Evening.

A fair audience was in attendance at the recital in the Curling Rink given by Miss Sadie Beatrice Miller on Monday evening. Miss Miller was assisted by local talent and every number on the programme was well received. Miss Miller's humorous readings were warmly applauded and her rendition of "Good-bye Sweet Day" accompanied by violin and piano, was very fine.

The violin solos of the Misses Redden were much appreciated, as was also the solo by Mr. Wm. Mc-Kenzie, and the singing by the male quartette, each number being enthusiastically encored.

The concluding piece of the entertainment was a bright little

FOR INCORPORATION

Vote of Dalhousie Ratepayers Stood 92 For, 6 Against.

On Tuesday the ratepayers of Dalhousie voted on the question of incorporation under the Town's Incorporation Act. Only about half the town vote was polled but the result shows that the citizens of the Shiretown are almost unanimous on the question, the vote was: 92 for incorporation and 6

Warm Meeting of Town Council Held Tuesday Night on Reservoir Matter

The Council at Deadlock—A Popular Vote to be Taken on Question of Arbitration or Settlement at $3,250.

At the meeting of the Council
Tuesday evening the following were present:—
His worship Mayor Murray and Coun. Blackhall, Laughlan, Vautour, Joudry, Blair, Taylor and Miller.

His Worship read communication asking that as the estate of the late Jas. Kelso is to be closed shortly and as the town council had abandoned the idea of taking over the strip of land from Water Street to the I. C. Railway and also as the said strip of land would be of no value to the town of Campbellton, that the said town relinquish all claim to the piece of land.

Coun. Laughlan—I do not think the town refused to take over the strip of land referred to.

Coun. Joudry—I do not think it proper to put this matter before the council in this way. We want time to consider it; I do not know how to act on it.

Coun. Blair—I do not think that this matter should be brought before this council in this form of a memorial to the council.

Referred to Public Property and Streets Committee to be reported on at next meeting.

His Worship said that this meeting had been called for the purpose of dealing with the arbitration matter and called on Coun. Taylor, chairman of the Special Arbitration Committee.

Coun. Taylor asked that the council grant the committee fifteen minutes to confer with their solicitor, Mr. H. F. McLatchy.

When the committee returned Coun. Taylor reported that the committee was at a deadlock—two for arbitration and two for settlement at $3,250.

Mayor Murray asked each councillor's opinion in the matter.

Coun. Blair said he was in favor of settlement at $3,250.

Coun. Vantour was in favor of settlement at above figure.

Coun. Taylor said that the committee had no authority to settle matters with R. L. Duncan and he did not think that the members of the committee had committed themselves.

Coun. Blair—This agreement was made without prejudice. I think this matter should be settled at the figure named by Mr. Duncan. This matter is a legacy left to us by the former council.

Coun. Laughlan said that as the committee could not agree he would suggest that a vote of the council be taken. He did not want to pay $5,000 but was willing to settle the matter for $3,250. Said he did not think the law would allow them to arbitrate and had reasons for saying so.

Coun. Vantour was of the opinion that council should settle at figure named. Arbitration is expensive and there is nothing to be gained by it. The land in question could have been bought much cheaper long ago, and if the council does not settle, it may cost much more than figure named by R. L. Duncan.

Coun. Joudry—$3,250 is too much. I believe the best way is to arbitrate. Five hundred dollars would have bought land some time ago. The price then went to $5,000 and Mr. Duncan now offers to settle at $3,250. If we pay this sum other similar cases may come up. If we are weak-kneed now we will be weak-kneed when we are up against these similar cases. I believe that a settlement has been made.

If we pay $5,000 more I say arbitrate. The people will stand by us. I say fight it out. I am a property holder.
This matter has been a farce from the beginning. Meetings of council had been held for the purpose of discussing the reservoir matter and nothing had been done. They blame Mr. Murray for bringing this matter upon the town. His Worship was a councillor at the time. Look at it from a business standpoint. These are facts, gentlemen. I have been abused here this morn-(pointing to the Mayor) laid it on to me about the condition of the streets because there were a few strangers present.

His Worship.—I do not understand you, Coun. Joudry.

Coun. Joudry.—You were a member of the old council. Perhaps I went too far, but, gentlemen, I am not a man to be trampled on. Understand me!

Coun. Laughlan—Let us get down to arbitration matter—never mind the streets.

Coun. Blackhall explained that after they had seen R. L. Duncan and ascertained from him the lowest figure at which he would settle, Mr. Mott, R. L. Duncan's solicitor drew up a document and the members of the special arbitration committee signed it. He did not think that the committee had committed themselves by so doing. He was in favor of arbitration. Would like to see it go to a vote of the council.

Coun. Miller—I look on this as a common matter of barter. We have ascertained Mr. Duncan's

SEVERE STORM.

Heavy Thunder and Lightning.

ON SUNDAY.

Does Considerable Damage.
—House Struck at Dalhousie.

A severe thunder and lightning storm passed over this section of the country on Sunday evening last. Rain came down in torrents, the gutters on both sides of the streets being filled with the running water. The rain was accompanied by a severe hail storm, some of the icy pebbles being quite large. Reports say that windows were broken by these missiles in Oak Bay district.

In consequence of the storm the church services were very slimly attended in town.

Dalhousie Sept 11th.—A terrific lightning storm accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain passed over this section between six and seven o'clock Sunday evening. It is not surprising that the inhabitants of Dalhousie were terrified as a lightning bolt struck the fine residence of James Harquail situated but a few yards from the Presbyterian church which replaces a former edifice destroyed by lightning a short time ago. The Harquail building received considerable damage and two of the inmates were stunned. One of them, a teacher in the public school was unable to resume her school work to-day.

Lightning also killed a valuable horse owned by Fred Legoffe at Eel River Crossing and damaged several buildings in the parish of Dalhousie.

"Run Down System"

The solid parts of our bodies are continually wearing away, and require to be repaired by medical substances, that restore the lost vitality. There are only two methods of building up the run down system. You can consult the physician, or commence treatment with Dr. Slocum's famous remedy, "PSYCHINE." In all probability "PSYCHINE" will be the best doctor, and the cheapest in the end. Scores of medical men advise its use in the worst cases of decline and weakness. It is an invaluable tonic, pleasant to the stomach, builds up the run down system, strengthens the nerves, sets the liver right, cures dizziness and headache, creates appetite, and is an all round family medicine, used by thousands of men, women and children in every part of the Dominion. PERCE ROCK

No More Interesting Corner
In Canada than Gaspé County

(Frant Veigh in Toronto Globe)

A map of Canada will show a curious thumb of land thrust into the Gulf of St. Lawrence, with the waters of the great river bounding it on the North and those of Chaleur Bay on the south. Being between the two stretches the picturesque Gaspé Peninsula, the most easterly portion of the Province of Quebec, and the terminus as well of the Appalachian chain of mountains that here reach a height of 3,800 feet.

There is no more interesting corner of the Dominion than Gaspé county, and no more attractive body of water than the Baie des Chaleurs, so named by Jacques Cartier, who discovered it on an extremely hot day of the year 1534, though its Indian name—Eketuam Nemaehi, "Sea of Fish" is more fitting.

A summer excursion along the Gaspé coast of Chaleur whether by sea or land, is, barring fog a delightful one. The roadway borders the salt water for 100 miles from Dalhousie to Gaspé, and a succession of thriving little towns and quaint fishing coves are passed during the journey.

The scenery increases in impressiveness as Perce is neared, for sheltering it on the north is the bold red limestone mass of Mt. St. Anne 1,239 feet high, and facing it on the south, Le Rocher Perce—the famous Pierced Rock, 300 feet high and 1,500 feet long, deriving its name from the arch or tunnel, 50 feet high by which it is pierced.

The best view point to see Perce Rock is from the summit of the nearest cliff on mainland, which is dignified by the name of Mount Joly. In the waning sunset of a summer day I climbed to the top of Joly and to the great wooden cross erected there; the symbol of Calvary that faces leagues of sea. Partially hidden in the rank grass and near the base of the cross I chanced upon a small canon used but seldom, and only on exceptional occasions. The cannon and the cross, in incongruous proximity—strange symbols of war and peace.

It was with some heart flutterings that the very edge of the mighty cliff was peered over, for it is another Shakespeare's cliff, crawling on all fours a glimpse of the depths was ventured upon, and from the edge the eye could penetrate to the bed of the sea through the opalescent waters. Birds below, birds above, birds around one circled and shrieked, and a baby gull cried piteously as I nearly stepped upon its little gray body hardly distinguishable from the grass. There was but a narrow beach: two hundred feet below left by the receding tide. But the eye constantly returned to the great magnet of the scene—the Pierced Rock itself, its prow-like edge, but a stone's throw away. How defiantly it faced the north and the world of hills; how majestic in its granite bulk; how inscrutable in its age-long mystery of existence! The countless sea fowl that peopled its lofty summit and that perched on precarious ledges were the only evidences of life around the rock, and with every passing cloud or roll of fog or change of atmosphere the Pierced pile took on a different aspect. The conglomerate mass suggested a geological plum pudding and again with each passing ray of sunshine striking its walls from behind a storm cloud its variegated colors were startlingly bright and beautiful. From this same lookout point could be traced in perspective what the next day was seen at closer range, when a couple of stalwart fishermen rowed us around the rock; there were the curious caves and arches in the making, in addition to the great arch cut through the stony mass by the ceaseless chiselling of the sea. There were portals of mosques, Gothic arches, Norman recesses, Saracen pillars, masses of rock slanting over and outward, making so many leaning towers; spots many where the rock has fallen with a deafening crash, and giant cracks making ready for other disintegrations. At the far eastern end stands the split rock, the part that was once connected with the main mass over a tunnel and there is yet an old inhabitant who tells of the tumbling in of the roof. Great must have been the fall thereof, as one can see who is rowed to the mass of boulders left revealed at low tide.

All this I saw from myerie. Spell-bound I looked at the wondrous sight until a villager approached and with his field glass brought to nearer view the top of Perce. The ear had grown accustomed to the never-ceasing cries of the birds, shrieking as if they were so many fish wives. Quarrel they do in fact, though their sky parlor is subdivided into separate areas for gulls and gannets and puffins and cormorants. So long as they keep with in their own enclosures all may be well, but when trespass is made, then is heard a deafening protest from a hundred defiant bird throats. One could make out, moreover the different kinds of nests built by the occupiers of the rock, and the little colonies or family groups into which the winged inhabitants were subdivided.

My friend with the field glass lived on yonder cliff to the north, and beyond the dip that makes the valley in which the little fishing village of Perce nestles. Such wonderful cliffs they are, broken off sheer, with silver streaks of foam lapping their adamantine faces.

Many an interesting tale did the old man spin of the silly sheep that ventured too near the overhanging cliff in search of pasture; of the oxen—his ox indeed—that had met a similar fate, and the time they had in raising its mangled carcass from the beach far below. He was a fisherman-farmer, like so many of his neighbors, and the fishing comes first, with the result that the farming is not over-successful. Even the men of Perce cannot serve two masters with entire success. As a fisherman he had only made $30 since spring. It was not so much the lack of cod as the lack of caplin for bait. As a farmer he was an authority on fertilizers, and the castaway heads of the cod were even as we looked being carted away as manure in quest little two-wheeled wains, drawn by pessimistic oxen. In the garden plots the cabbages struggling for life were encouraged by being partly covered with sea-weeds, or a decaying fish was laid against the stalk. Later the homes of these good people were visited. Most of the humble structures leaned backward in curious fashion, as if the rear foundation had given way, but this was a device to help the frame building stand the sweep of wind from the sea, and, as it were, to be braced against its force. The front gardens were often made picturesque by using dismantled boats as flower-beds, and therein flaunted the bright red of a geranium or the range of colors of the hollyhock. Discarded craft were also used as pig-sties, the upturned half making a fine arched roof for the long-snouted animals.

A special call was made on one old gentleman fisher whose shack was down by the sea, so near that the surf dampens the front and only door. Many an evening hour was spent around the rusty stove. Seated on a bench with the old-timer and his co-workers, a wide range of topics was discussed. Cheerful and fraternal fellows they were, boss and mates alike, more than usually human, tolerably cheerful even when I met them returning from an all night hunt for cod off the Misou banks with an empty boat. It was "handy to eight" one night, as my picturesque friend termed the time, when I had my last visit and heard a harrowing tale of his "re syllus" and his cure for the rheumatics.

"See them flat strips of sea-weed 'long the beach, son!" he asked. I had seen miles of the stranded pile covering the shore like so many ribbons in shape.

"Well, I heats 'em good an' hot, I does (puff of pipe and pause therefor); then I binds 'em round th' leg so, then I crawls into my bunk, an' th' next mornin' th' pain is gone as sleek as th' fog."

Thus I pass on so sovereign a remedy for all other similar sufferers. After the cabin sufferer—a meal not of the napkin or finger bowl type—we sat on the beach and watched the great rock once more—watched it appear and disappear with the play of the mist; saw the last ray of the sunset gild its stately columns, saw the moonlight turn it into a monster throne of marble, saw it anchored in the gulf as if it were a gigantic vessel of discovery, manned by giants and propelled by the gods themselves.

Beyond lay Bonaventure Island, with its sea-walls, equally precipitous, where the birds are cliff dwellers in long rows in the face of the rock—the gull's opera boxes, according to a sprightly fancy of a fellow-traveller.

One grew to like the Perce fisherfolk. They are such stalwart, friendly, honest-eyed men. All have the look of the eye that the sea gives, the look of the sea's tragedy, too, for many a mate has been swallowed up in the storms of Chaleur. One wonders how they maintain a philosophic spirit amid all the discouragements and drawbacks of their life, for drawbacks there are a-plenty. Bad weather means poor fishing. A scarcity of bait means few fish, and prices are uncertain after the fish are caught. Then the daily life is one of exposure. One knows that by seeing the sore eyes and the consumptive faces among a crowd of fishermen, "He'll never make old bones," remarked an old salt of a young fellow whose shrunken frame showed only too plainly the hardships of his seafaring life. Take a look into the tiny bunker of a fishing smack and figure out as best you can how a crew of three or four men can exist therein, how they manage to sleep or eat in such circumscribed quarters, and yet a large share of their lives is spent on just such a floating home.

It was a picture of unending interest to watch the cod or herring fleets run up their sails, and, as the tide served, glide out in single file to the open sea until the curtain of night swallowed them from sight. It was an equally picturesque scene when the morning light revealed them sailing home again, after hours of strenuous labor if the catch chanced to be a good one. Then the scene shifted to the beach and the tables set thereon, and to the quick handling of the captured cod until it ends its career ignominiously in the salting vat or the drying platform.

Such is the round of life, the routine of the day and the night, of the Perce fisherfolk during all the months when winter has not the world of Gaspé in its grip.

Such is the charming little hamlet of Perce-by-the-Sea, ever watched by its giant sentinel rock.

There was a small gathering of citizens, including the Mayor, at the Town Hall, Friday evening, to witness the presentation of the Long Service medal to Mr. Wm. Governor Snowball, in uniform, attended by Miss Lily Snowball and his secretary, Mr. Eddy, presented the medal in a happy speech, and Mr. Archer replied, making an excellent speech. Everybody congratulated the recipient. The medal is of bronze. It bears the King's monogram and the inscription, For Faithful Service.—World

THREE JURORS CURED

With Cholera Morbus with one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Alarates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Cleburne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some sausage meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and it gave us twenty-five cent bottle cured the three of us." For sale by all Druggists.

GRAND CASCADEPIA

For the past few days there has been quite a rain storm doing considerable damage to the crops.

Miss Lucy Hard left on Tuesday 5th for Minn.

Some of our young fellows left Tuesday for Manitoba for the harvesting season they will have good luck on their long journey.

A very pretty wedding took place in Grand Cascadepia church on Monday Sept 4th when Mr. William Lynd of New Richmond was united in marriage to Miss Effie J. Coull of Cascadepia. Rev. J. F. McCurdy officiated. The bride looked pretty in a dress of cream poplin trimmed with lace and cream applique. She carried a large bouquet of white daisies and wore a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair. She was given away by her father. Her sister Miss Nettie acted as bridesmaid and wore a dress of blue poplin trimmed with cream over lace and white silk applique. She also wore flowers in her hair. Mr. Edmond McWaters of the bride as groom's man. Mr. Rufus Gilker organist of Grand Cascadepia church sang and played the voice that breathed over Eden.

After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride where a sumptuous tea was served to a large number of relatives and friends after which a number of young folks drove with the bride and groom to their new home where refreshments were again served. The bride received many useful and valuable presents. We join in wishing them a long and happy journey through life.

NEW LEGISLATION BY IO F

Important Changes at Atlantic City Convention

THE following article is clipped from an Elizabeth, N. J., paper with regard to the recent meeting of the Supreme Court of the Independent Order of Foresters, held in Atlantic City, N. J.:

"While the legislation enacted by the Supreme Court was limited, it was quite important. The fact that the reports showed that the surplus funds of the Order had increased nearly four million dollars since the Supreme Court session in California three years ago, and that they now amounted to over nine million dollars, settled at once all rumors as to an increase in rates.

"Among the changes made was the reduction of the age limit to 16 years in place of 18 years, as it has been. This change was made in view of the fact that the death rate for the ages of 10 and 17 years is less than four a thousand.

"Another important change was the addition of two new forms of insurance, namely, the instalment system and the term policy. By the former a member can arrange to have the face value of his policy paid to his beneficiary in ten yearly instalments instead of one payment. By the term policy a member can carry insurance for a term of either five, ten, fifteen or twenty years. The rates for these two plans are considerably lower than for the regular life plan now in force. For instance, while a member 30 years of age pays a monthly premium of $1.14 for a $1,000 insurance, payable in one payment, he can carry an instalment policy for $1.04, and for a term policy he will pay 72 cents for five years; 78 cents for 10, 80 cents for 15, and 86 cents for 20. These policies, which are optional, can all be carried by the members if they so decide.

"It was also decided to issue a special policy of $250, for the exclusive benefit of the companion or women courts of the order. The male members will not be permitted to take out a policy for less than $500.

After a discussion on the subject it was concluded to support the Orphan's Home by a monthly contribution of one cent from each member. This will aggregate about $27,000 a year.

"More than ordinary interest has been manifested by the fraternal world in the legislative policies, which are optional, can all be carried by the members if they so decide.

"The severe tension ensuing the recent radical change in rates by the Royal Arcanum, Knights of Honor, Macabans, and Catholic Legion has turned the thoughts of the fraternalists to the Supreme Court session of the Foresters—the latter having been the pioneer in the readjustment of its rates, in 1898—and the query was as to whether this readjustment had been a success or whether the I. O. F. would have to again increase its rates.

"Hence the action of this body based upon its experience in the past and the most prosperous condition of its finances, will be received with much satisfaction by not only the members of this particular Order, but by all fraternalists, it being generally known that the fraternal insurance can be successfully furnished when founded upon the proper table of rates."

THE DEATH PENALTY.

Will Hope Young Be Executed?

The Digby correspondent of the Halifax Chronicle, discussing the probable fate of Mr. Hope Young sentenced to be hanged on December 22, said:

"Sentiment is strongly against the execution of a woman. The Maritime Provinces have never sent a woman murderer to death. They have on record but one other case, where a woman was tried for murder. That was in New Brunswick in the '80s, when the woman was found guilty as an accessory before and after the fact, but her sentence was commuted and she served but a short term in prison.

It is not possible at the moment to recall the New Brunswick case referred to—the year is correctly given—but those familiar with court records in New Brunswick will recall several cases in which women have been on trial for murder. Less than two years ago in the county of York a woman was tried on a charge of having poisoned her husband. The case excited very great interest at the time. The woman acquitted. Another memorable case occurred in which a lady of considerable prominence in the community in which she lived was charged with being responsible for the death of a young girl. The verdict, like that in York county case, was one of acquittal.

These are the most recent cases in

Why Red Rose Tea is Economical

RED Rose Tea has all the good points of two good teas and none of the weaknesses of any. You never drank a cup of straight Ceylon or Indian tea that could compare in strength, richness, delicacy and fragrance with the "rich fruity flavor" of Red Rose Tea.

Yet Red Rose Tea goes further and costs no more than either Indian or Ceylon tea alone. Red Rose Tea is better than either Indian or Ceylon tea and is more economical because it goes further.

OUR GAME COUNTRY.

The Westgouche with all her sparkling, flowing rivers and streams teeming with fish of various kinds—her forests alive with big game of all descriptions is known to anglers and sportsmen the world over. From a hunter's point of view we have a glorious country. But what are we doing to advertise ourselves—to keep our country before the hunting public both of our own provinces and those of the neighboring republic? Simply nothing. All the advertising our Westgouche is getting is that done by the Intercolonial Railway and the Interprovincial Navigation Co., who are endeavoring to point out to lovers of sport what an ideal spot we have for salmon and trout fishing and big game hunting, for the purpose of increasing their passenger traffic. We have salmon and trout in our streams, moose, caribou, deer, bear, etc. enough in our forest to give anglers nervous prostration and hunters buck fever for the remainder of their days. And we should advertise this fact. It pays. Not only is the provincial treasury benefited but annually a large amount of money is spent in our country by hunters from across the line. We all feel the benefit of it—it is money left and circulated in our country.

THAT RESERVOIR MATTER

The council at the meeting on Tuesday night came to a deadlock. The special arbitration committee was divided—two for settlement and two for arbitration. A motion was put that a vote of council be taken, but the amendment that the matter go to vote of the ratepayers was carried.

Now there are many of the ratepayers who are in the dark with regard to the present state of affairs and we would suggest that a public meeting be held on Monday evening and that the orators of the council or some one conversant with the facts of the case address the meeting and explain fully to the people the present standing of the case.

The ratepayers are all interested, or should be, in the reservoir matter. They should be acquainted with the facts.

The amount of land required by the town from R. L. Duncan is 5.56 acres.

The amount asked by R. L. Duncan in settlement of the case is $3,250.

All water rights are vested in the town.

Now there are many ways of looking at this matter—much to be said both pro and con.

The ratepayers must consider whether $3,250 is a fair price for 5.56 acres of land. They must consider the cost of arbitration.

We would refer the ratepayers to the report of the proceedings of the council on Tuesday evening, published in this issue. The views of the councilors are there set forth. If our suggestion be acted on that a meeting of the ratepayers be held on Monday night and addressed by members of the Council or someone conversant with the facts of the case, we think the matter will be properly placed before the people, and they will have facts fresh in their memory when they deposit their ballots on Tuesday next.

A RATEPAYER TALKS.

Editor of Events,

Dear Sir, As Ratepayers, we are asked to vote Tuesday on a question of whether we will pay a certain sum for certain privileges, or whether we will refer the value of these privileges to a competent board of Arbitrators, and we are not informed just what the circumstances governing the case are. Should a public meeting not be held that we might vote as intelligent citizens?

We are told there is a question as to the legality of this election. As this is only to be an expression of opinion and the result will not involve the expenditure of any monies before a proper legal course is taken, and is not binding as the council, it is useless for certain individuals to raise that cry.

No ratepayers can vote in favor of buying certain land and not know what we are getting. They can only refer it to arbitration. It will be better to pay more (which is very doubtful) and have it done properly. We were also told at the last meeting of the council that a certain document or agreement exists signed by a committee of the town council. What is the nature of this document? Are we not entitled to some information regarding it?

Come, gentlemen, the question of reservoir lands has been discussed in Caucus for once a year and it is about time the citizens were given the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

As it is we can only vote in favor of arbitration.

Ratepayer.

lowest figure and I am in favor of settlement at $3,250.

Coun. Joudry—I have been talking to several of our heaviest ratepayers. They would rather arbitrate. They would sooner pay the money in this way than pay R. L. Duncan $3,250.

Coun. Blair said that if we proceed with arbitration he felt sure an injunction would be served on the council. From outside the rail comes "hear—hear" in answer to Coun. Joudry's remarks. Some of these men were among those who led the town up to this matter. He spoke at some length and explained the difference between the cost of arbitration and the settlement price.

Mr. McLachy was given permission to speak. He said that the trouble arose from having two solicitors in this matter and one of them the solicitor for R. L. Duncan. He said he did not have the confidence of this council. He had not been consulted about the drawing up or signing of the document, which was signed by the special Arbitration committee. He said he had told Coun. Blair that the arbitration would take about five days but asked who told him that it would take eighteen days. Why it was Mr. Mott, R. L. Duncan's solicitor. Mr. McLachy stated that he had heard that one of the councilors had said that he (McLachy) wanted arbitration so that he could make some money. He had never canvassed the council for business, and he wanted to say that he was not acting as the town's solicitor.

Coun. Blair—I did not consult Mr. Mott as to the probable cost of arbitration. I merely spoke to him about the matter as one ratepayer might speak with another.

Coun. Taylor explained the document signed by the arbitration committee.

Coun. Taylor suggested that a vote of the ratepayers be taken. The heaviest taxpayers were in favor of arbitration.

Coun. Laughlan—I have talked to many of the ratepayers—many were in favor of arbitration and many for settlement. He would like to see a vote of the council taken in the matter.

Coun. Joudry—The people should be heard. They had a perfect right to.

Moved by Coun. Blair seconded by Coun. Laughlan that a vote of the council be taken.

Moved as an amendment by Coun. Joudry, seconded by Coun. Miller that a vote of the ratepayers be taken. Amendment carried.

Coun. Miller moved that the vote be taken on Tuesday next between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. Ballots to read "For Arbitration"—For Settlement.

Vote to be taken at the Council Chambers. Carried.

Council adjourned.

Married at Newcastle.

St. James' Presbyterian church, Newcastle, was the scene of a very pretty wedding Tuesday at eleven thirty o'clock when Mr. George Gilmour Stothart and Miss Annie Isabel Bell were united in the bonds of matrimony.

The church was elaborately decorated for the occasion with cut and potted flowers, greens and palms.

The bride was attired in a handsome going away gown of green and purple shot silk with trimmings of Persian and Point lace, and green polo hat to match and carried a shower bouquet of white roses, entered the church on the arm of her father, Mr. W. H. Bell, the choir singing an appropriate hymn.

Miss Ida DeBoo who was becoming attired in a gown of shot silk with leather toque to match and carried a shower bouquet of carnations, acted as bridesmaid while Mr. Will Stothart supported the groom.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Raimie, the bridal party standing beneath a large floral bell suspended from the ceiling. The bride was given away by her father.

Mr. C. H. F. Bell, brother of the bride and Mr. J. A. Ferguson acted as ushers.

After the ceremony the bridal party and guests drove to the depot where the happy couple took the Ocean Limited amid showers of good wishes and rice for a trip to St. John, Boston and other cities.

The esteem in which the bride is held here is evidenced by the many handsome and costly gifts.—Advocate.

Stewart and Assels who were arrested on several charges some three or four weeks ago were tried at New Carlisle last week. They were found guilty and Stewart was sentenced to two years in penitentiary at St. Vincent de Paul. Assels got four months in New Carlisle jail. Stewart passed through Campbellton on Monday night on his way to the cooler accompanied by Shep. Shepard and Deputy Sheriff Day of New Carlisle.

John Hall Kelly acted for Assels and Gordon Maguire for the Crown. Mr. Kelly contended that Assels was not of sound mind and Drs DeWolfe Maguire, Enright and Laferrriere were consulted in the matter. Drs DeWolfe, Maguire and Laferrriere stated that Assels was not totally responsible for his acts.

THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES...

BY A. CONAN DOYLE

"So I read it."
"Surely there is another alternative, Mr. Holmes. I don't know whether you observed my bedroom window?"
"Lattice paneled, lead framework, three separate windows, one swinging on hinge and large enough to admit a man."
"Exactly. And it looks out on an angle of the courtyard so as to be partly invisible. The man might have entered at the entrance there, left traces as he passed through the bedroom, and finally, finding the door open, have escaped that way."

Holmes shook his head impatiently.
"Let B be practical," said he. "I understand you to say that there are three students who use this stair and are in the habit of passing your door?"
"Yes, there are."
"And they are all in for this examination?"
"Yes."

"Have you any reason to suspect any one of them more than the others?"
Holmes hesitated.
"It is a very delicate question," said he. "One hardly likes to throw suspicion where there are no proofs."
"Let us hear the suspicions. I will look after the proofs."

"I will tell you, then, in a few words the character of the three men who inhabit these rooms. The lower of the three is Gilchrist, a fine scholar and athlete; plays in the Rugby team and the cricket team for the college and got his blue for the hurdles and the long jump. He is a fine, manly fellow. His father was the notorious Sir James Gilchrist, who ruined himself on the turf. My scholar has been left very poor, but he is hardworking and industrious. He will do well."

"The second floor is inhabited by Doulas Ras, the Indian. He is a quiet, inscrutable fellow, as most of these Indians are. He is well up in his work, though his Greek is his weak subject. He is steady and methodical."

"The top floor belongs to Miles McLaren. He is a brilliant fellow when he chooses to work—one of the brightest intellects of the university—but he is wayward, dissipated and unprincipled. He was nearly expelled over a card scandal in his first year. He has been idling all this term, and he must look forward with dread to the examination."

"Then it is he whom you suspect?"
"I dare not go so far as that, but of the three he is perhaps the least unlikely."

"Exactly. Now, Mr. Soames, let us have a look at your servant, Bannister."

"Yes, sir."

"I understand," said Holmes, "that you left your key in the door?"
"Yes, sir."

"Was it not very extraordinary that you should do this on the very day when there were these papers in the room?"
"It was most unfortunate, sir. But I have occasionally done the same thing at other times."

"When did you enter the room?"
"It was about half past 4. That is Mr. Soames' tea time."

"How long did you stay?"
"When I saw that he was absent, I withdrew at once."

"Did you look at these papers on the table?"
"No, sir; certainly not."

"How came you to leave the key in the door?"
"I had the tea tray in my hand. I thought I would come back for the key. Then I forgot."

"Has the outer door a spring lock?"
"No, sir."

"Then it was open all the time?"

"Yes, sir."
"Any one in the room could get out?"
"Yes, sir."
"When Mr. Soames returned and called for you, you were very much disturbed?"
"Yes, sir. Such a thing has never happened during the many years that I have been here. I nearly fainted, sir."

"So I understand. Where were you when you began to feel bad?"
"Where was I, sir? Why, here, near the door."

"That is singular, because you sat down in that chair over yonder near the corner. Why did you pass these other chairs?"

"I don't know, sir. It didn't matter to me where I sat."

"My friend did not appear to be depressed by his failure, but shrugged his shoulders in half humorous resignation."

"No good, my dear Watson. This, the best and only final clue, has run to nothing. But, indeed, I have little doubt that we can build up a sufficient case without it. By Jove, my dear fellow, it is nearly 9, and the landlady babbled of green peas at 7.30. What with your eternal tobacco, Watson, and your irregularity at meals, I expect that you will get notice to quit and that I shall share your downfall—not, however, before we have solved the problem of the nervous tutor, the careless servant and the three enterprising students."

Holmes made no further allusion to the matter that day, though he sat lost in thought for a long time after our belated dinner. At 8 in the morning he came into my room just as I finished my toilet.

"Well, Watson," said he, "it is time we went down to St. Luke's. Can you do without breakfast?"

"No, sir; not a word."

"You haven't seen any of them?"
"No, sir."

"Very good. Now, Mr. Soames, we will take a walk in the quadrangle, if you please."

Three yellow squares of light shone above us in the gathering gloom.

"Your three birds are all in their nests," said Holmes, looking up. "Hello! What's that? One of them seems restless enough."

"It was the Indian, whose dark silhouette appeared suddenly upon his blind. He was pacing swiftly up and down his room."

"I should like to have a peep at each of them," said Holmes. "Is it possible?"

"No difficulty in the world," Holmes answered. "This set of rooms is quite the oldest in the college, and it is not unusual for visitors to go over them. Come along, and I will personally conduct you."

"No names, please," said Holmes as we knocked at Gilchrist's door. A tall, faxen haired, slim young fellow opened it and made us welcome when he understood our errand. There were some really curious pieces of mediaeval domestic architecture within. Holmes was so charmed with one of them that he insisted on drawing it in his notebook, broke his pencil, had to borrow one from our host and finally borrowed a knife to sharpen his pencil. The same curious accident happened to him in the rooms of the Indian—a silent little book nosed fellow, who eyed us askance and was obviously glad when Holmes' architectural studies had come to an end. I could not see that in either case Holmes had come upon the clue for which he was searching. Only at the third did he prove abortive. The outer door would not open to our knock and nothing more substantial than a torrent of bad language came from behind it. "I don't care who you are. You can go to blazes!" roared the angry voice. "Tomorrow's the exam, and I won't be drawn by any one."

"A rude fellow," said our guide, flushing with anger as we withdrew down the stair. "Of course he did not realize that it was I who was knocking, but none the less his conduct was very uncourteous and, indeed, under the circumstances rather suspicious."

Holmes' response was a curious one. "Can you tell me his exact height?" he asked.

"Really, Mr. Holmes, I cannot undertake to say. He is taller than the Indian, not so tall as Gilchrist. I suppose five foot six would be about it."

"That is very important," said Holmes. "And now, Mr. Soames, I wish you good night."

"Our guide cried aloud in his astonishment and dismay. 'Good gracious, Mr. Holmes, you are surely not going to leave me in this abrupt fashion! You don't seem to realize the position. Tomorrow is the examination. I must take some definite action tonight. I cannot allow the examination to be held if one of the papers has been tampered with. The situation must be faced.'

"You must leave it as it is. I shall drop round early tomorrow morning and chat the matter over. It is possible that I may be in a position then to indicate some course of action. Meanwhile, you change nothing—nothing at all."

"Very good, Mr. Holmes."

"You can be perfectly easy in your mind. We shall certainly find some way out of your difficulties. I will take the black clay with me; also the pencil cuttings. Goodnight."

When we were out in the darkness of the quadrangle we again looked up at the windows. The Indian still paced his room. The others were invisible.

"Well, Watson, what do you think of it?" Holmes asked as we came out into the main street. "Quite a little parlor game—sort of three card trick is it not? There are your three men. It must be one of them. You take your choice. Which is yours?"

"The foul mouthed fellow at the top. He is the one with the worst record. And yet that Indian was a sly fellow also. Why should he be pacing his room all the time?"
"There is nothing in that. Many men do it when they are trying to learn anything by heart."

"He looked at us in a queer way."

"So would you if a flock of strangers came in on you when you were preparing for an examination next day and every moment was of value. No, I see nothing in that. Pencil, too, and knives—all was satisfactory. But that fellow does puzzle me."

"Why, Bannister, the servant. What's his game in the matter?"

"He impressed me as being a perfectly honest man."

"So he did me. That's the puzzling part. Why should a perfectly honest man—well, well, here's a large stationer's. We shall begin our researches here."

There were only four stationers of any consequence in the town, and at each Holmes produced his pencil clips and bid high for a duplicate. All were agreed that one could be got, but that it was not a usual size of pencil and that it was seldom kept in stock.

Holmes made no further allusion to the matter that day, though he sat lost in thought for a long time after our belated dinner. At 8 in the morning he came into my room just as I finished my toilet.

"Well, Watson," said he, "it is time we went down to St. Luke's. Can you do without breakfast?"

Copyright by Collier's Weekly.

Miles McLaren.

"Why, Holmes, you had only two yesterday."

"And one more this morning. It is a fair argument that wherever No. 3 came from is also the source of Nos. 1 and 2. Eh, Watson? Well, come along and put friend Soames out of his pain."

The unfortunate tutor was certainly in a state of pitiable agitation when we found him in his chambers. In a few hours the examination would commence, and he was still in the dilemma between making the facts public and allowing the culprit to compete for the valuable scholarship. He could hardly stand still, so great was his mental agitation, and he ran toward Holmes with two eager hands outstretched.

"Thank heaven that you have come! I feared that you had given it up in despair. What am I to do? Shall the examination proceed?"

"Yes, let it proceed, by all means."

"But this rascal!"

"He shall not compete."

"You know him?"

"I think so. If this matter is not to become public we must give ourselves certain powers and resolve ourselves into a small private court martial. You there, if you please, Soames! Watson, you here! I'll take the armchair in the middle. I think that we are now sufficiently imposing to strike terror into a guilty breast. Kindly ring the bell!"

Bannister entered and shrunk back in evident surprise and fear at our judicial appearance.

"You will kindly close the door," said Holmes. "Now, Bannister, will you please tell us the truth about yesterday's incident?"

The man turned white to the roots of his hair.

"I have told you everything, sir."

"Nothing to add?"

"Nothing at all, sir."

"Well, then, I must make some suggestions to you. When you sat down on that chair yesterday did you do so in order to conceal some object which would have shown you had been in the room?"

Bannister's face was ghastly.

"No, sir; certainly not."

"It is only a suggestion," said Holmes suavely. "I frankly admit that I am unable to prove it. But it seems probable enough, since the moment that Mr. Soames' back was turned you released the man who was hiding in that bedroom."

Bannister licked his dry lips.

"There was no man, sir."

"Ah, that's a pity, Bannister. Up to now you may have spoken the truth, but now I know that you have lied."

The man's face set in sullen defiance.

"There was no man, sir."

"Come, come, Bannister!"

"No, sir; there was no man."

"In that case you can give us no further information. Would you please remain in the room? Stand over there near the bedroom door. Now, Soames, I am going to ask you to have a great kindness to go up to the room of young Gilchrist and to ask him to step down into yours."

An instant later the tutor returned, bringing with him the student. He was a fine figure of a man—tall, lithe and agile, with a springy step and a pleasant open face. His troubled blue eyes glanced at each of us and finally rested upon Bannister in the farther corner. "Just close the door," said Holmes.

"Now, Mr. Gilchrist, we are all quite alone here, and no one need ever know one word of what passes between us. We can be perfectly frank with each other. We want to know, Mr. Gilchrist, how you, an honorable man, ever came to commit such an action as that of yesterday?"

RESULT OF THE WAR

Comparative Statement Of Losses and Gains Of Two Countries

WHAT JAPAN HAS WON.
The Mikado's Empire has secured a place among the great powers of the world.

Japan has wrested from Russia the control of the Liaotung peninsula, including Port Arthur, Dainy and the Blon-le and Elliott Islands. Thus at one stroke getting revenge for past indignities and what to her are the prime fruits of victory.

By Japan's victories the empire has forced Russia to consent to the open door to all nations in Manchuria.

A preponderant influence in Korea has been secured, an influence that admits right of Japan to give military and financial advice to the Emperor of Korea.

Japan obtains the retrocession to China of the Eastern Railroad, which runs south from Harbin to Port Arthur, a charge of control which will aid Japan in a financial sense.

Japan has forced the limitation of the Chinese concession of 1896, under which the cut off through Northern Manchuria was built to connect the trans-Siberian and the Usuri railroad so as to provide for the retention and ownership of the line by the Chinese eastern. Chinese imperial police are to be substituted for the Russian Railroad guards.

The Japanese treasury is to receive a liberal sum in payment for the care of Russian prisoners.

Japan's fishermen secure the right to ply their trade in the waters of the Russian littoral from Vladivostok north to the Bering sea.

WHAT RUSSIA HAS LOST
Russia has lost its position as a ranking naval power. Its fleets in the Pacific are cut to pieces and its great Baltic fleet has been destroyed.

Russia has been routed from the Liaotung Peninsula, from Dainy, the Plonde and Elliott Islands and from Port Arthur, the great harbor fortress, whose strength and position gave Czar a position of dominance in eastern affairs.

The southern half of Saghalin Island is lost to Russia, an island over which two weeks ago she had full sway and ownership.

Russia has been compelled by force of Japanese arms to consent that nations shall have full trade facilities in Manchuria, a privilege which she formerly jealously withheld.

The Czar's Government refused before the war to recognize any right of Japan to seek influence and trade in Korea. As a result of the war Japan is given a preponderant influence in the hermit kingdom, with full power to advise the Emperor on all matters pertaining to commerce and to war.

Russia has recognized Chinese ownership in the eastern railroad connecting Port Arthur with Harbin. This involves a retrocession to China by Russia of property rights and gives to Japan an opportunity to recoup her financial losses. The Czar loses all influence in Manchuria, a province which his Government was absorbing.

TORONTO WATER IS BAD.

Too Warm For Fish That Thrive in N. B. Waters

"This is the worst place I ever showed fish in—temperature of 62 degrees."

It was Mr. D. G. Smith, Commissioner of New Brunswick Fisheries and it was Toronto's treatment of the fish that was the cause of his disapprobation.

He is in charge of the wild sea trout which form a part of the Intercolonial Railway's exhibit in the old art building at the Exhibition. The proper temperature for these fish is about 47 degrees. So oppressive did they find Lake Ontario water a couple of them turned belly up, which is fish death equivalent to throwing up the sponge or kicking the bucket. Commissioner Smith, however, knows fish from the egg to the frying pan, so instead of throwing them out he suspended them in the tanks by their dorsal fins and nursed them back to life with lumps of ice.

Commissioner Smith has arranged the space at his disposal with great artistic skill. The entire walls and ceiling are covered with rough hemlock bark which makes an appropriate background for some magnificent views of scenes in the Maritime Provinces. In the centre of the room glows a cool fountain bedded in green sod—a rest for the eye weaned with the mechanical activity of the fair.

Looking at the views of rolling hills rising 1,400 feet from the Metapedia valley, where game abounds, of broad meadows waiting for the farmer's plough, of streams that are haunts of denizens of the fanny tribe, one is apt to wonder why it is that, while the peoples of Europe and America are pouring into the North-west by tens of thousands, the Maritime Provinces number their immigrants merely by hundreds. One answer is perhaps that the active emigration agent is not the Government, but the railways, and it is to the interest of the great transcontinental lines that their own lands in the west should be settled. Some have said that the Government has not shown any great anxiety to have the Maritime Provinces settled.

Possibly if this were done the people's line would cease to show an annual deficit—which of course, would be too revolutionary for state affairs to be considered for a moment, then, too, it would be a pity to disturb the beautiful political balance which at present obtains in the provinces away down by the sounding sea. Whatever the cause, the immigrants are few, mostly fairly well-to-do old country farmers who buy farms which have already been reclaimed from the forest.

So it is possible that when western Canada is one great hive, agriculture and commerce, eastern Canada will still be the holiday place and hunting grounds of the Dominion. Big game is plentiful there. Deer are so common that they often come into the fields with the cattle, and it was only last year that they came under the License System. Now they are free from the hunters' gun except between September 15th and the first of Dec.

New Brunswick is alive to the importance of its natural resources. No land is sold along its angling rivers. For four rods on either bank the Crown reserves to itself safe from the settler's devastating nets. A hatchery has been established, which turns out a quarter of a million fish every year. This is only a beginning. Last year the province made $12,000 from its angling leases alone. The fees for big game amounted to $16,000. Most sportsmen hire guides, paying them $3 or $4 a day. These guides are all registered on the province's books and are ex-officio forest rangers. They are subject to a heavy fine if they take in a man who has not taken out a license.

OUR COUSINS ARE THERE

The Yankees of course, have already discovered New Brunswick. The Restigouche Salmon Club, which occupies one of the choicest bits of the Metapedia valley, is an association of multi-millionaires. The Vanderbilts, Golets, and others are members; there are forty-two shares valued at $10,000 each. A man may own a share, and yet be blackballed when it comes to electing him to membership. If he is elected he must pay yearly dues of $900. This entitles him to the privilege of paying $3 a day for his board at the club house. Canoe-men and grub while camping come extra. It's almost as bad as the Toronto Exhibition.

A story is told which shows the spirit of these moneyed sportsmen. One of them bought a farm which ran for half a mile along a stream in which there were a couple of good fish pools. The sum paid was $22,000. The farmer said to the millionaire: "I don't want your farm. Keep right on doing as you have done on it, but keep those two pools for me and don't let anyone fish in them."

The farmer stayed on, his patron visiting the pools in the season. When the millionaire died it was found that the farm had been willed back to the farmer.—Toronto Evening Telegram.

Tumors Conquered Without Operations

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in Cases of Mrs. Fox and Miss Adams.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Tumor.

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by excessive menstruation accompanied by unusual pain extending from the ovaries down the groin and thighs. If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation; secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound right away and begin its use and write Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Read these strong letters from grateful women who have been cured:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham— (First Letter.) "In looking over your book I see that your medicine cures Tumor of the Uterus. I have been to a doctor and he tells me I have a tumor. I will be more than grateful if you can help me, as I do so dread an operation."

—Fannie D. Fox, 7 Chestnut St., Bradford, Pa.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham— (Second Letter.) "I take the liberty to congratulate you on the success I have had with your wonderful medicine."

"Fifteen months ago my monthly stopped. Shortly after I felt so badly I submitted to a thorough examination by a physician, and was told that I had a tumor on the uterus and would have to undergo an operation."

I soon after read one of your advertisements and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. After taking five bottles as directed, the tumor is entirely gone. I have again been examined and it has done me."

—Miss Luella Adams, Colorado Hotel, Seattle, Wash.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and should give confidence and hope to every sick woman.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all ailing women to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice.

MILL GUTTED.

Tuttle's Planing Factory in Moncton Badly Burned.

Only the prompt and splendid work of the Moncton fire department Saturday night saved Tuttle's Lumber and planing mill from a repetition of the disastrous conflagration of ten years ago, when the establishment was razed to the ground and totally wiped out.

As it is, Mr. Tuttle has suffered quite a considerable loss, and there is no insurance whatever on the building. A large quantity of belting and considerable lumber was burned, while the building's interior suffered a good deal from the flames, besides being quite badly gutted by water. The machinery is not damaged to any extent, and Mr. Tuttle considers himself fortunate indeed that he escaped as easily as he did. About ten years ago his mill was completely destroyed.

The cause of the fire is attributed to the carelessness of the fireman, who being in a hurry to get away on Saturday evening, did not clear out the fire boxes, and the fire started around the boilers.

The loss will be in the vicinity of $3,000 and Mr. Tuttle is undecided about rebuilding.

In the factory was about one hundred window sashes and a lot of balusters and other turned goods and all was destroyed or more or less damaged. There was also among the stock some kiln dried hard wood in one corner of the factory and this was also badly burned. All the work-work, including wooden pulleys, etc., was more or less damaged, but the machinery, both up stairs and down was not injured. The greatest damage done was to the belting the whole of which was practically destroyed, and which cost upwards of $1,000 to replace.

A great deal of repairs will be necessary upstairs, and new floor will be required and parts of the roof will need rebuilding.

When the fireman and apparatus arrived on the scene but a few minutes later, almost before the alarm had ceased ringing, masses of flame were pouring from the south side of the building, and little tongues of flame had crept out under the eaves and were beginning to spread with startling rapidity. Both the fire engines were on the scene. No. 1 was stationed at the hydrant directory across the street from the burning mill and No. 2 at the corner of Main and St. John streets. The work of getting a stream of water on the flames was but the work of a few minutes, and shortly after ten o'clock three streams of water were being poured into the mass of flames. Every portion of the mill was flooded with water, and by eleven o'clock the fire was completely distinguished.—Transcript.

TOGO'S FLAGSHIP SUNK.

Burned While at Anchor. Six Hundred Men Perish.

Tokio, Sept. 12.—The Japanese battleship Mikasa, which was the flagship of Vice-Admiral Togo during the battle of the Sea of Japan, caught fire and sunk at 2.30 a. m. yesterday.

The battleship caught on fire from an unknown cause at midnight Sept. 10th, and before the fire could be subdued the flames reached the after magazine which exploded, blowing a hole in the port side below the waterline and causing her to sink. The cause of the fire is under investigation.

The loss by the sinking of the Mikasa total 399 officers and men, including detachments from other warships which went to the rescue of the vessel.

The Mikasa was a first class battleship of 15,200 tons displacement. She was built in England, 1902. She has a speed of 18 knots and carried a crew of 935 officers and men.

Married At New Mills

A quiet but pretty wedding was celebrated at four o'clock on Wednesday the 6th inst. at the residence of Mr. D. Robertson, New Mills when his niece Miss Jean R. Atkinson was united in marriage to Samuel B. Creighton by the Rev J. M. McLeod.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers and the bride looked charming as she entered the parlor on the arm of her father Mr. A. J. Atkinson of Moncton wearing in white silk her only ornament being a gold watch and chain the gift of the groom.

Immediately after the ceremony the guests repaired to the dining room where tea was served and shortly after the happy couple drove to their home, Pleasant View Cottage, New Mills.

The brides travelling dress was blue broad cloth with hat to match. The presents were numerous and costly.

Purgatives Are Dangerous

They gripe, cause burning pains and make the constipated condition even worse. Physicians say the ideal laxative is Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut; they are exceedingly mild, composed only for health-giving vegetable extracts. Dr. Hamilton's Pills restore regular movement of the bowels, strengthen the stomach and purify the blood. For constipation, sick headache, biliousness and disordered digestion no medicine on earth makes such remarkable cures as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Try a 25c. box yourself.

SUDDEN DEATH

Mr. F. R. Dalton Expired Suddenly Monday Night.

The town was shocked yesterday morning when the sad intelligence was spread about that our popular druggist, Mr. F. R. Dalton, had died suddenly the previous night.

Mr. Dalton was one of New-castle's most popular and successful young men, and it was indeed a shock to his numerous friends to hear of his sad death.

The deceased has not been enjoying the best of health lately but was able to attend to business as usual. He was about town Monday evening and was cheerful and bright. Shortly after going to his home he took suddenly ill and before medical aid reached him, expired. He was 27 years of age.

The bereaved have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community. The funeral will take place from his father's residence, Pleasant street, this morning at 9 o'clock.—Advocate.
