when Mr. Carvell again became dramatic and asked if the witness was willing to have the books of the Railway Company brought into court, Mr. Gould did not create the impression that he had anything to fear. On the contrary he volunteered the information that the Attorney General of the Province had asked him to use every effort to have the books produced and he was quite willing to comply with that request.

That does not look as if the Provincial Government or the Railway Company have anything to fear or hide. Rather does it add to the rapidly accumulating store of evidence that Mr. Carvell cannot make good; that his blatant grandstanding and professed concern for the "best people" of this Province are merely assumed.

On the 1st of August, 1854, in 1855, the Marquis de Denonville assumed office as Governor of Canada. One of his first acts was an invasion of the Seneca peninsula.

in the hope of creating political capital in favor of himself and the rapidly disintegrating party he represents. There should be no hurry to complete the enquiry, for every day it proceeds furnishes additional evidence of the abject failure of the Carvell bluff.

Diary of Events

HISTORIC DAYS IN CANADA

On the 1st of August, 1854, in 1855, the Marquis de Denonville assumed office as Governor of Canada. One of his first acts was an invasion of the Seneca peninsula.

"It was a military triumph, but the result was an instant combination of all the Iroquois nations in a swift and savage onslaught upon New France. In small detachments they harried the shadowy revenue upon the settlers and settlements and smoking ruins, or the remains of tortured victims, stamped keen memories of pain over a wide area of the colony. So swift and sure was the vengeance of the Indians, so unable was he to adequately meet it, that Denonville fled in the night. Negotiations were commenced but the peace was killed by one of the most clever and unscrupulous incidents in the annals of this savage warfare. Kondiarok, or "The Rat," was a chief of the small tribe of Hurons at distant Nichillackinac which had helped Denonville in his Seneca ravages. It was no peace was possible unless his tribal remnant were given up to Iroquois vengeance through the removal of French protection.

With an instrument of his invention, a Chicago man can measure one five-millionth of an inch, one fifth of the distance revealed by a theoretically perfect microscope.

THE PASSING DAY

EMANCIPATION DAY
Negroes of Jamaica, Canada and other British West Indian islands, Canada and other British colonies will celebrate today the eightieth anniversary of their emancipation. The 1st of August, 1834, was the day on which the slaves in the British colonies were assigned, not to their actual freedom, but to a so-called apprenticeship which was to precede and prepare for freedom. Brougham brought forward a measure to this great end in 1830; and Powell Buxton another in 1832; but no act was passed until the 1st of August, 1833. LAMMAS DAY

It was Lammas Day, one of the four great pagan festivals of Britain. Because in Scotland it is a quarter-day and in England a half-quarter-day, on that day the matters pertaining to property looked after, and because it is the occasion of two distinct festivals, the day has become a sort of a holiday since become obscured in the popular mind, and at the present has little, if any, significance to the average man. During the festivities it was the custom in England to give thanks for the harvest, especially the wheat, and to make an offering of "first fruits" in the form of a loaf of bread. This ceremony was known in middle English as Lammasse, "loaf-mass," and was a continuation of a similar one from pagan times.

ALERTS WIN AGAIN

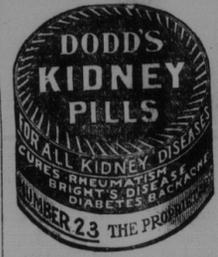

Last evening the Alerts won the second game in the series from the Roses by a score of five to three. Lawlor hurled for the Alerts and pitched a good game throughout. The Roses are going to strengthen their team and Eddie Ramsey will be one of those added to their line-up. Jim Neil acted as umpire.

DEVOTION OF PORTUINCULA

The annual devotion of the Portuincula is being observed today by Catholics all over the world. The devotion originated among the Franciscan fathers through an ecclesiastically historical incident and which has been richly indulged by sovereign pontiffs.

James Cruze—who has starred in many big Thanhouser productions, and now is playing "Jim Norton," the reporter, in "The Million Dollar Mystery"—made a humble beginning in the theatrical profession. He was a member of Billy Bank's troupe in a medicine show which, seventeen years ago, travelled up and down the Pacific coast, with headquarters in San Francisco. From this he graduated into the wagon show business, playing twopenny off the railroad in Idaho and Montana, and then became leading man in some of the most successful stock companies in the country. When motion pictures came into their own, Mr. Cruze put his versatility and powers of mimicry to good purpose before the camera. Scarcely any actor on the screen has appeared in a greater range of character.—The Historian.

attained this record in four short years.

In this time Goodyear tires have won men in a way approached by no other motorcycle tire.

Some Record Facts
In this time Goodyear Automobile Tires have also won and held every world record for speed and durability.

Yet they are not
"stunt" tires. The one thought in their making is super-service under all conditions of use
and travel.

All this means that in these motorcycle tires are wrought the same

master-qualities by which Goodyear Automobile Tires have won the world in their field.

Men, now meter their tire mileage. And since the adoption of this method, Goodyear leadership has been all the more pronounced.

Cost No More
And Goodyear Motor-cycle Tires cost no more than tires that do not have their Goodyear advantages. Then why consider less tires when Goodyear costs no more?

Goodyears are made with a thick, anti-slat tread—made to sustain their world reputation—made to maintain their world leadership.

They are made in Canada—at our Bowmanville, Ont., factory by the same master methods that govern the making of Goodyear
Automobile
Tires. There is a

your town. Ask him

Motor-cycle Tires.

CARVELL'S DESPICABLE TACTICS SCORED BY THE FLEMMING COUNSEL

"You Are Fighting For Your Miserable Political Life
And You Know It" Says Mr. Teed, and Carvell
Has No Answer—Nasty Insinuations By Prosecution
Leader Brought to Abrupt Halt By Commission.

Morning Session.

A. R. Gould was the first witness examined at the morning session of the Dugal enquiry. He testified that St. John and Quebec Railway Co.
had been organized under the New Brunswick act. Mr. Gould had written to Lisman & Co. in regard to the books of the railway company. He had taken no other steps to secure the books.

Mr. Carvell here asked that the commission instruct the witness to bring the books and that the necessary steps be taken to see that he did. Mr. Gould thought that the books would have been here. He understood that Mr. Lisman was in London and perhaps the staff of his office did not wish to take action until his return.

Mr. Fowler thought that the necessity of producing the books should be shown. Every dollar of public money had been accounted for. The individual had rights and he should not be called upon to produce his books to satisfy the curiosity of every scandal monger. Judge Mc-Keown said he preferred to allow the matter to stand for a time. He would be the consequence of Mr.
Guthrie's efforts.

Mr. Gould then gave details of the organization and formation of the railway company. He and Mr. Lisman had made arrangements with the Prudential Trust Co. in reference to the formation of the arrangement approved of the arrangement afterward.

The authorized capital of the railway company was $2,000,000. The construction company later agreed to give the government the majority of the bonds in return for an agreement allowing them ten per cent. of the cost of the work. Witness did not own stock, although the books showed that he owned $99,000. The stock had been transferred to others. It had been divided between Ross Thompson, C. A. Barnard, H. E. Macdonald and L. E. Gould.

Several questions by Mr. Carvell were disallowed by the commission.
Witness thought the progress estimates for July were about $55,000 on one account, and $20,000 on another.
The hearing was then adjourned until afternoon.

Afternoon Session.

Mr. Gould was continued at the afternoon session. He said the books of the railway company had not yet arrived from New York. Personally he was quite willing to have them produced in court and the present court and the present of the company, would view New York for them.
He had discussed the matter with the Attorney General and he believed that he would bring them to court.

Mr. Carvell said this was satisfactory to him. He wanted all cash books, ledgers, journals, cheque books,
cheque stub books and cancelled cheques.

Mr. Gould promised to use his best efforts to have the books produced.
Mr. Carvell said he also wanted all other books of account, including books and all the company's correspondence.

Mr. Guthrie said he thought this was going to bring the company's correspondence to court.
Mr. Carvell still said he wanted the correspondence but the commission declined to order it. He said he would then send a telegram for the books
asked for.

Mr. Guthrie protested against the holding of the construction company's books in court. The business of the company was being held up while the
books were here.

Mr. Carvell said the books were important to hold in court.
The commission said they would make a finding as to the matter.

Mr. Teed then asked that the commission should stand until Tuesday at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Fowler said it would suit him better if the commission could adjourn for two weeks.

Mr. Guthrie said he had a case on Tuesday and would like to have that day to himself. It was necessary to earn a honest dollar occasionally and he would like to have that day. He then sent a telegram for the books
asked for.

Mr. Guthrie protested against the holding of the construction company's books in court. The business of the company was being held up while the
books were here.

Mr. Carvell said the books were important to hold in court.
The commission said they would
make a finding as to the matter.

turned and later used for the purpose intended what difference does it make?
Mr. Carvell: "I think it makes a difference."
Judge Wells: "Well, not to this inquiry, it may make a difference in something else but not here. The only way you can prove diversion is by impounding the vouchers for work done, and for money gone into the road."

A Ranting Demagogue.

Mr. Carvell then made a long speech in rehearsal of the events leading up to the guarantee of bonds for the railway company and the borrowing from the Prudential Trust Company. He said that during the first six weeks after they had arranged for the loan from the Prudential they had drawn out $200,000 and he wanted to find out if part of that $200,000 had not gone into the hands of Mr. Flemming. That was what the people of New Brunswick desired to know.

Mr. Teed: "Now you are talking like some ranting demagogue addressing a mob instead of a senior counsel speaking to a court."
Mr. Fowler: "That sort of business might go in River du Chute but not here."

Mr. Guthrie: "Mere school house bluster."
Mr. Carvell continued to rant and he had a right to follow the money and Mr. Teed again read the statute under which the commission was appointed and which defined their duties.

Mr. Teed contended that monies other than from progress estimates, should not be recognized by the commission, what the construction company did with the $350,000, other than used in construction was entirely their own business and not within the jurisdiction of the commission.

Mr. Stevens of the Dugal counsel here entered a prolonged wall about bribery and corruption in which no one took any stock. He wound up with a fervent appeal to have the evidence submitted as necessary to the Dugal case.

The commissioners having finished the conference Mr. McKewen, announced that the enquiry was limited to the railroad funds.
Mr. Carvell to witness: "Were the monies in the hands of the company?"
Mr. Teed: "I object."
Mr. Carvell: "Was the money yours or owned by some one else?"
Mr. Teed to witness: "Don't answer,
I object."
Mr. Carvell: "Did Mr. Flemming prior to June 29th, 1912, ask you for money?"
Mr. Teed: "That question is objected to."
The objection was sustained.

Mr. Guthrie: "Did you not tell another member of the government that you gave Flemming enough money to keep him from having any natural life."
Mr. Teed objected.

Carvell Thoroughly Trounced.

Mr. Carvell here gave a childish display of temper, yelling at the top of his lungs and pointing the secretary's desk he presented an amusing sight,
as he shouted: "You dare't let him
answer."
Mr. Teed, turning to the commissioners, asked if it was impossible for him to carry on his duties without this man yelling in his ear.

Mr. Teed to Carvell: "Stop, stop, you are bawling like a wild cat. You know the question is not right."
Mr. McKewen: "The enquiry is limited."
Mr. Guthrie: "Look out Carvell you will hurt that desk." Mr. Carvell had been thumping away like a mechanical doll.

Mr. Teed, losing patience with Car-vell's walls and weeping, turning to the Carleton County blusterer said:
"You are fighting for your miserable political life and you know it." (Carvell realizing the truth of this statement did not have anything to say, but ignoring the ruff of the commissioners, turned to the witness and said:

"Didn't you tell Morrissey that the reason Lisman wouldn't buy the second mortgage bonds was because there was too much grafting?"
Mr. Teed objected.
Judge Wells: "Look here, Carvell,
I don't know anything about Lisman, and don't care, what we are here for
is to find the cost of the road and that is all."
Carvell put up another wall which served to amuse the audience.

Mr. Carvell: "Did you ever pay Mr.
Flemming out of the funds borrowed by you or your associates from the Prudential Trust Company?"
Mr. Teed: "Don't answer that."
To the court, "This question is improper. It was his own money and Mr. Carvell has no right to ask regarding it."
The commission decided with Mr.
Teed and the question was ruled out.
Mr. Carvell: "Did you pay Mr.
Flemming any money during the months of April, May, June or July, 1912?"
Mr. Teed objected again.

Chairman McKewen: "Do you mean out of railway funds or generally speaking?"
Mr. Carvell: "Generally speaking."
Chairman McKewen: "You must confine yourself to railway funds."
Mr. Carvell: "We know no money reached the company from the government on progress estimates up to October, 1912. We know they borrowed certain money from the Prudential
Trust Company to the extent of $250, 000 and paid back $207,000 of it. This money was by agreement and we have a right to follow the money as being and to be paid out of railway funds."
Mr. Teed: "Not at all. This is getting back to the old question. Suppose for sake of argument you put the
money into the railway work and later paid it back, would not that close the transaction?"
Mr. Carvell: "Well, assuming that
Mr. Carvell's hands and later paid
it back out of progress estimates."
Judge Wells Against Carvell.

Judge Wells: "Do you mean to say
that if $100,000 was taken out for any account and then returned that would be diversion?"
Mr. Carvell: "Yes."
Judge Wells: "Well, I do not."
Judge Wells: "Well, I do."
Judge Wells: "If the money was returned back to the old question. Suppose

for sake of argument you put the
money into the railway work and later
paid it back, would not that close the transaction?"
Mr. Carvell: "Well, assuming that
Mr. Carvell's hands and later paid
it back out of progress estimates."
Judge Wells Against Carvell.

Judge Wells: "Do you mean to say
that if $100,000 was taken out for
any account and then returned that
would be diversion?"
Mr. Carvell: "Yes."
Judge Wells: "Well, I do not."
Judge Wells: "Well, I do."
Judge Wells: "If the money was returned back to the old question. Suppose

for sake of argument you put the
money into the railway work and later

Judge Wells Against Carvell.

CONFERENCES BETWEEN RUSSIA AND AUSTRIA-HUNGARY RESUMED

London, July 31—It was officially announced here today that "conversations" have been resumed between the Russian and Austro-Hungarian governments.

These conversations are being carried on in St. Petersburg and Vienna simultaneously, and the fact aroused another flicker of hope in London that the opportunity for mutual explanation may form a starting point toward an improvement in the situation.
A report stating that Prince Henry of Prussia had gone to St. Petersburg was regarded as a strongly favorable sign, as Emperor William's brother is believed to have more influence over the emperor of Russia than any one else.

Nish, July 31—A statement issued by the war office today said that the Austrians failed in an effort to force the pass which commands the approach to the Moravia Valley.
Fighting of the most desperate nature continued today with casualties on both sides, the statement said.

CALLAGHAN'S BIG SQUADRON HAS BLOCKED HARBORS OF KIEL AND WILHELMSHAVEN

British Cabinet in Almost Continuous Session--Troops Patrol All Portions of the Coast--Home Rule Dispute is Completely Buried--All Preparatory Defense Measures Have Been Completed.

London, July 31.—It is reported upon excellent authority that the two divisions of the British fleet headed for the North Sea, under Admiral Callaghan, whose flagship is the Iron Duke, have bottled up both the German squadrons at Wilhelmshaven and Kiel, and that the German fleets would be unable to move in the face of the overwhelming superiority of the British naval power, should war be declared.

King George and Premier Asquith held an hour's conference at Buckingham Palace late this afternoon. From the palace the premier hurried to the House of Commons. The premier later announced in Parliament that he would answer no questions until Monday.

Comprehensive measures for defence were completed by the government this afternoon. Troops are now patrolling all exposed portions of the British coast.

Grain is rising rapidly in price. Chartering of vessels has practically ceased. The freight markets are paralyzed.

Londonderry, July 31.—The customs department here was today ordered to cease searching vessels for arms and inspecting luggage of passengers for possible smuggling of arms and ammunition.

This means that the home rule fight has been completely buried in the desire for all British subjects to present a united front in the face of the international crisis, and that the Irish embargo has been raised.

Paris, July 31.—Telephonic communication with Germany was cut off at four o'clock this afternoon.

London, July 31.—The British Government this evening took a step regarded as preparatory to war by forbidding the sending of code despatches to the continent. All members of the cabinet have been notified not to leave London even for the week-end. An extraordinary meeting of the cabinet will be held shortly.

The Admiralty tonight ordered a defense boom fitted across the river Medway to protect Sheerness harbor.

BERLIN BELIEVES SITUATION HAS BECOME WORSE IN PAST 24 HOURS

Berlin, July 31.—The morning passed without the heavy cloud over the European horizon breaking, and there was no relief to the almost despairing uncertainty existing in the German capital, where the excitement continued to increase.

It had been generally expected that today would bring the decision for peace or war, and when a decree was promulgated proclaiming martial law and consequent military government all began to think that armed conflict could be the only outcome. Government officials, however, refrained from making any definite declaration saying they preferred to wait till all the resources of diplomacy had been exhausted. It was well understood that the issue of an order for the mobilization of the German forces would be tantamount to a declaration of war and it was decided to postpone this action until the last possible moment in which there was a ray of hope for peace. It was admitted that the situation had become worse during the last twenty-four hours, but the fact that both Germany and France issued official denials of their intention to mobilize was regarded as a favorable sign that everything possible was being done to prevent clash. It was evident everywhere today that the military authorities were quietly preparing for the speedy moving of troops in case the order for mobilization should be given.

At many of the banks in Berlin this morning army officers were seen making financial preparations for their separation from their families, while many women were there to deposit their valuables in the safety vaults.

Berlin, July 31.—A Vienna despatch to the Tagesschau says that Russia has sent a warning in the nature of an ultimatum that the czar will not tolerate territorial acquisition by Austria-Hungary. Information as to Austria's attitude in case of victories in Serbia is demanded.

The Tagesschau despatch adds that it is hoped Austria's reply will be satisfactory and obviate the necessity of German mobilization.

Diplomatic Relations Broken

Berlin, July 31.—The Tagesschau states that diplomatic relations between Austria and Russia have been broken off.

HAVE SITUATION WELL IN HAND

Syndicate formed to look after Montreal market and can take care of about 20 Millions of Securities.

(F. B. McCURDY & CO.)

Montreal, July 31.—The past week was history in stock exchange circles in Canada and as a result of developments in Europe the Montreal exchange was only open one day and a half, this being Monday and half of Tuesday. The action in closing the exchange was due entirely to European complications, and the belief apparently existed in London that the rapid decline in C. P. R. indicated some further trouble in Canada. It took some time for Canadian banks, with headquarters in London to convince London that there was no trouble at all in Canada but that, of course, Canada could not be expected to be in a position to take back millions of dollars of stock and bonds at short notice but was quite willing to go along paying the interest on them. Besides with European exchanges closed Montreal was used as a dumping ground for securities, such as Brazilian and other such securities and it was considered wise to close Montreal exchange. As far as the general situation is concerned it has been stated by principal banking interests that the situation was well in hand unless unforeseen difficulties arose and in addition it was understood that a strong syndicate had been formed during the past few days which will be in a position to take care, if necessary, of $20,000,000 of securities on the exchange. In the interval also brokers have taken advantage of the opportunity afforded them to arrange with the clients to have their accounts placed in strong London, July 31.—While there has been excitement, such as might have been witnessed in other cities during a financial crisis of the dimensions of which London is a golfer, there has been no panic in the city today. The action in closing the Gurney bank failure for $55,000,000 in 1866, when the government found it necessary to suspend the Bank Act so that the Bank of England would not be compelled to pay gold for its notes. During the Indian mutiny in 1857, the Bank Act also was suspended, and the rate rose to ten per cent.

The main entrance to the Bank of England was besieged by holders of notes waiting to have them changed into gold, and in the afternoon the crowd became so great that the gold-leafed officials formed the people into lines in the big quadrangle.

Most of them were messengers and it is generally admitted that the demands for marins have been particularly large considering the extent the declines have gone. In the meantime the Canadian houses which have been doing a large amount of business in London have an opportunity of discussing the situation further with London representatives and shown them that the liquidation of character was entirely to selling from European centres and that it had little or nothing to do with the showing the company was making in its own business. It is also stated that there are a number of orders for stock under the selling market prices and could take care of a good deal of the selling from the foreign exchanges. When the exchange will be opened will be considered each day but not until some action has been taken in London or Wall Street, especially Wall Street. It is stated that Laurentide Pulp and Paper Company during the last couple of days has received a number of orders from regular customers calling for increased deliveries of news print to be made immediately. The shipments are all to American points and the cause of the sudden demand is the large number of extras being issued by principal American papers. All Canadian paper companies are likely to benefit by increased demand for news print.

U.S. GOVERNMENT READY TO SEND OUT BILLION CURRENCY IF NEEDED

Private advices were received yesterday by F. B. McCurdy & Co. as follows:

New York, July 31.—The Bank of England rate advanced, to eight per cent. in one jump. This ought to set as a damper on the warlike feeling, as they cannot fight without money.

London, July 31.—It is said in Brussels that there is a run on the National Bank for silver, against notes in progress. In Rome and Milan gold is unobtainable.

Brussels, July 31.—Ten thousand people besieged the National Bank today to withdraw deposits, but the panic subsided towards noon.

McDougall & Cowans received private advices yesterday from the following sources:

New York, July 31.—Our Chicago brokers advise us that they will not accept any new business in wheat, except on a cash margin basis of ten cents per bushel, and on oats and corn of five cents a bushel. We think their course, under the circumstances, is wise.

The governors of the New York exchange deserve the greatest credit for their course in closing the exchange. They have averted a most disastrous panic.

London, July 31.—A run on the Bank of England has been started by note holders.

The following private telegrams were received by J. M. Robinson & Sons yesterday:

Berlin, July 31.—Food prices everywhere have risen seventy-five per cent. during the last twelve hours.

Washington, July 31.—Secretary McAdoo announced today that the government stands ready to send out a billion dollars in currency, if that amount is needed to meet demands of a European war.

LONG ESTABLISHED FIN. HOUSE FAILS

New York, July 31.—The suspension of H. S. P. Pell and Company, cotton, coffee and stock brokers, was announced on the floor of the cotton exchange today. The market was unaffected by the announcement. The firm was one of the largest doing business on the cotton exchange.

New York, July 31.—Flower and Company, members of the New York Stock Exchange, assigned today. The firm is one of the oldest doing business on the exchange.

DISCUSS THE WAR SITUATION AT OTTAWA TODAY

PREMIER BORDEN BACK TO CAPITAL THIS MORNING—CABINET WILL MEET TO TALK OVER PLANS IN EVENT OF CALL COMING FOR ASSISTANCE.

Canada will be Guarded by Advice from Motherland and not Definitely known whether Organized Troops or Volunteer Regiments will be Sent to Empire's Aid.

Special to The Standard.
Ottawa, July 31.—With all the great powers apparently sliding by an uncontrollable fate into the fiercest and most terrific conflict that Europe has ever witnessed there is the most tense interest here in the hourly developments.
The announcement of actual war on the part of Russia and Germany is awaited as the signal of Britain's participation also since this would mean the taking of immediate steps here for the mobilization of a contingent to leave Canada's shores the moment the word comes from the Imperial government. The Prime Minister, Sir Robert Borden, will be back here from Muskoka tomorrow morning and Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes will also be here. A cabinet meeting has been called for eleven o'clock in the morning and the war situation as it has then developed will be discussed.

While Canada will doubtless be guided by advice from the British authorities, there is no doubt that the support from Canada will be enthusiastically given.
There has been no decision yet of course whether any troops that may be sent will be organized, or volunteer regiments, or whether some of the present militia regiments will be ordered out as the Governor General has power to do at the same time calling for an immediate session of parliament.

While some are disposed to consider the delay in the actual outbreak of war between Russia, Germany and the other powers, a cause of hope, this is looked upon in military circles as only a matter of sparring for time on the part of Austria and Germany. It is agreed that delay is a great advantage to Germany, which when it strikes will strike very suddenly. The question of preventing the Austrians and Germans in Canada from going home to fight for their countries has not been discussed here officially, but it may be.

Not all of the Austrians and Germans will go back, as some feel their obligations here too strong, but there will probably be over ten thousand returning. Many go down through the United States. Nothing could be done to prevent them going of course until Britain is at war. Under such conditions any country has the right to hold the citizens of a hostile nation.

WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY REMEDY

"Fruit-a-lives" Have Proved Their Value in Thousands of Cases

WONDERFUL RECORD OF A WONDERFUL CURE

Only Remedy that Acts on all Three of the Organs Responsible for the Formation of Uric Acid in the Blood

Many people do not realize that the Skin is one of the three great eliminators of waste matter from the body. As a matter of fact the Skin rids the system of more Urea (or waste matter) than the Kidneys. When there is Kidney Trouble, Pain in the Back and Acid Urine, it may not be the fault of the kidneys at all, but be due to faulty Skin Action, or Constipation of the bowels.

"Fruit-a-lives" cures weak, sore, aching Kidneys, not only because it strengthens these organs but also because "Fruit-a-lives" opens the bowels, sweetens the stomach and stimulates the action of the skin.

"Fruit-a-lives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

NOTES AND NEWS OF THE WAR

Guns Mounted on Empress of Asia.
Hong Kong, July 31.—Most active preparations are going on here in view of eventualities. The Canadian Pacific steamer Empress of Asia has been chartered by the government and guns are being mounted on board. At the dockyards work is proceeding night and day, and double guards have been placed on duty. All the troops have been confined to barracks and leave has been stopped.
The British battleship Triumph today took on her war stores and is prepared for action.
All the boundaries of the colony are guarded by outposts.

Paris, July 31.—The cost of a general war in Europe, involving seven of the mighty powers, would be $19,765,625,000 a year, according to Dr. Charles Richart, statistician of the University of Paris. If such a war comes

MOBILIZATION OF GERMANY IS ABOUT COMPLETED

Nancy, France, July 31.—German troops are making extensive covering movements and have approached to within a mile of the French border. Military officials are preventing inhabitants crossing from Germany to France.

London, July 31.—An evening news despatch from Berlin says: "It is asserted that German mobilization has not taken place. It is an open secret, however, that mobilization is everything but accomplished. The bill posters were ordered to be in readiness for work at 3 a. m., but were then told they would not be needed until later. Germans are burning with anxiety for assurances that England will remain neutral."

Peking, July 31.—Germany has asked Japan to watch her interests in China in case of a European war.

New York, July 31.—The Cunard Liner Lusitania arrived today bringing a report that the German cruiser Dresden, recently in Mexican waters, was lying off New York harbor just outside the three mile limit. This caused a rumor that the Dresden was lying in wait to capture vessels leaving port if war is declared in Europe.

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 31.—The advance troops of the Serbian army have taken up a defensive position at Adaia, south of Belgrade. The main army has moved to Usis.

Paris, July 31.—The government tonight commanded all French steamers for naval service.

London, July 31.—A Central News despatch reports that Russian troops have blown up the frontier bridge on the Warsaw Vienna Railway.

Odesa, July 31.—The Russian Government today ordered the seizure of all fuel supplies, both coal and oil at ports on the Baltic and Black Seas. All naval reserves have been called up.

London, July 31.—King George has cancelled his visit to Cowes, where he had planned to go.

Paris, July 31.—The French Minister of Marine has requisitioned the steamers La Province of the French Trans-Atlantic line for service of republic. The liner will be armed at once.

Athens, July 31.—Rapid concentration of Bulgarian troops is reported on the Stroitiza frontier. Bulgaria's attitude renders the situation most dangerous and Greece will be unable to remain passive.

London, July 31.—A Vienna despatch states that seven members of a Russian patrol were killed and a score injured today in a premature explosion of dynamite at Myslowitz. According to the report the soldiers had been detailed to blow up the bridge of the Warsaw-Vienna road at that point. What caused the explosion is not known. The roadbed was destroyed but the bridge was not seriously damaged.

and lasts at least five years as the diplomats are certain it will do, the cost of the war, without indemnity claims, would reach the amazing total of $98,773,250,000.

These figures are based on the cost of a general war involving only Germany, England, France, Russia, Italy, Austria, Serbia and Romania. A war of this kind, it is feared, would not end in involving only the eight countries named, but would draw every European nation large and small into the conflict, and increase the war cost far beyond the sum estimated.

Berlin, July 31.—The German Foreign office gave assurances this morning that no mobilization order would be issued in Germany today. Officials admitted, however, that the situation had not improved, but had become rather aggravated since the issue of the Russian mobilization order.

Fear that in case of mobilization the German railroad system would be blocked for ordinary traffic caused a number of municipalities to take steps to increase the stock of grain in the districts within their jurisdiction. The Berlin City Council commissioned a number of firms to purchase and bring in supplies of grain and flour and many of the cities near the frontiers followed suit.

Russians Blow Up Bridge.

Berlin July 31.—A series of explosions were heard on the Russian side of the Austro-Russian frontier at Myslowitz early today and the Czar's troops are reported to have blown up a big bridge, messages received here declare.
The bridge reported to be blown up is an important one on the Vienna-Warsaw railroad.

Favor Serbia.

Barcelona, Spain, July 31.—Street manifestations in favor of Serbia were dispersed by the police.

Servians Repeated.

Vienna, July 31.—Serbian frontier guards today invaded Austrian territory near Klotowitz, Bosnia, but were defeated with a loss of one officer and twenty-two men.

London, July 31.—The House of Commons met at noon to clear up the belated business before it and the king gave his assent to the bills already passed, including the finance bill, so that should the necessity arise, the members of the house will be free to deal with any proposals or extraordinary measures, financial or otherwise.

London, July 31.—Premier Asquith called a meeting of the cabinet in Downing street today. First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill carried a large package of documents to the session. These were supposed to relate to the war measures taken by the naval chief during the last twenty-four hours. The Premier, who is also Minister of War, conferred with several attaches of the war office before the cabinet meeting began.

Dutch Army to Mobilize.

The Hague, July 31.—Queen Wilhelmina of Holland this afternoon issued an urgent decree ordering the general mobilization of the Dutch army.

THE ADVENTURES OF KATHLYN

By HAROLD MAC GRATH.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Kathlyn Mare, believing her father, Col. Mare, in peril, has summoned her home in California to go to him in Allahah. Umballah pretender to the throne of that principality, has imprisoned the colonel, named by the late king as his heir, because he fears the American may insist on his royal rights. Upon her arrival in Allahah, Kathlyn is informed by Umballah that her father, being dead, she is to be queen, and must marry him forthwith. Because of her refusal she is sentenced to undergo two ordeals with wild beasts.

John Bruce, an American and fellow passenger on the boat which brought Kathlyn to Allahah, saves her life. The elephant which carries her from the scene of her trials becomes frightened and runs away, separating her from Bruce and the rest of the party.

After a ride filled with peril she takes refuge in a ruined temple. The holy men and villagers, believing her to be an ancient priestess, raise from the tomb, allow her to remain as the guardian of the sacred fire. But Kathlyn's haven is also the abode of a lion, and she is forced to flee from it, with the savage beast in pursuit. She escapes and finds a retreat in the jungle, only to fall into the hands of a band of slave traders, who bring her to Allahah to the public mart. She is sold to Umballah, who, finding her still unsubmitive, throws her into the dungeon with her father.

Bruce and his friends effect the release of Kathlyn and the colonel. Umballah's attempt to recapture them is unsuccessful, and the fugitives are given shelter in the palace of Bala Khan.

Supplied with camels and servants by that hospitable prince, the party endeavors to reach the coast, but are overpowered by a band of brigands, and the encounter results in the colonel being delivered to Umballah. Kathlyn and Bruce escape from their captors and return to Allahah, where Kathlyn learns that her father, while nominally king, is in reality a prisoner.

Kathlyn's resourcefulness and bravery are the means of rescuing him, and once more they steal away from Allahah, but return broken hearted when they learn that Winnie, Kathlyn's young sister, has come to India. Umballah makes her a prisoner. She is forced to enter the palace and in turn is crowned queen of Allahah.

One attempt to get Winnie out of the closely guarded palace almost succeeds, and Kathlyn and Winnie, their father, and Bruce find a hiding place in the home of their Indian friend, Ramabai, and his wife Pundita. The latter is the lawful queen of Allahah and public sentiment in her favor is growing. The people at last, weary of Umballah's misrule, rise against him, with the result that he and the colonel and Bruce fighting under him, Kathlyn has been left at home, but when tidings that the revolutionists have been defeated reach her she rushes out and assumes command of the scattered forces. Her presence inspires them with fresh courage and under leadership the tide is turned and the rebels are victorious. To escape from the arena lions which have become free and caused a panic, Kathlyn enters a deserted house and climbs to its roof. When she leans over the parapet to call for aid she is seen by Umballah, who is fleeing from the rebels. Mad for revenge, he sets fire to the house and Kathlyn's refuge is soon a mass of flames.

CHAPTER XXI
WHEN the flames of the scorching thunderbolt were only to fall back jarringly. They ran up and down the hall, striking with that inhuman terror of fire. They dared not descend in face of that lurid smoke which rose from that sparkling magic which they had feared since the beginning of time. Alas, Kathlyn could have descended now without fear of the beasts molesting her; but it was too late. Finally she threw down the trap and the smoke cleared a little, but the inferno below went on crackling merrily.

The houses on each side were single storied. She would break every bone in her body if she jumped. There were four cartridges in the revolver. She held it in her hand and studied it in a curiously detached manner. She could face wild beasts, men, steel, and lead; but fire, the most horrible of all tortures.

"Why hadn't she killed him as he leered up at her from the street?"
Four cartridges, three for help and one for herself if help came not. She raised her arm and fired three shots with intervals between that might suggest a call for aid. Then she moved to the farthest end of the parapet. Farthest from the smoke and the fire. Suddenly the roof shook and quivered as if an earthquake had disturbed the foundations. She understood. The lower staircase had toppled.

From the lions the denizens of this part of the bazaars had fled inside their houses; but the sight of the fire and its nearness drove them terrified into the street. They began taking out their valuables. The household gods beated, and children screamed and women shrieked.

But none of them could help the white goddess upon yonder domed roof. And why should they make the attempt? Did she not bear a charmed life? Was she not the reincarnation of some ancient goddess? She had done something in heaven to offend the gods, and these things were her punishments. The gods would liberate her when the proper moment arrived.

But fire! The gods themselves could not control that; that was the right hand of Siva. Al, al, al! The walling rose to the girl on the roof. Al, al, al! The bazaars were doomed. There was neither water nor men who knew how to use it. Besides, who among them would offend the terrible Siva by meddling with his playthings?

The painted dancing girl in the house where Umballah had taken temporary refuge began to gather her trinkets, her amber and turquoise necklaces, bracelets, and anklets. These she placed in a brass enameled box and tucked it under her arm. Next she shook the sodden Umballah by the sleeve.

"Come!" she cried.
"I would sleep," he muttered.
"Durga Ram, risk my life in offering you shelter; but I refuse to risk it in fire. Come! There is a way through the rear, to the house of a friend of mine. The fire will not reach there. And tonight you can seek shelter in the jungle, or where you will."

"Let her be! I would sleep."
"Fool! Those who remain here will find it a burning that in less than an hour. Look!" She pushed him toward the window. "Look! They are flying from this house. 'Would you die?'"

He flung her off. She returned, beating him with her fists. He swore and staggered to his feet and struck at her blindly. She laughed, clutched his sleeve, and began to drag him to the rear stairs.

He seized the goblet ere it reached her lips, drank, and flung it aside empty.

He struck at her again, this time with faithful aim. Her box of trinkets clattered to the floor and she whirled upon him with a dagger. The sight of the steel sobered him a little.

"Listen to me, Durga Ram; touch me again and you shall die! Can you not see I am trying to save you because my sister so wills it? The fire will spread, for the wind has risen. What! Am I one of your slaves—that you lift your hand against me?" She seized a bowl containing some flowers and cast the contents into his face. "Fire, fire, and death!" she shrieked at him.

The douches brought the man out of his stupor. "Fire?" he repeated.

"Come!" This time he followed her docilely, wiping his face on his sleeve.

They heard a great shouting in the street, but did not tarry to learn what had caused it.

One of Umballah's bearers, upon realising what his master had done, had run down the street for aid. He had had two objects in view—to save the white goddess and to buy his freedom.

A few hundred yards away, in another street, the Colonel, Bruce, and Ahmed were dragging a net for the purpose of laying it for a lion at bay in a blind alley. Into their presence pitched the wild-eyed bearer.

"Save the white goddess!" he cried.
Bruce seized him by the shoulder. "What is that?"

"The white goddess, Sahib! She is on the roof of a burning house. Durga Ram, my master, set fire to it. He is drunk and hiding in a house near by."

"The man is mad, declared the Colonel. 'Kil would not have lost her way this far. He is lying. His words mean nothing.'"

Ahmed spoke. The bearer fell upon his knees. Three shots, at intervals!

The Colonel and Bruce stared into each other's eyes.

"God in heaven!" gasped the Colonel; "those are revolver shots!"

"Bring the net!" shouted Ahmed. To the trembling bearer he said: "Lead us; we follow. And if you have spoken the truth you shall not only have your freedom but ruses for your old age."

A lion's net is a heavy affair, but with the aid of the keepers the men ran as quickly and lightly as if burdenless. Smoke. There was a fire. The hearts of the white men beat painfully. And the same thought occurred to both of them; they should have gone to Ramabai's home first, then turned their attention to the lions and Umballah was hiding in a house near by!

Well for them that they entered the doomed quarters as they did. Kathlyn saw them, and the muzzle of the revolver which she was pressing to her heart lowered, the weapon itself slipping from her hand to the roof. God was not going to let her die like this.

"Spread out the net!" commanded Bruce. "Kathlyn, can you hear me?" he shouted, cupping his hands before his mouth. Faintly he heard her reply: "When I give the word, jump. Do not be afraid."

Kathlyn stepped upon the parapet. A great volume of smoke obscured her for a moment. Out of the window the vivid tongues of flame darted, flashing upward. She summoned all her courage and waited for the call of the man she loved. Inside a floor gave way with a crash and the collateral walls of the building swayed ominously. A despairing roar accompanied the thunder of falling beams. The lions had gone to their death.

Without hesitation Kathlyn flung herself into space. A murmur ran through the crowd, which had for the moment forgotten its own danger in the wonder of this spectacle. The men holding the net threw themselves backward as Kathlyn struck the mesh. Even then her body touched the street cobbles and she was bruised and shaken severely, but, O, alive, alive! There rose the great shouting which Umballah and the dancing girl had heard.

Shortly after the house collapsed. The fire spread to the houses on each side.

Bruce seized the bearer by the arm. "Now, the house which Umballah entered!"
Eagerly enough the slave directed him. For all the abuse and beatings the slave was to have his hour. But they found the house empty except for a chattering monkey and a screaming parakeet, both attached to pedestal perches. Bruce liberated them and returned to the colonel.

"Gone! Well, let him hide in the jungle, a prey to fear and hunger. At least we are rid of him. But I shall die unhappy if in this life we two fail to meet again. Kil!"

"John!" She withdrew from her father's arms and sought those of the man who loved her and whom she loved, as youth will and must. "Let him go. Why should we care? Take me to my sister."

Ahmed smiled as he and his men rolled the net. This was as it should be. For what man was a better mate for his golden haired Mem-Sahib? And then he thought of Lal Singh, and he choked a little. For Lal Singh and he had spent many pleasant hours together. They had worked together in play and in war, shared danger and bread and glory, all which was written in the books of the British raj in Calcutta.

It was the will of Allah; there was but one God, and Mahomet was his prophet. Then Ahmed dismissed Lal Singh and the past with his thoughts, after the philosophical manner of the Asiatic, and turned to the more vital affairs under hand.

The king is released from the hat in which he has been held prisoner by Umballah.

At Ramabai's house there was a happy reunion; and on her knees Pundita confessed to her lord. How near she had been to Christina's damnation. She had fallen from grace; she had reverted to the old customs of her race, to whom suicide was not sin. Ramabai took her in his arms and touched her forehead with his lips.

"And now," said the colonel, "the king!"
Ramabai's head sank.

"What is the matter? Is he dead?"
"If I knew that," answered Ramabai, "I would rest content."

"But you searched the royal prison?"
"And found nothing, nothing!"
"What do you believe?"
"I believe that either the council or Umballah has forestalled us. We shall visit the council at once."

They are prisoners. If they have had no hand in the disappearance of the king, then we are facing a stone wall over which we cannot leap. For Umballah has fled, whether no one knows, and with him has gone the secret. Come, we shall go at once to the palace prison."

The council which had ruled so long in Allahah was very humble indeed. They had imprisoned the king because he had given many evidences of mental unbalance. Perhaps unwisely they had proclaimed his death. Durga Ram had discovered what they had done and had held it over their heads like a sword blade. That the king was not in his dungeon, why and whereof, was beyond their knowledge. They were in the power of Ramabai; let him work his will upon them. They had told the truth. And Ramabai, much as he detested them, believed them. But for the present it was required that they remain incarcerated till the king was found, dead or alive.

In the palace soldiers and servants alike had already forgotten Umballah. To them it was as if he had not existed. All in a few hours. There was, however, one man who did not forget. Upon a certain day Umballah had carelessly saved his life, and to his benefactor he was now determined to devote that life. This man was the mazoromo, the chief servant in the king's household. It was not that he loved Umballah; rather that he owed Umballah a debt and resolved to pay it.

Two days later, when the fires were extinguished and the populace had settled back into its former habits, this mazoromo betook himself to Umballah's house. It was well guarded, and by men who had never been close to Umballah but had always belonged to the dissatisfied section, the frankly and openly mutinous section. No bribery was possible here; at least, nothing short of a fabulous sum of money would dislodge their loyalty to Ramabai, now the constitutional regent. No one could leave the house or enter it without scrutiny and question.

The servants and the women of the zenana remained undisturbed. Ramabai would have it so. Things had been put in order. There had not been much damage done by the looters on the day of the revolt. They had looked for treasure merely, and only an occasional bit of vandalism had marked their pathway.

On the pain of death no soldier might enter the house.

The mazoromo was permitted to enter without question. He passed the guards humbly. But once inside, beyond observation, he became a different man. For in Ramabai's house, as in Ramabai's, there were secret chambers, and today the mazoromo entered one of them—through a panel concealed behind a hanging Isapan rug.

On the night after the revolt Umballah, sober and desperate, had slunk back as a canny seller. The house was not guarded then, so he had no difficulty in gaining admittance. But he had to gain entrance through a widow in the zenana. He would not trust either his servants, his slaves, or his chief eunuch. To the women of his own zenana he had always been carelessly kind, and women are least bribable of the two sexes.

Umballah entered at once his secret chamber, and food and water were brought, one of the women acting as bearer, on the morning after the guards arrived, and Umballah knew not how long he might have to wait. Through one of the women he sent a verbal message to the mazoromo, with the result that each day he learned what was taking place in the palace. So they hunted for the king?

He was very well satisfied. He had his revenge; and more than this, he was confident when the time came he would also gain his liberty. He had a ransom to pay; the king himself!

Now, then, Ramabai felt it incumbent on him to hold a banquet in the palace, there to state to his friends, native and white, just what he intended to do. And on the night of this sober occasion he sat in the throne room before a desk littered with documents. As he finished writing a note he summoned the mazoromo.

"Have this delivered at once to Hara Sahib, whom you will find at his bungalow outside the city. Tell him also that he must be present tonight, he, his friend, and his daughters. It is of vital importance." Pundita, who was staring out of the window, turned and asked her lord what he was sending the Colonel Sahib that he could not give him at the banquet.

"A surprise, an agreeable surprise."
The mazoromo cocked his ears; but Ramabai said nothing more.

At the colonel's bungalow there was rejoicing. Ramabai had written that since the king could not be found he would head the provisional government as regent, search for and arrest Umballah, and at any time the Colonel Sahib signified would furnish him with a trusty escort to the railway, three days' journey away. He added, however, that he hoped the Colonel Sahib would be good enough to remain till order was established.

The mazoromo contrived to tarry long enough to over hear as much of the conversation as needed for he understood English—and then returned to the city to carry the news to Umballah. To him Umballah gave a white powder.

"Tonight, you say, Ramabai gives a banquet?"
"Yes, Hazoor."

"Well, put this in his cup and your obligation to me is paid."

The mazoromo stared a long time at that little packet of powder, a cold sweat formed upon his brow under the turban.

"Well?" said Umballah, ironically.
"Hazoor, it is murder."

Umballah shrugged and held out his hand for the packet.

The mazoromo swallowed a few times and bowed his head. "It shall be done, Hazoor. My life is yours to do with as you please. I have said it."

"Begone, then, and bring me the news on the morrow that Ramabai is dead. You alone know where the king is. Should they near the but in which I have hidden him, see that he is killed. He is also useless."

The mazoromo departed with heavy heart. Ramabai was an honest man; but Durga Ram had spoken.

At the banquet, with its quail and pheasant, its fruits and flowers, its rare plates and its rarer goblets for the light wines high castes permitted themselves occasionally to drink. Ramabai toyed idly with his goblet and thoughtlessly pushed it toward Kathlyn, who sat at his right.

Imbued with a sense of gratitude for Ramabai's patience and kindness and assistance through all her dreadful ordeals, Kathlyn sprang up suddenly and without looking reached for what she supposed to be her own goblet, but inadvertently her hand came in to contact with Ramabai's. What she had in mind to say was never spoken.

The mazoromo stood appalled. This wonderful white woman over whom the gods watched as they watched the winds and the rains, of whom he had not dared speak to Umballah. She! No! He saw that he himself must die. He seized the goblet ere it reached her lips, drank, and flung it aside empty.

He was as good as dead, for there were no antidotes for poisons Umballah gave. Those seated about the table were too astonished to stir. The mazoromo put his hand to his eyes, reeled, steadied himself, and then Ramabai understood.

"Poison!" he gasped, springing up and catching the mazoromo by the shoulders. "Poison, and it was meant for me! Speak!"

"Lord, I will tell all, I am dying!"
It was a strange tale of misplaced loyalty and gratitude, but it was peculiarly oriental. And when they learned that Umballah was hidden in his own house and the king in a hut outside the city, they knew that God was just whatever his prophet's name might be. Before he died the mazoromo explained the method of entering the secret chamber.

The quail and pheasant, the fruits and wine remained untouched. The hall became deserted at once immediately. To the king first; to the king! Then Umballah should pay his debt.

They found the poor king in the but in a pitiable condition. He laughed and babbled and smiled and wept as they led him away. But in the secret chamber which was to have held Umballah there was no living thing.

For Umballah had, at the departure of the mazoromo, conceived a plan for rehabilitation so wide in its ramifications, so powerful and winning, that nothing could stay it once it was set in motion. The priests, the real rulers of Asia; the wise and patient gurus, who held the most compelling of all scepters, superstition! Double fool that he had been not to have thought of this before! He knew that that cast and a pariah, who worshipped but a single God, whom none had ever seen, of whom no idol had been carved and set up in a temple.

Superstition!
Umballah threw off his robes and donned his candy seller's tatters, left the house without being questioned by the careless guard, and sought the chief temple.

Superstition!
To cow the populace, to bring the troops to the mark, with threats of curses, famine, plague, eternal damnation! Superstition! And this is why Ramabai and his followers found an empty chamber.

Need All the Strength That Good Red Blood Can Give.

Youth is the time to lay the foundation for health. Every boy and girl should have plenty of pure, red blood and strong nerves. With this, impure blood they start life with a handicap too great to win success and happiness. Pure, red blood means healthful growth, strong nerves, a clear brain and a good digestion. In a word, pure blood is the foundation of health.

The signs of this, impure blood are many and unmistakable. The pale, irritable boy or girl, who has no appetite or ambition is always a victim of anaemia, or bloodlessness—the greatest enemy of youth.

There is just one thing to do for these boys and girls—build up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. You can afford to experiment with any remedies for there must be no guesswork in the treatment of anaemia. Through neglect or wrong treatment anaemia gradually develops into the pernicious form which is practically incurable.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills work directly on the blood, giving it just the elements it needs for success in life. These Pills build up every organ and nerve in the body, thus developing strong, rugged boys and girls. Miss Anna Levesque, Grand Forks, B. C., says: "I think that before taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was one of the most miserable girls alive. I was hardly ever free from a headache, and I was as pale as a ghost, and could not go upstairs without stopping to rest. Now since taking the Pills the headaches have gone, my appetite is good and you may be sure I will always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DEVELOPMENTS AT GLEN FALLS

SOME QUICK WORK BY RAILWAY CO.—CENTURY OLD MANOR HOUSE RESULT, AND TO BE OPENED AS TEA ROOM, ETC.—RAILWAY CO. TO OPEN TO PUBLIC FIFTY ACRE PARK.

Judging by the amount of interest being taken in the rapid development of Glen Falls, the town and the large number of lots being sold it will not be long before Glen Falls will be a beautiful little town of considerable importance.

The St. John Railway Co. are making great progress with their extension to Coldbrook and Glen Falls and many flattering references are being made with regard to it.

While work is being done on the rails are already laid as far as the cemetery state and rails and ties are being distributed all along the remainder of the road and through the Glen Falls property, doubtless a few weeks will see it completed.

The old house has upwards of thirty-three large rooms and exceptionally high ceilings. At the front of the house on the ground floor there are four spacious rooms and a large bay window, which has an old fashioned winding staircase to the upper floors.

Between these rooms there will be large arches making them practically one and a beautifully polished hardwood floor—perfect for dancing—is to be laid over the entire property.

The old Manor House has been the scene of many gay and festive parties in the old days and at one time was a favorite rendezvous for the officers of the regiments of regular soldiers who were encamped on what is now the Glen Falls property.

It is the company's intention to run the Manor House as a tea room and restaurant, leasing it to private parties for dances and other entertainments in the evenings.

The car tracks of the Saint John Railway Company will pass close by and they have expressed their intention of cooperating with the realty company with a view to making it one of the most popular resorts, and should it be desired, the railway company will supply special cars for the exclusive use of private parties.

Owing to the amount of interest being taken in the development of Glen Falls by the public, and the number of people visiting the property, the realty company have decided to open an office in the building where those interested may call and get particulars with regard to building lots.

DEVELOPMENTS AT GLEN FALLS

SOME QUICK WORK BY RAILWAY CO.—CENTURY OLD MANOR HOUSE RESULT, AND TO BE OPENED AS TEA ROOM, ETC.—RAILWAY CO. TO OPEN TO PUBLIC FIFTY ACRE PARK.

Judging by the amount of interest being taken in the rapid development of Glen Falls, the town and the large number of lots being sold it will not be long before Glen Falls will be a beautiful little town of considerable importance.

The St. John Railway Co. are making great progress with their extension to Coldbrook and Glen Falls and many flattering references are being made with regard to it.

While work is being done on the rails are already laid as far as the cemetery state and rails and ties are being distributed all along the remainder of the road and through the Glen Falls property, doubtless a few weeks will see it completed.

The old house has upwards of thirty-three large rooms and exceptionally high ceilings. At the front of the house on the ground floor there are four spacious rooms and a large bay window, which has an old fashioned winding staircase to the upper floors.

Between these rooms there will be large arches making them practically one and a beautifully polished hardwood floor—perfect for dancing—is to be laid over the entire property.

The old Manor House has been the scene of many gay and festive parties in the old days and at one time was a favorite rendezvous for the officers of the regiments of regular soldiers who were encamped on what is now the Glen Falls property.

It is the company's intention to run the Manor House as a tea room and restaurant, leasing it to private parties for dances and other entertainments in the evenings.

The car tracks of the Saint John Railway Company will pass close by and they have expressed their intention of cooperating with the realty company with a view to making it one of the most popular resorts, and should it be desired, the railway company will supply special cars for the exclusive use of private parties.

Owing to the amount of interest being taken in the development of Glen Falls by the public, and the number of people visiting the property, the realty company have decided to open an office in the building where those interested may call and get particulars with regard to building lots.

The house which originally cost upwards of $10,000 is most heavily built of brick and stone, even the walls between each room are of brick and at least six inches in thickness, all the floor beams are in a perfect state of preservation.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES PRESBYTERIAN

Rev. E. Lockhart, B. A., who was sent to British Guiana on relief duty to offer to give our missionaries there a much needed furlough, was in St. John's a day or two in the middle of this week, on his way to Prince Edward Island.

A movement is at present on foot to erect a building in Westfield in which to hold Presbyterian services. Several meetings have been held, and a committee, appointed to take steps for obtaining the necessary funds, has met with considerable encouragement.

Rev. Dr. Burrows of Bermuda is expected to preach for two Sundays at Sussex.

Rev. J. McCartney Wilson of United church, New Glasgow, N. S., has joined a party on an expedition to climb the Rocky Mountains.

Rev. Gordon Dickie and Mrs. Dickie are expected back from their summer holiday this morning of this afternoon.

Dr. MacVicar, who has been conducting the united services of St. Andrew's and St. Stephen's churches throughout July, goes on holiday to-day.

After brief visits to Nova Scotia and on the lower St. Lawrence, he purposes to spend some weeks with his mother in Westmount, Montreal.

He is expected to return to St. John's on the 15th inst. He is expected back by the end of next week and will conduct the united services of Calvin and St. John churches during August.

We regret to learn that Mrs. Hugh Robertson, widow of the late heroic missionary to the New Hebrides, shortly after her arrival in St. John's, was with a somewhat serious runaway accident, but at last accounts was making good progress towards recovery from her injuries.

Foreign Mission Board Meeting. Dr. MacVicar was absent from the city for several days last week attending a very important meeting of the Foreign Mission Board in Halifax.

The recent general assembly made a considerable change in the personnel of the board, but none of the new members were appointed in attendance.

A cordial greeting was extended by the old members to the new convener, Rev. G. A. Suberland of Kensington, P. E. I., whose intimate knowledge of the details of administration and the conditions on the various fields peculiarly qualified him for the position of responsibility which the assembly appointed him.

An equally hearty welcome was extended to the new secretary, Rev. Dr. Thomas Stewart, former professor in the Presbyterian College, Halifax. With the executive work of the foreign mission board, Dr. Stewart is comparatively unfamiliar, but he gives promise of mastering very rapidly the salient features in his new work, and he offered several suggestions as to improved methods of conducting the work of the board which were heartily adopted.

Appreciation of the Retiring Church Agent. The following resolution was passed in recognition of the services of Rev. Dr. E. A. McCurdy, Dr. Stewart's predecessor.

In view of Dr. McCurdy's retirement from his position as agent of the church in the Maritime Provinces and as secretary of the board, we desire to place on record our warm appreciation of his conscientious and unremitting services for the past fifteen years and the manner in which as a member of the board he has shared in the administration of our foreign mission work, which, since his appointment to office has been fully taxed his best powers had been free to devote all his energies to this one department alone.

CAPT. INGERSOLL GIVES UP COMMAND AFTER TWENTY YEARS' SERVICE

Retires from Command of Grand Manan Boats — St. Stephen Friends Present him With Silver Tea Service.

Special to The Standard. St. Stephen, July 30.—Captain John Ingersoll who has been in command of the steamers of the Grand Manan Steamboat Company, sailing between Grand Manan and St. Stephen and St. John, ever since that company had been organized thirty years ago, this morning made his last trip out of this port in that capacity, as he is now retiring to give his time to a commercial business already well established on Grand Manan.

The business men of the town took occasion this morning to make that feeling manifest and to the number of about twenty-five boarded the steamer at seven o'clock, just before she was to sail and called "Captain John" from the wharves. Then on behalf of the merchants of St. Stephen, R. W. Grimmer, M.L.A., briefly addressed the somewhat bewildered captain and told him that they did not feel like allowing him to terminate his connection with the town in the position he had so long filled without expressing their regret at the severance of the pleasant ties.

He expressed the appreciation in which Captain Ingersoll is held and assured him that he carries with him, in his retirement, the high esteem and sincere good wishes of this community as a whole, and particularly of the business men with whom he had so long done business.

On their behalf he presented Captain Ingersoll with a valuable silver tea service of seven pieces on a mahogany tray. It was the one occasion on which those present had seen "Captain John" carried off his feet. He was greatly overcome, but expressed his appreciation in a few words, and the steamer soon afterwards sailed away for the last time under the command of Captain John Norman McKinnon of Yarmouth takes command.

GRAND CIRCUIT RACING

Detroit, Mich., July 31.—A new system of handicapping was tried today for the first time in the free-for-all trot, the last event of the week of Grand Circuit racing at the State Fair grounds. Beginning at the first turn, chalked lines were laid down the track as far as the quarter mile point. In the scoring for each heat, the four starters were given positions of the pole according to their last year's records and each horse had to keep in its own lane until the chalk marks ended. The arrangement forced Dudie Archdale, on the outside, to travel about fifty yards further than Robert Milroy, on the pole, and about thirty yards further, to complete the mile. Bon Zolock was in second position. With this advantage, Robert Milroy and Bon Zolock took a big lead in each heat. Anvil won the race, taking first and third heats after a long chase. In the second heat Geers' horse broke badly at the start and Robert Milroy led all the way by a nose length. The handicap was too great for Dudie Archdale and she never got near the other contenders. The 2:07 pace furnished a great contest, Fay Richmond winning after seven hard fought heats. John D took the first two rounds with ease, was fifth in the third and distanced in the fourth. Then Fay Richmond won a couple and Marista, whom Murphy had not been extending, captured the fifth. These two were alone in the sixth and seventh. Murphy took the sixth but Fay Richmond had the staying qualities in the final and took first place in a hard drive at the finish. The 2:32 pace was easy for R. H. Breat. Winning the 2:11 trot was a mere formality for Maria Bellini.

FAST PATRICIA WON NORTON GRIFFITHS TROPHY

About all the wharves along the harbor front were crowded with interested spectators last evening, and hundreds of small craft with excursionists on board were in the harbor to witness the motor boat Patricia, owned by Peter Clinch. The Patricia managed to cover the twelve knot course in forty-five minutes and thirty seconds, or sixteen minutes and seven seconds faster than the Cachoue which was the second boat. The Patricia had to give the Cachoue a time allowance of nine minutes and forty-three seconds and at the finish of the race the McAllister boat was the winner with seven minutes and four seconds to the good over the time allowance. For the benefit of the spectators who lined the course it might be stated that it would have been more interesting for them had the boats been all started at the one time instead of several minutes between. All that the spectators could enjoy last evening was to watch the speeding along and it was only those on the judges' boat who could tell the positions anywhere near correctly. The Patricia plainly showed that she was in a class by herself and the craft was greatly admired as she fairly flew through the water. The Clinch boat was undoubtedly the next best in the showing of speed and showed up remarkably well. The weather was all that could be desired for a motor boat race and the boats were all fortunate to get through with little or no engine trouble. The Silvery Spray which only went round the course four times, did not appear to be acting well and was badly beaten by her four opponents during the time that she was in the race. The following gives the number, name of boat, the owners, also the time that the boats started, the time on each turn of the judges' boat, the finish, the elapsed time and time allowance that the Patricia had to allow each of the other boats.

The Chance to Recover Alsace-Lorraine Great Temptation for France

Washington, D. C., July 30.—Despite the official despatches of yesterday to the state department asserting that the prospects for saving the indebted European nations from a general conflict were most encouraging, members of the diplomatic corps today expressed their belief that the effect to localize the conflict would fail. The impression conveyed in press despatches that France is likely to throw her weight for peace, since she does not consider herself directly interested in the issues presented between Austria and Serbia, are not accepted by diplomats here. They say that France has been drawing enormous sums of gold from the United States and other countries and that lately there came a change in her policy regarding loans to Russia which clearly indicates her position. Formerly French loans to Russia, it is said, were provided that the money should not be expended for war material but only for internal improvements. Lately however, France is reported to have made several loans to Russia without that stipulation. These two facts—that France has introduced with a strong gold reserve and is loaning to Russia for war purposes—are accepted as indication of a desire upon the part of the French government to see the issue of Teutonic supremacy fought out at this time. The prospect of getting an opportunity to retake Alsace-Lorraine which Germany is engaged with Russia on the eastern frontier is expected by diplomats here to prove too strong a temptation for France.

So far as Russia is concerned, this war, say the diplomats, means the test of Slavonic strength, and she cannot, they believe, regard the destruction of Serbia without grave concern. There appears to be a general belief here that Russia will enter this war. The only thing that might restrain her, it is thought, would be a refusal from France of financial support, and this is not expected.

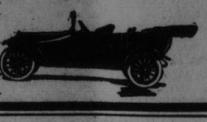

"The French are as active in the promotion of this war as the Austrians themselves," said one diplomatist here today. "Whereas the Austrians realize that they must now battle to defeat the Slavonic movement within their empire, the French feel that they are in the strongest possible position to successfully prosecute a war against Germany."

"The French army is in excellent condition. Financially France is the strongest of European nations. I believe that Russia cannot with safety keep herself out of this conflict, and Germany does not seem to be dodging the issue. Only England and Italy appear to be sincerely desirous of preventing the general European conflagration."

The State Department is awaiting receipt of Austria's declaration of war. When official notification of this is received the United States will of course declare her neutrality. No evidence of any intention to involve the United States in the situation by an offer of good services for mediation or otherwise can be found.

From a selfish standpoint American diplomatists believe that the European conflagration would give the United States the best opportunity it could possibly have to strengthen its position commercially in Latin America, prosecute its present policies in the Caribbean, against some of which European Powers have protested, and it should care to, regain the losses it has suffered in prestige and commerce in the Far East.

REPLY TO GCM. POTTS

To the Editor of The Standard.
Sir,—In reply to the letter of the Commissioner of Public Works to the press re City Cornet Band and band concerts, I wish to state that according to the Commissioner's letter it would appear that I on behalf of the band made a statement that the Commissioner did communicate with all the other bands, by referring to my letter you will observe that a statement of such positive nature is not contained therein. What I had reference to was an article which appeared in the newspapers to the effect, that the Commissioner had communicated with all the bands and had received an answer from one or two; we naturally inferred from this that the Commissioner had corresponded with the bands in the usual way by letter.
In regard to the band failing to respond to a public notice, I desire to state, the only article appearing in the press that the band has knowledge of is a conversation the Commissioner had with a reporter, which the band did not consider an official notification.
The Commissioner states he heard a report that the City Cornet band would be unable to take part in the city band concerts owing to other engagements. I wish to say the band is not responsible for any reports of this nature.
Trusting I have made the band's position clear in this matter, and thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain, Yours truly,
FRED A. HAZEL,
Sec. City Cornet Band.

SPORTOGRAPHY "GRAVY"

England is described as being fairly mad about the boxing game, but this condition of affairs is by no means nothing new. The scions of royalty and nobility who give their patronage to the ring game today are but emulating their ancestors of a century ago. In fact, it was just 100 years ago tonight, on August 1, 1815, that Tom Belcher, one of the greatest of English champions, opened the Castle Tavern in Holborn, London, as a rendezvous for the aristocratic patrons of the sport in which Belcher had shown so brilliantly. A contemporary writer says of Belcher's place: "The gallant Boniface soon found himself doing a roaring business. His aristocratic patrons literally mobbed the house—the bloods, the bucks, the men of ton, all the cream, in fact, of sporting rank and fashion soon made the jolly tavern in Holborn their headquarters. In the snugger behind the bar the choicest spirits of the period gathered of an evening. Persons of the highest consequence in the state might be seen in Tom Belcher's parlor—royal dukes condescended to visit, whilst any night you might find yourself hobnobbing with celebrities of all kinds—noble 'cortinthians' seeing life, M. P.'s eager to hear the latest gossip of the ring, poets on the lookout for bruiers as heroes, artists for subjects, country gentlemen up by coach, boxers looking for customers, and young Templars and surgeons for fresh means of killing time. The famous Daffy Club had its headquarters at the Castle, and the long sa-lit clubroom, with its gallery of sporting pictures and portraits, was scarcely a less favorite spot with the fancy than the cosy parlor. As a caterer for the fancy, Tom Belcher was unrivalled. No man knew better than mine host how to keep the ball rolling."

AGRICULTURE

EGG-LAYING ABILITY IS INHERITED.

It is a well established fact that there is a great difference in egg production among various breeds of poultry. The great majority of people who have raised poultry have realized that some breeds will lay better than others. More observant poultry raisers have found that there are differences within strains of the same breed. They have found, for instance, that one strain of Barred Plymouth Rocks lay better than other strains of the same breed. The same will apply to Leghorns and any other breed of poultry. Hence, we appreciate the fact that strain is of more importance than breed.

Considerable work from a scientific standpoint has been conducted in regard to breeding for increased egg production. Progress along this line is not as substantial as might be expected. Nevertheless, the data obtained is of great importance in the breeding of poultry. The original policy in breeding for increased egg production was to select the best layers for breeding purposes. This line of work was termed "mass selection," but after eleven years of this method of breeding the egg production had actually decreased below that with which it had started. It was found, therefore, that "mass selection" was not improving egg-laying capacities. The data clearly showed that the daughters had not always inherited the egg-laying ability of their mothers. Following the results of this work poultry breeders began to look for a cause, and the general tendency was to ascribe the failure of the "mass selection" method to lack of constitutional vigor. Notwithstanding the fact that heavy laying may be a more or less common characteristic of a strain, the vitality of 200-egg hens was so materially affected that, in the majority of cases, they were not able to produce daughters possessing normal vitality. This is true, for more advanced work in poultry breeding has established the fact that heavy egg production is not inherited from the dam but is inherited from the sire. A heavy egg layer is one which has a good egg record for the entire year but which lays at least 30 eggs during the winter months, that is, during the winter season, from the 1st of October to the 1st of March. Any hen which does not produce 30 eggs during that time is classified as an average or a poor producer. Practically all breeding work is based on the selection of breeders from the standpoint of their winter production. This factor is of economic importance because we find that winter egg production is the most profitable phase of our poultry industry and it should be the aim of every one who is keeping fowls to secure the largest possible winter production. In brief, the results of the more advanced work in breeding for increased egg production show the following facts:

That heavy egg-laying ability may be inherited by daughters from their sire regardless of the egg-laying qualities of the dam. This is shown in the results obtained in breeding the same sire to different dams, the result being that many daughters which do not lay dams make good layers as well as do many daughters of the good laying dams. That is, the proportion of daughters which inherit heavy egg-laying ability is dependent upon the sire.

In the second place it was shown that heavy egg-laying ability is not inherited by daughters from their dam. This is shown from the fact that continued selection of heavy laying dams does not affect in any way the heavy egg production of the daughters. More over, the production of heavy laying daughters is the same whether the dam is high or of low egg-laying ability, providing both are mated to the same male. This is equivalent to proving the influence of the sire in increased egg production.

Lastly, the daughters of a heavy laying dam may show either high or low egg-laying ability depending upon their sire.

The results of these experiments conducted in breeding poultry have been of immense benefit, as well as of great interest. Briefly, these results may be explained from the fact that heavy egg production follows a different course of inheritance from average egg production. The inheritance of egg-laying ability depends upon three factors:—A hen must have a normal ovary, else she cannot produce eggs. Having a normal ovary she must first possess the factor of normal egg production, that is, she must be able to lay approximately 150 to 180 eggs in the year, although she may lay comparatively few of them during the winter months. The third factor entering into the inheritance of egg-laying ability is the factor for excess egg production. This factor simply means that the hen may lay 30 or more eggs during the winter season, as intimated previously. Now the factor for normal egg production is inherited in the ordinary Mendelian fashion, that is, a pullet may inherit the normal egg-laying factor from either the dam or the sire or both. If she possesses this factor inherited from either or both parents she will be a normal layer. On the other hand, the factor for excess egg production is inherited in a different way than the factor for normal egg production. The results of breeding experiments in many different lines have shown that sex is an inherent quality, and, moreover, it was found that the factor for excess egg production is sex limited and is born by the male bird only. Therefore, in breeding for heavy egg production in pullets, male birds must be used which possess the excess egg-production factor. That is why so much attention is now given to the proper selection of cockerels in breeding work. Breeders now assume that the greatest improvement can come only through the selection of bred-to-lay cockerels. At the same time, however, sufficient attention must be given to the female side of the breeding stock to insure the maintenance of constitutional vigor and vitality.

The interpretation of these results may be slightly beyond the grasp of the average poultryman and farmer, and, doubtless a few suggestions can be made which will be of considerable value. It should first be stated that great attention should be paid to constitutional vigor and vitality, for in the long run egg production largely depends upon the health of the hen. If one is to obtain the best results no bird should be used as a breeder which has ever been ill. In the second place careful observation of the flock from day to day should enable one to select the best producers among the females in order that they may be used as breeders to obtain time and cockerels for breeding purposes. It is not practicable for the average farmer or poultryman to practice "culling" at one should be able to make considerable improvement through the study of his fowls. It might also be suggested that too much out-bred stock should not be done as the securing of new stock from different parties from year to year is liable to affect the egg-laying quality of the present strain.

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE REMOVAL OF MALE BIRDS AFTER THE BREEDING SEASON

By W. A. Brown and J. H. Hare

Eggs which have been fertilized constitute the greatest proportion of the inferior stock which, when examined, proves unfit for food. It is not necessary that these shall have remained for a time under a broody hen at a temperature of seventy degrees being, in itself, sufficient to cause the germ to commence to grow. If the heat is constant the development of the chick will continue, but if it ceases or is intermittent, putrefaction at once sets in and the egg becomes bad. On the other hand, infertile eggs which are free from the active germ cell, do not, under ordinary conditions, deteriorate seriously.

Few farmers seem to realize these facts, and consequently very few make any effort to insure infertility. The impression prevails among many that the presence of the male bird in the flock is essential to the production of a maximum number of eggs. This assumption has been proven, time and time again, to be absolutely without foundation.

Farmers and others selling eggs for hatching are recommended to kill off or dispose of the male birds after the breeding season. As a result of their remaining with the flock after hatching, Canadian farmers lose each year at least a million dollars, through the presence of partially incubated eggs in the produce which is marketed. The fact that the best trade in many cities in Canada now offers the premium of from one to five cents per dozen, for non-fertilized eggs, suggests an additional financial consideration which but few can afford to overlook.

PRESERVING EGGS IN WATERGLASS

Mix one pound of waterglass to one gallon of water. Of course this solution must be perfectly cool before you put the eggs in. Then fill wooden buckets, or a clean vessel of any kind (except metal vessels), you should only fill them about one-third full, because when you put the eggs in the solution of course rises. You can put the eggs in daily as you wish, but always let the eggs cool for 12 hours before putting them in the waterglass solution. Do not put any very thin shelled eggs, or eggs which are cracked or broken ones. Be careful not to crack any when placing them in the solution.

If you have large quantities of eggs, you can carefully put the eggs in the vessels first, then pour the waterglass solution over them. Care should be taken to see that the eggs are kept covered; an inch or two of solution should always be above the eggs. Store the eggs in a cool cellar, free from heat or frost.

Wash all eggs before using. Prick the shell with a needle before boiling, as they are liable to crack or burst whilst boiling. Cover all egg vessels containing the eggs in solution to prevent dust and dirt getting into the eggs. You see the farmer is the man to preserve eggs; the wholesaler often has to wait for days before the so-called fresh egg reaches him, but the farmer, if he follows these instructions, can have fresh eggs all the year round.

The trouble of waterglass is as nothing compared with the bother of lime. Besides the eggs are much better in every way. The expense is a mere trifle.

Success is certain if you use fresh eggs. The reason the ordinary store egg is not so good is simply because they were not put into solution till they had become stale. You can put down 10,000 eggs at a cost of a few dollars.

Remember once the eggs are removed from the waterglass, they are liable to go bad as quickly, if not quicker, than a fresh egg. So only remove them from the solution just before required for use or sale.

COST REDUCERS

So many dairymen wonder what the factor is going to pay, so many salesmen fight for another sixteenth of a cent on the price of cheese, that some milk producers in thinking almost entirely of selling price, are apt to overlook cost.

The twin sisters of economical milk production are good cows and individual records. Cows may be bought and fed alike, yet fail to produce milk economically, that is at low cost, because they were not built on dairy lines. But even with the average run of dairy cows that seem to produce just about the same quantity of milk, there are so many strange variations that the keeping of milk records is not only advisable from the business standpoint, but becomes of fascinating interest.

When a simple record is kept in addition to the milk record, the actual cost of milk as produced by each cow is ascertained easily, so that the owner may be assured that he is keeping only such cows as yield plenty of milk at a low cost. Can you tell offhand whether the milk of some of your cows costs 62 cents or 97 cents per 100 pounds? If your profit over cost of feed is now only $10.00 per cow, you can make it $20.00 by keeping records. Send to the Dairy Commissioner, Ottawa, for milk and feed record forms which are free. They are cost reducers.

QUACK GRASS

There is no easy way of killing quack grass. If you have not the time to go at it now and thoroughly kill it out, you can do nothing better than to seed your land to timothy or clover, and leave it until you can get around to thoroughly kill out the quack grass. Half-way means of killing quack grass only scatter it and cause it to grow more vigorously. You can seed this piece down for a few years, and when you get ready to clean it up take off the first crop of hay, then plow it at once and keep it thoroughly disced for the balance of the season so that no grass will have a chance to appear above the surface of the ground. Such treatment followed by a cultivated crop the following season, such as potatoes or corn, should entirely eradicate the quack grass. This treatment will require from ten to fifteen dollars worth of cultivation per acre.

MILK PER ACRE

If it may be assumed that the farm of the average factory patrons is fairly well adapted to dairying, that the patron himself is inclined towards dairying, rather than, let us say, fruit growing, and that his cows are fairly good, then it will be of interest to note how the farm is made to respond to this dairy inclination.

There are frequently noticed yields as low as 250 pounds of milk per acre cultivated including pasture, but some good patrons obtain 750 and 800 pounds per acre. Even this is little, for there are plenty of authentic records of 1,100 and 2,100 pounds of milk per acre. It should not be extremely difficult to obtain more than this, even 2,500 or 3,000 pounds.

This latter figure is a long, long way ahead of the yields already mentioned of only 250 pounds which may be found on many a so-called dairy farm in Canada, and is indicative of the possibilities in reach of the factory patron who is really anxious to attain first rank.

It is questionable if the average yield in Ontario is much more than 600 pounds of milk. If loyal whole-hearted support is given to the local factory and to our national industry of dairying the farm and the dairy herd will be made far more productive. Great help will be derived by keeping individual records of each cow, because the old-established, commonplace "average" cow has no intention whatever of assisting the average patron to get 2,000 pounds of milk from the average acre. The first necessary step is to know for certain that each cow is a good producer, then one may, with much hope at $30 or $40 per acre.

CARLETON CO. CROP REPORTS OF THE BEST

Outlook very promising—Potato crop of good quality and no signs of disease.

Hartand, N. B., July 29—All through the country the reports are that the crops are well up to the average. Despite the backward spring, July has proved a savior and the general expression is that it is "great growing weather." The hay crop is being gathered in good shape, and while the quality may not be up to the standard of some years, it is a fair average one. The cool weather of June and the rapid growth of weeds has had a deteriorating effect on this crop, but farmers are fairly well satisfied. Timothy has not been up to the standard, but the weather has proved good for curing it. There will be less No. 1 than last year, but there will be an abundance of cattle hay as there has never been a heavier crop of clover. The potato acreage, despite the embargo of last year is away in advance of anything the farmers have yet attempted in this line. Although pessimists claim that Ontario and Quebec will have potatoes for export rather than buying from us and that there will be no chance to get into the United States markets, the dealers do not feel any great anxiety over the matter and are preparing to handle even greater quantities than ever before. The crop this year is looking fine and another month of fine weather will ensure an excellent production. No diseases have as yet shown themselves and even the old striped bug has not been as much in evidence as in some former years. Paris green and spraying have pretty well counteracted the ravages of the bug and unless the unexpected happens there should be a good crop of nice clean tubers.

Oats and wheat are heading out in fine style and a few more weeks of warm weather will ensure a full crop of first class quality.

Root crops in general are doing fine and of these there promises to be an abundance.

It has been a good year for pasture and the yield of butter has been good, while the prices have been well maintained.

It most localities apples promise to be an excellent crop.

The demand for beef cattle is very heavy and cannot be supplied, but this year there are a greater number of calves being raised than for many years and this promises well for the farmer and the consumer.

As far as the season has come it has been a banner one for the farming industry, and when the harvest is over there will be abundant reason for thanksgiving among all classes.

FLEET OF 86 AIR CRAFT READY FOR SERVICE TO HELP AUSTRIAN ARMY

Austria has a formidable aerial fleet at her disposal, according to a recent issue of Flying, official organ of the Aero Club of America. This includes six large military dirigible air ships, ranging in length from 185 to 300 feet with gas capacity of 118,000 to 400,000 cubic feet.

One of these air ships is of the rigid type adopted by the German army. The others are non-rigid. Three of them are of the French Astra type, the others Hallborn and Kordling dirigibles built in Austria.

The total lift of these great gas sustained craft ranges from five to eight tons each. In addition to those owned by the government there are two others owned by civilians, one of the Mannsbart type recently offered for sale in the United States.

Henry Woodhouse, managing editor of Flying, yesterday estimated the aeroplane force of Austria to number eighty machines. The army has escadrons at Wiesel, Neustadt, near Vienna, and at Gortz. The Ehrlich monoplane and Lohner biplane are the principle types recently reported in use. Most of the Lohner were purchased after Lieutenant Philip Blaschke established a world's altitude record in this type in 1912.

Legions More Adopt Goodyear Tires

This Year's Increase So Far—55 Per Cent

Please mark this fact: After men have tried millions of No-Rim-Cut tires, this year's sales jump 55 per cent.

After going by leaps from bottom place to the top, this tire in one year wins 55 per cent more users. And wins them, mark you, by the mileage test; for most users today meter —lessens loose tread danger by 60 per cent.

It is because of our All-Weather tread—a double-thick, resilient anti-skid, which runs on dry roads like a smooth tread.

No other tire offers one of these features. And the verdict of users tells you what they mean.

Half Former Prices

No-Rim-Cut tire prices are about one-half what they were in 1909. Part of the saving comes in lower-cost rubber, but a very large part is due to quantity output.

There are 18 Canadian and U. S. makes of tires today which sell at higher prices—up to one-half higher. The cost of three of some of them will buy you four of Goodyears.

Yet we give you in all ways the utmost in a tire. And in four ways we give you more than any other maker offers.

If you consider these facts—with the verdict of users—you can't doubt what tire to buy.

It is because one method—used by us alone

WHAT THE MOVEMENT "FOR HOME AND COUNTRY" IS DOING FOR ITS MEMBERS

Description of Work.
(Taken from the New Brunswick Women's Institute Hand Book.)

For thousands of years, to a greater or lesser degree, the human race has been struggling with rural conditions. Amid privations and discouragements, through difficulties and successes, man has been endeavoring to make this earth a better dwelling place for his children. Rural life and rural conditions call for careful study and intellectual action for their betterment. The progress of this Province depends largely upon the education of the individual. To advance the education of the people is the highest privilege as well as the most important duty of the statesman.

Of all the forms of help which may be given with safety and benefit, the best are those which help to develop intellectual power, ability, skill, co-operation and good will. Women's influence and power have increased in the past few years and so also the demands upon her have been belabored. Every woman who realizes the importance of her life work, will feel it her duty to fulfill the manifold duties which devolve upon her as faithfully as possible. But to worthily take up the position and enter into the life scheme intelligently, she requires instruction and equipment for the great work before her.

It would be hard to find a country where womanhood is held in greater honor, has larger influence in all the affairs of life, national as well as social, or has ampler protection from the law, than in Canada. On the women of the country as well as the men, devolves the duty of building up the homes of the nation.

Better Homes.

It is a fact much to be regretted that until recently the needs of the women, especially on the farm, as well as in the home everywhere, were overlooked to a very great extent. In many homes the duties of the housewife are arduous and the facilities for carrying on her work inadequate, yet she has struggled on, fulfilling her duties as best she could with the limited knowledge and means provided her. Every man wishes to provide the best home which he can for his family, as the home stands before us as the one great object in life, and is at the end of every day's labor, to secure necessities, comforts or luxuries.

This land needs homes of the highest order.

Let me talk to you about Nerve Troubles.

Our nerves are like an intricate network of telegraph wires. They are controlled and nourished by a portion of the brain known as the nerve centres. The condition of the nerve centres depends upon the condition of the bodily health. When the bodily health is lowered the nerves suffer in sympathy. Then it is that we are tormented with "nerves," headaches, neuralgia, nervous debility, in such cases there is nothing to equal Wincarnis' Wine of Life. Wincarnis is a powerful nerve food which acts directly upon the nerve centres and gives them new life and new vitality. The result is wonderful. Will you try it?

Life has Come Through the Organization of Women's Institutes.

The Department of Agriculture felt that "if this organization were good enough for the women of Ontario and the other Provinces, they would be placed in a position to benefit from a similar organization." The first branch of this work was organized in New Brunswick in the summer of 1911 and has already made rapid advancement since its introduction into the Province. In the three years of its life, the work which has been accomplished and the appreciation of its advantages is a justification of its existence and continuance.

The first branch organized in New Brunswick was at Andover, Victoria County, in June, 1912. Since that time the work has advanced steadily. We now have forty progressive branches located in all but two counties in the Province, with a total membership of one thousand and eighty-nine. There were three hundred and ninety meetings held during February, 1913 and May, 1914, with an aggregate attendance of four thousand, nine hundred and three.

There are many women's organizations, but none which so ably meets the needs of the women and fills the void felt as does the Women's Institute. The advantages of the Institute and the deep appreciation on the part of the members justify its establishment.

Scope of Work.

There is an erroneous opinion abroad that the Women's Institute is engaged largely in an endeavor to secure franchise and usurp the place of the bread-winner in public life. The aim of the organization is rather to bind the women closer to her home, to develop a deeper love of home, as set forth in the object of the Institute. A woman can never rise to higher occupation than that which the home brings. That which is her daily work and concern is most worth emphasizing, and to regulate household affairs and attend to her children is the highest commendation of woman.

The Institute stands for industry, conservation of energy, intellectual citizenship, and all that is good and true. Most of the subjects taken up are directly as they affect the home and daily life of the woman. The Institute presents the opportunity for a strong bond of unity, of co-operation, and the coming together of all sects and classes in the interests of the greatest of all human institutions—the home.

There is nothing more attractive, refining and uplifting than the simple joys and pleasures of home life. We often times find one who murmurs or complains at the monotony of the daily rounds, the common tasks, but upon reflection and living performance rests that most beautiful superstructure—the happy, well ordered home. Let us then manfully our efforts, realizing that with this end in view, what might otherwise be drudgery, becomes a part of the divine plan, and the woman who creates and sustains a home and under whose hands children grow up to be strong and pure and true men and women, is a creator only to God.

What the Institute Teaches.
The many branches of work taken up by the Institute afford for the helpfulness and efficiency of the work. It has meant to the people a social unity never before realized. Women from all parts of the country meet together as friends and neighbors. Town and country women meet together and find in such other qualities never dreamed of, and the result is a mutual feeling of sisterhood between them. It teaches the great principles of sanitation and ventilation in the home; to keep the surroundings pure; the most healthful and rational way to feed the family, to make the household strong and healthful in mind and body.

It gives to the woman an idea as to proper business methods in conducting meetings, keeping accounts and the value of money, and enables her to discuss intelligently the various topics brought before her.

The Institute brings to light and develops women of ability and high ideals, in all sections of the Province. Women of accomplishment in practical work, scientific and literary training are to be found everywhere and the Institute is a means through which their work becomes known, and the talent and knowledge becomes a source of benefit to the entire Province.

The well-born, well-bred, well-educated youths are our best asset. It is the duty of the Institute to work for and to encourage instruction in school and out of school, along home economic lines, in the broadest sense of the term, and our educational system falls largely in fitting the boys and girls for the work and responsibilities of later life. The women of our Institutes have it within their dominion to ask for instruction bearing directly upon the activities of womanhood.

Why We Should Encourage THE ESTABLISHMENT OF INSTITUTES IN NEW BRUNSWICK

The true pulse of womanhood beats strongly today at the door of opportunity, and the women of New Brunswick must be prepared to take their place side by side with sister Provinces in larger elements of Canadian home life.

The United Empire Loyalists, who bravely laid the foundation of Canada, were aided by women unused either to work or to the monotony of a working life. These our grandmothers, have shown us the way to the heights of the Capital of the United States.

The Institute affords us an opportunity of enjoying by the home fire, the joys of the past, the pleasures of our organization, an opportunity to become more enterprising, more skilled in the affairs of home life, in dress, in cookery, in scientific house-keeping and nursing. Through its influence we may cultivate social taste and style, in the pressure of domestic service becomes less wearisome when we feel that throughout the Province, in the quiet of the ranch, town or fishing village, our home life is tuned in harmony with the women of the town and country, and as we look upon the beautiful features of our Province, our wondering eyes see in the distance our possibilities as women in helping to improve the home life, making home the most attractive place for the boys and girls, the most restful place for the man.

The plainest cottage may be the centre of attraction if the women who dwell therein have the home attractive with the brightest of home-love, good books, sweet music. How we recall mother's songs heard in our youth and her gifts of home-love, and we returned from school accompanied by our comrades, how painstaking we all were to clean our shoes, to save her extra work, that she might have the time to help us with our work or play.

The Women's Institute of today is endeavoring to help the women in the home in such a way that the daily round of duties may be so arranged that we will have time to help make home life brighter for all around us—that our cookery may be the most wholesome—our dress both useful and artistic, (for ready-made clothing is never cheap) our reading hours daily, not just a rare treat.

Women's Institutes Strengthen the Home Life.

Canadian women of today must take an interest in all that concerns women, or the crowds of new settlers coming to our shores will usurp the places we now hold, and their ways will rule the home, not ours. And so we urge the establishment of Women's Institutes as a means of strengthening the home life. The Women's Institute is an intellectual and social awakening among women who are homemakers and mothers. Home is the most ancient organization that woman has ever belonged to and the most modern and interesting that will ever become established, and it is the mother heart responding to the call of the needy that gives us our organization. The times have become so busy that we must put our heads and hearts together in council to help each other, and if we have a wise or pleasant thought to pass it on.

A small deed honestly performed is a work of great merit; a small seed may grow into an extensive banyan tree.—Indian proverb.

CALLS HER "FIANCEE" ON TELEPHONE, WIFE ANSWERS "WHO ARE YOU?"

Miss Naomi Shaw has filed an action in the Supreme Court of New York for $50,000 damages against John R. Armstrong, wealthy real estate operator, of Cleveland, Ohio, for alleged breach of promise. The action followed a telephone call to Mr. Armstrong while he was stopping in New York city. She says she telephoned to talk over arrangements for their wedding and received the shock of her life when a woman's voice answered the call and told her that she was talking to the wife of her friend. Miss Shaw, who still uses the Miss, although she has been married and divorced, is twenty-four years old.

Italy on Serbia's Side in the End, Says Editor

New York, July 30.—Mr. Dashan Popovich, editor of the Serbian News, of this city, in speaking of the Serbian situation to a Herald reporter, said: "At the present time the outlook is somewhat dark for Serbia. There is no doubt that we would eventually be worsted if the conflict should be localized to Austria and Serbia, because of the force of greater numbers. Patriotism, however, is rampant and my countrymen would stop at nothing to distinguish themselves in this war as they did with notable success in the recent Balkan wars."

"Austria is blinded with grief at the death of the Archduke. She has Germany for an ally, Italy, the other member of the Triple Alliance, cannot in my opinion, assist Austria in a war with Serbia for a reason that has not yet been discussed. This lies in the fact that the approach to the Adriatic Sea is commanded by two ports diametrically opposite to each other, one port, Bari, is on the Italian side, the other port, Antivari, belongs to Montenegro. Antivari is the only port to which Serbia has access."

"Italy cannot afford to have her interests in the Adriatic interfered with by allowing Austria to capture the port of Antivari. I understand that at the present time Austria has twenty-six battle ships at Cattaro, near Antivari. Therefore, I believe that if Austria makes any move against Antivari Italy will withdraw from the Triple Alliance and may in the end be found fighting against Austria."

Russia Must Aid Serbia.
"As to the triple entente, we have never considered Russia a faithful ally to Serbia. She has left Serbia in the lurch on previous occasions. But in this instance it is almost inevitable that Russia should help Serbia because her interests are of such a peculiar nature that they cannot be overlooked."

"In speaking of the murdered Archduke Mr. Popovich said: "We Serbians here know the true cause of the murder. But Austria also knows it, and it is somewhat preposterous for Austria to seize upon that as an excuse for war. The Serbian Prime Minister, Mr. Paolich, has on many occasions declared that what Serbia needs now is peace so as to recuperate from the effects of the last war. So it is not likely that there would have been a concerted conspiracy in Serbia to plunge that little country into a war with Austria."

"Serbia is infected with an anarchistic organization, known as the National Anarchists, as distinguished from the 'Reds'. The first organization is purely patriotic. It is true, however, that many of them have been reading anarchistic literature distributed by the 'Reds,' and because of this have reached the conclusion that bloodshed and assassination would help the cause of Serbia. Notwithstanding the fact that the government of Serbia has taken steps to stamp out this organization, Austria still refuses to take cognizance of the fact and insists on war."

Saved Austria from the Turks.
"Why should not Austria not recognize the fact that the Serbians have been always friendly to her? On more than one occasion they have helped to save her from the fiery sword of the Turks. The relations remained friendly until Austria began to crave Serbian territory. She already has Herzegovina and Bosnia, but is not content and wants more. She seems to overlook the fact that Serbia is capable of mobilizing an army of 500,000. How many more from New Serbia, recently acquired, I am not able to state. There are also many Serbian regiments in the Hungarian army. Certainly Austria cannot count on these to support her."

Carman, Manitoba.—"A breaking out between my fingers was the first trouble. It was very itchy and spread to my finger tips affecting the nails. It first appeared in watery blisters and they were so intensely itchy I scratched them and let the water out making sores. They would swell up, itch and burn and finally the nails would loosen and come off. I slept many sleepless nights. I did not dare to put my hands in water except to wash them."

"I kept using ointments, but was not cured. Sometimes the sores would heal a little but would be free from it altogether. I was that way for ten years trying everything. I heard of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for them and before I had used them half a dozen times I noticed an improvement. By washing with the Cuticura Soap and applying the Cuticura Ointment frequently was cured in three months." (Signed) Miss Florence E. Sanderson, May 20, 1913.

FOX RANCHERS RESPONSIBLE

Promoters of Compsny awarded damages—Features of interest to all Fox people.

One of the most interesting fox cases tried in the Supreme Court since the industry was established in P. E. Island, was that of B. Carruthers and others against R. A. Taylor and J. W. Carruthers of Montague. The plaintiffs in the suit reside in Saskatchewan and organized a company in Leathburn, Sask., known as the Leathburn Fox Co. They purchased from the plaintiffs in July 1912 a female fox under a contract by which it was provided amongst other things that the defendants would mate the female fox so sold with a fox of their own and provide the produce between the plaintiff and the defendants. It was further provided by the agreement that if anything should happen to the fox purchased by the plaintiff, that the defendants would lend to the plaintiff a female fox until such time as the plaintiff obtained their share of a litter. It was contended by the plaintiffs that they never have received their share of the litter, and on the part of the defendant it was claimed that the female fox did produce a litter which died immediately after being born. The defendant, Taylor, who had charge of the ranch in which the foxes were, contended that the litter was born alive and that this was a fulfillment of the contract. Taylor, who contended that the plaintiff who contended first that the mother of the foxes died without having produced any live litter, and that in any event there was no litter available from which they receive their share of same. The defendants, John W. Carruthers, did not contest the suit, but conceded that there was a breach of contract on the part of himself and his co-defendant and asserted that he was willing to pay his share of the damages. An interlocutory judgment by default was obtained against him. He was the principal witness on behalf of the plaintiff against his co-defendant, R. A. Taylor, who contended the suit, claiming that he was not liable. Among the witnesses examined on the case were Hon. Charles Dalton, Dr. Ross of Charlottetown, R. W. Stewart, a leading fox man, J. W. Carruthers and R. A. Taylor. The case was tried before Chief Justice Sir Wilfrid Sullivan and a jury at Georgetown. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff for $5,000 for breach of contract on the part of the defendant.

NEW FOX COMPANY.
 The Canadian Gazette announced the incorporation of the Consolidated Fur Farms, Ltd., with head office at Sunny Brae, Westmorland county. The capital stock is $15,000.

A TALE OF A FOX.
 An amusing incident not unknown in the fox industry, occurred in Sackville's numerous fox companies. A blue fox belonging to one of the Sackville numerous fox companies gave birth to twelve little ones.

Shortly after their birth, the mother who apparently possesses no true motherly instincts, or possibly hurried from excitement, was found to have destroyed three of these valuable little animals. Later the management held an indignation meeting notwithstanding this was the most sacred day of the week, but there was no time to lose, and something had to be done; it was therefore decided that the nine remaining foxes must have a true and faithful mother. Various members of the company were dispatched to different localities and the country was scoured for miles, to procure wet nurses to do the duties required of their unnatural mother. In
