The Evacuation of Crete by Turks Must Be Complete.

Canea, Crete, Oct. 14.-The foreign admirals have communicated with their against the porte's demand that it be allowed to retain three fortified places in the island, with garrisons sufficient to safeguard the Mohammedans and protect the Turkish flag.

The admirals say that the sultan should not be allowed to maintain any troops in Crete, and they ask that the Turkish troops be compelled to completely evacuate the island. The admirals have decided not to allow Osman Pasha and Sabit Pasha, who have been ordered to proceed to Crete from Turkey, to superintend the em-barkation of the troops, as their presence would only complicate the situation and lead to idle discussion.

The porte's reply to the powers did not allude to the Turkish civil officials, and the admirals propose to regard the silence on this point as implying an agreement to their removal.

The Teurkish troops are transferring their baggage and war material to Suda, on Suda Bay, east of Canea, to bein readiness to embark on the steamers which have already left Constantinople to repatriate them. Great Britain, Russia, France and Italy have decided to reject the porte's modifications in the ultimatum to the Turkish Government on the evacuation of the Island of Crete, particularly the sultan's proposition to hold three fortified places, with garrisons sufficient to protect the Mohammedans and to defend the Ottoman flag. They are sending an identical note to this effect to Constantinople, reminding the sultan that every Turkish soldier must leave Crete within the time specified in the ultimatum.

FIVE GENERATIONS IN A GROUP. A unique experience has fallen to the lot of an old fisherman living in the village of Buckle, near Edinburgh. He was photographed this week with his family, showing five generations. John Murray, the head, is 90 years of age, and is hale and hearty.
His son, William Henry, is 69; William's daughter, Margaret, is 38, and Margaret's daughter, also named Margaret, is 18. The last-named has recently presented the world with a son, who thus completes the fifth link in this remarkable family chain. A further notable thing about the older Murray is that he was the first fisherman in Great Britain to discover the use of herring bait to catch white-

London, Oct. 14.-The Pekin correspondent of the Times says: The foreign legations have not yet been notified by the Tsung-Li-Yamen that the empress dowager has assumed the regency, which daily assumes more the nature of a usurpation. The Royal and Imperial Couples Hug and Kiss-William Takes His Favorite Giant With Him-Biggest Soldier in the German Army.

Venice, Oct. 13.-The Emperor and Empress of Germany arrived here at noon and proceeded to the royal palace, where they were welcomed by the King and Queen of Italy. Their majesties were cheered by the crowds which witnessed their arrival. It was noticed that among the decorations at the railway station there were many flags inscribed with the date, "1870," the year of the outbreak of the war between France and Germany. The meeting between the royal and imperial couples was of the most cordial nature. Emperor William kissed the hand of the Queen of Italy and King Humbert kissed the hand of the Empress of Germany. The queen and the Empress embraced each other. While the meeting was in progress military bands played the national anthems. The emperor and empress, accompanied by King Humbert and Queen Margaret, were rowed to the palace in the state gondolas, by way of the Grand Canal. The emperor and the king occupied one gondola and the empress and the queen were seated in another gondola. Both the boats were escorted by eight municipal barges, richly ornamented, and were followed by a great flotilla of gondolas. There was great cheering all along the route followed, and enthusiastic crowds of people welcomed their majesties on the piazza of St. Mark. After their majesties had entered the palace, they appeared on a balcony, which brought forth a renewal of the acclamations of the people, and the bands played the German and Italian anthems. The whole town and all the ships in the harbor were gaily decorated. luncheon at the palace the Empress and Emperor of Germany boarded the imperial yacht Hohenzollern, and at 4 p.m. sailed for Constantinople.

WILLIAM'S PET. One of the interesting features of the emperor's tour of the Orient will be Herr Leonard Ehmke, a veritable giant, and the biggest soldier in the German army. He measures within an inch of seven feet and weighs 296 pounds. This big German fighter belongs to the Third Regiment of the Imperial Guards, and the object of the distinction is due to the kaiser's desire to show the Orientals in the imperial processions a true type of the Prussian army. The Czar of Russia sent the Kaiser an autograph letter, wishing him good luck on his journey.

What France Expects-Status of the Strike - Railway Men May Make Trouble.

London, Oct. 14.-Herbert Henry Asquith, Liberal M. P. for East Fife, and former home secretary, in an address to his constituents, spoke of the situation at Fashoda in a strain that the village seems to form a sort similar to Lord Rosebery's declaration at Epsom. Mr. Asquith said it was the duty of all patriotic Britons and lovers of peace not to say a word that might | remedied, and it will no doubt be only even seem to impair the title of Salisbury's government to act in the name of a united people. VILLAGE TAKEN BY SNAKES

French Peasants Work Days and Fight the Reptiles at Night-Unique Village in the Ural.

Paris, Oct. 21.-The village of Lapar. ade, in the department of Lot-et-Garonne, is reported to be suffering from a plague of serpents, to such a degree that the reptiles, some of enormous size, boldly crossed the roadways, and already have caused the death of two villagers. Laparade is situated on the summit of a broad hill overlooking the River Lot. The slopes teem with grapevines. To the north are thick forests intersected with marshes. The abnormal heat of the summer has bred millions of reptiles in the marshes, and they now crawl through the vineyards surrounding the village. After the men return from work each day they organize themselves into snake-hunting parties, with fatal re-sults to the snakes, but it seems impossible to stop the plague.

UNIQUE VILLAGE. A dispatch from Moscow reports that news has reached there from the Asiatic borders of the discovery of an entire village, the existence of which is unknown to Russian and European ethnologists and geographers. None of the many tribes in this weird region knew that there was such a village nor have they ever met any of the inhabitante. The village lies snugly ensconced in the valley of a group of lofty mounrange. The people speak d language of their own, which bears no resemblance whatever to the seventy more languages which prevail in the vast regions of the great White Czar. The travelers who chanced upon this community have been unable to elicit any information regarding their antecedents. Their dress consists principally of animal skins and their huts are constructed of twisted boughs. The report adds sarcastically, referring to the heavy burdens of the czar's subjects, which have been discovered, of ideal commonwealth, in which taxes and tax gatherers, among other troublesome things, are unheard of. This latter defect, however, is now to be a matter of a few weeks or months before the village partakes of all the advantages and privileges of the Rus-

The new date for the South Ontario bye-election is Tuesday, Nov. 1.

Tilsonburg people have prepared to give Hon. J. Israel Tarte, minister of public works, a banquet tonight. It is understood that the North Perth election protest is dropped by the Conservatives. It and the South Perth trial were set for today at Stratford. An application was made before Mr. Justice MacLennan on Thursday morning, extending the time for the trial of the protests in the cases of East and West Lambton. Whether the South Perth trial will proceed or not depends upon the respondent. The law says that no election trial shall be held until fifteen days after the prorogation of the house, unless by the consent of the parties. If Mr. Moscrip consents the case will proceed. No bribery is alleged, the case hinging entirely upon the admissability of certain disputed

PRESERVING BODIES

Dr. Manini Keeps Them in a Form Resembling the Natural State. [The Lancet.]

Once and again the Lancet has drawn attention to the ingenuity shown by the Italian surgeons in immunising dead subject from decomposition, and the theme has acquired fresh interest from its recent handling by Signor Luigi Ferrara. Throughout the peninsula, whether in its anatomical museums or in the family vaults of its cemeteries, wonderful specimens of such successful immunisations are to be seen; but none of these can approach the perfection attained by Dr. Efisio Manini in a process which may well be called national. For forty years that Neapolitan surgeon has striven to improve on the methods hitherto in practice, and his results, as known to the profession, throw all previous successes into the shade. "Without incisions"-so I am informed--"without injections, simply with a series of baths, he has succeeded in preserving the human subject from all risk of decomposition whatever." His modus operandi consists of three stages: 1. Provisional desiccation (preservation applied to the corium in its Bodies so prepared transition peri a liquid of his own and immersed legain their primary devising may be therefore subjected freshness and operations or demonto anatomical strations like the ordinary cadavers of the dissecting room. 2. Petrifaction of the body so prepared-a process which, in Dr. Manini's hands, is so effective that the density as well as the consistency of marble is attained, insomuch that a few hours after the ompletion of this stage a key brought contact with the suris elicits a true metallic ring from the 3. The restoration to this desiccated and petrifled subject of the freshness, the softness, the flexibility of the natural state. As described to me, the bodies so treated come from Dr. Manini's hands as if asleep, or in a condition of temporarily suspended animation. Well-known Italians dead within the last decade-like Benedetto Cairoli and Sanfelice-have been thus "stereotyped," so to say, for posterity, and become to the anatomist, the anthropologist and the medical jurist an object lesson in the prosecution of respective interests. In the last of these-that concerned with the investigation of capital offenses-the gain to the resources of justice would be immense when contrasted with the means it has to fall back upon in Paris, for instance, where the laborious process of keeping the dead body continually under waves of fresh air exhausts itself in a few days' time. Dr. Manini has been sustained in his lifelong work by the sympathetic encouragement of surgeons like Nelaton and Billroth, and of anatomists like Richard Owen and Sappey. DIDN'T HAVE TO GO TO CHURCH. Strictly speaking, it is not an argument for general church-going, but the story of a recent occurrence at Chickamauga shows, notwithstanding, that even in a military camp the men who dodge their religious duties gain nothing by it. The story began, says the Chicago Chronicle, when Private Jack Holland was kicked by a mule. Two days later the mule died. This was on Sunday. Arrangements had been made for divine service in a grove adjoining the camp. Major Sanborn assembled the first battalion, and when the ranks were formed, he said: "Of course, attendance on Sunday service cannot be made compulsory in the army, and all those who do desire to attend will take one step to Twelve men promptly fell out of the ranks. The rest of the battalion marched away to the grove. Then the major, turning to the squad of twelve, said: "I want you men to go and bury that mule this afternoon.' They looked at one another a mo-This was one of the soldier's ment. duties they had not counted on when they took the oath of allegiance; but there was no getting away from or-ders, and with heavy hearts they set out for the spot where Jack Holland's late aggressor lay in the sun.

It was 2 o'clock when they began to work, and the mule was an ordinary sized animal; but when they had dug down into the sand for an hour or so, and made a grave about six feet deep, they turned to look at the mule, and he seemed to have increased in dimensions. They returned to their task, and dug still deeper and wider, and every time they gianced back at the mule he seemed larger than before.

The sun, with one parting whack at the dead mule, slid over towards Lookout Mountain before the grave was large enough, and meanwhile the rest of the battalion had returned from service and sat around in the made, writing home to mother and extending encouraging remarks to the grave-diggers. It is probable that those twelve men will be in the front pew every Sunday after this.

LYMAN ABBOTT

TO PREACHERS How It Strikes a Great Preacher of the Day. The latest issue of the Outlook, New York, edited by Rev. Lyman Abbott,

D.D., contains the following editorial: The public are apparently most interested in public questions; but far more important than any public questions are those which are purely personal. The minister shares the universal interest in such problems as: What shall be done with the Philippines? Who shall be the next governor? By what legislative method shall the state deal with the liquor problem? He has before him on Sunday morning a congregation interested in these and kindred problems. If he speaks upon them, and has anything to say, sermon will make good copy for the daily press, and will be reported—or misreported. The temptation is strong to fall into the current, to turn his pulpit into a platform, and his sermon into a political or a sociological ad-The temptation is the more dress. seductive because moral principles are involved in these questions, and it is not always easy to distinguish between the moral principle which it is his duty to inculcate and the political method which it is not his function to urge; between the virtue of temperance and the legislative method of prohibition;

the virtue of honesty and the triumph of his own party; the virtue of patriotism and the policy of expansion or its reverse. Nevertheless the community as well as the church is a loser when the preacher yields to this temptation, and ceases to be a preacher of righteousness and becomes an instructor in politics or sociology. For the latter function he has no special equipment. His library is not rich in political and sociological departments. He has no expert knowledge and no special information. He is as dependent as his congregation for his knowledge of the facts on the daily papers, and generally also for his understanding of principles. He is either much more or much less than the average man if he is not subject to partisan prejudices, is not a Republican, a Democrat, a Populist or a Prohibitionist. It is not safe for him to assume that he is superior to those prejudices which are common to humanity; and if he is unprejudiced because he is indifferent, he s unfit to be a teacher. The fact that the press will report his political sermon and no other is rather a reason against preaching it than the reverse. For the kingdom of God cometh not with observation; and he who preaches for the newspapers rarely preaches with real effectiveness to his own congregation. On the other hand, if it turns aside from his specific function of illuminating and inspiring the individual life, there is no one else in the community to take up his work. And his work is by far more important than that which beckons him away from it. It is far more important that the individuals in the community should be inspired by habits of self-control than that the state should have any particular form of legislation on its statute that the citizens of all parties should be educated to abhor that which is evil than that political power should be transferred from one party to another; that Americans should govern themselves with honor in their individual lives than that they should assume the government of a new and distant people. For the solution of all political and sociological problems depends on this spiritual illumination and inspiration of the individual. Without it there will be the grossest licentiousness and self-indulgence in spite of laws on the statute book; political reforms will only transfer state from one set of robbers to another, and the expansion of America will be the expansion of selfish and corrupt misrule. Reforms which are simply changes of form are of very little value. The state may become Democratic in form, but if the love of despotic control is left dominant in the few and the love of political ease is left dominant in the many, the despot will reappear with a change of mask, and the bureaucracy will be reconstituted with a new nomenclature. Feudalism may be abolished, and free dom of control established. But if the individuals who constitute society are still actuated by the principle of "Get all you can and keep all you get," industrial servitude will reappear under competition, and the victory once wor, for freedom will have to be won again by a new battle around a new strategic center.

The present appears to us an appropriate time for these somewhat familiar reflections. The ministers are generally back in their pulpits after their summer's vacation, and the churches are reconvened for their winter's work. During the summer new and exciting political issues have arisen. Preacher and people are both interested in them. What more natural than that the minister should make his pulpit instructions bear directly upon these public themes? But we are convince, and we should like to convince our clerical readers, that they should do so very rarely, if at all. This is not at all because the congregations are divided in sentiment on these questions, nor chiefly because they are wearied with the over-discussion of them in the press, nor altogether because the minister is not generally better informed upon them than most of his people; it is because the people have come to church under the pressure of a different need. Some of them are consciously perplexed by problems of personal duty on which they desire light; all of them unconsciously suffer from some unrecognized atrophy and need life. The minister who fails to understand this need and to find in the gospel of his God a means of ministering to it, whether he turns his pulpit into a lecture platform in order to attract the crowd, or neglects his pulpit altogether and endeavors by social calling to build up a congregation, or suffers his church work fall into a second place and gives himself to civic reform, law enforcement, sociological discussion, and educational progress, misses the opportunity which the peculiar privilege of the pulpit gives to the preacher. This is an opportunity to add to the sum of life rather than to direct life into any particular channel. To interpret to men their own restlessness, their half-conscious sense of need; to perce the armor of their self-conceil and awaken in them a divine discontent where it does not already exist; to set before them in the life of Jesus Christ a type of human excellence, and so inspire in them an ambition to be better than they are; to arouse in them a spirit of loyalty to him, obedience to which is the sum of human duty; to recover them from that dull despair whose end is death, by showing them in the free gift of power to do all and be all that the highest aspiration sets before them; to put into their exhausted lives a new heart of hope and love-this is the function of the ministry. The teacher may do something of this in the school room, the statesman something of this in public and political address, the business man and social woman something in the ordinary exchanges of business and social life, the mother much of this in her home instructions and influence, but the minister is the only man who may make it his lifework to give life to others. never was there a time in the history of America when this particular service was more needed. The anaemic New England village dying for lack of blood, the great commercial corrupted by blood-poisoning, and the feverish western town consumed by a restless eagerness for it knows not what, require the same remedy—that life of God in the soul of man which inspires, purifies and calms. The term "revival of religion" is infelicitous, because it connotes an animal and sensuous excitement which is as irreligious as it is irrational. Nevertheless, it is for a revival of religion that the ministry of all denominations should pray and labor this fall and winter; that is, a revival of the faith which sees in Christlikeness the only aim of life, of the hope which realizes in Christ's followship a power to attain that life, and of the love which is itself the beginning of life's consummation.

CLINTON. Clinton, Oct. 13 .- Messrs. Crossley and Hunter, the noted evangelists, are holding revival meetings in this town, Methodists, Presbyterians and Baptists having invited them for this week. Although these meetings were only commenced last Sabbath such an interest is manifested that there is no church in town large enough to hold the crowds. Messrs. Crossley and Hunter preach and sing the Gospel with rare originality, force and power. Great good is expected to result from these meetings.

FLORENCE.

Florence, Ont., Oct. 14.-The annual harvest thanksgiving services of St. Matthew's Church, Florence, were held on Sunday last. Novel Suicide of an Iowa Woman Serv ing a Life Sentence. Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 14. - Cora Smith, who was serving a life sentence for the murder of her father, killed herself by eating live spiders. She had been trying for weeks to find a way to take her life, and, seeing one day the spiders crawling on the walls of the prison yard, it occurred to her that they would serve. She gathered spiders day by day until she had a large number tied up in a handkerchief. At night she ate the spiders and in the morning was found dead in her cell. The handkerchief with the remaining spiders was found by her side.

CLOSING SESSION

Of the Y. P. S. C. E.—Election of

A Genuine Forward Movement-The Billet Abolished-Delegates to Pay Their Way.

Hamilton, Oct. 14.—Bible study, led by Rev. Elmore Harris, B. A., opened yesterday morning's proceedings of the Y. P. S. C. E. convention, after which there were devotional exercises led by Mr. T. F. Best, of Brantford. Geo. McLeod, of Knox Church, Hamilton, occupied the chair.

Papers were read on different topics by juniors' president. After the meeting the convention met in the base-ment of Knox Church, where the local junior union had prepared a breakfast for visiting juniors, workers, and friends. The breakfast finished, the members, in short speeches, gave some snap-shots in child study. These stories proved very interesting, and gave those present a further insight to child nature. The president, Rev. Wm. Johnson, was in the chair when the session resumed in the Armory. Mr. T. F. Best conducted the opening devotional exercises, after which the minute report of the secretaries were received. The subjects of the reports were encouragements and discouragements in Christian Endeavor work. It was led by Rev. Dr. Clark, and was of a very interesting nature.

During the meeting Rev. Geo. Kerby, B.A., of Brantford, sang a solo. An evangelistic service was held under convention auspices at the Canadian cotton mills.

New officers were elected as follows: President, Rev. Elliott S. Rowe, of Toronto; vice-president, Rev. J. F. Barker, Hamilton; Mr. C. J. Atkinson, of Toronto; Mr. T. Morris, jun., Hamilton; Rev. J. S. Henderson, Hensall; secretary, J. F. Cooper, Clinton; treasurer, W. J. Doherty, London; editor, Rev. J. S. Conning, Caledonia; junior superintendent, Miss L. Wiggins; councilors, Pay, Dr. Diakson, Galt. I. N. cilors, Rev. Dr. Dickson, Galt; J. N. Dales, Kingston, and S. John Duncan Clark, Toronto.

A real forward movement was undertaken by the convention, when Rev. Mr. Henderson, of Hensall, moved that in future the billeting system be dis-continued, and that delegates pay their own way, local committees being merely asked to find boarding houses, etc., for delegates. The mover thought the country was overrun with conventions, and endeavorers should be progressive enough and independent enough to pay their own way wherever they went.

Miss Beatty seconded the motion. "Of course, we should pay our own way," she said, "and if we lose in quantity at our convention from such a cause, we will gain in quality." (Laughter and applause.)

The motion was carried unanimously. The convention closed with a public meeting in the drill hall. The programme included addresses by Rev. Francis Clark, D.D., on "The Christian Endeavor Birthright," and by Mr. N. W. Hoyles, Q.C., of Toronto, on "The Evangelization of the World in This Generation." Rev. Dr. Clark fith's Therese II., but his mount was unplaced.

SOAP SHARP VICTIMIZED

Beaten Out of a Dollar by a Ridgetown Boy Whom He Had "Roped In."

Ridgetown Dominion: A Ridgetown youth who attended the Rodney fair on Tuesday displayed an amount of foolishness that was only redeemed by his nerve afterward.

A soap sharp was rolling up $5 bills, putting them in certain boxes, and offering a choice of three for $2. He tossed a box containing a "V" to the young man, told him to look and see if the money was in it, and put it back with the rest. This the young man did, and at once bought a choice for $2. Needless to say, he drew a blank. Again the operation was repeated, and the young man was out another $2.

The soap man soon moved down to another corner and commenced operations on a new crowd. But the crowd was not all new. It contained the Ridgetown young man, who had followed the sharper. The latter began as before. He evidently did not recognize his victim, or believed he was ready to bite again. He tossed a box containing a five to the young man, and told him to look and see that the bill was there. This the young man did, and more: He took the bill out and coolly put it in his pocket, remarking:

"You have $4 of mine; I have $5 of yours," and walked away. The sharp shouted at him, and he was followed into a hotel by a couple of cappers, but the young man held on to the money, refusing even to give back the extra dollar he was ahead.

GET FLESH.

Get Strength, Vigor,!Clear Complexion and Good Digestion, Not by Patent Medicine, but in Nature's Own Way. Any honest physician will tell you that there is but one way to get increased flesh; all the patent medicines and cod liver oils to the contrary, notwithstanding. Nature has but one way to increase flesh, strength and vigor, mind and body, and that is through the stomach, by wholesome food, well digested. There is no reason or common sense in other methods whatever.

People are thin, run-down, nervous, pale and shaky in their nerves simply because their stomachs are weak. They may not think they have dyspepsia, but the fact remains that they do not eat enough food, or what they eat is not quickly and properly digested, as it should be.

Dr. Harlandson says the reason is because the stomach lacks certain digestive acids and peptones, and deficient secretion of gastric juice.

Nature's remedy in such cases is to supply what the weak stomach lacks. There are several good preparations which will do this, but none so readily as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which are designed especially for all stomach troubles, and which cure all digestive weakness on the common-sense plan of furnishing the digestive principles which the stomach lacks.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give perfect digestion. First effect is to increase the appetite and increased crease the appetite and increased vigor, added flesh, pure blood and strength of nerve and muscle is the perfectly natural result. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the saf-est tonic known, and will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach. May be found at druggists at 50 cents for full-sized package, or direct by mail from Stuart Co., Marshall. Mich.

with whom he was infatuated. Morrison was arrested on Market street in San Francisco, in March last, and was taken back to Texas. During 1891 he was pastor of the Methodist Church at Hanford, and in 1892 was transferred to San Diego. From the latter place he went to Panhandle City, Texas, becoming pastor of the Methodist Church there.

IN RE LUMBER

Ottawa Valley Men Interview the Dominion Premier and His Aides.

[By C. P. R. Telegraph to Advertiser.] Ottawa, Oct. 14.- A delegation of lumbermen waited on Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Sir Richard Cartwright and Hon. Mr. Davies. It comprised J. R. Booth, W. C. Edwards, M.P., A. Lumsden, M.P.P., and Levi Crannell. The position of the Ottawa Valley lumbermen in connection with the new Ontario law providing for the manufacture of logs in Canada is well known. What the Ottawa men want is free lumber by the United States tariff, and to anything which will prevent this being obtained. The Ontario law will, on the other hand, they claim, be to provoke retaliation. The matter was discussed at length.

A Michigan Bluff.

The Saginaw Courier-Herald uses this coarse and impudent language in allusion to the Ontario Government's timber legislation;

"The Ontario authorities are simply paving the way for retaliatory legislation which will bring them up standing within the ensuing year unless they come off the perch. The Canadian railroads are enjoying privileges in the way of obtaining business which will be attacked, and other measures will be adopted to bring the Ontario authorities to a sense of their folly. * * * Retaliation is a weapon that cuts both ways and unless Ontario takes a tumble she will get it up her nose in a way that will make her stagger some fine morning. The American people are slow to act, but when they get down to business they generally make themselves both seen and heard."

Bullying like that will only stiffen the backbone of this province. The Courier-Herald is the mouthpiece of the Saginaw Valley sawmill owners. Judging by this squeal they have been hurt. But the lumbermen of the Saginaw, who have been cutting timber in this province, know that the Ontario Government is within its rights. They ackowledged the justice of its position by tacit assent to the resolution passed by the Ontario Lumbermen's Association, approving the pro-Aribition of the export of our logs until the United States duty on Canadian lumber had been removed. They dared not openly oppose the "free logs, free lumber" policy in this province, but they are covertly employing threats in the vain hope that the Provincial Government will weaken. These foolish tactics will only solidify public sentiment in support of the Administration.

The form of retaliation hinted at by the Courier-the canceling of the privileges of Canadian railways in the United States-has no terror for this country. Congress will not repeal the bonding privilege. It would be a harder blow at the United States than at Canada. The farmers of the Northwestern States and the manufacturers of the New England States would not permit it. If the lumbermen have no stronger retaliatory weapon than this they should turn their attention from Toronto to Washington. It was Congress caused their trouble, and it is to Congress that they must look for the remedy. They cannot ravage Ontario's forests to feed Michigan sawmills, while forcing Ontario's sawmills into idleness. If they want Ontario logs they can have them when they give Ontario lumber fair play. The logs belong to Ontario and Ontario will do what she pleases with them. She will not be bluffed.

A far more influential journal than the Courier is the Detroit Journal, and we think it represents the view of the reasonable American when it says:

"Our Canadian neighbors over the border are very firm in their stand on the lumber question. Their action imposes a hardship on several hundred Michigan men; it ties up many thousands of dollars of Michigan capital; but the Canadians are doing just what spirited people would do under provocation. * * When the such provocation. tariff was doubled, for the sole purpose of shutting them out of the American market, they very properly resented it. Every fair-minded American must admit the justice of their position. The stoppage of log shipments will, in the end, be beneficial all around if it will serve to open the eyes of the American people to the abuses of the tariff law.'

An Important Church Congress in England.

Additional interest attached to the meeting of the Church of England Congress at Bradford, in Yorkshire, owing to the fact that the Church is passing through a "crisis," or is in the throes of another anti-ritualistic controversy. One speaker ridiculed this talk of a crisis, and declared that the Church of England had been passing through a crisis ever since he was born. But there was a wide-spread feeling that the present movement is of serious import. "High" Church and "Low" Church must square their accounts, and learn to live and work together in peace, unless they mean to tear the Church asunder and strengthen the movement for disestablishment The London Spectator denounces the agitators, and lifts up its hands in holy horror when some controversialist quotes a startling passage from some confessional manual. That easy policy of crying peace, when there is no peace, is utterly vain. It is useless to talk as if Sir William Harcourt. or even "the agitator," Mr. Kensit, had created the crisis. The leader of the Opposition is too shrewd to meddle with this matter, if he did not know that it is a real movement of farreaching importance. An agitator of the Kensit type would have no signiof unrest among many whose love and

The Times has pursued a wiser end courage. It says: "The authority of a political leader upon matters of make political capital out of ecclesiasever they may think of his motives, in making it, can echo his appeal, delusion."

Will the bishops, with a clear voice, a firm hand and a straightforward mind, resist this lawless enterprise (of assimilating the practice and creed of the Church of England to those of Rome), or will they continue to palliate and connive at, even if they do not encourage, the violation of the plain law of the Church."

Some of the Irish party took offense at Sir William Harcourt's action; but surely it is a hyper-sensitive spirit which construes a demand for faithfulness within the Church of England to its own standards into an attack upon the Church of Rome. The discipline within the Church of England is a matter for the English people.

A church congress is not the body to deal with such a burning question. It is practically nothing more than a grand ecclesiastical convention. It has no legisative power, but it does bring together representatives of the various sections of the Church, as well as officials of high position. Probably the Church of England does not include more than half of the people of England, and those who are in living communion are, of course, a much smaller number. Even in a Church of that size, comprehensiveness must be the watchword. It is important that all shades of Christian theology, and all forms of religious life, should as far as possible be tolerated and harmonized. But it is felt that there are limits even to comprehensiveness, and if the extreme parties do not recognize this, disruption or disestablishment must be the result. The Church Congress was a type of the Church in this, that while there was no machinery for attempting a practical solution of the problem, there was abundant opportunity for the expression of opinion; as, in addition to the congress proper, their various sections had their own meetings, where they could state their grievances at still greater length. The following extract from the Bishop of Ripon's presidential address reflects very faithfully the temper of the English people, the gift and capacity which has made them great in the world: "Doubtless we shall touch on subjects which offer opportunity for debate, and which admit of divergence of opinion. We have no wish to evade these questions. We have no intention of stifling discussion. We live in England; nay, more, we are breathing the sturdy atmosphere of the north, which has always been fatal to tyranny. In such a place as this a man may, whether girt by friends or foes, here in Bradford speak the thing

Along the same line the Bishop of Southwell said, in speaking of the work of congress: He was not himself desirous that people should have no distinctive differences of opinion on Church matters. Congress brought opponents to hear both sides, and had by this time worked into its attendants' minds that desire for truth required to hear both sides.

In harmony with this, we find that Mr. Kensit was allowed to follow Lord Halifax and express his views on the wickedness of the clergy and the weakness of the bishops. Lord Halifax spoke mildly in the debate, but at the Church Union meeting he complained that "the clergy had in many cases been admonished to abstain from hearing the confessions of those who wished to make them, from receiving the Blessed Sacrament for the use of the sick and dying," etc. The other side, however, claim that Lord Halifax and his friends would force these things upon the people. Sir J. H. Kennaway, M.P., said: "Disestablishment would be bad enough, disruption would be worse; but it would come if things went on, for the Roman confession was deeply abhorrent to the English people. Of what use would be their defenses against foes without, if they fell to pieces from foes within?"

From all this it will be seen that the "crisis" seems to be a very real one. It is one with which the English people must deal. The Church of England has never been more active, and never evoked greater loyalty, but unless it can attain substantial harmony within itself, the demand for disestablishment will grow deep, and stronger than ever before. This is the solution which to many seems to lie along the line of justice; but it will not be brought about in England without great friction, and if the clergy displayed more wisdom it might be indefinitely delayed.

A Big Sphere.

The Yangtse Valley, which is the undisputed British sphere of influence in China, even by the admission of those who wish to restrict that sphere, is described by the authoritative hand of Mr. Archibald Little in the current Contemporary Review. According to him it has an area of 600,000 square miles. The present trade of the Yangtse is estimated at $150,000,000, which, in Mr. Little's opinion, could easily be increased to $1,500,000,000. Mr. Little asks whether the British sphere of influence really exists, and answers that it is a pure mirage as long as it is not acknowledged by rival powers. ficance if there was no general feeling This experienced explorer suggests that the British should continually exloyalty to the Church is unquestioned. ploit the sphere of influence, so that it no longer may be a mirage. Mr. H. Cockshutt, manager of the Cockshutt plow works, and president of the Board of Trade, Brantford. states that he has never seen such prosperous times among the manufacturers of Ontario as prevail at present. Mr. Cockshutt is a good Conservative, too.

The defeat of the Progressives in the Cape Colony Assembly by the narrow majority of 2 probably means another election, as the Bond party cannot carry on the Government with so narrow a margin. There is little doubt that Rhodes will win in the next heat.

With Indians rebelling in Minnesota, white and colored troops fighting each other in Alabama, and white and colored miners exchanging bullets in Illinois, the United States has a pretty wide area of disturbance within its own borders, let alone the West Indies and the Philippines.

The Christian Endeavor convention at Hamilton has pronounced against the billeting system. The Y. P. S. C. E. is usually up with the times. This action may thin out attendance at future conventions, but the delegates will be more representative. The necessity of paying their own board may keep the less zealous ones at home.

Clarence Alvord, in the Self-Culture Magazine, utters this pretty conception of the Anglo-American alliance:

"I love to think of these two great nations as two flowers coming to full bloom on one stem, which, like the century plant, grows for years and only at last brings its blossoms as a gift to the gardener. The two flowers are, indeed, separate, but the roots and the stock are the same.

The Canadian Government has done wisely in determining that St. John, N. B., and not Portland, Me., shall be the terminus of our winter steamship service with Great Britain. It will be news to British and American shipping interests to hear that we have a winter port. The idea that Canada was frozen in and ice-bound in the winter has been prevalent too long.

The Advertiser seconds the motion of the Montreal Star that Thanksgiving Day be proclaimed earlier in the fall. Nobody is in a holiday mood in November. Why wait till the frost is on the pumpkin and surly blasts make fields and forests bare? Early October is the time. The weather is usually fine, the harvest is just garnered, and there is more incentive to thanksgiving than later on when the coal bills come in.

People are getting tired of all this froth about corruption in the Yukon. If there are any facts under the froth they want them brought to the surface. This the Government is trying to do. Meanwhile people will turn a deaf ear to scandal-mongers, who are as destitute of real information as they are of decent regard for the characters of men who are too far away to reply, and who should be held innocent until they are proved guilty.

Some of the German newspapers state that the business of defending the Transvaal against Britain was too costly and inconvenient for them, but that they are quite willing that the French should take it in hand; and with a sublime simplicity they declare that they would not be jealous if that should happen. France, however, has sufficient on hand of her own without attempting to perform tasks which the Germans find "too costly and incon-

> The Lindsay Collegiate Institute has arranged for the fall and winter months a series of lectures by Prof. Robertson, Dominion Commissioner of Agriculture; Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick, M.P., Solicitor-General of Canada; Hon. G. E. Foster, M.P., ex-Minister of Finance; Mr. B. E. Walker, General Manager of the Bank of Commerce, and Lieut.-Col. Smith, late D. O. C. of Militia District No. 1. These leading men will deal with national subjects. It is a very sensible idea.

There is only one cure for the ward evils in sight, namely, the election of the council, like the mayor, by the whole city, and by the system that guarantees that every one of the elect shall represent a majority of the whole people. Kingston wants it and will have it yet.-Kingston Whig.

And London, too, when the ratepayers appreciate their own interests. The man who represents a majority of the people is apt to be of more consequence the czar's disarmament proposal. Yet than a man who represents the small section in one ward.

> An exchange speaks approvingly of the shortness of Judge Van Wyck's speech of aceptance, and thereby recalls the remark with which Fred Douglass introduced one of his lectures. He said most people listened to a negro's lecture as they watched a dog's efforts to stand on his hind feet-pleased not that he did it well, but that he did it at all .- Syracuse

The Post pays Frederick Douglass a poor compliment in crediting him with that epigram. Douglass stole it from Dr. Johnson. The old doctor said that a woman preaching reminded one of a dog standing on his hind feet. She did not do it well, but he was surprised that she did it at all. But then the old doctor was a notorious mossback in many things.

It is surprising to hear the usually well-informed Springfield (Mass.) Republican talking like this:

The Canadas never mean to go to war. If that were even remotely contemplated the authorities wouldn't now be busily bringing about the immigration of the "spirit wrestlers" of Russia, who because of religious scruples refuse to enter military service. They are therefore not wanted in Russia, though they are a very simple and industrious people. They number ,500, and a site has been selected for hem on the New River hills, near Edmonton, Peel county, Ont., not far from Toronto.

Edmonton, Peel county, Ont.! And Canada was congratulating herself that she was becoming better known! If the Republican will brush up its geography it will find that Edmonton and Peel county, Ont., are a few thousand miles apart; but, of course, that is a mere trifle in a country of such magnificert distances as Canada.

A contemporary is making much of what it calls the line of cleavage, on the prohibition question, between Quebec and other Provinces. But that is not the only line of cleavage. There has been a nearly equivalent cleavage among the Protestant denominations, one leading denomination having furmished few speakers to the controversy, and as many to one side as the other; while another denomination declined to at least a very considerable extent to say that prohibition was the only, or beyond question the best, remedy for what remain of drinking usages. From one excellent denomination, it is true, resolutions are beginning to appear, demanding immediate prohibitory legislation, and this even before the actual poll, about which there is considerable doubt, has been definitely ascertained. From a majority of the denominations, however, it is more than probable that few, if any, resolutions will emanate. It is pretty generally admitted that a prohibitory law, to be workable, must have a measurably unanimous public feeling behind it. This principle was recognized in the recent General Methodist Conference, when a resolution was offered, making the prohibition of dancing, etc., more imperative, within the bounds of Methodist membership. The resolution was voted down, apparently on the ground that there are limits beyond which prohibitive mandates cannot go with success within the membership of a denomination or a congregation. So that, to revert to the point at which this paragraph commenced, there is nothing to be gained by making too much of any line of cleavage as between Quebec and any other Province, seeing that lines of cleavage, equally marked, separate the opinion and action of other subdivisions into which the Dominion could be classified.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Hasn't England's Advantages. [Springfield Republican.]

Unless the conditions are equally favorable it is impossible for another nation, even our own, to succeed without self-injury in ruling subject races simply because England has succeed-To succeed as England has we must have England's advantages for the work, and it should be apparent to the dullest mind that we have not those advantages at the present time.

That Birth Rate Again.

[Hamilton Times.] It is a little discouraging to the clergymen who have been trying to arouse enthusiasm on the higher birth-rate question to have Sir William Crookes prophesying that in a short wheat area and the diminishing sup ply of nitrogen. Rev. Dr. Williams, of Stratford, may well feel that Sir William's remarks are untimely.

Quiet Hint to Rockefeller. [Des Moines Leader.] It is said that John D. Rockefeller will surmount his family mausoleum at Cleveland with a monolith second in size only to Cleopatra's needle. It is hoped the eye will be large enough for so rich a man to get through. No Compromise. [New York Mail and Express.]

Great Britain, with all her past faults in African enterprise, is the greatest colonizing and civilizing force that the modern world has known; France one of the weakest. Great Britain in the present controversy is right, and France is wrong. There can be no compromise—and there should be none.

> Looking for Light Work. [Christian Quardian.]

"Don," in Saturday Night, speaks of the many well-educated young fellows who besiege his office and other city offices for any kind of employment. They are willing to do any and every kind of light work, if it is pleasant and agreeable, but in reality they are incapable of doing anything. There is something wrong with the education that leaves a young man in that fix. Either he was wrongly educated or he did not get education enough. A young man should prepare himself for something, and be able to go ahead and help himself after his education is finished.

Fifty-five War Vessels Being Constructed for the U. S. Navy.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 14.-After his return to the Millard from the exposition last night, Gen. Miles was asked by the Associated Press what his future plans were-whether he proposed going to Leach Lake, Minn., to quell the Indian troubles there, or would resume operations in Porto Rico and Cuba. His reply was: "Neither; I expect to go to St. Paul, Duck Island, and the peace jubilee at Chicago, and then return to Washington." Washington, Oct. 14.—After devoting the forenoon yesterday to hearing the testimony of Dr. Hoff, a chief sur-geon of the Third Army Corps, stationed at Camp Thomas, the war investigation commission gave the remainder of today to the reading of papers submitted by Secretary Alger with his statement concerning the conduct of the war.

The documents reveal the fact that Gen. Miles recommended the occupa-tion of the Isle of Pines about the time of the battle of Santiago, and that Secretary Alger disapproved the sug-gestion. It also appears that Gen. Miles recommended that some point between Santiago and Porto Rico be taken previous to the beginning of either campaign. The correspondence also developed the fact that there was an apparent conflict of authority between Gen. Miles and Gen. Shafter at Tampa before the Santiago campaign was inaugurated. It also shows that orders were issued by the secretary of war that in the event that Gen. Shafter should be disabled by sickness or other cause, the command of the troops at Santiago should devolve upon Gen. Wheeler and upon the next in command in case of the disability of both Shafter and Wheeler.

UNCLE SAM TO HAVE A BIG NAVY. The remarkable rapidity with which the naval power of the United States is being increased may be realized when it is stated that 55 war vessels are now under contract for the government, and that their aggregate tonnage far exceeds that of the vessels building at any one time during the civil war. This vast construction programme, which has excited more at-tention abroad than at home, has been authorized gradually by congress, and will place the United States third in rank among the sea powers. In addition to the enormous neet, including auxiliaries, actually in commission at the present time, 20 vessels are in various stages of readiness, and shipbuilders are harriedly gathering the material for 35 others. Of the 55 vessels, 8 are first-class heavily armored sea-going battleships, 38 are torpedo boats, 4 are monitors and 1 is a powerful cruiser.

Chief Constructor Hichborn has completed a tabulated statement showing the degree of completion of the 20 vessels now nearly ready for commission, from which it appears that 17 of these vessels have already been launched, and that the others will be afloat before the end of this year.

AT VIRDEN

The Imported Colored Miners Under Guard-Authorities in a Quandary-The Dead.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 14.-All the negro miners from Alabama who came to work in the Chicago-Virden Coal Company's mines at Virden, with the exception of a few who went north on the train from Springfield, are in Allen's Hall, the headquarters of the local miners' union in this city. Policemen are guarding the hall. Mayor Wheeler yesterday afternoon had the streets cleared of miners for several blocks from the hall.

The negroes number 166. It was understood that they would be shipped back to Alabama last night, but it was not done. Adjutant-General Reese stated last night that the federation of miners refused to have anything to do with the transportation of negroes from here to their homes, that the state had no authority to send them away, and that the authorities were in a quandary.

The idle miners are excitable and determined, while the Chicago-Virden Coal Company has shown no sign of a purpose to abandon its plan of operating its mines with imported negroes. The shooting has resulted in thirteen deaths so far, as follows: Ernest Kiterly, miner, of Mount Olive; Ellis Smith, miner, of Mount Olive; Ed. Webb, miner, of Springfield; Wm. Blue, miner, Springfield; Ernest Kemler, miner, of Mount Olive; A. H. Brennaman, miner, Girard; Frank Bilyen, miner, Springfield; Ed. Green, miner, of Mount Olive, died in hospital at Springfield; Ernest Long, miner, of Mount Olive, died in hosptal at Springfield; D. H. Kiley, a detective, Chicago: A. W. Carroll, guard on train, died in hospital at Springfield; Al. W. Morgan, guard, Chicago, killed in the stockade; Thomas Preston, guard, of Chicago, killed at stockade. The number of injured will not much exceed twenty. Of these a few are in a critical condition.

New Sewer Causes Wells on Pall Mall and Maitland Streets to Run Dry-Residents Obliged to Use the City Water Service.

Some of the residents on Pall Mall and Maitland streets are in a peculiar plight. They have wells on their property, and the trench of the new sewer in that locality is much deeper than the wells. In consequence, the wells are drained. Ald. Cooper said at the board of works meeting last night that several of the residents had complained to him, and claimed they should be supplied with the city water free. Their wells were good, they say, and they don't like the way the new sewer works in the interest of the waterworks department.

Assistant City Engineer Ironside pointed out the benefit the sewer was in the matter of drainage. When the East End was reached, he said, the wells would suffer more, and the drainage would be more beneficial.

THE PLEBISCIT

Two Particulars in Which Published Figures Are Wrong.

Ontario's Majority for Prohibition Larger and Quebec's Majority Against Smaller Than Already

[C. P. R. Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, Oct. 14.-It will be several days yet before all the plebiscit returns are in, when accurate information can be obtained as to results of vote. Enough, however, is known to show that the figures now published in the press are wrong in two particulars. For instance, the majority in Ontario for prohibition will be very those who were not surprised when | much larger than stated. It will be in the neighborhood of 36,000.

In Quebec the majority will not be so large against prohibition as is stated. Instead of its being about 90,000 it will be in the vicinity of 70,000. The secretary of state today said that there were very few complaints in regard to voting, and what was complained of were minor matters.

The provost, in his opening remarks, commented on the kindly reception of the students of the university as they had gone to their various stations. The students had also been of great assistance to the local clergy in church and Sabbath school work.

At the conclusion or the address the following officers were elected: President, Provost Watkins, M.A.; vicepresident, W. J. Doherty, '99; treasurer, Rev. Prof. Burgess, M.A.; secretary, T. Bart Howard, '00; secretary for Gleaners' Union, H. M. Langford; advisory committee, W. J. Doherty, T. Bart Howard, F. Hewitt, I. M. Webb and Ramsay.

The students will meet in the college tonight, and organize a literary society and elect officers for the same.

THE DEMANDS

And What Spain Would Be Willing to Concede.

Talk With a Spanish Peace Commissioner-No Hitch or Break in the Negotiations - Rebellion Against Aguinaldo-Many Dying Soldiers Drenched.

New York, Oct. 14 .- A special cable from Paris to the World says: Senor Abarzuza, a member of the Spanish

"Has the United States demanded the whole Philippine group?" he was asked.

"She has not, so far," replied Senor Abarzuza, "and will, I think, be content with the Ladrones, or part of them, perhaps with Guam, which she has already taken. However, as to that, I give only my impression." "Has not the United States displayed great magnanimity in not demanding indemnity?" 'Cuba is indemnity, according to our views. The commissions will not have to consider any question of money in-

"Is there no claim for the Maine?" That does not fall within the scope of the commission." "Is it true that a serious hitch has arisen between the commissions, and that a break in negotiations is perceptible? That rumor is a ridiculous exaggeration. No hitch has arisen." "On what ground can Spain ask the United States to assume the Cuban debt?' "Cuba is the key to the Gulf of Mexico, and has long been necessary to the United States. For that reason alone she might take upon herself the "When the United States get Cuba she will immediately secure control of the customs, which will enable her to effect a conversion of the debt and reduce the interest from 6 to 2 per cent.' "You imply that Spanish relinquishe ment of sovereignty means American annexation, not Cuban independence?" "Certainly. Our relinquishment means the transference of sovereignty to America, with all its rights, therefore also its obligations." "Does that apply equally to the Philippines and their debt?" "No, that case is absolutely opposite. America would be extremely unwise to start a policy of colonial expansion.

"Taking the Philippines would mean a colonial army, a colonial civil ser-vice and more ships." "But the American people have fully counted the cost." "They cannot have done so, because they do not know it. Of course, if the United States were seeking to obtain large interests in the far east, the Philippines would be valuable. Such a policy, however, would entail constantly increasing sacrifices and involve international complications of the most onerous description." AGUINALDO'S TROUBLE,

Manila, Oct. 14.-A rumor here says that Macabulos, chief of the five northern provinces of the Philippine Islands, has rebelled against Aguinaldo, and that hard fighting has already taken place between the opposing factions. It is also reported here that Gen. Rios, the Spanish commander at Iloilo, has missionaries from that place to undermine Aguinaldo influence and induce the natives to demand that Spain retain the Philippine Islands. YELLOW FEVER

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 14.—Fourteen new cases of yellow fever and one ceath in Jackson is the record for yesterday.
This is the highest number of cases yet reported. Natchez reports that six mild cases of yellow fever were found there. Madison reports five new cases, Starksville one new case, Oxford no new cases and one death, Waveland two new cases and one death, Hattiesburg six new cases since Sunday, Harriston sixteen new cases, with three critically ill.

"ONLY, THEY BREATHE." Our father was a typical officer of the time of Nicholas I., writes Prince Kropotkin in the September Atlantic. Not that he was imbued with a warlike spirit, or much in love with camp life; I doubt whether he spent one single night of his life at a bivouac fire, or took part in one single battle. But under Nicholas I. that was of a quite secondary importance. The true military man of those times was the officer who was enamored of the military uniform and utterly despised all other sorts of attire; whose soldiers were trained to perform almost inhuman tricks with their legs and rifles (to break the wood of the rifle into pieces while "presenting arms" was one of those famous tricks), and who could show on a parade ground a row of soldiers as perfectly aligned and as motionless as a row of toy soldiers. "Very good," the Grand Duke Michael said once of a regiment, after having kept it for one hour, motionless, "presenting arms"-"only, they breathe!" To respond to the then current conception of a military man was certainly

my father's ideal. A GOOD ONE TO RECEIVE. "I notice that Candidate Roosevelt force that old saying, 'Thou shalt not steal.'"

Well, by chance one evening, I saw among your books a volume having writing on the fiy-leaf the name of W. Selwyn. Also I saw suspended around the neck of the lady who was in the garden just now a fac simile of the locket, even to the initials 'W. S.,' which you, Lady Lethrington, lost.'

Gerard, what could I do? I felt on the verge of clearing up a mystery, of once again grasping happiness in your Maria to be trustworthy; while my heart was beating as if it would burst, I decided. I told her my story, and implored her secretly to gain for me My brain was dizzy; I knew what information she could respecting Walter Selwyn.

Taking my hands, she exclaimed, joyfully, excitedly: Dearest Lady Lethrington, I thank heaven for making me the instrument to restore you to happiness. Your fears are quite unfounded-you are the earl's wife and no other.'

When a mere child he had much liked a female cousin, and finally they had been betrothed, much to the parents' delight; they were bent on the match, for the lady was rich. As the two, however, grew up, the elder brother fancied Walter's affection cooled, and he knew not how matters would have turned out had he not been drowned during a gale in the Indian Ocean.'

"But the locket!' I exclaimed, hysterical with joy. The one Caroline wears is like yours. She was playing with it as I was bidding her goodnight. I should have asked about it; but at the moment any intelligence respecting it, for it did occur to me it might be the one I had lost. Bidding me wait, she said she would try. Indeed, she had to see Caroline Selwyn, as she was to leave with her husband in less than an hour.

Very shortly she returned, and had been successful. Caroline Selwyn had received the locket on her marriage morning from her husband. "As sure, my love, as I can trust myself. Oh, Gerard, our troubles are really over now. We may enjoy peace ing in a large market place, and people She leaned her head on his shoulder. As he bent down to encircle her with his arm, his eyes fell on the confession left by the priest. His countenance changed; his tone was grave as he remarked:

'No, my darling, not quite, yet, must we look for untroubled happiness." In surprise, she raised her eyes to

"If you have been the object of a strange occurrence, so also have I," replied the earl; whereupon he recounted what had transpired. "And your cousin lives-lives still?" ejeculated Lucille.

"And must be found, my darling."
"Found—yes; but. Gerard," and she leaned nearer, "your oath—she cannot now part us?" "No," he smiled; "the laws of God and man forbid that, sweet wife.

Nevertheless restitution must "Oh, willingly! I will love and cherish her as a sister!" ejeculated the countess, with considerable readiness.

"But have you seen what this woman Fantina has said?" "Not yet. Believing then that we were parted, the shock was too great to care to. Enough that my cousin lived.'

"Then, Gerard, dear, let us read it together, and see if there is any difference.

The earl complied, but apparently there was not; only, as the priest had said, the sentences were more fervent of repentance. Still, they read on, and finally same to the part where the Dawson advices to the 19th inst. and "Dusk had fallen when I missed Lady Esmer. I had kept the fact who my nurse-child was a secret from my neighbors, and now I feared to reveal it; I dreaded I might be punished. I was mad. I sought to discover the gipsies; they had left the village two hours before. Taking my child in the darkness, I tried to follow them, but they must have gone across the country; for none I met could tell me anything about them—none whatever. All I knew was that the gypsy who danced so well was called Sapron, for I heard one of the men address her so.' "Saproni!" cried Lucille; "that is Maria's name!"

Then she stopped, and husband and wife, struck by a similar wild thought, gazed at each other.

"If," almost whispered Lucille, at last, "it should chance to be, Gerard."

"You mean, my love," he laughed, "that Maria Saproni should be Lady Esmer? From what you have told me she would be no dishonor to our house. But nothing is so improbable; the name is no uncommon one in Italy.

"True," remarked Lucille, slowly, evidently not liking to give up the supposition. "Still, a few words from Maria herself would confirm or negative the doubt.'

"There would be no harm in that. When could you see her?" "This instant, for she is here, ex-claimed the countess, springing up. "Mrs. Mannering kindly granted my request that she should pass this day with me. I will fetch her."

"Stay awhile. There is more yet party in the face. of the MS. Let us conclude it first. A TEDIOUS Lucille resumed her seat, and the earl read on. The paper proceeded to state the flight, and Fantina's life until her death.

"Not a day of my existence has Lady Esmer been out of my mind, she said. 'I look at every one I meet to try to discover her, though now she must be a woman. Every gipsy that has crossed my path I have followed and examined attentively. All—all in vain. And did I find her. How could I prove it to be she? I could not. She wore nothing that the Bohemians would have preserved. She had no mark save one produced by accident, thus—she was standing at my knee, while I was cutting some stuff for my Pepita's frock. Suddenly Lady Esmer stretched out her right hand to get some of the pieces, when the scissors snipped the upper part of her arm severely. It left a deep scar in shape like the head of an arrow; but after all these years, even that may have died away.

Her new joy had apparently ban-ished all physical weakness, for, as light as a bird, she hastened from the apartment. Speedily she returned with the Italian. Having introduced her to Gerard, and made her sit down, Lucille said:

you once told me you would ipted.' let me hear your history. Have you "I asked her if she could ascertain any objection to now? I really have a justifiable reason for asking." The Italian hesitated, glanced at the earl, and then on the floor, with a heightened color. Finally, raising her eyes, with a quiet smile, she replied:
"Why should I object, your ladyship? The humbleness of my birth, they make themselves. Not by their birth-which is a matter perfectly be-

TRAIL. Dr. McLaren, of Highgate, Ont., who spent the best part of the summer in trying to enter the Klondike by the Ashcroft trail, has returned to Victoria, and confirms the startling stories already told as to the terrors of that route Dr. of that route. Dr. McLaren, with 15 other men and three horses, left Asheroft July 18, with strong hopes of reaching their destination, Glenora, in 20 days. Proceeding by wagon to Quesnelle, everything was lovely until that point was reached, but no sooner had the settlement been left behind than bogs, quagmires, mus-kegs, almost impassable bridges and every other obstruction known to the wayfarer of a "blaze" became plenti-ful. The horses were for days toful. gether up to their girths in mud. The pack-horses would halt on a swaying bridge, get a foothold in a crevice of the planks, turn restive and disappear over the side into the ravine, beyond all possibility of recovery. Dr. McLaren says the trail, instead of being only 30 days, occupies at the least possible calculation 100, so that a party setting out with supplies sufficient for a month, will find themselves, having accomplished but one-third of the distance, without food. The trail is fully 1,300 to 1,400 miles long, instead of the 500 or 600 as claimed by the "boomers."

At one place between the two summits there is a division of the so-called trail, and one fork leads to Away up in the mountains could be seen the camp-fires, marking the progress of those who had been unfortunate enough to follow it. They can never find a way out. Short of provisions, destitute of clothing, with chill of winter approaching, their fate, Dr. McLaren says, is sealed.

CANADIAN CHIPPEWAS

Their Treatment in Marked Contrast to That of Minnesota Tribes.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 13 .- The recent Pillager Indian outbreak at Walker, Minn., recalls the recent fair held by members of the Chippewa tribe at the Sarnia reservation, and displays to a marked degree the progress made by each tribe under different methods civilization. When the city of Sarnia was laid out, over 10,000 acres of land was purchased from the Chippewa tribe, and the amount paid, $200,000, was kept in trust for them by the Canadian Government. Every six months the interest at 4 per cent is divided among them pro rata. A child 2 months old receives as much as a grown man. The government agent, Alexander English, recalls incidents where a child was born one day before the sixmonths for paying the interest expired, and the parents were given the child's share. This is also considered an incentive for the propagation of the race. The reservation contains now over 2.000 acres. The Indian population is about 250. Another tribe of Chippewas, but who are under the same supervision as the Sarnia reserve Indians, Connected With the Murdered Saxton -An Old Flame Was Soon to Become His Wife.

New York, Oct. 13 .- A special to the World from Canton says that the Mc-Kinleys have decided not to prosecute Mrs. George. They shrink from the notoriety which a trial for murder would thrust upon them. The public prosecutor will, however, push the case in the interests of justice. It is said the president successfully opposed the plan to photograph the dead man's eyes in the hope that the negative might catch in them the reflection of the form that stood over him when the shots were fired.

It developed that a Mrs. Mary F. Park, now living in New York, and working to support herself and daughter, Salome, was to have been married to George Saxton within a few weeks. Years ago they were good friends. Indeed, she loved Saxton when a pretty girl in Canton. In a pique she married Wm. F. Park, a good-looking traveling salesman. They were never happy. She obtained a divorce recently, and her heart had turned again to George Saxton. The latter wrote to her encouragingly, telling her that grubbing for a living would not be her portion for long, and the woman's heart leaped for joy as she contemplated a grand wedding, to be graced by the president of the United States and the chief lady of the land. When she learned that Saxton was dead in the cold public print of a daily newspaper, she swooned away. She is again at work in the Hotel Marie Antoinette, at Sixty-fifth street and the Boulevard, New York,a broken-hearted woman. The "life tree" of Jamaica is harder to kill than any other species of wooden growth known. It continues to grow and thrive for months after it has been rooted and exposed to the sun.

tion for the last time at a prayer meeting Wednesday evening. At the close of the service John Dreaver, on behalf of the members of the church, presented Mr. and Mrs. Carr with a purse of money as a slight token of their regret at the departure of their pastor and his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Carr left today for Montreal. To-morrow evening they board the Dominion Liner Scotsman, for Liverpool. Mr. Carr was at one time pastor of the Southern Congregational Church in

FROEBEL SOCIETY. The weather on Tuesday afternoon made the attendance at the first Froebel Society mothers' meting smaller than was expected, but the forty-five mothers and kindergartners who reached St. George's kindergarten had a pleasant, sociable time together. The reading of the minutes of the last regular meeting was followed by a brief address from the president, Miss Laidlaw, who took as her subject the help Froebel offers to women. All women should have the training that will enable them to properly meet the needs of children, as all women, whether mothers, or not, have something to do with children. Froebel shows the mother the meaning of the child's play, and how to guide it. To illustrate his method of guiding the child's mind, and training him bodily, five simple finger-songs were sung by the members of the society, after which the meeting became informal. The next mothers' meeting, to be held in Talbot street kindergarten on Nov. 8, will be addressed by Mrs. Boomer, on the

"Girl From Paris" Last Evening-"What Happened to Jones"-Two Performances Tomorrow-Joe Ott Tuesday Night Next.

JOE OTT, TUESDAY NEXT. A meritorious play, an especially competent company, and just enoug. special scenic environment to lend zest to an entertainment of the farcecomedy order, are all that is requisite to enable a popular comedian to disport with satisfaction to himself and delight to an audience. Such a happy combination Joe Ott can absolutely rely upon this season, for in 'Looking for Trouble' Mr. Ott has secured a perfect gem as a mirth-provoker, according to authenticated reports. Only a passing glance at the names of his assistant fun makers will convince anyone of the splendid judgment of his selections.

"WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES" TOMORROW. We are going to have the funniest of all farces in London. Its name is "What happened to Jones," and about one-half of the cities of the civilized world have already held their sides at its overpowering fun. It will be seen at the Grand matinee and night tomorrow, presented by a special New York company of twelve comedians headed by Howell Hansel, who has made the greatest hit of anyone who has appeared in the leading comic role. There will doubtless be a stampede to see it, as nearly everyone has heard how funny it is. "GIRL FROM PARIS." "The Girl From Paris" was produced at the Grand Opera last night before a good-sized audience. The play contains a succession of funny incidents from start to finish, in some of which there is a little giddiness. The company is well chosen, and the principals acquitted themselves admirably well. Miss Olive Redpath as the Girl from Paris, gave a series of dances that brought down the house. A THANK OFFERING of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, in connection with First Presbyterian Church, was held last night. Mrs. Dr. Hodge presided. The rain kept some away, yet the thank-offering from the ladies present was over $70, with more to come. There were solos by Miss Templeton and Miss McMurrich. The address was by Mrs. Fletcher, of Thames Road. This lady is a bright and pleasant speaker, natural and sincere. Speaking of women's opportunities in the home, she said, smilingly: "For, you know, we do reign supreme in the home." At this all the ladies smiled, too; but the smile was not of the nature of dissent.

Left There Yesterday for London in Charge of Detective Nickle.

Brown Talks Quietly About His Movements, but Fights Shy of Any Reference to the Crime He Is Wanted For-The Police as Reticent as

The city police are still as mysterious as ever, and claim to know much less about the peg-leg than the newspapers. They claim they do not know when the peg-leg will arrive. The following dispatch was received this morning: Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 14.—Peg-leg Brown, the alleged murderer of Constable Toohey, at London, Ont., passed through this city yesterday, en route to London, where he will stand his trial. He is in charge of Detective Nickle. United States Marshal Dalley, who effected Brown's capture, accompanies Nickle to claim the reward offerel. Brown has admitted his identity. While here Brown's face wore a pleasant, unconcerned smile, and during the short time the fetters were removed he puffed nochalantly at a cigarette, wholly unmindful of the crowd of sightseers which pressed around him on all sides.

There seems to be litte doubt but that he is the man wanted for the murder. He is securely handcuffed, and the officers are confident about landing him safely behind the bars.

MONEY WENT

The Board of Works Want Some Badly, But-

The Stone Crusher Has Eaten Up a Tidy Sum-Its Surprising Cost Compared With Last Year.

At a recent meeting of the city council, Ald. Nutkins quietly asked the chairman of the board of works for a statement of the work done by the stone crusher this year, and its expense to the city. Ald. Douglass just as quietly agreed to produce the statement, and the incident passed almost unno-The statement has been pre ticed. pared, and it is a safe prediction that its reception by the council on Monday night next will not be particularly placid.

Kind-hearted and far-sighted aldermen whose keenest delight is to dispense street improvements to obliging ratepayers are exasperated because there are no funds at their disposal in the treasury. All the favors of the office have slipped through their fingers. Yet there are many ratepayers by whom they are pressed for street or sidewalk repairs, or improvements of one sort or another. A few planks here and there throughout the ward would be worth a lot at the next election, and, incidentally, they might save citizens from breaking their bones on dangerous sidewalks. With each alderman thinking of how much ought to be done for his ward, yet realizing that the money is all gone, it is no wonder the civic waters are troubled. and Ald. Douglass' statement will only increase the storm, because it will set the aldermen thinking of what might have been. It will reveal several hundred dollars locked up in unbroken stone. It will set those aldermen who are careful of the interests of their wards speculating as to how much good might have been done if they had some of the money expended per cord for crushing the stone this year in excess of the cost of previous years. In short, a warm reception awaits Ald. Douglass' statement. Ald. Cooper, whose batteries have been directed against the management of the stone-crusher all year, says emphatically that the stone could have been broken cheaper by hand than it has cost to do it by the machine this year. At the beginning of the season contracts were let for the supply of unbroken stone, at about $2 per cord, the quantity being unlimited. New men were put to work on the machine The number of bosses was increased from one to three, and wages were correspondingly increased. some reason a proportionately small amount of broken stone was turned out. Last year five teams, averaging twelve loads each, or 60 loads per day, drew the stone from the crusher. This year one and two teams did the work, and the average was seven loads per day. Five blocks were macadamized last year, and one block this year. All the stone that was supplied to the crusher last year was broken. This year, of the 700 cords supplied, about half remains unbroken. Had it all been broken and used in permanent improvements the board of works would have got a return for it, as they receive credit from the city treasurer for the sum paid by the ratepayers for such work, and those dangerous sidewas moved repeatedly in council, by Ald. Cooper to have the drawing of stone to the crusher stopped earlier in the season, but the chairman of the board of works did not see it that Now he will have to explain to the fourth warder why the broken stone The annual thank-offering meeting cost the city this year from $3 50 to $3 75 per cord more than last. Estimating the excess cost per cord of the 350 cords of broken stone at $3 75, the total is over $1,300. Estimating the cost of the unbroken stone at $2 per cord, there is $700, or a total of about $2,000 that the board of works would be very glad to have at their disposal now, in the days of their adversity.

The board of works met tast night | Terrible Fate of a Young Lad. with Chairman Douglass, Ald. Cooper, Greenlees, and Dreaney, and Acting Secretary Ironside, present, A communication from James Mc-Cormick, who was injured by being crushed between a street car and the electric light pole at the corner of Dundas and Adelaide streets, threatening a suit for damages, was referred to the city solicitor, upon the re-commendation of the city engineer, who holds that the city is not liable. John Taylor complained of a drain across Ridout street south, which causes the water to back up on his property. The city engineer will meet Mr. Taylor and Messrs. Charles Mc-

Murray, McFaulds and Collier-all interested parties-with a view to remedying the evil. Ald. Greenlees referred to the complaint of Carfrae street residents in regard to the unprotected condition of the street, which runs direct to the river bank, which at this point is very steep. The residents would like a fence constructed as a protection. The engineer was instructed to look into the matter. Ald. Cooper referred to the sinking of a portion of the block pavement on Richmond street along the railway track, opposite the C. P. R. Hotel. The attention of the engineer was directed to the matter.

His mother was killed on the G. T. R. track near Talbot street a few years ago. The boy was remanded until next Wednesday, and in the meantime Mr. Sanders, of the Children's Aid Society, will endeavor to se-
