Tonsillitis, Sore Throat, Chest Colds, Can be Cured Over Night

They Vanish Quickly If Nerviline is Well Rubbed in.

When the throat tickles, when it hurts to draw a long breath, when you feel as if a knife were stuck in your side, it's time to draw out the congestion that will soon become pneumonia.

An ordinary cough syrup has no chance at all—you require a powerful penetrating liniment.

Nothing is known that possesses more merit in such cases than Nerviline.

Rub it liberally over the sides and chest—rub it in hard.

The warm, soothing effect of Nerviline will be apparent in five minutes. Nothing like it for quick relief.

takes soreness out of the throat in one rubbing—breaks up the chest cold, draws out the inflammation, stops the cough quickly.

Rub it on for rheumatism—it destroys the pain—drives it right away. Try it for stiff muscles—it works miracles in just such cases.

Give Nerviline a chance on your neuralgia, prove it out for lumbago, see what it can do for sciatica.

No pain-relieving remedy compares in power to cure with Nerviline. Largest sale in Canada of any liniment for nearly forty years. The reason is plain. It satisfies every time.

The large 50 cent family size bottle is more economical than the 25 cent trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Stella Mordaunt; The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XV.

"Let me be, Stella," she said, when Stella begged her to accompany her to the beach, the woods, the lowest of the cliffs, walks which she herself delighted in. "Let me be, I am, if not content, resigned, and I am too weak to walk."

She grew thinner and paler each day, and the eye of experience would have seen in her countenance signs which boded ill; but Stella was not experienced, and had no forebodings.

To pass away the time, while she kept away from Rath, Stella was driven to the books on the shelf in the hut. I say driven, because she was not at any time very fond of reading; and on this fairy isle, with its clear, bracing air and sunny skies, one did not hanker after books as one longs for them, and depends upon them, in this fog-girt isle of Britain.

The whole place was one open book to her, and with Rath by her side to point out and explain, she had found it delightful reading; but now she turned to the printed volumes and pored over them by the hour together until she would find them from her with a yawn, and—wonder what Rath was doing, and whether he missed her.

On the afternoon of the third day she saw Rath in the distance, striding towards the interior with his axe in his hand, and knew, that he was going to fell trees for firewood. She saw him stop and look back towards the hut, and once he saw her and waved his hand; she waved hers in response, and then, thinking he would not be back for some time, took the volume of essays she was reading in to the shadow of the pines, and curling herself upon a bed of fragrant pine "needles," tried to read; but the book did not hold her long; her mind wandered after Rath.

She could see him swinging the shining axe, hear the sharp thud as it struck the tree, see his tall, graceful figure as he leant back for another swing and cut. How strong he was! Were all men so strong? she wondered. He had lifted and carried her as if she had been a feather, and his arms had encircled her as if they were steel bands. There it was again! She could not forget it! With an impatient moue she opened the book again, and with a frown forced her attention to it; but presently her quick ears caught the sound of footsteps—Rath's—and for a moment she felt for the first time a strange desire to rise and fly from him. But it was too late; for he had seen her, and with an involuntary exclamation he quickened his pace and stood beside her.

She looked up with a beautiful start and ejaculation of surprise. "Oh! is that you? How you startled me!" she said.

"Did I?" he said, innocently. "I should have thought you would have heard my footsteps; I should know yours the moment I heard them."

"I thought you were cutting trees," she said, rather severely.

"So I was," he said; "but I have broken the handle of my axe." He dropped the broken tool at her feet and sat down beside her with the obtuseness and self-unconsciousness of the man. "Where have you been for the last two days, Stella?"

She yawned indifferently as she replied, with fine sarcasm: "On this island."

"Yes, I know," he said, with his usual seriousness; "but why haven't you come to help me as you used to do?"

"I've been busy," she said, absently, and apparently extremely interested in her book. "Busy about—about the hut. I don't suppose you've missed—wanted me?"

"Yes, I have," he replied. "I've missed you very much."

"Oh, thanks." I didn't know I was of so much use to you."

"It isn't that," he remarked, with appalling candour. "It isn't that you help me so much; but I miss you somehow. I don't know why. I never felt lonely, or to want anyone with me, until you came."

She glanced at him out of the corner of her eye and closed the book over her thumb.

"But I daresay I should have got used to being alone again if I had not you with me for another day or two."

She opened the book suddenly, and became absorbed in it again.

"Perhaps it would be just as well if I did get used to it," he went on, musingly; "then I shan't miss you so much when you go."

"I'm not gone yet, and I don't see much chance of going," she remarked, without looking up.

"No," he assented, gravely. "Not until the Indians come. I might arrange with them to send someone for you."

There was silence for a moment, as he began to cut the broken handle from the head of the axe, for Rath was seldom idle; then he said, meditatively:

"I thought you might be offended about something."

"Offended? Oh, dear, no! What at?"

"I don't know. Perhaps because I didn't attach so much importance to your discovery of the gold; or because I carried you the other day. I suppose no one likes being carried against their will, though you seemed unable to walk."

"Did you carry me?" she said, lifting her brows until they almost joined the hair on her forehead. "Ah, yes; I remember. Oh, no, I'm not at all offended. Though I hope you won't do it again. I hate being carried."

"So you said," he remarked, placidly. "No, I won't do it again. Where are you going?" for Stella had risen.

"Into the wood for a stroll."

"Better not," he said, casually. "I saw a panther just now. Just my luck; I'd left my gun behind."

She was back beside him, her hand on his shoulder, like a flash of lightning.

"A—panther? Oh, Rath!"

And she shivered as she reflected that she might have met that panther any moment during the last two days—alone, and without Rath to protect her.

"Yes; he has come after the calves, I suppose. I'll track him to-morrow. You need not be frightened; he won't come here," he added, with his short laugh.

She snatched her hand from his shoulder and flung herself down again—but farther from him.

"I was not frightened—that is, not much," she said, with injured dignity as she opened the book again and read it—upside down.

"What is that—the book?" he asked, after a pause, and intent upon his axe.

"Essays—Emerson's," she said. "Dry old things. Do you like them? Oh, I forgot!" she broke off, pentively—"I forgot you couldn't read, Rath."

"No," he said, cheerfully. She looked at him curiously, her chin in her hand.

"Don't you sometimes wish you could read, Rath?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "No, I don't think so. My father said that most of the trouble in the world came of reading and writing."

"I wonder whether he was right?" she murmured, dreamily.

"Everything he said was right," he said, calmly.

"Not everything," rejoined Stella. "For instance, he—he said that women were dangerous, and you know now that that wasn't right."

He was silent over this poser.

"But wouldn't you like to read, Rath?"

He thought for a moment.

"Yes. Perhaps in the winter, when there is not much to do, it would pass the time; and that I have much time."

She drew herself a little nearer to him.

"If you like, I'll teach you," she said, with a fine air of indifference.

"I'll teach you to read and write—that is, I'll try; and if you don't like it, why, you needn't go on. You are not obliged to do either if you don't care about it."

"Well, perhaps it's just as well to know how," said this gentlemanly savage; "though my father said that all that was worth knowing in the island could be learned without books."

"Yes, on the island, perhaps; but if you left it—"

He shook his head.

"I shall never leave it," he said. "You don't know; but never mind. See here; I must begin by teaching you your letters—"

He glanced at the sun.

"I haven't much time. Will it take long?"

"It all depends on whether you are stupid or not," she said, rather piqued.

"I expect I shall be stupid," he said, gravely; but he drew up closer to her, so that he could look over the book on her lap, and the lesson commenced.

In a few minutes they were both interested. Stella forgot her shyness, the reserve of the last two days melted like snow in summer, and soon she was leaning back, her eyes sparkling, her laughter rippling like music over his blunders.

"You stupid! That isn't B; that's a D. I've shown you the difference twenty times."

"I'm sorry," he said, gravely and humbly. "I told you I should be stupid. I'm not so quick to learn as you are."

She was tender self-reproach in a moment.

"I'm not quick, Rath."

"Oh, yes, you are," he said, confidently. "Think of all the things you have learnt since you have been on the island. Are all boys so quick? I don't think I was when my father taught me. But never mind; let me try again."

After all, he was quicker than she thought. He soon began to distinguish between the forms of the letters and their different sounds. His interest was awakened, and, to his surprise, he felt quite keen about the thing.

In her eagerness to teach him, Stella forgot her shyness and restraint of the last two days, and talked and laughed at him with all her old ease and freedom; and the small cloud which had hovered between them was dispelled by her innocent laughter.

The lessons were continued day by day. Sometimes they would snatch an hour in the morning as well as the evening, and Rath would sit up at night poring over the book by the light of the lamp fed by the oil which he extracted from the seals.

One day Stella brought a sheet of paper and a pencil which she had found in the hut.

"I am going to teach you to write now, Rath," she said.

He regarded the instruments of torture in her hands rather gravely.

"Is it as hard as learning to read?" he asked, doubtfully.

"Oh, harder—ever so much!" she replied, with the cheerfulness of the person who has gone through the ordeal once and forever to the person who is facing it for the first time.

"Then I don't think I'll bother," he said; "reading is the hardest work I ever did, and if writing's worse—"

"Oh, but you must!" she insisted. "Fancy not being able to write! Why, every tiny little child in England can write; and the world wouldn't get on if they could not. There would be no letters, no—no business, no newspapers, no anything."

"I've got on very well without letters and newspapers here," remarked Rath, as he resumed his task of sawing up logs for the winter's fire.

"Here! Here we are out of the world, and we don't live—only exist. No, no; I don't mean that, Rath!" she corrected herself quickly, as the saw stopped, and he turned his head and looked at her. "Put that down this instant and come to school."

He obeyed—as usual—but cast a wistful glance at the logs, and sighed.

"Show me some writing," he said, as they sat by side on the trunk of the fallen tree.

"Yes, I'll write you a letter, Rath; just as if I'd gone away and were writing to you. See?" She tore the paper in half and looked before her meditatively, her brows drawn straight in the agonies of composition.

"I don't know what to say. How ridiculous! Between you and me, I hate letter-writing, Rath."

"I don't know what to say. How ridiculous! Between you and me, I hate letter-writing, Rath."

"You stay where you are, sir, until school is dismissed! The idea! As if people only did what they like! Pretty kind of world it would be!"

"A very nice world, I think," he said, meditatively. "I should like to be always shooting and fishing, and sailing, instead of hoeing corn, planting potatoes—"

Evening Telegram Fashion Plates.

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

1250.—A SET OF DAINTY NECK WEAR.

Ladies' Collars.

In white satin, with plating of chiffon, or in lawn or batiste, with self material or platted lace for the frill the style marked No. 1 would be very pretty. It is nice for organdie, mull, silk or linen. The plating may be omitted. For No. 2, butchers or handkerchief linen could be used with good effect. Embroidery binding or cording would make a neat finish and decoration. If made of lawn or batiste, an edging of lace would be appropriate. No. 3 shows a smart new style, finished with a small bow of satin in a contrasting color. This style is made with a standing band or collar, and a shaped turnover showing the new effect in plaits at the back. The style No. 4 is cool looking and comfortable. It is lovely with an embroidered edge or could be trimmed with a bias band or facing in self or contrasting color. For silk, linen, lawn or batiste, crepe de chine or satin this is very suitable. The Pattern including all styles is cut in 3 sizes: Small, Medium and Large, and requires 3/4 yard of material 42 inches wide for No. 1, 1/2 yard of 30 inch material for No. 2 or No. 3, and 3/4 yard of 27 inch material for No. 4, for any size.

A Pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

1282.—A PRACTICAL, COMFORTABLE COSTUME.

As here shown brown and white striped gingham was combined with brown chambray. The style would be nice for blue galatea or line, with white or red trimming. It is also good for linen, poplin, rory, crepe, serge, and cashmere. The blouse has straight semi-fitted lines, and may be made with sleeves in wrist or "elbow" length. The skirt is a three piece model. The Pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 12, 14 and 16 years. It requires 5/4 yards of 36 inch material for a 14 year size.

W. B. Nuform Corsets AT HENRY BLAIR'S.

AMERICA'S LEADING CORSET, 16 New Styles to Select From.

1250.—A SET OF DAINTY NECK WEAR.

Ladies' Collars.

In white satin, with plating of chiffon, or in lawn or batiste, with self material or platted lace for the frill the style marked No. 1 would be very pretty. It is nice for organdie, mull, silk or linen. The plating may be omitted. For No. 2, butchers or handkerchief linen could be used with good effect. Embroidery binding or cording would make a neat finish and decoration. If made of lawn or batiste, an edging of lace would be appropriate. No. 3 shows a smart new style, finished with a small bow of satin in a contrasting color. This style is made with a standing band or collar, and a shaped turnover showing the new effect in plaits at the back. The style No. 4 is cool looking and comfortable. It is lovely with an embroidered edge or could be trimmed with a bias band or facing in self or contrasting color. For silk, linen, lawn or batiste, crepe de chine or satin this is very suitable. The Pattern including all styles is cut in 3 sizes: Small, Medium and Large, and requires 3/4 yard of material 42 inches wide for No. 1, 1/2 yard of 30 inch material for No. 2 or No. 3, and 3/4 yard of 27 inch material for No. 4, for any size.

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, May 10.—The Governor, Newfoundland: Reports state that the Lusitania was struck by two torpedoes, sank in from fifteen to twenty minutes. Total number of survivors, about 680 survivors. Statement in some newspapers that the Lusitania was armed is false.

The French Government report of German attack on the Brest front near St. Julien, repulsed, enemy suffering heavy losses. St. Ypres, at Hill 60, the British captured part of the trenches last night.

The Russian offensive in the direction of Mlawa, is developing successfully. Desperate battle continued between the Vistula and the Carpathians.

HARCOURTS ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, via St. Pierre, May 10.—Artillery contest on the front. One of our battalions, very successful coup de main, captured German fortified work west of three attempts to attack us. The enemy was repulsed. The British have progressed nearly one kilometre on a front of 1,500 metres, in the direction of Metzlar.

The President of the Council has declared officially to a Special Session, that the Government would not use its legal rights to issue a decree to end the work of the Council at the end of the five month session, that is on June 12th, but the Government will give the Councils liberty of postponement, according to their wish, for any date remaining at their disposal.

The Government publishes the report presented to the President of the Council by the Commissioners, instituted in view of the actions of the enemy in violating the people's rights. This report concerns the use of asphyxiating gas by the Germans against our troops.

ROME, May 10.—It is reported that Italy has decided to proclaim the annexation of the British Islands in the Aegean. This would amount to a declaration of war against Turkey, causing Austria and Germany to intervene.

FLEEING FROM ITALY.

PARIS, May 10.—A despatch from Switzerland states that Austrians and Germans are fleeing from all parts of Italy. Trains, bound in the direction of the frontier, are packed with Teutons.

A Mad Dog.

The murder of over 1400 men, women and children, mostly British and American citizens, by the deliberate sinking of the Lusitania is provocation enough to the civilized world to treat Germany as a mad dog. Fortunately the situation will not be complicated by a war between Japan and China, the former having already announced that China has accepted her demands, and that all military and naval movements in connection with the Chinese situation have been cancelled. It would appear also that the chances of Italy entering the war are increasing from day to day. The advent of Italy into the war will release a large number of warships of all kinds and enable Britain and France to patrol the waters of the Channel and the Irish coast better and put more ships on the look-out for German submarines. Italy has a fine navy. Last summer she had four dreadnoughts. A fifth was put in commission two months ago, and a sixth ship should be nearly ready for commission. Four others of 36,000 tons displacement, with a speed of 25 knots and carrying eight 15 inch guns, are being built. She has also twenty other battleships of pre-dreadnought type, though not so powerful as the British type. These with a dozen smaller cruisers, eight gunboats, 42 destroyers, 85 torpedo boats and 28 submarines would add considerably to the naval strength of the Allies.

Then again, Japan could easily spare a squadron of dreadnoughts and a few cruisers for European waters. If the United States should decide that the only effective way she can give the protection she has promised her citizens is by joining the Allies, her financial resources, control of food supplies, a considerable navy and large population would afford a means of bringing Germany the sooner to book and curtailing earlier her career as a mad dog.

Church Parade.

The volunteers of the Reserve Force numbering upwards of 200, under command of Capt. Montgomery, held their regular church parade yesterday, those of the R. C. denomination attending the Cathedral, the C. of E. members, St. Thomas's, and the Methodists at Gower Street Church. The men were dismissed immediately after service.

The Ice Blockade.

A number of crafts belonging to different outfits, are now laden with supplies and held in port. They are unable to sail owing to the continuous N. E. winds and the existing ice conditions. The Prospero is now detained in port almost a week on account of the ice blockade. At present every harbor north is filled with heavy ice.

sole grocery of the firm of Messrs. Simon Leaser Co. were attacked and wrecked. The furniture of the club rooms were dragged into the street, smashed into atoms. At the bar of Blanchard Hotel the mirrors of cut glass were smashed. Approximate $25,000 damage was done. The Leaser Company's premises and two smaller stores run by Moses Lenz and Carl Lovenberg (the latter ex-German Consul here also were attacked and looted). Mayor Stewart ordered a civil investigation. A military enquiry also will be held into the participation of soldiers. The police party and military police were unable to control the rioters. When the Fire Department was called upon to turn the hose on the crowd, the firemen refused to do so. No one was seriously hurt so far as is known.

BRITISH ATTACK SUCCESSFUL.
LONDON, To-day.

Field Marshal French, Commander in Chief of the British forces sends the following report of operations on the western line: Last night the enemy continued the attack east of Ypres and made further attacks today which have all been repulsed with heavy losses. Our line there is firmly established. This morning our first army attacked the enemy's line between Bois Crenier and Festusbert and gained ground, southeast, towards Fogelles. The fighting in the area continues. Our armies made successful attacks on St. Andre railway junction, north of Lille, and on canal bridge at Dok Furness. Marquelles and Labassee were also bombarded.

GERMANS CAPTURE CREWS.
BERLIN, To-day.

An official announcement by the German War Office of the sinking of the British destroyer Maori. The statement adds that the entire crew of the Maori and boats' crews of the Crusader were saved by our own vessels and taken into Zeeburg. In all there were seven officers and 88 men.

GERMAN T. B. MINED.
PETROGRAD, To-day.

Official German cruisers torpedo boats appeared in the vicinity of Libau yesterday and bombarded the port. One of the enemy's torpedo boats was sunk by one of our mines. The balance of statement refers to various battle fronts on which nothing of importance occurred.

NOON.

AIR RAID ON ESSEX.
LONDON, To-day.

Incoming passengers on the train from Southend, a seaside resort in Essex, report an air raid there, in which serious property damage was done and which caused some loss of life. It is learned that Father Basil William Maturin, of Holywell, Oxford, perished on the Lusitania.

150 CHILDREN PERISH.
LONDON, To-day.

The Illustrated Sunday Herald, of Cork, says there was on the Lusitania fifty babies less than twelve months old and more than one hundred others whose ages did not reach two years. They all have been drowned. The babies were the talk of the ship and everybody tried to look after them, when the time came. There are numerous cases recorded where both passengers and crew stripped themselves of their own lifebelts to put around the little ones but it was useless and about 150 of the infants, it is calculated, died from shock and exposure. They were afterwards seen floating in the water with lifebelts tied around their little bodies but they were past saving. Their mothers recovered consciousness in the rescuing boats, only to find their little ones they were hugging to their bosoms were dead. One mother lost all her three young children, one six years, one four and a third a babe in arms. She herself lives. She held up three of them in the water all the time, shrieking for help. When rescued by a boat party, two eldest children were dead.

GERMANS SURVEYED THE HAVOC.
LONDON, To-day.

The statement that three torpedoes were fired at the Lusitania was made to a Flagstaff correspondent of the Daily News on the authority of the Rev. Mr. Cuvier, who said a submarine rose to the surface and came to within 300 yards of the scene. The crew stood stolidly on the deck, he said, and surveyed their handiwork. I could distinguish the German flag, but it was impossible to see the number of the submarine which disappeared after a few minutes.

DEMANDE SEARCHING INVESTIGATION.
LONDON, To-day.

The morning Post in an editorial protests against the idea fostered by the Times and other newspapers that it is impossible for the Admiralty to provide a protecting convoy for all steamers. While we decline either to condemn or absolve prematurely, says the Post, we do say that the present case is extraordinary and demands a most searching investigation.

"LET THEM THINK."
NEW YORK, To-day.

After remaining in seclusion at his hotel here the entire day, Count Von Bernstorff, German Ambassador, left for Washington last night. Not however before he had run the gauntlet of newspaper men, who had been awaiting him at the Pennsylvania station on his car in their determination to obtain interviews. "Let them think," he was quoted as saying, when asked what he thought the American people would think of the torpedoing of the Lusitania. "I am the Government representative, I cannot say a word," he shouted. The newspapermen persisted, however. One of them making reference to newspaper comment upon the Embassy's action in publishing its war zone advertisement. "I don't care what papers say" was the reply from Count Von Bernstorff as he boarded his train with newspapermen still pursuing. Pressed again for a statement, the Ambassador said, "I have not sufficient information on which to make a statement."

BIG ITALIAN ARMY READY.
GENEVA, To-day.

An Italian army of 600,000 strong and fully equipped and ready for the field, has been concentrated at Verona. Verona is a fortified Italian city, situated at the base of the Alps, twenty-five miles from the frontier of Austria-Hungary.

BATTERIES IN NARROWS CEASE FIRING.
PARIS, To-day.

A despatch from Tenedos says also the bombardment of the Dardanelles forts is being continued by the allied fleet, all Turkish batteries so far as Nagara at the end of the Narrows nearest Constantinople have ceased firing and apparently have been destroyed.

SURVIVORS 764.
NEW YORK, To-day.

The Cunard Steamship Co., to-night announced the receipt of the following cablegram from Liverpool: "Up to midnight, Queenstown advises the total number of survivors as 764, including 462 passengers and 302 crew. One hundred and forty-four were bodies recovered, of which 87 are identified bodies comprises 45 passengers and 22 of the crew. The number of persons injured are, 30 passengers and 17 of the crew."

QUESTIONS ASKED IN QUEENSTOWN.
QUEENSTOWN, To-day.

Captain Turner appeared yesterday morning in civilian clothing, donated by a local banker, who had extended the hospitality of his home to the commander. Later in the day he dressed in the stained uniform which had been dried and walked with bowed head down the streets, recognized by few among the crowds. Queenstown is almost as much dazed by the tragedy as those aboard the Lusitania. The question on every lip is: Why did Captain Turner pursue the usual well known Cunard line course so close to the Irish coast at a medium speed. Why was not the big liner conveyed? Several naval officers here state the Lusitania received wireless orders to take a course in the middle of the Channel but the ship's wireless operator declines to say whether or not he received such orders.

AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS DEMAND ACTION.
NEW YORK, To-day.

With prompt and thunderous unanimity, the newspapers of the United States join in denouncing as an unpeakable atrocity, the destruction of the Lusitania and the slaughter of nearly 1,400 passengers by a German submarine. The crime of infamy, one editor calls the attack, while others freely use such terms as murder, piracy and barbarism. Through editorials run the firm demand for prompt and adequate action by the Government at Washington. Under the caption, "The Heart of Christ," "The Sword of the Lord" and "Olden," Col. Henry Watterson says in the Louisville Courier and Journal, "Truly the Nation of the Black Hand and Bloody heart has got in its work. It has got in its work not upon armed antagonists in a fair fight on the battlefield, but upon unoffending and helpless, sailing in what has always been and should ever remain to the peaceful and peace-loving God's free and open sea."

ROME, To-day.

The Tribune says the reason assigned by Germany for torpedoing the Lusitania, was the destruction of the American Government in protesting. "Nothing in the annals of piracy can be written and cruel ferocity, equal to the destruction of the Lusitania, but comes the query: What are we going to do about it? Are we at the mercy of insane Hohenzollern, not only through his emissaries, sending his odious system of Government and debasing theories of Castism, affecting superiority to our door, and producing a protecting convoy for all steamers. While we decline either

RUTH CAMERON

"I should think you'd feel so humiliated by that slight," I heard one woman say to another the other day. "I don't see how you can treat her so graciously."

"Humiliated?" said the other woman. "Why should I feel humiliated? I have done nothing to be ashamed of. She should feel ashamed of having treated me slighting, not I. If I were rude to her now, then I might have some reason for shame, but no one can humiliate me but myself."

As I listened I thought of something I read in a magazine the other day:

"I'm ridiculous in this way, Jane," said the strange boarder. "I'm a lot interested in what I do myself but I can't seem to get so interested in what other people do to me. I can't make it seem to myself that it's very much my affair, you see. Seems to me that's their affair."

I do not believe there is any great truth of which we lose sight more easily than this—that the things that really count in our lives are the things we do ourselves and not the things that others do to us.

No One Can Hurt You But Yourself.

If I were a minister I think I should preach a sermon "just about once in so often on the text:

"Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man but that which cometh out of the mouth."

No one can humiliate you but yourself.

No one can really hurt you but yourself.

We are used to thinking of the things that happen to us, the things that others do or say to us as the big things of life, but after all they are not. It is only the things we do ourselves that really count.

Too Proud To Have Pride.

People will sometimes keep up a quarrel even when they know they are wrong because it would seem a lack of pride to give in. The truer pride would be to acknowledge the wrong and thereby purge one's soul of the stain of an unacknowledged wrong.

Once, long ago, I came upon a little girl sitting on a doorstep crying. "What's the matter, little girl; has some one hurt you?" I asked.

"You fell down?"

The Inside Hurt Worse than the Outside.

"No," through fresh sobs, "I was cross to mother and now it hurts me inside."

Dear little philosopher—she spoke more wisely than she knew.

No one can really hurt you but yourself.

When we start to blame our weakness and compromises, our failures to "keep at eve the faith of morn" upon circumstances, let's stop a moment and think of what a man once said under the strain of greater trials than we are likely to ever know!

"It matters not how straight the gate, How charged with punishment the scroll, I am the master of my fate, I am the captain of my soul."

At the College Hall.

The Rev. C. A. Whitemarsh, M. A., preached at both services in the College Hall yesterday. At the morning service the reverend gentleman outlined the attitude of the Methodist Church of Canada and Newfoundland on the Temperance question as based on the report just published, which states that the liquor traffic is antagonistic to the work of the Church of God and to the onward march of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ, and that it is also antagonistic to the highest interests of the British nation. The preacher spoke strongly on the question of prohibition and intimated that during the next few months he would place this all important matter before his congregation for their consideration. The subject of the evening discourse, was: "Winning Life's Supreme Prize is Life's Supreme Business," based on the text: "Press Toward the Mark for the Prize."

S.S. Carleton Arrives

FROM MONTREAL.

The S. S. Carleton reached port yesterday afternoon from Montreal direct, after a five days passage. She brought a full general cargo, being fitted on deck as well as below, including ten thousand barrels of flour and eighty tons of machinery and material generally for the Dominion Lridge Company to be put in the new Nova Scotia Bank which is to be erected in the O'Dwyer Block Water Street. The Carleton left Montreal on Tuesday last and did not have to contend with any ice coming down the river. She is the first boat, coming this way, to come down the St. Lawrence since navigation opened this season. The Carleton is now discharging at the Purves Withy pier. The next boat to come down the river is the Sindbad, leaving Montreal sometime to-day.

Five Grand Pictures.

See the advertisement in another part of this paper for particulars of the great show the Crescent Picture Palace has on to-day, they are five grand pictures, one of them a two reel Kline-Cines special feature, and the rest productions of the best film companies.

Delmonico, the man with the double voice, sings a very fine march ballad, entitled: "Wait 'Till My Ship Comes In." This is one of Mr. Delmonico's best numbers, one that is sure to be liked by the patrons of the popular Crescent. Go to-day and hear him; open at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 o'clock in the evening.

Youngest Mate.

Mr. A. Edgcombe, was recently awarded a mate's certificate of competency by Capt. E. English. Mr. Edgcombe has secured the position of chief officer on the S. S. Beothic, which will be leaving here shortly. He is the youngest person to receive such a certificate for nearly a half century.

Yesterday's Funerals.

The funerals of the late Ed. J. Malone and W. J. Ryall took place yesterday afternoon and were attended by large concourses of citizens. Rev. Fr. Nangle officiated at the Cathedral and interment of both was made at Belvedere.

Pogies Fishers Off.

By the S. S. Stephano, Saturday night, about 70 young men belonging to the drifting settlements of St. John's, left en route to Boston and New York to engage at pogie fishing the coming summer. Last year they made good money at that industry.

Meeting of R.C. Citizens

A largely attended and representative meeting of the Roman Catholic citizens of the city took place at the Casino Theatre yesterday afternoon to discuss the matter of an address and presentation to His Grace the Archbishop-Elect.

Hon. J. D. Ryan briefly outlined the object of the meeting, and moved that Hon. John Harris take the chair which motion was carried by acclamation. Mr. John Barron was chosen as Vice-Chairman, Mr. P. J. Summers as Secretary and Mr. W. J. Ellis as Treasurer.

Hon. Mr. Harris then addressed the large gathering present, and after paying a tribute to the Archbishop-Elect, informed them of the expense that was attached to the functions attendant upon the acceptance of the office. He expressed the hope that the expense would be borne by the laity of the Archdiocese as an appreciation of the favour conferred on them in having a Newfoundland appointed to the vacant See. He also suggested the presentation of an illuminated address by the laity, and asked that a committee of one hundred be appointed to assume the responsibility of carrying out the wishes of the Catholic community in honouring the Archbishop-Elect. Resolutions to this effect were then moved and adopted, the speakers being Rt. Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, Messrs. J. M. Kent, M. W. Furlong, K. C. W. R. Howley, K. C. P. J. Summers and W. J. Ellis. The executive was empowered to nominate the committee which will meet at a later date. The Chairman then announced that subscriptions would be received by Rev. J. McDermott, Administrator; Rev. J. Pippy, St. Patrick's and Rev. Dr. Kitchen, St. Joseph's. Before the close of the meeting a subscription list was opened, the amount realized being about $2,000.

"During the meeting a letter from Mr. Justice Emerson was read expressing his inability to attend and promising hearty co-operation in anything undertaken by the meeting."

Our Volunteers.

The total number of volunteers enrolled with the Reserve Force to date is 1,750, the following having enlisted on Saturday:—

Sydney Miller, Bonaventure, T.B.
H. Herb. Baldwin, Pouch Cove.
Rd. Jos. Mahon, Portugal Cove Rd.
Jas. McGrath, St. John's.
Eric Moore, St. John's.

His Cool Creak.

One rainy day, when a boot-shop was full of customers, a man entered hurriedly, and speaking to an assistant who was fitting a lady, said: "Can you show me some of those boots you advertise? I am in a great hurry."

Excusing himself to the lady, the assistant proceeded to wait upon the newcomer. Pair after pair of boots was tried on, and finally a perfect fit was secured.

"Now, what make are these boots?" inquired the man. "They fit me like a glove. Just write down the make, with the exact width and length."

The salesman did as required, and the man drew on his old boots and started for the door.

"Don't you want the boots, sir?" inquired the surprised assistant.

"Oh! no," responded the man; "I just wanted to get my size. I have a friend in the wholesale business who can get them for me at a good deal less than your price."

New Waterford Aliens in Riot.

Dominion Officer Stabbed Six Times During Sunday Melee—Victim in Hospital.

Official news posted at New Waterford this morning says that Sunday night an engagement took place at Scotchtown, a nearby settlement, between a force of Germans and district police, as a result of which Percy Morris, a Dominion constable, is in emergency hospital at New Waterford suffering from six knife wounds, none of which are, however, serious. Some two dozen German men and women had foregathered at a place of meeting in Scotchtown where beer, sausages and dancing were the order of the day. As the evening lengthened the aliens became hilarious and a band of police were despatched to restore order. The arrival of the blue-coats precipitated a fight, and during the melee knives were used and Percy Morris received a carving in approved German style.

Two of the rioters were landed in jail, including Joseph Schrage, leader of the aliens. Up to some time ago these German men and women, met at New Waterford where they held orgies. They were forced out of town and established quarters at Scotchtown.

Coun. D. H. McLean says he complained to Mr. Noble, Police Agent, to have the aliens rounded up and driven out of the town, but Mr. McLean says nothing was done. Schrage and his compatriot will be arraigned before Stipendiary Hearn to-day.

It is a fact that these orgies have become more prevalent since the commencement of the war, and it appears, when the Teutons were gathered in the seclusion of their own society, some pretty dangerous talk would be uttered. One man, a sort of leader of the crowd, is credited with haranguing the assemblies with such vituperative and inciting language that the wonder is that he has not been put under restraint or arrested for breaking his parole long ago.—Sydney Post, May 3.

Williard's Victory Worth Half a Million.

First Year of Triumphant Tour Ought to Make $300,000; John L. Sullivan's Trip Worth $187,000.

Jess Willard's victory is worth approximately half a million dollars to him in the next two years!
John L. Sullivan, the greatest money-making prize fighter has ever known, never equalled that regardless of the oft-told tales of the millions he spent. Just before the Johnson-Jeffries battle Sullivan said: "Johnson or Jeffries stand to win $250,000. Why, all my fights together didn't come to that."
Corbett never reached that amount. Fitzsimmons or Jeffries didn't and outside of the $135,000 or so that he pulled out of the Jeffries battle (his share of the $101,000 purse and the moving pictures), Johnson hasn't averaged as well as any one of half a dozen lightweights.

How is Willard going to get it? Why, the stage, of course.
Willard is worth approximately $7,500, nearly $1,000 for each appearance as a vaudeville attraction for at least half a year. Then he can drop to $3,000 or $4,000 a week and finish the year. He could go on for another year for lesser money, taking on all comers, as did John L. Sullivan.

But at the end of a year Willard will undoubtedly start mixing up the vaudeville engagements with ten-round fights in the large cities where boxing is permitted. Any one of these can easily be made worth $10,000 to $25,000 to him, depending on the class of his opponent.

Here's the way Willard's income will pile up in the next two years: We'll figure he made about $50,000 on the fight, which is probably nearer the truth than many of the reports. Then 26 weeks of $7,500 vaudeville means $195,000. The last half, 26 weeks of $4,000 vaudeville is $104,000. That dispenses of the first year.

In the second year it may be guessed that Willard can average $15,000 a piece for eight 10-round easy fights, with nothing at stake so far as his right to be called champion is concerned. This adds $120,000. Between the second year he could sandwich in $50,000 worth of vaudeville work.

This makes his total income for the two years over which he could spread his triumphal tour before it would even be suggested that he fight a championship battle with a challenger, approximately $519,000—the greatest amount ever made by a pugilist and perhaps greater than ever will be made again.

Perhaps this earning capacity is overestimated. If it is it may be balanced by saying that this is all the money Willard will ever make as champion, as his income would certainly drop off to a comparatively small amount after the first two years. Then Willard is 27 years of age and by no means the best white heavyweight that the world has ever known. If he can hold his title up to the age of 35 years, he will be doing wonderfully well.

John L. Sullivan's triumphal tour, the most profitable on record, brought in $187,000, and expenses were $45,000. A large part of the latter amount was spent quenching John L.'s thirst, according to his own story.

TO GET MUCH WAR STUFF FROM AMERICA!
One of the things the Germans have been grumbling about is the amount of things needed for the war that the Allies have had from America. Few people, indeed, realize what vast quantities of goods the Americans have sent over to us.

First of all, the entire output of the United States in high explosives has been bought up by the Allies for months to come. One firm alone, the General Electric Company, has received orders from the British Government for 40,000,000 lb. of T. N. T., and 20,000,000 lb. of gun cotton! The United States have had orders for 300,000,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, seven and a half million shrapnel shells, seventy thousand armour-piercing projectiles, and a million rifles!

Add to that two million uniforms, a million blankets, half a million pairs of socks, over four million yards of khaki, and half a million tons of barbed wire, and it will be realised that America is a big war factory!

Up to the end of February 1st, in fact over £30,000,000 worth of war goods have been shipped to England and France alone.

NEW USE FOR MOLASSES.
Berlin, via London, April 24.—Herr Steffens, a German inventor, has applied for letters of patent for the making of lubricating oil from molasses. He announces that extensive tests of the output of his process have given satisfactory results. Herr Steffens' investigations into the manufacture of lubricating oil were due to the war, which interrupted the customary supply from Russia and the United States.

MANAGING DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT.

LIVERPOOL, May 9. Alfred Booth, Managing Director of the Cunard Line Steamship Co., made the following statement to-day: "I desire to send my heartfelt sympathy wherein all Cunard directors and managers join, to the relatives and friends of the American passengers murdered by the German submarine. I am certain the whole civilized world is at one in grief for the sorrow and suffering caused, and in longing for this treacherous attack on innocent lives, so many of whom were women and children.

Every possible step is being taken to relieve the immediate wants of the survivors at Queenstown after their terrible experience."

SURVIVORS DAZED.

QUEENSTOWN, May 9. Twenty-three miles from this port as the crew files an irregular smear of floats on the sea marks the grave of the Cunard Lusitania, the first trans-Atlantic liner sunk by a German submarine. One hundred and forty-nine of the twelve hundred souls who perished with her, lie in improvised morgues in an old building bordering on Queenstown harbor. They either were picked up dead or succumbed after landing. 645 survivors here are quartered in hotels, residences and hospitals, some too badly hurt to be moved. The injuries of some are so serious that additional deaths are expected. Nearly all are too dazed to understand fully what has happened. The survivors do not agree as to whether the submarine fired one or two torpedoes; a few say they saw the periscopes, but many attest to tracing wake of foam as the projectile came towards the vessel. Only one point which all concur is that the torpedo struck the vessel a vital blow amidships, causing her to list almost immediately to the starboard. In this manner she plowed forward some distance, smashing lifeboats and davits as she did so, making the launching of boats well nigh impossible until the headway had ceased.

How far the Lusitania struggled forward after being hit, and how long it was before she disappeared beneath the waves, likewise are points upon which few passengers agree. The estimates of the time she remained afloat range from 8 to 20 minutes. At any rate the list of the starboard side so elevated the lifeboats on the port side, as soon to render them useless, and it is said only two on that side were launched, the first of these, according to the custom of the sea, was filled with women and children. It struck the water unevenly, capsizing, and throwing its sixty occupants into the sea. The Lusitania even then was making considerable headway, and these women and little children were swept to death in spite of the attempts of two stokers to rescue them. These stokers, according to passengers, were drowned. After that, several boats were launched successfully, but the steamer's list grew more perilous, and the decks slanting at such an angle it was imperative for all to cling to the starboard rail. Many by this time had donned life-belts and jumped for it. Several lifeboats broke adrift unoccupied, and the sea became froth with cars, chairs, debris and human bodies. Stokers seeing the drifting boat, dived overboard and recovered it and pulled in nearly forty persons, most of whom were women and children. Meanwhile adhered to the letter of the instructions which had been given them, and the discipline was rigid, although one or two subordinate officers are said to have told the group of passengers who had climbed into the boat, that there was no immediate danger, and advised them to remain on deck a while longer. Whether this was due to the fact that these subordinates lost their heads or their convictions that the ship's bulkheads would save her, will never be determined, but that such an incident occurred is attested by E. Towley, a resident of Surbiton, England, who was returning from a business trip in America. All day yesterday in the hotel corridors, halls and reception-room the survivors sat listlessly, still too dazed to discuss what had occurred. They were dressed in a variety of garments. Some were crying softly, some were trying to force down beer tea or other nourishment. In front of the small Cunard Line Office on the waterfront, a crowd surged, clamoring for news of father, mother, brother and sister. Further down the street a crowd crammed the Government telegraph office, where three clerks and three operators strove desperately to keep abreast of the ever-growing stream of messages. In four morgues lay dead women; in some cases side by side with children. The body of Charles Frohman, New York Theatrical Manager, with his clothing water-soaked but his features placid lay, the face upwards in a bare room in an old building on the hill side, a hundred yards from the water's edge. Around him were ranged fifty bodies of both sexes, over which attendants were bending, sorting and ticketing their belongings. These men best fitted to chronicle the last moments of the Lusitania, Elbert Hubbard, Justus Miles Forman, Charles Frohman, Alfred G. Vanderbilt and others apparently all went to their graves with her. Her speed at the time she was struck is variously estimated from 8 to 20 knots. When forced the liner could do twenty-five knots, outstripping even the latest submarines. Hence it is the belief of survivors and the Cunard Line Officials that a battery of underwater craft, numbering perhaps four or five, lay waiting in clear sunshine on Friday morning, and was easy to keep all but the tips of the periscope submerged, and then for the craft nearest her to let go torpedoes. The Cunard Line has been patrolling the spot where the liner sank, in the hope that it may pick up a few stragglers. At the beginning of the inquest yesterday, the Coroner spoke at considerable length denouncing the Germans. He said he hoped all the victims hurried here, would be given full military honors.

New Moon—13th Days Past—129 To Come—235
INDIAN MUTINY began 1857. There had been a long standing tradition that the English rule in India should only last one hundred years from the date of Plassey, 1757. The great result of the outbreak was the transferring of the power of the East India Company to the hands of the Crown.
SIR HENRY STANLEY died 1904, aged 63. Taken from a workhouse and sent as cabin boy to America, he "made good" there as special correspondent for papers. He was sent to and Livingstone in 1871. His "Autobiography" published since his death, is a remarkable work.

Best Variety Bill

And Feature Films.
Mr. Ballard Brown and Miss Madge Locke will present a first class programme at Rossley's to-night. Those high-class artists have delighted thousands during their stay in St. John's and given lovers of music and song many treats; those artists are not of the picture house variety but from the operatic stage and concert platform. Both having magnificent and highly cultivated voices. Miss Locke, an actress of rare ability, will give one of her favourite character sketches to-night, Helen McGrover, from Rob Roy, a delightful treat; they also sing a duet from The Lily of Killarney; Miss Locke will also give the finest sword dancing ever.

McMurdo's Store News.

MONDAY, May 10th, 1915.
Just in: Baby's Own Tablets. These little tablets are invaluable in infantile complaints, such as wakefulness, fretfulness, indigestion, constipation and other stomach and bowel troubles. They are quite harmless, contain no "dope" of any kind, and are mild and pleasant in their action. Price 30c. a box.
McMurdo's Creco Cough Cure is of great service in chronic coughs, and colds that "hold on." Creco Cough Cure is a tonic as well as a soothing remedy, and pleasant and palatable to the taste. For obstinate coughs and colds, try a bottle. Price 25c.

Daughters of Men

AND THE BILLIONAIRE.
These two famous photo-plays will be the drawing card at the "feature" house—the Casino—during the first part of the week. The great 5 reel picture "Daughters of Men," emanating from the pen of the late Charles Klein, one of the most prolific playwrights of modern times, who lost his life on board the ill-starred liner Lusitania. This will be followed by the 3 reel creation "The Billionaire," the most hilarious farce-comedy extant.

Our Mutual Girl.

AT NICKEL 70-DAY.
Nickel patrons will learn with the greatest pleasure that another episode of "Our Mutual Girl" will be presented this evening. It is one of the best of the series and is certain to attract large audiences. Very few ladies but will see where they discover Margaret. It will be shown to-day. "Playing with Fire" is a vivid and impressive drama, showing the consequences of a thoughtless flirtation. "The Love of Pierre Larosse" is a high class drama by the Vitagraph artists. The popular actress, Dorothy Kelly, is in the leading character, which she plays well. The performance to-day includes a grand travesty, entitled "A Trip on the Upper Nile." Not every one has the chance of making such a trip, but by attending the Nickel this evening they will see all the beauty spots of that famous water course. Mr. Howard Stanley will be heard in a new song. Special music will be rendered by the orchestra, Bernard Spencer, Joseph Ross and Miss K. Ring. Be sure and take in to-day's show.

Cape Report.

SPECIAL TO EVENING TELEGRAM.
CAPE RACE, To-day.
Wind East, light fog, at intervals. The S. S. Segleberg passed west yesterday morning. The barq. Mary Duff and another unknown barq. were East of the Cape yesterday at dark; nothing signalled to-day. Bar. 29.27; ther. 33.
"OURS" IN THE WEST END.
One of the very best programmes is arranged for the popular little house for Monday and Tuesday; all new pictures full of interest from start to finish. The two little sisters Squires will sing the patriotic song: "Little Tommy Atkins," dressed in character costumes. There is no better place to spend an afternoon or evening than the clean, cosy comfortable little theatre in the West End.

Della Blanchflower—Mrs. Humphrey Ward.

This is probably the most powerful and important story Mrs. Humphrey Ward has written; certainly it is the most fascinating and enthralling. Her vast circle of admirers will be delighted in making the acquaintance of her new heroine, Della Blanchflower, a willful, perplexing, but quite delightful young woman of a type almost new to fiction.

The Holy Flower—H. Rider Haggard.
A new record of stirring adventure in wildest Africa by the famous hunter and explorer, Allan Quatermain, telling his story of a perilous mission into unknown country in the days before his remarkable experiences which are now historical in the pages of "King Solomon's Mines" and other famous books.

A Lovers' Tale—Maurice Hewlett.
A fascinating romance in which this brilliant author returns, more completely than in either of his recent works, to the manner of his earlier romances, "The Forest Lovers" and other books which now rank as classics of English fiction.

Joseph Hocking's latest novel, "The Day of Judgment"; cloth 80c.

Ralph Connor's great story, "The Patrol of the Sundance Trail"; paper 60c., cloth 80c.

"My Wife's Hidden Life." Who wrote it? Is it true? It grips as only the truth can. Only a few copies, 30c. each.

And five hundred more new books at 50c., 60c. and 80c. each. Come in and see them now, our store is a Reader's Paradise.
