Satisfactory Liberal Nominations at St. John, N. B.

North Perth Conservative Convention Ended in a Row.

West Durham Election Trial Results in Favor of the Member-Elect-The School Question in Quebec.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY. QUEBEC, Feb. 25.-Mr. Perreault, Who was only defeated at the elections of 1891 by a majority of 25 for Mr. Cimon, has again accepted the Liberal candidature for Charlevoix. WEST NORTHUMBERLAND LIB-ERALS.

COBOURG, Feb. 25.-No immediate momination was the result of the Liberal convention which met here Saturday afternoon. After some time spent in careful debate as to who was the fittest man to be the standard-bearer of the Liberal cause in West Northumberland, the convention with singular unanimity tendered the nomination to Wm. Kerr, Q.C., LL.D., "the old warhorse," as he is styled in the riding, the man who in the past has led the party to victory, and who is regarded as cer tain to carry the constituency again if he will place himself in the field. Personal considerations made Mr. Kerr extremely reluctant to accept the nomireation, but he was given a week in which to decide, the convention adjourning for two weeks. FAILED TO NOMINATE.

Stratford Beacon: The Conservatives met in convention for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the House of Commons. For some reason or other -the blame is laid on the snow blockadle-a good many of the delegates were absent, and the convention adjourned till March 5, without nominating a candidate. Messrs. Wm. Alexander, W. S. Dingman, John Read and S. R. Hesson were in favor of indorsing the candidature of Mr. Freeborn, the McCarthyite. Mr. F. W. Gearing led in a vigorous protest against this proposal. Mr. Gearing wanted a delegation appointed to interview Mr. Freeborn, who was understood to be in the village, to ascertain whether or not his Conservative principles were as sound as ever. If they were not, Mr. Gearing declared that he and others would support Mr. Grieve in preference. The delegation was not appointed, and after as elegant a row as one could wish to see or take part in, the convention adjourned.

SCHOOL QUESTION. The Manitoba school question is coming more and more to the point in Quebec Province as the campaign goes on and there is an increasing feeling that the Government will make an attempt to settle the question before the elections in order to retain its ground in Quebec. This impression is carefully fanned by the French Conservative newspapers. La Presse, the evening French Conservative organ, gives the following version of the caucus: "The Minister of Public Works explained to his friends that under the present circumstances it would be extremely difficult to obtain from the House complete redress of the grievances of the Catholics, because the members from the English Provinces on the eve of presenting themselves again before the elctors would not dare to vote in favor of the complete remedial measures which Sir Mackenzie Bowell intends to propose, while after the elections, after the members were elected for five years, it would probably be as easy to obtain ample justice for Catholics. The Government has determined to present itself before the people with a definite programme on this question. The programme will be announced in an order in Council, and if the House elected at the next elections refuses to sanction it, the present Ministry, if retained in power, would make it a question of life or death, as it would be bound to do in consequence of the order in Council previous to the elections."

Such was the explanation of Mr. Ouimet, and in face of it the meeting consented to elections immediately. La Presse goes on to say that Ministers from this Province were requested by their chief to go to the bishops of the Province of Quebec, while others went to the bishops of other Provinces to submit to them the proposed order in Council mentioned. According to the proposal, the Federal Parliament will appropriate for the maintenance of Catholic separate schools the immense area of land reserved for public instruction in the Province of Manitoba. This is the story outlined by La Presse.

THE WEST DURHAM ELECTION

TRIAL. TORONTO, Feb. 25.-Judgment was given this morning by Judges Rose and Ferguson on the charge of kidnapping in the West Durham election case, the point having been reserved from the trial at Bowmanville last week. The charge was sustained, but was not deemed sufficient to void the election, all the other charges having been already dismissed. Mr. W. R. Reid, the Conservative member-elect was, therefore, declared confirmed in his seat. Costs were given against the petitioner in every charge, save that of kidnapping, which was proved.

MR. JOLY ACCEPTS. QUEBEC, Feb. 25.-Hon. H. G. Joly has accepted the Liberal candidature in Portneuf county.

EAST ELGIN LIBERALS. The Liberal convention to nominate a candidate for the Commons for East Elgin, postponed on account of the smallpox, will be held in the town hall, Aylmer, on Monday, March 4, at 1 p.m. SIR DONALD SMITH SELECTED.

DISESTABLISHMENT IN WALES. LONDON, Feb. 25.-In the House of Commons, Home Secretary Asquith moved the first reading of the Disestablishment of the Church in Wales Bill. Mr. Asquith said the bill proposed that the church should cease to be established in Wales and Monmouth in January, 1897; that provision be made for the formation of a representative body made up from the clergy and laity, to which power should be given to regulate ecclesiastical matters; that the church should be transferred to this body and the glebes to the parish, districts and town councils, and that other property vested in the church be placed in the hands of a commission of clergymen, who should receive their present emoluments during their lives, the income from the remainder of the property to be used in the erection and maintenance of hospitals, dispensaries and convalescent homes; to provide nurses for the sick poor, for laborers, dwelling allotments, and for technical higher education. The opponents of the bill, he said, might accuse them of attempting to secularize religious funds, but the Government held that the purposes mentioned were truly religious and that there would be no profanation of a fund dedicated to plous uses in applying it to the relief of the suffering. The bili was conceived in an honest desire to satisfy a genuine demand of a vast of the church. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Conservative member for West Bristol, replied to Mr. Asquith. He characterized as sheer political cant the Home Secretary's r marks as to the appropriation of church property for charitable purposes. The Government proposals, he said, were without precedent in English history. and would be resented by millions of English men and women,

The McClary Company's Enamel Works in Operation,

And Buyers No Longer Need to Import Their Goods.

Up-to-Date Machinery and Skilled Imported Workmen.

An Interesting Description of an Interesting Process, Which Has Been Jealously Guarded by the Different Manufacturers.

London may now lay claim to the honor of possessing the first Enamel Works successfully operated in Canada. This is in accordance with the intention briefly outlined by Mr. John McClary when he appeared before the City Council, some time last fall, and received permission to pipe petroleum, to be used as fuel, from the G. T. R. track to the building. Since that time the work has not lagged. In October a permit was taken out for the erection of the neces-sary building, and workmen began their task. It is a plain, substantial building, almost hidden behind the immense King street wing of the factory, the chimney alone, as it progressed skyward, giving any indication of what was going on. There was no ceremony either at the laying of the corner stone, or on the completion of the building. The city fire brigade, however, felt called upon to be present when the fires were started. The burning petroleum caused an immense amount of smoke before the burners became properly adjusted, and a pedestrian, fearing that the factory

Fortunately the process was found to be successful from the turning out of the very first vessel. This would not be matter of comment in an ordinary business, but the secret process of enameling has been so jealously guarded by the manufacturers that it is very difficult to successfully turn out work even after many trials, let alone the very first.

"Hitherto this ware has all been imported into Canada," said Mr. Wm. A. Gunn, secretary of the McClary Company, to a reporter; "but we came to the conclusion, although it involved a large expenditure of capital, and was considerable of an experiment, to try it. "The process has generally been con-

"The work requires very careful and delicate manipulaton from start to finish, as any fault in any of the various operations through which the vessels go will render the whole work useless. "We have done exceptionally well in being able to produce the ware. One firm is the United States are said to have spent $100,000 and never put a vessel on the market. "The outlay on building plant has already been large, and further extensions are to be made at once. All the skilled workmen are Germans, and they thoroughly understand their business. We will supply everything in the line of enamel goods known to the trade. The work takes its start in a machine shop, where, with deafening sound, ponderous machines stamp sheets of steel into the many shapes in which enameled ware is made. Then they are taken to the enameling shop to be annealed, or subjected to an intense heat that causes the steel to become softened and facilitates its being chemically

The visitor who follows the process next finds himself in a room full of vapor and steam of a rather peculiar odor. Large crates stand around, when filled with the steel vessels sink into chemical baths constructed beneath the floor. After being treated to several baths of this kind, they are handled by men who thoroughly scour them with sand and water. Then comes another chemical bath, and the articles are ready for the first coat of enamel, known as the base. Men who are known as the "slushers," stand over vats of liquid enamel, dipping the goods. After this process they are put by the "slushers" is peculiarly shaped iron stands, which are then placed on racks to dry. After drying they are ready for the first burning. This coat leaves them nearly black in color, and the vessels look quite cool. but it does not take long to find out that everything black in an enameling shop is not cool. After the first burning they are again dipped in enamel and burned again, and yet once more. The process is repeated three times in

The work is carried on day and night in order that the muffles may not be allowed to cool. The fires never die out. The petroleum and air, which composes the fuel, is injected under the muffles with much pressure, and the roar of the column of flame is tremendous. Behind the furnace the boilers are situated, and here the steam is generated for heating and cleaning pur-Very expensive fire brick is used in the construction of the muffles and the quantity used in building them was enormous.

The enterprise is an entirely new one in Canada, and a very important addition to the manufactories of the city of London. The entire work of the process from start to finish is done on the McClary premises. The machinery is new and complete, and the workmen skilled in every branch, and the company is deserving of the patronage of all Canadian dealers in entmel ware, not only for the reason that it is a home industry, but from the fact that the ware is equal in appearance and quality to that hitherto imported from England, Germany and the United

White Cross Work.

What Dr. De Costa Says of the Society-For Men Only, but Dependent Upon Women for Their Valuable Assistance.

Rev. Dr. B. F. De Josta, the eminent New York city divine, who spoke to an immense audience of men in the Grand Opera House on Sunday afternoon, addressed a gathering of men and women in Cronyn Hall last night. The meeting, though not very largely attended, was of deep interest, and the doctor's remarks were listened to with the greatest attention. Prof. Harrison presided, and on the platform with him were Rev. Dean Innes and Dr. De Costa. Dean Innes briefly introduced the speaker of the evening.

Dr. De Costa stated that he had been asked to explain the significance of the movement known as the White Cross, of which he was the general secretary. The society had been organized in England by the late Bishop of Durham. It spread throughout Great Britain, took possession of the universities, was combined with the Church of England Purity Society, and was now known as the White Cross Society of the Church of England, with the Archbishop of Canterbury at its head. From England it came to America, and has been spreading in the United States and Canada. Over the border the work was growing satisfactorily, though quietly, and was taking hold of the very best classes of men and women in churches, and steadily the banner of the White Cross was being advanced. The society had not come for a brief visit, not to figure a little while and then die. In regard to the temperance movement, the society was very close. It was very hard to get some men and women to agree as to what temperance was, but in many quarters where that was the case the society had found it easy to get an agreement on the subject with the principle. The society stood for social purity. It was not a negative society. Its aim was not to destroy, but rather to perform certain things. It drew its utility from the river of life. It is a society for men and men only, but it was greatly assisted by women. Its prime object is to save men, but in that object the members aimed to save women. It is a really wholesome movement, and based upon a clear and radical conception of what is demanded in any scheme of moral education. The platform of the society was not at all elaborate. All that was required of members was the daily observance of certain rules, among which were the treatment of women with respect, to endeavor to put down all indecent language, to maintain the law of purity as equally binding upon men and women, and to try to spread the principles of the order. There were multitudes of women who were in hearty accord with the society, but then there were many who weren't. "Do women always refuse." asked the doctor, "to receive the licentious man in their parlor and introduce him to their daughters? On the street, if they meet him, do they always gather their robes about them and move by carefully, avoiding this individual? I reply that they do, providing the licentious young man is poor. But suppose the man is rich and has an abundance of everything-how then? Do not matters feel a little differently?" So the White Cross called upon women to stand up impartially and treat the rich profligate just as she would treat the poor one. The movement was impartial, yet the society's did not propose to take the purity subject out of the hands of the church. It did not want to live, but to die. It wanted the church to live and other moral reform societies to die. The doctor further vigorously de nounced the revolt against sex, which was raised by some persons. It was a revolt against divine law. In speaking of the downfall of women in New York, Dr. De Costa stated that a scientific inquiry into 2,000 cases showed there were scarcely 50 who had not in some measure prepared the way through strong drink. Then the doctor mentioned the over-working of domestics at low wages as a great cause of the girls' downfall. The White Cross de manded equal pay for men and women who performed the same labor. Dr. De Costa was tendered a vote of

A Wonderful Cure of Bright's Disease at Ottawa. OTTAWA, Feb. 26. - The age of miracles has not passed. A young man in this city who had been a sufferer from Bright's disease for years has recently been entirely cured. According to the young man's story his convalescence was far more remarkable than that of either Dr. Ross or Dr. McCormick. From Dec. 28. 1893, until Nov. 15, 1894, he was confined to bed with two physicians in attendance, and although hundreds of dollars were spent in medicines he secured no relief until he commenced using Dodd's Kidney Pills. He is now right as a trivet and entirely cured and his medical advisers have also become converts to Dodd's Kidney Pills, Further particulars of this remarkable case will be issued as soon as I can interview the parties concerned. Look to your health. Alum baking powders destroy it. Dr. Price's is ab-

A Tobacco Company's Generosity. The George E. Tuckett & Sons Tobacco Company (Limited), of Hamilton, nine years ago instituted the commendable idea of presenting a deed of a building lot each Christmas to their oldest active employe. This year it was the good fortune of Mr. Thomas Milligan to succeed to the firm's generosity, he having been with them for 21 years. In addition to the lot he received a substantial check from the same source. The whole staff of the concern also came in for a gift, the day hands receiving an extra week's salary and the piece hands a good sized turkey. Some time age the Messrs. Tuckett turned their factory into a joint stock company, admitting many of the more important employes into partnership, and this additional evidence of a desire to share with their men the prosperity of the house cannot help but bear fruit in increased energy and good-will among all who are fortunate enough to be connected with this enterprising concern.

took for his subject yesterday afternoon "A Snowy Day," the text selected being I. Chronicles, xi., 22: "He went down and slew a lion in a pit in a snowy day.' Benaiah was a man of stout muscle and of great avoirdupois. His father was a hero, and he inherited prowess. There is trouble in all the neighborhood. Lambs are carried off in the night, and children venturing only a little way from their father's house are found mangled and dead. One morning a footstep of a lion was found tracked in the snow, and Benaiah, with only the oldtime weapon, follows the trail until he finds the beast in its retreat. Then he jumps into the pit, and the lion, with shining teeth of rage, and claws fitted to tear to shreds the last vestige of human life, springs for the man, while Benaiah springs for the beast. But the quick stroke of the steel edge flashed again, and again, and again, until the half covered with the tawny main of 4c, 5c, 7c YARD. the slain horror of Palestine. Now you see how emphatic, and tragic, and tre-mendous are the words of my text: "He went down and slew a lion in a pit in a snowy day." Why put that in the Bible—once in the Book of Samuel and here in the Book of Chronicles? Oh, the practical lessons are so many for you and for me. What a cheer in this subject for all those of you who are in conjunction of hostile circumstances.

Three things were against Benaiah of my text in the moment of combat—the snow that impeded his movement, the pit that environed him in a small space, 5c YARD and the lion, with open jaws and up-lifted paw. You say "I could stand one trouble, and I think I could stand two; but three are at least one too many."

There is a man in business perplexity, and who has sickness in his family, and old age is coming on. Three troubles—a lion, a pit and snowy day. There is a good woman with failing health, and a dissipated husband, and a wayward boy-three troubles! There is a young man, salary cut down, bad cough, frowning future—three troubles! There is a maiden with difficult school lessons she cannot get, a face that is not as attractive as some of her school mates, a prospect that through hard times she must quit school before she graduates three troubles! There is an author, his manuscript rejected, his power of origination in decadence, a numbness in forefinger and thumb. which threatens paralysis — three troubles! This is the opportunity to play the hero or the heroine, not on a small stage with a few hundred people to clap their approval, but with all the galleries of heaven filled with sympa-thetic and applauding spectators, for we are "surrounded by a great crowd of witnesses." My brother, my sister. my father, my mother, what a chance you have! While you are in the struggle, if you only have the grace of Christ to listen, a voice parts the heavens, saying: "My grace is sufficient for thee"; "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth"

"You shall be more than conquerors." Paul had three troubles. Sanhedrin denouncing him—that was one great trouble; physical infirmity, which he called a "thorn in the flesh," that was the second trouble; approaching martyrdom—that made the three troubles. Yet, hear what he says: "Sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; poor, yet making many rich; having nothing, yet possessing all things." "Thanks be unto God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

David had three troubles—a bad boy, a temptation to dissoluteness and dethronement. What does he say? "God is our refuge and our strength, a very present help in time of trouble. Therefore, will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be cast into the midst of the sea."

John Wesley had three troubles—defamation by mobs, domestic infelicity, fatigue from more sermons preached and more miles traveled than almost any man of his time. What does he say? "The best of all is, God is with us." And when his poet brother, Charles Wesley, said to him, "Brother John, if the Lord were to give me wings, I'd fly," John's reply was, "Brother Charles, if the Lord told me to fly, I'd do it, and leave him to find the wings."

George Whitefield had three troubles -rejection from the pulpits of England because he was too dramatic, that was one trouble; strabismus, or the crossing of his eyes, that subjected him to the caricature of all the small wits of the day; vermin and dead animals thrown at him while he preached on the commons—that made three troubles. Nev-ertheless, his sermons were so buoyant that a little child dying soon after hearing him preach said in the intervals of pain, "Let me go to Mr. Whitefield's

Notice in my text a victory over bad weather. It was a snowy day, when one's vitality is at a low ebb, and the spirits are naturally depressed. Inspiration here admits atmospheric hindrance. The snowy day demolished Napoleon's army on the way from Mosreported thousands of merchants. Long succession of stormy Sabbaths has crippled innumerable churches. Tens of thousands of Christians of nervous temperament by the depression of vous temperament by the depression of a snowy day almost despair of reaching heaven. Yet in that style of weather Benaiah of the text achieved his most celebrated victory; and let us by the grace of God become victor over influences atmospheric. If we are happy only when the wind blows from the clear only when the wind blows from the clear northwest, and the thermometer is above freezing point, and the sky is an inverted blue cup of sunshine poured all over us, it is religion 95 per cent. off. Thank God, there are Christians who, though their whole life through who, though their whole hie through sickness has been a snowy day, have killed every lion of despondency that dared to put its cruel paw against their suffering pillow. Christ landed in our world not in the month of May, but in the storms month of December to the stormy month of December, to show us that we might have Christ in winter weather, and on a snowy day.

Notice everything down in the pit that snowy day depended upon Benaiah's weapon. Was it a dagger? Was it a javelin? Was it a knife? I cannot tell, but everything depended upon it. But for that Benaiah's body under one craunch of the monster would have been left limp and tumbled in the snow. And when you and I go into the fight with temptation, if we have not the right kind of weapon, instead of our slaying the lion, the lion will slay us.
The sword of the Spirit! Nothing in earth or hell can stand before that. By that I mean prayer to God, confidence in his rescuing power, saving grace, Almighty deliverance. I do not care what you call it: I call it "Sword of the Spirit." And if the lions of all the junspirit. paws, one on each lung. Alas! for the man not fully armed, down in the pit, on a snowy day, and before him a lion. All my hearers and readers have a big fight of some sort on hand, but the biggest and the wrathiest lion you have to fight is what the Bible calls "The roaring lion, who walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." The Apostle Peter calls the devil a lion. That means strength. That means bloodthirstiness. That means cruelty. That means destruction. Some of you have felt the strength of his paw, and the sharpness of his tooth, and the horror of his rag. But I am glad to say to all of you who have got the worst in Sich estruction that there is a Lion on such a struggle, that there is a Lion on our side, if you want him: Revelation, v., 5: "The Lion of Judah's tribe." But drive back the lion of bereavement with the thought which David Rae, of Edinburgh, got from the Scotch grave-digger, who was always planting white clover and the sweetest flowers on the children's graves in the cemetery, and when asked why he did so, replied, "Surely, sir, I camna make ower fine the bed coverin' o' a little innocent sleeper that's waitin' there till it's God's time to waken it, and cover it with the white robe, and waft it away to glory. When sic grandeur is awaitin' it yonder it's fit it should be decked oot here. I think the Saviour that counts its dust sae precious will like to see the white clover sheet spread ower it. Do ye no' think so too, sir?" Cheer up, all disconsolates! The best work for God and humanity has been done on the snowy day. Benaiah, on a cold, damp, snowy day, gained leonine triumph. Hardship and trouble have again and again exalted, and inspired, and glorified their Snowy day after snowy day. Again and again the machinery of health and courage broke down, and the waves of temptation have swept clear over the hurricane deck, so that you were often compelled to say, "All thy waves and thy billows have gone over me," and you were down in the trough of that sea, and down in the trough of the other sea, and many despaired of your safe arrival. But the great Pilot, the one who walked stormswept Galilee, and now walks the wintry Atlantic, comes on board, and heads you for the haven, when no sooner have you passed the narrows of death than you find all the banks lined with immortals celebrating your arrival; while some break off palm branches from the banks and wave them, those standing on one side will chant, "There shall be no more sea," and those standing on the other side will chant, "These are they which came out of great tribulation, and had their robes washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb." Off of the stormy sea into the smooth pit to guidance by the Lamb, who shall lead you to living fountains of water.

The majority of our public school teachers, male and female, have many dangers to face in a profession that is never overpaid.

At this moment hundreds of school teachers are invalids, or go about the performance of their duties in a halfdead way. Nervous troubles are prevalent amongst teachers; headache, dyspepsia, languor, irritability and despondency are common troubles, and make life truly miserable.

The school teachers' friend and lifegiver, Paine's Celery Compound, has done a wondrous work in the ranks of the afflicted ones. During the year 1894 scores of cases have come before our notice, of sick and suffering ones having been restored to new life, energy and activity through the use of nature's wonderful medicine.

Paine's Celery Compound has been a true blessing to every teacher who used it. The great medicine has dene its work promptly and efficaciously. It always begins its operations at the great nerve centers; it cleanses and purifies the blood, and takes all impurities from the system; it strengthens every digestive organ, and builds up the entire system. Every school teacher in the land, male and female, should use Paine's Celery Compound if sound health and perfect bodily strength is desired.

The 23rd general annual meeting of this company was held in its offices, London, Ontario, on Wedsesday the 13th of February, 1895. The meeting was largely attended by shareholders, Daniel Regan, Esq., president, in the chair. Mr. W. A. Lipsey, manager, acted as secretary. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and approved. The notice calling the meeting having been read, the annual report and statements were submitted as follows:

REPORT. The directors have much pleasure in presenting to the shareholders the 23rd annual report of the business of the company. The profits of the year (including $2,556 65 brought forward from last year) amount to $50,162 31; and, after providing for interest on borrowed capital, for cost of management, losses and anticipated deficiencies, two half-yearly dividends of 3 per cent each, amounting, with the shareholders' income tax thereon to $38,336 28, have been paid, leaving a net surplus of $11,826 03, of which $10,000 have been placed to reserve fund, and $1,826 03 carried forward at the credit of profit and loss account to next year.

The repayments on mortgages during the year have, on the whole, been satisfactory.

The deposits and debentures of the company, including interest, show an increase of $67,815 04 over the preceding

The demand for money, notwithstanding the keen competition among lenders, has been fair, at slightly better rates than during the previous year. Since our last report we have to record with much regret the death of Lieut.-Col. Moffat, who has been a director since the inception of the company. The vacancy thereby caused has been filled by the appointment of Mr. Thos. H. Smallman.

The books, vouchers and securities of the company have received the usual careful audit by the company's auditors, as set forth in their certificate appended hereto. All of which is respectfully submitted.

London, Ont., Jan. 31, 1895.

The president, in moving the adoption of the report, said: I may congratulate the stockholders and also the depositors and debenture holders on the close of another successful year's business-the stockholders on the profit derived from their investment, and the depositors and debenture holders on the increased security afforded by a substantial addition to the reserve fund.

The net profits, after paying two halfyearly dividends of 3 per cent each, have been sufficient to add $10,000 to the reserve fund, which now amounts to $130,000, and to carry $1,826 03 forward at the credit of profit and loss account to next year. The funds of the company are loaned only in the best portions of Western Ontario, each loan being carefully inspected by an officer of the company and subjected to a rigid scrutiny by the board before being accepted. The result of this careful policy is shown by the trifling amount of "losses on real estate.

Notwithstanding the keen competition for loans the business of the company shows a satisfactory increase and repayments, both of interest and principal, have been on the whole promptly met.

I hope and believe that the extreme limit of shrinkage in the value of real estate has been reached, and while I do not look for any advance in the near future, I believe that desirable land will find a more ready market, as the emi-gration of farmers from Ontario to the Northwest has practically ceased, and our young men, instead of leaving the Province, will become purchasers at home. The company has been fortunate in securing the services of so wellknown and able a business man a Mr. Thomas H. Smallman to fill the vacancy on the board caused by the lamented death of Col. Moffat. Twenty-three years of uninterrupted success warrant us in anticipating that. with wise and prudent management, the future will show satisfactory results. I take pleasure in testifying to the zeal and efficiency with which the manager and every member of the staff discharge their respective duties.

'They had made him (Essery) their candidate before, and he wanted to say that he would back the candidate of the convention, but after the election day was over he would even the matter if the man who knifed him came out. * * * * He would not withdraw until he saw who else stood, for he wanted it to be known that the day had gone by when any one could be boycotted for the benefit of anyone else."

This is an insinuation that Judge Elliot had no power to defend himself against the accusations which his conduct brought down on him. But it is not so; neither is it true that no Conservative newspaper condemned Judge Elliot. A number of them did, including Toronto Saturday Night, edited and controlled by that stalwart Conservative, E. E. Sheppard.

Judge Elliot was offered an opportunity to defend himself. Direct charges were made against him by petition to Parliament and by members of Parliament on their responsibility as such. ## London's Industries.

Some Queer Figures From the Census of 1891.

We give below a summary of the 'factories' in this city, as printed in the third volume of the census, just received. It will be remembered that when the census was taken, enumerators were offered by the Ottawa Government a special financial inducement to discover and chronicle factories within the limits assigned to them, and the result has been some remarkable statistics, as any one who studies the figures herewith given can see. The first thing that strikes the London investigator of the new census volume is the discrepancy between the figures printed in the preliminary report sent out and those in the tables now issued. The first statement of the factories of London sent out some two years ago was as follows: Number of factories in London. Number of factories in London. 804
Capital invested......$6,132,193
Number of hands.......$6,045
Wages paid..........$1,847,353
Cost of material used........$3,969,565
Value at factory of products .$8,325,207

In the third volume of the census a very material reduction has been made, as the following figures, extracted from It. will show:

Number of factories in London. 567 Capital in land. . . . . . . . . 565,681 Capital in buildings. . . . . . . 768,885 Capital in machinery and tools.$1,027,217 Working capital . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . $3,245,030 Employes, over 16, men..... Employes, over 16, women. ... 1,546 Employes, under 16, boys. ... 254

Over two years ago, when charges were made in the House of Commons that the census was "padded" so as to give color to the idea that the industrial development under the high tax policy was much greater than it really was, Hon. David Mills called attention to the extraordinary reports made regarding the industries of several western trade centers, and he asked particularly that a return with the names of the owners of the 800 odd factories alleged to exist in this city should be submited to the House. Hon. Mr. Foster kicked most violently against giving the public any facts regarding the census. Even the names of factory owners he held to be confidential! The Liberals in the House laughed at the absurdity of such a contention, and maintained that the country was entitled to know how the census was made up. For hours the wordy battle raged, and no doubt for well known reasons Mr. Foster and his associates refused to concede the principle that the names of factory owners and other details, not in any way interfering with confidential information supplied to the enumerators, should be made known. But when Sir John Thompson, who had been out spending the evening, returned to the chamber, he at once saw the ridiculousness of the contention of his associates, and conceded the rightfulness of the Liberal demand. The returns were promised. But from that day to this, though Hon. David Mills again and again, in the sessions of 1893 and 1894, called attention to the failure of the Administration to keep its promise, the returns regarding London's fac-

> may well be asked, has this policy of suppression been indulged in? The summaries relating to London industries, given herewith, are of interest. But the opportunity to verify the returns are withheld, and in face of the full facts we are compelled to place comparatively little value on them, gravely different as they now are from the statistics given out two years ago:

NEW USE FOR PAPER. Here is something new that is suggested by the Glover, a trade paper: "Paper gloves and hosiery are named as among the latest novelties. Stockings which sell at 3 cents a pair are proposed. In fact, the experiment of making paper stockings has been going on for several months, and the party engaged therein believes that paper mittens or gloves would possess advantages in their season. The goods are light and airy and very comfortable in There is a great deal to commend in the scheme if one gives it thought. Think of the advantage it would be to the struggling author! When his manuscript is refused by a publisher he can put it on and wear it until he finds some one else willing to look it over. The composer could use a sonata to keep his hands warm, and the bookkeeper might be literally "wrapt up in his work." Then the poor man, after reading the morning newspaper, could wear it to the shop. Besides, some newspapers are only fit to wear—never to read—and some are not even fit for that.—Chicago Post,

THE GREATEST INVENTION. An old gentleman in this city was asked the other day what he regarded as the greatest invention of the century, taking one consideration with another -the steam car, the telephone, the telegraph, what? "None of these," was his reply. "The greatest invention of the age; the greatest invention of the Christian era is the trained nurse; she is safer than steam, surer than the telegraph, less demonstrative than the telephone, and a joy and a comfort for-ever." And that old gentleman was just about right.-Buffalo Commercial.

ALD. BRENER'S CASE. Was Entered for the Weekly High

Court Sitting. The Notice Served on Mr. Brener Was Unsigned-Will Try to Have Proceedings Set Aside-Other

The regular weekly sitting of the High Court for London was held in the court house this morning. Mr. Justice Ferguson presiding. Among the cases set down for argument was that against Mr. O. E. Brener, whom the Conservatives claim is not entitled to sit as alderman for ward No. 1 on the ground that he is an alien. Mr. Brener was served with a writ recently, but he refused to appear for examination as the notice was unsigned. Mr. George C. Gibbons, Q.C., stated the fact. and the case was laid over for a week. Tomorrow morning at Osgoode Hall Mr.

Gibbons will move to set aside the proceedings. There was an unusually large number of cases on the docket, showing that the barristers in Western Ontario intend to take advantage of the opportunity afforded by the Mowat Government for an easier disposal of issues. Several cases came from Stratford, but when these were reached Mr. Luscombe announced that the lawyers from the Classic City would not arrive until a certain hour. Oh," said Justice Ferguson, "I do not see why they cannot get here. They only live twenty miles away. I had to come down from Toronto last night in order to open the court at 10, and I did not have any sleep either, on account of the hotel accommodation." High Constable Schram was able to attend court for the first time in over two months. He is steadily recoving from a severe attack of asthma, but still looks anything but well.

The cases were: Thompson vs. Hawson,-W. Thomp son, carriage maker, city, is the plaint-iff, and one Hawson, of Regina, N. W. T., the defendant. Thompson is suing for $2,312 for goods supplied, but Hawson denies his liability for the amount, claiming that he merely acted as Thompson's agent. Hawson has entered a counter claim against Thompson for a large sum for storage, etc. Mr. Gibbons recently obtained an order from Judge Edward Elliott to have the evidence of Hawson and three other witnesses for the defense taken before a commission at Regina. Mr. Judd appealed against the order. The appeal was dismissed with costs to the defend-

To add to the uneasiness of the audience the asbestos curtain was sent down upon the scene, and some one in the audience shouted "Fire." The nerves of the audience had already been strung up to a high pitch by the fire on the stage and a wild rush was made for the doors. Finally the panic-stricken throng was quieted and the performance proceeded. During the panic three women fainted and one was carried in an insensible condition from the

A Magnificent Spectacle.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 26 .- Three alarms were ent in at 1:40 this morning for a fire which started in the apartments of Jeremish Dunn, janitor of the city hall. The firemen experienced great difficulty in getting water on account of frozen hydrants and stream was not put on until 8:05 o'clock. The hose burst a number of times, and before the firemen could attack the flames, they had apread from the top floor to the clock tower and cupela and the flames leaped skyward encircling the statute of justice on the top of the tower and making a magnificent spectacle. At 8:35 the tower fell to the roof with a crash. The large bell formerly used as a fire alarm was melted by the intense heat. At 8:30 the fire was under control and confined to the upper floors. As far as could be learned no one was injured. The loss is $50,000.

That Keep the Street Railway Franchise from Going Through.

Long and Busy Day in Municipal and Railroad Circles.

The Franchise Virtually Adopted Excepting Two Clauses.

Are Clarke's and York Street Bridges Wide Enough?

Slight Disagreement Over the Sixty-Hour-a-Week Clause-The Company Will Give Ten Hours a Day and Pay for Overtime.

Yesterday was a long and busy day for aldermen and street railway representatives. It began at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and did not finish until twenty minutes after midnight, and at the close a creditable result had been accomplished. The franchise would have gone through but for one thingor rather two things of the same kindand they were bridges. Mr. Everett agrees to extend the abutments at Kensington bridge, and to build a new superstructure to Victoria bridge, but he will not extend the abutments of York street or Clark's bridge at his own expense. The city engineer, while admitting that the bridges in question could be made strong enough, would not commit himself to any guarantee that they were wide enough. And here the matter rests. Another point that they are not recorded in committee. Clause 2 hinged on a later clause, and company, object they are not recorded in committee. the company will not concede is the 60hour-a-week clause. However, they are willing to insert a 10-hour-a-day clause, with extra pay for overtime. This point has yet to be settled. It is said that the routes can be decided upon between the company and the city in about fifteen minutes.

Almost the last thing the mayor did before the meeting adjourned finally was to read the following message: "Gentlemen of the council,-In view of the possible early settlement of the street car matter, I beg respectfully to suggest that No. 2 committee be requested to confer with the ratepayers on Dundas and Richmond streets to ascertain their wishes as to paving. Should it be intended to repair any portion of these streets it would be desirable to have it done at the time the new tracks are being laid." The afternoon session of No. 1 committee was not characterized by the harmony that pervaded Saturday night's meeting. There was more firmness displayed on both sides in regard to disputed points, and the meeting ended with the committee and the company balancing one concession against another, the radial road and the bridge matters being left over until evening. There was a decided emphasis to Mr. Ivey's "No" when Ald. Armstrong asked for eight tickets for a quarter. The next rock struck was that of the valuation of the roadbed when the city assumes control at the end of the 30 years. The committee again contended that the city should only pay for the roadbed as far down as their own pavement went, and Mr. Ivey, on the other hand, held that the city should pay for any permanent concrete foundation, as it would be as valuable to the city after the 30 years as it would be to the company during that time. Again, the company now pave the devil's strip two feet on either side of the outer tracks. The present devil's strip is three feet wide, and the company desires, in order to protect the safety of the citizens, to make the new strip four feet. In view of the extra foot between the tracks, they asked that they be required to pave only eighteen inches on each side of the track instead of two feet. After the committee and Mr. Ivey had disagreed for over an hour on these points, Mr. Ivey agreed to concede the roadbed point if the city would agree to the paving matter. Mr. E. R. Cam-eron represented the Radial Road Company at the meeting, and held out so vigorously against exclusive rights in carrying Springbank traffic that this and the question of bridges was referred holus bolus to the council.

There was a large attendance of citizens at the evening session, and every alderman was in his place. There was a delay in getting down to business owing to the work of typewriting the amended offer in manifold form. When Mayor Little called the meeting to order at 8:15 the majority of the aldermen habeen supplied. Mr. Ivey and Man-ager Carr represented the company, and Mr. T. G. Meredith was present on behalf of the city. Mr. Joe Marks was present in the interests of the workingmen, while Mr. E. R. Cameron attended on behalf of the Radial Company. The council went into committee of the whole, Ald. Skinner in the chair.

"In presenting this offer I do not mean to say that it is perfect," said Ald. Jones, as he proceeded to read the clause relating to fares.

Ald. O'Meara moved that children under 5, when accompanied by parents or guardians, ride free.

Mr. Ivey agreed to this; it had simply been overlooked. been overlooked.
"What does Mr. Everett say?" asked

Ald. Parnell, in moving for eight fares for a quarter all day long. Ald. Jones He emphatically re-"I have tried," said Mr. Ivey, "to get

Mr. Everett's consent to eight tickets for a quarter. I went to him to Cleveland and Detroit on two different occasions, and I pressed the point so strongly that I was simply asked whether I was working for the company or for the city. I came back from Cleve-land with Mr. Everett's ultimatum seven and nine. 'We stand or fall on seven and nine,' said Mr. Everett. It was short, but to the point."

Mayor Little, in replying to a query raised by Ald. O'Meara as to who were workingmen, said, "Strike out the word 'workmen.' These cheap tickets are good for any person within the designated hours, whether workingmen or

This was done. Ald. Garratt then thought of last year's picnics over the extension question, and looked in vain for any mention of streets to be traversed. He did not know that the council was working from the other end of the question.
"I don't see any mention of the street routes agreed upon by last year's council," said he, "and I think the whole thing is null and void. We want to consider extensions before we consider fares or anything else." The chairman said that they were discussing the offer clause by clause. Ald. Garratt subsided.

"After hearing the explanations of Mr. Ivey I beg leave to withdraw by motion," said Ald. Parnell.
"Then," said Ald. Pritchard, "I will move for eight tickets myself." he did. But the council adopted Mr. Everett's ultimatum. Mr. Pritchard provided for the striking out of the clause in the existing franchise calling for a car license. Ald. O'Meara moved that a license of $5 be charged.

Ald. Garratt championed the motion, but it was lost and the clause left un-The next clause referred to the removal of snow from the tracks and fro.n

sidewalk to sidewalk in the center of the city. The company agreed to clear any two miles of street designated by the city, and to increase the portion half a mile for every 8,000 increase of inhabitants, placing the present population at 35,000.

Ald. Garratt again objected, but his motion was lost again. Snow plows will be used on the balance of the track, the company providing cars for the removal, and the city to supply the labor. Ald. Garratt and Ald O'Meara objected to this, but it was adopted.

"Ten hours to constitute a working day, the company to pay extra for overtime," read clause 4.

Ald. Parnell moved that the company be not allowed to work their motormen over 60 hours a week; other employes ten hours a day. This would provide against the working of overtime by the men to the detriment of the traveling public.

Ald. Garratt kept up his record of speaking to everything, and moved that the employes be not allowed to work more than ten hours a day, and be paid not less than $1 50 a day.

"Make it $2," said Ald. Brener.

"Can't do it," replied Ald. Garratt.

They are not cigarmakers, you know." (Laughter.)

Mr. Marks spoke strongly in favor of the 60-hour clause, saying that he would sooner see the franchise go through without any stipulation with regard to labor than to have the clause omitted. He had obtained pledges to that effect from all the aldermen when on the

Ald. Garratt—I beg your pardon. I did not promise anything.

Mr. Marks—No; you were too far away to be reached.

Ald. O'Meara and Ald. Pritchard favored Ald. Parnell's motion.
Ald. Armstrong moved that the portion of the clause relating to extra pay for overtime be struck out entirely. Then the company would not be able to work the men overtime.

"The interests of the company and the interests of the citizens must be looked after as well as the interests of the employes," said Mr. Ivey. "It is an utter impossibility for a road boss, an atter impossibility for a road boss, superintendent, manager, and all persons occupying official positions in connection with the company to work more than ten hours a day. We will not be told that we shall not employ labor for more than 60 hours a week if necessity demands it, and then to be at the mercy of the citizens to be hauled up and fined for the contravention of a bylaw." He pointed out that skilled labor would be required, and a man could not be taken off his car at the street corner when the 60 hours were up. Mr. Ivey assured the council that the franchise would not be accepted with this clause inserted. On the mayor's suggestion the clause was left over for a conference between No. 1 committee, Mr. Ivey and Mr.

Marks. The fifth clause bound the company to leave all streets where tracks are at any time taken up or relaid, in the same condition as found. Carried.

The next clause was the paving in which the company agreed in which the company agreed time be extended at once."

The last clause dealt with the pattern used by the city—and pave whenever the city did. It included the concession the city did. It included the concession granted by the city, namely, 4 foot devil's strip and 18 inches of pavement on each side of outer tracks instead of two feet. This was the point where the committee and the company were at loggerheads in the afternoon. It went through amid a dead calm that was a striking comparison to the afternoon discussion.

The following clause contained the option opted.

Ald. Armstrong wished to have a clause inserted binding the company not to run Sunday cars, but was induced to withhold it until after the committee had risen and reported.

The committee rose and reported at 11:15, and a twenty-minute adjournment was made while No. 1 committee conferred with the street railway men with regard to the bridge and the 60-

"saw-off" agreed upon by the company in case through. the previous clause went The word "roadbed" was rigorously excluded:

Clause 7—At the termination of the franchise the city may, after giving twelve months' notice prior to such termination, take over all the real and personal property of the company, in-cluding the track and pavements necessary to be used in connection with the working of the said railway at their fair value for street railway purposes, taking into consideration cost and natural depreciation, to be determined by three arbitrators to be appointed as provided in "The Municipal Acts" and "The Acts Respecting Arbitration and References," and to have all the powers of arbitrators appointed under the said acts, each party to bear one half of the cost of such arbitration; provided no such notice is given, then the franchise and all the privileges granted by this bylaw shall continue in force for a further period of five years, and at the expiration of the said five years the corporation may, after giving twelve months' notice prior to such expiration, exercise the said rights to take over all the said real and personal property of the company on the aforesaid basis, and failing such notice, the franchise and partial such notice, the franchise and privilegement of the said rights to take chise and privileges granted by this by-law shall continue in force for a further period of five years, and so on for such further periods of years each as shall elapse without the corporation giving the notice aforesaid.

The clause went through without discussion, as agreed upon. Clause 8, respecting awards of arbirators, was discussed, but went through unaltered.

Clause 9—The company will receive and forward with all dispatch, free of charge, the passenger, mail, express, freight and baggage cars of all radial electric street railways desiring the company so to do over their tracks from the city limits to the center of the city or such other place or places as the said radial electric street railway may require, and back again to the city limits, and that when the company's track and trolley wires do not extend to the city limits, and the company refuse to make such extensions, the said radial electric street railway company shall have the right to enter upon the highway and make and construct, maintain and operate an electric street railway between the said radial company's lines and the tracks of the said company, subject to the permission of the city council being first had and obtained. The company to have charge and control of all cars while the same are passing over their tracks, and to furnish motormen and conductors for that purpose. The company to have the right to collect regular city fares as provided by their bylaw from all pas-sengers on the said cars hauled by them as aforesaid, and to take on and let off passengers within the city limits. The compensation to be paid for hauling mail, express, baggage and freight to be, in case the parties differ about the same, determined by arbitration in the same manner as provided in paragraph 7 hereof. The clause shall not apply to the particular branch of any radial electric railway competing for Springbank traffic.

(b) In case the company refuse or neglect to carry out any of the provisions of paragraph 9 the matter in dispute and the damages, if any, sustained thereby shall be determined by arbitration in the same manner as provided in paragraph 7 hereof, and the city, the company, or any of the said radial companies, shall be entitled to enforce company, objected to the street railresenting the radia way company's refusal to haul the cars of an opposition road to Springbank. In reply to a question, Ald, Jones admitted that the clause gave the street railway company the exclusive privilege, to a certain extent, of carrying passengers to Springbank. He favored the present company because it could carry people from any portion of the city to Springbank on the same tickets

The clause went through.
Clause 10—Should the extensions made by the company make it necessary the company to have the right to cross Clark's and York street bridges on the present structures, and if necessary to replank and strengthen the same to the satisfaction of the city, and to have the right, in so far as the city has the power to grant, of extending the abutments of the Dundas street bridge and building a bridge for its own use at the side, the company to have the option of either extending the abutments of Victoria bridge and building their own superstructure or to remove the present structure and to replace it with a new twenty-foot roadway bridge. The material in the old bridge to be allowed the company, they to have a half proprietary interest in the new superstructure. The city to grant the privilege, in so far as they have the power, of crossing Oxford street bridge upon the same terms as aforesaid.

Ald. Pritchard objected to the com-pany crossing York street bridge in its present shape, and Ald. O'Meara raised the same objection in regard to Oxford street bridge.

Ald. Pritchard moved that either of the bridges named be not used. Ald. Carrothers moved in amendment that the company be allowed to extend the abutments of the bridges.

Mr. George Pritchard addressed the council, and asked as an alternative that a new bridge be erected over Richmond street south, one-third of the cost to be borne by the city, one-third by the company, and one-third by the ratepayers interested. The city engineer reported in writing that there was plenty of room for a wagon and trolley to pass on all the bridges. York street bridge is 16 feet 10 inches wide; Kensington bridge, 15 1-2 feet; Blackfriars bridge, 17 feet 15 1-2 feet; Blackiriars bridge, 17 feet 8 inches; Oxford street, 17 feet; Vic-toria, 16 feet 10 inches; Clark's 17 feet 2 inches. hour a week clauses.

Council reassembled at 11:37. Chairman Jones reported that the company and the committee had got no nearer together than when they left the chamber. The company was willing to abandon Victoria bridge and use only York street and Clark's bridge. The city engineer reported that it was practicable to cross the two bridges named, provided they were properly strengthened. The company would not extend abutments at their own expense, but would abandon York street bridge and put a new superstructure over Victoria bridge. They were also willing to entertain Mr. George Pritchard's recommendation re a new bridge at the foot of Richmond street.

Ald. Weld and Ald. Parnell inquired as to how the northern portion of Lon-don South would be tapped unless the York street bridge was used. Ald, Jones pointed out that a bridge was in use in Toronto which was no wider than either of the two named. The company also agreed to refrain from crossing any bridges when a load of hay is in sight. Mr. Ivey was satisfied that Mr. Everett's ultimatum had been received respecting the bridges. He had agreed to extend the abutments at Dundas street and build a new superstructure at Victoria bridge, but would go no further.

It was a trying moment with the aldermen. Ald. Parnell asked if the engineer had reported that the traffic would be entirely safe on the bridges. Ald. Jones replied in the affirmative, and Ald. Armstrong moved the adoption of the clause. Ald. Pritchard, Ald. Heaman and Graydon replied that the bridges could be sufficiently strengthened to sustain the cars, but as to the safety -well, the aldermen knew the width of the bridges, and the width of the cars-surely they were competent to decide.

Ald. Nutkins withdrew from seconding Ald. Armstrong's motion after hearing the engineer's statement, and Mr. Armstrong, at the request of Ald. Jones, withdrew the motion altogether.
Ald. O'Meara moved that several clauses be referred back, but obtained no seconder. Ald. Parnell withdrew a somewhat similar proposal to vote for Ald. Skinner's motion to adopt the report of the committee of the whole, which recommended that the objectionable clause be referred back to No. 1 committee.

The division on the question resulted as follows:

Feminine Vanity. Some fuss has been made at Mannheim about a well-known old lady resident, Frau Sophie Brechter, having completed her hundredth year. Letters of congratulation poured in upon her, the municipality waited upon her in a bedy with an address, and even the German Empress sent her a portrait and autograph signature. The old lady, however, still preserves enough feminine vanity to feel quite annoyed at these attentions. She declares she is only eighty-eight, a figure at which, according to reliable witnesses, she has stood for twelve years past.—London Daily

She-Have you ever been kissed by a girl before? He-(blushing)-What a question! Of course I haven't. War About a Kiss.

That kissing should go by favor on the stage as elsewhere is evidently the opinion of Mme. Lenthold, a Vienna actress. Our correspondent writes: A tragi-comical war has been waged for some weeks past at the Raimund Theatre here. Mme. Lenthold absolutely refused to be kissed by Herr Ranzenberg, her partner, in the scenes of a play in which the author demands that she should be kissed. A few nights ago, when it came to the point, Frau Lenthold covered her face with her hands, and Herr Ranzenberg took them down and kissed her by sheer force. The director was distracted between them, and gave Frau Lenthold's part to another actress. Feeling that she had been unjustly treated, the lady gave notice to leave the theatre altogether, and her resignation has been accepted.—London Daily News.

One day, when the steamer was about eaving port, Patrick received the order to agul in a long cable that dragged astern. Patrick jumped to the task cheerfully enough, and hauled away contentedly. But the excessive length of the cable taxed his patience.

"I wonder what's become of the end of this ould cable, anyhow?" And finally, growing impatient, he growled out: "Faith, it's no use hauling away at the baste uv a cable. Some divil's cut the end off uv it."

Robt. Hueston Killed on the C. P. R. at Adelaide Street.

His Watch and Money Cannot be Found.

All Sorts of Rumors Regarding the Affair.

He Had Just Left His Sweetheart When He Met His Death.

For Six Years a Soldier-Had Money in the Bank-Was About to be Married-A Popular Young Man.

A horrible fatality occurred on the C. P. R. at Adelaide street about midnight last night whereby a young man in the prime of life was instantly killed, being cut in halves. Such was the melancholy fate that overtook jolly Robert Hueston, or "Corporal Bob," as he was better known among his soldier friends and associates. How the young fellow met with such a death will probably never be known. Rumors were flying thick and fast accounting for the tragedy in every manner, from suicide to murder. And to give point to the latter terrible suspicion it was pointed out that the dead man's gold watch and money were missing. Then he was found at least half a block out of his way, in a direction in which he would not possibly have had to go on his way from the home of his sweetheart, where the poor fellow spent

THE LAST FEW HOURS of his earthly stay, and his boarding house on Pall Mall street. When the train from the east arrived at 11:40 last night the engine was detached and backed down to the round house at Adelaide street. Riding on the tender was Mr. Fred Toll, a car repairer living on Elias street. When the engine was in the center of the block between Adelaide and William streets Mr. Cole noticed the form of a man lying directly across the north rail. Before he could fairly realize the situation the wheels had passed over the center of the body, and if Mr. Hueston had not been killed when the train passed down the yard, ten minutes before, as railroad men are inclined to think he was, he met his end just then.

As soon as the engine could be brought to a standstill the remains were tenderly lifted aboard and carried to the little telegraph station east of Adelaide street. Here they remained until the coroner was notified this morning, when the BODY WAS REMOVED $5 15; light steers, $3 50 to $4; feeders, $2 80 to ing completely cut in half. The upper and lower portions were held together by a few shreds of clothing and a couple of fleshy cords. The left arm was broken and the face slightly bruised. The nature of the injuries leads railroad men to think that Hueston was first struck by the train as it was going west. They account for the body being over a hundred yards from the crossing by saying that the man was in all probability struck at Ade-laide street, carried along on the cowcatcher, and then dropped and run over. So that when the enginmen discovered the body on the return trip the man had been dead ten minutes at least. Bob Hueston was for six years a soldier at Wolseley Barracks. He was an efficient one, and earned two stripes.

During the last three years of his

he was in charge of the officers' mess, a position requiring much tact and skill, and an office looked upon with much favor by ambitious soldiers. He left the barracks about a year ago and went to board at Mr. Henry Weston's place, 594 Pall Mall street. He has not had steady work since, but during his two terms at the barracks he had saved several hundred dollars, and he managed to live comfortably and without much worry about the future. He had not worked at all since last Fair time. but was expecting to start again on March 15.

"I have a job," he told Mr. Weston a day or two ago.
"What doing?" Mr. Weston asked. "I will tell you later when I am more certain about it," was the reply.

The dead man spent yesterday in much the usual manner. He was up at Wolseley Barracks in the forenoon, came back to the boarding house for dinner and then went down town.
HE LAUGHED GAILY, and chatted with his friends at the barracks, and one of the young ladies stopping at the house met him down town in the afternon. He smiled and nodded to her and passed on. It was 7 o'clock when he came home to his supper, and directly afterwards started out to call on the young lady whom rumor has it he was shortly about to marry. The young lady in question is Miss Ada Tulett, who lives with her parents at the corner of Elias and Elizabeth streets, East London. He remained there until shortly after 11 p.m., when he started for his boarding house. The C. P. R. crossing is between the two places, and when the young man arrived at the crossing the train would be about due. Perhaps he saw the train coming and thought he could get across before it reached him. He must have got to the north of the track, as the body was found on the north rail. But just how the accident really did happen no one will ever know. If the above supposition is correct he was carried

ON THE COW CATCHER for a hundred yards and then run over and killed. Hueston carried a latch key and his absence from the house was not known until Mrs. Weston heard the news in the morning. Neither did the sweetheart know that only two blocks away in a cheerless little room reposed the remains of him from whom she had parted full of life and health only a short while before. But then the mystery about the watch and money !- for Hueston was person. The police searched the body today and failed to find either the gold watch or any coin. "I do not believe in the theory of foul play," said an Adelaide street man who knew deceased. "Although I don't like to hint it, yet I rather think the valuables were taken after death."

The detective asked me that question also. The young man was as jolly yester-day as he ever was in his life. Why should he be despondent with $300 or $400 in the postoffice savings bank ?"

A month or so ago Hueston was nearly asphyziated by coal gas at his boarding house and was sick for some time. He was a member of Corinthian Masonic Lodge, No. 330, and was also a member of the I. O. O. F. He had no relatives in town and came here from Hagersville, where his parents are supposed to reside, about eight years ago. Deceased was about 34 years of age.

The track where the accident occurred was visited by a curious crowd today. The hastily applied ashes failed to hide a great many gruesome pieces of human flesh which were scattered along the track. When Hueston was up at the barracks yesterday he asked Canteen Sargeant Cockburn to stand up with him at his wedding in April.

"Go away, you are only fooling," said Cockburn. But Hueston assured him that it was correct and he showed a roll of bills. The missing gold watch was a present from Hueston's comrades when leaving the barracks.

Inquiry at the postoffice savings bank failed to reveal whether or not Hueston had lately withdrawn any money from the bank. It will be necessary to correspond with the authorities. The police made the same inquiries and received a similar

-The bell of the McClary Manufacturing Company, which has for many years summoned the employes to work has lost its merry tone by being broken by the frost while being rung.

-Mr. Inglis, of the Blake Waterworks Manufacturing Company, has an unsettled bill with the Toronto waterworks authorities as well as with those of London, Here is how the matter stands in Toronto. as stated by the Star: Mr. G. W. Inglis, representative of the Blake Manufacturing Company, interviewed the city engineer and the chairman of the board of works this morning in reference to the refunding to his firm the forfeit money in connection with the contract for the new waterworks engine, which was not completed in the specified time. It is hardly likely the money will be given up, unless so ordered by the courts. Mr. Inglis was given to understand he would have to collect the best way he could. Rev. J. W. Annis' Condition.

This morning he appeared a little better, and, though recognizing his family and friends, was unable to connect his speech and make himself understood. Rev. The "Advertiser" Always Ahead. The London "Advertiser" recently added a battery of Linotypes to its composing room and is now almost entirely set by these machines. The "Advertiser" has led the way in introducing improved appliances for newspaper publishing in London. It was the first to get fast cylinder presses, to introduce folding machines, and to employ the perfecting press which is the acme of the press builder's skill, and now leads the way with the most improved machinery for type-setting. These are achievements of which the "Advertiser" has reason to be proud, and which go far towards establishing its claim to supremacy in the newspaper field in Western Ontario.—Sarnia Observer.

The Elbe Disaster. LONDON, Feb. 26.—The coroner's in quest upon the bodies of the Elbe's victims, brought ashore by fishing boats, was resumed at Lowestoft this morning. Miss Boecker, the only woman survivor of the Elbe, and Mr. Greenham, one of the crew of the steamer Crathie, were present, Capt. Donner was in attendance on behalf of the German Government, and lawyers were present representing the owners of the Elbe and Crathie. Capt. Gordon, of the Crathie, was also present. Miss Boecker was called to the stand and confirmed her previous statements. She was unable to say whether the Elbe's engine had been stopped when she was on deck.

Pilot Greenham testified that after the crash he saw attempts made to close in the tight doors of the Elbe. When he got on deck he saw that the Elbe had lost her port rockets, but her blue lights burned and her syren was blowing. Capt Von Goessel was on the bridge until the last. The captain ordered boats out, but the ropes were frozen and had to be chopped away. The orders given by the captain were obeyed, and there was no confusion. When Greenham got into the boat he saw a green light and a white stern light which he believed to be the lights of the colliding vessel. These lights disappeared to the southward.

A large quantity of Turkish and Oriental rugs and carpets have reached this city direct from Amritzan, India. The collection is the finest ever brought to London and will be of much interest to admirers of these novelties. These rugs (history tells us) have been woven by the dainty fingers of dark-eyed Eastern ladies, who look upon their manufacture as a sort of fancy work. The antique are the finest quality. Their value lies not therein, but in their scarcity and age, while no machinery has ever been invented to give the twist and tie, the square knot, which is a peculiar feature of the rug. Mr. O'Brien, who represents the importers, says the London consignment is one of the best he known to have had some money on his has has had in Western Canada. Mr. J. W. Jones has received the consignment for sale by auction and hopes his enterprise will be appreciated and invites everyone to come and see for themselves. The sale will be held Thursday and Friday afternoon and evening.

Roderick pressed the hand he held. "Have you two been talking together?"

"And you have told her everything?" Everything-made a clean breast of it. A pretty story, isn't it, Silence? But it's at an end now, Thank God," said Bella, setting her teeth together. "Even a worm will turn at last."

"Shall you not go back to your husbandthat is, if he will take you back?"
"Trust him for that. He knows on which side his bread is buttered; all the Thomsons do. They were glad enough to catch me, a bright, clever, pretty giri—yes, I was both clever and pretty once, my dear—to be a sort of caretaker or keeper over him; he needs a keeper when he is drunk. And a wife is the best sort of one—saves appearances. Thomsons as well as Jardines would do anything in the world to save appear-

Roderick made no answer. He knew it was true. The sight of his sister had brought back the memory of many a boyish struggle, quixotic as vain, against the predominant spirit of the family-a family in which the first question that arose was never 'Is it right?' or 'Is it wrong?' but only 'Is it expedient?'

This law of expediency, not righteous prudence, but petty, worldly wisdom, had been at the root of Bella's marriage. Those wh had the making of it, would they not in the same principle do their best to prevent its being unmade? He felt sure his mother would. Anything, everything, she would sacrifice rather than be 'talked about,' as the world would talk, if there was a public separation between Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Thomson-two people who, in their own opinion and that of their repective families, held such a very import-

He knew his mother and the rest would view this catastrophe, as they had viewed the marriage which resulted in it, solely from the standpoint of society. No higher law that what the world would think and say ever actuated or guided them. In old times he had dimly guessed this—second-arily and chiefly by its effects on his silent, patient father; but now, when he himself came to man's estate, and viewed things wich his own eyes, he saw it clearly.

Still, this affair was, as all such cases are, most complicated and difficult; and in it Roderick's own position was not the least painful. To act a brother's part toward his poor sister he did not shrink from; but to aid and abet a runaway wife in concealing herself from her husband was most galling not only to his pride, but to his sense of honor. Yet to thrust her from him into hopeless misery was worse than cruel, dangerous, knowing her tempernament, which was to escape from present pain as foolishly as a child does, at any future risk and cost. The medium course, to come boildy forward and insist upon the separation she desired, was equally difficult and responsible for any brother, being himself a man and a husband.

Roderick looked at his own wife, growing closer to him every day, in the mutual dependence which so gently and naturally replaces passion, and gives to both that ineffable rest, of unseparated joys, and divided

"Bella," he said, in a moved voice, "do you know, my dear, exactly what you are doing, or wishing to do? Remember what your Bible says: 'What God hath joined let no man put asunder.'"

"What do you mean?"
"Never mind. Wait till I'm driven desperate. I am nearly already. If only I could tear off this." She took hold of her marriage ring and made as though she would throw it into the fire. "If at any price, at any cost, I could be Bella Jardineagain, and never more set eyes upon that brute, that fool, that—"

"Hush!" said Silence. "He's baby's "Ah, that's it-that's the misery. I don't hate my child. I did at first, but not now; it's nature, I suppose. Besides, she is my child, all I have of my own; and even that is half his, if he chose to claim her. Oh, Rody, what must I do? what can I do?"

It was, indeed, a piteous strait. The one false step, marriage, unconsecrated by love, almost as great a sin as love unconsecrated by marriage, had brought its own punishby marriage, had brought its own punishment with it. The young pair, to whom these things appeared as a ghastly nightmare, scarcely comprehensible as a daylight reality, instinctively drew closer together, while they regarded the hapless woman, who had, as she truly said, no future. A loathing wife, an unthankful mother, what future could she have, either in herself or in 'the world,' for which she in herself or in 'the world,' for which she had sacrificed so much and gained so very

What could she do? As she put the question her despairing eyes supplied the answer. Nothing!

"I know very little about these things," said Roderick, sadly; "but I believe there are two ways of parting man and wife—by divorce, enabling both to marry again, and by judicial separation. But, oh! the pain, the scandal of it! Think of your child; think, too, of your mother!"

While using this argument he knew its futility. Whether from disposition or circumstances, Bella had always been that rather rare character among woman a woman who thinks only of herself. With a perplexed longing for help, for counsel, her brother turned to the other woman beside him.

"What does my wife say?"

"I don't care what she says—what anybody says, cried Bella, violently. "I will get rid of my husband somehow. I have no love for him; I never had. It is a simple question of money. If I run away, how am that voice of wisdom there—that if I leave him, I ought not to accept a halfpenny from him. Very well; get mamma to maintain me, or else I'll maintain myself."

"I don't knew or eare. It may not be for long. He will drink himself to death one of these days. Roderick turned away in horror, but Silence laid a firm, stern hand on her sister-in-law's arm. "One word more such as that, and we will neither of us help you."

Bella shrunk into submission, even a little shame, then burst into piteous entreaties. "Oh, Rody, do not be hard upon me! I "Oh, Rody, do not be hard upon me! I have nobody in the world to come to but you. How am I to get rid of my husband? Not harming him—I'il not harm him—only let me escape from him. I will do it, and I'm right; your wife says so."

Roderick started.
"Yes, she is quite right," said Silence, not lifting her eyes, but speeking as her husband.

lifting her eyes, butspeaking as her husband knew she could speak sometimes, with unmistakable decision. "My wife is a daring woman to say such a thing."

"Am I!" She looked up a minute with a quivering lip, and did not attempt to put back her hand, which he had let go, but folded her fingers together, after a way she had, as if to give herself strength, when she had any difficult or painful thing to do.

"This is very strange advice for my wife— I hope a happy wife-to give to my sister.

Your reasons?" "They are not easy to explain, but I will try." She stopped, then with a firm, clear voice went on again. "If Bella had only herself to sacrifice she might do it, though I am not sure. It is a sin against Heaven to condone sin, even in one's own husband. But in this and similar cases a woman does not sacrifice herself alone. There are others upon whom the sins of the father may deseend, generation after generation. She must think of them. She is responsible to God for them. "If I were in Bella's place"—her voice sunk almost to a whisper; she turned deadly pale and then flushed crimson all over her face—"if I were in your sister's place, I would die rather than be mother to a drunkard's children."

There was a total silence. Bella, accustomed to make self the standpoint of all her opinions and acts, perhaps could scarcely understand; but Roderick did. Startled he might be, yet there was something in his wife's stern righteousness which he could not gainsay. As he looked on that small, sweet face, so sweet, yet so strong, he saw in her for the first time not merely his wite, but the woman, the cojoint and yet separate existence, intrusted by God and nature with far more than her own petty life, inheriting —and conscious that she inherited—the destiny which came to her from sacred Eve,

"mother of all living."

Man as he was, with a man's natural leaning to the masculine side, with a man's natural blindness to much that women see by instinct, still his wife's words smote him with a certain respect, even awe. That she had strength to say them at all, she so timid, so shy, so reticent, proved how deeply she must have thought and felt on the matter.

"Dear," he said, holding out his hand, all women were like you—especially if all sons had mothers like you—there would be fewer bad men in this world." (To be Continued.)

He was for about a year farm manager at the Ontario Agricultural College, and filled several offices with credit.

Last Wednesday Archie Ward and Jim Hawks took a day's hunting, and when about seven miles from Wiarton they came across the track of a bear. On following them up, they saw Mr. Bruin walking through an opening. Mr. Ward at once took careful aim and shot the bear through the head, killing him instantly. The bear was very fat and had a very beautiful skin, which measured over six feet from tip to tip.

Miss Lizzie Wilson, sister of the groom, who officiated as maid of honor, was beautifully attired in a suit of dove-colored Henrietta. The groom was ably supported by Mr. B. E. Mahony, of St. Thomas. Rev. Geo. W. Racey, incumbent of St. George's Church, performed the ceremony.

Poorly prepared foods are responsible for the majority of the evils that infants suffer from. These common foods are so crude, heavy and indigestible that, were they used by an adult of stron constitution, indigestion and dyspepsia would certainly result in less than a week.

Stomach irritation and nausea is quickly banished when children are fed on Lactated Food. This food agrees with the weakest stomach and is retained when other foods are promptly rejected. Lactated Food is a true nourisher of all the digestive organs, and puts but little work upon the stomach and bowels. Infants and young chil-dren with impaired digestion and fail-ing appetite should be fed regularly on Lactated Food.

ANOTHER UNION.

There has long been a feeling that the first practical step in the way of Methodist union in Great Britain, at least, would be in the amalgamation of the Primitive Methodist and Bible Chris-tian churches. At their last annual conferences representatives were appointed to confer on the subject. Two conferences have been held under the presidency of Rev. J. Wenn, president of the Primitive Methodist Conference, and Rev. S. Allen, who fills a similar position in the sister denomination. No report of the proceedings has been published, but agreement has been found, and recommendations favoring union will be submitted to the next annual meeting of both bodies.

Hamilton, Feb. 26 .- The late Wm. Ferguson, of this city, was born in county Monaghan, Ireland, in 1814. He served his apprenticeship to his trade as a tailor in the town of Coutthill, and then joined the Eightyfirst Royal Irish in 1833. He served under the command of Sir Charls Wilkes and Sir Charles Chilchester. In 1840, when his regiment lay in London, Ont., he bought his discharge and settled in Canada. For over 60 years he was connected with the Orange Order, and at the time of his death was a member of Loyal Orange Lodge, 312, of this city.

In politics he was a life-long Conservative, and for years was always in the van in the campaign of his party. On one occasion-to further the cause of Sir Allen McNab—he came from Chicage. The trip could not then be done in Pullman cars.

Wilson Barrett's Production at the Grand Opera House-A Magnificent Performance to a Crowded

Wilson Barrett and his famous London company appeared at the Grand Opera House last evening before the largest house of the season. Society was out in full force and style. The lower half of the house contained many faces from towns surrounding London. Both galleries were crowded. The success of the performance was certain from the first act. "The Manxman," as dramatized, is in five acts, and the version somewhat differs from the novel in treatment, though not in theme. It is the old tale of a woman's frailty, an honest man's love, and a friend's baseness and treachery. The plot of "The Manxman" works itself out amidst the environment of orchards, cornfields, and simple rustic life, and these attributes of nature lend an additional and softening charm to the whole performance. The first scene is the farmyard of the Manx Fairy Inn at sunset in early summer. Here we meet Pete Quillam and Phillip Christean, who have been chums from boyhood. Neither suspects the love that the other secretly bears for Kate, the pretty and winsome daughter of Caesar Cregeen, a publican. Philip is a scholar and an aspirant for the Deemstership. Pete is a simple unlettered, generous-hearted man, and, with a sense of his own unworthiness, the father, while he himself snaks to Kate. But the suit is spurned by the father, and Pete, leaving Kate in Philip's care, and charging him that no harm shall come to her, sets out into the world to seek his fortune. A report comes to the village that Pete is dead. and then Philip gains Kate's affection and betrays her, refusing to make reparation. At this juncture the hero returns, Kate has a revulsion of feeling for her betrayer, throws herself into Pete's arms, and he marries her. A child is born, and after a time, being unable to face her husband, who is not the father of her child, she flees. Philip still plays the part of the hypocrite to Pete. Kate returns to Pete's house to see her child, and is discovered by him. Kate tells him that she does not love him, and the child is not his. The last act takes place at the Cregeen farm. Pete induces her father to take her back. Philip enters and accuses himself. Pete would have killed him but for the intercession of Kate and her father. Kate resolves that her future life is by her child's side, and the curtain falls on three separate and wrecked lives. The consensus of opinion concerning the play was favorable. The first acts aroused enthusiasm and curtain calls were demanded. As the story was unfolded in all its pathos the interest deepened until the climax broke the tension. Mr. Barrett assumed a role vastly different from the classic parts in which he was seen here last year, and his lifelike interpretation of the rough Pete was a striking exhibition of his versatility. It was in these emotional English dramas that Mr. Barrett achieved his first distinction over twenty years ago, and though he has since been accustomed to higher flights of art, he naturally finds himself at home in the domestic play. He was ably supported by Miss Maud Jeffries, and the minor parts were handled by exceptionally competent people. "The Manxman" has a charm of its own because it is founded on truth and simplicity. The stage settings were very beautiful. A mild strain of comedy was introduced and was at times a welcome relief on the somber background.

The orchestra came in for applause. Under the direction of their leader, Mr. Fred L. Evans, several new selections were played, which demonstrated that the Grand's orchestra is equal to the best.
