

FEBRUARY FETES.

Presidential Party Fun For Washington and Lincoln Birthdays.

The few suggestions given below are to be used in connection with the birthday celebrations of President Washington and President Lincoln, which occur respectively on the 22d and 12th of February. Have planned up around the room photographs of the presidents, their homes (Mount Vernon, Monticello, etc.) and any other illustrations of people, places or events which may be closely associated with them. These should all be clearly numbered, while cards bearing corresponding numbers with pencils attached must be provided for each guest that he or she may guess these nameless pictures.

Another set of cards, with red, white and blue pencils and decorated with sketches or pasted pictures of flags, the American eagle, etc., may have written upon them the following list of questions, all of which refer directly to our presidents. Of course the hostess can extend the list as much as she may desire:

1. How many presidents have we had? 2. Which state has given the most? 3. Which president was the oldest on taking office? 4. How many vice presidents have succeeded to the chief executive? 5. Who was "Old Hickory"? 6. Which presidents have died in office? 7. Which two died on the same day, just fifty years after signing the Declaration of Independence? 8. Who was "Old Rough and Ready"? 9. Who was "the Strepuous One"? 10. What event characterized Benjamin Harrison's term? 11. How many presidents have been elected for a second term? 12. Which president was impeached? 13. Who was "the Sage of Monticello"? 14. Which president went to his inauguration in disguise? 15. Who was president during the Mexican war?

The answers to these are: 1. Twenty-six. 2. New York. 3. William H. Harrison. 4. Eight. 5. Andrew Jackson. 6. William H. Harrison, Zachary Taylor, Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley. 7. John Adams and Thomas Jefferson. 8. Zachary Taylor. 9. Theodore Roosevelt. 10. The centennial celebration of the inauguration of George Washington. 11. Nine. 12. Andrew Johnson. 13. Thomas Jefferson. 14. Abraham Lincoln. 15. John Tyler.

Spall photographs of any of the presidents, framed, or boxes of bonbons tied with red, white and blue ribbons would make acceptable prizes.—Table Talk.

How to Prepare Terrapin.

It was Mr. Frank Hambleton, the Baltimore banker, who demonstrated the virtues of the Baltimore terrapin. For the benefit of those who may wish to try it, here it is:

"Boil the terrapin until the skin on the claws is sufficiently soft to rub off at the slightest touch. Take from the shell and remove every particle of entrails and lungs. Place the meat in a chafing dish if possible. Add butter, pepper and salt, the quantity of each depending on the quantity of flesh.

"Let it simmer until the essence and butter reach the consistency of light gravy, then serve hot. If desired, a little good sherry may be added before eating, but not while cooking. Use no spices, dressings or other ingredients that can detract from the flavor."

Washington Birthday Cakes.

Bake any cake mixture in cups and when cool dip into buff colored, violet and white icing. On the buff colored ones place a crystallized violet and two mint leaves. On the violet colored icing trace with buff a letter "W." On the white place a spray of candied cherries and citron stems and foliage. The buff and blue are the colonial colors.

A New Idea.

Corset covers made of dotted swiss are among the new ideas in dainty underwear.

They are made full, edged with Valenciennes lace. The row of dots across the top is bordered in silk to correspond with the color of ribbons chosen to run through the beading.

Extremely dainty undershirts and chemises are also worked out in the spotted swiss with rows of dots covered with colored silks or the mercerized cottons.

Fitting Candles.

The uninitiated still continue to laboriously shave down the end of a wax candle which is too large for its candlestick, but it should never be paid to make it of the right thickness, says Home Chat. A better method, says Tit-Bits, is that of holding it in hot water for a few moments, when the end becomes softened and will fit firmly into the candlestick as soon as the wax hardens again.

To Keep Cake Fresh.

Cut a slice of new bread about an inch thick and place in the tin with the cake. This will help to keep the cake fresh for some time. The bread must be renewed when stale. An apple placed in the cake tin will answer the same purpose as the bread and should also be renewed when withered.

BOOKS IN THE HOME.

The Way Children Should Be Taught to Use Them.

Children should early be taught the proper way to open and hold a book. All heavy books require special care. When too heavy for the hand, they should rest on a table or a stand.

No one ever should be allowed to lean upon an open book. The books that can be handled without effort should be allowed to rest with their backs in the palm of the hand while one is reading. This, of course, applies to books with fine bindings.

It is taken for granted that every house, as a matter of course, will have at least one Bible and one copy of Shakespeare as indispensable furnishings. Next come an unabridged dictionary and a complete atlas of the world. The next book is a classical dictionary.

Any standard book of prose and poetical quotations comes next in importance in the family library. A book of English synonyms follows in order of desirability.

Popular nature books are delightful, particularly where there are children to enjoy the information about stars and plants and animals.

The children should be taught how to use reference books, to look up meanings, spellings, places, and so on. The habit of looking up whatever needs greater elucidation augurs well for good culture and education. The child that has acquired it requires but little going to school in order to surpass those who have expensive schooling, but no training in the use of reference books.—Exchange.

STAIN REMOVERS.

Medicine can be removed by soaking in alcohol.

Stove polish, if washed while fresh in cold water and soap, may easily be removed.

Mucus is removed by soaking in ammonia water and then washing in cold water and soap.

Milk or cream can be removed readily by washing first in cold water, followed by a thorough soaping.

Scorch marks may be removed by hanging in sunlight. This is most effective for only slight scorch.

Paint stains are removed by the use of benzine or turpentine. Rub well with the benzine or turpentine. For delicate colors chloroform in naphtha is best.

Perspiration discolorations are taken out by either soap solution and sunshine or by javelle water. Place in sunshine after washing with soapsuds. Javelle water is excellent for white goods.

POSTAL CONFAB THURSDAY.

Canadian and U. S. Officials Will Confer Over Treaty.

Ottawa, March 5.—Postal officials of Canada and the United States will discuss on Thursday the proposed abrogation of the postal convention between the two countries on May 7. The Canadian Government objects to carrying tons of what is taken as second-class matter in the United States and not so classed here.

If these periodicals were published in Canada they would pay substantial postage.

Canada intends to exclude from the mails anything the Postoffice Department sees fit, whatever chorus of disapproval is raised.

Rodolphe Lemieux, Dr. Coulter and Secretary Smith will represent Canada.

MINER'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Dynamite Explodes As He Is Being Hauled Up Shaft.

Cobalt, March 5.—While blasting on the Cobalt Clear Lake Mining Co. property, a miner named J. A. Couvrette had a miraculous escape.

He had just placed two shots, 1 1/2 stick of dynamite, in each hole, and was about to light them. There were also three sticks of dynamite upon which he sat in the bucket.

There was delay in hoisting and he was not five feet from the bottom of the 65 foot shaft when the dynamite went off. Couvrette was blown ten feet up the shaft, but was still in the bucket when hauled up.

His leg was broken in two places, an ankle sprained, and bad cuts sustained on the back of the head.

Holds Railroad Board.

New York, March 5.—The coroner's jury in the inquest into the N. Y. Central wreck in the Bronx on Feb. 16, when 23 persons were killed, brought in a verdict last night, holding the operating and construction departments of the railroad responsible.

The coroner tried to get a recommendation as to the individuals, but did not succeed.

He then declared he would hold the entire board of directors and the president of the Central and patrol them until 10 o'clock this morning.

Born in the Train.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 5.—On a Pullman car attached to a Big Four train, steaming out of Delaware, Ohio, near here Sunday afternoon, Mrs. A. D. Swisher, of Toronto, Ont., became the mother of a lusty baby boy.

She boarded the train east of Cleveland, and had hoped to reach Newport, Ky., so her son might in later years boast that he was born on Kentucky soil.

The passengers collected $35 to buy the newborn a present as a souvenir of the occasion.

Refuse, Married Men.

London, March 5.—(C. A. P.)—The Glasgow Advertiser re-emigration for railway construction in Canada, points out that the men's bare statement alone, taken as to whether they are married or not, will result shortly in a number of wives and children becoming chargeable on the parish councils, and says the Canadian Government ought to be asked to place restrictions on the wholesale emigration from other countries of married men.

Falls Down Steps to Death.

Quebec, March 5.—Austin J. Griffiths, son of the caretaker of the customs house, tripped and fell down stairs on Saturday night, striking his head with such force that he died yesterday without regaining consciousness.

Cost of the Quake.

LIVING TOO HASTILY

CANADIAN WOMEN BREAK DOWN

Irregularities and Female Derangements Result Caused by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

woman in twenty-five but that suffers with some derangement of the female organism, and this is the secret of so many unhappy homes.

No woman can be amiable, light-hearted and happy, a joy to her husband and children, and perform the duties incumbent upon her, when she is suffering with backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, bearing-down pains, displacements, spinal weakness or diseased organs.

Irritability and snappy retorts take the place of pleasantness, and all sunshine is driven out of the home, and lives are wrecked by woman's great enemy—female trouble.

Read this letter:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— "I suffered for four years with what the doctors called inflammation of the fallopian tubes, which is a most distressing female disease, undermining the constitution and sapping the life forces. If you had seen me a year ago when I had begun taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and compared that person with me as I am to-day, robust, hearty and well, you would not wonder that I feel thankful to your wonderful medicine which restored me to new life and health in five months. My friends all marvel at the change it has made in me, but none can appreciate it better than I can myself." Miss Irene Haggood, 1022 Sandwich St., Windsor, Ont.

At the first indication of ill health, painful or irregular periods, pain in the side, headache, backache, bearing-down pains, nervousness, or the "blues," secure in one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin its use.

ONE MEAL A DAY.

Two Women Who Solved the Problem of No Dishwashing.

One meal a day is enough for a woman. At least, that is what Miss Williamina Burnett and Miss Ginevra Falkenburg assert, and, having practiced this self denying ordinance for something over a decade, they have a right to an opinion. Williamina is forty, Ginevra forty-three, but neither is said to look a day over twenty-five, and the two, though not related, have lived together like sisters for twenty years. These singular persons walk five miles to work every morning, work eight hours at some manual labor in the city of Pasadena and then walk five miles back, to dine on whole grains, fruits, raw vegetables (skins and all) and nuts. Bread they consider a curse to humanity. Eggs they look on with acute suspicion. Potatoes are dropsical, diseased growths. Meat is a crime. Salt, pepper, sugar and spices? Never! There are no plates or dishes or glasses on their table. The fruits, nuts and grains, which are all they have to eat anyway, are served in baskets and eaten—probably—with the fingers, while not even water is drunk except between meals.

The repeat finished, Ginevra and Williamina go to bed at once, for they regard exercise after a hearty meal as a most baleful practice, and from dark to daylight they sleep on cots near open windows. In their quest after nature these "girls" have discarded many superfluities of feminine apparel and have built for themselves a charming one room bungalow at a cost of $350. People laugh at them, but they laugh back, and from all appearances Williamina and Ginevra have the best of it, in spite of their names.—New York Tribune.

IN CUPID'S HONOR.

Dainty Place Cards For Valentine Dinners and Suppers.

Much of the daintiness of a valentine supper or dinner depends upon the place cards. These can be made at home at little expense.

Use for the place cards a heavy-weight gilt or red paper. If the flowers are red, better carry out the color scheme and match the paper to the color of the roses.

Cut the heart shaped pattern, lay it over the paper and mark it lightly.

HEARTS CUT FROM PAPER.

Do not cut until sure that the design is just right.

No. 1 shows two hearts cut from red paper pierced with a long pin made to represent an arrow by a paper design cut to represent an arrowhead. The name of the guest is written across the face of the upper heart.

No. 2 shows a photograph place card. This is used when the dinner is given in honor of a friend of the hostess. Three hearts are cut to fold together. On the inner heart is pasted a small photograph of the guest of honor; across the first heart is written the name of the guest; across the last is the date or a love motto.

No. 3 combines the place card and the bonbon box. The pattern is shown in the drawing. The dotted lines show where the edges are to be folded to form the box. The perforations are made for ribbons. Narrow red ribbons are run through and tied. The heart forms the cover of the box. The box is cut from one heavy piece. It should be of paper heavy enough to hold the little heart shaped motto candles or bonbons.

Practical Pillow Covers.

In a living room where all things receive constant use, and hard use at that, it is often something of a problem to know what to have as coverings for the couch cushions, beauty being desired as well as durability.

The materials that have proved most satisfactory from every point of view are the art tickings, cretonnes and chintzes. These all stand repeated laundering as well as hard wear. They are pretty and possessed of great variety as to color and design. Stripes, floral designs galore and beautiful Persian patterns may be had in these cottons and linens, and when used in conjunction with each other they make of the living room couch a most cozy and living spot, luring the unsuspecting on to many an idle hour.

Another thing to consider in this room is the number of pictures. Too many small pictures scattered about draw the eye unconsciously and prove very wearying.

To Go South.

Wear a serge or cheviot travelling suit with silk blouse.

Take along a handsome broadcloth tailored suit.

Also two or three silk and crape gowns for dinner wear at the hotels.

These gowns will do for afternoon wear in the Florida climate.

Have a separate cloth wrap for traveling and evening wear at the hotel.

In the mornings wear one of the cloth skirts with shirt waists.

If more variety is needed, take several linen and white lingerie gowns.

Besides the traveling hat, a dressy afternoon hat and at least one or two white hats will be needed.

Does This Remind You?

An applicant for the post of mistress in a country school was asked, "What is your position with regard to the whipping of children?"

She replied, "My usual position is on a chair with the child held firmly across my knees, face downward!"—Home Magazine.

A Nursery Hint.

A good method of teaching a little girl to darn and patch is to begin by teaching her to mend and renovate her doll's clothes. The darning, if done for her doll, will not be so irksome to her, as she looks upon it more in the light of a game.—Home Notes.

Kindergarten Bylaw Thrown Out By Board

at the kindergartens. If it was thought necessary to lessen the number of teachers on the staff, why that would be a different thing, but he would never cast his vote in favor of legislation that made the schools anything but free. "The kindergarten," continued Mr. McArthur, "is the only department of our present system of education where the children are educated properly. From the time the child leaves the kindergarten till it passes its entrance examination, it is simply a case of cram, cram, cram. This is not the fault of the teachers, but of the present system, and the haste with which the public wanted to see their children shoved through school.

Mr. Brackin designated Mr. McArthur's remarks on the question as a "campaign speech." He said that he wasn't trying to shove through legislation which would discriminate against the poor man. The Act stated that the Public schools should be free, but that the kindergarten should be subject to such fees as the Board wished to impose, and this proved that the kindergarten was looked upon as a luxury, and it was never intended that it should be free. He said that he hadn't yet heard any of the members of the Board put themselves strongly on record with regard to lessening the number of teachers on the staff.

Mr. McArthur—I wasn't making a campaign speech, but I am out and out opposed to the fee system in any form in our Public schools. I don't think I said anything about cutting down the staff.

Mr. McCorvie was against charging fees until the child was six years old, at which time he thought the child should be moved on to the primary department. He thought the kindergartens should be free for children from four to six years of age.

Mr. Richards was in sympathy with some sections of the by-law, but he could not support it as it stood. He believed with Dr. Duncan that Mr. Brackin's by-law was legislating from the wrong end. The matter, however, should be carefully investigated. The salaries for this department last year had cost the city $2,825. This was pretty high, but it was money well spent.

Mr. Brackin claimed that in Hamilton they only employed three teachers in their kindergarten department. It was moved by Mr. McCorvie, seconded by Mr. McCorvie, that the matter be referred to the Internal Management committee to investigate and report at the next meeting of the Board.—Carried.

A RAILWAY WRECK

Montreal Express Runs Into a Freight —Four Injured.

Toronto, March 6.—The regular G. T. R. express for Montreal, leaving here at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, run down freight train No. 92, eastbound, this morning, near Pape Avenue, and as a result four passengers were slightly bruised and injured. Miss M. V. Milne, Toronto, had her lip cut and was slightly bruised on the forehead; Mrs. G. Pemberton, Toronto, had her nose bruised; Mr. J. W. Prescott, Toronto, received sprains in the back, and Mr. J. H. Allan of Trenton, was cut on the lip and bruised.

The passenger train was proceeding at a moderate speed across the Don Valley, and when it reached Pape Avenue it struck the caboose of the freight which was going up grade on the main line. The impact caused the injuries to the passengers named, but none of the crews were hurt.

The passenger train was brought back to the Union Station for a couple of new drawbars and some other repairs, and after some delay proceeded again to Montreal. The company gave out the facts of the accident, and stated that rolling stock was not damaged to any extent.

The cause of the accident seemed to have been that the freight failed to get into a side track before the passenger overtook it.

THE GOVERNMENT AND ZAM-BUK

SURVEY OUT FROM FORT WILLIAM TAKES A SUPPLY OF THIS USEFUL BALM.

Zam-Buk, the favorite household balm and salve, is now adopted by "the Doctor" by leading parties engaged in surveying various parts of the Dominion lands.

Mr. Henry Hall, writing from Fort William, says: "Having proved how beneficial Zam-Buk is in cases of cuts, skin injuries and diseases, I determined to keep a supply handy, being engaged to go on a survey, I thought it would be a most useful thing to take along. I obtained a supply in Fort William and very well it was I did so. I may say that pretty nearly every day it was called into requisition by one or other of the party for cuts, bruises, burns, or some injury or other. It is wonderful how quickly Zam-Buk takes the soreness out of cuts, burns, bruises and injuries; and on our survey it earned golden opinions from all who had occasion to try it. I have found it very fine for skin diseases, and I can strongly recommend it as a household balm."

Mr. Lascelles Scott, one of the leading Government analysts, says: "I have no hesitation in certifying the entire purity of Zam-Buk, which in my opinion is excellently adapted for skin injuries and diseases." Zam-Buk cures cuts, scalds, burns, bruises, eczema, eczema, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, chapped places, Spring pimples, blood poison, chronic abscessed, etc. As an embrocation it relieves rheumatism, neuralgia and sciatica. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 6 boxes sent for $2.50. Send 1c. stamp and we will mail you free sample box.

THE CANFIELD CASE

Mrs. Perkins Denies She Poisoned Her Husband and Expects Acquittal.

Cayuga, March 6.—With two score of witnesses, many of whom will weave a net of circumstantial evidence around Mrs. Mattie Perkins, whose hearing for the murder of her husband opens here this afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, the crown authorities have left no stone unturned to ferret out the mystery surrounding the death of Henry Perkins, the Canfield carpenter. Witnesses are here from Canfield, Welland, Hamilton, Dunnville and rural postoffices, besides citizens who will be called to testify.

Doctors Bauer and Edgar of Hamilton, the strychnine specialists, will be called early in the investigation. Magistrate Cline of Cayuga will have as an associate on the bench Dr. Harrison of Selkirk, who made the post-mortem examination and was an important witness in the trial of Olive Sternaman for the murder of her husband ten years ago. Twenty-four witnesses will be called.

Mrs. Perkins is taking her imprisonment with remarkable self-possession, her attitude when interviewed at the jail last night being one of extreme indifference.

"All I can say," she said, "is that I am innocent. I deny everything these people have charged me with and I know all will come right."

"My husband thought the world of me."

"I never saw strychnine; never used strychnine; never had anything to do with strychnine."

Good Point in Work of Late Detective Murray.

A recent article about detective work in London recalls the work of the late John Murray, for so many years chief of the Provincial Detective Service, says The Toronto News. "You will not find this little point in this book, interesting as his memoirs are, but it came out constantly in conversation, and this point is indicated by the word 'Finally.' Anybody who ever talked to Mr. Murray knows how he smiled at the Sherlock Holmes idea of a sleuth, and he would in the street way explain how he followed his clues. It is true that at times his conclusions sometimes seemed to be reached by intuition rather than by reasoning; nevertheless Mr. Murray always viewed them as reasoned out from facts he had been able to gather. But throughout his conversation Mr. Murray would throw away and pass over intermediate steps with the word 'Finally.' This indicated how he was led into wrong by-ways, how the fugitive threw him off the scent, he would pass over the perplexities and the anxieties of those days or weeks and show how he got back on the trail with a hearty and victorious 'Well, finally.' That was the keynote of the character of the great detective. With him there was always a 'finally.' Nothing was ever settled until it was settled right; no crime was ever forgotten until the mystery had been solved and the criminal brought to justice. Though he spent practically his whole life in tracking criminals, Mr. Murray was no human bloodhound. He was always to the last a genial, kindly Irishman, who did his duty and caused pain to individuals for the good of society from the same sense of duty and with the same personal distress as the physician, the teacher, or the Crown prosecutor. When he had given his word on any subject, he was scrupulous in carrying it out. A characteristic instance may be given. When his book was published in London, six advance copies were to be sent to the author, and he promised that the first to receive one would be the Literary Editor of The News. Through no fault of Mr. Murray, but because of what newspaper men call a 'scoop,' he went home one evening a fortnight before the copies arrived to find a four-column review of his book in the news columns of The News. Mr. Murray did not rest until he had made it plain to the Literary Editor that he was not to blame. Detective as he was, it was some time before he learned how he came to be 'scooped' on his own book.

Literature and Life.

What books have helped you most? asked the sincere and serious young women.

"I can't recall all of 'em," answered Mr. Cumrox, "but they were mostly stories with love and fighting in them. You see, I was in the book selling business when I began to get prosperous."—Washington Star.

MARRIAGE CUSTOMS.

The Change From the Era When Wives Were Taken by Force.

Marriage customs have changed everywhere with the advance of civilization. Anglo-Saxons in ancient times, it is said, used to capture their wives by force from their fathers or their husbands, it did not matter which.

This was before Augustine came to preach Christianity. Then purchase was more common than capture, although the latter seems to have been frequent enough to the reign of Ethelbert to need regulation by law. By this law a man might run away with a woman, provided he afterward paid her previous owner, be he father or husband, 50 shillings. If it was husband who had thus been deprived of his wife, the woman's captor had not only to pay him the fine, but also to buy him another wife. In any case the stolen woman belonged to her captor.

If a man had purchased his bride in the days of Ethelbert and afterward concluded he had paid too much for her, it was lawful for him to return her to her former owner and claim again the purchase price, provided that he had not previously expressed satisfaction by making the bride a present on the morning after the wedding.

The next step was the "foster lien," when the bride price was paid on the day of espousal and was supposed to compensate the parent for the cost of bringing up his daughter. It seems, however, that this soon fell into disrepute, as there was no law against the father engaging his daughter to numerous suitors, taking from each the "foster lien" and, of course, cheating all but one on the wedding day, which at that time was only the day of betrothal, when the suitor gave a "wed" or pledge for the future performance of his contract. If the suitor did not claim his bride within two years after the wedding day, he forfeited all right to her and to whatever money or goods he had paid for her. If the woman and her father broke their promises, the father had to give the suitor four times as much as the suitor had already paid him.

As civilization advanced the bride price was given to the woman herself and became her dowry, while nowadays the tables are frequently turned, and the bride settles the money on her husband.

LADYLIKE GEOMETRY.

Figures of the same shape don't always have the same style.

Figures of the same size never consider themselves equivalent.

A straight line is the shortest distance between two millinery openings.

A plain figure is one all points of which have been neglected by the dressmaker.

A mixed line is a line composing the reception committee of a club's presidential candidate.

A broken line is a series of successive straight lines described by a woman alighting from a street car.

A straight line determined by two bargain tables is considered as prolonged both ways until the store closes.

Women equal to the same thing are not always equal to each other.—Nellie Parker Jones in Chicago Record-Herald.

A Painted Prayer.

Aunt Dinah had come to see her old mistress, who had just recovered from an illness.

"Yes, Miss Lila, I sho'ly done prayed for yer to git well all de time, and now yer see how it done turned out."

"Then you believe that your prayers are always answered, Dinah?"

"Sho'ly, sho'ly!" Then, with a sly glance: "Yer see, I nober tempts de Lord, 'case I don't pray for nothin' dat I don't know I'll git. Dr. John, he done tol' me he tort yer was on de recovery road." After a pause she went on:

"Say, Miss Lila, yer know what I prayed for last night?"

"No."

"Why, I just p'intedly begged de Lord ter put it into yer heart ter give me dat brown silk dress yer done out-growed."

In the Matter of Tips.

The man who tips the highest gets the best service and the most ostentatious deference. "Give this to the cook," said a St. Louis parvenu, handing a dollar to the waiter with his order, "and tell him to cook it my way." "Give this to the cook," said a scribe at the next table, handing a two dollar bill to the waiter with his order, "and tell him to cook it his own way, for he is a better cook than I am." We will not shrink in any man's shadow. At the same time the pace is too hot and fast for most of us.

THE SPANISH ESCURIAL.

It is a Marvelous Specimen of Ancient Architecture.

The Escorial, the palace of the Spanish king, an architectural marvel, formerly described as the "eighth wonder of the world," is now seldom spoken of even by those who are ready to go wild over much less pretentious structures. The cornerstone of this "Spanish St. Peter's" was laid by Philip II. in 1563, but it was 302 years (1865) before the monstrous building was pronounced finished. It was built by Philip in fulfillment of a vow to "erect the finest monastery in the world" should his forces be successful in their great battle with the French. That battle was fought at St. Quentin on Aug. 10, 1557, St. Lawrence day, and in order to honor that saint as well as to fulfill his vow the king had the foundation of his great memorial laid off in the shape of a gridiron, the implement of torture upon which the goodly Lawrence is reputed to have suffered martyrdom.

To those who have never visited the Escorial the size of the gigantic structure is beyond comprehension. It is 740 feet from north to south and 580 1/2 feet from east to west, the square towers at each corner rising to a height of over 200 feet. Within this monstrous building are the king's palace, a cathedral, a monastery of 200 cells, two colleges, three chapter houses, three libraries, five large halls, six dormitories, three hospitals and over 3,000 other rooms. In order to make St. Lawrence's gridiron complete, the building is built in quadrangular form, with seventeen rows or ranges of monstrous stone structures crossing each other at right angles, these forming the gridiron's ribs, the handle being a wing 470 feet in length. The church, which is a part of this vast pile of masonry, is 364 feet long, 230 feet wide, with a dome 330 feet in height. It is estimated that the building cost $50,000,000.

A stranger wishing to play golf at North Berwick saw some one in authority upon the matter.

"What name?" asked the dignified official in charge.

"De Neufeldt," the stranger replied.

"Mon," said the official in a tone of disgust, "we canna fash ourselves w' names like that at North Berwick. Ye'll start in the morn at ten fifteen to the name of Fairgusson."

Miss Weston—And have you played much golf, Mr. Jones? Mr. Jones—Well, no; can't say I've played much, but I've walked round the links several times in golf clothes, and I'm beginning to understand the language.

THE GIRL IN BLACK

By CONSTANCE D'ARCY MACKAY

Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Parcells

In a shaded spot just inside the entrance of Central park a girl was sitting. She was all in black, from the crown of her fetching little hat to her low shoes. Her face was pale with the paleness of a summer spent in the city, her brown hair rippled back from a smooth white forehead, her eyes were deep gray, steadfast and courageous. "And I have need of courage!" Cornelia Stratton murmured. For two months she had been hunting a position and so far she had not found one, although she had been able to substitute at a large commercial office for a week or two, and the pay she had received for that had, with careful hoarding, saved her from actual want. Yet as time dragged on her money dwindled and there seemed no hope in sight. "I shouldn't complain," she said valiantly; "it's the lot of many another girl who goes to a big city where she has neither friends nor relatives to help her. But, oh, I do wish I could find something. I'm so tired of disappointments."

From where she sat she could hear the ceaseless hum and stir of the city. There had been hours when it seemed to call like a challenge, and her heart beat in answer to it. Now it frightened her. It seemed so vast, so overwhelming. There were so many problems to be met and mastered. One of them was clothes.

She had chosen to dress in black because it was the most economical. Her deft fingers had fashioned a chic hat for a trifling sum, and for the rest she wore the same suit, day in and day out, taking such scrupulous care of it that she looked as well groomed as many a woman of means.

Each day, when she had searched for work till she was too tired to search further, she came to sit in the park, where everything was green and quiet, where squirrels feasted unmolested across the grass and where the clear liquid notes of birds lent a sense of the country. There were moments when the scene charmed Cornelia, but oftener she was too disheartened to care. "What am I to do if this state of affairs lasts much longer?" she mused on this stifling afternoon in mid-August. She was utterly despondent. Her hands were clasped listlessly in her lap, and she shut her eyes to keep back the tears. When she opened them again, she encountered the direct gaze of a man sitting on the bench opposite her. He was a well set up young fellow of about nine and twenty, broad shouldered and smooth shaven. As their eyes met the pity that was in his look changed to something deeper. "Take courage," the look said. "Life is a battle for all of us. Fight on."

Cornelia turned away her head, her heart fluttering strangely. Some one in all that vast city had seen, had cared. "It's simply nonsense," she told herself. "He's never seen me before, nor I him." Yet already she felt cheered. Unrolling a newspaper she held in her hand, she went over its want columns again. At the next office where she applied the business manager noted something bright and spirited in her aspect that argued well for her. "I'm the happiest girl in the whole wide world," she laughed a few minutes later, for she had found a position at last.

The winter months sped quickly and pleasantly. There was so much to do and so much to see—the shops, the theaters, the surging throngs on Broadway and the great promenade on Fifth avenue at twilight, when countless carriages blocked the crossings and when all the fashion and beauty of the earth seemed to shine before Cornelia's delighted eye. It grew to be a custom with her in going to and from her work to search the faces of the passersby in the half confessed hope that some time, somewhere, she should again catch a glimpse of the man whom she had seen in the park. It was a wish, however, that seemed destined to remain unfulfilled.

But one Saturday as she loitered in a crowded downtown art gallery she came face to face with a picture that held her amazed and spellbound, for it was a portrait of herself. Half trembling and turning the leaves of her catalogue with nervous fingers, she read its name, "The Girl in Black," by George Heathwood.

"And certainly the best thing you've done, George, old man," said a boyish looking fellow at her elbow. "It's the hit of the exhibition, and such a simple thing too! Just a girl with a pretty flower-like face, sitting on a bench in the park. Oh, I remember! She's the one you once told me about. Have you found her yet, George?"

"Not yet," said a voice that made Cornelia's heart leap. "Not yet; but I mean to if I have to spend all my life in trying."

"And find her when you're at the tender age of forty! You needn't frown so savagely! I'm sure you've often been near her when you haven't in the least suspected it! Toils, for instance. Have you searched this room thoroughly? For you know it's a true saying," drawled the boy over his shoulder as he moved away, "that love makes people blind."

"What do you mean?" Heathwood began, and then, turning, caught sight of Cornelia. "You!" he said softly beneath his breath. "You!"

Cornelia flushed. "I beg your pardon," he said quickly, "but since circumstances are what they are I am going to call a truce to convention and ask you to do me a favor. Will you please sit just where you are for two minutes? Promise me that you will not go away." He evidently took her reply for granted, for he did not wait to hear it. But before half the allotted time was up he returned with a distinguished, gray haired woman, whom many people in the room seemed to know, for they bowed to her as she passed.

"It's Mrs. Heathwood," Cornelia heard some one whisper. "The mother of the famous young illustrator."

Heathwood approached Cornelia. "Mother," he said, "I want you to meet Miss—"

"Stratton," Cornelia murmured. "Stratton!" rejoiced Heathwood, dwelling on the word.

The older woman smiled in appreciation of the situation. "Miss Stratton, may I present my son, Mr. Heathwood?"

Cornelia bowed.

"And now that we've been properly introduced," George commenced. "There is a Japanese tea room next door." Mrs. Heathwood broke in, "where I am very fond of going at this hour of the day. Won't you join us, Miss Stratton?"

Cornelia assented gladly. It was all so sudden and bewildering that it seemed like part of a dream—a dream that was coming true. "For now that I've found you," declared George Heathwood, "I never mean to lose you again!"

As they moved slowly through the room the young fellow who had been Heathwood's companion half an hour earlier looked after them with twinkling eyes.

"It's easy to see," he chuckled, "that that picture of George's wasn't properly named, for the Girl in Black is going to be the Girl in White, with a tulle veil and orange blossoms. So runs the world!"

Two Intelligent Horses.

"I have heard many stories of the intelligence of animals," said a close observer of animal life, "but the actions of two horses the other day equaled if not surpassed many of the tales. The pair were fine looking beasts attached to a farmer's wagon and had been left outside a feed store on Kensington avenue. Just beyond their reach were several bales of hay. By some clever maneuvering the white horse, which was nearest the pavement, managed to get hold of some of the hay. His brown mate, not getting any of the hay, with almost human actions made the white horse understand that he wished to share the feast. To satisfy his mate the white horse took larger mouthfuls of the hay and turned his head in a way so that the brown horse could enjoy the feast. By the time their owner reached them nearly half the bale of hay had been consumed by the pair. When the owner of the hay was informed of the unique manner in which the horses secured their lunch he said that it was a good scheme and he would stand for the loss."—Philadelphia Record.

Sermons by Time.

"I have attended church in a good many different places," said the southern man, "but I had to come to New York to see a man preach holding his watch in his hand. Down in our part of the country the pulpit orator is usually long winded. He has a certain subject in mind and has certain things to say concerning it, and he holds forth until he has said them all if it takes till bedtime to do it. Up here the time that can be devoted to the delivery of a sermon appears to be limited. In order not to overstep the bounds several clergymen that I have heard talked literally by the watch. They did not lay it down or stick it into a convenient pocket to be consulted occasionally, but held it out face up as a constant reminder that time was fleeting and that other pressing engagements awaited them. That may be an excellent preventive of weariness in the congregation, but I must say it makes me uncomfortable to have spiritual advice measured by the minute and second."—New York Press.

Had to Concede It.

"Well," said Snubbs, "I've just weathered a little labor trouble that's costing me seventy-five per week."

"What?" exclaimed Chifman. "Seventy-five dollars a week?"

"No; 75 cents. Our cook struck for a raise from $4.25 to $5."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Dealing With Criminals.

The question of how to deal with the criminal class must ere long be met by the application of more potent remedies than are now applied, such as will meet the cause of moral deformities, contagion or accident. Countries to-day vie with each to devise sugar-coated systems to cure criminal habits; eminent jurists and magistrates have strained statutes in their behalf, and many good people keep beseeching the great Creator to set aside an immutable law and thus relieve the abnormal conditions of mankind.

Remove the certainty of death from a trip over Niagara Falls in an open boat and such trips would soon become a holiday pastime. So it is with the commission of criminal acts; remove the chances of just punishment from criminal offences and each act committed will only be a stimulant for the commission of more atrocious ones.—W. P. Archibald, Dominion Police Officer.

Papering Whitewashed Walls.

Rooms whose walls have been whitewashed or calcimined present a difficult problem when one wishes to paper them. The usual method is to "size" the walls with a sticky preparation of molasses, vinegar, milk or glue to "kill" the lime so that the paper will stick. Here is a much better way that has proved perfectly satisfactory. Simply wet up the usual paste with vinegar instead of water and add 5 cents' worth of glue for each ordinary sized room. Brush the walls well with a dry broom to remove any dust or loose particles, put on the paper in the usual way and be assured that it will stay there.

HUGO'S SHORT MEMORY.

Told Different Versions of a Story on Three Occasions.

The Revue Hebdomadaire publishes an anecdote on Victor Hugo which by many will be considered very characteristic. Right after Napoleon III's coup d'état Victor Hugo and Schoelcher, a well known politician of that period, fled together from Paris. A short time afterward, when Hugo met Schoelcher at his table in Brussels, the poet said: "Yes, my dear friend, you can boast of having once scared me very much. I had no doubt but that we were done for." Turning to the other guests, he explained:

"We were on the way to the Northern railroad depot and were sitting silent and uneasy in the omnibus, our hats drawn deep over our foreheads. Presently a regiment of infantry passed by with flying colors and resounding music. At the sight Schoelcher forgot all caution and, leaning out of the window, shouted, 'Down with Caesar!' Instantly I caught hold of my hand and closed his mouth with my hand. One word more and we should have been done for."

Two years later Schoelcher visited his friend Hugo in Guernsey. At dinner again the coup d'état was discussed, and the poet called forth recollections of times past. "Do you still recollect, Schoelcher," he asked, "the day of our flight? We really came off very lucky. But didn't we act like madmen, shouting 'Down with Caesar!' when that regiment was passing by? Of course we were too indignant to be able to keep our temper."

Several years elapsed, and again Schoelcher was a guest in Hugo's house. Conversation turned to civic courage and the like. "Well, my dear Schoelcher," Hugo said to his friend, "I must tell you something I have had in my heart for years. In a critical moment of your life you showed a weakness which grieved me deeply. You will recollect that day when we after the coup d'état, left Paris and how I, while a regiment of infantry was passing by, at the sight of these killers of our liberty and in a rage, having no command over myself, shouted out, 'Down with Caesar!' I still have you before my eyes trembling with fear, catching hold of me by the lapel of my coat and forcing me down on the seat, so concerned you were for your precious life."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

When fish bite freely they're little ones.

The impudence of some people is the only great thing about them.

To burn a letter may show a lack of sentiment, but it is in many cases a mark of good judgment.

You often hear a mother say to her child, "How often must I tell you?" How often must you be told?

"There is one thing you should put off till tomorrow that you might do today, and that is sitting down and counting up your troubles."

Some men not only feel that the world owes them a living, but are sore because there are no collection agencies to collect it for them.

If you brag that you are contented people say you might as well be a cow, and if you are discontented people say you have a grouse, and there you are.

Animals at Play.

Animals have a keen sense of "making believe," which is the essence of play. A child's first game is bopeep—make believe. When a couple of dogs have a jolly tussle they make believe to engage in deadly combat. A striking instance of this occurred to a writer some years back. He gave a dead mouse to a kitten. It was the first time she had seen one, and she sniffed at it inquisitively before deciding to toss it about. A pair of slippers lay on the floor. She dropped the mouse into one of them and immediately proceeded to look for it most zealously in the other slipper till I took up the first, which contained her booty. Then she showed that it was no lack of memory that had sent her on the bootless search.

The West End.

Why is it that in most of the cities of the world fashion makes its home in the northwestern quarter? Why is it that the "west end" is so often the aristocratic section of the city and "east side" and "south side" so often the residence of the poorer classes? It is a fact, and there is a ruling cause for it. It is this: that the prevailing winds of the earth are northwesterly. They are in general northwesterly, and their tendency is to blow the dust, smoke and odors of a city to its eastern or southern side. This makes the opposite quarter the more desirable for residence.

Rough on the Kirk Rats.

It was a young Scot's first sermon after he received his license, and unfortunately he became very nervous, lost control of his voice and spoke very loudly indeed. Nearly all his friends went to hear him preach, but one who was unable to attend inquired at the first opportunity as to how he got on.

"I'll tell you one thing," was the candid reply, "it's many a day since the rats in Boulton Kirk got such a fright!"—Dundee Advertiser.

The Ruler.

"Now that you've gone to house-keeping, which rules, you or your wife?"

"Neither of us. We have a provisional government."

"What is that?"

"The cook's."

Car Runs Into House.

Fergus, March 5.—While a train of empty flat cars was backing down the G.T.R. spur which runs through the middle of the town yesterday one of the cars left the rails on account of the ice, and ran into a stone house alongside the track, knocking in the wall. The brakeman jumped, thus saving himself, but one of the women inmates of the house, a Mrs. Fischer, was not so fortunate. She was sitting in the room when the crash came, and was caught by the debris and her dress bound between the car and the wall. She fortunately escaped with a broken ankle. The car was thrown directly across the track, and required the Palmerston auxiliary to get it in position and repair the car breakage.

A DAM BUILT ON END.

How a Clever Engineer Conquered a Mechanical Difficulty.

Almost every boy has built dozens of dams in various ways, constructing them across the bed of the channel, wide or narrow, to be dammed. But did any boy ever think of building a dam on end and then tipping it over?

An inventive American engineer, Isham Randolph, who became famous by his work on the Chicago drainage canal, has tried this idea on the Niagara river, 200 yards above the Horseshoe fall and made a remarkable success of it.

Of course an ordinary dam could not easily be built in the fiercely racing currents of Niagara hurrying to plunge over the fall. So Mr. Randolph decided to build his dam on end on the very edge of the river. It was not meant to do more than raise the water level a few inches, so as to prevent water scarcity in winter for the Canadian town of Niagara Falls when the ice jam comes on. A dam seven feet or so high was enough and fifty feet long. Turned on end, this meant a column fifty feet high and seven feet four inches square. The clever engineer used concrete as the cheapest, easiest and least corrosive material. But any column of any material was certain to break in the shock of falling. How was that to be provided for?

Easily enough, the inventive builder argued. Up the middle of the concrete column, like a huge backbone, he ran a strong iron chain weighing about 800 pounds. The whole column weighed some 200 tons. At intervals eight feet apart all the way up it along the landward face wooden wedges were inserted, so that in breaking it would follow these lines and break into regular blocks, held together by the chain. The plan was audacious, but entirely practical—a true "Yankee notion." On Nov. 9, 1905, the finished dam was sent flying over by three hydraulic jacks. Amid the breathless interest of a large crowd of spectators the concrete column fell, splashed and settled. When splash and spray subsided there it stretched, broken at the destined points, tilted a trifle irregularly in the middle, where the river bed was higher, but quite effective. The depth of water increased ten inches at once. The "obelisk dam" was a success.—William Rittenhouse in Forward.

WEDDING SUPERSTITIONS.

A bride who finds a spider on her wedding dress may consider herself blessed.

The bride who dreams of fairies the night before her marriage will be thrice blessed.

If the bridegroom carries a miniature horseshoe in his pocket he will always have good luck.

No bride or bridegroom should be given a telegram on the way to church. It is positively a sign of evil.

If the wedding ring is dropped during the ceremony the bride may as well wish herself unborn, for she will always have ill luck.

Kiss a bride right after the ceremony and before the newly made husband has a chance to do so, and you will have excellent luck throughout the year.

Should a bride perchance see a coffin while being driven to the railway station prior to departure upon her wedding tour she should order the driver to turn back and start over again, or else she will surely meet with bad luck.

New York's First State Prison.

The first state prison in New York state was built at the foot of West Tenth street, in New York city, in 1797. Within seven years there were three multitudes of prisoners, in which keepers were killed and the prison set on fire. Nevertheless the institution seems to have been considered an attraction, as appears from the following advertisement in the Greenwich hotel, printed in the Columbian of Sept. 18, 1811:

A few gentlemen may be accommodated with board and lodging at this pleasant and healthy situation, from doors from the state prison. The Greenwich stage passes from this to the federal hall and returns five times a day.

The prisoners were transferred to Sing Sing in 1825, and the property was sold the next year.

The Law's Delays.

A lawyer on being asked why his profession is always in court asking for delays and adjournments responded: "I have observed in my long years of experience that when a lawyer has a very good case he is anxious to try it. If he has a poor one the longer he can delay the better it suits him. There is no telling what the accidents and incidents of time may supply in his favor. Another reason perhaps," the lawyer continued, "is the fact that a lawyer never feels like prying himself entirely away from a case until he has to. I concede that this is one of the mysteries of the legal mind."

A Judge of Eggs.

Judge Addison, a well known jurist of London, was in the habit of indulging in the oddest observations while trying cases. On one occasion opposing lawyers were wrangling over the question, "When does an egg become stale?" The judge, who had vivid recollections of a close election contest in which he figured, declared that the real test of an egg's staleness was the moment it became fit for use at a contested election.

In the Bathroom.

The one thing to be avoided is a clutter of small things—too many bottles and boxes on the shelves and tables, a number of rumpled towels and, above all, a rack of clothes hung up to dry.

The nickel plate should be kept shiny, broken at the destined points, tilted a trifle irregularly in the middle, where the river bed was higher, but quite effective. The depth of water increased ten inches at once. The "obelisk dam" was a success.—William Rittenhouse in Forward.

No bride or bridegroom should be given a telegram on the way to church. It is positively a sign of evil.

If the wedding ring is dropped during the ceremony the bride may as well wish herself unborn, for she will always have ill luck.

Kiss a bride right after the ceremony and before the newly made husband has a chance to do so, and you will have excellent luck throughout the year.

Should a bride perchance see a coffin while being driven to the railway station prior to departure upon her wedding tour she should order the driver to turn back and start over again, or else she will surely meet with bad luck.

New York's First State Prison.

The first state prison in New York state was built at the foot of West Tenth street, in New York city, in 1797. Within seven years there were three multitudes of prisoners, in which keepers were killed and the prison set on fire. Nevertheless the institution seems to have been considered an attraction, as appears from the following advertisement in the Greenwich hotel, printed in the Columbian of Sept. 18, 1811:

A few gentlemen may be accommodated with board and lodging at this pleasant and healthy situation, from doors from the state prison. The Greenwich stage passes from this to the federal hall and returns five times a day.

The prisoners were transferred to Sing Sing in 1825, and the property was sold the next year.

The Law's Delays.

A Judge of Eggs.

Judge Addison, a well known jurist of London, was in the habit of indulging in the oddest observations while trying cases. On one occasion opposing lawyers were wrangling over the question, "When does an egg become stale?" The judge, who had vivid recollections of a close election contest in which he figured, declared that the real test of an egg's staleness was the moment it became fit for use at a contested election.

MODISH CONCEITS.

Shirt Waist Planter—Fashions in Paris—Parisian Hats.

One of the newest things in waistings is a wash flannel in chamois weight. This comes in delicate background embroidered to give a pompadour effect. It washes beautifully and is urged as a rival of the ever popular white wash waist.

Fur stoles are broader than ever, and the cravat so much liked last season is pronounced out of fashion.

Nothing seems too eccentric for the hat of the Parisienne. She will combine a bunch of feathers—one brown, one purple and one green. She will have the latest rim imaginable, with a huge velvet crown overhanging it. She will wrap an ostrich feather round her hat and then about her neck or else let the superfluous end hang down her back, and she will make the most startling contrasts in color between her hat and its trimmings.

cream lace. This blouse effect is prettiest when cut in a triple sort of collar which comes down low on the bodice in front, each piece edged with tiny knife plaitings projecting from the one above it.

The picture shows a pretty bright plaid wool trimmed with collar and bands of fancy silk edged with white cloth. The skirt is kilt plaited and attached to the body of the lining, this lining being faced to form the skirt.

SNAPSHOTS OF LA MODE.

An Economical Evening Frock—Some Good Millinery Hints.

Pompadour silk is one of the most fashionable fabrics for dinner dresses, and young women especially choose it, for it trims itself. With the exception of a wide plastron and a shoulder supple of Venetian lace, a charming pink silk of this material has no other trimming. The gown is made on the princess lines with a short train. The sleeves are of the heavy Venetian, and the plastron on the front of the corsage is brought down to the waist line, where it is held by a soft knot of the lace, which hangs in long ends on the skirt.

Hats to match different costumes are still tremendously popular. At the same time there are many all black hats being worn with frocks of different colors. This is not a very safe fashion to follow, for there are certain colors in gowns which if worn with a black hat lose their individuality and smartness right away. Take, for instance, the red costume or any striking shade in the dark colors.

It is necessary with the hats of the moment that the hair should be becomingly arranged about the face. Then if there is no hair worn the collar must be extremely high, for there are very few women who can wear a low collar and a hat with success.

Brown for street wear is a favorite color. Here is an example that shows the color in cheviot with collar and cuffs of velvet. This style of suit is well adapted to all round use. The box coat is loose and fitted by means of shoulder and underarm seams. The seven piece skirt is laid in two box plaits at the front, back and sides.

Hiding the Radiator.

An unsightly steam radiator has been thoroughly eliminated and disguised by putting an ordinary shelf on iron braces about a foot above it and hanging a curtain in front. The top of the shelf is covered with denim or burlap, and curtains are tacked at each end that hang straight to the floor. The curtain across the front is hung from a slender brass rod and may be pulled to one side when more heat is needed. The shelf extends some distance beyond the ends of the heater and is used for books and pretty bits of china.

Mending Mackintoshes.

An excellent mending cement for mackintoshes is made by dissolving some shreds of pure India rubber in benzine, which will form a stiff paste. Spread the injured part of the mackintosh on something flat, apply a little of the paste to the part to be mended and leave until the cement is hardened. This may also be very satisfactorily employed in mending rubber gloves.

Oiling Floors.

When oiling floors, use a woolen cloth rather than a brush. If the oil is thoroughly rubbed in with the cloth, the result will be much more satisfactory than when put on with a brush. The same is true in staining floors, and in this case the stain should be rubbed into the wood with one cloth and then rubbed off with another.

Rusty Old Oak.

Old oak that has been neglected should be washed in warm beer; then, when dry, wash it again all over with a soft brush with the following mixture: One quart of beer, in which has been boiled a piece of beeswax the size of a walnut, and a tablespoonful of sugar. Leave this to dry, then polish with a soft cloth.

When linoleum begins to show wear, paint the surface with a good quality floor varnish and allow it a longer time to dry than would be necessary for wooden boards.

Those Wicked Clubs. Doctor to wife whose husband is ill: "Is not your husband a hypochondriac?" Wife: "No, doctor, he doesn't belong to any society at all!"—Meggendorfer Blatter.
