Sam Small's Unique Lectures—Fall in Coal Prices.

Toronto, May 14.—"The Rich Man's Revenue and the Poor Man's Pay" was the subject of Sam Small's eloquent lecture last night in the auditorium, which he handled to the great delight of the large audience, who requested its repetition before Dr. Small leaves Toronto. The lecture showed that the revenue, which, he said, is the only excuse for the liquor traffic, comes from the consumers, not from the salconkeeper, and is a charge added to the drink. It is a bribe to the public on the plea of reducing taxes. The lecture was a clever presentation of the subject of license and revenue, and was frequently applauded.

An Aldborough Man Accidentally Shot Dead.

Death of a Young Man at St. Thom

Roder, Oat., May 15.—Tuesday morning a tragic death occurred about six and a half miles north of here. Robert Graham for some time past has been working his brother's farm near Clachan. On Tuesday morning, after calling his brother's wife, he took his gun and, it is supposed, went to the barn to shoet rats. Not coming in to breakfast, Mrs. D. Graham, his sister-in-law, went out to see what was keeping him. On reaching the barn a shocking sight met her gaze. Robert was lying about twelve feet from the door with his coat and vest open and one boot off. Upon examination it was found that the gun had been discharged and the contents had entered his breast. It would appear that he was sitting down, and had let the gun lean against his breast, to take off his boot to shake out some lumps of clay when it came in contact with the trigger of the gun, causing it to go off. On the other hand, some incline to the belief that it was a case of suicide. The remain's were taken to Ekfrid, where deceased's parents residence, Manitoba street, last night from the effects of an overdose of chloroform. Dr. Falton had intended performing an operation on him, and the chloroform was administered in the doctor's office by a medical student. Deceased was married about three weeks ago.

THE LATE SENATOR LEONARD. THE LATE SENATOR LEONARD.

The late Senator Leonard whose death was announced in yesterday's ADVERTISER, was born near Syracuse, New York State, on Sept. 10, 1814. He was thus in the 77th year of his age. While he was yet a young man, the family moved to Long Point, and four years later, in 1830, he came to St. Thomas, then a mere hamlet in the woods, where he commenced to manufacture engines and boilers in a small way.

later, in 1833, he came to St. Inomas, then a mere hamlet in the woods, where he commenced to manufacture engines and boilers in a small way.

His advent in London dates from 1838, when he removed to this city and built a foundry on Fullarton and Ridout streets, where he continued in an ever-growing business until fire destroyed the works in 1865. In 1853 he had erected a large building on York street, between Waterloo- and Colborne streets, which he used for carbuilding purposes in connection with his foundry, and when the latter was burned down, he converted these premises into a foundry and machine shop. In 1875 his two sons—Frank and Charles—were admitted into partnership. Their establishment was destroyed for the second time by fire in 1881, but undaunted by this the firm immediately rebuilt on the same site, and on a larger scale to meet their increased business. The firm of E. Leonard & Sons is one of the best known in the country, their trade extending throughout the Dominion. Employing as they do a large number of men—necessarily skilled mechanics—such an institution is invaluable to the city, an important factor in maintaining her commercial prestige, and a tribute to those under whose management it has so prospered. The late Senator Leonard was a successful manufacturer and a progressive citizen, and asked for no Government favors to assist him in conducting his business. It was his belief that with cheap raw material he could hold his own in the markets of this continent or any other. His sons have been trained up shrewd, keen business men like himself, and in his later years have taken entire charge of the business.

Mr. Dow is interested in the new company which intends boring for gas and oil between Stratford and Mitchell, and of which James Trow, M.P., W. G. Mowat and others are promoters. They have obtained the opinion of Dr. Selwyn, Dominion geologist, and eminent American scientists, to the effect that the place which they propose to operate on is of the same formation as the Ohio oil and gas region, running in a straight northeast direction. If gas is found in sufficient quantity the company straight northeast direction. If gas is found in sufficient quantity the company will pipe it to London at a charge of from 25 to 35 cents per 1,000 feet, and also to Toronto, Stratford, and other places at proportionate rates. There was a large pastor, Rev. C. C. Couzens, delivered a very touching and suitable discourse from John, xiii., I: "Having loved his own, which were in the world, he loved them unto the end." The deceased was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Evans. She was of a gentle and amiable nature, and was universally esteemed. Thus "it is meet and proper that we should as a society give thanks to the Heavenly Father for his protecting care and the measure of success he has vouchsafed to us in this Dominion." It then suggests that all the lodges in the Dominion join in a service of praise and thanksgiving by attending Divine service on the morning of May 24.

WQODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Forest Camp, No. 1, of Ontario, Woodmen of the World, was instituted in the hall over the Bank of Commerce on April 30 by Wm. A. Ramplin, provisional head consul, with 25 charter members. The following named officers were elected and installed: Consul Commander, James McCormick; lieutenant adviser, Wm. J. Logie, M. D.: excellent banker, John H. Saunders; clerk, Marcel Hoehn; escort, James T. Logie; watchman, A. Friendship; sentry, George E. Coleman; managers, E. Jarmain, G. T. Morris, R. E. Scarlett; physician, Wm. J. Logie, M.D. Forest Camp will meet the first and third Fridays in each month in the lodge hall over the Bank of Commerce building. A London cable says: Five hundred Knights Templar of Albany, N. Y., are expected to arrive here, in the latter part of July on a tour through Europe. They have applied to Minister Lincoln to obtain from the British Government permission to wear their side arms and regalia while in England. Mr. Matthews, the Home Secretary, has been consulted on the subject and has hinted that it is impossible to make an exception in the case of the Albany Knights. The latter insist upon the right to wear their uniform and arms and parade Knights. The latter insist upon the right to wear their uniform and arms and parade the deck of the steamer City of Chicago, which they have chartered for their voyage, although she sails under the British flag. To this, probably, no objection will be offered. Application has been made to the Government of the countries on the contenent which the Knights intend to visit, that they may be allowed to march through the streets armed gad in full regalia, bearing their banners and executing their maneuvers.

The regular meeting of Tecumseh Lodge, No. 144, A. F. and A. M., G. R. C., Stratford, on Thursday evening, will long be remembered as a red letter day among the Masonic fraternity in that city. Masons from all parts of the Province were assembled to do honor to R. W. Bro. Chris. McLellan, who was presented with a P. D. D. G. M.'s apron, collar, jewel and gauntlets. The presentation was made on behalf of Tecumseh and Stratford Lodges, Stratford; St. James' Lodge, St. Marys; Tudor ot Tecumseli and Stratford Lodges, Stratford; St. James' Lodge, St. Marys; Tudor Lodge, Mitchell, and of his numerous Masonic friends in all parts of the Province. At 10 p.m. the R. W. D. G. M., Hon. J. M. Gibson, was introduced, and after being welcomed by the lodge, R. W. Bro. J. E. Harding made the presentation in his usual happy style.

The court made the policeman who had arrested the prisoner whistle "The Marseillaise" to see if he knew the famous hymn. Then the prisoner was ordered to whistle the march he claimed to have learned in the Hussars. It proved to be suspiciously similar to "The Marseillaise," and the unlucky whistler was fined 15 marks for his indiscretion.

"The Coming School of Medicine "-The Histogenetic System.

Chicage, Jan. 1. 1888.

This is to certify that I have made a thorough investigation of the Histogenetic Medicines, prepared by Dr. J. Eugene Jordan, and of his unique methods of research, and am therefore competent to form a correct judgment. I pronounce them marvelous products of the highest skill, showing an acquaintance with the highest skill, showing an acquaintance with the natural sciences far in advance of any savat with whose works the world is acquainted. The amount of time and painstaking which the doctor has expended upon the single branch of spectroscopy is enormous, and his discovries in my own practice, I can say that their adual success in curing disease is as great as is their my own practice, I can say that their adual success in curing disease is as great as is their discovery. The revolution of the Medical success in curing disease is as great as is the science of to-day is no dream—it is at hand.

Prof. Chem. And Toxicology, Hahmeman Medical College of Chicago.

The Histogenetic theory of reaching disease is: Rebuilding the diseased cells and disease is: Rebuilding the diseased cells and issues of the body, with the same proximate principal and ferments, organic bodies, and so on, which are normally prepared in the body by the glands. The medicines are propared by chemical processes, in a perfectly pure condition and are quite taxteless. Diseases heretofore considered incurable are cured by these medicines improves at once.

The Pick of Two Wholesale Bankrupt Stocks of Drygoods.

It never rains but it pours, so the old adage says, and in accordance with this we have another bankrupt stock to add to the many bargains we are now offering to the people of London.

We have purchased the choice portion of the Birrell bankrupt stock and are now prepared to offer astonishing bargains in every department. This with the one already advertised (McLachlan Bros., of Montreal) makes the greatest sale of bankrupt Drygoods ever held in London. Purchasers of every line of Drygoods will study their interest by looking through these two wholesale bankrupt stocks. Jobbers and country merchants will find many interesting lines in this stock to boom their business during the present dull times.

-A London visitor to Ottawa report that Sir John Macdonald is not in very good health, and that his condition gives much concern to his numerous friends, who are afraid that his constitution is breaking up. This information is confirmed by a dispatch from Ottawa, which states that on Tuesday Sir John had to go home ill, and that though he drove up to his office yesterday to receive a deputation he had to return home almost immediately, and was no present in the House. He has aged very rapidly in the last year, and those who have come in contact with him say that he has lost much of his former good humor. It is to be regretted that the Conservativ chief is in a condition of health so precarious. Business in the House is delayed when he is absent from it for at least a part of the day. The general hope will be that he may take a turn for the better soon, but in Sir John Macdonald, as in all aged Parliamentarians, years count, and the long and often wearisome sessions are hard on even robust constitutions.

Dyspepsia

Makes many lives miserable, and often leads to self destruction. Distress after eating, sick head-ache, heartburk, sour stomech, mental depression, etc., are caused by this very common and increasing disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla tones the stomach, creates an appetite, promotes healthy digestion, relieves sick headache, clears the mind, and cures the most obstinate cases of dyspepsia. Read the following:

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness or tred, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me au immense amount, of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced. It relieved me of that faint, tired, all-gone feeling. I have felt so inuch better since I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I am happy to recommend its." G. A. Pacis, Watertown, Mass. N. B. Be sure to got only

At a prayer meeting one brother prayed that the Lord would "carry the lambs in His bosom and lead them on to greater victories." Another that "the wheels of the Gospel chariot should go to the hearts of sinners." Still another asked the Lord to be "a father to the fatherless, and a widow to the widowless." It is well for brethren who lead in prayer to be careful to avoid set phrases, however finely they may sound.

Steamship Collision — A Catastrophe Averted.

GIBRALTAR, May 14.—What might have been a repetition of the Utopia disaster occurred at 11 o'clock last night off Europa Point, very near the spot where on March 16 the Utopia sank. The British steamer Buccaneer, from the Mediterranean en route to an English port, collided with the Italian vessel Stura, Capt. Valle, bound for New York. The Stura had on board a large number of Italian emigrants going to the United States. A scene of wild confusion followed, which it was difficult to quell, but an investigation showed that while the bows of the Stura had been stove, and the starboard side of the Buccaneer had been badly damaged, nobody on either steamer was seriously hurt.

Suppose the sergeant of the drug would be given to Trenchard himself; he would think her careless of her promise; worse than that, he would be exposed again to temptation, and Dora knew enough of such cases as his to guess that effort of renunciation would be followed sooner or later by a reaction.

All this might be avoided were she to go and meet the sergeant on the road. She set out to walk towards Moyrath, along the high road was as quiet as any boreen that branched off from it to some outlying cottage. For a distance from Carriconna it was bounded on either side by tall hedges; these gave way to low stone walls, beyond either of which the country stretched away for many a lonely mile, though here and there a short ridge of hills narrowed the horizon. No spot apter for thought or reverie. The waning sun, arrested by the high and arching trees along a portion of the road, showed in patches and bread dars across it. The road was already almost dry again.

"A very strange afternoon indeed!" "A very strange afternoon indeed!" "So you can be, sergeant; but remember that the sick are not as we are."

thought Dora. She was not thicking of

"So he really cares for me!" A woman of Dora's knowledge and experience could not indeed entertain much doubt on that point.

"And he suffered so! Yes, and he will have more to suffer yet, poor fellow! Will have more to suffer yet, poor fellow! Will he succeed? I have read—or did Aiec tell me!—that one scarcely ever does succeed. Well, will he succeed? I think that will depend a little upon me—a good deal, perhaps."

"Tis the best thing you could say for

"I have the package, sergeant, but I think I shall send it back again to you unopened," said Dora, as she got down from the trap.

She turned a corner of the road and saw the sergeant driving towards her.

The sergeant draw up beside her.

Salute, and "Nothing wrong, ma'am, I hope?" "Not at all, sergeant; Mr. Trenchard seems decidely better this afternoon." "Very restless when I was with him, ma'am."

"He was asleep when I came out."
"Very glad, ma'am;" and this was something more than formula, for the whole expression of the sorgeant's face softened as he said it.

"I hope so, ma'am. 10ana you and Good day, sergeant!"

"Good day, sergeant!"

Dora passed through the "grand gates," and Sergeant Jones returned to Moyrath.

Dora liked to make friends with every-body. She had made friends that afternoon with Sergeant Jones. She would have been flattered had she heard all that the sergeant said of her in the housekeeper's room at Moyrath that evening.

sergeant?"
Sergeant Jones stiffened himself a little. His air was grave again.
The prim soldier considered that this strange affection of his master was an affair which involved, in some way, the honor of the family. It was something upon which he held that reticence the most severe and rigid was a prime duty on the part of a retainer. Sergeant Jones had felt himself under a cloud these two years past, not on his own, but on his master's account. If he continued to hold his head as erect as formerly, it was that he was prompted by the (To be Continued.) continued to hold his head as creet as formerly, it was that he was prompted by the sense of duty, rather than (as of old) by the sense of duty, rather than (as of old) by the sense of inner rectitude. The whole matter was a troublous mystery to the sergeant. He saw a young and affectionate master—the sen of a revered master—alipping down what seemed to him to be the path of weakly self-indulgence; he was astonished, mortified, humiliated. But, he, with his wife, had guarded the secret jealously. He thought that his wife and himself had it for their own.

Trenchard wishes it; he has spoken to me.

There was no mistaking the tone in which Dora said this.

The sergeant—a shrewd man enoughperceived that the honor of the family was in no danger here. The handsome widow was a friend, possibly even an ally.

Sergeant Jones became gallant; but in the interests of the family.

"You've walked a good piece, ma'am. We're a mile and three-quarters from the house. If you'll be so kind as to get up, I'll drive you home again."

Dora was quite willing, perhaps more than willing. She had divined already that the servant was in some degree his master's confidant.

When she was seated in the gig the sergeant took a small packet from his pocket and gave it to her.

"I' hope it won't be wanted, ma'am," said the faithful Jones.

"I' do not think it will, sergeant."

"You've had a talk with the master, ma'am?"

"You don't say so, ma'am! What, weal and tied up like that?"
"Sergeant," said Dora, "my husband was a doctor, and I learned something from him about many kinds of diseases. Your master is ill with an illness that requires a treatment of its own. He is a patient, and must be treated as such. He wants more than a common doctor. Not one doctor in a thoustnd knows what to do in such a case as this. Sergeant, you must turn doctor yourself and you must take your instructions from me."

"What instructions, ma'am?" said the sergeant, whose habitual phlegm did not avail him here. Dora had a kind of magnetism about her, which was not easy to resist.

"What do you think of your master, sergeant?" said she.

"Think of him, ma'am? Why that there was no one like him—bar his father—two years ago!"

The late James Redpath believed himself to have been the first person to put the verb "to boyoott" in print. One night during one of his visits to Ircland he sat writing a dispatch to a New York paper, when suddenly he found himself at a loss for a word to express what was then happening to Capt. Boyoott. "Use Boycott's name as a verb," said a priest at his elbow, and Redpath accepted the suggestion.

—Jessie Willis, an old woman, was before the police magistrate yesterday, charged with trespassing on the G. T. R. She was discharged on Tuesday for drunkenness, and without money or ticket boarded a train going west, but was stopped at Komoka and sent back to this city. She was allowed to go again.

—A 16-year-old girl named Jessie O'Toole had Joseph Kelly before the police magistrate yesterday, charged with assault. The plaintiff said that she and a girl companion were walking accross Victoria Park Tuesday about noon, and were laughing as Kelly and another passed them. The defendant accused her of laughing at him, and this led to words. Kelly then kicked her in the side, also slapping her face. Magistrate Parke imposed a fine of $10 or one month. Kelly complains that the girl is a source of constant annoyance to him.

—A well-known citizen living on Wolfe street secured all the doors of his house Wednesday as usual and retired. This morning his servant girl and the citizen's small son were found to have spent the night locked in the cellar. They had been doing some work in the laundry and were innocently fastened in by the head of the household. They crawled out through the cellar window two or three times during the night and tried to awaken the family by ringing the door bell, but they finally had to retire to the cellar again and spent the night in sleeplessness and indignation.

—A pleasing event took place at the residence of Mr. Richard Adoock, 713 Richmond street, Wednesday, being the marriage of his eldest daughter Agnes to Mr. Richard Bickley, of Westminster. Rev. Archdeacon Marsh tied the knot that made in them man and wife. Miss Annie Adoock and Mr. Peters supported the bride and from the remaining supper, only the immediate friends of the family being present. The many costly presents testified to the high esteem of the bride's numerous friends.

At the meeting of the Finance Committee of the Board of Education held last evening at the City Hall the question of exhibiting school supplies and work at the International Teachers' Convention in Toronto was referred to the inspector. Kindergarten assistants will hereafter be made to attend to their duties more closely than heretofore. The raise in salary asked by R. Graham was refused, while Mr. Andrews and Miss Hanson, of the Collegiate Institute. were each given $100 increase. The promotion of Miss Yates to the position vacated by Miss Coyne was decided on. Requests of the following for more pay were laid over: Messrs. McQueen, Learn, Wright, Althouse, Misses Yates, Pitcher, Coyne and Geeson. Applications for positions as kindergarten assistants were handed over to the inspector, with power to place Misses Dennis and Gore. Miss Jeffery was appointed to a vacancy in Waterloo street north school. Owing to the illness of Mr. Somerville, of the Collegiate, Miss Wilson, of Toronto, will temporarily fill his position. Accounts were passed and a few other minor matters attended to, subject, of course, to the approval of the Board. Trustees Yates (chairman), Jeffery, Durdin, Stephenson, McElheran, Allaster, Dewar, McRobert and Vining were present.
