CHAPTER XXV.

Her hand trembled so that the needle wouldn't go into the proper place, but ran into her finger instead.

"Of course, we sha'n't make a fortune; but we ought to do very well and be very happy, eh, Ada? Eh, Miss Veronica?"

"Very happy, like the people in Big Man's fairy 'stories," said Ada, with tremendous gravity.

Veronica said nothing, but her hand stole out, as stealthily as her glances had done, and sought and found Ralph's, which closed on it with a passionate pressure.

Then, to hide the confusion which such a blissful prospect caused her, she hurled herself into the conversation, and, Martha coming in at the moment, they were soon all talking together, making plans for the life of freedom and happiness promised them in that ranch in Australia, which seemed to be the

SICK DAUGHTER NOW WELL

Mrs. C. Cole Tells How Her Daughter Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio.—"I take great pleasure in writing to thank you for what your medicine has done for my daughter."

"Before taking your medicine she was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, could not walk but a short distance at a time, and had severe pains in head and limbs. She came very near having nervous prostration. She had begun to cough a good deal and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help."

"I cannot find words to express my gratefulness for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for my daughter. She feels and looks like another girl since taking it, and I shall always feel that I owe you a great debt."

"You can use this letter for the benefit of others if you wish, as I shall always recommend your medicines for female troubles."—Mrs. C. COLE, Fitchville, Ohio.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Young Girls, Heed This Advice.
Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

only piece of moss Mr. Saintsbury had managed to retain through all his toiling.

But though man proposes, Providence disposes.

While they were talking and laughing hopefully and happily, there came a knock at the door.

"That is the man with Ralph's port," said Veronica.

"It's ridiculous, buying port for me!" he said, indignantly. "Why, anyone would think I was an invalid! And I walked quite a couple of miles to-day!"

"First rate!" remarked Mr. Saintsbury, approvingly. "But we'd better take it in, hadn't we? Come in!"

The door opened; but it was not the port. A tall, grave-faced man entered. He was dressed in a dark tweed suit, which, ordinary as it was, seemed to smack of an official uniform, and he looked round the room and from one person to another with a quick and comprehensive glance which seemed to take everything and everyone in.

"Mr. Ralph Farrington?" he said, quietly, but in a tone that seemed to defy denial.

"I am Ralph Farrington," said Ralph, with surprise, as Veronica's hand slid from his and he rose from his chair.

CHAPTER XXV.

The earl was sitting in the library, his great chair drawn close to the fire; his head was bowed, his thin hands clasped to the arms of the chair, and his whole attitude was one of melancholy. Though he would not have admitted it to himself, Veronica's absence was weighing nearly all the day sitting thus, gazing at the fire with heavy brow and brooding eyes.

With Veronica had gone the one gleam of brightness in the life made sombre by how many dark memories!

And it was not only of Veronica that he sat and thought gloomily; for, much to his surprise and annoyance, he could not dismiss Ralph Farrington from his mind. There had been something in the young fellow's personality which had left an impression on the mighty earl, and every time Lord Lynborough had seen him he had been troubled by a vague resurrection of the past, by the memories which he had deemed buried for ever.

As he sat this afternoon listening to the wind in the trees and wondering what had become of Veronica—what had become of Ralph—the door opened and the butler entered.

"Mr. Whetstone, my lord," he said, gravely. "Can he see your lordship?"

"No," said the earl, grimly. "Ask him to write."

"Mr. Whetstone bade me say that it was important business."

"Then why didn't you say Mr. Whetstone insists upon seeing me?" said the earl, with a snarl. "Show him in."

As Mr. Whetstone came in the earl shifted in his chair uneasily and glanced at him under bent brows. He rarely saw Whetstone, and when he was compelled to do so, always made the interview as short as possible; it almost seemed as if the presence of the prematurely broken and white-haired man was an embarrassment to the earl. Whetstone stood with his hand on the table, and Lord Lynborough saw that he was much agitated; the man's thin voice shook as he said:

"I am sorry to trouble your lordship, but—but something terrible has happened, and the responsibility is too great for me to bear alone."

The earl glowered at him.

"One of the roofs of those cottages you are always worrying me about fallen in, I suppose," he said.

Sydney Whetstone ignored the heartless sarcasm.

"Burchett—Burchett," he went on, tremulously, "was clearing away some faggots in the western wood this morning and he made a discovery—"

"Has he found a gold mine?" said the earl. "Nothing half so useful, I'll be sworn; some mare's-nest with which you think it necessary to trouble me."

"He found a grave, my lord," said Whetstone, solemnly.

The earl peered at him grimly.

"A recent grave in which the body of a man had been buried. We think—we fear there has been foul play. Burchett sent for me, and I thought it better to come at once to your lordship."

The earl's usual calmness did not desert him. He frowned at the fire for a moment, then he said:

"Will you order a carriage, Whetstone? I will go with you. Please tell them to send Welford with my outdoor things."

They drove almost in silence to the woods. As they neared the spot they heard the hum of many subdued voices, and found a small crowd gathered round some object over which a couple of policemen were mounting guard. Burchett stood a little apart, his arms folded, his head bent. A lane was made for the earl and his steward, and the two men passed through it. Something covered with a rick-cloth was lying on a hurdle. Whetstone saw it and shuddered, and drew the earl back.

"No, no, my lord!" he said. "It is not necessary—it is too horrible!"

But the earl signed to the policemen; they drew the cloth aside, and he looked at the grisly object.

"Who is it?" he asked in a low voice.

"A man as was stopping at the Dog and Owl, my lord," said the inspector; "a sort of tramp. He was a rough kind of fellow, my lord, and up to no good. I'm afraid—"

He stopped suddenly, for there had come the sound of other wheels; a station fly had driven up, and Mr. Talbot Denby alighted and approached the group. He was very pale, but as calm as the earl as he said:

"Talbot! I did not expect you. There is a terrible business here."

Talbot Denby looked round enquiringly.

"I heard at the house that something had happened, that you had come here, and I followed—naturally. I feared that some accident—"

The inspector shook his head. "It's no accident, Mr. Talbot," he said in a low voice.

As he spoke he was about to draw the cloth aside again, but suddenly Mr. Talbot Denby uttered a cry.

"No, no!" he said, in a strained voice; then, as if ashamed of his lack of nerve, he made a gesture of assent and, going up slowly to the corpse, looked down at it. They who were looking at him saw him shudder and wince—but they had all shuddered and winced at the gruesome sight. He turned his head away and passed his hand across his brow with a very natural gesture of horror.

"Does anyone know the man—had he any friends here?" asked the earl.

There was a general shaking of heads.

"He appeared to be quite a stranger, just come here on the chance, on the tramp, my lord," said the inspector. "How the man came to be murdered—it was murder, my lord; you saw the mark of the stab? And, besides, there's the knife!"

"What knife?" asked the earl.

The policeman held it for his lordship's inspection, and the earl looked at it.

Collection of Historic Crystals.

In Mr. Morgan's rock crystal collection is a shrine enriched with gold and enamel work by Adam Van Vliet. In the centre of the shrine is carved a niche in which stands a figure of the Virgin holding the Holy Child. The costume is a robe of gold enriched with black enamel. Upon the head is a white cap with gold stars and silver and gold and white decoration is about the square cut neck of the dress. It is a Flemish work of the Seventeenth century, and was formerly in the Fritz Gans collection. A small reliquary of enameled gold and rock crystal is portable and in the form of a monstrance composed of a rock crystal cylinder flanked by two small columns of gold enameled in blue and white and surmounted by the figures of children holding shields. Above the cylinder is a small niche or shrine representing the crucifixion and two figures which are supposed to represent the Virgin and St. John.

Of historic interest is a bowl of rock crystal with scroll work, borders of fruit and embellished on each side with a figure of a Nereid with strings of pearls about her neck. According to the chronicles the bowl at one time was in the possession of Queen Christina of Sweden, for whom it was said to have been mounted. A rock crystal vase of Italian workmanship of the Sixteenth century is in the form of a monster with two wings. The creature is represented as scaled like a fish, the wings being similarly scaled, with a curly tail. Its eyes are formed by two rubies, each set in gold. A mount of gold surrounds the mouth and extends around the head. At one time this specimen was in the collection of Lord Hastings.

Clothes That Harmonize.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

"That looks like me." By that criterion on one of the best dressed women I know chooses all gowns.

What does that mean? It means that when she sees a gown or hat in a shop window, or on a form, or worn by a passerby on the street, which she realizes belongs to her own peculiar style, she is immediately interested in it, and if possible and desirable, buys it, or copies it.

It means that the first and most tenacious requirement which this woman makes of a garment is that it shall harmonize with her own appearance and personality; and the result is that whether they are capable of analyzing the reason or not, almost everyone who sees her regards her as a charmingly gowned woman.

Just how large a percentage of beauty harmony makes up, a great many people do not seem to realize. We all know that the loveliest gown is not at all attractive if worn at the wrong time.

We do not seem to grasp that the loveliest gown is equally unlovely if worn by the wrong person.

There are gowns for each of us that bring out every bit of us—every bit of the most attractive of us—gowns out of which we shine forth suitably dressed, and hence serene, confident and at our best; and there are other perfectly good gowns that either wholly eclipse us or bring out our worst points, or in some way or other punish us for choosing what was not in harmony with us.

Very few women confine themselves to two or three colors and yet the woman who has more than two colors that really belong to her is rare, and only a raving beauty ought to attempt the half-dozen colors which the ordinary woman does actually include in her wardrobe.

Every woman ought to know her best color and her next best, and if she cares more for beauty than variety, ought to stick to them.

I say "color." I mean, something more restricted than that. I mean her exact shade. I know a girl who found out that brown was her color but did not realize for some time that there are browns as far apart as the poles. Leaf brown is her perfect color, and a bright yellow brown was as deadly to her as cerise or purple. An expensive mistake taught her this and now she realizes that it is not enough to know one's harmonious color; one must also know one's exact tone in the color scale.

Woman herself is one of the greatest works of art woman can produce. Her home and her children, to be sure, are even greater, but the lesser ought not to be entirely neglected even for these.

And if we had more women who dressed by the criterion of "that looks like me," instead of "that looks stylish" or "that looks expensive," we should certainly have more women who fulfil their highest possibilities in this direction.

Ruth Cameron

To-Day's News.

Special to Evening Telegram.

OTTAWA, To-day. Borden was given an enthusiastic civil welcome at noon yesterday and banqueted in the evening by the Conservative Association.

CHICAGO, To-day. According to a cable from Constantinople to Chicago, massacre of Armenians by Kurds has been resumed. Two villages in Armenia have been pillaged and 28 inhabitants killed. Another village has been destroyed by fire. Local authorities are powerless to preserve order and people have to keep inside their houses, and consuls are kept secret until parliament has been elected. No formal armistice will be concluded, but Italy will refrain from further attacks on Turkish coast and islands and Turkey will permit return of expelled Italians. A semi-official statement, issued at Rome on Saturday, characterized as absolutely unfounded the reports of an agreement being reached, respecting the conclusion of peace between Italy and Turkey.

and other freight has been washed ashore or lost from the steamer, and as the Indians in nearly every case purloin the stuff, the consequence is that the Beothic people are daily in receipt of claims from the people who are anxiously awaiting their goods. From this it can be seen that the trip of the Beothic will hardly prove a paying one. Of course, had they not met with so many accidents, there is no doubt they would have made considerable profit; for it is said the freight on one small shipment of lumber for a party at New York Factory was in the vicinity of $70 a thousand feet. The Minto also received some three hundred tons of coal from the Beothic, and for this the Dominion Government is said to be paying freight at the rate of $23 per ton.

The Minto was also not without her troubles, for she, too, went out of the water a couple of times, and showed her lines to the anxious natives. It seems rather strange, however, that this expensive Government craft would be allowed to go ashore in the exact place where a year ago one of her surveying party, Capt. Anderson, had surveyed the ground, and which was supposed to be safe. But perhaps stranger things will happen—they never did before.

The Minto is now pretty well down in her coal supply, and as the Beothic has proven a failure so far as carrying out the intentions of the gentlemen who chartered her are concerned, it will be necessary for the Stanley or some other craft to make another mission North. Otherwise the surveying party will have to board the Minto and come home.

Both the Beothic and Arctic have a number of bear skins on board, the result of the marksmen's efforts, and on board the Beothic two weeks ago was a young polar bear, which the officers have in captivity and which they intend taking back with them.

Nature's Way Is The Best.

Buried deep in our American forest we find bloodroot, queen's root, mandrake and stone root, golden seal, Oregon grape root and cherry bark. Of these Dr. R. V. Pierce made a pure glyceric extract which has been favorably known for over forty years. He called it "Golden Medical Discovery."

"This Discovery" purifies the blood and tones up the stomach and the entire system in Nature's own way. It's just the tissue builder and tonic you require when recovering from a hard cold, grip, or pneumonia. No matter how strong the constitution the stomach is apt to be "out of kilter" at times; in consequence the blood is disordered; for the stomach is the laboratory for the constant manufacture of blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach, puts it in shape to make pure, rich blood—helps the liver and kidneys to expel the poisons from the body. The weak, nervous, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people experience at this time of the year is usually the effect of poisons in the blood; it is often indicated by pimples or blotches appearing on the skin, the face becomes thin—you feel "blue."

"More than a week ago I was suffering with an awful cold in my head, thr at breast, and body," writes Mr. James G. Kent, of 710 L. Street, S. E., Washington, D. C. "Some called it La Grippe, some pneumonia. I was advised by a friend to try a bottle of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I tried a bottle and it did me so much good that I feel safe in saying it is the greatest and best medicine that I ever took. My health is much better than it was before using your medicine. It does all you claim for it and is satisfactory."

Household Notes.

Pudding basins should be well greased or the pudding will stick. To grease a basin, take a bit of dripping upon a clean paper and rub it all over so that no part of the basin is left ungreased.

The wise housekeeper keeps a dishpan of hot, soapy water at hand while cooking. Into this she plunges cooking dishes as soon as used—a method which means the saving of much time.

Vinegar in which home-made cucumber pickles have been preserved should not be thrown away, but used in salad dressing. The flavor is delicious and cannot be gained in any other way.

Never allow oysters to boil. It destroys their flavor and makes them tough. Be careful that they are heated through. Nothing is more objectionable than a cold, uncooked oyster in hot soup.

When washing a white veil, first make a solution of white soap; let the veil simmer in it for a quarter of an hour. Squeeze in warm water and soap until it is clean, then rinse in cold water slightly blueed.

Flowers will keep very fresh overnight if they are excluded from the air. Wet them thoroughly, put them in a damp box and cover with wet raw cotton or wet newspaper, then place them in a cool place.

Onions uncooked are much less strong in flavor if sliced, then put in a colander and boiling water poured over them. Then plunge them in ice water and allow them to stand for half an hour; they will be sweet and crisp.

Never wash meats, as in this way they are robbed of a large proportion of their nutriment. A steak or roast freshly cut from the beef is certainly free from all objectionable matter. The other edges may be well wiped with a damp cloth.

To make beef tallow quickly, take a piece of lean meat (without a particle of fat) and put it through the food chopper, using a fine knife. Cover with water and heat slowly in a double boiler or in a covered pan placed in the oven.

When cleaning rugs, put an old wire bedspring on the ground and lay the rug or carpet to be beaten upon it. This will keep the rug off the ground and allow the dust to go through the springs without settling upon the under side of the rug.

A wall pocket is a great convenience to an invalid who is compelled to lie down most of the time. Make this with a flat piece having pockets of different sizes and shapes; fasten this on the wall or at the end of the dresser near the couch or bed.

After cooking fish or onions in a pan, boil the pan out with soda water, wash it clean, then put it on the fire and shake a little oatmeal in it. Leave this to boil, then wipe the pan out with a dish cloth, and all the unpleasant taste or smell will have vanished.

Stockings should be watched carefully and the thin places darned before they go into a hole. It is much easier to darn a thin place than it is a hole. These places should be darned closely, but not tight, and the small holes over a polished stocking darning.

Stale bread can be used for croutons. Cut the bread into thin slices, spread it lightly with butter on one side, then cut into dice. Place them on a thin pie dish and put them in a moderate oven until a golden brown. They are delicious served with soup.

Would Fall in a Faint

This letter from Mrs. Martin very well describes the terrible condition in which many a sufferer finds herself. She also tells how she regained health and strength by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food after all other treatments had failed.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes:—"Before I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition from nervous exhaustion and prostration. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. The weakness was so great that I could not so much as sweep the floor without fainting, but the nerve food helped me after the doctors failed. It has done wonders in building up my nervous system; I can do my own housework now and washing and feel that this great medicine has been a God-send to me. I think it is the best of medicines."

Child Reported Missing.

Last evening a woman named O'Dea reported at the police station that her four-year-old child was missing from home since yesterday morning. The police made enquiries and after a diligent search found the little wanderer about Water Street.

Aside from the fact that they can not make trousers, tailors do pretty well.

If you care for a stage costume which a woman could not with propriety wear in private, there is something wrong with you. The faults of the stage largely are due to the people who patronize it.

The theory is that there are exceptions to all rules, but the barber always leaves a little lather in his customer's ear.

No ball team is so good that it can not appreciate services of a visiting shortstop who throws the ball into the bleachers.

Remember the teacher who used to make you diagram sentences on the blackboard? Ever find out the theory upon which the useless performance was predicated?

One young woman writes in to ask how she shall treat a young man who kissed her on the way home from a dance. Why not punish him in some way for his dilatory tactics?

A newspaper can invest a man with much fleeting importance. But he has to have the goods on his shelves to stay where it puts him.

Contrary to general belief, there are a good many worthless young men who do not smoke cigarettes.

The women, too, make some progress. Nowadays, when a woman has been vaccinated on the leg she doesn't pretend that her arm pains her.

MINING POSSIBILITIES.—We learn that a new company has been formed to open up the Pilley's Island mine, which has ceased operations for some considerable time. It is said that prospectors who have been there are pleased with the possibilities. If the mine re-opens it would be a material benefit to Notre Dame Bay, the mining centre.

TUESDAY, Sept. 10, 1912.

The Premier's Campaign.

We are told by the Daily News that Sir Edward Morris, accompanied by Mr. H. Y. Mott, arrived at Bay of Islands and received a reception, arranged for some days ago.

This arrangement for a reception accords well with the information that officials and heifers have been notified in various places of the visit of the Premier, and it would appear to be expected of them to galvanize some kind or a show of cordiality to save the face of the Premier. The Daily News tells us that the Prime Minister met with a cordial reception. But this report is largely discounted by the fact that other reports of cordial receptions were sent to the Government organs for publication, which are now known to be wild stretches of imagination, and that in fact the Premier's reception along the South Coast of the island was of a most chilly nature, and the reverse of cordial.

At Bay of Islands, Morris does not appear to have touched on the Morison scandal. He offered no explanation of his condonation of Morison's writing the Orange Bay letter, in which the latter suggested that a purchaser of the limits in which he was interested could obtain a good deal of timber from the adjoining Crown Lands.

He did not tell his audience why he permitted Morison to be a partner in timber limit grabbing, and he did not explain why he is permitting Morison to remain Attorney General, Minister of Justice, and member of the Executive Council, after all the facts under reference have been laid before him and after he had them under his cognizance. Nor did he let his hearers into the secrets of the future and tell them what he intends to do with Morison, especially whether he intends to elevate him to the bench of the Supreme Court.

Sir Edward also does not appear to have thought it worth his while to explain how he came to declare in the House of Assembly that he had never had any interest whatever in any timber property in the country, although a document registered in the Registry of Companies records that he held $40,000 stock in a lumber company.

Sir Edward made that declaration in the House of Assembly last session. It was published in the official debates. It has been repeated in the press. A quotation of the document registered in the Registry of Companies showing Sir Edward's holding has been published in the Evening Telegram. No attempt has, however, been made by Sir Edward to reconcile the conflict in the statements. It is high time for Sir Edward to furnish it.

We observe, too, Sir Edward is still talking through his hat about the exportation of fresh cod. He has been talking about this exportation of fresh cod for years, and although he has been in power three and a half years he has done nothing of a material character to promote it.

He spent a lot of money in bringing a foreigner named Solling here, giving him a picnic around the coast, buying a lot of his paper and sending Piccott for a trip to Canada. He did these things in face of the warning in Solling's printed circular that it was doubtful if the Solling process was suitable for the preservation of fresh codfish. He is still talking, although he must know that the exportation of fresh codfish is not commercially feasible unless it can be put in cold storage at such places as Montreal, at 2½ cents a lb. He is still talking about it, although he was warned that there were no profits to be made by the exportation of fresh codfish to New York. A reference to the last New York Fishing Gazette will show that market cod fetches 2½ cents a lb. in New York. What profits are there for our fishermen in that price? What will be left to our fishermen after taking out of 2½ cents a lb. the cost of handling, cold storage, transportation, exporters' and middlemen's profits. Sir Edward has done nothing but talk about this and his administration is likely to do nothing more.

Sir Edward has also much to say about Bait. But it is all talk. Who has any faith in the strict enforcement of the Bait Act by the Morris Administration? What faith can there be in a policy of bait for our fishermen with M. P. Cashin, Minister of Finance and Customs, and member of the Executive Council, and A. Piccott, Minister of Fisheries? Did they not play fast and loose with the bait policy in the Trefethen and Lord agreement? Again, what concessions about bait are to be made to the Booth Fisheries Co? Sir Edward Morris declines to publish the agreement and let people see for themselves, and we know that the New York Fishing Gazette has stated that the Company is to receive extraordinary attractive bait concessions, such as have never been granted to foreigners in the past. What are they? How does Sir Edward reconcile this with his talk of preparing bait for ourselves?

Then again take the way the Fiona has been handled this past summer. In spite of the extraordinary catch of the Norwegians, in spite of Sir Edward's avowal that "Our fishermen want all the bait there is in the country, and every bit of bait sold to Americans, Canadians or French, tends to put down the price of fish in the foreign markets." In spite of all this, the Fiona was taken off the service to get equipped to give the Governor a picnic.

What is the use of all this talk about keeping bait for ourselves when almost every act of the Government gives it the lie. Again, where are all the bait depots that Morris was to provide? What a lot of talk was got off in the House of Assembly about Bait Depots in the spring of 1910. Two and a half years has passed and not a single thing has been done under that scheme to establish the bait depots then talked about.

Indeed, the whole policy of the administration seems to be to encourage American promoters and do nothing for the local fishery men, except to handicap them by the exaction of heavy taxes, the wanton waste of public monies among members of the House of Assembly and heifers throughout the country, and the piling up of the public debt, which is becoming a millstone around industries, business men, fishermen and workers generally.

A New Comer Up to Tucker's.

A Tussle Between Mrs. Tucker and "The Man from Carter's Hill" in Which Mrs. Tucker is Taught a Lesson.

We were all up to Tucker's last night. There was Tucker and Mrs. Tucker, Delaney and the "Cute Man," and a friend of Tucker's from Joe Batt's Arm, who did poorly at the fishery.

Mrs. Tucker had a fire down, that would roast an ox when I entered, and all the company appeared nice and snug. They can boast of the garden party days, but for my own part I enjoy nothing better than to sit on the bench at Tucker's and make and break governments, settle strikes, and fight the ancient wars all over again.

Lar— Is our friend's name from Joe Batt's Arm, and I hailed him as soon as I entered, and he came forward and shook my hand in the good old fashioned way.

"How did ye do the summer?" said I to Lar, "much the same as usual I suppose?"

"We did nothing worth talking about," said Lar. "We were getting along first rate in the first part of the summer, but the bloomin' dog fish appeared on the scene and spoiled everything."

"For goodness sake," said Mrs. Tucker, "with the accent on the goodness" "can't you find any topic to talk on but fish? Really, I'm surprised at you, Tim, who ought to know better and is always in town, really, I'm shocked to see you actually engaged talking about the fishery, and worse than all, in company."

There was a brief silence after this bombardment, and then the "Cute Man" turned to the visitor and addressed him thus:—"Lawrence, ah, had you many tourists down your way the summer. I suppose you find Joe Batt's Arm quite lively in these times?"

Lawrence looked at the "Cute Man" much in the same style that a man looks at a four and sixpenny waistband before taking it into his company. "Tourists, well Sir, I don't know, there were two or three men and one woman, who said they came from foreign parts. They were always and ever by themselves and I heard they spent sixty eight cents outside their board while they were there. There ain't a big lot there to spend it on," said he, "except you throw it up for scrambles or set all the people off for races."

"These American ladies cut a great dash when they strike this country," said Mrs. Tucker, "and I'd like to have seen this Yankee who visited down your way?"

"Oh," said Lar, "there wasn't anything strange to see about her. Why you can't tell a Yankee from a native in this town now, except you see their face."

The conversation was getting a kind of draggy, and let me ask the reader is there anything that justifies suicide like dragging company. The "drag" was caused by Mrs. Tucker suggesting a conversation, that interested no one, and made every one feel out of place. I often pity some poor omadams in this town, who place themselves in a like position, by associating with people out of their class. How they stand it puzzles me, and I don't wonder at all the new diseases with the high sounding names striking this town, for they are induced by an overdose of trying to be what nature never intended you for, and the result is, you're bored to death and die early not knowing the cause.

The awkwardness that enveloped the company was temporarily removed by a noise at the door, and soon the "Man from Carter's Hill" hove in sight. We all like the "Man from Carter's Hill" because he means what he says and says a lot more than he means.

"Hello, Lar," said he, "how the deuce are you and how are the folks down your way? I suppose you brought Mrs. Tucker her annual present, a bunch of everlasting hay and a tub of rounders?"

We all laughed at this, not that we were very much tickled with the joke, but we were as you have often been, delighted to strike something that would offer some excuse for making a noise and breaking the blooming monotony that freezing company produces.

"The day of rounders is passed and gone," said Mrs. Tucker, "if you want to be counted anything in this town to-day, you must deny of ever looking a good fat rounder square under the eyebrows. Therefore, I'd warn you to so conduct yourself in my presence in future as not to breathe the name of rounders or whisper, even whisper a word of everlasting hay."

The "Man from Carter's Hill" looked over the side of his face at Mrs. Tucker, and hauled on his whisker slowly and thoughtfully. Surprise mingled with doubt was displayed in every feature. At least he opened his mouth slowly but surely and addressing Mrs. Tucker said:

"Tis a pity ye can't get on without fish in this country," said he, "tis a pity the people of this town are not all of blue blood and that there was no necessity of enquiring about the result of the voyage on the Labrador. The whole kit and kin of ye are going mad and ye're enough to bring a curse on the country. But give ye two seasons running of a bad fishery, and ye'll be having a face on ye that would stop the town clock."

Mrs. Tucker started in to reply, but someone very tastefully suggested a song, and after a lot of persuading and "say, go on," "ah, yes, go on," Lawrence from Joe Batt's Arm, started a ditty composed by himself.

He sang it in a very heavy voice, so much so that a picture of Brian Boru conquering the Danes went all of a slew. The song was very catchy, and told a story of the Bank Crash, in days gone by. It pictured the scenes, and told of certain people who scooped a lot of money, then it went off in a jogy kind of way, and told of the same people going along helter skelter in fast machines with no horses, and it ended up with a kind of a moral, warning people not to lose their heads by imitating grandeur.

Oh, 'twas really fine and I feel sure if some of our good singers could secure it they'd make a great hit. Nothing puts the company in good humour quicker than a bit of a song and we all felt deeply indebted to our new friend.

Mrs. Tucker came to herself after the song; was finished and said the twas only farcial to be chasin' grandeur. She shook hands with the "Man from Carter's Hill" and said, I took an odd growl to clear the atmosphere.

The "Cute Man" smiled, and he said to me afterwards, "Look here, Tim, got to have my say or blow up, I don't care two straws what section of the community gets struck, if I feel they want it, well, you can just bet you bottom dollar they're going to get it." The man from Carter's Hill" don't come around very often, but when he comes he makes things hum."

NEW YORK, Sept. 9. A cable to the Tribune, from London, says that vitally important changes in connection with naval discipline, as it affects the lives of thousands of men below decks, have been made known in a circular letter issued by the Admiralty. It sets forth a series of new regulations which will replace many of the most odious rules dealing hitherto with naval delinquents; and putting into operation reforms, indicated by circular, which is the most important yet taken for the benefit of the personnel of the fleet since the abolition of the press gang. The new regulations are the work of a special committee, which, for many months, have been enquiring into the whole subject. The committee reported to the Admiralty six weeks ago, and the recommendations were promptly carried out.

Though luck be on the bum, wear a brave front. What though disasters come? Wear a brave front. Say stoutly: "I won't whine, throw spam or repine; I'll have no grouch in mine!" Wear a brave front. Though life's a toilsome climb, wear a brave front; all griefs will end in time—wear a brave front; though other pilgrims stop, of all their woes to yawn, strive and you'll reach the top—wear a brave front. Tears never helped a gent; wear a brave front; though you are tired and faint, plug on without complaint, sounding your warcry quaint—wear a brave front. Kicks never eased a load; wear a brave front; no one admires the guy who ceases not to sigh—he with the briny eye—wear a brave front. Bad luck must leave at last; wear a brave front; troubles will soon be past; wear a brave front; fate is a mean old hag, but she will cease to nag men who don't chew the rag; wear a brave front.

MEXICO, Sept. 9. Yaqui Indians are on the war path and harrassing the residents of Sonora. Realito, a hamlet, was raided on Saturday, and the officials carried away. Colonial, near the Southern Pacific headquarters at Em Palmo was attacked, two men killed, and others injured. Soon the non-combatants found themselves between pursuers and rescuers. Five of the rescuing party of 12 were killed and six injured; 400 rebels are now camped in sight of Em Palmo.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 9. Immense loss of life is reported from Wen Chow. Chinese estimates give the death toll between thirty and forty thousand, as the result of a typhoon with torrential rains and high tides. Great floods followed, and upper Wen Chow overflowed. The town of Tsing, north-west of Wen Chow, was overwhelmed, and ten thousand inhabitants were drowned. Other towns and villages were destroyed; and the Prefecture of Cui Chow, an important missionary station, was washed away.

Is Your Child Fed

To meet the demands of school life?

Study taxes the brain and nerves of the growing youngsters. Certainly, that's natural and expected; and if fed right, they grow rosy in body and hearty in brain.

If a child droops under school training it is a Signal Flag.

Something used up each day that is not replaced from the food.

Don't neglect the signal!

There is one absolutely dependable food, because it contains the certain parts of wheat and barley that rebuild, not only the body, but the gray matter in Brain and nerve centres.

If you have any question of the scientific truth of this statement, write us for analysis of Brain and nerve centres and analysis of

Grape-Nuts

FOOD

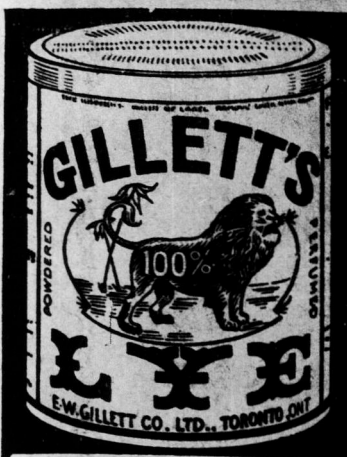

There is no guess work here, but absolute dependable fact that can be made use of by any parent sufficiently interested in the child's development to investigate.

A regular diet of Grape-Nuts and cream, as part of each meal, will tell its tale of health and (fortunately) the children like it.

Gen. Booth's Conversion.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Mr. Editor.—In all the references to the great General Booth, in all the city papers, and periodicals yet to hand, it is remarkable that while universal Christendom is vying with each other to eulogize the dead Chieftain, no reference is made to the humble instrument which was used by the Almighty to bring William Booth to Jesus Christ, and subsequently the originating of forces that are co-extensive with universal Christianity. We have read how John Wesley was led to saving faith in Christ while a layman in the Alversgate Street Moravian meeting, read Luther's Preface to the Epistle to the Romans. We have heard how Charles H. Spurgeon was converted to God, by the rain forcing him to take shelter one Sabbath morning in a small Methodist place of worship when a layman was preaching. And how through the great Lay Agency, originated by John Wesley at the instigation of his shrewd mother, who advised him to hear Thomas Maxfield preach, saying "Mind what you do with that young man, for he is as much called to preach the gospel as you are," and so set going a band of Methodist lay agents now numbering over 100,000 helpers, William Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army was also the fruit of Methodist lay-agency. It was my privilege to have met and to have helped in Evangelistic services in the same locality as the famous local preacher and evangelist, Mr. Isaac Marsden, of Doncaster, England. Mr. Marsden was for the greater part of his life a commercial traveller. His avocation in life brought him into line with great opportunities for preaching the gospel, and he used his gifts on Sabbath and week-evenings for the good of his fellow men. In this way and manner for forty years he went about doing good, and thousands will be stars in the crown of his rejoicing in the day of his coming.
Mr. Marsden had a friend in Nottingham to whom he was accustomed to write at short intervals, an account of his success in the work that lay so near his heart. This gentleman William B. Carter, Esq., very wisely preserved all Mr. Marsden's correspondence and on his death, in January 1882, he published these letters in an interesting volume of 360 pages:—"Correspondence of Isaac Marsden," by William B. Carter. It would seem that the exceptionally earnest and rousing sermons that led to the conviction and conversion of young William Booth did not meet with general approval. I will give some extracts from his correspondence. Doncaster, Dec. 31, 1869. . . . Should old acquaintance be forgot? Old times, by gone days and friends profit or good to be drawn from them. There is some good to be drawn out of the review of them on my part. Blessed be God that I ever knew Nottingham. My labor in Wesley Chapel from "One sinner destroyeth much

Kidney Pains in the Back

Mr. Thos. D. Walsh, Pictou, N.S., writes:—"Two years ago my wife took to her bed after suffering for a long time from kidney pains in the back. She was not able to stand on her feet or even turn herself in bed. The doctor's medicine was no benefit whatever, that we could see. Sometimes her legs would swell considerably. Reading about a woman in similar condition being cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, we purchased two boxes and when these were used she was able to sit up. With three more boxes she was restored to health and doing her own household work.
"As for myself I also found these pills all that is claimed for them. I give this statement in order that others may obtain the same ease from suffering as that experienced by my wife and myself.
"One pill a dose, 25c a box, at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

good," was not without result. Yes was not without much good connected with it. A young man by the name of Booth was that night converted and decided for God and became a local preacher. . . . He offered for the New Connexion and was accepted, passed with credit and became useful. He thought his calling was to be an evangelist and the Connexion granted him a roving commission, and great good was done during the two or three years of that order of labor. Finally the Conference objected to that order amongst them, but believing in his call, he cast himself upon Providence with eight children and went to London and is now doing the greatest work of any mission in London with the lowest of the low class.

He has about 500 members and all raised out of the low class. It cost £3,000 (three thousand pounds) a year the working. The theatre in which they preach every Sunday night costs £5. A Quaker sent him £100, another lady £50, etc., etc. In August I went and gave a week to Mr. Booth. Every night good done in both places. Praise God! This is one of the records of that fearful sermon. The thunder roused him. One of the records of one of the most rugged sermons I ever preached. I remember this time well. It was when Providence opened out good things to me, though I knew it not. The compiler of this little book now published nearly thirty years adds a brief comment: "The young parson by the name of 'Booth' is now of world-wide notoriety as the head and commander of the Salvation Army. At the time of his conversion his mental furniture was scanty. He must since then have been an indefatigable in self-culture as in spiritual enterprise." On page 249 we have another reference to General Booth. "My son in the Gospel, Rev. W. Booth, E. London, is doing one of the greatest works in that direction. Low down, the out-cast and the low cast. His co-workers have no higher earthly hope. But their hopes are high, and down they go, both to the bodies and souls of men. I send him now and then a mite. R. Baxter, Esq., is a great friend to them both in money and law; defends them when brought before the courts by their enemies."
Thinking this might be interesting to many of your readers and prove a stimulus to many humble workers in the Master's vineyard, I remain,
Yours respectfully,
CHARLES LENCH,
President of Conference,
Grand Bank, Newfoundland.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The K. E. B. Excursion to Bell Island on Wednesday last proved a grand success. The party left at 8.30 on Wednesday morning. A concert and dance was held at Wabana Hall Bell Island, and at 4 a.m. Thursday the party left for home arriving here at 6.30. Proceeds amounted to about $50.
A goodly number of citizens were at the railway station on Thursday morning to see the British Society Excursion Party off by train. The morning was fine and the jolly party were off on time. About 100 took advantage of the trip to visit the city and see friends.
We had quite a shower of hail in this neighbourhood on Saturday. This is rather unusual so early in September.
Owing to the absence of Rev. F. S. Coffin there were no services at St. Andrews Church yesterday.
At the regular monthly meeting of the Agricultural Society to-night arrangements will be made for the holding of the Annual Agricultural Exhibition. The forthcoming Exhibition will, no doubt, be up to if not in advance of former shows held.

Mr. H. H. Archibald has a splendid field of turnips at his farm near the Race Course.
An automobile passed through here on Wednesday last—either 22 or 77—and killed a fine hen near Noad St. To our mind large, plain figures should be on the front, back and sides of the cars, figures made so plain that it would be impossible to have any doubt about 77 or 22.
Mr. Richard Cooney, of Carbonear Road, planted six gallons of oats in a small potato patch last spring, and has just housed his fodder product weighing exactly 1,272 lbs. This is considered an exceptionally good yield.
Miss Irvie Rabbitts, of Brigus, arrived last week on a visit to town and is the guest of Miss May Chafe.
The dwelling house being built by Messrs. Rogers and Horwood for Mr. Siby Parsons, near the railway station is being pushed ahead, and Mr. Parsons hopes to be able to move into it by the end of October.
I wish your Harbor Grace friend, Mary, would decide to write over her real name, she is causing your correspondent no end of annoyance, as people seem inclined to father the writings on him. Of course Mary is not to be blamed, but we fear some person will be made swallow their assertion in this respect shortly, if this thing continues.

Stafford's Liniment.

A family medicine cabinet that does not contain Stafford's Liniment is about as complete as a watch without a main spring—and worthy of no more confidence.
Stafford's Liniment is true "first aid" to the injured. There is nothing better for sprains, bruises, cuts, wounds, etc.
There is no liniment we can recommend with more certainty of giving satisfaction. It will relieve pain, reduce swellings, and we know of no better liniment for the treatment of Neuralgia or Rheumatic pains and swelling or stiffness of the joints and muscles.
This Liniment is prepared only by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Nfld. For sale everywhere. sept.11

The Chronicles of "Ezra."

The leader of the Government has missed his calling. He would have made a prime "company promoter." I do not know that there is in literature such long drawn out, and adjective superlatives in describing an Eldorado of the past, present or future, as Sir Edward uses when he describes this little Island.
Paradise is only a circumstance against the attractions and the bounties that we enjoy.
I do not remember if he says that the sun shines for the whole of the twenty-four hours but I do know that he leaves it to one's imagination to think that it could not possibly be otherwise.
Every little streamlet gliding before our doors is simply teeming with fish; all we have to do is to show the ground seed and presto!—before we know it, our vegetables are on the table; "all the birds in the air and all the fishes in the sea" are anxious, waiting at every door to be killed and eaten; the tales of Deadwood Dick and Jules Verne are surpassed and the people who don't happen to live here are asking how it is that this Island of such opportunities has waited a long without appreciation!
All this is very fine. It is not the best side on which to err. But Sir Edward forgets to administer himself the pinch of salt with which every sane man receives such glowing accounts.
I have heard of men in England who have practically laughed in Sir Edward's face as they pointed to the many minix, timber and oil schemes which have swallowed up thousands! In his anxiety he overreaches himself and makes Newfoundland ludicrous. His language savours too much of the "get-rich-quick" advertisements that flood the papers nowadays. To one who knows the Premier and his way of joking with the most serious countenance that one could assume, it is intensely "Morrishistic!"

We have a good little country there's no doubt about that. I dare say there are capabilities within it that will match any other place in the world. But that all these capabilities lie on the surface, so to speak, and simply await some one to come and immediately transform them into comforts, is no more true of this Island than it is of anywhere. If we think that it would be a good thing for the country to encourage immigrants, it is surely better that they should be able to count the cost at first—than suffer when it will be too late. No matter where man sets his foot he may be well sure that it is but the few that will always live on Easy Street.

Newfoundland has to offer large tracts of land for agricultural purposes and it is men that will work this land that we want and not a few rich men that hold the land for the biggest price they can get for it. I should have said that Newfoundland had large tracts of land, for by reference to the map issued by the Dept. of Agriculture and Mines you will see that we have precious little left now. Land will not yield anything without labour, and there is no reason under the sun why we should resort to exaggerated advertisement in a vain endeavour to delude anyone into thinking that the Bounties of Nature lie here for the picking up.—Trinity Enterprise.

Bowels Bad, Liver Torpid, Cascarets.

If Constipated, Bilious, Headache, Stomach Sour, get a 10 cent box of Cascarets—take one to-night.

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have back-ache and feel worn out. Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.
Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.
A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—do good—never gripe or sicken.

Teeming With Squid.
Yesterday the waters on the local grounds were teeming with squid, but the high wind and heavy sea that raged prevented fishermen from getting out. Some of the venturesome, however, went as far as the Light House where a "school" struck in and were amply rewarded for their trouble, jigging enough squid to last for a week's baiting.

Tack's Beach Bad Fishery.
Not in the recollection of the oldest fishermen has the fishery been as bad within the last twenty years at Tack's Beach as it is this season. In the early part of the voyage the dogfish pest was a source of annoyance to the fishermen and latterly there has been an alarming cry for bait.

Schooners Supplying.
The schr. Merl Perks arrived here from Lamaline last evening and will load supplies for the home port. The vessel landed a cargo of coal at Ferryland en route.
The schr. Frances leaves to-day for Coachman's Cove with a general cargo. After unloading she will load fish for St. John's.

Cheer Up!
You won't be bothered by the blues if you keep your liver active, your bowels regular, and your stomach in good tone by timely use of the time-tested, beneficent, and always effective family remedy
