SPRING.

Now comes th end, my fellow men, of winter stern and bitter; the spring is coming on c again, and mer-ry birds will twitter, and joy will permeate each hen and cow and human critter. The winter has been mild and kind tempests raged severely, the elements all seemed inclined to treat us fair, or nearly; the frost king and his frigid kind were kept in limits, clearly. And so we have no kick to make about the season going, but oh, our buzzums fairly ache to see the green things growing, to skirmish with a spade or rake, or do some fancy hoing! The winter makes us feel our years, and fills our hearts with sorrow, and, though a balmy day appears, small comfort can we borrow, for we are always filled with fears of what may come to-morrow "The northern sky grows grim and gray." we sigh, with grim foreboding "and though the sun's on deck to day, we have a fear corroding that reas will come our way, his tinorn goods unloading." To all such lears spring gives release, the fears that used to bore us: we do not sum mon the police when clouds assemb o'er us; spring fills our jaded souls

General Protestant

Cemetery. Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,-I notice wrote you recently regarding the General Protestant Cemetery, and he asked all who are interested in this cemetery to subscribe at once by handing in their donations. I feel: sure that the ministers are doing all in their power by urging those who attend the different churches to give to this worthy object.

I trust none will be guided by what others do. Let every one give freely and let us see this fence and railing paid for before the summer. Then I feel sure the trustees will finish the fence on the Topsail Road. If donations are held back the fence will not be finished. Yours truly,

IF your skin has the habit of continually getting oily and shinyyou cannot begin too soon to correct this conditio

A certain amount of oil in your skin is necessary to keep it smooth and supple.

But too much oil not only spoils the attractiveness of any skin by giving it an embarrassing shininess—it actually tends to promote an unhealthy condition of the skin itself. A skin that is too oily is constantly liable to infection from dust and dirt, and thus encourages the formation of blackheads, etc.

You can correct an oily skin by using each night the following simple treatment:

> WITH warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse first with warm water, then with cold-the colder the better.

If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

GET a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter—give your skin its first treatment tonight. A 25cent cake of Woodbury's will last for a month or six weeks of this treatment, and for general cleansing use. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ontario.

Interspersed ship is not jammed she can pick up as great as on that June with the ice are numerous icebergs of seals as the crew kill them; but very often the men have to travel ten or fifteen miles from the ship. Then as they kill the seals they pile them up, or "pan" them. Often a ship's crew will "pan" thirty thousand seals in three or four days. This custom often leads to great risk, and has proved fatal on many occasions. For example, in 1898 overone hundred men became separated from their ship in the night, and while endeavouring to get on board lost their lives in a snow blizzard that overtook them. There was a similar happening in 1912, when over a hundred of a crew failed to reach their steamer, and nearly all perished. The same year a ship returning with a load of seals went down with all hands, having met boisterous weather after leaving the icefields.

When the seals, or, as they are termed, the "pelts," consisting of the skin and about three inches of solid white fat adhering thereto-the carcase having been removed - are brought into port, they are placed on the skinning table, and the fat removed from the skin. The latter is then cured, tanned and manufactured into a beautiful leather extensively used in the making of travelling bags, purses, bicycle saddles, cigar cases, harness and bookbinding. The fat is manufactured into oil and used for lubricating purposes. The greater number of seals ever known to have been killed in any one year was six hundred thousand, whilst the average for the last hundred years would be about three hundred thousand. The men are "found" while at the fishery by the owner of the ship, and are partners in the re-I sults of the voyage, receiving onethird as their share, or every third seal. Two Celebrated Sieges.

On March 20, 1873, William Brydon C.B., late Surgeon-Major, Bengal Army and Highland Rifle Militia, died at Westfield. His name was a remarkable one in Indian history as that of the one solitary individual of thirteen thousand soldiers and camp followers of the ill-fated British army in the memorable retreat from Cabul, in January, 1842, who was neither killed or taken prisoner by the Afghans. Dr. Brydon, after many hair-breadth escapes, reached Jalalabad alone, though wounded and exhausted, all the other persons comprising the British force being either killed or taken prisoners. ccentric individual. While training was his liking for strange petslions, bears, and huge boarhounds. He would pit his strength against these animals in wrestling bouts during his training stunts.

Pedlar Palmer always wore the ame pair of knickers. They were atched and mended time after time, but the boxer would never wear any others. Finally, Palmer left England for the United States to meet Terry McGovern. Some days after landing he discovered that his knickers had been left behind. Frantically he informed his manager that he must go back for them, and that individual had a hard job to prevent the heart-broken Tom from catching the next boat home.

A cablegram was sent to Palmer's wife asking her to forward the missing knickers at once. They were sent but got lost in transit, and Pedlar Palmer entered the ring against the redoubtable McGovern clad in a pair of new tights. He was knocked out in the first round. Tom tearfully informed his friends after the contest that his defeat was due to the loss of his favourite knickers.

Johnny Summers had a curious habit when boxing. He would repeatedly rub his right glove across his face as though brushing his hairback from his forehead. Most people supposed that that was what he was doing, and many were the remarks passed advising him to "get his hair cut." Johnny is a staunch Roman Catholic, and what he was doing was crossing himself. At the beginning of a round he would drop on one knee and cross himself quickly before facing his oponent.

Knockout Brown, the famous Americaan light-weight, was very superstitious. Whenever he was fighting there was always in his company a little hunchbacked fellow. He accompanied Brown to all his fights. He would stand just outside the ropes until the bell rang, when the hunchback would turn his back to the ring and Brown would rub the cripple's hump. At the beginning of every round this performance would be ropeated, and Brown would face his rival with a confidence born of his faith in the efficiency of his mascot's luck-bringing propensity.
