WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Pleader.

"Hear the tears in her voice," he said, more to himself than the girl.

Bessie nodded quickly:

"Yes, that's the words, sir; and it seems so—so dreadful to me that Miss Olivia should have any trouble; it's just as if an angel were to cry," and her own eyes grew dim.

"I understand," he said. He stood for a moment looking down at the path, and flicking his leg with his riding whip; then he said: "And Miss Vanley went to the wood, Bessie?"

"Yes, sir," she replied; "and, oh, Mr. Faradeane, if you—"

She stopped, abashed.

"Well?" he asked, with a faint smile.

"I was going to say, only I'm afraid, if you'd only go and find her and talk to her. She thinks so much of you—"

She stopped again, for the smile had suddenly vanished from his face.

"That's nonsense, Bessie," he said.

"But, as it happens, I want to see Miss Vanley, and I'll go and find her."

"Yes, sir," said the girl, humbly.

"Are—are you angry with me?" and her lips quivered piteously.

"Angry with you, my dear child!" he exclaimed, reassuringly, and he patted her arm under the thick shawl.

"Why should I be angry? But—he paused almost imperceptibly—"but you must not talk such nonsense as that Miss Vanley thinks much of at all of me—"

"But she does!" interrupted Bessie, eagerly. "If you only heard her—"

"I mustn't hear you any longer, you foolish child, or I shall miss Miss Vanley."

And with another gentle and—to Bessie—forgiving touch, he turned and rode toward the wood.

All through the night Olivia had lain awake, tossing to and fro, like a soul struggling in chains. The scene with Bartley Bradstone seemed like a hideous dream, from which, try as she would, she could not awake.

That he should have dared to tell her that he loved her, have asked her to be his wife, was torture enough to her proud, maiden spirit; but that her father should be in his toils, and his happiness and even life—for she knew that Bartley Bradstone spoke only the truth when he said that to leave the Grange would mean death to the squire—was an agony almost insupportable.

At any time in the past the idea of accepting him would have been repugnant; but now, since the last few days, she shrank from the prospect with an absolute loathing. She rose, pale and weakened, bewildered; she felt she could not meet her father that morning. She dreaded to hear even Bartley Bradstone's name. And yet what escape was there for her? If what he had said were true, he held

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says after trying it: "I was almost blind; read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses. her in an iron thrall. For her father she would sacrifice anything—life itself. But she must have time to think, time to realize the awful ordeal through which she must pass; time to learn how to school her voice and conceal the agony that racked her.

Taking up her hat, and telling the footman that her father was not to wait breakfast for her, she went out, caring nothing about the direction she should take, and, after leaving Bessie, she wandered aimlessly on to the woods and threw herself down on the thick undergrowth in an abandon of misery and dread.

She—she Bartley Bradstone's wife; she who could not endure the sight of his face, she upon whose ear his very voice and laugh jarred! It was terrible; and yet—and yet there was no other way of saving her father, whom she loved with a passionate devotion. Her hot hands clasped each other fiercely, her cheek burned as if she could almost feel the outrage of the man's kiss; then the paroxysm passed, and left her pale and wan and weary, and she lay with her head against a tree and her hands lying loosely in her lap, lovelier in her exhaustion than in her passionate indignation.

And it was at this moment that Harold Faradeane, leading his horse up the narrow footpath, came upon her. For a moment she did not hear the sound of the horse's feet upon the thick undergrowth of moss and bracken; then it seemed as if she felt the dark, sad eyes fixed upon her, for she turned her head and, her pale, lovely face growing warmer, rose to her feet, putting her hand to her brow with a half-startled gesture.

He tossed the bridle over the horse's neck, and came toward her; and as he did so Olivia knew why the idea of being Bartley Bradstone's wife seemed more terrible now than it had done a few weeks ago: knew by the sudden leap of her heart, the swift rush of her young blood through her veins at the sight of this other man!

"I'm afraid I've startled you," he said, as he took her hand; it burnt and throbbled like an imprisoned bird in his firm grasp. "Miss Bessie told me I should find you here, and I was lucky enough to hit upon the right path. What a delightful spot you have chosen! A Dryads' perfect nook," he added, talking to give her time to recover from her surprise, and looking round slowly.

She put her hands to her face and smoothed her hair, with one of those delicate, little touches peculiar to her, and stooped for her hat, which she had tossed aside, but he was quicker, and got it for her.

"Thank you," she said, and her voice, sweet at all times, smote upon his ears like a melody too subtle for description. "Yes, it is pretty; I—I often come here. Were you going to the house? My father is in, I know. I will come, too."

"I was going to the house," he said, and he spoke slowly, as if he were keeping a strict guard upon his words, his very tone. "But it was not to see Mr. Vanley; I wanted to see you."

"To see me!" she echoed, and, his gaze fixed on the ground, he did not see the sudden expansion of her eyes or the swift rush of blood to her face. "To see me!" and her hand stole shyly to her heart for an instant.

"Yes," he said. "You are surprised that I, who am almost a stranger, should wish to speak to you alone; but one is not always the master of his own actions, not always a free agent. Miss Vanley, will you promise to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opsio tablets. Drop one Bon-Opsio tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to cure them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Notes: Another prominent Philadelphia, Pa. optician, who has examined and prescribed eye spectacles and which prescribed the same. The number of times in many instances or others in a few days in one direction how you feel after using the same. I feel that I had been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Cure the Skin Through the Skin

It is now thoroughly established among skin specialists that eczema is purely a skin disease, due to a germ beneath the skin and curable only through the skin. Thousands of people suffer with skin diseases who are perfectly healthy otherwise, which shows that their blood is not diseased. Ugly-tasting stomach remedies are therefore as worthless for skin diseases as they are for a tooth-ache.

Eczema germs must be WASHED AWAY. Smeary salves do no good for they cannot penetrate the skin. They merely clog the pores and aid the rapid increase of germs. The only way to reach the germs is by a penetrating liquid.

The D. D. D. Prescription, a wonderful new discovery for skin diseases, is a simple, scientific wash—a reliable home remedy that brings about marvellous cures in all forms of Eczema, Bad Leg, Pimples, Ulcers, Barber's Itch and all other skin ailments. D. D. D. relieves distress instantly, kills and washes away disease germs and leaves the skin wholesome and healthy.

to listen patiently to me, however much I shall try your patience, your sweet gentleness? Will you not sit down?"

She sank on to the grass, and looked up, and yet not at him, for her eyes were heavy with a strange shyness, and it seemed to her that he must hear her heart beat, it echoed with such full joy every word of his musical voice.

"I shall try your patience," he said, with a suppressed sigh, still looking on the ground. "I came this morning to stand here before you as a suitor—her face grew pale and her lips quivered, and a wild thrill of joy ran through her—as a humble suitor, as a man pleading for something dearer even than life!" His voice broke for a moment. "Yes, dearer than life. You see I find my task difficult; even now, now that I have ventured to begin, I would draw back if I could—" She glanced up at him, half-amazedly, half-sorrowfully. "For I realize how great, how precious a treasure it is that I am striving for. But I am not free—a stronger will than mine impels me. Miss Vanley forget if you can—I know it will be hard—that I am almost a stranger, that you know nothing of me, and—listen to me. Do not send me away till I have told you what I came to tell you, what I would have kept from you, even now, if I had not given my word."

Again the look swept over her face. "You will not wonder that a man should love you. I don't think it is possible for any one to see you, to hear you, to be in your presence for one short day without loving you."

No words can describe the infinite tenderness and reverence, and yet the infinite sadness of his voice. At that moment, even so soon, she could have stretched out her arms to him.

"No!" he continued. "No one could help loving you, and no one loves you more dearly, more truly, more passionately. That I can say with perfect truth; and I beg, I implore you to believe it! There are better, wiser men, but none in all the world who will more greatly prize the treasure of your love, if you will give it to him."

She sat, her hands clasped, her eyes hidden under their long lashes. All thought, all remembrance of Bartley Bradstone, of her father's impending ruin, had passed from her. She was living, absorbed, in this, the one, the great moment, of her existence.

"If a life's devotion can insure your happiness, I can pledge it. I do so. Of all else I say nothing. You know something of him already; I think, I know you can trust him. What will you say to me, Olivia?" The name slipped from him unawares. "What answer shall I get? Will you trust yourself to the man who loves you with all his heart and soul? Will you make him the happiest or the most wretched man in all the world?"

He had grown earnest, for all his guard upon his words and voice, and as he made his final appeal he bent over her.

She lifted her eyes to his, then raised her hand.

He took it, and his own closed round it with a quick, almost painful grasp.

"You say 'yes!'" he said, then he dropped her hand as if some hidden pain had overmastered him, and sprang, like a wild animal breaking his bonds, to his feet. "Bertie is a happy man!" he said, almost hoarsely, turning away his head.

Her hand fell into her lap, her face grew white, her eyes expanded with a look of doubt, dread, horror.

"Bertie!" she breathed.

He turned slowly, and she saw that his face was as white as her own, and reflected something of her own horror. "Yes, Bertie," he said, almost sternly, as if struggling against some terrible impulse. "It is of Bertie—Lord Granville—I have been speaking. It is for him I have been pleading."

"For—him!" she panted, her bosom heaving, her hands clinching spasmodically.

"Yes," he went on, more hurriedly. "He has loved you since you were playmates, loved you with all his heart and soul, so passionately that he feared, dreaded even to tell you, lest you should make light of it! Why do you look at me so? Are you angry? God knows it was unwillingly enough that I did it. I would sooner—but he won me over! I was mad to promise him, but I did so, and—Miss Vanley!—Olivia!"—and he drew nearer—"did you think"—his breath came fast, a light, almost fierce, flashed in his eyes—"did you think—Heavens! I can't speak it!"

She had found nerve and strength—the strength which is born of shame. All her soul seemed burning with the shame of the mistake she had made; every nerve throbbled.

"I—" she panted—"I don't understand. Of course it was—Bertie."

He drew back and looked at her fixedly, grimly.

"Of course it was—Bertie. I—knew. Yes, I knew," and she almost stamped her foot, "and I meant to tell you, if you had given me time that—that it was—Not!"

"No!" he echoed.

"No—a hundred times! Go and tell him so—and tell him that if I loved him as he says he—loves me, I would not stoop to marry a man who sends another to—plead for him."

He still looked at her with a grim, fixed gaze.

"Is that your answer?" he asked in so low a tone that it was almost inaudible.

"It is!" she responded, with a pant.

"Why do you not go? You can tell him," with a cruel smile, "that you did your best, that you are not to be blamed; that if he had had any chance you would have succeeded in your—mission. Yes," with a strange thrill, "you—you did your best."

He stood with his hands behind his back, his head lowered under the storm of her fierce, maiden passion.

War News.

Messages Received Previous to 9 A.M.

IN THE BALKANS.
 NEW YORK, Aug. 21. The Journal to-day has the following from Salonika: The occupation of more than a mile of ground along a front of nearly three miles in the region of Lake Doiran and the capture of a fortified work at Peracheval south of Doidzell, was announced in an official report issued to-day by the British Balkan headquarters.

ON THE SALONIKA FRONT.
 PARIS, Aug. 21. A general offensive along the entire Salonika front was started on Sunday by the Allies, according to an official statement issued by the French War Office. The Serbs captured the first line of the Bulgarian trenches on the left of our battlefield, but have lost the town of Banica. South of Florina on the centre and right wings heavy fighting is in progress. The British and French forces have crossed the Struma and are attacking the Bulgarian positions northwest of Seres.

FURTHER PROGRESS.
 LONDON, Aug. 21. Not only have the British held all the gains made in Saturday's attack through the critical second day and night following it, but they made another important gain this morning. They are now within five hundred yards of Martinepuch as a result of taking a trench which had held them up between Pozieres and Highwood.

ACTIVE ARTILLERY BY BOTH SIDES.

LONDON, Aug. 21. A War Office communication issued this evening says: Near Mauquet farm near Thiepval, the enemy attempted to make an attack on a small scale, which was immediately repulsed. Otherwise there is little to report, except artillery activity by both sides, which at times is very violent. Our artillery fire was very effective. Southward of Thiepval the enemy's trenches were severely damaged. A conflagration was caused one of the enemy's batteries which burned fiercely for some time. A hostile balloon was forced to descend by our gun fire. Southward of Leos, as a result of a successful mine, we have much improved our local position. Our aeroplanes continue to bomb enemy billets with success in addition to their work with our artillery. Yesterday one of our machines did not return. To-day hostile aeroplanes showed a little more enterprise than usual, and some ventured over our lines.

IN GERMAN EAST AFRICA.

LONDON, Aug. 21. British forces in German East Africa have forced a passage up the Wami River, approaching the important town of Killoss, according to an official statement issued by the War Office this evening.

NO CHANGE IN SITUATION.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 21. An official communication issued by the War Office this afternoon says there is no change in the situation.

to launch a general attack against the Entente armies on Greek soil is the information conveyed to Premier Zalmis, of Greece by the Bulgarian Minister at Athens, M. Passaroff, according to a despatch from the Greek capital. Another despatch received by way of Copenhagen quotes the official Bulgarian newspaper as saying that Bulgaria expects the same treatment at the hands of Greece as that accorded the Entente Allies.

CALLING UP 17-YEAR-OLDS.

PARIS, Aug. 21. The Intransigent publishes under reserve a despatch from Lausanne, to the effect that Germany has ordered all youths of seventeen to report immediately to the recruiting bureau. This class in normal years would be called to the colors in 1919.

ROUMANIA.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21. The World this morning published the following despatch from a staff correspondent at Berlin under yesterday's date: Roumania is about to enter the war against the Central Powers now nor in the immediate future, notwithstanding the more or less alarming reports that Roumania is about ready to march against Austria-Hungary, which in fact, are becoming an old story. The above is very confidential information I have from a source in Bucharest which ought to be in a position to know.

FIGHTING ON THE SOMME.

PARIS, Aug. 21. There has been fighting on the French Somme front, according to an official statement issued by the French War Office to-night. On the remainder of the front there was usual cannonading.

NOTHING OFFICIAL CONCERNING PEACE.

LONDON, Aug. 21. The German Government has as yet shown no disposition to agree to peace except on terms that would be intolerable or humiliating to some of the Allies, said Premier Asquith, replying in the House of Commons to-day to Sir William Pollard Boyle, one of a little group of peace advocates. The suggestion of Dr. Zimmermann, German Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, that the Entente is influenced by any pressure from Britain, is quite untrue, said the Premier. Asked a further question as to whether terms of any kind had been suggested, the former replied only what had been seen in the press, nothing official.

PORTUGAL.

PARIS, Aug. 21. In preparation for Portugal's active participation in the war, a French-British military mission will leave this city in a few days for Portugal. These officers will co-operate with the Portuguese military authorities.

MUNITION PLANT DESTROYED.

LONDON, Aug. 21. Serious loss of life is feared as a result of an explosion in a munition plant at Yorkshire this afternoon, says an official statement. No figures of the casualties are given. The explosion took place this evening. The statement adds that no particulars are yet at hand, but the loss of life appears to be serious. Assistance has been sent from neighboring towns. A further statement will be issued.

ESKIMO MURDERERS CAPTURED.

OTTAWA, Aug. 21. News has been received from Nome that the two Eskimo who in November, 1913, in the copper mine country, in the Arctic region, murdered the Rev. Fathers Laroux and Rouviere, have been captured by the mounted police patrol that was sent after them. They are now at Eessel Island, and will be brought out for trial.

NO FURTHER DETAILS FROM SALONIKA.

PARIS, Aug. 21. No further details of the operations on the Salonika front are given in the report to-day from the French army of the east beyond the statement that fighting is still in progress along the whole line.

ITALIANS HOLDING THEIR GROUND.

ROME, Aug. 21. The Italians who have advanced in the region east of Gorizia and on the Carso plateau, are holding fast to the ground won, and occupying themselves with consolidating the recently captured positions.

SETTLING DOWN TO BUSINESS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21. President Wilson to-day reiterated to the railway executives, including new arrivals from the west, his demand that they accept his plan for settlement of the threatened railroad strike. The executives then began their first series of meetings at which they will frame their reply.

SWIMMING RECORD.

Germany and
the Near East.

As was to be expected, the place of first importance in the War messages is given to the Balkan situation and the question growing out of it of Roumania's intervention. Great events of this nature invariably cast heavy shadows before, and there has been a noticeable gloom over Berlin for some time. As long as Germany showed no concern in this quarter we could feel assured that nothing of importance was transpiring, but now that she blusters and talks of an ultimatum to Bucharest, we know that she must be conscious of the approach of a real danger. We have been told repeatedly that Roumania will preserve her neutrality under all circumstances, but the information has always come from Germany, where we are inclined to think that the wish is father to the thought.

A very great crisis, perhaps the greatest of the war, is clearly at hand. The Allied leaders, those of them whose word we can accept without qualification, have expressed unequivocally their confidence in ultimate victory, but have warned us that the time is not yet, and may not be for another year. But there is a possibility, and not a contemptible one, that it may come this year, which is to say before the advent of winter holds up the fighting. At any rate, there are many signs that the efforts of the Allies are to be pushed very soon to a supreme height, and to be maintained there steadily, until resistance breaks down utterly at some vital point and leads to its breakdown everywhere else. This seems to us the meaning of Portugal's assistance being enlisted at this moment, when we have every reason to believe that the enemy's decline in effectiveness has reached a point where the accession of even so comparatively small an army to our forces will have a telling effect. It is unnecessary to add that this is also one of the first considerations behind the Balkan offensive.

It will be appropriate, and but poetic justice, if the most decisive step towards Germany's defeat be taken in the Balkans. Not merely did she find here the trident exasperation attempting to realise her mad ambitions, but it was here, despite her tremendous invasion of Belgium and France, that they reached the greatest heights and were most fondly cherished. Germany's first setback came before the war, when the Balkan alliance defeated Turkey and drove the Sultan almost out of Europe. She has since repaired much of the damage by her military conquest of Serbia and her diplomatic one of Bulgaria and Turkey. But Russia and Britain have already barred her forever from her ultimate goal, the Persian Gulf, and now her dreams of Eastern Empire bid fair to be shattered altogether.

This is the largest and far the most important significance of the news that is beginning to come in; we shall see the full meaning of it after the war. The hope has grown almost to conviction that Roumania will shortly join forces with the Allies; we may feel sure of it if the offensive meets with substantial success. There have been rumours that the Salonika garrison has been largely defeated, Turkey will be cut off; and then Austria will be tackled. Already we hear stories of revolts in Albania and Montenegro, which we can well credit; they are additional evidence of Austrian exhaustion.

If all this can be done, it can be done before winter. It would fundamentally alter the situation and make Austria's position hopeless. Probably it is this prospect which has influenced so many careful and well informed critics in expressing their belief in a possible peace this autumn.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Mr. W. A. Munn and family and Mr. Arch Munn, of St. John's, were in town yesterday.

Naval Reservists Walter Sellars and George Slade arrived in town from St. John's on Thursday night on a visit to their parents. They return to the "Briton" by to-morrow evening's train.

A very enjoyable and successful Garden Party was held at the grounds of Mr. Albert Rogers of the West End, on Thursday last by the young ladies of that part of the town. The very nice sum of $50 was realized for the Cot Fund. The young ladies are to be congratulated on the success of the event.

The attention of the Road Board is called to the disgraceful condition of Death Hill. It is truly impassable owing to ruts caused by last spring's freshets cutting it away. Nothing has been done to it this summer. It should be attended to at once or it may be a hill of misery or even death to some poor person who may fall there on a dark night.

In this same connection it might not be out of place to mention that just before the last election a pole and a lamp was placed there, but it was only attended to a few nights, and is still there as a monument to some person's generosity (?). The light would be a great convenience just now particularly while the road is in such poor condition.

The cargo of deal of the Minnie Maud is being discharged at the public wharf for her owner, Mr. E. Simmons.

Miss M. Pike and Mrs. N. Brown left for St. John's on Saturday to spend Sunday with friends there, expecting to return this evening.

In the list of casualties reported on Thursday last, the name Andrew Shute, Victoria Street, Hr. Grace, should read Arthur Shute, son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Shute.

A letter from a friend at Batteau, Labrador, conveys the sad news that a man named King was drowned there from a schooner on the 4th. He belonged to the north. A large number of schooners were there at the time.

Hr. Grace, Aug. 21, 1916.

Salvaging Cargo Continues.

The work of unloading the lumber cargo of the steamer Matatus, which is stranded at Peter's River, is still going on. If present conditions continue for another few days the probability is that the ship will be refloated with the aid of the Halifax wrecking tugs which are now at the scene of the wreck. She will then be towed to St. John's to be dry docked for repairs.

To Governor,

OFFICIAL NEWS.
In general order issued on return from France King praises cheerful confidence and splendid condition of all ranks. Says Allies will never lay down arms till our cause has triumphed.

We and French have made important progress at numerous points between Thiepval and Somme. Our prisoners since Friday number eight hundred.

Verdun. French have captured the whole village of Fleury and made progress near Thiaumont.

The Russian offensive continues. The Russians are within ten miles of Halicz. The enemy forces including the Turks have been driven back with enormous losses on the Zlotalpa front. The Italians after making further progress are now consolidating Carpo positions.

The German fleet came out on Saturday but avoided engaging. One cruiser was destroyed and another rammed. In searching for the enemy we lost light cruisers Nottingham and Falmouth. All officers, and all crews, except about forty, were saved.

The Trepassey Garden Party.

Dear Sir,—The garden party held here on the 15th instant in aid of the new Convalescent School was a great success, being the first of its kind we have had. It took place on the grounds of the old parish house, a pretty spot, shady with trees and bright with flowers, ideal for the purpose. It began at 3 p.m. in glorious weather, and teas were served to the large assembly at 5 p.m. Everything was under the guidance of popular Fr. O'Flaherty and went off without a hitch. Messdames E. Kennedy, R. Sutton, Geo. Devoreux and Miss Maggie Murphy, assisted by about thirty other ladies, were the organizers, and much of the success of the day was due to their efforts. The popular figure of Capt. Jas. Waddleton could be seen and Mr. Dan Pennell, agent of the R. N. Co., moved among the guests with a smile for everybody. The sports, which were most enjoyable, were under the direction of Messrs. John Brien and Henry McNeil. A feature was the shooting at an office of the Kaiser, and the prize, a meerschaum pipe, was won by Capt. Geo. Sutton. Everyone was anxious to have a shot at the Kaiser, and a good sum was made out of their enthusiasm. Altogether over $300.00 was realised. Visitors came from Cape Race, Portugal Cove, St. John's, St. Shott's and other nearby places. Among them were Mrs. O'Driscoll, sister of Fr. O'Flaherty, Mr. Berigan, St. John's, Mr. N. Jackman, Mr. Mrs. and Miss Myrick, Cape Race; Mr. John Molloy, St. Shott's; and many others. The afternoon passed very enjoyably and the affair was a great success in every way.

Yours truly,
Trepassey.

At the Paper Town.

About 1,200 men are now employed at the Paper Mills, Grand Falls, a larger number than those who worked on the original construction. The Suthete plant has increased its output seventy-five per cent, the power plant has increased over 2,000 h.p.; a large annex has been added to the main boiler house, and several out houses have been built and twenty new dwelling houses have been completed and fitted with electric light and other modern improvements. The Terra Nova football team, who spent a week at the paper town, defeated the townsmen in the series played early in the week, but met their Waterloo in the cricket and baseball games, losing by 50 runs in the former while on the diamond the score stood 23 to 14 in favor of Grand Falls.

Fishery News From Various Centres.

Aug. 19.—From W. White (English Hr. to Spaniard's Cove).—The catch is 12,200 qts. with 90 for last week. About fifty dorles and skiffs are fishing. A few boats on the west end of this section have done remarkably well, having secured from 2 to 5 qts. daily with hook and line. Many of the fishermen, however, are "making" or shipping their early catch, and not giving much attention to actual fishing. Prospects are very good, and there is plenty of squid for bait.

Aug. 19.—From R. Brown (Upper Amherst Cove to Cape L'Argent).—There is a good sign of fish on the offer grounds, but nothing on the inside. There is squid enough for bait, but it is not plentiful lately. The catch to date is 13,300 qts. with 1,500 for last week. Stormy weather is hindering operations, but 360 dorles and skiffs are fishing. One schooner has arrived from the Grosis Islands with 150 qts.

Aug. 19.—From S. E. Chafe (South Head of Briggs to Bay Roberts Point).—Both cod and bait are very scarce at present, and prospects are poor. Forty punts are fishing and the catch is 2,760 qts. with 10 for last week.

Aug. 19.—From M. White (Aquafort to Caplin Bay).—Prospects were very good for hook and liners this week, but on the whole are rather poor. Squid is not very plentiful, though there was enough for the week's fishing. Six whale boats and 81 dorles and skiffs are fishing.

The Buddy Boot.

Capt. Morgan Hendrogen, of Samuel Harris, Ltd., Grand Bank, needs no introduction to either banking masters or banking crews. When he makes a statement, they may depend upon its being absolute fact. When he highly recommends the Buddy Boot to fishermen, they understand he knows from experience. But the Buddy Boot is the kind that they have always been looking for, and the kind that will ensure the greatest amount of satisfaction.—aug12,6,w,ft

Vessels Awaiting Charters.

Shipments of newly cured codfish are late this season in reaching St. John's from the different outports and in consequence a number of vessels are now here awaiting charters to European and Brazilian markets. The bulk of the new-made article is not expected to arrive here before the middle of next month on account of the short bank catch since June month in addition to the late Labrador arrivals.

Motor Cycle Meets Mishap.

NURSE GIBBONS INJURED.
While going along Harvey Road near the C.L.B. Armoury, shortly before ten o'clock last night, a motor cycle, driven by Mr. Wm. Stevens with side car attached containing Miss Gertrude Gibbons, District Tuberculosis Nurse, ran into two dogs which were fighting on the street. The result was that the machine was capsize and the occupant of the side car was violently thrown to the ground head foremost. She was picked up by Messrs. Pottles and Kelly with blood flowing copiously from her forehead where a nasty cut was inflicted. She was immediately attended by Dr. Burden and then driven to the General Hospital in that physician's motor car. An examination at the hospital showed that Nurse Gibbons was all right beyond the cut forehead. What accounts for her injuries being of a minor character is that the motor cycle was fortunately going slow. This morning the patient was able to sit up and did not feel the effects of the accident. Nurse Gibbons is a most popular and esteemed young lady, and her many friends are glad to hear that she escaped so well.

Amusements.

WONDERFUL PICTURE AT NICKEL THEATRE.

Very large audiences attended the Nickel Theatre yesterday afternoon and last night and all were highly delighted with the show. The pictures were immense, particularly the continuation of "The Strange Case of Mary Page" and the elaborate photo drama by the Lubin players—"The College Widow." Both were very favorably commented on. To-day the programme will be repeated and we feel certain there will be large audiences again. To-morrow there will be a grand holiday bill, one of the finest ever presented in St. John's which includes the blue ribbon feature film of the Vitagraph Co.—the "Island of Regeneration."

AT THE CRESCENT.

"The Hungarian Nabob" is classed as one of the best four-reel features released this year. It is a picturization of Maurus Jokai's famous novel produced by the Biograph Company, with an all star cast including Louise Vale, Charles H. Malles and Franklin Ritchie. The Crescent Picture Palace has been fortunate in securing this great picture and is showing it to-day. "Freddy's Last Bean" is a rich Vitagraph comedy, featuring William Dammann, the Vitagraph comedy star. The musical programme is as usual first class, played by Professor McCarthy. On to-morrow a great three-reel drama of the Underwood, "The Drag Net."

Our Baseball Column.

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

Dear Editor of the Baseball Dope: As there is no earthly hope of finishing off the second round till chill December comes around at the rate we have been able to play, Seeing it rained on each Wednesday, and as "Double Headers" are a bore Especially to those who umpire or score, And seeing that the cash we make The Red Cross Fund or Orphans take, A suggestion I have to offer, (And let everyone hear their opinion proffer)—

AS THE HALF HOLIDAYS END SO SOON, LET'S PLAY EACH SUNDAY AFTERNOON. Thanking you for space, old Scout, I sign myself, "THREE STRIKES, YER OUT!"

The second round begins to-morrow morning when the B. I. S. and Cubs will clash for the last time. The game will commence at 10.30 with the following line-ups:—

B. I. S.	10.30 am.	CUBS
Carew	1st Base	Hall
O'Reilly	2nd Base	Pitcher
Ring	3rd Base	Clouston
Campbell	1st Base	Catcher
Channing	2nd Base	St. John
McGrath	3rd Base	Duggan
Power	Short Stop	Orr
Doyle	Right Field	Lehr
Grace	Left Field	Murphy
	Centre Field	Tessier
	Left Field	Carter

The afternoon's game will be between the Wanderers and Red Lions and will begin at 3 p.m. The players will be:—

Wanderers	3 p.m.	Red Lions
King	1st Base	Cooney
Ford	2nd Base	Pitcher
Hartnett	3rd Base	Hiltz
Hocken	1st Base	Ellis
Dr. Pritchard	2nd Base	Buckingham
Britt	3rd Base	Power
Dobbin	Short Stop	Maher
Brien	Right Field	Jenkins
Hunt	Left Field	Rolls

"Chief" Chesman and "Doc" Smith will control both games, with Mr. P. E. Outerbridge at the score sheets. A B. I. S. scribe is greatly agitated: wants to know if a catcher has the right to block a runner off the home-plate. He is too impatient. He should wait till a B. I. S. runner gets that far.

It's easy enough to be pleasant

ROUMANIA AND SALONIKI
PENSIVE

LONDON, August 22.—The opening of the Saloniki front has been the subject of many news reports that have been last about to throw into the Entente. These reports are circumstantial than ever, and the comments of the Entente indicate that they are devoid of foundation. The newspaper goes so far as to say that Roumania has already declared for the march of a Russian through Roumanian territory. Morait, the famous German critic, also believes that the Entente is negotiating with Roumania at an ultimatum to bring Roumania into the side of the Entente would mean the breaking of the other link in the chain of the Central Powers. The material aid which Roumania would give would be of a very great character. She has 500,000 and 500,000 troops for nearly a year. Her army is reputed to be one of the best and trained in Europe. The possible Russian campaign Roumania would be in a deal powerful blows at the north and in conjunction with the Allies' drive from the east. It has been generally understood that the Entente has been willing to consider the Province of Bessarabia as a condition of which is largely in return for Roumania's aid in the war. Bessarabia, 100 miles in extent, has a population of nearly 2,000,000. The Entente launched by the Allies of the Saloniki front is growing but so far no decisive results have been fought. The British crossed the Struma peninsula in a northerly direction. The time the Serbians have spent in the drive for Monastir against the line of Bulgarian trenches is extreme left, however, in the south of Monastir, they are in reverse and have been driven back to the Greek town of Banica. In the month of the great battle of Vardar, the main high ground of Serbia, a violent artillery bombardment is in progress. It was done that the Teuton and Bulgarian made their victorious advance, according to military experts, a session is vital to whoever holds the town of Banica. Unofficial reports say that Italian troops have been there and will join in the offensive. This news if true means that Italy has decided to declare war on Germany. Germans admittedly directing a garrison campaign at certain

A Lifetime Debt.
By RUTH CAMERON.

"That is the fifth wedding gift I've sent this month," a woman said to me, one day during the past June. "Some of them are to young people I scarcely know," she went on; "but when their parents sent me beautiful gifts, and of course I want to send to them. I have been married fifteen years and I give ten to fifteen gifts a year and I'm not paid up yet."

"Well, anyhow," she ended with a laugh, "they'll probably give to my children when they are married, so I can comfort myself with that."

"And then your children will have to give to their children," I reminded her.

And we both laughed.

This woman's case is interesting.

A Really Embarrassing Situation.
Her father was very well-to-do. She had a large wedding and magnificent gifts. Her husband has a moderate income, and her father has lost his money. Consequently, the steady drain from wedding gifts is really embarrassing for her.

To be sure, she enjoys possessing the beautiful ornaments, the wealth of china, cut glass and silver with which she was presented, but if it were a question of going without some of these, or paying the price she now is paying, I am pretty sure she would do without.

And I am sure there are many other women who could say the same.

To me, the possession of the flossom of bric-a-brac which the high tide of a large wedding leaves stranded in our lives would be almost as much of a drawback as having to pay the donor.

"Our Choices Are Ourselves"
"For my ideal of a home is one in which the furnishings and pictures and ornaments express the tastes of the occupant. Our choices are ourselves."

What is one to do about it then, dispend with the wedding gift or give up the big wedding?
Well, I do wish we could re-establish the whole thing on a simpler, more spontaneous basis. I wish we could have gifts from those who want, and can afford to give, and freedom from the obligation for those who cannot; also, more consulting of the recipient's taste and less attempt to get something that will look as if it cost more than it does.

I wonder if such a reorganization would be totally impossible?

Why Not a Subscription Wedding?
A friend of mine has a still more revolutionary suggestion:
"There's no use blinking the fact," she says, "people have big weddings partly to furnish their homes, and then they get a whole lot of duplicates and things they don't want. Now, why not have a subscription wedding. A wedding is an entertainment, you know. You could leave the amount of the subscription to the judgment of the giver. You might put small contributions thankfully received, large ones in proportion to the end of the invitation, then you could take the money and buy what you really need."

Whatever else you can say of that suggestion, you must admit it's original.

A Fight to the Death.
Not for many years have whales been so numerous in Conception Bay. Every day three to six of the great fish are seen playing around, often close to the shore. Several fishermen who were fishing off the eastward of Bell Island on Saturday last, witnessed a struggle between a large whale, a sword fish and thrasher which eventually, no doubt, ended in the death of the monarch of the seas. The men in their tiny boats kept splashing with their oars and throwing blue water in the sea, fearing the great fishes would come too close and swamp their little crafts. The fight was on from noon till 4.30 p.m. when the big fish disappeared around Cape St. Francis. By the hideous noises that could be heard through the waters for miles around, and the volumes of water that shot up in the air when the whale would come to the surface to blow it was plainly seen that the attacking forces were getting in their work.

Makes Hair Grow.
All drug stores sell SALVIA, and it is guaranteed to grow hair or money back.
The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of. If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.
The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.
And remember it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.
SALVIA is sold by first-class druggists under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word "SALVIA" on every bottle.

Torpedoes as Life-Savers.
Experiments Were Stopped by the War.
Just before the war expert attention was being given to the submarine torpedo as an aid to saving life at sea. The best rocket apparatus is limited in its radius, and in a hurricane the firework with its light line may fail to make progress even a few score yards. Many a rocket brigade has had to watch a shipwrecked crew drown before their eyes.
Most of those making experiments have chosen the ordinary naval torpedo of various sizes. That part of the interior usually filled with explosives has been made to hold either light Manila twine (on account of its floating properties), fine copper wire, or thin chain. One end of the line is made fast on shore, and the torpedo reels out the connection as it speeds through the water.
When the torpedo has run its distance it rises to the surface, the line is secured and the ship-wrecked crew are then able to draw out a stout hawser capable of carrying at least one man at a time ashore.
Although the torpedo's journey is made under water a slight weight in the balance chamber—if the journey is short—would bring the craft to the surface soon. At greater distances, of course, the diminishing weight in the "explosive" chamber would naturally tilt that part of the mechanism toward the surface.
At the depth at which a torpedo usually cruises the water would be comparatively quiet.
If the torpedo is fired from the sea—either by a ship in distress or by a tug or lifeboat—it is expected to dash through the breakers, running up high and dry on the sand or shingle, or dashing itself to pieces among the rocks. Then the line of communication could be secured by the life-saving brigade.
For the time the war has brought to an end all experiments in this di-

The Navy's Triumph.
In a certain sense the report recently issued by Vice-Admiral Bacon, in command of the Dover Patrol, is a clearer testimony to the absolute ascendancy of the British Navy than the most decisive naval victory could be. Over 21,000 merchant ships have passed in the last six months through the Dover Patrol. Of these, 21 in all have been lost or seriously damaged by the enemy. And even that is the lesser half of the miracle achieved. How many transports have passed, carrying how many troops, is known, as Admiral Bacon discreetly remarks, to their Lordships at the Admiralty. All the public needs at the moment to know is that not a single life has been lost during their passage. This absolute failure of the German submarine in the one field in which it might legitimately have been employed, with decisive military effect, is one of the cardinal facts of the war. When the history of the war comes to be written the tremendous part played by the British Navy will be better understood. At present, we get little news of the Navy but we do know enough to say that without it the present great offensive in France, Gallia, and Gorizia would have been impossible.—Halifax Chronicle.

TO-DAY'S Messages.

ROUMANIA AND SALONIKI OFFENSIVE.

LONDON, To-day. The opening of the Allied offensive at Saloniki has been the signal for renewed reports that Rumania is at last about to throw in her lot with the Entente. These reports are more circumstantial than ever before, and the comments of the German press indicate that they are far from being devoid of foundation. One Berlin newspaper goes so far as to declare that Rumania has already joined the Allies, and that plans are being laid for the march of a Russian army through Rumanian territory. Major Morant, the famous German military critic, also believes that Rumania is negotiating with Russia, and hints at an ultimatum to Bucharest from Germany and Austria. The entry of Rumania into the side of the Entente would mean the forging of another link in the chain of foes surrounding the Central Powers. The material aid which Rumania could give would be of a very important character. She has had between 600,000 and 800,000 troops mobilized for nearly a year. Her army is reputed to be one of the best equipped and trained in Europe. Apart from possible Russian reinforcements, Rumania would be in a position to deal powerful blows at Bulgaria from the north and in conjunction with Allies' drive from the south. It has been generally understood that Russia has been willing to concede the Province of Bessarabia, the population of which is largely Rumanian, in return for Rumania's co-operation in the war. Bessarabia, 18,000 sq. miles in extent, has a population of nearly 2,000,000. The great offensive launched by the Allies on Sunday on the Saloniki front is growing in fury, but so far no decisive action has been fought. The British and French crossed the Struma pushing forward in a northeasterly direction toward the Bulgarian frontier; at the same time the Serbians have opened the drive for Monastir against the first line of Bulgarian trenches. On the extreme left, however, immediately south of Monastir, they have suffered a reverse and have evacuated the Greek town of Banica. In a certain mouth of the great valley of the Vardar, the main highway through Serbia, a violent artillery action is in progress. It was down this valley that the Teuton and Bulgarian forces made their victorious advance. According to military experts, its possession is vital to whoever holds Serbia. Unofficial reports from Saloniki say that Italian troops have landed there and will join in the general offensive. This news if corroborated means that Italy has finally decided to declare war on Germany, the Germans admittedly directing the Bulgarian campaign at certain points of the front. Berlin reports that the Bulgarians have been offensive, but London and Paris interpret this move to be for a political purpose, and not as a serious attack against Saloniki, in the desire to affect public opinion in Rumania. The influence of the approaching Greek elections is the motive behind the Bulgarian aggressive action in the opinion of the Allied capitals. Fierce fighting continues in the region of the Stokhod on the Eastern front, where the Russian advance menaces both Kovel and the German salient. The battle on the crest of the Carpathians also still rages. Both sides claim minor successes on the Western front; there has been no material change in the situation since the Allies launched their great attack last Friday. German counter attacks have been made at several points along the British lines, but according to London without any success. The Germans also made a powerful effort to recapture Fleury in the Verdun sector, but Paris reports its complete repulse. Repeated official reports that Portugal is about to take an active share on the European battlefield are apparently confirmed by an announcement from Paris that a British and French Military Commission has been sent to Lisbon. News despatches from Portugal have described the military preparations as of a very extensive character, but there has been nothing yet to indicate the number of men she has under arms.

PRESIDENT'S APPEAL TO THE RAILROADS.

WASHINGTON, To-day. As one American citizen to another President Wilson to-day appealed to each executive of the country's principal railroads on the grounds of patriotism to accept his plan for averting the threatened disaster of a nation-wide strike. He emphasized the necessity for keeping the railroads' service as part of the national defence and to make possible the preparation for meeting the conditions that will exist after the European war. On leaving the White House the railroad presidents, augmented during the day by arrivals from the west, held a conference, in which the sentiment is said to be against agreeing to the President's proposal in its present form. Hope was expressed, however, that some satisfactory counter proposition might be advanced. It was decided to turn over to a committee the task of drafting the final reply to the President.

VERY UNLIKELY.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. The Echo Belge says it learns that General Von Bissing, Governor General of the occupied portions of Belgian territory, has remitted the fine of 50,000 pounds imposed upon the city of Brussels for the celebration of the Belgian National Fete Day on June 21, which the municipality refused to pay on the grounds that it was illegal.

THE GERMAN NAVAL RALLY.

LONDON, To-day. The Times naval expert, discussing the rally of the German fleet into the North Sea on Saturday, says: "The news that the German fleet has already been able to put to sea after the severe damage suffered on May 31st, is no surprise. War experience has proven that a ship can be repaired very quickly provided she is not vitally injured. This is especially true when there are such resources available as in British or German yards."

J. J. ST. JOHN,

Duckworth St. and LeMarchant Road.

The Germans do not sing without purpose. Saturday's naval movements had a political origin, to keep up the morale of success on May 31st. The German commander must show that his fleet is not confined to the Kiel Canal. It may be assumed that every class of ship was present in the German fleet on Saturday. The advance was made more to the southward than in May. The retreat of the Germans after their abortive raid was a necessary part of their tactics, and justifiable in the circumstances.

HAMBURG A "SLEEPING BEAUTY."

LONDON, To-day. The Daily Mail quotes from the Berliner Tageblatt a description of Hamburg written by a recent visitor to that port. "If anyone wants to realize the picture of Hamburg as a sleeping beauty," he said, "only take a run round the dock. The sound of sirens, the groaning of cranes, the clanking of anchor chains is heard no more. Only from the shipbuilding yards come occasional sounds of hammers; through the silence of quays and ships everything is completely still, before the war shots made an interrupted chain of fire to the mouth of the Elbe, but now tenants of villas on Blankenese tell me they rush to the window every time a ship goes by. The whole place is deserted excepting for some warehouse caretakers, a sentinel guarding the margarine depot, and a few women packing empty codfish. The Emperor lay empty in the docks."

IN THE BALKANS.

ATHENS, Via London, To-day. The occupation of Kastoria and Corymbes, by Bulgarian troops is confirmed by news from an official source, which says that the German Field Marshal August von Mackensen is with the Bulgarians. An initial brigade of Russian troops has arrived at Saloniki to join the Entente Allies in fighting in Balkans.

Four Men Killed on Bell Island.

GREEKS FIGHT BULGARIANS.

LONDON, To-day. Greek troops have been fighting the Bulgarians in the vicinity of Seres since Sunday morning, says an Athens despatch.

SWEDEN AND THE EMBARGO.

BERLIN, To-day. What will Sweden do? is the leading question being asked in official and diplomatic circles here to-day. The apparently authentic report via Stockholm that England plans a blanket embargo on all goods to Sweden, and will only permit passage in each case where Sweden gives a guarantee that the goods in question will not be exported is considered the most sensational and significant news of the ominous world war, not excepting the blacklisting of American and other neutral firms. "I cannot believe that Sweden will tolerate it," a leading German said to-day; "and this is the view held in other well-informed circles." The alleged British embargo is regarded here as of the utmost importance as a test case, and if Sweden, the strongest and most independent of purely neutrals, is to be made more to the German characterize as England's economic yoke, it is fit that Holland's turn will come next in the not distant future, and that then England will go out to get complete economic control of Norway, Denmark and Switzerland.

HEAVY FIGHTING ON THE STRUMA.

PARIS, To-day. The heaviest fighting on the front northeast of Salonika on the left bank of the Struma River. From Kackala to Baraklio on the western end of the line hostilities are confined for the most part to artillery.

PROGRESS ON THE SOMME.

PARIS, To-day. Progress was made by the French last night on the Somme front north of the River in the outskirts of Clercy, the War Office announced to-day. South of the River, the French captured trenches near Estrees and Soye court.

PRIZE BOUNTY, £ 12,000.

LONDON, To-day. The Prize Court to-day awarded as prize bounty to the officers and crews of the squadron of Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Sturdee, which destroyed the German-Patrol squadron in the battle off Faulkland Islands in December, 1914. The bounty was determined by the number of men aboard the destroyed ships.

Hand-to-Hand Fighting Was Appalling

Bayonets, Knives, Bombs, Cavalry Swords, Pistols and Arms of Every Description Used by Italians and Austrians.

Rome Aug. 10 (via Paris, Aug. 11).—The latest reports show that the Lower Isonzo action is drawing to a close in its first stage, with the number of Austrian prisoners still growing. The number of men killed or wounded in the battle is large. Neither side has yet been able to make an accurate estimate of the casualties, though the total for both sides will probably reach 30,000.

From evidence arriving here the belief prevails that the victory of the Italians was not due to the demoralization of the Austrians, as the fighting was the severest yet seen on this front. The Austrians contested every foot of the ground about Gorizia, even after the loss of the strategic points of Monte Sabotino and Monte San Michele. While the success of the Italians undoubtedly was due largely to the new heavy artillery, which matched at last, after a year of waiting for their manufacture, the heavy 305 millimetre Austrian guns, yet the hand-to-hand fighting was appalling. In ferocious bayonets, knives, cavalry swords, pistols and arms of every description being used. Personal deeds of heroism were plentiful, especially in connection with the use by the Italians of a new method for destroying barbed wire entanglements, involving the almost certain death of the soldiers who plant the bomb for this purpose. The victory of the Italians is considered all the more creditable, since the Austrians on the Lower Isonzo front had long prepared for an attack on a large scale, having successfully resisted many previous ones on small sectors.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

—Prune Salad.—This is delicious for luncheon. Stew one pound of large prunes until soft, without sweetening. Drain and pit; then fill the cavities with nut-meats or cream cheese, and serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing.

A pretty garden effect is obtained by two or three tubs sunken in the earth and filled with water in which some little water plants are growing. Spaces between the tubs should be filled up with some low-growing plant like sweet alyssum.

When one is nervous or tired, a sponge bath in water, either hot or cold, will often prove stimulating and refreshing. Elderly people and those whose circulation is feeble should avoid the cold plunge so delightful to the young, because it robs them of vitality. But those in advanced years, as well as boys and girls, are better for the daily bath from head to foot. A bathtub and a copious amount of water is not a prerequisite if all that one has to depend on are a basin and pitcher.

"Food Is Its Own Best Digestant"

"All too frequently, we prescribe medicines for patients who suffer from indigestion, when, as a matter of fact, what they actually need is a simple course of dietetic training, and the proper food-stuffs to train on.

"This is the famous "reason" for the popularity of Grape-Nuts as an article of diet, viz., that it furnishes this very course of training for the digestion. It not only furnishes the natural diastase for the process of digestion, but it favors a return to normal digestive function because the firm, crisp kernels compel thorough mastication.

"One ought not to leave out of consideration the psychic element—the delicious treat to the palate afforded by a dish of Grape-Nuts and cream."

—From April, 1916, American Journal of Clinical Medicine

THE PUMPKIN.
 The pumpkin is a round, yellow object which dots the American landscape in the fall of the year and later dots the boarding-house table in the form of canned pie. Some of these dots can be made to look and act like real pie, and when eaten in a hasty and tempestuous manner by a color-blind border are not complained of for several hours afterward. Others, however, are a greater disappointment than a bow-legged actor in a love scene and leave the stomach in a restless and dissatisfied condition. The pumpkin is one of the largest and most robust members of the vegetable kingdom, and never has to be propped up on its feet, like the sweet pea and the shy string-bean. It is much easier to raise a family of pumpkins than it is to rear five or six boys who are waiting until they get big enough to lick the high school superintendent. When once a pumpkin is firmly planted on its feet, it is harder to uproot than the unreasoning prejudice against that noble instrument of torture, the ukulele. The pumpkin does not have to be planted, plowed, cultivated or harvested, and as a general utility article is second only to the combination bath-tub and kitchen cabinet.
 The pumpkin is a blood relative of the summer squash, but moves in a higher sphere and has a better complexion. In localities where the pumpkin is not available, people attempt to make pie out of the squash, the result being one of the most dismal failures in the annals of mankind. The squash pie is all right as a filler when there is nothing else in the house to fall back upon, but it will never cause a normal, healthy appetite to sit up and cry for more. In some states the serving of squash pie two days in succession is considered sufficient ground for divorce, and if this law were in general application there would be fewer woe-begone husbands roaming to and fro seeking rest.
 The mammoth pumpkin is a fleshy variety which is harder to lift than the mortgage on a second-hand runabout. Nature has been lavish in her gifts, but when she neglected to put handles on the mammoth pumpkin she inflicted a terrible hardship on man. Thousands of ambitious farmers have attempted to pick up the mammoth pumpkin and transfer it to a lumber wagon, only to lose two of their best ribs and scatter suspender buttons in every direction. Luther Burbank could do some real good in this world if he would graft handles on the mammoth pumpkin by crossing it with the Congress shoe, instead of frittering away his time trying to make the domestic cucumber perform the functions of the oil pickle.

REID-HAGGETT.
 A very pretty wedding took place at the S. A. Hall at Dildo, T.B., recently, when Miss L. A. Reid was joined in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. A. M. Haggett of Pelly's Island by Adj. Oldford. The bride looked very charming in her blue uniform with white sash thrown over her shoulders. The groom was also dressed in his uniform and was supported by the bride's cousin, Mr. E. Reid. Many spoke on the lives of the happy young couple. After the usual knot was tied the young couple expressed their desires to follow the Lord. The bride received many valuable gifts and showers of congratulations were bestowed on the happy couple. Mrs. Haggett has been the means of cheering many weary hearts by her fondly smiles and kindly actions, and I am sure Mr. Haggett feels proud to own such a charming young lady for his life partner. The happy young couple leave on Monday train for the city of St. John's, where they will make their future home. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Haggett many years of happy married life and all success.

DANGEROUS ACT.—Yesterday evening a five-year-old boy thoughtlessly placed a piece of iron on the street car rail on Holloway Street. Shortly after a tram approached and, but for the alertness of the motor man in discovering the obstruction and having it removed, the car might have gone off the track and probably the outcome would have been serious, as there is a steep grade in the section referred to. Parents should warn children against this dangerous practice.

Seventeen more suits are to be filed in a few days. The complaint in each case filed was precisely the same.

Not Another Year of War

(From the North American, Philadelphia.)

There remains the psychological factor—the stimulating effect of an offensive, long delayed but finally launched with impressive success, and the contrasting depression which inevitably follows a surrendered initiative. And in the present war these conditions have a national as well as a military influence. Every imperial proclamation, every newspaper utterance, reveal now a realization in Germany that victory in the German sense is impossible and that the nation fights now, not in the inspiring hope of dominion, but with desperate need to avert disaster. While each battle seemed a prelude to triumph, the German army and people displayed superb discipline and devotion; will they reveal the same qualities under the prolonged agony of a violent siege?

A forecast recognizes, and justly, the tremendous military force which Germany still possesses; count men and guns and munitions, and even with the odds against her, resistance for so long is easily deduced. But it takes more than these things to win a war—it takes supreme confidence in victory, absolute belief in the justice of a cause which demands such terrible sacrifices.

That the Germans have been inspired by such a faith, their great deeds testify. But is it still theirs? If so, how long will it withstand the knowledge that a war of triumphant aggression has become for them a war of painful resistance, of agonizing suspense—no longer a means of national aggrandizement, but a desperate struggle to extort favorable terms from relentless antagonists? How long will it survive the revelation, now emerging dimly through the murk of battle, that the nation was drugged by a false philosophy and led to disaster by a deluded statesmanship?

And there is a still deeper source of weakness. The national spirit which could exult over the corpse of Belgium and glory in the Lusitania massacre is not sound. It has been strong in victory; will it be as valiant in adversity? That there was a first anniversary of the war was a signal that Germany's plan of conquest had failed. That there is a second shows how stupendous were her opponents' problems of preparation. That there will be a third we cannot bring ourselves to believe.

For Fifty Rupees.

General Sir George Younghusband, recently reported wounded in Mesopotamia, is as good at story-telling as he is at fighting, which is saying a great deal.

One anecdote he is fond of relating concerns an incident which happened when he was serving with the Chitral Relief Force.

The column he commanded was much annoyed on the way up by snipers, who were responsible for many casualties. There was one sniper in particular whose aim was deadly, and a reward of fifty rupees was offered to whoever succeeded in potting him.

This stirred to activity a native who had recently joined the expedition as a bearer, and he craved permission to go out at dusk and stalk the stalker.

The asked-for permission being given, the man went off, and shortly after dawn he returned with two rifles—the one that had been lent him for the occasion and the sniper's. As no tribesman will part with his rifle except with his life, it was rightly assumed that the owner thereof was dead, and the bearer was told to parade at orderly-room time for his reward. Incidentally he was asked how he had managed to succeed so quickly with his self-imposed task.

"Oh," he replied lightly, "I knew his ways, sahib, and I kill him easily." "Why, was he a friend of yours?" asked General Younghusband.

"No, sahib, only my father," was the illuminating answer.—Pearson's Weekly.

Austrians are Cruel to Russian Prisoners.

(By LORD NORTHCLIFFE.)

On the Isonzo front, August 14.—The Austrians are not running, but they are clearly retreating with some speed. The Italian advance is steady; steady also is the inflow of prisoners. Two thousand were brought in yesterday. Opinions differ as to where the retreat will end, but the matter emphatically is not one for public discussion.

The Austrians' bitterness of soul may be judged by their behavior. At Dobordo Russian prisoners of war, who had been brought in to mace roads for the Austrians, were found hanged, possibly as a revenge for the escape of other Russian prisoners who swam the Isonzo the other day and reached the Italian lines after hiding four nights among the rocks. Italian wounded were found mutilated.

I have seen terrible spiked maces that are habitually used by the Austrians to break the skulls of the wounded; also thongs, with leaden balls attached to stocks, which the Austrians use to coerce laggards.

Owing to the fact that 80 many Italian and Austrian soldiers have worked in the United States and Canada, it often happens that English is the only language in which they can converse mutually. Yesterday I saw a small band of prisoners being brought in by the Bersaglieri, who answered my remarks upon the stout physical appearance of the prisoners by saying in good American that "they can holler all right, mister," at which the prisoners grinned with evident understanding.

Everyday Etiquette.

"I want to send out some dinner invitations soon and would like to ask you how long before the dinner they should be sent out," said Katherine.

"It is customary to send dinner invitations out ten days before the event," answered Florence.

The Workers Behind the Guns.

A captured German officer, describing the artillery fire of the Franco-British army in the valley of the Somme, said to his captor: "The smoke was so dense that it was impossible to mark where the shells were falling. All we saw was a dark cloud interspersed with red, green and yellow flashes. Once, just before twilight yesterday, there was a momentary lull, and I caught a glimpse of the surroundings. The effect was extraordinary. The solid earth had literally sunk over a wide area, actually flattened as with a gigantic hammer by shells falling so continuously that the holes coalesced into one vast basin." In this inferno only the dead were happy said the German who had come back from it, the sole survivor of the most terrible illustration ever presented of the power of modern artillery.

But behind the guns are men. There is the artilleryman, performing manual labor in the manipulation of his weapon so exhausting that when his spell of work is over and his period of relief comes he drops exhausted on the bare ground and sleeps with the roar of the bombardment in his ears. There are the men of the supply service who bring up shell to the guns in great motor cars over shell-torn roads, and whose heroism, though not often recorded, is equal to that of the charging infantry on the crest of an attack.

Back of all in the arsenals and workshops of Britain, France, and the other allied nations, are the men and women who fabricate the guns and provide the projectiles that make possible the prodigious spectacle of the Somme. They, too, are heroic in their self-abnegation. Only those who have seen the processes of steel-making incessantly through the heat of summer in the foundry and forge, handling great masses of plastic steel that, while being shaped and fashioned into the form of cannon, give out a degree of heat beside which the ninety in the shade over which we lament is frigidity itself. In the gun-making factories of the Tynes, the Clyde, and Yorkshire, overborne men who have looked forward with intense longing for a whole year to a few days of escape in August from their particular inferno, have responded with hearty good-will to General Haig's plea that holidays be not thought of till the supply of guns is inexhaustible. The willing spirit commands the lagging worn-out body to renewed exertions, and the glowing steel is fashioned into death-dealing weapons amid surroundings of almost intolerable hardship.

In the shell-making establishments conditions are easier, but there, too, men and women labor with a degree of devotion beyond all praise. Tens of thousands of women to whom the wages received for their work are not of importance, as well as hundreds of thousands of working women who had no experience of factory life before the war, toil long hours with brief off-duty periods, and have no other interest in life than to maintain the output at its maximum. Even here in Canada there are hundreds of factories in which men and women are laboring incessantly through the period of mid-summer tropical heat to feed the guns. All honor to them everywhere, the heroes and heroines of the workshop, who are aiding Britain once more, as in Napoleon's time, to save herself by her exertions and all Europe by her example. France stands to-day beside Britain, a joint guardian of the world's liberty. Not all the powers of the German military machine, with its marvellous capacity for the production of missiles of death and destruction, can prevail against the whole-souled service of the men and women in the munition factories of the Allies. There, even more than in the valley of the Somme, the fight for freedom will be won.—Toronto Globe.

Your Boys and Girls.

A novel method of adding to the excitement of birthday presents is in hiding them and making the child search for them, unaided. At breakfast, or at whatever meal the family can make time for a little birthday fun, the child might find a card slipped under his plate. Attached to the card is the end of several dozen feet of twine, and the child is told to follow the cord if he want to find his birthday present. Of course the child has to stop to untie this bundle which by the way is carefully wrapped in paper. Twelve presents are for each hour of the day should be wrapped up and placed in the bag and the child should be allowed to draw one present at the stroke of the clock all day.

This idea of giving to others on the birthday is a very good one. So while presents are lavished on the child whose birthday it is, he should have various little favors to give to others on this great day.

SUMMER FIGHTING.

WILT MASON.

The Germans and French, in the field and the trench, still brandish their red anticranes; they slash at their foes, though the mercury shows it's up to ninety degrees. If I had to scrap all over the map, I'd surely be frightfully bored; I'd hate to be shot when the weather is hot, I'd hate to be sliced with a sword. I've nothing to do but to simmer and stew, and punish the pink lemonade; and yet I complain of the torture and strain, while loafing around in the shade. I sit in the swing and I mutter, "By Jingo, this heat is a punishment dire; and I'll wager my purse that I wouldn't feel worse if I sat with my feet in a fire." But what would I say if there ambled my way a warrior bold, with a gun? And what would I think if he filled me with zinc, and old rusty nails by the ton? All melting my grease, but I'm melting in peace, and ought to be cheerful and gay; I'd hate to be shot when the weather is hot, I'd hate to be scrapping all day.

Incandescent Gas Lighting.

The remarkable economy of the incandescent gas lamp is by no means either its chief—or even an important—claim for popularity. It meets better than any other source of artificial light the requirements of ideal light.

In the color of the light produced it is far superior to any other illuminant in general and universal use. The investigations of acknowledged authorities indicate that for the approximation of artificial daylight the gas mantle has at least one and one-half times the value of the carbon-filament electric lamp.

Of all the manifold advantages of gas light, perhaps the most important is its favourable effect upon the eyes. The development of the incandescent electric lamp with its intense brilliant and glaring filament has been accompanied by hitherto unheard-of prevalence of eye troubles and diseases which are forcing themselves upon the attention of the medical fraternity. This is resulting in a greater appreciation of the soft mellow quality of gas light and is rapidly enlarging its field of use.—July 15, 1904.

Household Notes.

A good salad is made of peaches and cherries, the first pared and halved, the second pitted. Fill the cherries with Neufchatel cheese and lay them in the peach halves, then serve with sour cream dressing.

It is a good idea to try changing foods about from one meal to another—use something generally planned for breakfast for luncheon instead, and a dinner food for breakfast. It makes meal time much more interesting.

"Feel Like a New Person," says Mrs. Hamilton.

New Castle, Ind.—"From the time I was eleven years old until I was seventeen I suffered each month so I had to be in bed, I had headache, backache, and such pains I would cramp double every month. I did not know what it was to be easy a minute. My health was all run down and the doctors did not do me any good. A neighbor told my mother about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it, and now I feel like a new person. I don't suffer any more and I am regular every month."—Mrs. HAZEL HAMILTON, 822 South 15th St.

When a remedy has lived for forty years, steadily growing in popularity and influence, and thousands upon thousands of women declare they owe their health to it, it is not reasonable to believe that it is an article of great merit?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

CHEVROLET!

The most complete and equipped Motor Car ever offered regardless of price. This is some assertion to make, but everyone knows that I am the pioneer in the automobile business in this country, and I can honestly say I have never seen its equal. It has two unit starting and lighting plant, three speeds, forward and reverse; gate changes, 30 x 2 1/2 tires front and rear, 3/4 floating rear axle, which means there is no strain on the axle shafts, the load is carried on the housing. Springs are of the latest shock absorbing cantilever type as used on high-priced English cars. Four cylinder motor valves in head and improved double jet zenth carburetor, which gives twenty-seven miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Plenty leg room in front, also in Tonsure; in fact the biggest small car ever offered to the motoring public. Replacement parts of these cars are exceptionally low. A full line already in stock.

Free Nickel Tickets

WITH

Welch's Grape Juice!

When you buy WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE you are buying QUALITY. When you buy inferior brands of Grape Juice costing a cent or two a bottle less than WELCH'S, why not buy a five cent bottle of Red Ink instead and be done with it. You won't notice the difference in the flavor.

WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE has come to stay, and next season I have plans for starting some premium scheme in connection with WELCH'S along the lines of that one so excellently conducted by The Imperial Tobacco Co. (N.R.), Ltd. For the balance of this year I will exchange tickets at The Nickel Theatre for labels from WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE bottles; one ticket will be given for the following number of labels:

3 Labels from the Half Gallon size, or 5 Labels from the Quart size, or 10 Labels from the Pint size, or 15 Labels from the Half Pint size, or 30 Labels from the "Nip" (4 oz.) size.

If tickets are preferred at any of the Five cent theatres only half the number of labels given above are required for One ticket.

Labels from the outports received through the mail will be redeemed for Cash—the number of labels required for one Nickel ticket having a Cash value of 8 cents.

IN ADDITION TO ABOVE: TO THE PERSON COLLECTING THE GREATEST NUMBER OF THE TIN CAP STOPPERS FROM WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE BOTTLES BETWEEN THIS DATE AND DECEMBER 1ST I WILL PRESENT—

(If a Lady) AN ORDER ON MISS MAY STICK OR MISS MAY FURLONG FOR A HAT TO BE CHOSEN BY WINNER AND TO COST $15.

(If a Gentleman) AN ORDER ON GEORGE KEARNEY OR JOHN ANDERSON FOR HOSIERY TO THE SUM OF $15.

Labels can be redeemed at any time.

Stoppers will be received at any time after November 1st.

Remember: WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE Labels and Stoppers only. Those from other brands of Grape Juice will be dumped in the waste paper basket as quickly as received.

NOW GET BUSY! DRINK WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE AND SAVE THE LABELS AND CAPS.
