Danderine

Grows hair and we can prove it

Hair Becomes Soft, Fluffy, Lustrous and Beautiful Immediately After a Danderine Hair Cleanse

Get a 25 Cent Bottle Now and Forever Stop Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff

A little Danderine now will immediately double the beauty of your hair—No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Try as you will after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful.

*Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it, if you will just try a little Danderine. Real surprise awaits you.

A MYSTERIOUS QUEST.

CHAPTER XLIV.
Jenny's Marriage.

It was seven o'clock. The hour at which Jenny had promised to send the carriage for the intended bridegroom. Hamilton Degrav, who had spent the last half hour of waiting in eager contemplation of the picture in which he had perpetuated her beauty at its sweetest and most unconscious moment, rose joyfully as he heard the clock strike, and with a lover's alacrity prepared to go below. For in this interim which he had thus spent with his dearest memories, his imaginative nature had re-asserted itself, and being still under its spell, he had forgotten that anything further awaited him than the ceremony which should unite their mutual love in an indissoluble bond.

Nor when he found himself in the carriage and riding swiftly up town did he allow any weak fears of what lay between him and his marriage to interfere with the rapture which the near prospect of that marriage woke within him. He was too busy calculating how he would arrange the dainty home with which he intended to spare one moment for a less pleasing occupation; nor did he note for several minutes that the carriage, instead of taking a direct route for Miss Aspinwall's house, was coursing rapidly through an avenue leading in quite a different direction.

But when he did awake to the fact, he was certainly startled. Leaning out of the window, he hailed the man on the box.

yond the reach of curious eyes. Whatever her idea, he must not linger, but enter at once. The carriage in which she had come was on the other side of the way, and since it still waited, it was evident she contemplated returning with him to the scene of their nuptials, as soon as she had satisfied him concerning the letter.

Telling Benjamin that he would soon return with Miss Rogers, he ran up the steps. But before he could ring the bell, the door opened just as it had on a previous occasion, and he perceived before him in the dismal hall the deaf and dumb girl, standing in her old attitude, and pointing silently up the stairs.

It was not an agreeable sight to him, but he laughed off the unpleasant sensation it caused, and followed, without demur, the guidance of her finger. Arrived at the second story, he found it as dim and as dark as of old. No one stirring, no sound to break the chilling silence. But he cared not for this. In another moment he would see his bride, and all would be brightness and cheer again. Passing straight on to the room which had welcomed him before, he went in without knocking. It was empty and unfurnished, but he knew by the light which shone around the door-jamb communicating with the back room, that he should not find this equally barren or unoccupied.

'Yet, when he stood before it, he experienced a moment's hesitation, fancying that he heard a voice speaking somewhere. But another look behind his assured him that he was alone, and conquering whatever agitation this imagined utterance of his name had caused him, he thrust out his hand, with the quick appeal of "Jenny!" and violently pulled open the door.

'The cry which instantly left his lips was like the smothered shriek of a man overwhelmed by a doom so sudden and so terrible that even expression is choked in horror, and bumps the mind.

She was there, but not as he had expected to see her—in some sweet attitude of eager waiting—but lying outstretched and cold upon her snowy couch, just as he had seen her months before, only then the candles burning at her head and at her feet shone upon her beauty that would reawaken to life, and a heart destined to throb again with love and hope and fear. Now all was ended. The beautiful, the gifted, the beloved would rise to life no more. Jenny Rogers was dead, and on her bosom, amid blossoms so white that they must have been destined for her bridal, lay the letter!

CHAPTER XLV.
WHAT HE READ.
HAMILTON DEGRAV had no very distinct thoughts as he flung himself at the side of his bride, and laid his head upon the pulseless heart.

She had killed herself, but he could not guess why and he had neither the courage nor the self-possession to open those tell-tale pages that rested upon the silent bosom. It was enough that his hopes had perished, that his darling lay dead and that never again in all the days to come would he meet the tender glance of her eye or the wistful smile of her mouth. What if shame lay behind this death? What if the life, which to all appearance was so sweet, so pure, so worthy of love and adoration, held a secret that would dishonor him if known. It was her life and he loved it—it, how he loved it, now that it was put out forever and by her own hand!

Tears had risen to his eyes four months ago at the sight of these waxen features, these seemingly pulseless hands; but he could not weep now. Grief had gone too deep; his soul was lost too darkly in the shadows of this loss. He buried his face amid the drapery that enshrouded her, and tried to kiss her heart.

'Ah, darling! darling! darling!' went up from his lips; 'whatever thou has done I forgive thee.'

And the row of lights burned on, and an hour dragged itself heavily by, before another sob disturbed the solemn silence, and then it did not come from him.

From whom, then? He did not know. Starting up, he looked about him. What angel of consolation was this standing beside him? Hilary, in robes of white. Hilary, tears flowing down her cheeks and

A BROKEN-DOWN SYSTEM This is a condition of disease to which give many names, but which few of them understand. It is simply weakness—a broken-down system. No matter what may be its cause, for the most numberless, its symptoms are much the same. Mr. James Bryce Defends the Backward Races.

Why is Mission Work So Slow? --The White Man's Pocket-- Need for Morals All Round.

The Right Hon. James Bryce, our Ambassador to the United States, has a striking article in the new International Review of Missions on "The Impressions of a Traveller Among Non-Christian Races."

While admitting all that missionaries have done, he asks why missionary work should be so slow in its progress to-day. He points out the harm done by unscrupulous traders, and the need, now that European nations are pervading the whole world, of the right treatment of all backward nations.

The Missionary Work.

"No traveller of an observant eye and an impartial mind," says Mr. Bryce, "who passes among those uncivilized, non-Christian races in which missionaries are now at work, can fail to be struck by the immense improvement which they have wrought in the condition of the people, and which often is quite irrespective of the number of actual converts who have been formed into Christian congregations."

"The work done in the way of education, for instance, in the Turkish East, where missionaries are now far less occupied in the effort to make proselytes than in endeavouring to spread education and enlightenment, and the work done in India, the influence of which extends far more widely and is more beneficial than is recorded simply in the number of converts, not to speak of regions like South Africa and the Pacific Islands, where the aborigines have been reclaimed or are being reclaimed from a savagery which in many tribes has been cruel and debasing, give evidence of the excellence of the work and the claims which it has upon the support of the Christian world."

Why So Slow?

"No doubt it frequently happens—this is only what must be expected—that those who are nominally converted are far from rising to the Christian ethical standard, and sometimes relapse into their old degrading practices. Nevertheless, after allowing for all such cases, the gain is great and seems likely to be permanent. Still it is true, and this again and again strikes the traveller with a painful force, that the spread of the Gospel is less swift, and its effect in lifting the aboriginal peoples less complete than there was ground for hoping when one considers what thousands of devoted men have been at work in the diffusion of truths which carry their own warrant with them. Why is it that when Christianity was able to spread and conquer the world against all forces of imperial persecution in the first four centuries after it had appeared, its progress in these last four centuries, with all the impulse of civilization behind, should be still in many quarters so slow, and the results so far from perfect?"

The Unscrupulous Trader.

"Among several reasons which might be suggested for this fact there is one which is not sufficiently appreciated by those who have not seen with their own eyes the phenomena that attend the coming together of civilized and uncivilized man. Missions are not the only form in which the contact of advanced and backward races has taken place. This appeared from the first days of the spreading forth of the European races. "Everywhere the native has suffered; everywhere the white adventurer or trader has attempted to treat him as if he had no rights, or has regarded him as a mere instrument for the use of which he can profit. To some extent it is inevitable that the weaker race should suffer by this contact, but there has also been much willful and needless wrong-doing on the part of the white men who have gone among the aborigines. The governments of those nations which have within our own time annexed native territories are now more disposed to protect the inhabitants, though within the last few years there have been, as you know, shocking and horrible things done in some parts of Africa by some so-called civilized governments."

The White Man's Pocket.

"The work of bearing the white man's burden, too, takes the form of filling the white man's pocket. It is no wonder that the behaviour of men who are nominally Christians—Christians in profession if not in practice—has checked, and still checks, the progress of Christianity. Thoughtful men from non-Christian countries will sometimes tell us that they and their fellow-countrymen have, when drawn towards Christianity, been repelled by seeing how little influence it seems to have over the conduct of its nominal adherents. The missionary comes preaching the gospel of peace and love, but when the natives see the rapacity and injustice of men professing the religion which the missionary preaches, the preachers lose their power."

Need for Vigilance.

"Accordingly, the feeling and the conclusion which the traveller cannot but bring back with him is of the necessity that exists for the most constant and strenuous vigilance on the part of governments to protect and help the native, and to repress every attempt to exploit him, to secure for him full justice and considerate treatment, to endeavour to inculcate upon the adventurer and trader, and the man who employs natives to work for him in agriculture or in mining that he should treat the natives with the same justice which he is obliged to show to a man of his own race."

"The force of public opinion in countries like Great Britain and the United States ought to support governments in endeavouring to maintain this high standard, not only among their own officials, who I believe in every case are animated by the sincerest wish to do right, but also among their other subjects who, among aboriginal races for the purpose of gain."

A Critical Age.

"There is a second reflection which forces itself upon the mind of the traveller who studies the phenomena of the contact between advanced and backward races. The age in which we are now living is a critical time. It is perhaps the most critical moment there has ever been in the history of the non-Christian nations, a moment most significant in its bearing upon their future. In these days of ours the European races have obtained the control of nearly the whole world, and their influence is felt far more deeply and widely than before, even in those parts of the world over which they do not exercise political control. Our material civilization is permeating every part of the earth, and telling, as it never told before, upon every one of the non-Christian peoples."

How Civilization Spreads.

"There is a second reflection which we call our civilization will have overspread the earth and extinguished the native customs and organizations of the savage and semi-civilized peoples. They are being exploited as they never were before, and the means of transportation by land and sea which have penetrated among them have brought foreigners everywhere, and are completely breaking up and destroying not only the material conditions of their life, but also their ideas and beliefs and worship, their ancient customs, and all that is associated with these customs and beliefs. Their morality, such as it was, with all its tolerances of vices and all its degrading practices, was nevertheless, for some purposes, a sanction which did restrain them, and which elevated their notions and directed their actions for some good purposes."

Backward Races and Morals.

"All of this is crumbling away and disappearing, perishing under the shock and impact of the stronger civilization which the European peo-

CHILBLAINS SO BAD HE COULDN'T WEAR BOOTS

Douglas' Egyptian Liniment Cured Him

Though thousands suffer from chilblains every winter, few are laid up with them as was Mr. J. A. McParlane, of Napanee, Ont. What cured him will surely cure anything in the way of chilblains. Mr. McParlane writes: "Douglas' Egyptian Liniment cured me of chilblains. My case was so bad that at times I was confined to the house, the affected parts being so sore and festered that I was unable to wear boots. Many remedies were tried without benefit, until I procured Egyptian Liniment, which gave immediate relief. "Whenever I feel symptoms of this trouble returning, one application of the Liniment, is sufficient to check it." It's wise to keep a bottle of Egyptian Liniment always on hand, ready for immediate use when needed. In the case of frost bites, burns or scalds, it gives instant relief. 47 25c. at all Druggists. ples have brought with them. Unless the backward races receive some new moral basis of life, some beliefs and precepts by which they can live, something to control their bad impulses and help them to form worthy conceptions of life and work, their last state will be worse than the first.

"The process of destruction and disintegration which I have described is inevitable, and it is advancing swiftly. This then is the critical moment at which we are bound, since we have destroyed the old things, to replace them by new things of a better kind, to give something by which they may order their life and through which they may begin a truer progress than was possible under their ancient ways. And what we give we must give by example as well as by precept: by showing that what our missionaries teach is the rule of our own conduct, both as governors and as private persons."

"There is a needed revival of the true spirit of the Gospel among Christian nations in order that they should fulfil their Christian obligations to those who are passing under their control and influence."—Public Opinion.

Sam Hughes Wants One Million Men

Who Can Hit a Target at 500 Yards. Barrie, Ont., Jan. 29.—Speaking at the 25th annual mess dinner of the 15th Regiment, Hon. Col. Sam Hughes invited the major portion of his address to his plan for training the young. The importance of preparing "Canada for defence" a protection for "Canada was emphasized. "Give me," he said, "one million men who can hit a target at five hundred yards and we would not have a foe invade our country." Training should begin in childhood, and at 12 years of age the boys should be where the soldiers are to-day in the matter of drill, and at fifteen they should be able to hit a target as well as a man. "In five years from now," he said, "I want to have some hundred thousands of these youths training to shoot and march. Then when the brigade is called out it will not waste time on the 'goose step' but will go through the practical manoeuvres that would be required in the field."

The new tailored waists are cut like a skirt, with small pockets, regulation front pleat, button through collar and turn-back cuffs.

Why Not be Well and Strong

When weak and run down DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD will help you back to health. This letter tells of two women who have proved this. Mrs. D. Stott, Cobourg, Ont., writes: "After recovering from typhoid fever I was left in a very low state of health. I was weak, nervous and not fit to do any work. A friend of mine, Mrs. G. M. Brown, had used 'DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD' and told me that it benefited her wonderfully. I took courage and began the use of the medicine. After taking the first box I began to feel an improvement in my health and now after using four boxes I am completely cured. I now feel like myself once more and believe that I can attribute the cure to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food." Life is too short to spend weeks or months dragging out a miserable existence of weakness and suffering. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures by forming new rich blood and building up the system. You can depend on it to benefit you, 50 cents a box, $1.00 $2.00, at all dealers or Edmanson, Eaton & Co., Toronto.

Tongue of Fire Leaps From Ocean.

Pillar of Flame a Thousand Feet High Near Trinidad—What Lighted It—A Mystery that Scientists are Trying to Solve—Consternation Among the Natives.

What lighted the gas jet, a thousand feet high, that burst out of the ocean recently near Trinidad, causing newspaper rumors that a new volcanic island had arisen near the coast, and that it was in active operation? The matter appears to be more or less of a mystery. According to a letter written by Robert Anderson to Science (New York), the phenomenon is not really volcanic in the ordinary sense of the word, but is due rather to an eruption of natural gas from submerged strata. The real wonder in this case—for such outbursts of gas are not infrequent in that region—is its ignition, which has not yet been satisfactorily explained. The outbreak seems to differ from those resulting in the ordinary "mud volcano" of Trinidad chiefly in the great scale on which it occurred. Mr. Anderson quotes as follows from a letter written by Jefferson D. Davis, of Port of Spain, on Nov. 6:

"On last Saturday (Nov. 4) I was seen to rise from the surface of the ocean, three miles southwest of Erin. . . . The gas . . . soon took fire, and the flames must have gone to an enormous height, because they were seen from Port of Spain to shoot into the clouds, and Erin is approximately fifty miles from this place. The country was lit up for considerable time, and great consternation prevailed among the natives. . . . The Governor of the colony and a party of officials, with a number of prominent people from this place, went down yesterday to see the phenomenon, and found a piece of land about three acres in area, about 30 or 40 feet above sea level, in the centre of which was a crater. The ground seemed to be the ordinary blue mud, but was very hot, consequently baked dry and hard. Some of the more adventurous visitors, went on to the land and walked about for a while, and took home some samples of the clay. Large volumes of gas were coming from the crater at this time, but there was no fire. We learned to-day by telephone that it has taken fire again." The birth of the new gas or mud "volcano" was also witnessed by A. Veatch, formerly of the United States Geological Survey, who was on board ship at Brighton, Trinidad, just about to sail for New York. Writes Mr. Anderson: "He informs me that his notice was suddenly attracted by a great flame that shot up into the sky just at dusk. It ten minutes before six, Saturday evening. Every one thought it was an oil or gas well on fire. With the first puff the flame rose as a brilliant mushroom-shaped mass, which immediately changed its form to a straight jet of fire, that must have risen to a height of at least 1,000 feet. No noise whatever preceding or accompanying the fire was to be heard from Brighton, which is across the low hills within fourteen miles of the place where the new island was formed. The fire disappeared below the horizon in about five minutes, leaving a cloud of smoke that drifted away. No light was to be seen in the sky the rest of the evening, which makes it certain that the flame either became reduced to a very small size or died out entirely."

The new volcano is about two miles off Trinidad's south coast, and lies on the eastward extension of a line marked by previous outbursts, some of them still active. This line may probably be a crack in the earth's crust. The "Columbia," the largest of these volcanoes, has formed a mound of ejected mud several acres in extent, and 50 to 70 feet high. The sides of this cone, as well as some others in Trinidad, notably the one called "The Devil's Woodpile," are strewn with pebbles and rock fragments that have been ejected from a great depth. We read further: "A point of unusual interest regarding the late eruption is that the gas took fire. The reports so far received give no details bearing on this point, but it seems unlikely that the original ignition took place through human agency. If it did not, the phenomenon is one which has seldom, if ever, been recorded before."

"Two ways suggest themselves in which the gas might conceivably have become ignited through natural causes. One way is that sparks might have been produced by the friction of boulders against each other as they were shot out with the gas. Cases have been reported to me by oil men in which sparks were formed by boulders projected under great gas pressure from wells, striking the casing and tools, but I have heard of no case in which the gas was lighted. Another supposition is that electric sparks might have been generated similar to those observed in the vapor clouds emanating from Mt. Pelee at the time of its great eruption."—Literary Digest.

$25 in GOLD Given Away

The great "QUEEN LINIMENT COMPETITION" open to every Man, Woman and Child in Newfoundland. On the 1st of March, 1912, will be given away to the four or more successful winners of this competition the sum of $25.00 in Gold. We have on exhibition in the window of our Medical Hall, Theatre Hill, a rectangular box having an inside space as follows: length, 8 inches; breadth, 4 inches; height, 3 inches. This box is filled with Antibilious Pills of about the size of a pea. The competition is to guess as near as possible the number of pills contained in the box. The person guessing the exact number, or the nearest number of pills in the box, will receive for the first prize $10.00; second prize, $5.00; third and fourth prizes, $2.50 each. In the event of two or more persons guessing the same number, the amount of the prize will be proportionately divided amongst the successful winners. That rule will apply to all prize winners. Every person purchasing a bottle of our "QUEEN OF LINIMENTS," whether in the city or outport towns, and mailing as the outside green wrapper of bottle, with the number of guess, together with their name and address, will have a chance of winning the grand prize. Prepared by

If outport competitors who are unable to obtain this Liniment in their town will mail us Twenty Cents in Stamps, together with number of guess, name and address in full, we will forward post paid by return mail a bottle of our "QUEEN OF LINIMENTS," but with the outside wrapper removed and retained by us, as a pledge of purchase, and a due record kept of that fact. The person forwarding us the greatest number of the outside green wrappers of bottle together with their name and address will not only receive an additional prize of $5.00, but will have a chance of winning some other prizes as well. If they send a guessing number with each accompanying wrapper. This competition will close on the 1st day of March, 1912, at 12 o'clock, noon. Estimates after that date and hour will not be considered. On the same date the box will be opened by two reliable and competent judges, who will carefully count the number of pills, and make the awards to the successful competitors. "STAFFORD'S QUEEN OF LINIMENTS" is one of the most perfect and penetrating Liniments that can be purchased in Newfoundland, and it ought to be in every household. Once used always used.

A BROKEN-DOWN SYSTEM.

This is a condition of disease to which doctors give many names, but which few of them really understand. It is simply weakness—a broken-down, a failure of the vital forces that sustain the system. No matter what may be its causes (for they are almost numberless), its symptoms are much the same: the more prominent being, sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weariness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of life. Now, what alone is absolutely essential in all such cases is NERVOUS STRENGTH—VITAL STRENGTH & ENERGY to throw off these morbid feelings, and experience proves that as night succeeds the day this may be more certainly secured by a course of the celebrated life-reviving tonic.

THERAPION No. 3

than by any other known combination. The principle as it is taken in accordance with the printed directions accompanying it, will the shattered health be restored. THE EXPIRING LAMP OF LIFE LIGHTED UP AFRESH. and a new existence imparted in place of what had so lately seemed worn-out, "used up," and valueless. This wonderful medicine is purely vegetable and innocuous, is agreeable to the taste—suitable for all constitutions and conditions, in either sex, and it is difficult to imagine a case of debility, that will not be speedily and permanently benefited by this powerful life-reviving tonic. It is a tonic, and is destined to cast into oblivion everything that has preceded it in the whole series of medicinal preparations of human ailments.

The Teachers' Xmas Box.
We notice that the Daily News gives an emphatic denial to the rumor we published yesterday that the Teachers' Pension Scheme was to be dropped owing to the hostility displayed against it in the north. The Daily News observes that the truth or falsity of the rumor can easily be decided next Wednesday. Precisely. That is just what we said. We will repeat it for the benefit of our good-tempered constituency—

"Wednesday, the 14th, is St. Valentine's Day, and also the day when the Legislature will meet, and the Government programme will be officially announced. It should at that time be seen whether teachers are to have the valentine we have mentioned in place of the Christmas Box promised on December 23rd, 1911."

We notice that our contemporary, out of the abundance of his good nature, has presented us with a new leader in the person of Mr. Conker. We thank him for the favour, although it is a work of supererogation, as we are already sufficiently provided for in the way of leadership; and moreover, we are not hankering after a change. We fear we have not the political versatility of our esteemed friend, which has enabled him to go to the country under a different leader at the end of every term for the past twenty years.

Armistice.
Special to Evening Telegram.
PEKING, To-Day.
A complete armistice has been arranged, but the bargaining between Premier Kai and the republican leaders is likely to continue several weeks before the Court finally settles. The Chinese papers publish the terms laid down by the Empress Dowager which include the perpetuation of the title of the entire Court and the retention by the Imperial family of the palaces at Peking, the continuation of the Imperial Guard at the expense of the republic, and the right of the Court to exact regal homage from the nation. It is not believed that the Republicans will accept all these terms. Anarchy in Manchuria is causing much concern and a Japanese battalion has been moved into Mukden. The Japanese legation here declares that except for this change no troops have been moved.

Last Night's Wrestling.

OLSON BEATS BERRY EASILY—MUCH COMMENT OVER THE MATCH.
Before a large gathering of spectators the return wrestling match between Young Olson and Bob Berry was pulled off in the C. L. B. Armoury last night. In last night's affair Olson won out. Olson won over his opponent, Berry, by two straight falls, getting the first in 23 min. 25 2-5 seconds, and the second in just 9 minutes. As in the previous match between the men Mr. R. Dowden acted as manager, E. J. Goodland, referee, and Messrs. Higgins and Parsons, timekeepers. When the men appeared in the arena they seemed to be in fine fettle and the audience looked forward to a good exhibition. When the match opened both men got in some strenuous work, Berry taking a very aggressive attitude and many thought that victory would perch upon his banner. After about 20 minutes Olson began to show that he had conserved his strength, and when the time alluded to was up Olson had Berry's shoulders to the mat with a half Nelson and scissors hold. Berry's backers were greatly surprised when their man went down to quickly. When the fall was made both men left the ring, to reappear when the 10 minutes' breathing space allowed had expired. When time was called both men appeared to be fully fit for the work ahead of them and were at 'hammer and tongs' in exchanging all the holds known to experts in the art and in just 9 minutes of time Olson again had his man squarely to the mat, the fall being obtained by a double leg hold or body press. This win gives Olson the Alhambra Tournament Belt, presented by Lord Lonsdale in 1908 at London, and which was competed for by wrestlers from all parts of the world. The Anderson belt was held by Anderson for 9 or 10 years, and in his class he was the recognized champion of America until defeated by Olson in this city. After last night's match there was much comment amongst the spectators, many of whom professed to believe that the bout was a fake, but Olson's backers and those immediately interested in him say that he put forward the best that was in him and that he won the match on the square and would not compromise his professional reputation by faking such an important event.

A Good Name.

One of the best and rarest possessions attainable in this life is that summed up in the three simple words above written. It is better than great accomplishments, high position, vast wealth, or worldly fame. It is a gift humbly received, persistently cultivated, devoutly cherished—a kindred gift to that bestowed by the Church in the Second Collect at Evening Prayer. "Give unto Thy servant that peace which the world cannot give." A man may have it though he be as poor as was Lazarus or as rich as Nicodemus. One of the most notable possessors of this lordly gift in modern days was General Robert E. Lee, the hero of the Southern Confederacy. In a recent work, entitled "Lee as College President," Thomas Nelson Page recounts some interesting incidents in the later life of the great soldier. Amongst the offers of employment made to General Lee after the close of the war, was the presidency of an insurance company at a salary of $50,000 a year. This he declined on the ground of unfitness. It was urged in reply that all the company needed was the use of his name. To this the single-minded soldier said: "Do you not think that if my name is worth $50,000 a year I ought to be very careful of taking care of it?" He chose instead the charge of a small college or academy in the South with a few assistants and about forty students at a salary of $1,500 a year. Later on, when offered an important commercial position with very large remuneration he declined in these noble words: "I am grateful, but I have a self-imposed task which I must accomplish. I have led the young men of the South in battle; I have seen many of them die on the field. I shall devote my remaining energies to training young men to do their duty in life." Of Lee's life at the humble college of his choice we are told that "he was as prompt at chapel as the chaplains"; he most faithfully discharged all his duties; he knew all the students, and "he was feared and loved by every boy he knew." Lee's love for children—a distinguishing trait of all great and chivalrous souls—it well known. As he was riding one day he met two little girls, the eldest of whom was vainly trying to make her little sister go home. She appealed to the General, who asked "the little rebel to ride home with him. The timely invitation was gladly accepted, and, sharing the General's cord to her mother. On another occasion, having heard that two little children in the family of a friend were ill, Lee walked through a storm to the house to cheer and comfort them with gifts that children love. "He was," says Page, "one of the handsomest men I ever knew, and easily one of the most impressive looking. His figure . . . was in fine proportion to his height. His head well set on his shoulders, and his erect and dignified carriage made him a distinguished, and, indeed, a noble figure. The impression that remained with me chiefly is of his dignity and his gracious courtesy." General Robert E. Lee was one of the world's great men. The United States of America have just reason to be proud of his birth, his life and of the imperishable memory of his great and "good name."

Bad Handwriting

Sheridan's writing was a scandal to his school and puzzled the town. He once wrote a "pass" to Drury Lane, and the doorkeeper stopped its bearer and immediately pronounced it to be a forgery because he could decipher it. To make matters worse, Sheridan was also uncertain in his spelling. A "which," a "where" and a "whether" in his hands, for instance, were as often as not deprived of their "aitches," and a "thing" was to him always a "think" and nothing more. The atrocious writing of celebrities recalls the claim once made on behalf of Baron Brawwell that he wrote three hands—"one which he could read, another which his clerk could read and he couldn't, and a third which nobody could read," and the last named was his usual style. The writing master of the elder Dumas attributed the defeat of Napoleon at Waterloo to a badly scrawled message to Grouchy which was wrongly interpreted. The Duke of Wellington wrote an equally bad "nat." Lord Palmerston was such a stickler for legibility of script that he would send a despatch half way around the world to have it clearly rewritten.—Fall Mail Gazette.

Seallops are extremely fashionable at present, and are especially adaptable to collars and jabots.

Skyscraper Hat Next.

New York, Jan. 26.—The makers of women's hats are out to make altitude records. They are seeking inspiration not in the galleries, but from such bonnet models as the American skyscrapers. Skyscraper millinery is now being busily constructed in Chicago, and 6th Avenue milliners are rushing along designs in order to meet the first dash of Spring sunshine with 42-story fire-proof "creations."

One feature of the new style will earn the gratitude of mankind. The long hatpins will become obsolete. The new kind of hat will fit close on the head of the wearer, as the hard-belled derby clips the men's craniums.

The women will have to tuck the "rats" away in camphor and revert to grandmother's way of doing her hair in order to suit their heads to the new style hat.

The Ladies of St. John's May Now Have Beautiful Hair—McMurdo & Co. Have the Article and Guarantee It to Grow Hair, or Refund Your Money.

McMurdo & Co., Chemists, backed up by the manufacturers of SALVIA, the Great Hair Grower, guarantees it to grow hair. SALVIA destroys Dandruff in ten days.

The roots of the hair are so nourished and fed that a new crop of hair springs up, to the amazement and delight of the user. The hair is made soft and fluffy. Like all American preparations SALVIA is daintily perfumed. It is hard to find an actress who does not use SALVIA continually. Ladies of society and influence use no other.

SALVIA is a non-sticky preparation, and is the ladies' favorite. A large, generous bottle, 50c. The Scobell Drug Co., St. Catherine's, Canadian distributors.

Colors and Smells

A celebrated chemist in Paris publishes the following concerning the relations of colors and smells:

Black of all colors absorbs smells most freely. Dark blue, green, yellow and red follow. White is least liable to absorb smells; hence its preference for nurses and cooks.

The scientist tells of a famous tenor whose voice loses all its timbre the moment he smells lilacs. Lilacs in a room are liable to take his breath away.

Other scientists contribute these strange facts:

A young Italian girl suffering from hysteria and unable to sleep was cured by the application of musk to her nostrils, musk having the same effect upon her as a powerful narcotic.

A famous Italian surgeon, Scalliger, was nearly frightened to death when he accidentally inhaled the odor of a lily.

The Princess Lamballe got cramps when she smelled violets, and Catherine I. of Russia swooned when she saw a rose.—Baltimore News.

ASK YOURSELF THESE QUESTIONS

And find out if you have kidney disorders—Also make this test.

Have you pains in the back over the kidneys?

Do you suffer from severe headaches, dizziness or defective eyesight?

Is the skin dry and harsh?

Are you failing in health and strength and suffering from rheumatic pains or swelling of the limbs?

These are a few of the symptoms of kidney disease, and here is the test.

If the urine after standing for twenty-four hours is cloudy, milky or has particles floating about in it, or if there is a sediment in the bottom of the vessel, your kidneys are diseased.

There is no time to lose in beginning the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They will help you more quickly than any treatment you can obtain, and that is one reason why they are so successful and popular.

It is said that the Japanese have only recently begun to drink milk, and that on the whole they do not approve of it. They say that it tastes of the cow, and they prefer drinks of vegetable origin. Cattle have long been known in Japan, however, being used for draft animals.

Perhaps it is true that hobbie skirts have cost the textile industry nearly $100,000,000 a year and the cotton growers $30,000,000, as the wholesalers declare, but it will be hard to get husbands and fathers to agree that they have saved anything like that.

A woman in London has just succeeded in establishing her claim to money which had been in Chancery since 1873. Exports of boots and shoes by the United States have increased from 400,000 pairs in 1889 to 12,000,000 pairs in 1911; valued at $17,000,000.

ST. JOHN'S AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—Notice to Farmers!—A special meeting of all milkmen of the Electoral Districts of St. John's East and West will be held in the British Hall on Thursday next, the 8th inst., at 11 a.m., to consider the milk rates submitted by the A. P. C.—Feb. 21.

At the fur sales in London last week the price of sable reached a new high record, as much as $18 being paid for a single good skin. The cost of living in highly fashionable circles is not to come down for some time, it seems.

By H. L. RANN.

THE GOAT

As generally understood, the goat is a domestic animal with a high forehead and a lower lip which recedes faster than an abasent-minded man who has butted into the wrong berth.

There are several kinds of goats, however. One of the most popular is the lodge goat. This is a playful and easy-riding animal, whose mission is to throw the lodge membership into convulsions and the candidate into all the hardwood furniture in the room. After a man has ridden this goat once and escaped without being telescoped to such an extent that he can't tell the grand halling sign of distress from the cable tow he will never have to fight off an attack of seasickness with a stout heart and spirits of ammonia.

Another popular species of goat is the man who invites a party of friends to his home in the absence of his wife and acts as banker in a poker game. The world is full of goats who are continually buying 15-cent drinks for somebody who happens to be broke. The four-legged goat is one of the most sociable beings in existence. One might almost say that he is prying. One of our neighbors who had a large, masculine goat, which was of a very inquisitive nature, was entertaining a life insurance agent one day and was about to inhale the contents of a $5,000 policy when the goat entered the room unexpectedly and batted the insurance agent through a glass case containing a costly beak-wax floral design. It afterward turned out that the goat had taken a dislike to the agent. On another occasion this same goat disturbed a protracted meeting by pushing a lifelong member of the church through a hard pine pew, thereby ruining his composure and a bright new pair of cuffs. The goat died soon after of rigor mortis superinduced by a shotgun.

The man who places his confidence in a goat which is full of play and animal spirits will have his trust shattered after he has been unhooked from a gooseberry bush a few times by kind and sympathetic hands.

That Police Petition.

The petition which the police intend presenting to the Legislature for a raise of pay will be signed by every man on the force all over the island, and we hear that if the prayer is not given the hearing which its importance deserves, many of the younger men in the Constabulary will resign and take up some other means of making a living, nor is it at all unlikely that some of the senior members will follow their example. They are men all of whom can prosecute the fishery and engage in other kinds of manual work of which there is plenty to be had in Newfoundland in recent years; all of them realize that they cannot live on the present remuneration which they receive, and if the just demand is not about to be made it is not properly dealt with the petition of a considerable number of the Constabulary would be a serious matter for the Colony, for their places could not be immediately filled. Many of all classes are keenly interested in this important matter.

Fear Kamjford Is Lost.

The S. S. Kamjford which is laden with a full cargo of coal (about 300 tons) is now 12 days out from Sydney, has on board a crew of 14 men, all natives of Norway. The fact that none of the ships which have crossed the Gulf since she left have brought news of her is causing much uneasiness and there are many nautical men who fear the worst. She was very deeply laden and if caught in the ice must run the risk of being holed by it in rough weather. However, there are hopes from the ocean, and it is possible that with her machinery out of order she may yet be towed here or into one of the Nova Scotian ports.

Personal.

Mr. Charles White, of Dowling Bros. hardware store, who was in hospital suffering from trouble with his hip is now about again, is on the road to recovery and will soon resume his duties.

Miss Jean Summers, daughter of Mr. Patrick Summers, is ill of appendicitis and goes to the hospital tomorrow to undergo an operation.

When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Halibut Fishery.

The Portia reports that the halibut fishery on the S. W. Coast is to date far short of last season. The fish is fairly plentiful but the weather has been so stormy that there has not been much chance to catch it. Last year big shipments were made in January to Cape Breton, but this season very little has gone forward. The Portia brought a shipment of 2,500 lbs. for the St. John's market. Last year on her first trip in February she had 2,500 lbs. on hand.

The Portia Here.

The s.s. Portia, Capt. T. Fitzpatrick, arrived here at midnight from the westward. The ship, owing to meeting heavy ice, could not get around Cape Ray. She left here on January 27th, reaching Fermeuse at 8 that night, and was delayed by terrific snow storms Sunday and Monday, so that she did not get around Cape Pine until Tuesday morning. She had fine weather until she reached Belleoram, Thursday. She left Port aux Basques at 1 p.m. that day and tried to get around Cape Pine, but not being able to do so returned to Port aux Basques. She left there at 4 p.m. Sunday and reached Pass Island at 6 p.m. Monday and made the run down from Placentia in 25-hours. She brought a small freight and several passengers.

Yesterday's Hockey Match.

The line-up in the inter-collegiate match yesterday morning was as follows: Methodists—Lench, Anderson, Stick, Bastow, Hayward, Gear and Lench. St. Bon's—Crawford, Rawlins, Haley, Knight, Edens, Duchemin and O'Hagen. It was the first match of the second round. In the first half the Methodists put up seven goals, chiefly through the fine playing of Hayward and Lench. The St. Bon's did not score at all in this half, but got three goals in the second half, while the Methodists secured three additional, making the game stand in favor of St. Bon's, 10 to 3. O'Hagen, Edens and Haley played well for St. Bon's.

Getting Ready.

We learn by the Portia that the western bankers are now preparing for the winter voyage and some will sail next week. From Ramea, Penneys will send out six vessels, and they will leave Isle au Mort first chance. All are baited with frozen herring taken at Connaigre Bay. Six are also ready to sail from Belleoram, and if the weather is favorable it is thought good trips will be secured.

Death of a Nonogenarian.

There died at his residence, Kelligrews, at 3 a.m. Sunday, Mr. William Tilley, a gentleman highly respected and well known not alone on the South Shore but all over Conception Bay. Mr. Tilley had reached the remarkable age of 97 years, and was one of the oldest, if not the oldest, men in Conception Bay. He was a type of the old-time honest and industrious fisherman whose word was his bond, and who was honest and square in all his dealings. Mr. Tilley was the pioneer resident of Kelligrews, and when he settled there this now flourishing pastoral village was covered with a thick forest growth and he was the first to clear land here and engage in agriculture. A fisherman-farmer of the olden time he prosecuted the seal and cod voyages with success, and by his industry and enterprise won for himself and his family a competence which rendered him independent. Mr. Tilley, whose venerable wife predeceased him by about a year, was a robust and constitution and gifted with a good memory for one so well stricken in years, and could recount many interesting stories connected with the prosecution of the cod and sealing voyages in the early days of the 19th century. He leaves six sons and two daughters and many grandchildren. His funeral took place yesterday and was attended by a concourse of people from all the settlements on the South Shore of Conception Bay.

Distribution of Prizes.

Last night the annual distribution of prizes to the pupils of the Cathedral and St. Michael's Sunday Schools took place at the British Hall, Rev. Canon White, Rector of the Cathedral, presided, and introduced the Lord Bishop. He spoke of the good work of the Sunday School the past year and expressed great pleasure in the fact that the congregation to see the Bishop looking well and in good health on his arrival from abroad. The Lord Bishop in replying said that he was pleased to meet the Sunday School workers and eulogized their self-sacrificing efforts in the good cause. Their work, said the Bishop, is not appreciated by the public generally as highly as it should be. He thanked the clergy also for promoting the work of the schools, after which His Lordship presented the prizes being assisted by Lady Horwood, Supt. of the Girls' School of the Cathedral, Miss A. Hayward, Supt. of St. Michael's Sunday School, and W. N. Gray, Supt. of the Boys' School. There are now over 600 members in the class. There was a large attendance at the distribution including the parents of the pupils. The orchestra of the Men's Bible Class played the hymn accompaniments, and the members of the class acted as ushers. The singing of the Doxology and the Lord Bishop's blessing brought a very successful meeting to a close.

Mislaid Letter

Brings Sweethearts Together.

Missive Found by Tailor Had Been in Owner's Coat More than Twenty Years.

Waynesboro, Pa., Jan. 24.—Twenty years ago R. S. Schmidt, now a wealthy fruit grower of Winchester, Va., put in his overcoat pocket a letter to the girl he wished to wed, but got no answer. The letter was never mailed until recently, when a tailor found it in one of his pockets, and called Mr. Schmidt's attention to it. The result was the wedding of Mr. Schmidt, a widower, and his boyhood love, twice a widow. The bride was once Miss Augusta Jacobs, of Germany, later of Baltimore.

Not hearing from the wooer of her early days, she became the wife of Edward Kipp, who died, and later she became the wife of Frederick Gallion,

Condemned To Death.

Severe Punishment Indicates Discipline Observed in French Army.

Paris, Jan. 27.—A strange and painful incident occurred last week at a court martial held at Lille and presided over by the colonel commanding the regiment of mounted chasseurs. Among the prisoners was an infantry soldier named Mottais, who came from Havre. While in the penitentiary last October he threw his wooden shoe at the head of the visiting surgeon, and when brought up for trial appeared to be sorry for the offence, listening without comment to the evidence of the surgeon and chief warden.

Mr. Tilley was the pioneer resident of Kelligrews, and when he settled there this now flourishing pastoral village was covered with a thick forest growth and he was the first to clear land here and engage in agriculture. A fisherman-farmer of the olden time he prosecuted the seal and cod voyages with success, and by his industry and enterprise won for himself and his family a competence which rendered him independent. Mr. Tilley, whose venerable wife predeceased him by about a year, was a robust and constitution and gifted with a good memory for one so well stricken in years, and could recount many interesting stories connected with the prosecution of the cod and sealing voyages in the early days of the 19th century. He leaves six sons and two daughters and many grandchildren. His funeral took place yesterday and was attended by a concourse of people from all the settlements on the South Shore of Conception Bay.

Mislaid Letter

Brings Sweethearts Together.

Missive Found by Tailor Had Been in Owner's Coat More than Twenty Years.

Waynesboro, Pa., Jan. 24.—Twenty years ago R. S. Schmidt, now a wealthy fruit grower of Winchester, Va., put in his overcoat pocket a letter to the girl he wished to wed, but got no answer. The letter was never mailed until recently, when a tailor found it in one of his pockets, and called Mr. Schmidt's attention to it. The result was the wedding of Mr. Schmidt, a widower, and his boyhood love, twice a widow. The bride was once Miss Augusta Jacobs, of Germany, later of Baltimore.

Not hearing from the wooer of her early days, she became the wife of Edward Kipp, who died, and later she became the wife of Frederick Gallion,

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

The years roll on, so swift, so swift! Old age on us advances, and we into its shadows drift with mournful backward glances. It seems but yesterday that we who falter now and totter, were playing TIME FLIES on the sunlit sea, or by the woodland water. The days went by on heavy wing, slow then were life's long stages; for childhood seemed an endless thing of cycles and of ages. Thus time to childhood still appeared a crippled thing on crutches; but, childhood past, the busy years throw on the high speed clutches. Our minds intent on plan or scheme, on triumph or disaster, we do not mark the years that steam by faster and still faster. And then some day the truth comes home—the truth that makes man shiver: the scattered hairs upon his dome—the pink pains in his liver, the creaking of his shoulder blades, and many another token, all tell him, while his valor fades, that he is old and broken! It is a thing demanding tears that in our fierce endeavor we do not prize the speedy years until they're gone forever.

The "Nation" Ireland has so long urged the general principle of Home Rule that she has almost forgotten to discuss the details. But it was largely on questions of detail that the Bills of 1885 and 1893 were shipwrecked, and it is questions of detail that will end the Bill of 1912. The Government needs fuller and clearer information than it has received of the real mind of the Irish people on such governing points as those of finance and of Irish representation. On whatever lines the Bill is drawn, it will be fiercely opposed by Ulster and by the forces of "Ulsteria" in the Unionist Party. If it is not as staunchly and steadily backed by the united forces of Nationalism in Ireland, it will have a very hard struggle for existence. It is time then that both English and Irish opinion should get settled on some leading points. What, for example, is to be contemplated as the permanent relation of the Parliament at Dublin to that at Westminster? What kind of body is the Dublin Parliament to be? Is it to be two houses or one? Is Ireland to have fiscal autonomy, partial or complete? In what form and to what extent is it to be represented at Westminster? These questions all hang together, and on our answer to them depends our general view of the meaning and the measure of Home Rule, that is to say, of the nature of the autonomy which Ireland is to enjoy.

Ambitious Men

who realize their latent ability and seek success in life, are invited to a careful consideration of the famous food

Grape-Nuts

Brain Nourishment is essential to Brain Activity.

A sluggish brain is a handicap—a hindrance in the path of promotion.

Grape-Nuts food, made of whole wheat and barley, contains the tissue-building "albumins" and the energy-making starches (changed into dextrin and grape sugar in making Grape-Nuts.)

It also contains the phosphate of potash (grown in the grains)—the cell-forming, mineral element Nature uses in building brain and nerve cells.

Grape-Nuts, regularly for breakfast, will help anyone.

Some New Aspects of Home Rule.

(The "Nation," London (Liberal).)

Ireland has so long urged the general principle of Home Rule that she has almost forgotten to discuss the details. But it was largely on questions of detail that the Bills of 1886 and 1893 were shipwrecked, and it is questions of detail that will endanger the Bill of 1912. The Government needs fuller and clearer information than it has received of the real mind of the Irish people on such governing points as those of finance and of Irish representation. On whatever lines the Bill is drawn, it will be fiercely opposed by Ulster and by the forces of 'Ulsteria' in the Unionist Party. If it is not as staunchly and steadily backed by the united forces of Nationalism in Ireland, it will have a very hard struggle for existence. It is time then that both English and Irish opinion should get settled on some leading points. What, for example, is to be contemplated as the permanent relation of the Parliament at Dublin to that at Westminster? What kind of body is the Dublin Parliament to be? Is it to be two Houses or one? Is Ireland to have fiscal autonomy, partial or complete? In what form and to what extent is it to be represented at Westminster? These questions all hang together, and on our answer to them depends our general view of the meaning and the measure of Home Rule, that is to say, of the nature of the autonomy which Ireland is to enjoy.

Unfortunately, in any attempt to answer this question, there is one factor which does not depend on Irish considerations alone. The most workable system for the future—if we could but rewrite the constitution of these islands on a clean slate—would be one of Home Rule all round. There would be a central Parliament at Westminster for the United Kingdom, with Parliaments enjoying delegated powers for each of the four portions of the United Kingdom. This central Parliament would control the Customs, and by consequence the Excise. It would also raise revenue by direct taxation, and having met the needs of the Imperial expenditure, would allocate the balance, on some such lines as those which Lord Macdonell has suggested, to each of the four divisions. The four subordinate Parliaments would have powers of raising internal revenue in such wise as would not interfere with the collection of Imperial revenue, and would be responsible for internal expenditure. Their legislation would be subject to the veto of the Imperial Government, exercised as in a Colony through the Royal prerogative. There would thus be no need of a second revising chamber.

No such system as this can be instituted at a stroke. We cannot expect Ireland to wait until Scotland, England and Wales have made up their minds as to the kind and amount of self-government that they respectively require. But in establishing Home Rule in Ireland we can proceed with this possibility of further development in our minds. Indeed, if we act otherwise, some questions will become very awkward indeed. Take the case of Irish representation. We cannot exclude the Irish from the House of Commons without giving Ireland complete financial autonomy. This is not proposed, and it follows that the Irish members will remain, though in reduced numbers. As long as they are at Westminster they will be able to vote on purely British questions, while British members will have no voice in corresponding Irish questions. This is not a permanently tenable position. It is possible only as an intermediate stage in a process of devolution which must eventually be carried further in the direction of giving a corresponding measure of Home Rule to the remaining three-fourths of the United Kingdom. It is, then, with this further devolution in view that the Irish Parliament should be established. This appears to us to carry with it the consequence that a Second Chamber is neither a necessary nor a desirable adjunct of the directly elected body. The Dublin Parliament will be confessedly subordinate. Its legislation will be subject to a veto exercised by the Crown on the advice of Ministers, and these Ministers will be responsible to a House of Commons in which Irish representatives will be able to call them freely to account. This, we suggest, is a form of guarantee more satisfactory to Belfast and to Nationalist Ireland itself than that of any non-representative Chamber. It would also be the natural stepping-stone to a federal system in which the Parliaments of England, Scotland and Wales would be similarly constituted and similarly situated.

But it may be asked—Why assume that complete fiscal autonomy is impossible? Why should not Ireland control her own revenue, and in what sense can she be said to enjoy self-government if she does not control it? The reply is that the reason against a complete fiscal separation are stronger to-day from the Irish than from the English point of view. When Mr. Gladstone drafted his Bills, there was a surplus accruing from Ireland to the Imperial Treasury. To-day the balance is the other way. Fiscal independence means to Ireland the loss of a net annual income to which a great part of her recent prosperity is due. It means exclusion from the benefits of recent British social legislation, and from the Imperial credit, which can alone render possible the completion of land purchase. But there is a yet graver matter which the Irish farmer will have to take into account before he supports any demand for fiscal separation. In the early days of Home Rule, Free Trade for England was a settled policy. I separate Customs had then been proposed people might have feared that Ireland would set up barriers against British imports, but no one would have suggested that Ireland might suffer from a similar policy of exclusion. Now, we hope and believe that it will remain impossible for any Ministry to frame a protective tariff for this country which will be accepted by Parliament. But we can no longer frame constitutions on the assumption that Free Trade is a settled policy. Tariff Reform is a programme in being, and the turn of the wheel will, sooner or later, bring a Tariff Reform Ministry into power. Such a Ministry will have to do something for its agricultural as well as its commercial and manufacturing friends, and what could it do that would be popular with the agricultural interests as the imposition of a tariff on Irish cattle and the produce of the Irish creameries? In that event the Irish farmer would be faced with the possibility, we do not say of losing his largest customer, but of finding that customer parted from him by a tariff fence not to be scaled without material forfeit of profit. Where these possibilities are duly weighed in Ireland, there will not, we think, be any demand for the destruction of the existing Customs union, and the main tenance of that union carries with it a train of consequences which sufficiently distinguish the nature of Irish from that of Canadian Home Rule.

This distinction is also the answer which the Home Ruler has to give to the fears of Ulster so far as they are grounded on reason. The Imperial Parliament will retain an ultimate supremacy which will permit of no measures exceeding the powers conferred by the Home Rule Bill or abusing them to the flagrant disregard of British traditions in the matter of religious equality. But Belfast will also find the same Imperial supremacy resolute in enforcing the law of the land. She may talk of an unofficial, independent government of her own, and may play at electing her Parliament and voting her own taxes, but she will have to pay the taxes levied at Westminster and at Dublin, and to obey the laws passed by the duly constituted Parliament of Ireland. Any actual wrong to Belfast, England would be quick to resent. But rebellion in anticipation of wrongs commands the sympathy of no rational being, and the proclamation of seditious intentions leaves the British public sceptical and cold. That public will judge of the Bill by the degree in which it succeeds in adjusting such points of detail as those to which we have briefly referred, the points, that is to say, that are essential to the reconciliation of a true national autonomy with those fiscal and political relations which must subsist between neighbors so near, with interests so closely intertwined.

A Modern Miracle.

He Had Eczema 25 Years and Doctors Said "No Cure."

Yet Zam-Buk Has Worked Complete Cures.

This is the experience of a man of high reputation, widely known in Montreal, and whose case can readily be investigated. Mr. T. M. Marsh, the gentleman referred to, lives at 101 Delorimier Avenue, Montreal, and has lived there for years. For twenty-five years he has had eczema on his hands and wrists. The disease first started in red blotches, which itched, and when scratched became painful. Bad sores followed, which discharged, and the discharge spread the disease until his hands were one raw, painful mass of sores. This state of affairs continued for twenty-five years!

In that time four eminent medical men tried to cure him, and each gave up the case as hopeless. Naturally, Mr. Marsh tried remedies of all kinds, but he, also, at last gave it up. For two years he had to wear gloves day and night so terrible was the pain and itching when the air got to the sores. Then came Zam-Buk! He tried it, just as he had tried hundreds of remedies before. But he soon found out that Zam-Buk was different. Within a few weeks there were distinct signs of benefit, and a little perseverance with this great herbal balm resulted in what he had given up all hope of—a complete cure! And the cure was no temporary cure. It was permanent. He was cured nearly four years ago. Interviewed the other day, Mr. Marsh said: "The cure which Zam-Buk worked has been absolutely permanent. From the day that I was cured to the present moment I have had no trace of eczema, and I feel sure it will never return." If you suffer from any skin trouble, cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it, with one cent stamp to pay return postage, to Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfld. We will forward you by return a free trial box of Zam-Buk. All druggists and stores sell this famous remedy, 50c. box, or three boxes for $1.25. Refuse harmful substitutes.

Saved Man From Being Crucified.

Lodz, Russian Poland, Jan. 26. — The timely arrival of the police to-day just prevented a band of fanatical women from crucifying a man whom they had adopted as their "Saviour." A new sect was recently formed by women of the Moravian community. They selected a man named Kowalski whom they worshipped. They urged him to allow himself to be crucified so as to enable him to prove the truth of their belief by his resurrection.

Special to Evening Telegram. BELFAST, Feb. 6. Another danger zone has been successfully eliminated by the official announcement that the engagement of Ulster Hall, both by the Unionists and the Liberals, has been cancelled at the request of the hirers. The Belfast corporation has undertaken that no meetings of any sort shall be permitted there on Feb. 7 or Feb. 8. This disposes of active incitement of trouble. The authorities, as a precautionary measure, drafted into the city this afternoon a large body of soldiers, to each of whom fifty rounds of ball cartridges have been handed out.

The rising tide of anger throughout England over the sentence of the German Court on Bertrand Stewart promises to give the affair an importance second only to the Dreyfus case. It is regarded as the last straw in the long and accumulating burden of Anglo-German hostility, and the newspapers of all political parties are clamouring for the Government to take action. The matter will be energetically brought up in Parliament unless immediate action is taken. British feeling is inflamed because the trial was mostly in secret, the only witness being a Belgian spy. Stewart is a lawyer of the highest standing, with the best family connections. The Pall Mall Gazette makes a passionate appeal to the British people not to rest till justice is done.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

TRY THE SUNLIGHT WAY

The Evening Chit-Chat

By MUTE CAMERON

There is such a thing as raising the standard of living wisely.

There is also such a thing as raising the standard of living unwisely and wrongly.

And I think the second course is the one which a great many of our young people of the present day and generation are following.

Let me tell you a little concerning the standards of a young woman who has been married about three years. The girl's father is making an excellent income. Her husband probably receives about one half or a third as much. And yet in almost every case the standards of living in the younger folks' home are higher than those to which their parents are accustomed.

For instance, the girl's mother probably never paid over thirty-seven and a half cents for towels. Sometimes she has purchased them for even less than that. But none of the younger woman's towels cost her less than fifty cents. Her guest towels were seven dollars and a half a dozen, and she has a few to be displayed to extra special guests for which she paid a dollar apiece.

Her mother thinks seventy-five or eighty cents a good price to pay for sheets. Her daughter tells with horror of one of her girl's friends who didn't have a single sheet in her trousseau worth more than seventy-five cents. Her own bed linen ranged from a dollar sheet up, and included embroidered linen pillow cases and a pair of hemstitched linen sheets which she says were a bargain at seven dollars.

His mother is satisfied with table linen that costs a dollar and a half a yard, for ordinary use. The daughter wouldn't use anything but patterned cloths, and wouldn't think of putting a cloth on her table less than four or five dollars. Her best cloths cost two or three times that.

Grapefruit for breakfast in the parental home is considered a luxury. In the household of the young folks, it is looked upon as a matter-of-course necessity.

The father and mother put a telephone into their home only after long consideration. The daughter looked upon a telephone as an inevitable part of the furnishings of her bridal apartment.

When the mother has a suit made she goes to the old family tailor and pays fifteen dollars for the making. Her daughter says that "his lines are harsh," and pays an uptown tailor twenty-five.

These are a few typical comparisons between the standards which content the old folks and the standards which the younger people think simply must be lived up to.

And yet, as I said before, her father has probably twice the income her husband has.

What wonder then, that the young folks in three years of married life, hadn't saved a cent, and that the old folks had to step forward and pay some of the bills when baby came?

We see examples of such conditions everywhere—that is, of young people who are living up to their income from week to week and have to be helped out by the older folks every time some unforeseen contingency, some "twenty-first reason" demands a little extra money, and I think these exaggerated standards of living, these inflated notions of what are the necessities of life, are largely to blame.

You often hear it said that young people want to start where their fathers and mothers leave off. If only they'd be content with that! But in most cases, they want to start where some friend, who has about twice the income they have, started. And that's where the tragedy of unpaid bills and exceeded incomes begins.

A more general habit of basing expenditure on one's earnings, instead of on what so-and-so has or does, and a more general realization that life is a place where "all true joys don't hang on material pegs" are things sadly needed by the great majority of the younger generation.

Is your house really lighted from top to bottom or do you still have to take a candle or lamp when you go to the attic or cellar at night?
A great many people who have electricity in the rest of the house have no light in the cellar or attic because it is seldom needed; but, when you do need it, you need it badly.
One Incandescent Lamp set in a Holophane Reflector will give sufficient light for the darkest cellar or attic. Holophane Reflectors are especially adapted to lighting places of this sort as they control the light rays so that every ray is utilized. Wouldn't it be a convenience if you could turn a switch and light your cellar or attic before entering? That means an end to dangerous matches and flames—it means that you no longer need stumble against misplaced boxes and bark your shins in the dark.
We would like to tell you more about electric lighting and more about the wonderful light-saving Holophane Reflectors. May we send a representative to see you?

Pay only a trifle more for The Safe-Cabinet

Then you will have a cabinet that does all a wooden file can do plus this most important thing—protects your papers from fire, theft, dust and moisture. Measured by price alone, anyone can afford to buy The Safe-Cabinet. Measured by value, no one can afford to be without it.

The homely Suet Pudding, or the Dumplings for the Stew are lightest when raised with

"Paisley Flour"
The SURE raising powder.

The most digestible and enjoyable suet puddings are made by adding one part of "Paisley Flour" to eight parts of ordinary flour before mixing the dough. Steaming instead of boiling also helps to make puddings lighter. "Paisley Flour" mixed 1 part to 12 of ordinary flour, makes delicious light piecrusts and plain pastry for tarts—no doughiness.

"Paisley Flour" is packed in 22c., 14c. and 5c. tins.
The 22c. tin contains 14 ozs. and will raise half a stone of flour.
" 14c. " 7 ozs. " 3 1/2 pounds of flour.
" 5c. " 2 ozs. " 1 "
