Constipation

Demands prompt treatment. The results of neglect may be serious. Avoid all harsh and drastic purgatives, the tendency of which is to weaken the bowels. The best remedy is Ayer's Pills. Being purely vegetable, their action is prompt and their effect always beneficial. They are an admirable Liver and After-dinner pill, and everywhere endorsed by the profession.

"Ayer's Pills are highly and universally spoken of by the people about here. I make daily use of them in my practice."—Dr. J. E. Fowler, Leithville, Pa.

"For several years Ayer's Pills have been used in my family. We find them an Effective Remedy

for constipation and indigestion, and are never without them in the house."—Moses Granter, Lowell, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Pills for liver troubles and indigestion, during many years, and have always found them prompt and efficient in their action."—J. T. Hens, Leithville, Pa.

MAKE SOMEBODY GLAD.

On life's rugged road;

For more of sunshine

Would brighten the way.

If, forgetful of self

And our troubles, we had

The will, and would try

To make other hearts glad.

Though of the world's wealth

We have little in store,

And labor to keep

Grim war from the door,

With a hand that is kind

And a heart that is true,

To make others glad

There is much we may do.

A word kindly spoken,

A smile that is true,

Of sadness and cheer,

Full often may cheer

Each day of our lives

Some treasure would add

To be conscious that we

Had made somebody glad.

Those who sit in the darkness

Of sorrow and grief,

Have need of a word

Of cheer and cheer,

There are homes that are desolate,

Hearts that are sad—

Do something for some one

Make somebody glad.

IN THE WAY.

Meety on me! how you startled me!

I declare, you are always in the way!

Miss Eliza Hannaway had gone to the window in the hall light of an autumn afternoon, merging into evening, and on looking the heavy curtain, a little figure of the deep window seat started up.

"I was reading"

"Reading! Tompkins!—no, Shakespeare! You are always fooling away your time!"

Then Alma flushed out:

"You won't let me do anything else with you. I would like to help any of you, but you won't let me."

"I guess not, indeed. We don't want anything spoiled."

Alma, taking up her book, went meekly to her own room.

There were four Misses Hannaway—

Eliza, Matilda, Agnes and Alma—the oldest three looked upon Alma as an intruder, a wail, a burden upon them

most unwarrantably.

Their mother was a Haynes, who had doubled their father's income when she married him. They are all handsome women, and notable housewives. Little Alma's mother was nobody—a girl who stood in a store. After the first Mr.

Hannaway died there was never any deficiency in the household; the widow's wardrobe was kept in splendid order, and all household things were of the best quality.

But, like their mother, they were smart, active, bustling, but without any of the softness that vents itself in caresses and tender words. They loved their father in their own hard fashion, but house, and a favorite form of torture was to treat her with her mother's poverty, and remind her that she had no right to money that came from the Haynes estate.

Yet, although they gave her but little peace in her life, the sisters met in most indignant council one morning over a little note:

"I am going away where no one will tell me every day that I am 'in the way.'"

Mr. Carter will send me my quarterly payments and see to my business. I will never trouble you again."

"ALMA!"

Mr. Carter, Alma's guardian, would give no heed to her as she ran about,

but introduced the family lawyer, and had a settlement made of Mr. Hannaway's estate, that gave Alma certain rights in a neighboring city, and other property, amounting to one-fourth of the property left the sisters. The lawyer was enquired, and its contents, with those of Alma's room, stored away.

It was useless to rage; the terms of the will were plain, and Alma disappeared from her home, while her guardian took strict care of her interests.

"Bless me! What can the stage be stopping here for?" cried old Mrs. Han-ter, taking off her glasses, and staring at the unwonted alighting at the gate.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mrs. Maybrick, convicted and sentenced to death for the alleged poisoning of her husband, has had the sentence commuted to penal servitude for life. Monday, the 20th inst., was the day fixed for Mrs. Maybrick's execution.

Statements have been going the rounds of the press as to the unhealthiness of St. Andrews, and quoting as proof of the statement that a number of persons at the recent camp there had since their return to their homes been prostrated with typhoid fever, some cases having proved fatal. The cause of their illness is stated to be the use of swamp water, that there does not appear to have been any necessity, as there is on the camp ground a pure clear running spring, abundant in quantity, so that there was no necessity for using bog water. The statement has also been made that the men suffered from having to sleep on the camp ground, straw having been served out to the men. No such statements are related to injure the reputation of St. Andrews as a summer health resort, and the St. Andrews Beacon publishes the following statement in regard to this matter, which appears to remove the blame as to the sanitary condition of the water provided, and places the responsibility on the men themselves for preferring to use water from a swamp when good spring water was close at hand. The Beacon says:

Respecting certain rumors which have been current as to sanitary matters at the Camp at St. Andrews, one who was present, and as some specific statements which the public will read with interest. These statements, however, reports already published.

1. St. Andrews Camp was situated on one of the most picturesque and beautiful camping grounds in Canada—St. Andrews becoming of late more and more popular as a desired summer health resort. During the whole time (13 days) in camp there was not a tick complaint, and but few men in hospital.

2. Men were at liberty to procure for themselves spruce boughs for their tents from the plentiful supply in the neighborhood of the camp, and spruce boughs were freely used in most camps, the St. Andrews land company, who own the camp grounds, only requiring that no ornamental trees should be cut down.

3. The usual supply of straw for men was issued to any procuring it—the issue being always optional, and, as a rule, where spruce boughs are plenty as in this camp, straw for men is considered neither so useful nor desirable.

4. The water in the camp well was, in the opinion of all medical and other officers in camp, both abundant in quantity and excellent in quality, from a pure, clear, running spring, over which well a sentry was placed to prevent the water being by any means rendered impure. This well was within easy reach of all camps.

Four murderers were hanged at New York on Friday last, Pakenham and Molas at 6.55 on the Franklin street side of the Tombs, and Lewis and Carol on the Leonard street side at 7.03. They were all murderers of women.

A contemporary states that a curious fact in connection with the Jesuit's estates business has been brought to light by Dr. Cameron, M. P. P., for Huntingdon. After the estates were taken possession of by the government in 1860, Sir James Craig, then governor, granted a portion of the property to St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Quebec, on a lease which was renewed in 1873, or 1874, Lord Dalhousie, then governor granted additional ground to enlarge it, and also £3000 sterling from the revenue of the Jesuit's estates to help in building the church. Between 1860 and 1871, £7,093 were granted to the Episcopal minister. If the estates were held in trust by the government for educational purposes, the administrators of affairs in the early part of the century were evidently not aware of the fact.

New Residence.
Mr. J. W. Davidson a few days ago moved into his new residence, built during the past year on the corner of the Main and the Road leading to the Station, and opposite St. Mary's R. C. Church. The house is a roomy and comfortable one, with pavilion roof. The main building is 25x30, 1. 12x25, two stories. The lower story of the main house has ceilings of 10 feet, the upper story 9½ feet. The entrance to the hall is from the veranda which faces the river, and from which a fine view is obtained both up and down river. The cellar extends under the whole of the main house, where the furnace is placed for heating purposes. Mr. George Brown was the contractor.

Lobster Hatching Experiments.

The Newfoundland correspondent of the Montreal Gazette gives some interesting particulars of experiments in lobster hatching in that island. Mr. Nielsen, the new superintendent of fisheries, has succeeded in hatching lobster eggs taken from captured female lobsters and if the success already achieved can be continued there are strong hopes that the decline of this important fishery from over-fishing may be arrested and a new era arise in this important industry in which so large an amount of capital is invested. The experiment will be watched with intense interest in the Maritime Provinces, as any method calculated to restore the lobster business to its former profitable condition is of paramount importance to those whose means are invested in an industry which has been getting worse and worse for years. We copy the article so far as it refers to lobster hatching:

St. John's Nfld., August 15.—Mr. Nielsen, our new superintendent of fisheries, is doing good work in hatching lobsters in the hatchery erected on Dildo Island, Trinity Bay. He only commenced about four or five weeks ago, and has already over a million and a half over under treatment. He has been remarkably successful. The eggs hatch in ten or twelve days. The young fry are remarkably vigorous and lively, drifting about in all directions and exhibiting strong combative tendencies. After being fed for five or six days on food prepared from cod livers, of which they seem very fond, they are set free in the waters of the bay to fight the battle of life as best they can. The sight of the young lobsters in the hatchery boxes, darting about with marvelous rapidity, engaging in miniature combats, and seemingly enjoying life generally, is very interesting. If it will be they have no compunction in eating another, but if their hunger is appeased regularly, they abstain from cannibal practices.

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Frederick Carter, Chief Justice, the Hon. A. W. Hays, chairman of the Fisheries commission, the Hon. A. F. Goodridge and others, have visited the hatchery, and were all greatly interested and impressed with the success of the experiment, and the value it is likely to prove in connection with our lobster fisheries. Numbers of the fishermen have been to see the young lobsters, and the sight has quite revolutionized their ideas about the matter. Like most people, the fishermen here are strongly opposed to all innovations in connection with the fisheries. They are strongly impressed with the belief that they know all about fish and fisheries; that "fishermen" can't teach them anything; and that these new-fangled notions are all nonsense. When they heard about Mr. Nielsen hatching codfish and lobsters, and saw a hatchery going up, they were a little incredulous, and "laughed him to scorn." Many of them were extremely shocked at the implicity of the proceeding, as a daring interference with the arrangements of the Almighty, and expected some dreadful judgments to descend on the head of the promoter of such an unholiness scheme. They had said that Mr. Nielsen was a daring innovator. Since the success of lobster hatching, however, and now that they are myriads of young lobsters in the hatchery, and liberated in the waters, to increase the stock, their eyes are opened, and they are disposed to regard the matter in a somewhat different light; and they think, if he can do so much with cod fish, the good old times of plenty will come back. Such is the usual history of all new ideas and new enterprises. They are first denounced and cursed as impious, by all but a few thinkers; then they win their way, and the masses, slowly realize their benefits, and they then find and then worship them.

The story of human progress has many sad and discouraging features. Genes has still to go through the world with weary steps and bleeding breast, content to give its life for an ungrateful race.

ECONOMIC IMPORTANCE OF LOBSTER HATCHING.

The artificial propagation of lobsters is of immense economic importance, not only for this country, but for the Dominion and the United States, and, of course, for European countries as well. It is now tried, for the first time on a large scale by Mr. Nielsen in his Dildo hatchery, and its success is demonstrated. He will place several millions in the waters before the spawning season is over. It is well known that in spite of protecting laws the lobster fishery is everywhere declining. That of the Dominion was $300,000 in value in 1888 and in 1887. In every locality where it is carried on the story is the same. The lobster fishery is diminishing to a small size and then disappears. It is but a question of time, and each locality in turn is "cleared out." The lobster fishery of the United States has dwindled to very small limits. That of the Dominion is going through a similar experience. All the inspectors are complaining this year after in their reports. Close seasons and regulative laws seem to have but small effect. Here is a method, however, by which the decline may be arrested, and depleted waters restored to productiveness.

The lobster may also be introduced into waters where it was unknown before, and made to thrive. It is a local fish, its movements do not exceed a few miles. The young fry, artificially propagated, will not wander from the waters in which they are placed.

Mr. Nielsen's method is this. At the lobster factories a number of female fish are laid aside for him. His men, under special instructions, remove carefully the eggs under the tail, which are attached, in thousands, to the long hairs with which the swimmerets are fringed. These eggs are already fertilized, having been in contact with the male element. He places these eggs in his hatching boxes, where he has provided a constant flow of dense, pure seawater, kept constantly in motion. In ten or twelve days they are hatched; in six more days they are strong enough to be set free in the waters. Under favorable conditions 70 to 90 per cent of the eggs can be successfully hatched. It is to be observed that these eggs are taken from captured lobsters and would all perish but for this saving, reproductive process.

Unconscious Memo.
We have laughed at a good many funny things in our time—productions of men like Artemus Ward, Mark Twain, and other humorists, but for the extreme of all that can be regarded as comical, comment to us the article in the Advocate of last week on "The R. E. Church and its Ministry." D. G. Smith has cut a good many comical capers in his time, and when he styles himself "a gentleman" and declares he is trying to live like "a Christian" we smile loudly. But when the play-actor assumes the theological chair and lectures the clergy on what is expected of them in their sacred calling it really is, as the girls say, "just too funny for any thing."

"The force of nature can no further go." We seriously call on Bob Burdett to resign. As a serio comic paper the "Barlington Hawkeye" stands nowhere beside the Advocate. In the Republic Smith could make his fortune—only let him keep serious himself and the Americans would split their sides.

"This gentleman," we must explain, we mean the editor of the Advance, has taken in hand just now the Rev. Messrs. Hubby of Sussex and Outberr of Chatham, and of the latter gentleman he complains that "his rudeness towards the editor of the Advance indicates that he is either stupid as well as ill-mannered, or harbors a feeling of unchristianity, like all the rest of the gentlemen who are altogether unaccountable." For "gentleman" it was too bad that Mr. C. should shame you into correcting a false report. He used, Smith says, "not the language of a gentleman or Christian, much less of a clergyman." Then he commends him to "pray for the charity that thinketh no evil and against its sin of presumption." Well, Smith, if he receives no such aid, let us pray for the charity that thinketh no evil and against its sin of presumption. Well, Smith, if he receives no such aid, let us pray for the charity that thinketh no evil and against its sin of presumption.

Now the fun of the whole business is that Smith is in earnest. He really thinks that the public regard him in the light in which he regards himself. But it is in the role of tutor—Theological Editor and Professor of good manners—that "this gentleman" excels. So he says of Mr. C. concerning the law he vilifies and with which Smith assailed him a year ago, "we thought that the lesson which he then received at our hands would not only have the effect of restraining his disposition to be impertinent, but cause him to learn what he deservedly deficient in—viz., caution and elementary ideas of good manners."

"Elementary" sure enough! Well "Prof." Smith we have sometimes felt a little annoyed, we confess, at your unlimited cheek, but we freely forgive all the past. Your humor is unequalled in the Dominion, and may be so in your role of tutor, but as a "fool and don't know it," you are all right, a howling success. But Smith's humor does not end even here. In order to knock down the rev. gentleman he assails, he quotes from the St. John's "Progress" about the latest article that "Mr. C. is a woman." Smith calls her, for the "M.C." a woman, and how reliable her lubrications effusions are, may be gathered from the following which we clip from a paper published in the town in which "Mr. C. lives."

The special correspondent of Progress, writes that "Mr. C. is a woman" and how reliable her lubrications effusions are, may be gathered from the following which we clip from a paper published in the town in which "Mr. C. lives."

Now when approval a correspondent quote the above, and especially after condemning the Advocate a few months ago for a little bit of harmless (as contended from the Progress) it adds considerably to its humor when it in the same article lectures the ministers.

Enforcing the Scott Act.
Mr. W. S. Brown has been engaged by the Executive Committee of the Northumberland County Prohibition Alliance as private Inspector to enforce the Scott Act. Persons in the various parishes of the county wishing the Act enforced and having the necessary evidence are requested to communicate with Mr. Brown.

Some time ago judgment for a fine of $50 and costs was recorded against Mrs. Lane, of Chatham, and the fine was last week collected from her.

Charles Bell, who has spent twenty days in jail towards serving out his term of sixty days, has been released, and having given security for the balance of fine, $42.00, just upaid.

A complaint was made against Mrs. Smith, of Newcastle, for violation of the Scott Act, and on the day of trial, Friday last, she appeared, pleaded guilty, and a fine of $50 and costs was recorded against her.

Several other cases are in course of preparation.

For Sale or To Let.
The house recently occupied by Mr. J. W. Davidson, now vacant, is offered for sale or to rent. For particulars apply to J. D. Phinney, Richibucto, or to J. H. Phinney, Newcastle.

Restigouche Notes.

DALHOUSIE.

Miss Minnie, youngest daughter of the late Hon. W. Caldwell, died at the residence of Mr. Simon McGregor, her uncle, after an illness protracted over several years. Miss Caldwell was intelligent, amiable, naturally of a cheerful disposition, her piety unassuming, and always saw a silver lining in the darkest cloud. Her sufferings during her illness were exceedingly fine for such operations. The crops are above the average, and will soon be all secured if dry weather continues.

Many farmers in Restigouche are busy harvesting their grain. The weather is exceedingly fine for such operations. The crops are above the average, and will soon be all secured if dry weather continues.

There was slight frost on Sunday and Monday mornings, but not enough to cause any material damage to the crops.

The following lines were written by John McDonald, Esq., of Montreal, and is the desire of many people of River Charles to see them in the ADVOCATE.

CHARLO BY THE SEA.

The memories of Charlo
Are ever dear to me,
The memories of Charlo,
Of Charlo by the sea.

Its verdant hills and flowing streams,
Its breezy, balmy air,
Its varied, beautiful atmosphere,
Are ever fresh and fair.

In the happy summer resting time,
How sweet among its trees,
To rove at will and taste the bliss
Forecasted in our dreams.

When in the city's hurried throng,
Our minds harassed with care,
Have on a peak at midnight hour,
While dreaming we are there.

By the peaceful soothing Charlo,
That gently winds above us,
With its soft scented breeze,
And in our hearts repose.

And the hope that in the coming time
We there again may be,
By the ever-benighted Charlo,
That flows into the sea.

Among New Brunswick's fairest scenes,
The gentle winding Charlo,
Runs sweetly to the sea.

And that the kindly heaven folk,
Whom daily there we see;
Who make the stranger welcome,
At Charlo by the sea;

May never lack a friend to tell
Their gracious ministry,
While life goes round with those that dwell
At Charlo by the sea;

Shall ever be a prayerful prayer,
Where'er our way we be,
And even in heaven we shall think,
Of Charlo by the sea.

Another correspondent writes as follows:

DALHOUSIE, N. B., 26 Aug. 1889.

On Friday of last week a very enjoyable excursion took place from Dalhousie to Carleton, P. Q., by the steamer "Admiral," which was engaged for the occasion by J. M. Moffat, Esq., M. P., and Capt. Geo. H. Beatty, of Toronto. Some 400 invitations were issued. The party included guests from "Inch Arran," amongst whom were several prominent persons from various sections of the Dominion. Unfortunately the present arrangement of trains did not render it convenient for the Campbellton guests to attend. The steamer left Dalhousie at 2 p. m., and remained in harbor for an hour or more in Carleton, and returned at 6 p. m. The whole trip was of great enjoyment, and the public spirited gentlemen who gave the opportunity for this splendid outing were unanimously voted jolly good fellows.

The Yacht Race.
The absence of Fishermen from Thursday's race deprived it of interest, as Kilbride was known to be a sure winner in the moderate south-west wind that prevailed. She started with a reef in her mainsail, but soon shook it out and gained steadily to the turn. Kitchock made a good fight and gained half a minute on the run home. Blondy, with a jib considerably too small for her, her own having been stolen by a sneak thief, followed the leaders pretty closely, considering the difference in size. Fedora was nowhere in the light wind, being dead between the puff, and was together in the rear than usual. When Kilbride was leaving the wharf, after the race was over, she came in collision with her owner's steamer Derby and broke her mainboom. The next race for the Miller cup will be sailed Thursday, Sept. 12th, when it is expected, Fishermen will be on hand to compete for the cup, and she has scored one for it, Kitchock and Kilbride two. The starters and timekeepers were Messrs. John Sadler and L. J. Tweedie. The following is the record.

CORRECT TIME.
Kilbride, 2 11 20
Kitchock, 2 16 48
Blondy, 2 21 21
Fedora, 2 35 42
Solomone, Did not finish.

The distance was ten miles, and the wind light and puffy. The race was started from Chatham where the tide was still ebbing, and it was flood tide at the finish, the boats having some side against them most of the time. The time of the leader was, therefore, remarkably fast, ten miles to windward and back in three. 11 min. 20 sec.—World.

Found.
The body of Arthur Norman was found on Friday morning floating under the railway wharf. The remains were buried in St. James' Churchyard the same afternoon, a large number of persons being present, thus evincing their sympathy with the parents in their sudden bereavement.

A Birthday Address.
Among the passengers by the Furthest steamer Ulmida, which arrived at this port from London last Friday, was Mr. James Yeomans, of the Merchants' Bank of Halifax at Newcastle, N. B. Mr. Yeomans is an enthusiastic amateur photographer, and on his recent visit to his native land was, as naturally expected, accompanied by his camera. It followed that many scenes and groups on the steamer going and returning became the objects of his art, and were thus preserved on glass for posterity. On the homeward voyage his fellow passengers presented him with the following birthday address in connection with a "special" suitable to the occasion:

OUR DEAR MR. S. S. ULMIDA,
20th August, 1889.
To Mr. James Yeomans, photographer, tourist, banker, &c., &c.

Most illustrious sir! It has come to the notice of the undersigned, your fellow passengers and admirers on board this good ship, that on this day, the beginning or middle of the present century, in some unknown town, of some county, you first saw the light. We know no more of your early life than this, but we are sure that you have preserved and pictured on your memory the light of this world as you have done. You have preserved and pictured on your memory the light of this world as you have done. You have preserved and pictured on your memory the light of this world as you have done.

Our best wishes for your health and happiness, and for the success of your photographic career, are ever yours, your fellow passengers and admirers on board this good ship, the Furthest.

Extension of Premises.
Some time ago Messrs. Sutherland & Creighton had the offices alongside of their store fitted up as warehouses for carpets and oilcloths, and still they were too much crowded. There was a building erected to enlarge the premises, but owing to the high cost of building, it was not started. The building was erected to enlarge the premises, but owing to the high cost of building, it was not started.

Amid Stages.
An Albert correspondent writing to the Moncton Times says that Rev. I. N. Parker's horse "Chaille" was kicked in his pasture some days ago and so badly injured that it was necessary to shoot him. Chaille was 36 years old, and had been in Mr. Parker's possession for 19 years. He was well known all over the circuits between Moncton and Fredericton, where the reverend gentleman has labored during these years, and the people feel as though they had lost an old friend. Chaille has not done any active work for some years, but was kept and slowly cared for for his faithful services in the past. He was purchased from Mr. George Smith of Peter'sville, Queens county, in 1870.

Sitting on the Safety Valve.
Many are they who have laughed at the story of the green steamboat fireman who sat on the safety valve to prevent it "leaking." Yet thousands are repeating his folly every day. They are troubled with blotches, pimples, eruptions, salt-rheum, boils, carbuncles, ulcers and old sores, and are contenting themselves with a suppressant, and without removing the cause. They sit on the safety valves by which Nature is driving out blood impurities, instead of using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which cures by removing the cause which is in the blood. It is a wonderful blood purifier and invigorating tonic.

Do you think the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy would offer as they have done for so many years, a reward of $500 for a case of Catarrh which they cannot cure, if they did not positively know that the Remedy will absolutely and permanently cure Catarrh. Sold by druggists, at 50 cents.

Victor Hugo.
This fine Paderborn stallion, formerly owned by the Northern Agricultural Society, and by it sold to a gentleman in P. E. Island, has been brought back to this country, having been purchased by Messrs. James Falconer and John McKee, of Newcastle. The Agricultural Society here never own a finer horse, and much regret was expressed when he was sold. He looks well, but his weight is 1540 pounds, although he has turned the scales at 1700 pounds. The enterprise of the purchasers should be commended and the county congratulated that "Victor Hugo" has been brought back.

Wedding Bells.
Mr. Jasper Daly, formerly of Campbellton, and Miss Della Price, sister of J. E. Price, Superintendent of the I. C. R., were married at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. McClelland, 13th August. There were over 150 guests present, and the presents were numerous and costly, showing in a slight degree the popularity of the happy pair—Restigouche Pioneer.

Confirmation.
On Sunday, 18th inst., Bishop Kingston confirmed at St. James church, Ladlow, thirty males and twelve females, and to the crying of the same day he confirmed the males and eight females, making forty-two in all. Six adults were baptized at the same time. With-in two years one hundred and twenty-three have been confirmed in his mission—Farmer.

Free Passage to Ottawa.
In compliance with the request of the Cabinet ministers from the Maritime provinces, the Department of Railways will grant free transport over the Intercolonial to fishermen going to Ottawa to attend the Dominion golf meeting.

A Valuable Quarry.
A mountain of fine pink marble has been discovered in Hants county, N. S., which is pronounced to be of the best quality. Some hundreds of tons have already been quarried and shipped to New York for interior decoration.

Among the many remedies for Worms, McLean's Vegetable Worm Syrup takes the lead; it is the original and only genuine. Pleasant to take and sure in effect. Purely vegetable.

Funeral.
The remains of Mrs. Hugh M. Bishop, who died at Chelsea, Mass., on the 18th August, were interred in St. James' Churchyard on Wednesday afternoon last, being followed to the grave by a large number of relatives and friends.

Burying.
The public office at Campbellton, was broken into last Thursday night or early Friday morning. It was found that the bags from the Quebec side as well as those from down the coast made up for the Quebec clerks had been carried into the back yard and their contents examined. Six registered letters were stolen, but it is understood that only two or three contained any considerable amount.

A distressing cough or cold not only deprives one of rest and sleep, but, if allowed to continue, is liable to develop more serious trouble in the way of Consumption or Laryngitis, or perhaps Croup. Use Baird's Balsam of Horehound.

Harvesting.
Grain is now being housed, advantage being taken of the fine weather of the past few days. Generally the straw is short but the yield is reported as good, both in quality and quantity.

Potatoes are turning out very good and turnips look well.

Pear's Cure for Consumption and Remedy for Catarrh are sold by E. Lee Street, Newcastle.

Removal.
Mr. E. B. Dufford has removed his Patent Feather Bed Renovator from Mr. Nevill's Tannery to McKee's warehouse. Mr. Charles Call will attend to all orders for work done by this splendid process. Send in your orders early.

Entertainment.
There is to be an entertainment in the School house at Kirk's, Burnaby river, on Thursday evening, Sept. 5th, for the purpose of aiding to clear off the debt of the district. Tickets for tea and dancing 40 cents. Amusements will be provided. Commence at 4, tea at six.
