DESTROYER RESCUING CREW OF BRITISH WAR SHIP DURING ACTION IN DARDANELLES

The above picture of the sinking of the British battle ship Ocean during the operations in the Dardanelles was drawn especially for this newspaper, the London Sphere and the New York Herald from a personal description given by an eye witness who actually participated in the event.

BOTHA ISSUES APPEAL

Cape Colony is in Uproar of Mob Rule To-day

By Special Wire to the Courier. London, May 15.—A Reuter despatch from Cape Town, filed Friday says: "Immense crowds thronged the streets to-night singing 'Rule Britannia' and their behaviour sometimes were threatening. Troops and police found great difficulty in preventing disorders. It was announced that the government had decided to intern all male aliens of enemy nationality and also to protect with every force at its disposal naturalized aliens or those who have applied for naturalization. "General Botha has issued to the people of the Union of South Africa from Windhoek, capital of German Southwest Africa, a message deploring the anti-German riots, which he characterizes as unworthy of a strong and chivalrous people, however great the provocation. In many cases," he says, "they have some loyalty fighting with me at the front. It is most discouraging for the officers and men here who daily are risking their lives fighting an honest and clean fight, to hear of these events at home. I therefore earnestly appeal to all to refrain from such acts which cannot benefit the country, but can only cause serious embarrassment. "Latest reports show that the rioting has been of a most serious character, but fear of a possible uprising among 25,000 mine boys along the Rand now apparently has a steady effect. The natives obtained liquor freely from looted stores, and this ad-

REVOLT SHAKES LISBON

Portuguese Political Troubles Growing More Apparent.

By Special Wire to the Courier. London, May 15.—A news agency despatch received here from Madrid, declares there has been received in the Spanish capital information of a grave revolutionary movement in Portugal. One report is to the effect that a revolutionary committee is in control of the situation at Lisbon. Indications of a serious revolutionary movement against the present Republican government of Portugal has not been lacking. On the contrary, reports from this country for six months past have almost all referred to political disorders. There has been serious dissatisfaction with the administration of affairs and the government has been freely characterized as drastic and arbitrary to an impossible degree; the president and his advisers have been called outlaws, political assassinations have not been unknown, there have been bread riots at Lisbon, followed by the proclamation of martial law throughout the republic; there has been much plotting on the part of the monarchists and the arrest and incarceration of numerous monarchist leaders; the army and navy have been suspected in their allegiance, and officers of each branch have been arrested; there has been established the so-called "republic of Northern Portugal" under the presidency of General Barreto, and there have been labor disorders of a serious nature.

ITALIAN VETERAN IS FORMING A NEW COALITION MINISTRY

Salandra, One of the Most Popular Figures in the Current Politics, Wildly Cheered by the Populace.

By Special Wire to the Courier. Rome, via Paris, May 15.—Giuseppe Salandra, entrusted by King Emmanuel with the task of forming a new cabinet to succeed the Salandra ministry which insisted upon its resignation being accepted, because it lacked the unanimous support of the country in a supreme crisis, is a Garibaldian veteran, 74 years old. He has had a wide experience in public life, and in 1910 declined a request to organize a cabinet. He has served many years in parliament and has long been president of the chamber of deputies. After receiving the King's request, he called upon Premier Salandra and Premier Giolitti. He then waited upon his majesty and reported progress in his efforts to get together a new ministry which would represent all phases of public opinion. He already has assured himself of the support of Signor Rissolatti, leader of the Socialist Reformists; Signor Pantano, a Radical leader; and Signor Barzilai, one of the foremost republicans. It is believed he will be sustained also by Signor Salandra and that Signor Giolitti will assume an attitude of friendly neutrality. There is no doubt that Salandra is one of the most popular figures in Italy among the people. He was wildly cheered yesterday afternoon while driving to the chamber of deputies to confer with Signor Marcora. Soldiers and their officers joined in the demonstration. Prince Scipione Borghese, head of one of the foremost families of Rome, indicated yesterday that he favors war when he sent from his palace to Borghese square a large flag

THE CARNAGE CONTINUES IN YPRES REGION

Germans Fling Hundreds of Lives Away in Each Attack.

By Special Wire to the Courier. London, May 15.—The Times' correspondent at Pas De Calais, France, in describing the desperate attempts made by the Germans on Ypres during the past weeks, says that they hurled themselves forward in attack after attack, each more reckless than its predecessor. "The German infantry displayed great courage, fighting bitterly. Hill No. 60 indeed has proved a stumbling block to the German plans. Throughout the terrible days of the last three weeks on no occasion has the enemy launched a big attack without prefaceing it by an attempt to recover this hill. There are signs that these efforts have very considerably exhausted him, but doubtless they will be renewed. The plain before Ypres is a charnal house of German dead. Ypres itself is broken and battered. "On the other hand the British line, reset and reinforced, is stronger than before. Each day our infantry astonishes its leaders anew by its achievements and qualities."

MR. IRELAND IS APPOINTED

At a meeting of the Street Railway Commissioners Mr. Ireland was appointed as manager to act in conjunction with his duties as manager of the Hydro-Electric, providing certain small details can be arranged. He will take hold on June 1st, and undoubtedly has the qualifications to fill the post in an admirable manner. Joseph E. Norris of Orillia, was killed on the Grand Trunk track about five miles from town.

COLOGNE GAZETTE INSPIRED

Threatens All Neutrals With Lusitania's Fate.

London, May 15.—A copy of the Cologne Gazette of May 10 has just been received here. It contains an editorial headed, "To Neutrals," and is as follows: "The Lusitania was for us a hostile ship; to destroy it was our right and duty. "We are now the objects of bitter rage and are called Huns, barbarians, and murderers, simply because German smartness and bravery accomplished a brilliant stroke. "But now the neutrals are warned. "They have seen the bloody seriousness of our submarine warfare, and let them abstain from further foolhardiness, for the fate of the Lusitania will be shared by other English steamships and every neutral who trusts himself to them courts the fate which overtook the passengers of the Lusitania. "The abuse of the neutral press up to now can be dismissed as an expression of naivete which was not conscious of the gravity of the affair. If the abuse continues it will no longer be naive, but impertinent. "The official connection of the Cologne Gazette, apart from the ordinary Government supervision of the press, makes the inference strong that the foregoing was inspired by the German Government. BERLIN OFFICIAL STORY Berlin, May 15.—From the reports received from the submarine which sank the Cunard Line steamer Lusitania last Friday, the following version of the incident is published by

DERNBURG IS URGED TO LEAVE

German Ambassador Has Committed Blunders.

By Special Wire to the Courier. Washington, May 15.—It became known in official quarters here to-day that, in view of the intimations that President Wilson and the cabinet were displeased with Dr. Dernburg's speeches justifying the sinking of the Lusitania and some of his other public utterances, which they believed might be calculated to array sentiment of Germans in the United States against the Washington Government, friends of Dr. Dernburg here have persuaded him to leave the United States. Just when Dr. Dernburg would leave, or where he would go, was not made known, but it was believed he would sail for Cuba or South America. Dr. Dernburg's activity in the United States since the beginning of the war has been closely observed by the President and other high officials here, who came to believe in the last week that a continuation of his speeches and statements might, in the event of a critical turn in relations with Germany, menace the domestic welfare of America. It has been repeatedly denied by the German embassy, as well as by Dr. Dernburg himself, that he was a spokesman for the German Government or that he had any official status. In view, however, of

BRITISH PAPERS ARE APPLAUDING WILSON'S NOTE TO BERLIN

Manchester Guardian Says it is Masterpiece and Others Think it Good Move.

By Special Wire to the Courier. London, May 15.—"The American government knows," says The Manchester Guardian, "that the suggested innocence of the German Government is a polite fiction. Scidom have we read a diplomatic document conceived so consistently as an appeal from the worse to the better self of a nation and so adroitly phrased to make it possible for the sinner to repent without public humiliation." APPLAUD NOTE. London, May 15.—All the morning papers commenting on the American note to Germany applaud the dignity and firmness with which the document is couched. Daily News suggests that though it would be difficult, after the official defence for the sinking of the Lusitania, and the expressions of satisfaction of the German newspapers over the incident, the German Government may take President Wilson's irony at its face value and declare that the submarine commander acted in excess of his orders. "There are certain things left in obscurity in the otherwise extremely lucid demands," the Daily News adds. "A guarantee of immunity for neutral vessels from attack evidently would not meet the case, while the result of a failure to comply with the American Government's confident expectation is veiled in a mist of scrupulously friendly words. But it would be a very rash assumption on Germany's part if she persuaded herself there is nothing behind the veil." The Daily Express says that President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan must have smiled some when describing German influence as "al-

KILLED IN ACTION. Official notice received this morning confirms the death of Pte. G. Keathley, his mother receiving notification of it this morning. Another name is added to the city's roll of gallant dead. Keathley's mother resides at 147 Clarence St.

NO PEACE PROPOSALS. Chicago, May 15.—There is no immediate prospect for peace between organized baseball and the Federal League, according to B. B. Johnson, president of the American league who is home from a trip to the eastern cities of his circuit. Peace hasn't even been considered, despite all stories and reports to the contrary, President Johnson said to-day.

MAXIM LOSES ARM. Paris, May 15.—Alexandre Gorky, son of Maxim Gorky, the Russian writer, was wounded while serving with the French army, and as a result has just had his right arm amputated in the American hospital at Neuilly.

ALLIES STEADILY MOVE TOWARD TURK CAPITAL

By Special Wire to the Courier. Imbros, off Gallipoli Peninsula, May 10—During the past few days the Dardanelles operations, as seen from this point of vantage, have become much less spectacular. The firing seems directed to a large extent against the Asiatic side of the waterway, but the position of the land forces, to judge by the localities shelled by the ships, does not seem greatly altered. A stubborn and continuous struggle seems in progress between the British and the Turks on the southern slopes of Tree Peak.

WARSHIPS SHELLED KRITHIA. Sailing between Tenedos and Imbros across the offing of the Dardanelles entrance on Saturday, I could see warships engaged in shelling the positions beyond Krithia Peak, five miles inland from the western promontory of the peninsula, very heavily for some time. As I watched, the whole of the enemy's position was ringed round by huge columns of smoke and earth, caused by the bursting of shells from the men-of-war. The firing was also proceeding far up the Straits, and on Saturday I witnessed a particularly violent bombardment, to which the heavy batteries were rejoined from the Turkish batteries on the heights beyond Erenkeui, on the Asiatic side. Yesterday was the quietest day since the operations began, exactly a fortnight ago. Save for a very occasional boom, silence settled down on this war-racked area. During the night, however, gun flashes were again illuminating the sky. To-day's operations presented some interesting features. The fact that the Turks are concentrating their fire towards the Narrows is a good indication of the progress we have made. I could plainly see the shells sending up great spouts of spray in the waters within the Narrows round Nagara, and on one occasion four of those white columns rose in a row at the same instant. These shells appeared to come from far up on the Asiatic side. Shortly before 2 o'clock a British warship caused a great explosion at a point a little above Nagara, but on the western side of the Straits. All day the firing continued, and from the Asiatic side inland from a line drawn between Chanak and Erenkeui, on the section of the Straits seaward from the Narrows. This was shortly after 1 o'clock today, and at the same time the Queen Elizabeth was engaged in firing repeated broadsides on the slopes of the valley that runs across the peninsula roughly from Baba Tepe to the shores of the Straits opposite Nagara. She must have done tremendous damage, for at times all the hillsides seemed one mass of bursting shells. The firing has been going on without cessation, and occasionally the Turks in Asia have landed a shell on the European side. The Turkish position beyond the Narrows appears a strong one. MORE FORCES LANDED. Athens, May 15.—A night bombardment of the Turkish forts on the Dardanelles was made by the Anglo-French fleet up to 9 o'clock yesterday morning, according to a despatch from Mitylene. The Anglo-French forces landed at Gaba Tepe, on the northern shore of the Gallipoli Peninsula, are advancing. The allies on the Gallipoli Peninsula are pushing the Turks toward the summit of two heights, commanding Krithia and Kild Bahr and Maidos, these positions still being held by the Turkish soldiers. Another allied force is advancing along the hills north of Kild Bahr and Maidos, where the Turks hold strong positions.

THE SITUATION.

The French forces are continuing their advance, and their entire movement shows that they are acting on a well-defined plan, with plenty of men and material. They have played the defensive role for a long time, but are evidently now commencing to strike, and strike hard, with excellent prospects of continued success.

The Russians have routed the Austrians in Eastern Galicia, and they continue to tackle their end of a big job in a style which has proved largely a surprise to military critics.

The call is likely to be speedily made for a fourth Canadian contingent, and without any doubt the response will be prompt for this or any others which may be needed.

The Italian people are getting more and more out of hand in their clamor for that country to join forces with the Allies. A prominent statesman residing there, during the course of a recent interview, said:

"It appears strange that Italy should so long hesitate before taking the present opportunity to attack her hated traditional foe. The reason is that the men in power do not wish to plunge the country into the enormous risks of war without first exhausting all possible means of obtaining what the people desire without recourse to arms. Meanwhile Italy is gaining every day in military strength and in economic resources by postponing her entry into the conflict."

All official reports received here from European capitals agree that the supreme clash between the two sets of belligerents, which was originally expected in May, is now almost certain not to occur until June, if not later. Why, then, should Italy hurry her action, which the more it is delayed will be the more certain of success?

The British Board of Trade has recently issued another report with reference to employment. The returns are based upon figures received from 24,000 industrial firms, employing over 4,000,000 workpeople. They show that since September the percentage of males employed in each 100 has grown from 60.2 to 65.8, and of females from 53.5 to 75.0. The workers on overtime have increased from 3.6 to 13.8 for males and 2.1 to 10.9 for females.

In the case of women and girls there is now in some industries an actual shortage. With regard to farm labor, enlistments have hit the hardest, and it is estimated that some 80,000 additional permanent male laborers and 90,000 casuals will be required by June. The returns, speaking generally, show a remarkable improvement in trade since the commencement of the war.

GRAHAM WRESTLES WITH THE NAVY MATTER.

Hon. G. P. Graham, at the North Brant nominating convention, undertook to wrestle with the navy matter from the Laurierite standpoint. He had a hopeless task on hand, and even at that did not make much of a job of it. In fact, the Hon. George, when it comes to sound sense, is regarded as one of the most superficial public men in Canada. Here is what he is recorded as saying in part on the subject:

"In any event, had the bill (to vote the price of three dreadnoughts) passed, it would have made no difference to the present war. The dreadnoughts would not have been ready until 1916. The light cruisers and destroyers on the Laurier policy—Canadian-built in Canada, manned by Canadians—would have been ready for action on the Atlantic and on the Pacific. Such boats could be built in Canada."

When the Hon. George made the above statements he was talking through his esteemed hat.

The dreadnoughts would have been ready all right, and as to the cruisers—built in Canada and manned by Canadians—that feat would have been absolutely impossible. In any event, Laurier and his colleagues did not deem the situation such as to call for action.

Here is what Sir Wilfrid said in the House no longer ago than last year, when he was sneering at the bill introduced by the Administration for the voting of the price of three dreadnoughts:

"They introduced it upon the shallow pretence of emergency. Emergency? Who speaks to-day of emergency? Twelve months have passed since my right hon. friend the Prime Minister introduced his measure. Twelve months and more have passed since that time when he saw the German peril. He saw Germany almost ready to jump at the throat of Great Britain. He saw clouds on the horizon; he saw these clouds rent by lightning; he heard the murmurs and rumblings of distant thunder. But my right hon. friend to-day may live in peace. The atmosphere is pure; the sky is clear; the German peril has disappeared, if indeed there was ever such a thing. I do not charge any intention of deceit on the part of the Prime Minister in this regard, but I will charge deceit if in the face of such evidence we hear again of such a thing as an emergency."

Such was the attitude of Graham's chief, and of Graham himself, and of all the rest of them. The "emergency" they described and derided as a "bluff" and a "delusion." Germany, according to them, was a veritable sucking dove, an emblem of sweetness and light and filled to the brim with peaceful intentions and succulent saccharinity.

Asquith knew better, and told Borden so. Winston Churchill knew better, and told Borden so. He in turn told the Dominion House and the people of a threatening storm, and Laurier, Graham and the rest of that crowd said in effect that he was a silly alarmist and a falsifier.

Failing to defeat the measure in the Commons, they had it guillotined in the Upper House by the Grit majority there, and it was one of the incidents hailed with glee in Germany as an illustration of how little the overseas dominions might be expected to help the Mother Land if trouble arose.

Laurier and Graham were both largely responsible for this slur upon Canadian sentiment, and they should, each of them, in common decency, be ashamed to bring the subject up at all.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The two Brants are all right for both Cockshutt and Fisher.

Dernburg has to get out of the States—not a darn burg there has any use for him.

When Hon. G. P. Graham seeks to tackle the navy question he gets all at sea, and then some.

The Grit manipulators who tried to force the Government into an election now sincerely wish they hadn't.

The Toronto Globe has an editorial on the "relics of the past season." As for Brantfordites, they always have their city hall with them.

The Cologne Gazette claims that the submarine which sank the Lusitania "accomplished a brilliant stroke." The killing of women and babies evidently makes it smack its lips for more of the same kind of thing.

ON UNEMPLOYMENT

On the matter of unemployment and the suggestion of a mayor's conference by the Mayor of Winnipeg, R. D. Waugh, he submits many congratulatory telegrams upon the idea, and asks the approval of the Brantford city council.

ASCENSION SERVICE WAS HELD

Grace Church Scene of Anglican Reunion.

At Grace Church on Thursday night a service was held which will long be remembered by those who heard it. The seven Anglican congregations of Brantford, Grace Church, St. Jude's, St. John's, Trinity, St. James', St. Paul's and St. Luke's, united in a combined service of praise in order to give the festival of the Ascension of our Lord the honour and dignity which is its due. The choir, which together aggregated one hundred and twenty-five voices, were massed in the nave of the church. The service began with a procession of christians, all vested in cassock and surplice, from the vestry round the church to their places, singing the hymn "Hail the day that sees Him rise." This was a most impressive sight. Full choral evensong was sung. The Rev. C. V. Lester intoned the service and the Revs. C. W. Saunders and C. E. Jeakins read the lessons. Archdeacon Mackenzie took the concluding prayers and benediction and the Rev. Professor Cosgrave of Toronto preached the sermon. Special music appropriate for Ascension Day was rendered by the choir.

The singing of the proper psalms was especially good. The familiar hymns "Rejoice the Lord is King," "Crown Him with many Crowns," and "All hail the power of Jesus Name" were heartily enjoyed by the large congregation present. The canticles were sung to the setting by Vincent, in G. The anthem "O clap your hands" by Stainer was magnificently rendered, the middle movement of which was beautifully sung by the members of Grace Church choir.

Mr. Frederick C. Thomas, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.O. worked unsparringly to train the choir for this festival, and is to be congratulated upon the success of his efforts. At the close of the service the choir were entertained by the ladies of Grace Church to light refreshments.

FRENCH OFFICIAL NOTICE

Paris, May 15—2:30 p.m.—The French war office this afternoon issued the following statement on the progress of hostilities:

"There have been no changes in the situation since last evening in the sector to the north of Arras. Here the fighting continues under the conditions set forth in our last communication. We have progressed 500 yards in the direction of Souchez. In this sector there have been violent artillery exchanges."

London Awaits Verdict

Special Wire to the Courier. London, May 15—After having been deluded by a series of chimerical crises, the British public is coming to the belief that Italy finally has reached the point of a momentous decision in the matter of her relations to the Triple Alliance.

Early to-day London was informed unofficially that Italy a week ago had denounced this alliance. When this step failed to produce further concessions from Austria, there occurred the resignation of the Italian cabinet. London is now awaiting breathlessly news from Rome of the final break.

The note of President Wilson to the German Government divides editorial attention in the London papers to-day with the Italian crisis. There is unanimous gratification in the press with the contents of the American communication. The only criticism consists of regret that it should have contained a paragraph testifying to the belief of Germany's observance of humane rules of warfare in the past.

London observers are of the opinion that the Russian situation to-day is perceptibly brighter, and this in spite of the fact that the Austro-German victory in west Galicia is becoming more and more obvious and that it is certain the Russians may rely on the Pruth their failure on the Dniester.

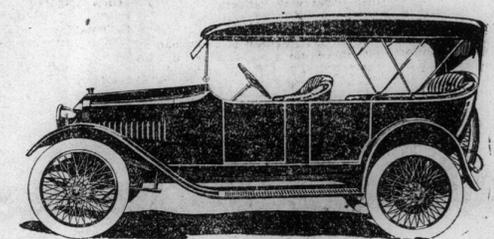

It is reported also that the Russians have checked the Germans in the Baltic provinces.

DIRECTIONS REGARDING WAR STAMPS.

Letters having been received in regard to postage stamps being used for the prepayment of war duties on bank cheques, bills of exchange, promissory notes, express money orders, proprietary or patent medicines, perfumery, wines or champagne, as well as upon letters and postcards, postal notes and post office money orders, notice is hereby given that this use of postage stamps is in strict accordance with the provisions of the special War Revenue Act, 1915, which provides that postage stamps may be used in lieu of Inland Revenue War Stamps in fulfillment and discharge of any requirement under the Act that adhesive stamps be affixed.

The public is at liberty at all times to use postage stamps for any purpose for which Inland Revenue War Stamps may be used, but it is especially provided in the Act that Inland Revenue War Stamps are not to be used on letters, postcards, postal notes or post office money orders, the only stamps allowed on these being ordinary postage stamps or postage stamps upon which the words "War Tax" have been printed.

KEETON VALUE

If you use the same principles in buying your Motor Car that you practice when buying ordinary everyday necessities, you'll surely decide on a KEETON

BECAUSE the KEETON represents the utmost value in Motor Car construction at $1425. Every vital part built into the KEETON has a name, a reputation built upon the "quality first" basis.

Take the NORTHWAY 3 POINT SUSPENSION POWER PLANT for instance: There are over 200,000 Northway Engines in use, each one representing the highest attainment in the science of Motor Construction. The KEETON does not claim to have the exclusive use of the Northway Motor, for it is used in cars costing hundreds of dollars MORE than the KEETON, but the Northway Engine is NOT used in any Motor Car sell at such a reasonable price as $1425.

And the Rear Axle of the KEETON is not an ordinary every day kind of an axle—it is a SALISBURY with HYATT ROLLER BEARINGS.

DELCO is the name of the Starting, Lighting and Ignition System.

The method of feeding the gas into the Carburetor has not been left to chance, for you will find installed just under the hood of this new Model KEETON a STEWART VACUUM GASOLINE FEED SYSTEM.

The Top is Silk-Mohair, It is a ONE-MAN TOP.

The Brake bands have been made with all the strength and efficiency necessary to control a car very much heavier than the KEETON and as a matter of precaution these break bands have been enclosed so that grease and mud cannot get between the break lining and the break drum and so impair the ability to hold your car on a steep hill.

Then again, following out the idea which has been standardized by the majority of the most expensive European and American cars, the KEETON is equipped with WIRE WHEELS, saving by actual test, at least 25% of the cost of operation of your Motor Car.

Tires at your option, are the Dunlop, Dominion or Goodyear, and the KEETON is delivered to you fully equipped with five wheels, five tires, jack, pump, tool kit, tire repair outfit, together with a guarantee covering a period of six months.

Why not buy a new 1915 Keeton Motor Car direct from the factory—IN BRANTFORD?

BOTHA AND GOOD LUCK SUBDUE THE POISONERS

Cape Town, May 15—The announcement that the Union forces occupied Windhoek without resistance occasioned little surprise here. The actual campaign has been in progress only a little more than two months, but has been brilliantly conducted by Generals Botha and Smuts in the main operations, and General Van de Venter in the auxiliary movement from the southeast. It has long been evident that the Germans were overgenerally, as well as outnumbered, by their having abandoned position after position admirably adapted by nature and prepared at the cost of great labor and expense for a stubborn defensive.

FAVORED BY FORTUNE. The diabolical ingenuity displayed by the Germans in the use of land mines and in poisoning the wells was equalled only by the extraordinarily good fortune of our men in escaping the traps. In one instance, large artillery forces and a considerable number of mounted troops passed over a Nek near Aus, where a mine had been laid, before it was exploded by spare mules following, the casualties being almost nil. Entering Aus, a trooper found a bottle of whiskey apparently intact. His more cautious comrades persuaded him not to drink it, and it proved when the bottle had been opened that the contents were poisoned, the original cork and capsule being replaced so as to appear as if it had not been tampered with.

Across the waterless desert and through the mountains for hundreds of miles the railway had to be rebuilt as the main forces proceeded. All the Union forces behaved magnificently in the most arduous but exciting campaign.

AN EXTRAORDINARY EXCUSE. The excuse given to the German population for a policy almost amounting to non-resistance, as far as real military measures are concerned, is apparently that the Union conquest will be nullified by the success of Germany in Europe. The most remarkable stories are told of news supposedly received at Windhoek from Europe by wireless. A captured doctor firmly believed that the German fleet commanded the sea and all communication between Britain and South Africa was cut and he was astounded when shown a London newspaper barely a month old. It is now believed that the German forces have retired northwards and most probably their object is merely in the prolonging of the campaign in southwest Africa as long as possible to prevent the reduction of the Union forces which would release thousands of South Africans who are anxious to proceed to Europe.

NO RECORD OF SUCH London, May 15—A Stockholm despatch to the Exchange Telegraph says a German submarine stopped the Swedish Steamer Belle of New Castle for Stockholm off Sagen, Denmark, and then escorted her to Halmstad, weden. Available shipping records contain no mention of a steamer as the Belle of New Castle.

BRANTFORD APPROACHED.

The Hamilton Board of Trade has inaugurated a town planning movement, which originated with their so much have they benefited from the civic improvement committee and the expert advice of Mr. Thomas Adams of the Commission of Conservation at Ottawa, that they have arranged a conference of municipalities to take place in Hamilton on Friday, June 3rd, at which Mr. Adams will attend and lecture. As Brantford would be interested in such matters, a very hearty invitation has been extended to the city to be represented. The Board of Trade of Hamilton will make all arrangements in order that the stay of the delegates appointed may be both profitable and enjoyable.

PRESENTATION.

On Thursday evening the members of the Young Ladies' Bible Class of Sydenham Street Methodist Sunday school, gave a very pleasant surprise party at the home of Mr. W. Kinzie, Terrace Hill street. He, after four years, severed his connection with the class, in order to take over the superintendency of the Sunday school. After a brief social intercourse, Mr. I. Hewitson, the new teacher of the class gave a short address, followed by a speech by the president of the class, Mrs. Bacon, who, in recognition of Mrs. Kinzie's faithful and efficient services, presented him with a beautiful gentleman's dressing case on behalf of the members of the class. Mr. Kinzie, who was completely taken by surprise, suitably responded. After singing "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," a miscellaneous programme was very much enjoyed by all present. It was of a patriotic nature. Mrs. Lang and Miss Arnold contributed instrumental selections, while Mrs. Savage, and her little daughter, Ariel, sang very sweetly. Other items were: Recitation, Miss E. Hazlewood, contests and choruses in which everyone took part. After the serving of light refreshments this very pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of God Save the King.

APPRECIATED HIS SERVICES.

Last evening the staff of teachers and officers of Sydenham St. Sunday school together with their friends met at the home of Mr. I. Hewitson, Wells avenue, the retiring superintendent of the school, and presented him with an oak leather covered chair, as an appreciation of the splendid services he had rendered the school for several years, and from which he had resigned. The affair was quite a surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Hewitson. Mr. E. W. P. Jones acted as chairman; Miss Ina M. Jones read the address, which was a flattering one, and Mrs. McWebb and Miss Watkins made the presentation. Short speeches were made by the new superintendent, Mr. Kinzie, Mr. Eastcott, Mr. A. Scruton and Rev. Mr. Snyder. A short musical programme was gone through with and a happy social time spent. Light refreshments were served and a most pleasant affair brought to a close. Mr. Hewitson has finished a most successful term as superintendent, a position in which he showed considerable resourcefulness. He later accepted the position of teacher of the Young Ladies' Organized class.

COLOGNE

The Admiralty staff under the signature of Admiral Behncke:

"The submarine sighted the steamer, which showed no flag. May 7, at 2.20 o'clock, Central European time, afternoon, on the south-east coast of Ireland in fine, clear weather. At 3.10 o'clock one torpedo was fired at the Lusitania, which hit her starboard side below the captain's bridge. The detonation of the torpedo was followed immediately by a further explosion of extremely strong effect. The ship quickly listed to starboard and began to sink. The second explosion must be traced back to the ignition of quantities of ammunition inside the ship."

the fact that Dr. Dernburg was formerly colonial secretary in the German foreign office, and has become prominently active in behalf of the German cause since the outbreak of the war, officials here believe that German-Americans attach official weight to his utterances.

Dr. Dernburg himself issued a statement last night declaring he had never discussed matters that had passed diplomatically between the United States and Germany. Officials here made no comment on that beyond pointing to Dr. Dernburg's utterances in Cleveland and New York recently, seeking to justify the attack on the Lusitania.

FOURTH CONTINGENT ALMOST IMMEDIATELY

Recruiting Likely to Start at Once—Third Force May Go by Battalions.

Ottawa, May 15.—That a fourth contingent will be raised in Canada now appears practically certain. While as announced, only one company from each battalion of the third contingent has so far been selected to act as reinforcements, it is quite probable, it is learned in militia circles here, that in the event of further and heavier calls for reinforcements they may be taken from the third contingent by battalions. This will mean, following the practice of maintaining an undiminished force under arms in Canada, the raising of a fourth contingent to take the place of the third.

One reason that reinforcements are first being obtained only by companies is that there is no call for senior officers, of whom there is still a surplus in England and France. The casualties among the senior officers have been comparatively light, though those among company officers have been very heavy. The disposition of the cavalry and mounted infantry recruited from the West and also in Eastern Canada is now practically decided. They will be offered the opportunity to leave for the front as infantry with the chance that when they arrive in London the authorities may decide to use them for the purposes for which they were first raised, in which case they will be supplied with horses. It is not thought that any of the units raised will refuse this offer of active service.

Bowling

The Zion bowling team last night decisively defeated the Dormitory Colts at the Y. M. C. A. alleys, taking two straight games. It is but right to say that the Dormitory men were sadly crippled, Harry Fleming being especially afflicted, but giving a great exhibition of gameness. Although suffering from rheumatism, one could notice his face contract painfully with each shot—he refused to be taken out. Hope was high bowler. Ryey led the Colts. Scores:

In the intervals of learning the mysteries of butter-making, bread-baking, encouraging the hens to lay eggs, and all the other arts pertaining to the complete housewife and farmers' daughter, the young ladies of Macdonald College at St. Annes de Bellevue, have a pretty good time. The physical drill keeps them in good health if it is too stormy to go out of doors. There is an excellent skating rink in winter and the Ottawa and the St. Lawrence rivers are at the foot of the college grounds for boating. Once a year at least there is a masquerade, and there are entertainments and concerts galore. They can run into Montreal over the C. P. BRANTS HAD A VIGOROUS WORKOUT YESTERDAY

Rube Deneau Displays the Goods the Boys Carry to Many Rail Birds.

Rube Deneau had his men on the diamond yesterday and he gave them a real tester in the way of work. As usual, the rail birds were numerous, and they were generally well pleased with the exhibition. It was noticeable that the pitchers were tightening up, and cut the plate much more frequently than they have hitherto done. Worfel was there with the speed and has shown that he has the goods. He was not hit a great deal yesterday and was not so wild as he was the first time he was out. His control, however is there, and he will soon justify the many things which have been said of his ability.

Pitcher Higgins put in his first good days work, and he has satisfied the manager, which is saying a great deal. With lots of speed and some stuff he has located the plate in good style. Slab Warner is there among the heavies, his work being particularly effective.

Very little got past the infield yesterday, and it may be rated among the fastest in the league. The way the pellet was whipped around the bases yesterday was a revelation to the fans who had assembled. Mullins, Fried and Dunlop with possibly Rube, will form the classic infield that has been seen behind the dyke in years. Deneau was pleased with the work of the outfielders, and they will be given a fair trial as they are. Burrill is in good shape, while Green is a surprise, and Brooks will complete an outfield which has yet to be approached for ability. This afternoon will be the first real opportunity the local fans have to get wise to the merit of the team. Stratford independents will line up against the Brants and every man will be given some work. That Stratford should only lose out 6-2 to London, speaks well for them, and it is up to the local squad to put them to similar defeat when they meet to-day. There will be lots of enthusiasm, and with the pep which Rube has brought into exhibitions to date, the Brants ought to have little difficulty in putting the Railwaymen to sleep.

Guelph's League Team Beat Niagara University

Guelph, May 15.—In an exhibition game yesterday afternoon Knotty Lee's Maple Leafs defeated Niagara University by 6 to 1. Both teams put up a splendid article of ball, but Guelph got to the visiting pitcher in the first and sixth innings, scoring three runs each time. The university team got their only score in the eighth, when Lake pounded one of Carney's offerings for a homer. All the scoring was done in these three innings. The Niagara team play another game here Saturday afternoon.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Boston, May 15.—Held to two hits and without runs for eight innings to-day, St. Louis in the ninth overcame Boston's lead and won, 5 to 4. Five singles, an error by Maranville when a double play which would have required the side without a score was possible, and two misplays by Cather, contributed to the visitors' string. Gowdy batted hard. He knocked the ball into centre field for a home run and again rapped it for a double against a sign on the left field fence offering $25 for any ball striking it. The score:

WAR STORIES

HOW HE WAS WOUNDED.

Pte. J. Maus, one of the Brant County boys, in writing to his mother, tells how he was wounded, as follows:

"I have been seeing a bit of real warfare recently. Three nights ago we charged and took a German trench. Under the flare of the rockets they put up they sent a terrific rifle fire into us, but almost immediately our reaching their trenches they fled. Our battalion, the 16th, was only supposed to be supporting another battalion, which was to do the charging, but a great many of our boys reached the trench as soon as any. As it happened, my platoon was in the last line of the battalion, so we didn't take any Germans, who beat it quickly. However, I was with the hundred who got farthest on past the trench and started to entrench ourselves on the edge of a field of young grass or oats. There we mistook a row of stumps for advancing Germans as we were digging ourselves in, and when we were first told we were to take a German trench my nerves were a bit jumpy. Otherwise one is warmed up and excited and doesn't care. It was a sad, sad roll call. Half or more of my pals were missing. Some, no doubt, will recover.

"After getting through this bout I was mug enough to volunteer yesterday morning to leave a trench for a building where the cook had some soup for the boys, who needed something badly alright. The shell fire was heavier than I expected, and I'll have a little holiday. Once in my right forgarm and twice in my left leg, but all clean wounds, although my leg is broken. Right hand, of course, is stiff, but not the nervous shock you would expect. Expect to convalesce in England. Will give you my address when I know it, and you can send me something to read and to eat, sweets, etc. Can write no more now. "JAIRUS MAUS."

Equal Franchise

The last meeting of the Equal Franchise Club for the season, was held on Thursday evening, in the Public Library, being open to the public. The address was "Women in War", and was given by Mrs. A. E. McWebb. She handled the subject in a most comprehensive manner, and referred at some length to the capable way in which our women have come forward at this time of crisis and trouble. She referred to the willing sacrifices made by wives and mothers, and told of one mother who said, "Our four boys have gone to the front, one has been slain in battle, two are lying wounded in a hospital, and one is with the navy, we know not where, but we were so glad we had these four boys to give to the defence of the Empire." This is only one of scores of such cases. The speaker made reference to the Crusade of the White Feather carried on in England the work done by the women in Belgium. The well known stand of Kitchener on the question of equal franchise was spoken of, and his statement, that "We need the men for the fighting, let the women manage the other things." Also the change of attitude in this regard taken by General French, since watching the very efficient and noble work done by our nurses, and others, on the firing line. He says, "I certainly think the women should be given the franchise and at the end of the war, I will do everything in my power to accomplish this."

Women, said the speaker, have come forward in very large numbers, and are filling the positions formerly occupied by men, thus relieving them for active service at the front; we now have women street car conductors, cab drivers, taxi-cab chauffeurs elevator operators, porters, etc., not forgetting the fact that over 4,000 women are engaged in the manufacture of shells, work done entirely by men in the past.

The inestimable service rendered by the Red Cross Society, and the Daughters of the Empire was dealt with, also the fact that the W. C. T. U. have two missionaries at the front, looking after the spiritual needs of our soldiers.

The Women's Volunteer Reserves, which are made up entirely of suffragists, are ready and eager for service, in fact they have offered themselves to the War Department. They are expert rifle shots, have signalling corps, women expert in management of horses, and riders, motor-cyclists, etc. When the call came for twelve women of iron nerves to drive motor-ambulances, they were supplied. They are ready at any time called upon to take over the transport work, re-mounts, and camps for sick horses, in fact, should the need arise, and all the men be forced to go to the front, they would take over the defence of the coast towns, and all the transportation of supplies, dispatching, etc., etc.

The Waste Food Dept. is another line of work being carried on by women, who are looking into the question of food production, and how to conserve the same at this time when need for such is important.

Mrs. McWebb referred to the work being done by our older women who are knitting for the boys at the front, and recalling the days when their boys went forth to the defence of the Empire in the long ago.

Surely, said the speaker when the women are not only voluntarily equipping themselves in every way possible for service, and are offering themselves, in all capacities, the men of Great Britain should offer the franchise to them at the end of the war, if not it will be a stain upon British manhood. Both the men and the women are doing their part in his and her appointed places, and are working equally for the preservation of our Empire. In the long ago, a king, poet and war lord, said those "who remained behind with the stultid should share equally in the glory of the victory, and King David certainly knew what he was talking about, commented Mrs. McWebb.

Mrs. Secord briefly referred to the United Suffragists of Toronto, who have rendered valuable aid to needy mothers and babies, supplying not only necessary outfits, but fresh milk, eggs, etc., for a certain number of weeks. She also mentioned the perfectly equipped hospital corps sent out by the English suffragists, their base hospital in France, having been declared by experts, to be one of the most complete and up to date institutions to be found any where.

A question drawer was conducted by Mrs. Secord and Mrs. F. Bann, which proved very interesting and enlightening, and called forth much lively discussion. Questions dealing with the present position of the militants in England, the status of women in the province of Manitoba at this time, and the lack of interest shown by many women in the suffrage question, were all answered and discussed.

It is expected that the club will bring to Brantford in the early fall, the popular authoress and eloquent platform speaker, Mrs. Nellie McClung, who played such an important part in the last election in Manitoba, to lecture, which the club feels assured will be looked forward to with great interest by all. This closed a most enthusiastic meeting, and a season's work which has been most encouraging.

WELLINGTON ST. CHURCH HAD

SPLENDID YEAR Joint Board Conclude One of the Best Financial Years.

Wellington St. Methodist church has closed one of the best financial years on record. Despite every drawback, the loyalty and union of members has resulted in the board feeling more than gratified that they have weathered one of the stiffest years in church history. The membership roll stands high, being over the 600 mark, and the financial well being of the congregation is in a thoroughly healthy condition, over $2000 having been paid out on the church mortgage.

The Rev. R. D. Hamilton, whose term of service expires this year, was made the subject of strong resolutions eulogising his constant work on behalf of the church and placing on record the joint boards deep felt appreciation of his labors. It was also agreed that his salary be raised to $1,700 for the rest of his stay with the church.

An election of officers took place, and the following gentlemen have assumed their roles for the ensuing year: Church secretary (also mission)—Walter J. Davies. Secretary Joint board—W. M. Charlton, K.C. Church Clerk—H. B. Beckett. The A. F. and L. has announced that the label of the Journeymen Tailors' union is no longer recognized by that organization.

The convention of the Episcopal Church, North, recently held in Boston, Mass., has pronounced in favor of old age pensions.

The Executive Council of the A. F. of L. will continue its efforts to secure a basis of amalgamation between the Sheet Metal Workers and the Stove Mounters' International Union.

There are 25,000 organized workers in Seattle, Wash.; with their families they total over 100,000, or one-third of the entire population of the city.

Printing pressmen in Canton, Ohio, have signed a new agreement with the master printers, in which they secure a substantial increase in wage.

In the recent street car fatality in Detroit, nine of the killed were members of the local tobacco workers' union, and a tenth belonged to the United Garment Workers.

The carpenters who have been on strike in Tanouqua, Pa., are now back to work, their differences with their employers having been amicably adjusted.

United Brotherhood of Carpenters in Detroit Mich., have served notice on the building contractors that a Saturday half holiday for the entire year will be inaugurated on June 5th. A 55c. per hour wage rate is also demanded.

Women are certainly getting more in evidence every day. Local No. 437 of the American Federation of Musicians of Black Diamond, Washington, has elected one of its lady members as delegate to the international convention, which convenes in San Francisco in June. This will be the first time a woman has ever been named to represent a local at the international convention.

The Building Trades Council of Cleveland, Ohio, has signed a three-year agreement with most of the large contracting firms one of its provisions being arbitration of all trades' disputes and trades agreements which cannot otherwise be adjusted.

In the New Jersey State Legislature a bill has been passed fixing October 2nd as the date of voting on women suffrage, and an easier method than that now in vogue of amending the state constitution. Organized labor has been behind both these measures.

Teachers in the Public Schools of Scranton, Pa., have formed a trades union organization that will be affiliated with the Scranton Central Labor Union and the American Federation of Labor. There were 333 teachers present when the new officers were installed.

Legislating the Jitney

The civic authorities of Kansas City propose to regulate the jitney. The ordinance now before the municipal authorities there contains 25 sections. The more important sections relate to the character and qualifications of the operators, and set forth their responsibility and liability in protecting the lives and limbs of the people. They are required to secure franchises from the city to operate their vehicles, pay reasonable licenses, and indemnify the city in bonds to cover personal injury. The city reserves the right to designate the routes to be traversed by the cars, the operator's hours and schedules, to determine the qualifications of operators of vehicles, and to regulate the rates of fare. Before a license can be taken out, they must execute a bond in a surety company for a five passenger vehicle, for the sum of $5,000; for more than 5 and up to 11 passengers, $10,000, and plus $2,000 for each extra passenger carried over the number of 10. The license fees fixed are for 5 passengers or less, $5 per month; 6 and less than 11, $10; more than 10, $10 for first month and $5 month additional for each additional passenger.

Street railway passenger traffic in Winnipeg has decreased to such an extent since the advent of the jitneys that the Winnipeg Electric Railway Company has been forced to adopt new measures to cope with the situation. This will involve a reduction in the number of cars on the various routes, a reorganization of routes and a probable reduction in staff. According to the city officials, there are 572 jitneys operating on the Winnipeg streets, 428 of which have licenses.

Industrial Canada

FROM COAST TO COAST

Chatham, N.B., is taking steps to construct a concrete dam 5 feet high, as a storage basin to hold sixteen million gallons of water.

Fears are expressed in Fernie, B.C., that if unemployment continues and men continue to pour into the city in a vain effort to find work, as they have been doing of late, a very serious situation will be created.

In Charlottown, P.E.I., industrial conditions are reported to have improved most notably of late. Building trades are busy, and same is true of most of the skilled crafts. The mills also are having a good run of business.

The Ford Motor Company has raised the wages of all its employees in Canada who have been in the employ of the company six months or longer to a minimum of 50 cents per hour, or four dollars per day, the working hours being reduced to eight per day.

The Quebec typos had one of the greatest meetings in the history of the union in the month of April. Election of officers was on, and it was one of the hottest and most keenly contested on record. Another feature was that there was no single member marked down on the absentee list.

Although Nova Scotia has now the most advanced Conservation Act, New Brunswick is likely to give birth to the first statutory town-planning scheme in Canada under its Act of 1912. The city of St. John has appointed a commission to prepare a scheme, and steps are being taken to deal with an area of 10,000 acres.

The Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co. of Westville, N.S., which is busy manufacturing steel machinery, will maintain the recent advance in wages granted to its employes, while orders are being executed for the War Office. Probably if it were not for the demand of the said war office the old rate would never have been increased.

The Canadian Rolling Mills Company has opened a new plant in Montreal on the Lachine Canal, which will employ a force of 400 hands, and the Colonial Wire Company is running to full capacity, filling large orders for Great Britain, India, China, New Zealand and Japan. The mechanical trades are all looking up and a most optimistic spirit everywhere prevails.

The International Association of Machinists has been putting up a stiff fight against certain machine shops in Toronto that have not been paying a fair wage for the manufacture of shells they have been turning out for the British government. They have succeeded in bringing a number of matters with the city, and a higher rate of wages; they are also making it hard for the balance of them.

Cigarmakers' Splendid Record

Over Six Hundred Thousand Dollars Expended in Benefits Last Year—Only Fifty Thousand Dollars Spent on Strikes.

The Cigarmakers' International Union holds a record of which it may justly feel proud. Year by year its membership continues to increase in numbers and the amount of benefits paid out to mount up. It is just as solidly established as the most reliable monetary institution, and its business has been reduced to a science and the best attainable results are secured for the least possible outlay of cash.

In a financial report which was just issued, the figures submitted amply refute the charge that trades unions are merely "strike machines."

Sick benefits $207,579.62; death and total disability benefits, $279,746.75; loans to travelling members, $81,977.15; out-of-work benefits, $68,198; strike benefits, $50,898.50.

The total benefits paid during 1914 were $606,422.27. The grand total benefits paid in thirty-five years and two months were $1,654,871.97.

The yearly cost per member for these benefits necessarily vary. Last year the charge was $13.08 1/2, or $1.09 a month.

Is Social Menace

That unemployment constitutes a serious menace to the health and safety of any community is a fact so well attested as to be clearly undeniable and still it is a truth that has never as yet been fully realized by civic authorities, and even the medical fraternity has up to the present failed to sound any effective warning to the general public.

How many of the residents in the large industrial centres in Canada, when they read of the men in the bread lines and the appalling want on their streets, do they not pause to consider that such a state of affairs constitutes a serious danger to the well-to-do and apparently healthy and is directly accountable for the spread of disease and contagion.

Medical Health Officer Hastings, Toronto, issues a note to the effect that it would be well for civic authorities and the general public to heed when he declares that social problems have to do with the public health of the community, and therefore should be a matter for public concern, and goes on to prove by authentic statistics that when unemployment is rife disease within the limits of the municipality enormously increases.

Another fact which will naturally present itself to the minds of the observant reader after fully studying the above statistics and comment thereon is that when a man, woman or child is in poor physical condition and weakened for lack of necessary nourishment, not only are they certain to fall victims of disease themselves, but become a direct menace to the health of the whole community.

They are more easily susceptible to contagious ailments that are easily transmissible to others and constitute a real danger that should neither be overlooked nor ignored.

The Health Bulletin says: "It is becoming increasingly clear to public health officials that the conditions revealed by such figures cannot be left unheeded, and that problems of unemployment, destitution and poverty, etc., are ultimately problems of preventive medicine."

"Nurses can visit the homes of our citizens and instruct young mothers in the correct methods of caring for their children, but if the husband is out of work and no money is available to buy milk or any other kind of food, it is apparent that something else is necessary besides instruction.

"Tuberculosis patients can be visited in their homes and urged to sleep in the open air or at least with their windows wide open, but if there are no wages coming into such homes and there are no proper blankets nor an adequate fuel supply, it is obvious that the suggestion of sleeping with windows wide open is scarcely likely to be followed. It seems little more than subtle irony to suggest that soiled mattresses should be thrown away when there are no others to replace them, or that some of our less fortunate citizens should be urged to move into less crowded quarters when they have not money to pay the rent of a single room.

"It will be seen, therefore, that to a alert Department of Public Health all our social problems are matters of immediate concern. The question of unemployment, the possibilities of a 'Get a man a job' campaign, the question of sanitation of the streets, plots which might supply fresh, wholesome vegetables—as well as the whole problem of charitable relief—are problems which are of vital importance."

The invasion of so many of the homes of our citizens by the menace of hunger and malnutrition, is as serious as an epidemic of measles and, indeed, is just as surely an evil to prevent and overcome."

Stands for Peace

The labor movement is not a fight-seeking institution. Unionists are thoroughly peace-loving individuals, though they sometimes fight vigorously for the establishment of justice in the industrial world. Because of the fact that unions do fight when it becomes necessary many people have been led to believe them to be primarily fighting machines. Those who go to the trouble of studying the movement sufficiently to understand it, however, readily become convinced of the peaceful motives which actuate the entire labor movement.

The fighting the unions have done is altogether to their credit. They have never hesitated to fight after all peaceful efforts of adjustment of wrongs have failed, though, in practice the fight has always been the last resort, and only approved when the stubbornness and unreasonableness of employers have made it absolutely essential to the welfare of the toilers.

An organization that would not fight under any circumstances would be of no value whatever to the workers, because the greedy and selfish employer would pay no heed to such an organization. There would therefore be no purpose in maintaining unions that would not fight. Unions are organized and maintained to force unfair employers to treat fairly with the workers. No such show of power is necessary in dealing with the reasonable and fair employer.

At the afternoon service on Sunday, May 9th, the Rev. C. V. Lester, of the Anglican mission, read a letter from the Bishop of England in Canada to abstain from the use of alcoholic liquors as a beverage during the present war, and also to refrain absolutely from treating others.

He also read "The Ascensiontide Appeal" from the Board of Management of the Missionary Society, asking all to do their part in helping mission work, especially in British Columbia and prairie provinces, from where so many men have gone to fight for England. The Empire is making a stupendous sacrifice to crush the forces which have disturbed our peace, but the Empire's sacrifice will be in vain unless the Christian church makes equally great sacrifices to win men and women to the love and obedience of Christ from whom alone a peace which is lasting and abiding can be obtained.

The Ladies' Aid met on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Elliott and it was decided to hold a talent tea at the home of Mrs. Thomas, Echo Villa, on Wednesday, May 12th, at 7 o'clock. All kinds of home-made cooking will be for sale, also aprons and fancy needlework and they hope to get a good crowd out.

We regret to say that Pte. A. Barnes has been in the hospital in Hamilton with a bad attack of grip. We wish for him a speedy recovery. Miss Hall has returned to her home.

Notwithstanding the reductions in the rates for power and light at Saskatoon, Sask., and the falling off in the revenue, a surplus of $1,500 for the power house is shown by the monthly report. An interesting feature of the report is that the cash collections last month were approximately $200 greater than the revenue, which shows that the amount of outstanding accounts is being rapidly reduced.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

DRUG HABIT DEFINED AS A DISEASE

FIRST INTERVIEW WITH DR. ERNEST S. BISHOP BY SPECIAL PERMISSION OF DR. KATHERINE DAVIS, COMMISSIONER OF CORRECTIONS

By A. R. PARKHURST, JR.

New York, Saturday.

UNLESS we are to become a nation of drug addicts, give us federal legislation that will put a stop to the illicit sale of narcotics.

That was the concluding sentence of an impassioned address made on the floor of the House of Representatives by one of its members in the bitter fight waged there for the passage of the Harrison bill, an act to curb the growing menace from drugs that is threatening the country. The Harrison bill finally was enacted and as a result there were bared even more amazing revelations of the drug evil than were dreamed of by the police of the largest cities.

Since then crusades have been started all over the country and when police officials of New York city emphatically stated that seventy-four per cent of the criminals arrested here are drug addicts, the police of other cities awoke to a realization that their comrades in New York were on the right track in their effort to check crime.

Lieutenant Scherb, chief of the Narcotic Squad of the New York Police Department, and his men have been making scores of arrests daily of drug addicts and those vendors who pander to them.

The Boylan law, and more recently the Block act, both enacted in New York State, have made it extremely hazardous for any vendors to peddle their poison about the streets. Hundreds of arrests have been made and few have escaped conviction. The good work done by this squad and the valiant aid the police generally are lending are doing more toward stamping out violence here than any step taken by the uniformed force in years. Commissioner Woods awoke to the peril of the situation and the creation of the Narcotic Squad speedily followed.

A day rarely passes now but that some unfortunate appears in one of the police courts and asks the Magistrate to commit him to an institution where treatment may be obtained for the "habit." Oftener the victim requests that he be sent to the Workhouse, on Randall's Island, where many remarkable cures have been effected.

Determined to visit the Workhouse wards and at the same time have a talk with Dr. Bishop, I went to the office of Miss Katherine Bement Davis, the new Commissioner of Charities, under whose rule the Workhouse comes. I found Dr. Davis just as deeply interested in the drug evil as any official to whom I had talked, and while she preferred that I obtain from Dr. Bishop the information desired on the perplexing problem, she consented to discuss conditions as they were and do exist.

"There is in the Workhouse no class of prisoners which is receiving more attention from us just now than the drug addict," said Dr. Davis. "The activity of the police in checking the sale of drugs has increased tenfold the number of these poor unfortunates who come under our care. We are meeting the need, however, and I think we are not without a measure of success. We are trying to apply sane and common sense methods rather than theory and the result is very gratifying to me. Our physicians and nurses are utilizing in their efforts to alleviate the suffering of the poor unfortunates they have under their care, and I am confident Dr. Bishop, who supervises the work, is as well if not better qualified for it than any other man I know. A visit to the wards where the patients are undergoing treatment would soon convince you of this, I am sure."

It was here that I interrupted Dr. Davis with the request for permission to visit these wards.

"No, I won't give you such a permit," Dr. Davis replied. "Dr. Bishop is in charge of the work and under no circumstances will I override his authority. I would suggest that you go to see him and anything he might do, or say, will be all right. He is in charge and it is for him to decide."

When I left Dr. Davis' office bearing a card to Dr. Bishop I lost no time in calling upon Dr. Bishop at his home, No. 151 West Eighty-fifth street. Before taking up his story I wish to say I was little prepared for what I later learned from him. Practically all physicians and specialists to whom I have talked about drug cases referred to the victims as "fiends" or "dopes." To them the drug habit was a vice, a cancer that was gnawing at and fast destroying the very vitals of society. All drug victims were essentially identical and all were treated in exactly the same way. There was a prescribed course through which the sufferer must go, and his physical condition at the time of starting in on the cure mattered little. The addict who had been a user of drugs for twenty-five years was treated in precisely the same manner as an addict of as many months. They were poor unfortunates who had sunk so low that they were social pariahs, incompetents, and in most cases outcasts who would stoop to any crime in order to replenish their supply of "dope."

But what Dr. Bishop had to tell me came as a revelation. Straight off he said:—"The drug habit, you know, is a disease."

"A disease?" I echoed. "You mean a vice, don't you?"
"Nothing of the sort," came the vigorous denial. "A disease, I repeat, and a most pronounced and well defined one at that."
"Now, before we go any further," Dr.

Bishop continued, "I wish you to understand that I am not what might be termed a drug specialist. I have no desire to be so classified in my profession. I am a medical man, a practitioner, a diagnostician. If you will, and in no circumstances will I discuss the drug habit from the viewpoint of medicine. Neither will I tell you what my treatment is. When I tell you I regard the drug habit as a disease you can draw your own inferences."

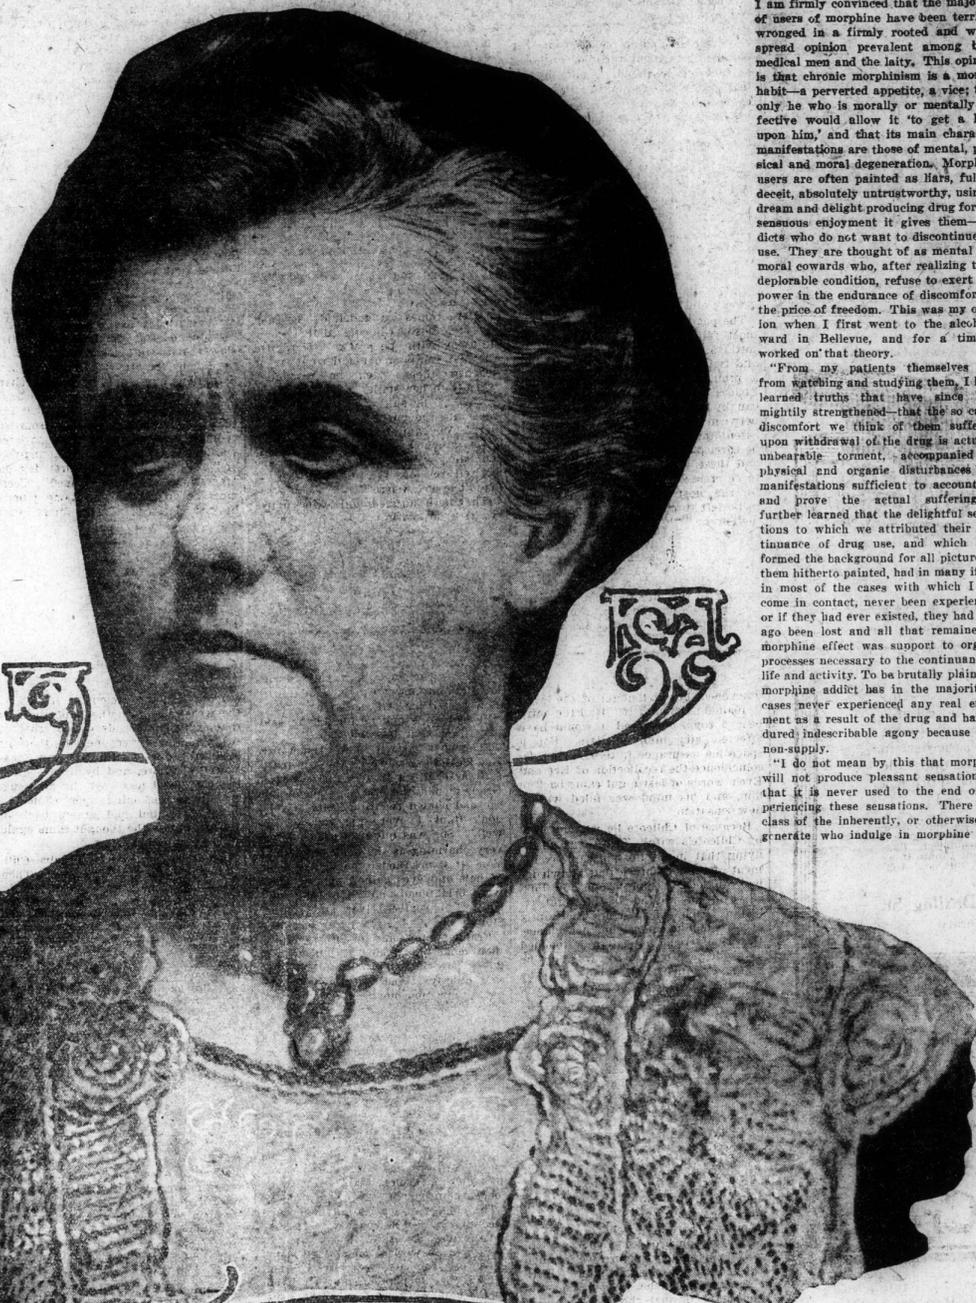

"You know as well as I do that no two persons afflicted with the same malady can be treated in precisely the same way. Circumstances alter cases. The treatment given drug addicts depends entirely upon the drug by which they are enslaved, as well as upon their physical condition when they come under medical care for treatment. We have been very successful in the treatment of such cases in the infirmary at the Workhouse, and as much credit is due the intelligent corps of nurses who are co-operating with me and the resident physicians as to the medicine that is prescribed.

"Just what those results are, however, you will have to discover for yourself, for I cannot discuss them with you. Neither can I discuss what others are doing in their efforts to cure the habit. I have my own methods. So far I am thoroughly convinced I am on the right track. Results have proved that. But I want it clearly stated that I don't profess to have 'a cure.' Find out for yourself, and in your own way, what has been done and let it go at that."

It did not take me long to realize that I was confronted by a forceful and unusual man of medicine. Dr. Bishop is a strapping, broad shouldered six footer, who, as tackle, had battered his way through many an opposing line when he played on Brown's varsity football eleven. After overcoming almost insurmountable obstacles, he has not only a splendid private practice, but also occupies the chair of professor of medicine at the Polytechnic and Medical School and Hospital, yet finding the opportunity to devote a great deal of time to the human derelicts who find their way to the city Workhouse. His late post as resident physician in charge of the narcotic and alcoholic wards at Bellevue Hospital gave him the opportunity he needed to study the drug addict at close range, and there he accumulated ideas, conceived through practical observation, which made it possible for him to accomplish what is now being done at the Island.

"When some years ago I was resident physician of the alcoholic and prison wards of Bellevue," Dr. Bishop continued, "my definition of narcotic drug addiction would have voiced the popular and generally accepted conception. I should have called it a condition based on

SHE REGARDS THE DRUG EVIL AS THE MOST SERIOUS PROBLEM IN THE CARE OF THE CRIMINAL. IN ORDER TO COPE WITH THE SITUATION SHE, AS COMMISSIONER OF CORRECTIONS APPOINTED DR. ERNEST S. BISHOP VISITING PHYSICIAN TO THE WORKHOUSE ON BLACKWELLS ISLAND, WHERE UNDER HIS SUPERVISION MANY REMARKABLE CURES AMONG DRUG ADDICTS HAVE BEEN EFFECTED

some inherent weakness of will power and mental stamina; a condition arising from the habitual use of a narcotic drug which caused a deterioration, or degeneration of the physical, mental and moral being; an abandonment of the individual to the pleasure derived from sensuous indulgence; a habit, a vice, a morbid appetite to pander to which the debauchee would go to any lengths, and, lost to self-respect, did not wish to escape from his degrading thrallhold.

"A few months of bedside observation and effort showed me how far this conception fell short of clinical fact. Literature and questioning of existing authority failed in explanation of obvious manifestations. In the end I put preconceived bias and previous conception out of my mind and approached the plentiful clinical material for my solution. What I have learned is from the study of the narcotic drug addict as a clinical problem, viewing him as a sick man, listening to his history and his statements of narcotic drug action, watching his clinical manifestations and interpreting them in the light of physical action and reaction.

"Since leaving Bellevue I have retained my interest in narcotic drug addiction and in the cases in my service as visiting physician at the Workhouse Hospital, and such as I have seen in private practice or in consultation have clarified and classified my ideas and increased my ability to relieve the addict of his affliction.

"My present definition of narcotic drug addiction is this:—A definite physical disease condition, presenting constant and definite physical symptoms and signs, progressing through clean cut clinical stages of development, explainable by a mechanism of body protection against the action of narcotic toxins, accompanied by inhibition of function and autotoxemia, often displaying deterioration and psychoses which are not intrinsic to the disease, but the result of toxemia, malnutrition, anxiety, fear and suffering."

"This definition was so entirely at variance with those I had heard specialists outline that for a time I was inclined to regard Dr. Bishop as a theorist, a dreamer, but hardly one who was getting actual 'cures' from his efforts. Before I left him I was convinced of my error, all of which was strengthened a thousandfold before I concluded my visit to the Workhouse drug wards. And, added to this, I had opportunity to read several papers that Dr. Bishop had offered before medical bodies. These papers treated of drug addiction and the many so called 'cures,' but I was forbidden to quote from them despite my earnest desire to do so.

"We will deal with the morphine addict, for example," said Dr. Bishop in resuming. "The facts I have gained from long study of these addicts offer a beacon light of hope, and convince me that ultimate rescue is possible for the majority of the so called 'incurable dope fiends.' I am firmly convinced that the majority of users of morphine have been terribly wronged in a firmly rooted and widespread opinion prevalent among both medical men and the laity. This opinion is that chronic morphinism is a morbid habit—a perverted appetite, a vice; that only he who is morally or mentally defective would allow it to get a hold upon him, and that its main character manifestations are those of mental, physical and moral degeneration. Morphine users are often painted as hairs, full of deceit, absolutely untrustworthy, using a dream and delight producing drug for the sensuous enjoyment it gives them—addicts who do not want to discontinue its use. They are thought of as mental and moral cowards who, after realizing their deplorable condition, refuse to exert will power in the endurance of discomfort as the price of freedom. This was my opinion when I first went to the alcoholic ward in Bellevue, and for a time I worked on that theory.

"From my patients themselves and from watching and studying them, I later learned truths that have since been mightily strengthened—that the so called discomfort we think of them suffering upon withdrawal of the drug is actually unbearable torment, accompanied by physical and organic disturbances and manifestations sufficient to account for and prove the actual suffering. I further learned that the delightful sensations to which we attributed their continuance of drug use, and which have formed the background for all pictures of them hitherto painted, had in many if not in most of the cases with which I had come in contact, never been experienced, or if they had ever existed, they had long ago been lost and all that remained in morphine effect was support to organic processes necessary to the continuance of life and activity. To be brutally plain, the morphine addict has in the majority of cases never experienced any real enjoyment as a result of the drug and has endured indescribable agony because of a non-supply.

"I do not mean by this that morphine will not produce pleasant sensations or that it is never used to the end of experiencing these sensations. There is a class of the inherently, or otherwise degenerate who indulge in morphine from Here I interrupted Dr. Bishop to question him about his methods of treating what he so fittingly characterizes as 'disease.' "When you visit the workhouse infirmary," he answered, "you will see many patients under course of preparation for treatment for narcotic addiction. You also will see a great many in the actual course of treatment. If you look far enough you will see a score or more men and women who have undergone the treatment now being built up to follow a normal life. Mingle with the various groups of prisoners, and you will come in contact with a great many who have been treated and are cured. Talk to them, and maybe their experiences will furnish better and more graphic reading than anything I can tell you.

"But while we are on the subject I want to say this:—In morphinism we have what will before many years be recognized as one of the most definite and curable diseases in medicine. Treatment and removal of fundamental conditions as they appear in the individual case will give surprising results. Most of the past treatments have aimed at the withdrawal of morphine and at the bolstering up by whatever means were at command the supposedly defective mentality and will power.

"I want to state emphatically that the use of morphine does not constitute morphinism nor does the withdrawal of the drug constitute the cure for morphinism. The desire for morphine is in the majority of cases simply the expression of body need. The fundamental condition is the changed physiology which makes morphine a necessity for organic satisfaction and adequate carrying on of organic function. If this were not so we would have long ago reached the solution of our problem.

"Withdrawal of morphine has been accomplished in many ways, and the average patient will live through almost any method of so doing. Experience shows, however, that following treatment which depends upon and has for its sole aim withdrawal of the drug comes months of suffering and endurance of physical inadequacy so great and so constant that there are few who do not relapse.

"Withdrawal should be simply one step in the patient's treatment, undertaken and executed with due knowledge and understanding of the disease and not by routine procedure. The important factor is to sufficiently understand the disease and its symptomatology so as accurately to estimate the patient's actual body need for morphine, to neither over-supply nor under-supply it so long as it exists, nor to eliminate, without artificial support, the conditions which create this need and to leave the patient well enough to react to strain and readjusted to normal functioning.

"All this can be done, and if I were at liberty to do so without harm to them I could summon the testimony of able physicians, past patients. For its accomplishment I have no magic cure, no routine treatment or universal method to advance. I know of no drugs, or combination of drugs which properly can be called a specific.

"Morphinism, fundamentally, is a disease. It shows stages and variations just as do other diseases. It is complicated by or complicates other diseases exactly as do other morbid processes, and every case is absolutely individual. It is just as reasonable to treat all cases of pneumonia or typhoid or cardiac diseases according to one routine as it is to treat morphinism. I conceive it from my experience just as impossible to honestly promise a short duration cure for all cases of morphinism as it would be to do so in any other disease. Rational treatment and prognosis must depend in it, as in other diseases, upon its history, its stage and development, upon its complicated complicating factors, upon the condition of the patient, mental and physical, in the individual case.

"Modern medicine has been for some time getting away from the blind following of routine and the search for the specifics, and aiming at the discovery and consideration of, and treatment of fundamental cause and underlying conditions. When this method of research is applied widely to morphinism and other narcotic conditions, and the facilities of our great charity hospitals properly directed to its furtherance we shall rearrange our conception of morphinism. Restraint and custodial care and psychiatric classification will be applied more sparingly and more intelligently. Many worthy ill persons, instead of being refused admission and turned back into the streets after inadequate treatment, more hopeless and less efficient, adding to the municipal burden of the care of its unfit, will be rationally treated and returned to health and self-supporting competency.

"The primarily normal sufferer, innocent victim of circumstances or of misguided or unavoidable medication, will be treated as any other patient, in his home, in the general hospital or in reputable sanitarium, according to his wishes and the desire of his physician. With unbiased study and education, medical men will come a rearrangement of our attitude toward morphinism and toward the treatment of its victims, and in its place will stand as a part of the ethical rational practice of medicine the treatment of a new disease."

THE COURIER

The MASQUERADER

By Katherine Cecil Thurston, Author of "The Circle," Etc. Copyright, 1904, by Harper & Brothers

With Greening's eyes upon him there was no time for scruples. With very creditable coolness he began opening the envelopes one by one. The letter were unimportant, and he passed them one after another to the secretary, experiencing a slight thrill of authority as each left his hand. Again the fact that power is visible in little things came to his mind.

"Give me my engagement book Greening," he said when the letter had been disposed of.

The book that Greening handed him was neat in shape and bound, like Chilcote's cigarette case, in lizard skin.

"I. C." winked at him in the bright morning light. The incident mottled his sense of humor. He and the book were co-operators in the fraud, it seemed. He felt an inclination to wink back. Nevertheless he opened it with proper gravity and skimmed the pages.

The page devoted to the day was almost full. On every other line were jottings in Chilcote's irregular hand, and twice among the entries appeared a prominent cross in blue penicill.

Loder's interest quickened as his eye caught the mark. It had been agreed between them that only engagements essential to Chilcote's public life need be carried through during his absence, and these in blue penicill. The rest, for the most part special claims, were to be left to circumstance and Loder's inclination. Chilcote's erratic memory always accounting for the breaking of trivial promises.

But Loder in his new energy was anxious for obligations. The desire for fresh and greater legs grew with indulgence. He scanned the two lines with eagerness. The first was an interview with Cresham, one of Chilcote's supporters in Wark; the other an engagement to lunch with Fraide.

At the idea of the former his interest quickened, but at thought of the latter it quailed momentarily. "Had the entry been a royal command it would have affected him infinitely less. For a space his assurance faltered. Then by coincidence the recollection of Eve and Eve's words of last night came back to him, and his mind was filled with a new sensation.

Because of Chilcote he was dejected by Chilcote's wife. There was no denying that in all the pleasant excitement of the adventure that knowledge had rankled. It came to him now linked with remembrance of the slight, reluctant touch of her fingers, the faintly evasive dislike underlying her glance. It was a trivial thing, but it touched his pride as a man. That was how he put it to himself. It wasn't that he valued this woman's opinion—any woman's opinion. It was merely that it touched his pride. He turned again to the window and gazed out. The engagement book still between his hands. What if he compelled her respect? What if by his own personality cloak under Chilcote's identity he forced her to admit his capability? It was a matter of pride, after all—scarcely a matter of pride; self respect was a better word.

Satisfied by his own reasoning, he turned back into the room.

"See to those letters, Greening," he said. "And for the rest of the morning's work you might go on with your Khorsan notes. I believe we'll all want every inch of knowledge we can get in that quarter before we're much older. I'll see you again later." With a reassuring nod he crossed the room and passed through the door.

He lunched with Fraide at his club and afterward walked with him to Westminster. The walk and lunch were both memorable. In that hour he learned many things that had been sealed to him before. He tasted his first draft of real elation, his first drop of real discomfiture. He saw for the first time how a great man may condescend—how unostentatiously, how fully, how delightfully. He felt what tact and kindness perfectly combined may accomplish, and he burned inwardly with a sense of duplicity that crushed and elated him alternately. He was John Loder, friendless, penniless, with no present and no future, yet he walked down Whitehall in the full light of day with one of the greatest statesmen England has known.

Some strangers were being shown over the terrace when he and Fraide reached the house, and, noticing the open door, the old man paused.

"I never refuse fresh air," he said. "Shall we take another breath of it before settling down?" He took Loder's arm and drew him forward. As they passed through the doorway the pressure of his fingers tightened. "I shall reckon today among my pleasantest memories, Chilcote," he said gravely. "I can't explain the feeling, but I seem to have touched Eve's husband, the real you, more closely this morning than I ever did before. It has been a genuine happiness." He looked up with the eyes that through all his years of action and responsibility had remained so bright.

But Loder paled suddenly, and his glance turned to the river—wide, mysterious, secret. Unconsciously Fraide had stripped the illusion. It was not John Loder who walked here; it was Chilcote—Chilcote with his position, his constituency—his wife. He half extricated his arm, but Fraide held it.

"No," he said. "Don't draw away from me. You have always been too ready to do that. It is not often I have Spontaneous and yet strangely responsible position might have been excused if for the time at least, he gave himself a loose rein. But Loder kept free of the temptation.

Like all other experiments, his showed unlooked for features when put to a working test. His expected difficulties smoothed themselves away while others, scarcely anticipated, came into prominence. Most notable of all, the physical likeness between himself and Chilcote, the bedrock of the whole scheme, which had been counted on to offer most danger, worked without a hitch. He stood literally amazed before the sweeping credulity that met him on every hand. Men who had known Chilcote from his youth, servants who had been in his employment for years, joined issue in the unquestioning acceptance. At times the ease of deception bewildered him. There were moments when he realized that, should circumstances force him to a declaration of the truth, he would not be believed. Human nature offers its own eyesight to the testimony of any man.

But in face of this astonishing success he steered a steady course. In the first exhilaration of Fraide's favor, in the first egotistical wish to break down Eve's skepticism, he might possibly have plunged into a vortex of action; let it be in what direction it might, but, fortunately for himself, for Chilcote and for their scheme, he was able to strenuous second thoughts—those wise and necessary surbs that go further to the steadying of the universe than the universe guesses. Sitting in the quiet of those on the same day that he had spoken with Eve on the terrace he had weighed possibilities slowly and cautiously. Impressed to the full by the atmosphere of the place that in his eyes could never lack character, however dull its momentary business, however prosy the voice that filled it, he had sidled impulse from explication as only a man who has lived within himself can sift and distinguish, and at the close of that first day his programme had been formed. There must be no rush, no headlong plunge, he had decided. Things must work around. It was his first expedition into the new country, and it lay with fate to say whether it would be his last.

He had been leaning back in his seat, his eyes on the ministers opposite, his arms folded in imitation of Chilcote's most natural attitude, when this final speculation had come to him, and as it came his lips had tightened for a moment and his face become hard and cold. "It is an unpleasant thing when a man first unconsciously reacts on the weakness of another, and the look that expresses the idea is not good to see. He had stirred uneasily, then his lips had closed again. He was tenacious by nature, and by nature intolerant of weakness. At the first suggestion of reckoning upon Chilcote's hopes, his mind had drawn back in disgust, but as the thought came again the disgust had lessened.

In a week, two weeks, perhaps—Chilcote would reclaim his place. Then would begin the routine of the affair. Chilcote, fresh from indulgence and freedom, would find his obligations a thousand times more irksome than before, he would struggle for a time, then—

A shadowy smile had touched Loder's lips as the idea formed itself. Then would come the inevitable recall; then in earnest he might venture to put his hand to the plow. He never indulged in day dreams, but something in the nature of a vision had flashed over his mind in that instant. He had seen himself standing in that same building, seen the rows of faces first bored, then hesitatingly transformed under his personal domination, under the one great power he knew himself to possess—the power of eloquence. The strength of the suggestion had been almost painful. Men, who have attained self repression are occasionally open to a perilous onrush of feeling. Believing that they know themselves, they walk boldly forward toward the highroad and pitfall alike.

These had been Loder's disconnected ideas and speculations on the first day of his new life. At a o'clock on the ninth day he was pacing with quiet confidence up and down Chilcote's study, his mind pleasantly busy and his cigar comfortably alight, when he paused in his walk and frowned, interrupted by the entrance of a servant.

The man came softly into the room, dreg a small table toward the fire and proceeded to lay an extremely fine and unserviceable looking cloth.

Loder watched him in silence. He had grown to find silence a very useful commodity. To wait and let things develop was the attitude he oftentimes assumed, but on this occasion he was perplexed. He had not rung for tea, and in any case a cup on a salver satisfied his wants. He looked critically at the fragile cloth.

Presently the servant departed and solemnly re-entered carrying a silver tray, with cups, a teapot and cakes. Having adjusted them to his satisfaction, he turned to Loder.

"Mrs. Chilcote will be with you in five minutes, sir," he said.

He waited for some response, but Loder gave none. Again he had found the advantages of silence, but this time it was silence of a compulsory kind. He had nothing to say.

The man, finding him irresponsive, retired, and, left to himself, Loder stared at the array of feminine trides; then, turning abruptly, he moved to the center of the room.

Since the day they had talked on the terrace he had seen Eve only thrice and always in the presence of others. Since the night of his first coming he had not invaded his domain, and he wondered what this new departure might mean.

"Eve" she called. "Eve! We must try. It's absolutely 3 o'clock!"

CHAPTER X. IN the days that followed Fraide's marked adoption of him Loder behaved with a discretion that spoke well for his qualities. Many a man placed in the same re-

Lesson VII. - Second Quarter, For May 16, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xxvi, 5-16. Memory Verses, 11, 12 - Golden Text, Luke vi, 27 - Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The lesson today is a record of one of the occasions on which David had Saul's spear in his hand.

On this occasion David took the spear and the cruse of water from Saul's bolster that he might show him how he had him in his power.

Saul knew David's voice and professed to be very grateful to him for sparing his life.

The cave of Adullam story in chapter xxii is full of interest, beginning with his seeking a place of safety for his father and his mother.

Those who read the story of David's life will be struck by the fact that he was a man of peace.

What a shameful position! Surely God has given preachers much advantage over the common people.

A SUNDAY SERMON BY PASTOR RUSSELL

DRIVING THE PEOPLE FROM GOD AND BIBLE

Are "Doctrines of Demons" Responsible?

Satan's Successful Method - Why God Permits Darkness For Light - Faith and Love Tested - Responsibility of Preachers - God Slandered - Everybody's Duty - Truth Soon Triumphant - They Shall Be Ashamed.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 9. - Pastor Russell gave two addresses here to-day. We report the one from 1 Timothy 4:1, 2. It is a severe arraignment of education, and especially of ministers, not withstanding its moderate language.

Back in the Second Century, when Bibles were printed by pen and very expensive, and when few had the education to read them, Satan laid the foundation for gross errors.

A little later the Apostolic Bishops, with Emperor Constantine, situated the Bibles in the churches.

Satan, personally and through his demon hosts of fallen angels, seeks to misrepresent God's character.

What is to crush this slander against the Almighty, which Satan has manufactured? He got us to be sure He made a great place called Hell.

It was about the year 1500 A. D. that the people began to desire the New Testament and to doubt the inspiration of the Apostolic Bishops.

where (Romans 6:23; and, 'sou' that sinneth, it shall die' (Ezekiel 18:4, 20). If we had believed the Bible, we would have been spared the nonsense, the fear, the torture, the delusions, which have troubled us.

Burning the New Testament made the matter worse. The people wanted to know why they should not be permitted to read the words of Jesus and the original Twelve.

Roman Catholics also saw the opportunity for giving the Bible to the people and thus affecting, as the Protestants did, the masses.

The same spirit is manifested everywhere. Whoever will agree with the Bible, and who is not a Protestant, is tolerated by his own class.

From first to last, the "doctrine of demons" are various falsehoods designed to misrepresent God's character and dealings.

Quite recently I heard from a young man, who went to his pastor, saying, "Do you really believe in Hell fire as the punishment for sin?"

What a shameful position! Surely God has given preachers much advantage over the common people in the present age.

Satan has been working his plan of opposition to God for more than six thousand years. He began by telling Mother Eve that her sin would not bring the punishment of death, as God had said.

This is the fundamental doctrine of the demons. Think how many false doctrines that have troubled the human mind are based upon the thought that the dead are alive!

FINANCIAL MAGNATES AS PRIVATES

WHILE to the casual observer the picture reproduced above may seem of but passing moment it is particularly of interest to those who follow closely the financial fortunes of the Dominion. The figure at the right hand side next to the officer who has his back turned to the camera is that of Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, General Manager of the Bank of Montreal, next to him is the rank is A. E. Holt, General Manager of the Royal Trust Co., while the third figure is that of A. D. McEwen, General Manager of Eastern Lines of the Canadian Pacific. The picture was snap-shot during the recent review of the Montreal forces by H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught. The picture distinctly shows the amble and surprised recognition lighting upon the face of Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor as he recognises Sir Frederick in the ranks as a simple private of the Home Guards of Montreal.

LIFE UPSET ON MISSION IN TURKEY

Thrilling Story of Palestine After the Declaration of War.

The following interesting letter from the Turkish war zone in Palestine is one of absorbing and graphic interest. The writer is a sister of Mrs. A. G. Gardiner, residing at 87 Emily street, and is in the employ of the mission, plainly, course, she is the representative from Scotland. It is one of the most vivid stories of life under the Crescent flag since war was declared that has been printed: "Dr. Paterson, judged it desirable to remain at his post in order to emphasize the fact that, as it appeared at the time, monetary stringency had compelled the ladies to leave his house and their work could not be prevented the unfortunate impression that panic was the motive of their going; also to safeguard the property and the security of the native Christian community dependent on the mission. Long after the departure of the ladies on the 21st of September, there was a state of suspended judgment as to the chances of Turkey taking sides, there a very large party at Constantinople and in the provinces. Indeed, if what was told to Dr. Paterson in Egypt on his way home be true, Turkey was hurried into it by Germany forcing her hand, prematurely, at least, against her own warring counsels. On the night of 31st October, a telegram from the consul apprised him of the rupture of the British alliance with Britain and Turkey, and the next morning he rode to Jerusalem, lodge title-deeds and other papers in the American Consulate, and arrange for protection of interests. During his absence his house was ransacked, but the commissary, with soldiers and police. The Christian hospital servant in charge was cursed and cuffed for not opening to them more promptly and endeavoring to break open locked doors and institute a search for firearms, explosives and incriminating documents, on suspicion of his being a spy. Not a ward robe, wall press, cupboard, drawer, or box, but they ransacked; even the kitchen was searched. Little real damage was done, thanks to the commissary, who however, helped himself to a pair of field glasses, and his colleague to a brass pencil case and a tin of marmalade. The rooms were sealed and a guard billeted in the hall. The new building, was happily, not far enough advanced to be of use to the government, but the mission's four camels, as well as their fodder, were commandeered, and the place sealed and a guard left. At the hospital, the rented place, they searched and seized, marked all medicines, surgical stores and equipments, beds, bedding, etc., (the instruments had already been moved by Dr. Paterson), sealed everything and mounted a guard. Here the Mohammedan hospital servant was cursed and cuffed for so-called dilatoriness, but was left in charge. Had Dr. Paterson been present he would almost certainly have been put in prison, pending examination of correspondence seized, indeed, Dr. Sterling, C.M.S. Gaza, was actually confined for six days—the reason being that Hebron and Gaza are the nearest missionary stations to the front and southern field of war. The only Christian native merchant (Gibran) in Hebron, highly respected and generally liked, was committed to the cells for a day and a night, his friendship for Dr. Paterson arousing suspicion of treachery; and the doctor's offer of the hospital (before it was seized) and of his services, was regarded as a malign purpose against the Sultan's sick and wounded leges. Ten days after, while in Jerusalem, Dr. Paterson's correspondence was returned, and he then being armed with an order for restitution of his house, and protection of the property, rode back to Hebron. In the hospital which he was not allowed to enter, he learned that nothing had been disturbed, (nor had been as late as Xmas) but from the new building they had been taken camel loads of lime stored there, as well as timber, for the construction of bridges and culverts on the new military road from Hebron to Beersheba. A note of these seizures is being kept.

Jews, who were enemy subjects, were shamefully treated, all men being put for some days in prison, their families turned into the street, and their houses sealed up. Dr. Paterson's return, cleared as he had been of all suspicion, plainly, course, he was commended; for many expressed shame and annoyance at the authorities' conduct, and he did what in him lay, by firmness and an appeal to their better feelings, to secure the return of the well-being of our dependants; but as it was evident that no more work could be done and as his continued presence would have been of no further advantage during a state of war, he soon left for Jerusalem. It is right to mention that all enemy property, such as railways, post offices, monasteries, hospitals and schools everywhere had been taken over by the Turkish authorities in the Holy City and through the Empire, were held as hostages, their lives to be forfeit, should open ports be bombarded and any of the Mohammedan civil population be killed. As this was not the Allied way, they knew such a contingency could never arise, and on this score they were in little concern. What really worried them was, first, the suspense of friends at home, for during two months they not only had no news, but letters out or in were intercepted, and second, the lack of money, especially if they were to be spirited away, no one knew where, until the end of the war, as was frequently threatened. Martial law secured perfect order and security and all were free to go about by day as they pleased, until 8:30 p.m., after which to be abroad without a permit, meant the lock-up till next morning. Mohammedans, Jews and native Christians, however, suffered great hardship and oppression, being mulcted in money and kind for sinews of war, and non Ottoman Jews everywhere were persecuted, even by the British, owing to their being suspected of racking uncertainty, owing to conflict between the civil authority (which often tried to do the correct thing, even by the Allies), and the military, whereby the Jews were issued for internment of enemy subjects in Asia Minor and as often cancelled. Fairly early in November permission was granted to teachers and heads of schools (British Missionaries and French and Belgian monks) to leave the country, but Dr. Paterson was not included, as we have no recognized school in Hebron. The Russians, also, were excluded, being more intensely hated even than the British, owing to northern invasion. But a whole week's negotiations were at the last moment quashed by the military, much to the chagrin of the U. S. A. Consul, who had engaged to send the project. Later, monks of all enemy nationalities, including Russian, were sent in relays to Damascus by road and rail, ostensibly for temporary banishment, to Urfali or Beyona, actually as it transpired, for shipment to Beirut, as Jaffa, the port per port for Jerusalem, was closed for exit, being controlled by a fanatic, a nominee of Enver Pasha. The British community was under orders, and ready packed, men and women, were included in an expulsion order, for nuns and the remaining monks—said to have been obtained by the Pope through the Emperor of Aus-

(d) Even on the landing stage at Jaffa, it seemed as if the hopes of the hated English were to be balked—this time by a fanatic commandant. Twice, after passing through a yelling struggle, a mass of refugees at the Custom house, they were turned back under military escort, with every mark of contempt. Yet even here, comedy entered in. For the first time of asking, all were repulsed; for the second time all but clergymen were rejected, but even among these, only such as wore a clerical collar were eligible, and one who actually wore the badge was turned back, because he was known as a doctor—Canon Sterling of Jaffa. For the third time of asking, they had the moral suasion of the U. S. A. Battle cruiser, steaming into the roads, and the firmness and diplomacy of the gallant American Consul who had come upon the scene. This particular exodus included about 900 refugee Jews—all in one ship, while another of 600 had been brutally expelled a week before at a few hours notice, when families were torn asunder, some members taken and others left. Since then many thousands have followed to Egypt, the same cruiser, Tennessee, serving most nobly as an emigrant ship, through many voyages, for these unhappy fugitives from a reign of terror. One word sums up the cause of all this trouble—Germany.

SUBMARINES THAT WILL CREEP AND CRAWL

DIAGRAMMATIC VIEW OF WHEELED UNDERWATER CRAFT FEELING ITS WAY UP AN ESTUARY. The stranding of a British submarine in the Dardanelles has drawn attention to the contrivance of Mr. Simon Lake, an American inventor, for the protection of submarines in shallow water. By means of wheels on the bottom Mr. Lake makes it possible for the craft to advance cautiously in shallow water without showing even her periscope. In a trial one of these submarines entered Libau Harbor, followed the channel on her wheels and up a crooked passage through the fortified entrance.

Mr. Morgan's London Home Clashes in East Africa Between British and Germans Told by Trooper

Converted Into Special Nursery for Infant Children of Professional Persons Whose Incomes Have Been Reduced or Blotted Out by the Great Conflict.

(Special Dispatch) LONDON, May 15.—Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan's palatial house at Nos. 13 and 14 Princess Gate, which stands in the midst of green and open spaces, Princess Gardens at the back and Hyde Park stretching out in front, is the home of the Professional Classes War Relief Council.

The most interesting part of the house is undoubtedly the upper part, which has been converted into a special nursing home for babies born in war time of professional persons whose incomes have been reduced or blotted out altogether. The plight of these classes—the artist, the musician, the architect especially—suddenly reduced from comparative affluence to poverty, is indeed one of great pitiable-ness, more especially as the sensitive artistic temperament is not adapted to hold its own in the rough-and-tumble of fierce competition.

And an aristocratic home this is for the little miles cared for there. Every patient availing herself of this beautiful home is paid for either by herself or by the benevolent fund of the husband's professional institution. It is given to few little Londoners to open their eyes for the first time in such an exhilarating environment. The big, sunny rooms are furnished in such a manner as to suggest gladness and roses and light and laughter. All these "blithe newcomers" have the most delectable little cradles in white or pink or blue, and fascinating little toilet sets, brushes and mirrors, and all complete. Moreover, if they want any additions to their wardrobe there is a big chest of drawers full of the most exquisite little frocks and baby boots, and coats and caps all presented by generous donors who have worked the same (themselves), from which these little infants are bound to make a selection.

There is an infinity of baths at this idyllic nursing home. The nursing staff are all highly qualified. Altogether it is permeated by an atmosphere of efficiency, happiness and peace. It is, as psychologists say, surroundings in infancy make or mar the boy or girl, man or woman of the future, babies born here are bound to

Movements for a Speedy Peace Afoot in Germany

Several Million Marks Said to Have Been Already Collected for Invasion of England—Signatures Obtained to Petition the Kaiser to Stop the War.

(Special Dispatch) BERLIN, May 15.—Two movements, apparently diverse in character but in reality correlated, recently sprang into existence in Germany. These movements seem to have the same aim in view—namely, to bring about a speedy close of the war. Both parties are working silently; no documents referring to their projects are allowed out of the hands of their trusted agents; everybody is approached personally, so that no information may leak out either through treachery or by an incautious act. No official stamp is attached to either of the movements.

The first movement refers to the collection of funds, already said to have reached several million marks, to be presented as a special reward to the army which has been assembled and is now ready to invade Great Britain. This event is to take place when the British fleet has been substantially reduced by means of submarine attacks and losses which the forcing of the Dardanelles—an impossibility in the opinion of the German authorities—must entail.

The invasion plan is reported to have been worked out in such detail that German railway officials have been appointed to take charge of the railway stations in the particular district where a landing is contemplated, and every one of these new station masters knows exactly where to go. The invasion scheme is a strong favorite with a large percentage of the German public, who have still not a shadow of doubt about the empire's final victory.

The contributions to the fund vary from the groschen—about one and a half-cent—which the school children bring to the schoolmaster, up to the more substantial amounts collected by women by organized close of the war. Both parties are working silently; no documents referring to their projects are allowed out of the hands of their trusted agents; everybody is approached personally, so that no information may leak out either through treachery or by an incautious act. No official stamp is attached to either of the movements.

War Likely to Knock the Corners Off Edges of Cubist, Says Artist

Two Brantford Soldiers Tell of it—Picture Shows Battle in the Trenches

(Special Dispatch) LONDON, May 15.—It may be no news to say that no profession has been hit so badly by the war as the artists. In London now you can have your portrait painted at about half the cost of normal times. And the main question in the studios is what effect the war is likely to have on art. Will artists quietly go on painting the same old peaceful subjects—the little streams running through meadows, the sun setting over the sea, the child playing with his toys—or will they be so affected by the horror and heroism of the war that they will find it necessary to paint stirring battle pictures, or, at any rate, pictures that hint in some way at the new world that has appeared since last July? Writers and publishers of books seem to be pretty well unanimous in thinking that the war will produce a new type of novel. Will there be a new type of picture as well?

In the opinion of Mr. Alfred Pranga, the well-known artist, who has just finished a portrait of Father Bernard Vaughan, the war will kill extreme modern movements, such as the cubist and futurist, movements, and will tend to revive the subject picture of healthy sentiment. Art will become more sane, and there will be an end of affectation and impatience. The matter of pictures will be simpler and more sentimental, and probably more religious. The manner will be more academic, but leavened with a touch of impressionism.

"We shall hear no more," said Mr. Pranga, "of futurism and cubism and other artistic eccentricities. There was never anything really English in these movements. They were all of foreign origin, and several of the greatest abridgments came from Germany. At one time it looked as if they might possibly succeed in taking the English art world by storm, but the war has saved the situation and virtually knocked the corners off the edges of the cubist. There is, however, something good in every new development, and the extreme art movements of the (Special Dispatch) LONDON, May 15.—When the first faun is awakened there is a pursuit and a struggle, which ends in the victory of the other faun and the titled dancer is hurled down the slope. The fall is a sensational achievement. The distance is considerable, and the fragile body of Lady Constance Richardson receives several bruise knocks, which at once produce admiration and anxiety on the part of the spectators.

Lady Constance, being asked the secret of the "fall," said:—"I only managed to do the fall after a great deal of practice. I can be no question that Lady Constance takes her art seriously.

The artistic vehicle for Lady Constance is a Greek "Ballad Dance" called "The Wideness" with the same kind in some Arcadian retreat. She first appears and before the spectators wearing a tense expression, aided in effect by her widely opened eyes and somewhat stealthy movements. A faun, to give the story, who has daunted himself to sleep in the presence of the gods of nature and war, has his play-ground invaded by another faun, the Lady Constance herself. The scenery represents a high and jagged rock, with an overhanging ledge near the summit.

British Army Bravely Attacks Mirage

General Botha Landed Recently with his Well-Equipped Burgiers and Long before you get this we shall have started our advance along the main railway to Windhoek.

(Special Dispatch) LONDON, May 15.—Marches through absolute desert—no water for washing purposes, despoiling to attack a mirage—these are some of the experiences which face the British forces making a conquest of German Southwest Africa. But in spite of such handicaps the British have made good progress, have taken Swakopmund and are preparing to press on after the Germans. The experience of the troops is told by an officer in the Northern Force, who writes to the London Times:—"What a world of desolation is there! Not the benign duneland of east England or the heaths of the country, but a shimmering white sand billows, rising in places to a height of one thousand feet or more, and always melting and trekking and piling up. There is not a living thing—plant, animal or insect—to be seen.

"Fearsome is the mirage here. At four hundred yards a man looks bulky as a horseman, with fluid legs. At six hundred yards a whole regiment is lost in a shimmering lake of reedy lagoons. While trying to get in touch with the regiment which had landed at the settlement we became aware of lines and streams of fantastic horsemen, infantry and guns overflying the dunes to our right front and apparently coming to attack us.

"Our companies of Rand Rifles eagerly deployed and ran forward and it was not until we were within five hundred yards that we discovered we were out to fight the South African Irish, who had gone out too far to our left front. There were no guns or horses in the country.

Wearily but Necessary Gland.

"Since those days of hourly expectation we have been on one colossal fatigue. First entrenching the bases, then building sea-walls, then building a railway from Walvisch to Swakopmund along the seashore, guarding its construction, building sandbag blockhouses at short intervals along its course and also, of course, outposts and patrols. A weary, if necessary, grudge.

EXTRACTED BULLET'S OWNERSHIP A PUZZLE

The question regarding the ownership of an extracted bullet at present is being debated with considerable vehemence in German newspapers, and in some law periodicals as well.

(Special Dispatch) BERLIN, May 15.—The question regarding the ownership of an extracted bullet at present is being debated with considerable vehemence in German newspapers, and in some law periodicals as well. As a rule, a patient likes to retain the bullet extracted from his body as a curiosity. On the other hand, the surgeon likes to keep it as an illustration of his successful operation, especially in lecturing before medical students or writing to his medical journal on the subject.

"There are some humorists among the Germans. Some little time ago they sent a wireless message from Windhoek to our G. O. C. at Luderitz Bay, and recommended our people not to spend too much time at football there, as there was an excellent football ground at Windhoek, where they would play.

"That morning a German patrol had been trapped and two were killed and three wounded. So a prompt reply was sent to say:—"Many thanks, and we are doing nicely here. In a game we played against you this morning we scored two goals and three tries."

GERMAN OUTLYING

Four Violent Bridge-Heads Pulsed, and Pushed Back Leaving Guns.

London, May 17.—The official statement was issued by the War Office last night.

"The First Army has effected a successful attack between the Avoue and Festubert, enemy's line over the ground a two-mile front.

"The attack commenced to the south of Richebourg where we carried two miles of German breastworks 800 yards. A mile farther south another attack at 1,200 yards of German trenches, and we pushed extending its success 600 yards to bombard German trenches. Here the Festubert-Quinque was nearly a mile into lines.

"The fighting still continues, and throughout the day heavy fighting has been going on. At Ypres all has been quiet for hours, and elsewhere there is nothing to report.

GERMANS HANDED

Rotterdam, May 17.—The city still sending forward brave troops in pursuit of the determined effort to bring the British lines at Ypres seems to doubt their determination to establish a position on the Ypres canal. They have suffered their heavy losses, but have pushed far into the direction of Lille, but from abandoning their attempts to hack their way along the road from St. Omer.

FIGHTING VERY DURING THE LAST TWO DAYS has been fierce, especially in the north.
