The Poet's Corner. The seat on the hill top. BENEATH THE OLD TREE. What man hath not found on this changeable earth.

LINENS AND LACE.

Entique laces and charming neckties which will be particularly pleasing to the Ladies. From the Philadelphia Times.

THE MATTER OF COLORS. An authority in fashions, who is very much opposed to colored undergarments, says in Le Journal des Modes that underclothing should be calm and candid.

Some of the new undergarments are lovely. In a trousseau recently prepared one of the night dresses had the entire front formed of alternating rows of fine French needle work on linen cambric.

Another style in fine linen bust is so cut that sleeves are cut with the square chemise, which is slightly gathered below each shoulder, just above the bust.

with inserting and lace, while the lower edge is tucked and trimmed in the same manner as neck and sleeves, forming a garment which can be used as a corset-cover and underskirt, if gauze undershirts are worn under corset.

SHAPES AND TRIMMINGS. Very little change is noticeable in the fashion of drawers, the shapes being very nearly the same as in the past seasons.

Long white skirts, covered with flounces and edged with lace, are worn under morning dresses; and the chemises to be worn with these also are made long and high to the throat, with long, full sleeves to the wrists, like the most elegant night robes.

For midsummer wear these exquisite morning robes will be made of sheer silk in cream and ivory-white or pale tints, and trimmed with a profusion of Oriental laces and ribbons, or they will be in some one of the new white-wash fabrics.

Corsets covers are made in many different styles, from the plain conceits to those cut in all the various open neck fancies, square, heart-shape, Pompadour and Vandyke, with a profusion of trimmings in lace and embroideries; indeed, some of these waists are formed entirely of needlework and lace.

Really the most important feature in underwear is the corset, for upon the shape of the corset the set or fit of the bodice depends, and of late years this garment has received much artistic consideration.

VARIETY OF STYLES. Some of the best makes in French and American corsets are after as many as a dozen models, all constructed upon scientific principles, after perfect figures, so that if they fail to fit ladies in minor points, while in general proportions they are correct, the fault lies in the form of the wearer, not in the corset.

The breaking of the bones has been a source of general complaint, and last season a corset appeared made upon hygienic principles, with coraline in place of whalebones, which was said to be unbreakable. Now, a corset which will outwear two of ordinary make has been constructed with genuine Japanese bamboo where the bones formerly were.

It is also most gratifying to learn that the fashion of colored silk underclothing is "dropped" entirely by elegant dressers, and that every woman of taste, with any artistic feeling in her, is inclined that it is, instead, therefore, of red, pink, blue, green, yellow, and black chemises there are chemises of the most lincens or cambric, which "look like the foam of the sea from which Venus was born."

THE MATTER OF COLORS. An authority in fashions, who is very much opposed to colored undergarments, says in Le Journal des Modes that underclothing should be calm and candid. It should be calm and candid. It cannot be too snowy. White underclothing is the poetry of dress.

Some of the new undergarments are lovely. In a trousseau recently prepared one of the night dresses had the entire front formed of alternating rows of fine French needle work on linen cambric, and an inserting of linen lace, with a frill of lace down the front—collar and cuffs to match front.

PAYING THE PENALTY.

Execution of Daniel Curley, the Phoenix Park Murderer.

Dublin, May 18.—Daniel Curley, the second man convicted of participation in the murder of Cavendish and Burke, was hanged in Kilmainham jail at 8 o'clock this morning.

When the black flag, announcing the execution had taken place, was hoisted over the prison, every man in the crowd outside, which numbered barely a thousand, uncovered his head, and murmurs of sympathy with Curley were uttered.

Curley walked to the scaffold with but little assistance. He seemed to be resigned to his fate, but was hardly firm. He declined to make any statement touching his connection with the crime. Death was instantaneous.

Farm and Garden.

The N. Y. Tribune says the ringing a branch to produce a development of fruit spruce is as old as Virgil's Georgics—over 1,800 years; and yet an Ohio man has recently taken out a patent for the process, in combination with the tying a ligature at the base of the shoot.

Plums, pigs and poultry seem a trio which thrive in company. Plum trees in a poultry or pig yard thrive and bear abundantly when trees in other locations shed their fruit, which bears the trade mark of the "little Turk." The pigs and chickens destroy every insect, and it is said in addition that the odor of the manure is distasteful to the curculio.

N. Ritter, a successful strawberry culturist of Syracuse, says in the N. Y. Tribune, that he considers straw worth $8 per ton for use on his strawberry patch. He uses it as a protection to the beds in winter, as a mulch, and says it keeps the fruit clean. He uses about one ton to an acre. He prefers to apply it during light snow, when there is little wind.

An animal cannot be too well fed, if it is fed on proper food. Indeed the secret of successful feeding is to begin abundant feeding at the very start, and keep it up, until the animal is sent to market. But the man who mistakes a great mass of fat as an evidence of maturity, and deems it desirable regardless of the development of bone and muscle, is mistaken in his notions, and is a loser.

The old-fashioned pear trees, that grew to the size of oaks, and bore fruit only fit for preserving, have been superseded by a greatly improved fruit, but the trees do not possess the hardiness of the old sort. The forcing of the trees to rapid growth is probably the cause, more than anything else, of pear blight, as the disease was quite unknown to the old, slow-growing tree.

Wool is highly hygroscopic material, that is, it has the power of absorbing moisture from the air. When in piles or bins it absorbs much water and becomes heavier. When taken to market in a wagon, however, thus being exposed freely to drying currents of air, it speedily loses weight, and the man who bargains about all day for the increase of a cent or two to a pound will usually lose more than that amount in weight.

CROSS PRUNING FOR SMALL FRUITS.—The importance of thinning canes, and shortening in the wood of the small fruits, is not generally understood by the average farmer. He thinks he has done his duty when he has planted his currant bushes and raspberries under the wall or fence and left them to the rivalry of weeds and their own suckers. His grape vine climbs an apple tree, or the trellis on the side of the barn, without much pruning, and he blames the nurseryman for imposing upon him with worthless varieties of fruit. Let him apply the knife to the grape vine, cutting back all the new wood to two eyes, after the vine has covered his trellis, and he will see clusters to rejoice his vision and palate. Only four canes to the stool should be left for the raspberry, and treat other shrubs with ashes; keep down the worms with white hellebore, cut out one-third of the wood every season, and even the old Red Dutch currant will surprise you with its fine fruit.—[American Agriculturist for May.]

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught will proceed to India in the autumn. The Duke obtains command of a division of the army.

A Base of Don'ts.

Don't neglect a cold. Don't wear thin shoes. Don't get in a draft to cool off. Don't sit on the front stoop yet. Don't kill yourself house cleaning. Don't take off your flannels too soon. Don't let the children study too much during examination time. Don't get a bonnet that is not becoming because it is fashionable. Don't expect a carman to put a double truck load of furniture on a one-horse wagon.

Don't let a green hand pack your fine crocks, when you move. Don't put off your summer sewing till the last moment and then expect seamstresses to work twenty-four hours a day for you.

Don't forget to put away your family work while house-cleaning is going on. Things have a great tendency to get mixed up at this season, and the spattering of a white-wash brush can do a great amount of mischief.

Don't make your husband mad during house-cleaning time. House-cleaning only lasts a week or two, and he lasts all the time.

Don't put off your marriage till you work up in the world. Do as many a millionaire has done—start housekeeping on a third flat and work down.

Don't let the parlor stove-log go out in the rubbish during the house-cleaning, or there will be a queer old time hunting it up next fall.

Don't be in a hurry to take off the baby's heavy wraps and deck it out in lace fixings, and then expect obituary writers to tell the absurd lie that the angels around the great white throne were lonesome and wanted your chubby to go up and play with them.

As the frosts of winter vanish under the caloric influence of the sun's rays, so does Bright's Disease, Dropsy, stone in the Kidneys and Bladder, and Inflammation of the Kidneys, leave the body upon the administrations of Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure. Sold by J. Wilson Goderich.

Sir John has instructed his Indian agents and deputies, to make him known among the aborigines as the "Great Father, at Ottawa," but the Indians have struck the happy and expressive title of "Old To-morrow" for the chief, and they persist in its use.—[Exchange.]

They act promptly in relieving all disorders of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys and are the "Best Blood Purifier." For sale by all Druggists at 50 cents a bottle.

The wife and youngest child of Mr. Pawson late of Hamilton, were burned to death at Bracebridge by the house taking fire. The brave woman rushed into the house to rescue her boy, but retreat was cut off, and both were overcome before they could reach the window.

Physician's are often startled by remarkable discoveries. THE HAND.—With the hand we demand, we promise, we call, demands, threaten, entreat, supplicate, deny, refuse, interrogate, admire, reckon, confess, repent; express fear, express shame, shame, express doubt; we instruct, command, urge, encourage, swear, testify, accuse, condemn, acquit, insult, lenise, defy, disdain, flatter, applaud, bless, abuse, ridicule, reconcile, recommend, exalt, recalce, gladden, complain, afflict, discomfort, discourage, astonish, exclaim, indicate silence, and what not; with a variety and multiplicity that keep pace with the tongue.—Montaigne.

I was a great admirer of Lord Beaconsfield, because he managed, by sheer dint of talent and perseverance, to push his way to the highest position in the State, although everything was against him; but I cannot help being amused at the servile laudation to his memory on the part of those who, during the greater portion of his career, despised and hated him. It was not until he had become Prime Minister, and the dispenser of rewards and honors, that the Conservatives socially recognized his existence. Before that they regarded him as a clever, unscrupulous advocate, of whom they were half ashamed. History could tell a wondrous tale of the flouts and insults that were heaped upon him by the men who are now endeavoring to make capital for themselves out of his posthumous popularity.—[London Truth.]

PERSONAL ITEMS.—This is how an exchange views the question of "personal mention."—"We are willing to give place in our news columns to the mention of any visitor, the absence of any citizen, wife or daughter, and would be glad to have the item written out and headed in or mentioned at this office. It is not snobbish to do this; it is in no wise improper. People are always very much interested in knowing the absence of friends, and equally to know of the presence of any visitors whom they may wish to call on. Some very sensible people say they don't want their names in the paper. This may be true as to a puff or a bit of evident flattery, but it can hardly be true of the simple announcement of a visitor's name, or the absence of a gentleman or lady. Bring the items, as we are always glad to get them.

The latest name mentioned in connection with the governor generalship of Canada is that of Lord Dalhousie. Lord Dalhousie sits in the House of Peers as Baron Ramsay. He is a commander in the navy and is an extra equerry to the Duke of Edinburgh and a lord-in-waiting to the Queen, both very important positions, but hardly those which would fit him for the task of governing five millions of people scattered over half the American continent. Lord Dalhousie is only thirty-six years of age. He married a daughter of the Earl of Tankerville.

Three men upon thousands of dollars have been spent in advertising the celebrated Burdock Blood Bitters, but this fact accounts only in part for its enormous sale. Its merit has made it what it is—the best blood medicine ever devised by man.

A Rape about our Neck. A weak stomach, or inefficient circulation is like a noose about our necks. We are strung up and must die alternately till existence becomes unbearable. Burdock Blood Bitters will arrest all this misery. Burdock Blood Bitters is a boon to the sick. Let us remember this act.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure disease of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needed for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire absence of its premises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction. The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dandruff, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

The Latest Cyclone.

Clinton, Ill., May 19.—A cyclone in this vicinity last night did immense damage. On the line of the Salt Creek many houses were destroyed. Six miles south of Clinton the wind tore down a house, killing Peter Clifton, his wife and an eight year old daughter, and fatally injuring another child. A family named Bennett were injured seriously. Many other families were more or less injured.

A FATAL RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

St. Louis, May 19.—Last night's train on the Indianapolis & St. Louis Railroad when nearing Hillsboro, Ill., sixty miles from here, met with a fatal accident. The bridge across a small stream was blown down by the storm, and in the darkness and rain the train, piled into the gap, precipitating the engine and baggage car into the stream. Pat Welch, engineer, was instantly killed. Dan Harrington, fireman, was very seriously injured. No passengers were hurt.

THE DISASTER AT RACINE.

Racine, Wis., May 19.—The scene all along the course of the cyclone is pitiful and heartrending in the extreme. It was not generally known until this morning that Racine had suffered a calamity without a parallel in its history. The scene among the dead, wounded and dying was one painful beyond description. In many instances surviving relatives had lost all semblance of reason. Physicians are not numerous enough to give prompt assistance, and numerous bleeding victims were rolled up in blankets, while anxious relatives ran in every direction to secure medicine and aid.

An investigation this morning only serves to swell the lists of casualties and make more sweeping the destruction caused by the cyclone last night. It is estimated that twenty-five were killed and one hundred injured. One hundred and fifty houses were demolished, and had the cyclone struck the business centre the damage would not easily have been calculated.

THE LOSS OF LIFE IN ILLINOIS.

Chicago, May 19.—Associated Press advices compute the loss of life in Illinois by the tornado on Friday night, at from sixty to sixty-three, given by counties and towns as following: De Witt county, 4; Mason county, 3; Livingston county, 4; near Grafton, Jersey county, 3; Madison county, 1; Winnebago county, 5; Litch, Morgan county, 7; Reedhouse, Green county, 8; Douglas county, 1; Logan county, 1; Macoupin county, 3; Hillsboro, 2; Stanton and Mount Olive, 4; Cayuga, 1; McHenry county, 4; Sangamon county, 5; Maroa, Macon county, 3; Buffalo Station, 1.

St. Louis, May 20.—Additional details show that the tornado on Friday night plowed its way through three counties, Missouri, Montgomery, Warren and Charles, doing large damage, killing and wounding over twenty people; many injured.

Result of Flirting.

Milwaukee, May 17.—Florence Benton, daughter of a well-known banker and railway man at Concord, N. H. recently eloped with Fred Bixby, a commercial traveller with whom she got acquainted by flirting. After a long search her friends found her here, where she was abandoned by Bixby. The pair had travelled as man and wife. She is to be taken home, and her father threatens to shoot Bixby on sight.

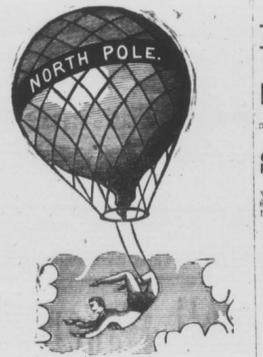

A protest has been entered against the election of Mr. Fauquier, the Conservative candidate for Muskoka, and some high developments may be expected. Mr. H. H. Smith, the chief organizer, has obtained a mission to Europe at the public expense, so as to be out of the way of awkward enquiries in this or any other case. The lawyers will reap their harvest this summer anyway out of the thirty odd election cases awaiting trial.

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. F. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows: "I was afflicted with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. It was also a sufficient cause of a severe catarrh and intestinal cough, my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-mentioned disorder. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may be good. Yours respectfully, F. P. Wilds."

FIRE AND SWORD:

A STORY OF THE MASSACRE OF GLENCOE.

CHAPTER XIV.

THE "OATH" REJECTED AND CANCELLED.

God be praised! We may not take our way back to Glencoe, lads," M'Ian had ejaculated, and with much fervent emotion, on Sir Colin, the Sheriff, having formally accepted their oaths of allegiance to the reigning Whig Government of King William. The following morning saw them once more on the road, retracing, with lighter hearts and well rested limbs, the weary and snow-covered paths which they had a few days previous y half despairingly trod.

But for a sudden thaw, occurring shortly after the heavy snowfall described, the roads would have been practically impassable.

As it was, they had another difficulty to encounter, for although the hill-paths were washed, black add almost bare, the melted, and still melting snows had flooded stream and burn and mountain torrent into roaring and tumbling spates and cataracts, and many and widely devious were the detours which the home returning party were forced to make ere they had once more planted a foot in their native romantic Glen.

It is not necessary that we should further tarry the course of our story by tracing mile by mile M'Ian's progress north. It is perhaps sufficient to merely mention that the aged and high-minded old Chieftain looked in on the Gladiach shepherd in the "by-gone" and that on reaching Barcaldine House, which lay unavoidably in his way, he simply averted his mind and eyes from it as much as possible, regretting to his son the dark spirit of treachery which its fair walls concealed.

"Thank heaven!" Malcolm had exclaimed, in the enthusiasm of his Jacobitism, as they passed the Chamberlain's residence, "we are now publicly safe, despite their traitorous wiles, and can privately say—"God bless King James!" as often as we have a mind to."

"Which will be morning, noon, and night," put in John, the Chief's son.

"Nay, lads," corrected M'Ian, we have taken the oath to the new Constitution. Let us honor our "oath," until at least such times as political circumstances order a new departure."

And in this way, taking the journey in easy and leisurely stages, a three-day travel afoot saw the party recross the swollen stream of Oasian and bend their steps in the direction of the chief's house at Invercoe.

Meantime, three days after the "oaths" of the Glencoe party were taken, Sir Colin Campbell wrote to Colonel Hill, at Fort-William, acquainting him of what he had done, and stating that M'Ian had undertaken to get all his friends and followers to conform to the oath as he himself had done. On the same day he also wrote a letter to his nephew, Colin Campbell, Sheriff-Clerk of Argyll, then at Edinburgh, with instructions to delay lay M'Ian of Glencoe's case before the Privy Council assembling there, and to leave no time in informing him "Sir Colin" whether or not the delayed "oaths" of the Glencoe party could be received.

The paper on which the certificate that Glencoe had taken the "oath" was written contained other certificates of "oaths" which had been formally administered to other Jacobites within the time fixed; but Sir Gilbert Elliot, the Clerk of the Privy Council, refused to receive the certificate relating to the Glencoe party as being irregular.

Campbell thereupon waited upon Lord Abercrombie, a Privy Councillor, requesting him to obtain the combined opinion of the different members of the Council, who accordingly spoke to my Lord Stairs and other leading Privy Councillors, a majority of whom quickly decided that the certificate relating to Glencoe could not be received by them without a special warrant from the King.

Instead, however, of laying the matter formally before a meeting of the Privy Council, or informing M'Ian of the informality and consequent rejection of his "oath," whereby he might have had a chance of petitioning the King, Campbell perfidiously defaced the certificate, acting, it is said, under the malign influence of Secretary Sir John Dalrymple, afterwards Master of Stair—and gave in the paper on which it was written to the Clerk of the Council with the Glencoe signatures removed. The act of defacing the Glencoe certificate, in whatever light it may be viewed, was an unfortunate transaction, and led shortly afterwards to the commission of the blackest and bloodiest chapter in the stirring history of the immortal King William's otherwise glorious reign.

The conjoint influence of Broadbalk, Argyll, and Secretary Dalrymple—each of whom bore respectively a personal or political grudge against Glencoe—was sufficient to further the progress of the charge against him; and matters relating to the cancelling of his "oath," with the fatal consequences thereof, were taken on space.

That no time might be lost in enforcing the penalties of the "Proclamation" against recusants, now that the time for taking the oath of allegiance had fully expired, instructions of a rather vague and somewhat equivocal nature, signed and countersigned by the King on the 11th of January, were sent down from London by Secretary Stair to Sir Thomas Livingston on the same day, enclosed in a letter from the Secretary, instructing General Sir Thomas Livingston "to march the troops against the rebels who had not taken the benefit of the indemnity, and to destroy them by "fire and sword." To give, however, a color of justice to this bloody and remorseless order, Livingston was allowed to "give terms and quar'rs," but in this manner only—that chieftains and heritors be held as prisoners of war, their lives only safe, they taking the necessary "oath," and their communities also taking the "oath," rendering up their arms, and submitting themselves to the government, are to have quarter and indemnity for their lives and fortunes, and to be protected from the soldiers. As a further hint how to act under the discretionary power with which the order invested him, the Secretary's letter contained an addendum which concluded with these words—"I have no great kindness to Keppoch nor Glencoe, and it is well that people are in mercy, but then, just now my Lord Argyll tells me that Glencoe hath not taken the oath, at which I rejoice. It is a great work of charity to be exact in rooting out that damnable sect, the worst in the Highlands."

There could be no real misunderstanding regarding the covert meaning of these instructions; but lest Livingston should possibly hesitate to imbrue his hands in the blood of M'Ian and his people, additional instructions, of still more certain tone, were despatched to Livingston, urging him to be speedy in the work of extirpating the whole clan. A duplicate of these instructions was at the same time sent by Secretary Dalrymple to Colonel Hill at Fort-William, backed up with a letter which said that—"The Earls of Argyll and Broadbalk have promised that they (the Macdonalds of Glencoe) shall have no retreat in their bounds. The passes of Rannoch will be secured, and the hazard certified to the Lord of Weems to rest them; in which case Argyll's detachment, with a party that may be posted in Island Stalker, must cut them off." Thus far with the documentary evidence of the tragic episode.

Meanwhile M'Ian had returned home, and was resting in peaceful reliance that, having latterly done his utmost to comply with the injunctions of the Government, he was now, along with his beloved people, free from all apprehensions of hurt or danger thereabout.

Great was the satisfaction of his people on M'Ian's return, when they learned that he had accomplished the purpose for which his unresting journey had been undertaken. Not that they (the clansmen) were less Jacobitish in their feelings and sentiments than their chief, but rather because that in the unreasoning simplicity and fidelity of clanship to a recognized head they rejoiced in the success of whatever line of action, political or social, he elected to lay out for them.

As for Malcolm, his first thought on setting foot again in the Glen was of Helen Cameron and old Uncle Sandy up at the little farm of Craigs.

He had parted with Helen at Invercoe, thinking to return again on the afternoon of that same day, and now a fortnight had nearly elapsed ere she was again privileged to sit by his side, feel the firm pressure of his hand, and listen with a quiet deep joy, to the charm of his loving words.

Helen was "smodding" up the little kitchen of her Uncle's turf-habitat out when the well-known form of Malcolm filled the narrow "kail-dintled" doorway.

With a glad cry of joy—which was as natural and involuntary in itself as the treble of song with which the song bird greets a burst of sunshine—the delighted maiden hastened to the arms of her lover, and hid her warm blushes on his manly breast.

"Helen, dearest," said Malcolm, straining the fair maiden to his breast. "O Malcolm!" was all she could find words to say. But the breath of words indulged in by the lovers was perhaps the truest index their depth of feeling would have well shown.

"Well, well," said Uncle Sandy, entering the humble domicile shortly after, "my brave, brow lad! And how's the Chief, and what said Sir Colin of Inverary? Was the Sheriff civil to M'Ian? For I hear ye were all sworn Whigs, lochen, ochon!"

Briefly Malcolm related what had transpired in the Sheriff's Chambers, acknowledging that they had in sober truth been all sworn "crop-haired Whigs." "A misfortune to which," added Malcolm, "we shall all secretly cry—God send us soon a better day! But, as the Chief says, let us meantime make the most of misfortune by honoring our oaths."

How, then, did the Chief say so? Of course, yess to be sure, we'll be loyal; yess, yess!" In this way old Sandy, a true Jacobite at heart, half acknowledged, in deference to M'Ian's wish, the right of the Whig King to govern them; but the half-hearted tone in which the admission was made showed clearly to what side the honest old Highlander's sympathies strongly inclined, and how dearly he still cherished the name and sovereign right of their "lawful King," whom the misfortune of circumstances had thrust from a throne and banished "over the water."

"And were the roads unca heavy, then, Malcolm!" he asked, anxious to shift the current of their thoughts; "and the glens—were they fu' o' snow? Come, lad, tell us the story o' your lang and lonesome journey, for richt glad we are to see ye back at the Craigs, lad; and as for Helen there, pair lassie, she hasna been hersel' since the morning ye took French leave o' her at the dairy door step."

The guileless maiden dropped her eyelids and toyed mechanically with the large and favorite sheep dog which was "speldier" on the warm hearthstone before her, baying in short, sudden dreams the truant cattle on the hills.

Thus requested, Malcolm entered into a detailed account of their double journey, north and south; of the refusal of Colonel Hill to "swear" them; of their defection due south; of the deception practised on them by Captain Drummond and Campbell of Barcaldine, the Earl of Broadbalk's Chamberlain; of their night journey through the snow to Cladiach; and of their arrival at Inverary; their disappointment at finding the Sheriff absent; and the final success of their mission in Sir Colin's acceptance of their "oaths."

"Barcaldine is a bad, treacherous Earl's man," remarked the honest old crofter. "It's well kenned and faur that he would sell his soul's birnright to serve the Earl, and he and Broadbalk are a pair—like master, like man. Haith! lad, were we' fall on evil days, when we've a' to sit and snoll quate and thole the proud ban o' the Campbells. As for Drummond," he added, "I ken nocht o' him, but if he's like the lave o' the soldiery, he'd pop a shot at a Glencoe man as fast as at a moorcock, and think the ruffian deed fair sport into the bargain; but we'll drink to ourselves, lad; confusion grip a' Whigs and wheedlers! A sprig o' purple heather sets weel the white cockade. Here's to our worthy Chief, and mountain mists that wrap the brave men o' the Glen!" and handing Malcolm a quack which he had just filled, he bade him honor the toast, and straightway proceeded to follow his example.

In this wise the evening crept round, and the hour of midnight had nearly come round ere Malcolm rose to leave his seat by the homely peat fire which burned on the hearth of the Craigs.

He had missed, during his unexpected absence, the homely festivities of the New Year' morning, but the Glen, Uncle Sandy had confessed, had been shorn of its wonted spirit in the absence of the Chief and his escort, "for I much fear, Malcolm," added the sagacious old crofter, "that in spite o' all this oath-taking and paper signing, that we have not yet seen the end o' this fracious and truly vexing business, and I only hope that, after all, the fause Argyll, the bad Earl, or the plotting Dalrymple mayna yet separately, or conjointly, let slip the red-coats on us when we're least thinkin' o' resisting them."

And where, Sandy, will be the two hundred tried and trusted claymores of the Glen," proudly said Malcolm, with the courage native to high spirit and inexperience.

"An, my dear lad," sadly replied the old crofter, "it's richt ill to fecht against cunning and trechery. Given due warning, and the cover of our own wild glen, and wha can harm us? But Broadbalk and the crafty Dalrymple, in whose hands things are, wad wile the butting horns aff the vera deevil, and syne pierce his ain side wi' them. Trust not to the appearance of friendship in that quarter, Malcolm. We have been deceived by it already, and may be so again. Let us trust to Heaven wi' our hands on our sword-hilts. God, if I were only but thirty years younger!" and the gleam which lit up the old crofter's grey eyes bespoke the fiery and courageous spirit, which although much spent, was not yet dead. But, Malcolm, lad, hear me," he further added, if things come to the worst, I will leave my dear lassie to your care and keeping, for, alas! I have a presentment that a red-coat's bullet will soon lie here," and the honest and high-spirited old crofter placed his right hand over the region of his heart and kept his strangely-illumined eyes fixed on the rafters of the thatched roof for a few moments, as if seeing a far-away vision of the inner sense.

"Nay, Sandy," interposed Malcolm, rising and slapping him on the shoulder; "drive away these foolish fears. There are happy days in store for us yet, and old Sandy Macdonald of the Craigs will soon dance a reel and quaff a tass o' dew at the wedding of one who shall be here nameless!" and the maiden blushed under the proud and found gaze of her lover, who shortly thereafter took a kind leave of her for the night, and was presently speeding homewards with a light foot along the star-lighted, solitary pathway of the Glen.

Mark Twain in Black and white.

Life gives a brilliant pen-portrait of Mark Twain. His many acquaintances will recognize the faithfulness of the picture if all its details:

Mark Twain, the renowned archaeologist, poet and astronomer, is a lineal descendant of the celebrated Twain who were made one flesh. He was born on Plymouth Rock, April 1, 1728, on a remarkably cold morning, and the administratrix of the camp, her red flannel department afterward stated that he was the most remarkable baby she had ever seen. At the early age of seven, Mark— for so he was cruelly christened—was already addicted to science, and his discovery, made one year later, that a spring clothespin, artistically applied to the continuation of a cat would create in that soulless animal a desire for vigorous foreign travel, is still used by the aborigines of Connecticut and Massachusetts. When he was nineteen, Mark when thro' college. He entered the front door, turpentine the rector's favorite cat, and graduated the same evening over the fence. He then started for California, Milwaukee, and other remote confines of the earth, and began those remarkable series of truthful anecdotes for which he is now so justly famed. As an archaeologist, however, he has won most renown; and his collection of Pompeian, Sausaric Egyptian and early Greek jokes, now in possession of Osgood & Co., of Boston, is considered the most complete in the world. Some envious critics have claimed that most of these were painfully carved by Mark himself, and the balance composed of heterogeneous and unrelated parts, but there seems to be no reasonable doubt that they are all genuine antiquities.

Personally, Mr. Twain is a remarkably well preserved man. He is short, frigid, and very corpulent, laughs incessantly, and is a rapid and brilliant speaker. His essay on "Draw Poker in American Politics" is considered to be a masterly treatise on political economy, while his poem entitled "The Frog Bowed Down by Weight of Shot" will hold its place as one of the most pathetic in the language.

A Pimple.

Philadelphia, May 15.—Miss Carrie Buechle, a teacher, was annoyed by a pimple on her nose and had it burned out by a physician. The result was a worse disfigurement than before. This crazed her, and she suicided with laudanum yesterday.

"Blood will tell." A face adorned with Pimples, Boils, Blotches, etc., is not a particularly pleasant sight, and invariably betokens an impure state of the Blood. Cetewayo Defeated.

Durban, May 15.—Fighting occurred between Cetewayo's forces and Chief Ushaba, the latter being aided by the Boers. The former was worsted, with heavy loss. Cetewayo gathering strength in anticipation of a further attack.

The well known strengthening properties of IRON, combined with other tonics and a most perfect nerve, are found in Carter's Iron Pills, which straighten the nerves and body, and improve the blood and complexion.

A little son of Mr. John Wood, while returning home from school, was drowned in the creek at the back of the High School, Oshawa, May 15. The little fellow took a short cut across the fields, and was crossing the creek on a slippery log when he fell in and was drowned.

THE TERRIFIC TENSION ON THE nervous system at concert pitch for prolonged periods in the present struggle for existence tells with fearful effect on the organic processes. Excessive mental toil leads to functional disturbances of the digestive apparatus which prepares food for brain and muscular work. Diabetes may be set up by mental emotions, and prolonged anxiety and worry about business is a potent factor in Bright's disease. Liver troubles, notably jaundice, are the outcome of failure of nerve power. The physiological remedy is brain and nerve food, Wheeler's Phosphates and Calisaya, avoiding excitants and stimulants.

Leoburn.

Laid up.—Mr. Charles Jefferson has been laid up for several weeks with a sore hand, which is now on the mend.

More Land.—Mr. R. Fulford has purchased the old Canada lot of 50 acres near his own farm for about $35 an acre.

More Room.—The Shoo Flies, from Garbraud under the command of Charles Morris, builder, put up a large fan kitchen with a veranda for Mr. James Horton last week.

Escape.—The other morning a large wildcat was discovered in one of our barns. The party who saw it at once went to the house for a gun. In the meantime the terror of the forest made its exit from over the granary through the sheep pen, and took to the woods. Several shots were fired by its pursuer wounding him a little in his flight. Since then nothing has been heard.

Good Sales.—In less than three weeks 11 head of cattle were sold to Goderich butchers by three of our farmers, footing up the sum of $561.00. Combined weight, 13,100 lbs. Also three sheep were sold for $21. This supply of meat we suppose would keep the good county town of Huron of 5,000 inhabitants in meat for some time to come.

Dunlop.

Visitors.—Miss Lottie Gentles, of Kincardine, is visiting friends here at present. P. O. Meara, of Benmillar, enjoyed a few days' visit here last week. The old gentleman likes our town well.

Old Faces.—A warm welcome greeted our old townman from the Black Sheep last week. A. N. MacQuarrie formerly connected with our P. O., now a resident of the bluff town of London, and Tom Hanlon of Clinton. Both lads look well and hearty, and are the same jolly boys as of days gone by.

No Whistle.—Last Saturday night the mill employees struck for wages, which did not suit their employer who, we understand, gave the 14 the G. B. So our farmers' wives have to use their lungs once more to summon their men to dinner. As we sent off to press the matter is not settled. They are the best staff of men who ever drove the sawing business at Dunlop.

A Good Try.—The ladies of our sick committee had a sewing bee at their consulting room last week. They were greatly assisted by a young lady from Goderich.

Brussels.

Prince of the Isles, Fisher's draft stallion, while at regular stopping place on the 6th con., made a dead set for the groom who was putting a girl on him. The brute got the man down and was preparing to make a meal of him when Mr. John Elliott and some bystanders interfered and saved him.

Mr. R. M. Elliott, son of Mr. Robert Elliott of the 7th con., who passed such a creditable examination at the Toronto School of Medicine some time ago, obtaining the degree of a M. D., and who then proceeded to Edinburgh, Scotland, for the purpose of more fully perfecting himself in the healing art, is now ill in that city. His brother William, of Aberdeen, Dakota, has come to join to the invalid in the old country and render him what assistance he can.

Populating Biddulph.

Lucan, May 21.—Fifteen families, numbering in all about seventy members, evicted tenants from Ireland, arrived at the station here at half four this afternoon. They were under the superintendence of Mr. Jas. O'Shea, immigration agent, who had provided places for them amongst the farmers throughout the township. A number of farmers with conveyances were awaiting their arrival at the station for the purpose of conveying them to their respective destinations. The poor people looked in every respect what they represented themselves to be.

An Odeorous Comparison.

The present session of Parliament is fast drawing to a close. It will, like a snuffed out candle, be remembered chiefly by the bad odor it leaves behind.—[St. Thomas Journal.]

The farmers of Canada will be pleased to learn, on the high authority of Sir Charles Tupper, that they are in the habit of driving their un-oxen cattle on to the railways to be killed by the locomotives and paid for as first-class animals by the railway companies. This is a thoroughly railway view of the matter, and characteristically Tory to boot.—[Globe.]

THE WORLD OVER.

Later despatches represent the recent defeat of the False Prophet as much more severe than at first reported. Many of the native chiefs have since surrendered to the Egyptians.

A so-called workmen's congress, held at Paris on Sunday evening, ended with a general fight. One man was stabbed, and several, including Jefferson, a member of the municipal council, were otherwise injured.

Infidelity reproves nothing that is bad. It only ridicules and denounces all that is good. It tears down—it never constructs; it destroys—it never imparts life; it attacks religion, but offers no adequate substitute.

Wm. McIntosh, of Algoma Mills, reports that he was drinking in Detroit with three men Monday afternoon, who were members of the municipal council, and then knocked him down and robbed him of $84.

Great doubts are expressed in London as to whether the Tynan, concerning whom General Pryor had the correspondence with the British Consulate, is the real "No. 1." It is thought Pryor has been imposed upon.

Toronto has arrogated to herself the title of the Queen City. If the cities over which she pretends to queen it are no cleaner than herself then her kingdom is about the dirtiest in the world.—[World.]

News has been received at Montreal of the terrible death of Captain Mitchell of the Michipicoten Mining Co., who fell 500 feet in a shaft. He was sinking in a mine on the north shore of Lake Superior.

Four hundred immigrant settlers arrived at Victoria, B.C., on Monday, only to find that the lands on the island and mainland are locked up for railway purposes, with no immediate prospect of being opened up for settlement.

While Mr. Gladstone delights in felling trees, Lord Salisbury is devoted to tennis—not lawn tennis, but the real game—Sir Stafford Northcote remains loyal to croquet. Mr. W. E. Forster loves what best, and Lord Randolph Churchill is an enthusiast over the chess-board.

The Russian mulberry can be easily raised from the seed. Sow them in garden drills or boxes. If in the latter, transplant when the seedlings have made two inches of growth. If in drills, let them remain a year before transplanting. Cover them with hay or straw for the winter.

The other day on an Arkansas railroad, an old gentleman sat, half asleep, with a book entitled "The Train Robbers" lying on his lap. Pretty soon he sank to sleep. The window sash fell with a loud report, and the old man springing to his feet and throwing up his hands exclaimed, "Gentlemen, I haven't got a cent."

Montreal, May 22.—The address of the Irish Roman Catholic priests on Sunday last, warning the various national and benevolent societies not to affiliate with the American leagues, is the topic of the hour here. The leaders of Irish opinion agree in the views of the pastors, and condemn any union with new societies in the States.

George Washington Henderson, from the University of Vermont, a colored man and valedictorian of his college class, gave one of the best orations at the graduation exercises at the Yale Theological Seminary last week, and he shares the Aurelia Hooker fellowship for 1883 with John E. Bushnell, a graduate of Yale.

It is announced that Herr Lasker, the parliamentary leader of the National Liberal party in the German Reichstag, will shortly visit America. Lasker is by birth a Jew, and was educated partly in Berlin and partly in England, where he obtained an acquaintance with constitutional principles, which has had no small influence upon his political career. He is a formidable antagonist in debate, and is regarded as the coming man for the Premiership after the death of Bismarck and the Emperor. His presence in the United States will create a good deal of interest.

Mr. Jas. Ballantyne, B.A., son of Mr. Thos. Ballantyne, M. P., is now going out to India as a missionary in a few weeks.

The bodies of twenty-three drowned persons have been taken to the morgue in New York since April 1st for identification.

The Gaelic Herald professes to have knowledge of a conspiracy to remove the seat of Provincial Government from Toronto to Woodstock, Brantford, or Ingersoll, with Woodstock the favorite.

Josh Billings informed Joaquin Miller that he had once received $400 for twelve words. A wealthy New York mercantile house paid him that sum; it wanted one of his quaint sayings for an advertisement.

The evidence given before Inspector Dr. O'Reilly in the investigation into irregularities in the management of the Welland canal so far appear to go a long way toward substantiating the grave charges brought against the authorities.

An English herd of Shorthorn cows are kept on bare boards—the estate being grass-side up and straw scarce—but each is provided, The London Agricultural Gazette says, with a stuffed sack in front to assist to rise and to prevent kneeling to which heavy-fleshed animals are liable when no such precaution is taken.

A Mr. Lynch, of Asphodel, was fined $70 on Friday for unlawfully fishing. Only one fish weighing ten ounces was caught, so that it was a pretty dear fish at $7 an ounce, but when to its price is added the loss of fishing tackle, it is enough to make a man forewear the gentle art for ever.

Official bulletins regarding the health of Bismarck should be received with caution. It is asserted the Prince suffers great pain, but he objects to the issuance of alarming bulletins. He is much affected by the political disappointments he has experienced, and it is said the latest reports in regard to the negotiations between Prussia and the Vatican have been also a source of trouble.

The practice of committing to memory select passages of prose and poetry, in our public schools is an excellent and very beneficial exercise, and we think should be more generally adopted. A high authority on educational matters has given the following reasons, which are weighty and worthy of consideration in this connection. It trains and strengthens the memory; it assists in creating a love for pure and good literature; it affords an effective way of teaching morals; it treasures up for one, in time, a vast store of useful, comforting and inspiring unstrung pearls of thought.

He took eighteen years to do it, but he did it. Charles Welling, dry-goods merchant, New York, failed in 1865, and compromised by paying fifty cents on the dollar. His liabilities were $400,000, consequently a balance of $200,000 was left unpaid. Since that time Mr. Welling has had but one object in view, namely, a settlement in full with his creditors. Yesterday he completed his eighteen years' task and to-day stands forth the noblest of noble men, a man whose name deserves to be perpetuated. Unfortunately, there are too few Charles Wellings in this world of ours.

"Hungry Joe," the noted hunko steerer of New York, who numbers Oscar Wilde among his victims, was arrested in that city last week, charged with being a vagrant and having no visible means of support. When asked by the court what he had to say, the accused tossed the silk-lined beaver overcoat, which he carried upon his arm, upon the floor of the bar, threw up his close-fitting Prince Albert coat, and pulling a gilt-framed purse from his pocket, selected from it a $10 gold piece, which he held up, and smiling, said: "This is visible means of support, isn't it?" The justice remarked that Joe would make a good lawyer, and upon being satisfied that the prisoner had $30,000 in bank, and a house and lot in Chicago, besides, ordered his discharge.

William Chambers, LL. D., the well-known editor of Chambers' Edinburgh Journal, was knighted the other day by the Queen. It is understood that the offer of knighthood was made to the veteran publisher a few years ago but declined. Dr. Chambers has reached the age of four-score and still continues to write for the Journal, which he started about sixty years ago. No man probably, a contemporary, more richly deserves more than he such a distinction at the hands of his sovereign. The publication of pure literature, and its dissemination amongst the people at a moderate cost has been his aim through life. Associated with his brother Robert for many years they had the pleasure of seeing their prize-worthy undertaking prosper to remarkable degree. The good achieved by the production of such work is incalculable, and Her Majesty the Queen seems to have considered the public recognition of it as but fit and right. (Since the above was put in type the cable has brought us the news of the noble old man's death. His work has not died with him.)
