The victims, all of whom were Philadelphians, were :- Mamie Connors, aged 17 years; Sallie Cantrell, 17; Massic Kennedy, 18; Maud Rutter, 19; Mamie Sulliaan, 21; Florence Bond, 21; Bertram Osmond, 19. The young man saved is John Moore, aged 21

ganized for the promotion of pic-nics and other social functions. The above named persons with a large number of others, most of whom resided in the southern section of the city, organized a picnic for to-day. They embarked in gaily decorated wagons early this morning, and pitched their camp in Rose Glen, along the Schuylkill river, on the northern out-skirts of the city. Following their usual custom, the party split up after dinner for a row on the river, and those above mentioned decided to go in one boat. This was shortly after 2 o'clock. Boats were accordingly hired, and the two parties set forth for an hour's fun on the river. All the girls were huddled in the stern. One of the boys was rowing and the other was sitting on the bow of the boat. After getting in the middle of the river and finding the current too swift for comfort, the boat was rowed intowards shore. During this time it was being carried slowly down stream. The boy doing the rowing decided to go through the locks. As he approached tims had been recovered.

the dam he was hailed by the lockkeeper not to approach any closer.. The warning was not heeded, and the young oarsman kept on rowing until he found that the lock was closed. He attempted to turn the boat, which was then about fifty feet from the dam and 25 feet from the shore, but he turned the wrong way. A mo-ment later and the boat was in the swiftly moving current. Realizing swiftly moving current. Realizing then for the first time that they were danger, the girls began screaming, and the oarsman lost control of the The party was composed of members of the Elm Social Club, one of the numerous associations of this city ordam, over which 30 inches of water was passing, the entire party stood up, and the boat went over stern

The drop to the rocks below is approximately 12 feet. The boat struck the water bottom up, and as it dis-appeared the whole party was under it. Nothing more was seen by the few persons who saw the accident for almost a minute, when the boat reappeared, with one boy clinging to its keel. Then the second man was seen to come to the surface and make a frantic effort to reach shore by The six girls never rose swimming. The six girls never rose to the surface. The boy who was swimming, and who proved to be Osmond, became exhausted and sank before he could be rescued. I More, the other boy, who was clinging to the boat, floated fully a half-mile down the river, and his rescuer, had an exciting time before they landed him in another boat. He was greatly exhausted, and was slightly injured by falling of the boat. Up to a late hour to-night, none of the bodies of the vic-

Dr. Sisung, upon examination, found that Rudert had been seriously wounded, and after dressing the wound, which was about two and one-half inches deep and four inches long, ordered the injured man sent to his home. In the meantime a crowd had collected about the police station with a determination to break into Stoke's cell and take him out and hang him to a tree in the park, While the crowd was raving outside the officers took Stokes out of the back door of the station house and down the alley to the county jail, where he is now confined awaiting the result of Rudert's injuries. Stokes says that Rudert attacked and knocked him down with a chair and afterward jumped on him, and that it was while on his back on the 3 o'clock this afternoon that may

PRESENTED WITH PURSE OF GOLD

Mrs. W. Stanley Ball the Recipient of Mark of Appreciation and Esteem.

At Harrison Hall this morning, the county officials assembled in the office of County Treasurer Shambleau and presented Mrs. W. Stanley Ball with a purse of gold and an address. Mrs. Ball was for a long time assistant in the office of the county treasurer and her pleasant manner and bright smile are much missed in the office and corridors of Harrison Hall. The Crown Attorney, William Douglas K. C., made the presentation and read the following address :-

To Mrs. W. Stanley Ball .- The office holders and occupants of Harrison Hall, desire to express to you their regret at your departure and express in some slight way how much they miss your presence and happy manner. We all rejoice in knowing that you have won the great prize of every good woman-a loving and worthy husband, and we congratulate you on your marriage and hope that you will both enjoy very many years of health and happiness together with all blessings

We beg of you to accept the accompanying little souvenir as a small token of our esteem for you. William Douglas, J. R. Gemmill, A. L. Shambleau, Judge Woods, James Holmes, J. C. Fleming, T. R. Coogan. Harrison Hall, 31st, May, 1901.

INTERNATIONAL BOUNDARIES.

The evil feelings urging on and sometimes ending in war, engendered by disputes about International boundaries, are easily intelligible by every farmer who has seen arguments about a line fence with their resulting bad blood and costly litigation.

Most nations have two or more neighbors; Canada has one, Great Britain proper, none, being encompassed by the "inviolate sea." Even an ocean boundary sometimes brings its own quarrels; witness the disputed ownership of San Juan. Great Britain having centuries ago grabbed all neighboring islands, including some which are geographically French, has no such anxieties. In some cases international argument arises in connection with fisheries and seizures as to what is the true threemile ocean limit? Is it a line rawn at a three-mile breadth and parallel to a line running from headland to headland with possibility of an enenclosed "mare clausum" of immense extent, or does it follow the concave boundary of the coast?

The best natural international boundary is a river without islands, though even in this case it may shift its channel as in the case of the San Juan, Nicaragua. The next best is a bare mountain range with no timber or minerals to tempt anyone's cupidity and establish claims founded on occupation, which latter rapidly merges into a personal and then into a national vested interest.

The doctrines of Hinterland, Spheres of influence and of Buffer Slates, do not come into play as be tween Canada and the United States and the pride of the Americans combined with and stimulated by the Munroe Doctrine, prevent them from accepting a money compensation for disputed territory or from making a mutually advantageous swap, as when Great Britain gave Heligoland to Germany in exchange for a region in Af-

The Anglo-American boundary disputes, which have dragged on from year to year since the declaration of independence have largely risen from hazy maps and lazy diplomatists. Because the land in dispute was at the time thought worthless though of immense value now, British diplomats yielded its ownership to the United States for peace sake. The whole history of the two nations since the revolution, proves this-witness the Maine and Oregon boundary questions. Louisiana was at first most vaguely defined, while the vast Northwest and West, were loosely comprehended in the old maps under the name "Mandon." No one knew even with moderate precision, where these territories ended or how widely they might stretch. In the case of San Juan Island, joint occupation as a "modus vivendi" was followed by reference to the Emperor of Germany and an important strategic point was lost to Britain forever. At this moment the Alaskan boundary question is as far from settleof authority between Canadian and American officers has been agreed on as a makeshift. The Joint High Commission may assemble soon, and may not. This particular dispute shows us through the test of every trial. that a vague boundary in what seemed perfectly valueless territory is not a safe one, because precious minerals may be discovered and miners by their camps may create presumption of national ownership. Possession is ninetenths of the law, and giving up possession breeds soreness.

The astronomical boundary is the one and only one safe and infallible way of limitating an international boundary, a mode by which all cumbrous expedients of joint occupation, Hinterland, Spheres of influence and Buffer States, are swept away. The powers, after surveys and some small topagraphical "give and take" rectification, agree on a line of frontier points a mile apart and each defined with mathematical accuracy by latitude and longitude. Thus the substituties of diplomacy and conflicting dicta of jurists are abolished, and all disputes choked off.

After these leading points have been defined on paper, the rest of the mark is for astronomers and civil engineers, and the protocal is replaced by the spirit level and chain. The points may be more than a mile apart on the level prairie and nearer in the mountains. A happy instance placing Canada before the British peoof this astronomical mode of gaining international quiet was the estab- | too, that Sir Donald Smith never took lishment of the 49th parallel as the delimitation for a long stretch in the 4,000 miles of American-Canadian frontier.

A happy suggestion, borrowed from the "Buffer State" scheme, is the contemplated construction of an international highway in the form of a 100 foot wide highway, on which private ownership should be forbidden. This would largely check smuggling and stop illicit distillation or coining, carried on in a building

They say that he advertises this country as it is advertised in no other way, that he never loses an opportunity to gain an advantage for Canadians, and that he is always ple in some attractive form. They say greater pains in promoting his own private business than Lord Strathcona is taking in promoting the busi ness of high com Everything that he does is done well. His efforts are bearing fruit and the people of Britain are gaining information about Canada.

Confiscation In Morocco It is a custom in Morocco that all the property of an official reverts at death to the crown. The logic which leads to such a result is simple, for the government argues that all fortunes thus accumulated consist of moneys illegally retained by the authorities. A governor when appointed is probably possessed of no considerable fortune. When he dies, he may be a millionaire. Whence came his wealth? Squeezed most certainly from the tribes under his authority and therefore amasses only by the prerogatives of the position in which the sultan had placed him. It has never struck the Moorish government that these great fortunes might more honorably be returned to the people from whom they were stolen. The result is entire confiscation to the crown, including often such pripointment and not seldom, too, of the property of his relatives When the mighty fall in Morocco, the crash brings down with them their families, even uncles and cousins and all connected with them, and it is not seldom that the sons of great governors, who have been brought up in the luxury of slaves and horses and retinues of mounted men, have to go begging in the streets.

Barbers of Spain.

The barber's business in Spain is peculiar in that he is called upon to ply his shears on donkeys as well as men, for it is an important item in the care of Spanish donkeys that they should be sheared as to the back in order to make a smoother resting place for man or pannier. So, while the master held his animal, one of the barbers plied some enormous clacking shears and littered the ground with mouse colored hair, leaving the beast's belly fur covered below a fixed line and for a small additional price executing a raised pattern of star points around the neck.

The tonsorial profession is an indispensable one in a country where shaving the whole face is generally practiced among all the humbler orders, not to mention toreros and ecclesiastics. But the discomfort to which the barber's customers submit is astonish; ing. Instead of being pampered, soothd, labored at with confidential respectfulness and lulled into luxurious harmony with himself, as happens in America, a man who courts the razor in Spain has to sit upright in a stiff chair and meekly hold under his chin a brass basin full of suds and fitting his throat by means of a curved nick at one side.

Cause of Talleyrand's Lameness. The cause of Talleyrand's lameness has long been a matter of dispute Some stories have it that the defect was congenital; others that it was oc casioned by an accident which befell him in his infancy. The most curious explanation of all is that offered by a writer in The Quarterly Review. "To quote the very words of our informant, an eminently distinguished diplomat, says the writer, "Talleyrand's Vienna colleague, Baron Wessenberg, told me years ago that his lameness was owing to carelessness of his nurse, who laid him down in a field while she flirted with her sweetheart and on coming back to her charge found some pigs dining on the infant's legs. I am sure that Wessenberg told me this as an established fact, and I am all but sure that his authority was Talleyrand him-

POOR OUTLOOK FOR CANADIAN WOOL.

Many people, store-keepers and others, throughout our country districts having seen reports of an advancing tendency on the part of wool are apt, it seems to us, to arrive at wrong conclusions from the premises. At least, they are likely to look only at the wrong premises and to argue from those. It is true that the London auctions of colonial wools opened firm for merinos and fine cross-breds but coarse cross-breds showed a decline of from 5 to 71-2 per cent. Since the opening, there has been keen competition for the finer grades at prices which showed a slight advance, but medium and coarse cross-breds are selling at lower prices than ever known in the history of the trade, and they form the bulk of the offerings. This is just the point we wish to make. Those wools in which an advancing tendency is apparent are not such as affect the Canadian market in the slightest degree; whereas the coarser grades, such as are pro duced in the Northwest, are precisely the kinds which, as stated, are to-day selling at the lowest prices known to the trade. A large English house, referring to this subject in a letter referring to this subject in a letter recently sent to this city, say "The English wools are, for the time being, a dead letter—clean knocked out by these cross-breds." They add that they "hate to say it, but the outlook, instead of improving does the instead of improving, does the re-

The cause of this state of things is not far to seek; it simply hinges upon the changed conditions in the chief wool-producing countries of the world. Ten years ago, the chief end desired at by sheep breeders in such countries as Australia, Cape of Good Hope and the Argentine Republic, was the production of wool. Singe then, however, cold storage has become general more profit has been found in the changed conditions in the chief eral; more profit has been found in shipping mutton than wool. The rehas been that the two products have changed places in relative importance, and now the wool is looked upon as a comparatively side-issue. Formerly, when the reverse was the case, a small kind of merino sheep was grown which yielded a fine grade of wool. Now, however, that meat is the primary object, the mer-ino is neglected, and a larger, crossbred, animal is in favor—an animal which produces a coarse grade of wool. This in the ordinary course of things comes into competition with Canadian wools and explains the low prices obtaining for the latter, or rafortunately, things have a habit of adjusting themselves after a while; not only does a demand bring about a supply, but supply creates a demand. Possibly this will be the case in the present instance, and we may in the present instance, and we may see the fashion veer round in favor of goods made of these coarse wools. But it is of no use to disguise this fact that such an evolution is but a slow process, and that a long time may elapse before it is brought about.
Such a change can hardly be said to have begun yet. Judging from pres-baby's advent practically painless.

"I will be very glad to say a few words for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription." writes Mrs. P. S. Douglas, of Mansonville, Brome Co., Que. "During the first four months when I looked to becoming a mother I sulfered very much from nausea and vomiting, and I felt so terribly sick I could scarcely eat or drink anything. I hated all kinds of food. At this time I wrote to Dr. Pierce and he told me to get his 'Favorite Prescription' and a bottle of 'Golden Medical Discoyery.' I got a bottle of 'Golden Medical Discoyery.' I got a bottle of each and when I had taken hardly three parts of each bottle I felt well and could eat as well as any one, and could do my work without any trouble (I could not do anything before). I feel very thankful to Dr. Pierce for his medicine, and I tell all who tell me they are sick to get these medicines or write to Dr. Pierce."

ent indications, large quantities of last season's Canadian clip are still held by country dealers at prices considerably above an export basis. The situation may be briefly stated in the words of a Massachusetts dealer representing probably the largest mills in the world: I have been offered Canada fleece wool in Boston for the past month at 26c. 60 days, and have not bought it because I do not want it. I have bought a deal of bankrupt wool in Philadelphia and Boston — Kents 25c; selected Irish hogs 26c., superior Irish hogs 27c, superior Shropshire hogs 27c all delivered at Boston, 60 days. A week or so ago Boston firm sold me 120,000 superior Irish hogs at 27c.-60 days to close it out as they did not want to carry unsalable stock. I cannot buy Canada wool." DOVER CENTRE.

Last Wednesday evening the manse was the scene of an exceedingly pleasant surpise. It was the occasion of a handsome presentation to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. McLintoch, by the ladies' aid of which Mrs. McLintock was a valued member. The members of the Aid, with their husbands, gathered together at Mr. McKight's and "as the night was beginning to lower" proceeded in a body to the manse. The presentation, which consisted of two beautifully upholstered oak chairs, a set each of silver teaspoons and tablespoons, was made by Miss Ellen Angus, while Mrs. Frank Stokes

read the following address:—
Dear Mr. and Mrs. McLintock,—As the time is approaching when you will be departing from amongst us, we desire to humbly express our appreciation of your ten years' labor as as pastor and wife, and also in some meagre way to convey to you the es teem in which you are held by the members of this congregation. shall look back with pleasure and delight over our years of spiritual work together and our sincerest wish will be for your future health and prosper-

We tender you these tokens of our affection and regard, not for pecuniary value, but as a slight re-cognition of the ability with which you have fulfilled the duties of your sacred calling. We entreat you to accept them in this light and hope they may serve to keep your Dover friends in remembrance in the years to come Signed in behalf of the Ladies' Aid.

Mrs. D. Henderson.

President.

To this Mr. McLintock most fittingly responded, thanking those present for such a kind expression of their regard, which, he said, deeply touched both Mr. McLintock and himself. This agreeable function performed very pleasant social time was spent and a tasty repast spread, for which the ladies had thoughtfully provided. About 12 o'clock this happy gathering broke up, after having indulged in a 'most enjoyable evening.

MUCH CHANGE

he Chatham Gas Cc. Will Spend $25,000 in Modernizing their Plant.

At a meeting of the directors of the Chatham Gas and Electric Light Co., held on Wednesday afternoon last, it was determined to spend large sum of money in modernizing the plant, and fully equipping it with machinery of sufficient capacity to answer the requirements of our city for many years. The sum to be ex-pended will be about twenty-five pended will be about twenty-five thousand dollars, that will provide for two generating benchers of the most modern make, and two large gas engines to operate the electric light plant. A handsome building will be erected for the electric lighting service and now offices will be practed cive and new offices will be erected suitable for a rapidly growing and successfully operated business.

During the past two years the con-sumption of gas and the rapidly in-creasing number of subscribers to the electric light service has taxed the capacity of the works to the ut-most limit, but upon the installation of the new machinery our citizens can rely upon getting a service equal to any in Canada or elsewhere.

THE BOOKS ON CANADA

Review of the Publications Relating to This Country in 1900.

SEVEN PAGES OF BRIEF TITLES.

It was Edited by the Professor of History (Prof. Wrong) of Toronto University, and Published by That Institution of Learning - Canada's Relations to the Empire-Other Sections of the Review

The fifth volume of "The Review of Historical Publications Relating to Canada," published by the University of Toronto, and edited by the profes sor of history (Professor Wrong) and librarian of the university (Mr. H. H. Langton), has just appeared, and embodies a review of all the publications of 1900 relating to Canada. It is sumptuously printed. Annually for five years a volume such as this has been issued. It seemed at first hardly possible that each year a book of more than two hundred pages could be filled, with review of the publications relating to Canada appearing in a single year. Yet here it is. Nearly seven pages are taken up with the brief titles alone of these publications," divided contents o are itly into groups, of "Canada's Relations to conveniently Empire" stands Nothing very important under this head appeared in 1900, if we except the able book on "Commercial Federation and Colonial Trade Policy,' written by Professor Davidson of the University of New Brunswick. He. in lieu of preferential trade, that subsidies should be paid order to cheapen transportation within the Empire. This would amount to a practical preference, and would do good all round. Anything more than this is unlikely, he thinks, to be effected.

The second section in The Review "The History of Canada," and number of works appeared in 1900. There are some learned reon the Cabot question. The great edition of the "Jesuit Relajust completed, calls for a long article. A new and scholarly life of Champlain, by M. Gravier, has aspeared, and some attention is paid to works on the diplomatic relations between Great Britain and the United States affecting Canada. A good many inaccuracies and omissions in the articles on Canadians in the "Dictionary of National Biography" are pointed out.

In the third section, "Provincial and Local History," the French shore question as it affects New-foundland is reviewed, the "tenth island" being treated as really a part of Canada. The Nova Scotia Government has published a new volume of archives throwing more light upon the Acadian question. Judge Routhier has written an interesting history of the City of Quebec, and Mr. John Ross Robertson's "Landmarks of Toronto' is noted. Northwest and British Columbia The much in evidence, Mr. Beckles Willson's and Dr. Bryce's histories the Hudson Bay Company being the most important works in the year. ing account of sport and life in British Columbia.

the fourth section, "Geography, Economics and Statistics,' numerous works on the Klondike are noticed. This review is the best guide to the enormous literature upon this subject. In an earlier vol-ume Dr. G. M. Dawson, the late Director of the Geological Survey of Canada, described the Klondike literature up to the time of writing. The publications of 1900 have not 1ost the former sensational character The Klondike miners are, it appears, admirers of Shakespeare. "Nearly everywhere Shakespeare seems to be the favorite author. . . A gulch that had a full set of Shakespeare considered itself in for rather a cosy winter, and there were regular Shakespeare clubs, where each miner took a certain character to read. reviewer of the Statistical

Year-book of Canada, edited by Mr. George Johnson, rebukes what he calls its tone of narrow patriotism. The progress of mining in Canada and the work of the Geological Survey are described, and we have a record of travel in Canada, extending from Labrador to the Pacific Coast. Perhaps the most breezy book rewiewed is "Buffalo Jones' Forty Years' of Adventure." "Archaeology, Ethnology and Folk-lore" and "Education" complete the volume.

Many publications relating to the Indians in Canada appeared during the year. In connection with education, readers are pleased to see sketch of the career and a complete bibliography of Sir Daniel Wilson.

On the whole, the contents of the review are most varied and interesting. Nowhere else is there to be found such a repertoire of information regarding works on Canada. Professor Wrong and his collaborateurs criticize frankly. The tone fair, however, and frank criticism is still so rare in this country as to edeserve a special meed of praise.

NORTHWEST CANADA.

Interesting Lecture Before the Canadian itute-Lord Strathcona and the Vanished Buffalo-The Gem of the Dominion.

The London Times of April 3 con tains the following report of a pa-per on "Northwest Canada," by per on Rev. John MacDougall of Morley before the Royal Colonial Lord Strathcona presided, and, in introducing Mr. MacDougall, said there was no one who knew more about Northwest Canada than that gentleman did, for his father was one of the first missionaries to the In-dians, and the lecturer himself had for more than thiry years been doing excellent work there, not only as a clergyman, but as a teacher. Looking back to his own experience of forty years, he could recall the time the Northwest was indeed a wilderness, for at that time, instead of comfortable farms now to be found everywhere, there were prac-tically none except a few at the Hudson Bay Company's posts, while the country for enormous distances was with buffalo, of which none black now remained.

In the course of his paper Mr. Macsaid that while the Great of Canada as a whole Dougall Dominion might be said to be one of the brightest gems in the diadem of the British Empire, Northwest Canada might be called the gem of the Do-minion. It represented a block of 1,000 miles square, or territory 640,000,000 acres, and was possibly the largest consecutive acreage of arable land in the world. Not only was the soil prolific under cultivation, but even without cultivation the whole area had been richly, endowed by nature as one of the greatest pasture lands in the world, while everywhere the moisture was suffici-The settlement that had gone on during the last quarter of a century had been but the beginning of the exploiting of tremendous possibilities, which continued dormant because of the lack of population. Contiguous to and underlying these great agricultural and pastoral adwere immense coal fields, possibly the largest as yet discovered in the world. Gold was found in the sands of the streams, and gold, silver and copper were in the quartz ledges of the mountains, though the area of the prospecting and discovery of these mineral deposits was so great that as yet comparatively little had been done. Almost everywhere, too, was abundance of water-It might, also, be regarded as an excellent field for the tourist, inasmuch as the scenery within the foothills and the mountains was surpassingly grand. Another important consideration was that all this rich country was in touch with home markets through British

COL. HUGHES IN ACTION. What He Did at the Battle of Faber's Pit

Commended Officially. Lieut.-General Sir Charles Warren, in his report of the battle of Pit, Griqualand West, on May 30, 1900, says: "Section 16, Lieut.-Col. Hughes, who was at the main farmhouse wit the scouts, on hearing the firing, and seeing the horses stampede, got together a few of his men and rushed into the kraal, opening a brisk fire on the ridge where the Boers were in the diamond washings, until they were obliged to cease fire by the Yea manry advancing out in front of At the same time, Captain Parkin and a troop of 23rd Yeo manry, took possession of the south end of the same kraal, and acted under the orders of Col. Hughes. By holding this kraal, they prevented the rebels getting hold of it from the direction of the cemetery. At this time the rebels began to run away from the south side of the garden, and were in doing so exposed to our fire, but Col. Hughes, supposing them be our own men, ordered Capt. Parkin and party to cease fire, and they thus escaped. Col. Hughes then decided to outflank the enemy, and with some of the Yeomanry and some good shots of various corps, he drove the enemy up beyond the direction of the cemetery, thus getting in line with Col. Crowley, and bringing his right shoulder up he took Venter's men on their flank, and drove them away to the south.

In section 23, Lieut.-Col. Hughes, A. A. G. Intelligence Officer, Major "E" Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, and Capt. Mackie, Warren's Scouts, are named "as being particularly worthy of mention for the excellent services they performed in their respective spheres during the day."

General Warren's report has been strongly supported by Lord Roberts himself, in his despatches to the Secretary of State for War.

He Barred Newcastle.

When Edward VII. as Prince of Wales visited America in 1860, Canada went wild over him, and in Detroit and Chicago the crowds were so dense that the party could scarce ly reach their hotel. So many were the receptions, dinners and other soc ial functions, in which the Prince participated that he finally broke down through sheer fatigue and over-excitement. The Duke of Newcastle, who was the Prince's companion, decided, therefore, to stop off on their way to St. Louis at Dwight Station, a quiet village famous for its shooting. The Prince brought down a bag of 14 brace of quail and four rabbits. But the pleasure of the day was marred by the following inci-

Little Vidette of Lombardy

In the year 1859 during the war for the liberation of Lombardy a few days before the battle of Solferino and San Martino, won by the French and the Italians, united aginst the Austrians on a beautiful morning in the month of June a little troop of cavalry of Sa luzzo was moving slowly through a solitary path, toward the enemy, reconnoitering the country as they went The troop was commanded by an offcer and a sergeant, and all spied into the distance before them with eager eyes, silent, expecting every moment to see the white uniforms of the advance post of the enemy shimmering through the trees. They came to a hut surrounded by ash trees, in front of which was a boy about twelve years old, standing alone removing the bark from a small branch with a knife. From the window of the house floated a large tri-colored flag, but no one was inside. Having hoisted the flag, all had run away fearing the Austrains. As soon as the boy sow the cavalry men, he threw away his stick and took off his hat. He was a finelooking lad with a brave face, large blue eyes, and long blonde hair. He was in his shirt sleeves and his shirt was unfastened, showing his bare chest.

"What are you doing here?" asked the officer, stopping his horse. "Why did you not run away with your fam-

"Not for the last three days." The officer sat thinking a moment, then dismounted from his horse, and, eaving the soldiers turned toward the foe, he entered the house and went up on the roof. The house was low and from the roof only a little stretch of the country could be seen. "It is necessary to climb the trees," said the officer, and he came down. Just in front of the yard there was a lofty, slender ash tree, which was rocking its top in the sky. The officer stood lost in thought for a moment, looking now at the tree, now at the soldiers, then, all of a sudden, he asked the boy:

"Have you good eyesight, you raga-muffin? "I?" said the boy. "I can see a sparrow a mile distant." "Can you climb to the top of that "I can do that in a minute." "And could you tell me what you see down below from the top, whether there are any Austrian soldiers, clouds of dust, guns glimmering, or any horses on that side?"

"Surely, I could." "What do you want me to pay you for this service?"

"What do I want?" said the boy. smiling; "nothing, of course. If the Austrians asked me, I would not do it at all, but for my own people-I am a Lombard!" "Well then climb up."

"Wait just a moment for me to take off my shoes." He took off his shoes, tightened the strap around his trousers, threw his hat on the grass, and clasped the trunk of the ash tree.

"But, look out!" exclaimed the officer, making a gesture as if to hold him back, as though spized with a sudden fear. The boy turned around to look at him with his fine blue eyes, as if to question him. "Never mind," said the officer; "go

The boy went up like a cat. "Look in front of you," cried the officer to the soldiers.

In a few moments the boy was at the top of the tree, with his legs around the trunk among the leaves, but with his breast uncovered, and the sun shining on his blonde head made it look like gold. The officer could hardly see him, he looked so small from the ground.

"Look straight in the distance," The boy in order to see better took his right hand from the tree and put it over his forehead. "What do you see?" asked the offi-

The boy bent his head forward, and, making a speaking tube of his hand, answered: "Two men on horseback on the white road." "What distance from here?" "Half a mile."

"Do they move?" "They are standing still." "What else do you see," after a mo-ent's silence, "Look to your ment's silence.

"I am not afraid," answered the "Come down," reseated the officer. "What else do you see at the left?" "At the left?"

"Yes, at the left." The boy pushed his head to the left, and another whiz, sharper and lower than the first, cut through the air. The boy shook all over. "Confound them!" he exclaimed, they are aiming at me." The buliet had passed very near him. "Down!" cried the officer in perious and irritated way. "I will come down directly. The tree, however, will protect me, do not fear. To the left, you wish to know "To the left," answered the officer;

"but, come down." "To the left," said the boy, turning his head that way, "where there is a chapel, it seems as though I can see-A third raging whiz was heard and almost at the same time the boy was seen coming down, holding for a moment to the trunk and to the branches, and then falling down head first, with open arms. "Curse them!" cried the officer, running to him. The boy struck the ground with his back and lay there stretched out with his arms open; a stream of blood was flowing from his left side. The sergeant and two soldiers jumped from their horses, the officer bent down and opened his shirt; the bullet had entered his left lung. "He is dead," exclaimed the officer. "No, he lives," answered the sergeant. "Our poor, brave boy!" cried the officer. "Courage! courage!" But while he was saying this and pressing his handkerchief over the wound, the boy rolled his eyes wearily, and let his hand fall back. He was dead. The officer turned pale and looked at him fixedly for a moment, then laid him with his head on the grass; and, for awhile he remained looking at him. Also the sergeant and the two soldlers stood motionless and gazed at him; the others were turned towards the enemy.

"Poor boy," sadly repeated the officer, "Poor and brave boy."

Then he approached the house and took from the window the tri-colored flag and stretched it out like a funeral pail over his body, leaving the head uncovered. The sergeant picked up the boy's shoes, cap, the little stick. and the knife.

They stood in silence a moment, then the officer turned to the sergeant and said: 'We will send the ambulance for him. He died like a soldier, and we will bury him like a soldier. Having said this he threw a kiss to the dead and cried, "To horse." They all jumped to their saddles, the troop formed again an followed up its route; but a few hours later the little dead boy did receive the honors of war. Towards sunset all the lines of the Italian advance post were marching toward the enemy over the same road which had been taken in the morning by the troop of cavalry. The large battalio of bersagieri, which a few days before had valiantly stained with blood the hill of San Martino, proceeded in two files. The news of the death of the boy had spread through the army before the soldiers had left their encampment. A stream ran along beside the path a few paces distant from the When the first officers of the battalion saw the little corpse stretched at the foot of the ash tree and covered with the tri-colored flag( they saluted him with the sword, and one of them bent over the edge of the stream, which was bordered with flowers, plucked two flowers and threw them over him. Then all the battalion, as they were passing, picked flowers and threw them over the dead. In a few moments the boy was covered with flowers, and officers and soldiers all gave him a salute as they passed by. "Brave little Lombard!" "Good bye, boy!" 'Honor to you, little blonde!" "Hurrah!" "Glory!" "Goodbye!" One officer threw a medal of valor on him; another kissed his forehead; the flowers continued to shower on his bare feet, upon his wounded chest, and upon the blonde head. And he slept there in the grass wrapped in his flag, with a white but almost smiling face, noor boy as if he felt the honor paid him. as though he were content to have given his lite for his Lombardy.

If you have time to spare a moment from your morning journal, just look about you in ear or boat, observe and listen. You will see every mortal man—with often hundreds in view at one time—religiously bowing at the altar of the news in silence that is only broken by a continuous rustle as the source of leaves are turned. There is no more devout newspaper reading community than is found in the matropolia.

BREAKFAST IN NAPLES

Not a Very Costly Meal For the Poorer People.

In the "short and simple annals of the poor" in Naples there is no getting up and lighting the fire to cook the family it is curable, easily and quickly, if the breakfast. The wayfarer arriving on an will tablets, douching or stomach medicines cure. These treatments fail because they are not far reaching enough. They only affect local conearly train or the reveler returning from some gay ball at dawn sees the first movement of the immense wheel of hu-man appetite in the shape of a dismal enough. They only affect local conditions, but do not remove the cause, which is germ life established deep down in the lungs, bronchial tubes and nasal passages. Ordinary remelooking creature muffled in a ragged over-coat and shuffling sluggishly from door to door of the opening bassi, or ground floor shops and tenements. He carries a long handled iron pan half filled with dies do not reach these remote parts, but Catarrhozone does for it is breathed through the inhaler into ev-ery air cell in the lungs, into every air passage in the head and throat. oldering charcoal, whereon simmers quaint copper pot full of a mixture that purports to be coffee. This compound, which he duly administers to his clientele, is the sober Neapolitan "eye opener." Well sweetened and well warmed, it No matter where the Catarrh is, Catarrhozone will reach it. It kills the costs only 1 cent and is the beverage of nose and throat instantly. Universthe early risers; of hackmen returning from the night's chill station; of watchanteed to cure or money refunded. men making their last weary rounds; of Try Catarrhozone, 25 cents and $1.00. workmen shaking off the lethargy of in-Druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, sufficient sleep; of women half poi by the night's rest in houses devoid of Circumstances are beyond the conentilation. Very soon the air becomes vocal with the characteristic calls of the breakfast venders. "Hot, hot, and big as apples!" shout the sellers of peeled chestnuts. These are broiled in huge caldrons in reddish broth of their own making, which is further seasoned with laurel leaves and caraway seed. A cent's worth of the steaming kernels, each of which is as big as a large English walnut, is a nourishing diet that warms the fingers and comforts the stomach of troops of children on their way to school, or rather to the co-operative creches, for nurseries, where one poor woman, for a cent a day each, takes care of the babies of a score of others who must leave them behind to earn the day's living.

Meantime dignified cows pass by "with measured tread and slow," shaking their heavy bells and followed by their beguiled offspring, whose business it is to make them "give down" their milk at the opportune moment and to let the milk-man take it. Nothing can be funnier than this struggle between the legitimate owner, the calf and the wily subtractor of the lacteal treasure. Although tied to his mother's horns by a rope long enough to reach and even lick her bag, but not to get any satisfaction out of it, his bo-vine wit is often sharp enough to give the slip to the noose and elude the vigilance of the keeper, occupied perhaps for the moment in quarreling with some saucy maidservant over the quantity of milk to be paid for. The scene which en-sues is worthy of the cinematograph. As a sequel, calfy's tail is nearly pulled off, but he has spoiled the oppressor's game for one day anyhow.-Mary Scott-Uda in Century.

TWO PRAIRIE TERRORS.

hot day is to hang up a large wet cloth. If hung in the window, it will The Havoc That Is Wrought by Fire and Snowstorms.

One of the most terrible of the dangers encountered by the homesteaders on the prairie has been the prairie fire. Its be ginning was a trifle—a careless brand from a hunter's campfire perhaps—but the outcome is dreadful and momentous

At first there is only a low bank of dark cloud on the horizon. An hour later or less the cloud, like a black band across the sky, has risen half way to the zenith, and along the lower edge of ft runs a fringe of visible flame.

It is quick work then. Nobody who has not seen a full fledged prairie fire car realize its immensity, its tremendous rate of progress, which is swifter than that of the fastest horse, and its power of de-struction. The mass of heated air thrown up from it causes a great suc-tion, producing a wind which follows the fire and pushes the column of smoke to the front.

When there is time enough, a fire is started in the grass toward the approach ing fire, so as to make a burned space that will check the coming flames. If there be not time for that, a fire is started in the same direction, so as to leave in its wake a space in which shelter may be found. Great snowstorms, accompanied by cold waves, in the east are commonly called blizzards, but they are not at all like the western blizzard. In a real blizzard the air is filled with a peculiar vapor of snow which drifts before the wind at the rate of 40 to 60 miles an hour. The vapor is so dense that in it the traveler can hardly see his hand before his face. A person caught abroad in a blizzard is in a dreadful plight indeed. The snow drifts through his clothing and beats directly against his skin. No clothing, however thick, will keep it out. Thus he is subjected to dreadful distress, but what causes most of the deaths that oc-cur in blizzards is that the snow vapor is carried into the lungs in breathing and paralyzes those organs. Often it has happened that a man has ventured out of his house a few yards to the barn and in returning has fallen dead before er pains and aches that beset man-kind. The world is challenged to reaching his threshold.

Humor In Some Old Wills. A certain Lieutenant Colonel Nash left an annuity to the bellringers of Bath to "toll dolefully" on each anniversary his wedding day, and contrite Mr. Withi-pol of Walthamstow left the bulk of his property to his wife, "trusting," he says, "yea I may say as I think, assuring myself, that she will marry no man, for fear to meet with so evil a husband as I have been to her."

Mr. Jasper Mayne at least considered himself witty when he bequeathed to his valet a wornout portmanteau, as it contained something, said the will, which would make him drink. The excited valet ripped open the trunk and found a red herring in it. So, doubtless, did the Scotch gentleman who, in 1877, left to his son's care his two worst watches, "be-cause," he said, "I know he is sure to dis-sect them."—All the Year Round.

Left Struggling. A Turk had fallen into a well. A Jew ran for a ladder to get him out.
"No, no," said the son of the Crescent;
"I am not going to climb your ladder, as this is Friday, the day consecrated to

Allah."

In spite of his entreaties the Jew had to go away and leave the Turk paddling in the water up to his chin.

The next day the Jew went to see how the disciple of Mohammed had spent the night.

"The ladder, for Allah's sake, the ladder!" shrieked the Turk in desperation.

"Allah forbid!" replied the Israelite.

"Don't you know this is Saturday, our Sabbath?" And off he went, leaving the Turk still struggling in the water.
