CENTREVILLE AND HARTLAND TIED

In a Roaring Game on Tuesday Evening—Score 9 to 9

The most exciting, if not the most scientific game of ball this season was that on Tuesday evening when the Centreville team came up against the Hartland All-Stars. The visitors went to bat first and were promptly put out with no score, when in the half of the inning the Hartland boys wielded the stick they bagged seven runs. This looked like a dull game, but Centreville steadily gained after the second inning although at the sixth the score stood 8 to 4 in favor of Hartland. As one by one Centreville brought its men home in their last inning excitement ran high and the air was rent with the crazy yells of the spectators. Centreville's aggression was sustained until they had scored a total of 9. Hartland then took the field and making another run tied their opponents, while darkness fell and prevented a play-off.

Twice during the game arguments over technicalities nearly amounted to blood-letting, a little boy spectator was bowled out by a foul ball, a catcher got one in the eye and was put out of the game, and a fielder was laid low in the offing. All these casualties with the close finish furnished a full quarter's worth of excitement.

Dugan and Boyer pitched the Hartland game, while Roscoe and Burt tossed the sphere for the Centreville team. Several motor car loads of Centreville people came along with their team.

In the game at Bath on Saturday Hartland team was badly worsted, the score being 15 to 4. Local fans are anxious that Bath and Hartland come together in the near future.

The manager of the local team pointed out to The Observer last evening that every game the team plays costs not less than $30, besides other expenses of keeping up the organization. He said if every spectator paid there would be no question of meeting expenses, but as it is a large percentage of the people who enjoy the game view it from the street rather than to pay a quarter for admission. Others there are, too, who actually steal into the grounds and claim as good a seat in the grand stand as though they paid for it. The boys are providing clean sport in an honest way, and the disposition of some people to cheat them is neither clean or honest.

The management of the team desires to arrange a game here for every Monday throughout the season. Wednesdays will be reserved for practice and postponed games, while Fridays will be kept for outside games.

Hartland expects to play Mass Hill a return game two weeks from tomorrow.

The local team has played nine games this season. Of these they have won four, lost four and have one tie. All the outside games have been lost except one. The manager urges all the players to be on hand for regular practice. The Observer would suggest to all players, here and in the other towns, that the "team" idea be kept constantly in mind. Good team work wins where individual effort might not.

At the moment of going to press a game with Bath is announced for the Hartland diamond tomorrow evening at sharp 6.

The local team this morning received a challenge from a St. John team which proposes a tour to wop the town teams of Aroostook and the St. John Valley. "Come on!" is the reply of the doughty Hartland lads, and the particulars will be announced next week.

Presentation to Mrs. Trafton

The regular monthly meeting of the W.C.T.U. on Monday evening took the form of a picnic supper on the lawn of Mrs. Henry Bradley. Mrs. P. J. Trafton, wife of the retiring pastor of the Reformed Baptist church, was singled out as the one to receive the most attention during the evening. During her years of residence here she has been a valued member of the union and her sister members took occasion during this last meeting to show their esteem by making a presentation of Nippon china. Mrs. S. Hayden Shaw on behalf of the members made the presentation address, and Mrs. Trafton, taken very much by surprise, replied in a few apt words. The meeting closed with the singing of the usual hymn, "God Be With You" and with many good wishes to the departing member, who soon goes with her husband and children to make their home in Fredericton.

Home From B. C. to Farm Here

Frank R. Kinney, accompanied by his wife and young daughter, arrived here yesterday from Kamloops, B. C., and proceeded to his former home at Knowlesville. Mr. Kinney went west in 1911. During the war he enlisted with the B. C. Forestry Battalion and saw service in France. Returning last spring he visited his native county and was so impressed with its evident progress and development that he determined to bring his family from the west and settle on a farm here. Mr. Kinney says the grain fields of Alberta and Saskatchewan show a discouraging outlook for the farmers there, a prolonged drought having burned all vegetation red.

Carload of Horses Lost

O. J. Leavitt, a prominent horse dealer of Montreal, arrived at Woodstock last week and engaged stables for horses which he was about to advertise for sale. He says he has learned that the man whom he left in charge of the horses at Campbellton has disposed of the whole outfit and that he cannot get any trace of the man.

It is alleged that the horses were sold in various parts of the province. In one case, the charge is, five were traded for an automobile. One horse was sold in Carleton county, according to the information. Sheriff Foster has the case in hand.

Reception to Sergt. Nixon

A reception was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Nixon of Lower Brighton on Wednesday in honor of their son, Sergt. W. B. Nixon, who has recently returned from overseas, after having served three years in France. Sergt. Nixon enlisted with the 140th Battalion, was later transferred to the Fighting 36th and saw much active service with that unit.

The interior of the house was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flags and cut flowers, while the verandah and lawn were brightly lighted by means of Japanese lanterns. Guesting, contests games and music were indulged in, and a good laugh was enjoyed when the "booby" prizes were presented. Most delicious refreshments of salads, sandwiches, ice cream and cakes were served. There were about eighty guests present, including relatives from Fort Fairfield, St. Stephen and Woodstock. The party broke up at a late hour after have spent a most enjoyable evening.

BATH CELEBRATES PEACE DAY

Large Crowd Enjoyed a Perfect Day—Memorial to Soldiers

The citizens of the Parishes of Kent and Wicklow will long remember with pleasure, the 19th day of July, 1919. This day will be one of the historical days in the annals of the upper end of Carleton county. Considering that everything had to be arranged in one short week, we can look back with pride on the fine display of loyal co-operation of all our people, which made this event a complete success. From the management down to the humblest worker, all did their bit toward the one end. The result was that with ideal weather, a very enjoyable day was spent. The very best of music was provided by the Knowles Orchestra. All the speakers concentrated on a note of welcome to our returned soldiers who were the guests of honor for the day. Those who rest in foreign soil and therefore did not return in the flesh, were not forgotten. Cars were provided for their relatives in the parade, which was one of the features of the program. Men in khaki led the procession which was accompanied by a large number of autos. Four nicely decorated floats representing Britannia, Peace, Red Cross and Allied Nations were prominent. A special prize was awarded to the Red Cross Car; chauffeur, Miss Dora Tompkins. The young ladies who represented Nurses, were, in addition to the driver, the Misses McGinn, L. Giberson, M. Brennan, M. Gee, E. Bohan and M. Parise. The drivers of the other floats were Garfield Laidlaw, Marcelle Bohan and John Cronin, who was in charge of the rising generation. The Dece of Peace was a special favorite, Dorothy, the youngest daughter of Matt Bohan. Miss Patey certainly knew how to use her little wings. Speeches were delivered by Col. Melville, Hon. B. F. Smith, A. D. McCain, Hon. Revs. Wightman, Bishop and Howlett. Rev. W. M. Donohoe did not arrive in time to join the other speakers, but the promoters had his cordial assistance during the week. In the evening there were other speeches, and finally a resolution was read to a representative audience, which by a majority vote decided to request the Finance Committee to erect as a mark of esteem to our gallant men a "Soldiers Memorial Drinking Fountain". Then the National Anthem followed by a bonfire which marked the end of a perfect day.

The ball game between Bath and Hartland teams was warmly contested and resulted in a victory over the visiting team in a score of 15 to 4.

In the evening the local ball team gave a dance in Brennan's hall, which was very largely attended. Knowles orchestra discoursed splendid music.

Harvey E. Jones

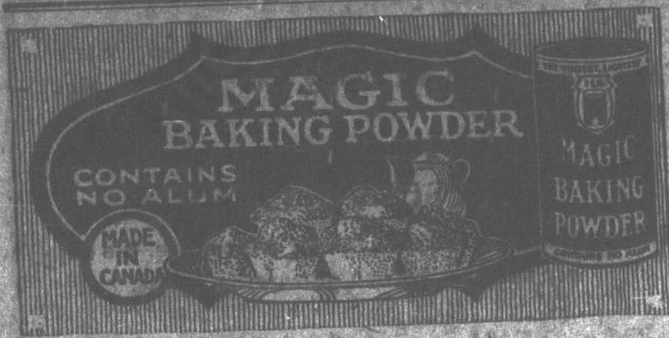

This much esteemed brother gave his heart to the Saviour a few ago and was baptised with his wife and children. Those who witnessed it said they never saw such an interesting and impressive baptism. Now he sleeps in death since Jan. 2, 1919. He was a victim of influenza. During the few days of suffering he was divinely sustained; his end was peace. He was a kind and loving husband and son and highly esteemed by the community. He leaves to mourn his wife, mother, two sisters and one brother, besides numerous other relatives and a host of friends.

On Wednesday evening, July 16, a very pretty wedding took place at Beech Glen, when Miss May, only daughter of Cyrus D. Hatheway, was united in marriage to John Hartgrove, by the Rev. A. H. Sisson. Owing to the large number of guests invited, and the limited capacity of Mr. Hatheway's unique bungalow, the wedding was held at the bride's grandfather's commodious dwelling, picturesquely situated on the side of a high mountain, known as Leasser's hill, at the head of McGuire's gulch. The house and grounds were tastefully decorated with wild flowers, ferns and foliage, a large arch was erected under the trees on the lawn. The bride, who was attired in a dainty gown of white silk, carried a handsome shower bouquet of potato blossoms. She was given in marriage by her father. As the guests marched down the lane, the orchestra played "See the conquering hero come."

After the ceremony and congratulations were over a dainty supper was served by the school friends of the bride, seated in dresses of blue and white, these being their class colors. When all had done justice to the culinary art displayed, a well arranged program, consisting of reading, music and dancing was enjoyed by all. Mr. Charles Fisher gave several beautiful vocal selections. He possesses a rich baritone voice. Mr. Silas Jenkins, who is a master in his art, accompanied him on the banjo. Mr. and Mrs. Hatheway also gave a pleasing duet. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. The groom has won much active service, being overseas 4 years

LISTLESS, PEEVISH GIRLS

When a girl in her teens becomes peevish, listless and dull, when nothing seems to interest her and dainties do not tempt her appetite, you may be certain that she needs more good blood than her system is provided with. Before long her pallid cheeks, frequent headaches, and breathlessness and heart palpitation will confirm that she is anaemic. Many mothers as the result of their own girlhood experience can promptly detect the early signs of anaemia, and the wise mother does not wait for the trouble to develop further, but at once gives her daughter a course with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which renew the blood supply and banish anaemia before it has obtained a hold upon the system.

Out of their experience thousands of mothers know that anaemia is the sure road to worse ill. They know the difference that good red blood makes in the development of womanly health. Every headache, every gasp for breath that follows the slightest exertion by the anaemic girl, every pain she suffers in her back and limbs are reproaches if you have not taken the best steps to give your weak girl new blood, and the only sure way to do so is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

New, rich red blood is infused into the system by every dose of these pills. From this new rich blood springs good health, an increased appetite, new energy, high spirits and perfect womanly development. Give your daughter Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and take them yourself and note how promptly their influence is felt in better health.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail postpaid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HARTLAND, N. B., JULY 24, 1919

PEACE IN HARTLAND

"Peace Day" in Hartland was typified by a general air of somnolence. There was nobody home. Here and there a bit of bunting waved feebly in the air but dead calm atmosphere and business was suspended. Fully ninety per cent of the population went out of town for the day—and they had a good time.

Is it to be always thus in Hartland? Every recurring holiday brings the question "Where are you going?" Never is such a day looked forward to as one when our town will be the centre of attraction—it is always away to Woodstock, over to Houlton, to Florenceville, to Bath, or to Centreville, or fishin'. It has been heralded over the face of the nation that the way-faring man cannot get a square meal or a place to lay his weary head in Hartland, and it is also said that Hartlandites are so wearied of their own town that, come a holiday, the whole population rises up at the break of dawn to get away.

Let us all, as enterprising citizens of the newest town on the map, put an end to, and reverse, the order of things. Let us bring the crowd hereward on the next holiday—Sept. 1.

No Chance for the Germs

Disease germs cannot live in rich, red blood. It is people in low vitality that fall victims to germ diseases. By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you enrich the blood, increase vitality and prevent disease germs from finding lodgment in your body. There's wisdom in prevention. It's easier to keep well than to get well.

CHRISTMAS A MYSTERY

No One Knows Origin of Great Festival.

Nobody knows how Christmas originated, its origin, who first celebrated it, or when or where or how. Nor, of course, does anyone know that Christ was really born on December 25. The whole day is shrouded in mystery; it has simply been handed down to us as an arbitrary day on which to celebrate the birth of Christ, not day of His birth, says the Ladies' Home Journal.

There are more Christmas days than we know of. December 6 is one; several countries still celebrate that date; January 6 is another; in the Far East that date is celebrated. Other small nations celebrate April 20, May 20, September 23 and March 20. It was Pope Julius who first fixed December 25, and that date the large part of the world celebrates.

In foreign countries where December 6 is celebrated, it is known as St. Nicholas Day, the real Christmas Day for the children. In the Netherlands it is universally celebrated as Christmas, December 25 being a church day. The day comes, of course, from the day on which the original Santa Claus is supposed to have passed away, December 5, 343. He was the Archbishop of Myra, in Lycia, and was always known as the friend of children. "St. Nicholas" became, in Dutch, Santa Klaas, and thence came Santa Claus.

England abolished Christmas once, in 1547, when Parliament did away with any celebration of the day. The King protested, the people stormed, but Parliament stood firm, and for twelve years there was no celebration of Christmas, and everyone who attempted to celebrate was arrested and fined. Massachusetts followed suit in 1659, and until 1681 Christmas was not recognized or permitted in the old Bay State.

The Christmas ceremony of bringing in the boar's head previous to the day's feast, which is still followed in some of the old English houses, is supposed to have been originated by a young student who was wandering in the woods on Christmas morning, studying his Aristotle, when he was attacked by a wild boar. He had no weapon, so he shoved his foot down the animal's throat and choked him. The student took his knife, cut off the boar's head and bore it back to his college as proof of his exploit. He found his companions just sitting down to their Christmas dinner, and putting the boar's head on a platter bore it into the dining hall in triumph. The oyster is the great Christmas dish in France in such families where Christmas is celebrated. It is always served as the first course, and from this custom came the American habit of oysters as a first course at regular dinners.

Aviator Plans Daring Flight

Col. Raymond Collishaw, D.S.O., D.F.C., the famous Canadian ace, is seeking new aerial honors by making a flight across the Atlantic Ocean, which he hopes to accomplish early in May. Col. Collishaw is going to England to complete arrangements for the great flight. He stated recently that he would use a Handley-Page super-biplane, one of the machines built to the order of the British Government for the purpose of bombarding Berlin, and which would have been used for bombing the German capital had not the signing of the armistice put an end to aerial hostilities. The machine is a wonderful combination of mechanism. It has a wing spread of about 180 feet and is equipped with two engines, each with its own propeller, giving an aggregate horse-power of 2,000. It has a dead weight carrying capacity of 15 tons. He will start from St. John's, Newfoundland, and land at a selected point on the west coast of Ireland. He expects to make the flight in one day.

COPENHAGEN CHEWING TOBACCO

Copenhagen is used differently from ordinary chewing tobacco. Take a small pinch, for a start, and put it between the lower lip and gum, in the centre.

Afterwards you can increase the size of the pinch to suit the strength of the chew you desire.

Copenhagen is strong, because the tobacco of which it is made is cut into fine grains, which makes it impart its strength thoroughly and quickly.

Hence, a little "pinch" goes a long way, showing that Copenhagen is not only an unusually economical chew, but also one of the finest quality, being made of the best, old, rich, high-flavored tobacco.

Sand Dunes.

One of the most interesting and remarkable of the many regions for the observation of sand dunes lies between Bordeaux and Bayonne, in Gascony. The sea here throws every year upon the beach, along a line of 100 miles in length, some 5,000,000 cubic yards of sand. The prevailing westerly winds continue picking up the surface particles from the westward slope, where they are again deposited, and the entire ridge by this means alone moves gradually inward. In the course of years there has thus been formed a complex system of dunes, all approximately parallel with coast and with one another and of all altitudes up to 250 feet. These are marching steadily inward at a rate of from three to six feet a year, whole villages having sometimes been torn down to prevent burial and rebuilt at a distance.

SAYS LEMON JUICE WILL REMOVE FRECKLES

Girls! Make this cheap beauty lotion to clear and whiten your skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quart of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! it is harmless.

Stopping the Trial.

"Gentlemen," said the sheriff, putting his head into the jury room, "if there is no chance of your agreeing immediately on a verdict, the judge will step out to lunch."

"Tell his honor he may go to lunch," said the foreman.

"I was about to add," continued the sheriff, "that the circus comes into town at two o'clock, and it's twenty minutes to two now."

"H'm!" said the foreman, "all the judge to hold on half a minute!"

In the Fight With Eczema

You Can Depend on Dr. Chase's Ointment to Bring Relief and Cure.

The obstinacy of eczema is well known. The fact that Dr. Chase's Ointment has been able to cure in even the most severe cases is the best proof of the extraordinary healing powers of this standard ointment.

Cures such as are described in these letters give you the best idea of what you may expect from this treatment.

Mrs. Frank Wadde, Midland, Ont., writes: "One of my boys had an attack of eczema, and although I tried different preparations for this trouble, as well as medicines from four doctors, we could not get satisfactory results. Finally, I tried Dr. Chase's Ointment, and from the first I found it gave good results. We used a good treatment of this ointment, and in a short time the eczema was cured. I have also used the ointment with great success for a roughness and rash on my face, which caused me a great deal of trouble. After applying Dr. Chase's Ointment I found instant relief."

I might also mention that Dr. Chase's Ointment has proved of great benefit to me. I had difficulty with a stoppage in my nose and head, but this Ointment relieved it and I have not been bothered in this way since."

Mrs. P. E. Vesie, 19 William street, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment, having used it with splendid results where all others failed. My little girl, aged 3 1/2 years, broke out in small yellow blisters, which turned into scabs. They came out in different places on her face, and although I tried a great many ointments and ointments none of them did her any good. I got a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and after a few applications, I could see the effect. Whenever I used a new ointment, I would apply the ointment, and before the box was finished she was entirely cured of those horrid sores."

If you would like to try Dr. Chase's Ointment at our expense, send a two-cent stamp to pay postage, and we shall mail you a sample box free. Full size box 50 cents, at all dealers or, Edmondson, Sales & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Father to the Man

By ARCHIE CAMERON NEW

(Copyright, 1914, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Bosh, you dear little goose!" And then, having mildly rebuked her, Carter Danbury leaned over and tried to gather the dainty little creature at his side into his arms. But she wriggled away and faced him with a determined look in her big brown eyes.

"I'm not a little goose," she retorted, pouting. "And father is right. You're a man and politics is a man's game, a man's duty. You ought to pitch in—you're a Republican!"

"On election day," he admitted, "but ordinarily a plain everyday business man. And I'm no speaker. I—I—"

"That's it," she took him up quickly. "You're afraid, Carter—please—for my sake. I've told him you're sensible, a fine man."

Danbury frowned. "But," he argued, "dearest, I can't take orders. I don't like—He hesitated, fearful lest he might offend this daughter-of-Colonel Beaten Thomas, the 'big boss.' 'I don't like being bossed. I don't like the petty artifices these politicians resort to to get votes.'"

"But it's necessary," she argued back. "There must be leaders."

Danbury smiled. When Dorothy Thomas looked like that she reflected every feature of her father's inflexible face, except his wrinkles. Danbury sought to soothe her, but to no avail. "Please, Carter," she persisted, "if you love me, try it. You—might like it."

"All right," he gave in, and again leaned over towards her, this time to shoot a delicious kiss upon her lips. "But mind now, all I'm to do is to offer my services. I'll not be to blame if they refuse them and—I hope they will."

A keen-eyed youngish old-man faced Carter Danbury the following morning across his fastidiously black and streaked his brilliant white goatee, as he listened to the other attentively. They were closeted alone in the inner sanctum of the campaign headquarters of William Westlake, the People's Choice for United States Senator. Then the "oracle" spoke.

"So my daughter persuaded you, eh?" queried the Republican leader, severely. "See here, young man, you can't take up this business as a fad. Once in love, you have to stick."

Something in the colonel's tone stung Danbury to the quick, and he leaped over the desk angrily.

"I'm not a faddist, Colonel Thomas," he retorted hotly. "I've just held aloof from politics because—well, because I wanted to keep my independence, my ideals. But I'll stick."

"Huh!" grunted the other. "I suppose you realize I'm the party's leader?"

"Yes," was Carter's smiling rejoinder. "The papers have told me that much."

"Well, they haven't told you all," shot back the colonel. "I expect they have my orders obeyed." The colonel pushed a button and another man entered the office. "Burke, this is Mr. Danbury. How are you fixed for speakers tonight at East End hall?"

"Only yourself and Westlake so far," answered the other, respectfully.

"Then put him on, too," ordered the colonel, crisply. Then as the other retired from the room, he turned again to Danbury. "Be there at eight. And mind, don't get rambunctious, young feller. Use diplomacy. There'll be a lot of foreignate there, and we want to handle them gently. G'by."

Carter Danbury was facing his first political audience, and yet he felt cooler than he had expected. He had followed the candidate, Westlake, who now sat behind him, on the stage, with Colonel Thomas, wiping his perspiring brow and smirking grandiosely at the sea of upturned faces. And yet to Carter's surprise, as he proceeded, he was frequently applauded. This added to his courage, and he now leaned over to deliver his final philippic.

"And, fellow Americans," he cried, "this is an American age. There can be no divided allegiance. We have come to the day when these shall be an American race, an American nation for Americans only. We shall preserve our high ideals, sacredly, and to those who are not with us in spirit, I say, we say 'get out.' Mr. Westlake stands for the principle 'pass prosperity around,' but we don't propose to pass it around the world. And we don't propose, therefore, to allow these men upon our shores who will accumulate a fortune here by the grace of our institutions, and then spend it abroad. To those who visit our shores with that end in view, there can be but one greeting. Keep out."

Danbury felt several tugs at his coat from behind, and, wheeling about, took the assembled politicians by surprise.

"You needn't pull my coat," he thundered, then waved his hand towards the vast audience. "My remarks are intended for Americans, and I know there is not an American out there who doesn't echo their thought. And if there is one who is not American, present, I say to him 'get out.' Gentlemen, I pledge our candidate to full support of true Americanism in congress."

Danbury turned to resume his seat and was struck with the angry look of the crowd on the stage. What had he said? What had he done? Then, later, as he left the hall, his chest faring to Colonel Thomas was answered by a steady stream of abuse.

The next morning he was still at sea when Dorothy informed him that her father had refused him admission to the house.

He hurried to campaign headquarters and was told Colonel Thomas couldn't see him—the committee was in session. "Where was he assigned to speak that night?" he inquired, and was surprised to learn he was on the blacklist. "Why?" he demanded. The clerk couldn't tell him. Then Danbury hastily forced his way into the committee room, and with blazing eyes confronted Colonel Thomas.

"Colonel Thomas," he began, "what is the trouble about here? What have I done?"

"What have you done?" echoed Westlake at the other end of the room. "Too blame much. You've ruined me. After that fool speech of yours I'll be lucky to get ten votes in the Fourth district. We're spending a thousand dollars today to deny your statements."

"Do deny your Americanism!" demanded Carter, and he now turned wrathfully towards the candidate. "Why not call a spade a spade? See here, you call yourself statesmen. I call you traitors. You're afraid to acknowledge the country who gave you birth, who gives you a living, & back it up to the full, just because it might cost you votes. You're yellow—yellow—lower than those poor people whose votes you're after. They're Americans—every one of them. And they're glad of it. They, or their forebears, came to this country to seek liberty, to seek the right to live and enjoy our freedom. And now they're denied it—they, who have been here months—while you, who have enjoyed these rights all your lives, and your people before you, haven't courage enough to protect the country that protects you. Who's the worse—they with their hopes, their ideals, or you who turn your backs upon the hopes and are left to your fathers fought for and left to your seedlings. Whose your Americanism? The Americanism of courage, of decency, of truth? And now, Colonel Thomas, you didn't want me to enter this campaign—afraid I wouldn't stick. But I'm just beginning to see my duty. I want to stick—I demand the right to stick. And I call upon the members of this committee to sustain me with their votes. Do I get them—or not?"

At the end of the table a tall, white-haired old man, who stroked his brilliant white goatee, rose and rapped for order. Then he bent his full gaze on Danbury.

"You do," he answered, sharply, and then the corners of his mouth quivered. "Gentlemen of the committee, the man again is father to the man. I was the one who pulled his coat last night, and I rise with shame to acknowledge it. Either we're Americans, or we're God only knows what—and I prefer the former. He turned to Danbury. 'Years back, son, my grandfather's battle was his sword. Keep this, my son,' says he, 'and serve me it except foah two purposes, either it'll kill some beastly enemy, or it'll kill yourself foah not doin' it. An' if I had that sword now, son, I'd feel mighty tempted to use it on myself. But I'll do the next best thing. He turned again to the committee. 'Gentlemen, I move the committee extend a vote of invitation to our friend, Mr. Danbury, Mr. Carter Danbury—American, I speak at the big meeting at the Academy tonight. What's your pleasure?'

As the members of the committee rose to their feet, en masse, the colonel turned his back on them and motioned to Danbury to come to him.

"You've seen the vote, Carter," he whispered, laying his hands affectionately on the young man's shoulder. "And you know what it means. But, and his voice sank lower still, come up to the house at dinner before you go. Dorothy—might like to have you."

Democracy.

"It's great to live under a democratic form of government."

"No doubt about that."

"A man's conscience, he can say what he wants done with the railroad."

"True, and then he can sit back and wonder who's going to do it."

Tired Nervous Mothers

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I am the mother of four children, and for nearly three years I suffered from a female trouble with pains in my back and side, and a general weakness. I had professional attendance most of that time but did not seem to get well. As a last resort I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I had seen advertised in the newspapers, and in two weeks noticed a marked improvement. I continued its use and am now free from pain and able to do all my housework."—Mrs. B. B. ZIMMERMAN, 302 Wells Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Portland, Ind.—"I had a displacement and suffered so badly from it at times I could not be on my feet at all. I was all run down and so weak I could not do my housework, was nervous and could not lie down at night. I took treatments from a physician but they did not help me. My Aunt recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I tried it and now I am strong and well again and do my own work and I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound the credit."—Mrs. JOSEPHINE KRAMER, 103 West Race Street, Portland, Ind.

Pretty Wedding at Riley Brook

Perhaps one of the prettiest weddings ever held in this part of Victoria Co. took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Gaunce, when, over one hundred guests assembled to witness the marriage of their youngest daughter, Miss Alice Kathleen to W. Victor Miller, of Nictau.

The marriage ceremony was performed at 8.30 o'clock. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. C. A. Young of Lower Mill Stream, assisted by W. Edward Aitken, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Riley Brook. The wedding march was played by Mrs. A. Worwick, a cousin of the bride, assisted by her husband (violinist).

John Miller, brother of the groom, acted as best man, while Miss Edna Gaunce, R. N., sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

The bride and groom are held in high esteem by the many costly and valuable gifts testifying to their popularity. The groom is a returned soldier, having seen over three years in action.

After the marriage, refreshments were served on the spacious lawn, where the marriage vows were made.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller will reside at Nictau where the groom is a prosperous farmer. Both have a host of friends, who wish them a long and happy married life.
