A Spectator's Opinion.

Editor Evening Telegram Dear Sir,-Being one of the many vho attended the hockey match. between the Terra Novas and St. Bon's on Friday night last. I must say and most forcibly do so, in saying that the goal in question was legitimate. Parties on the right towards the main entrance would hardly see it, as it was shot swiftly from that angle. But as your reporter has it, the puck hit (not eemed at all) on the inside of the left hand post. This could be vouched for by at least 50 on the left hand side. Yours truly, SPORT.

Sleigh Capsizes.

On Saturday evening, while an old ady was being driven along Queen's Road, the sleigh in which she was seated capsized and she was thrown out. The team was going along the car track, and the accident occurred when the driver tried to get his horse ever the snow bank onto the regular thoroughfare. The passenger was badly shaken up, but otherwise escaped serious injury .

Pastoral Letter Read.

AT C. OF E. CATHERAL. At the beginning of the 11 o'clock celebration of Holy Communion at the C. E. Cathedral yesterday, the Rev. Canon Jeeves, Rector, in a few well chosen words paid a tribute to the memory of the late W. B. Grieve, Esq., and announced that the "Dead March. in Saul" would be played. This was done by the organist and choirmaster, F. J. King, Esq., the congregation standing.

Instead of a sermon the Rector read the Bishop's Lenten Pastoral, which will be published on Wednesday, to the Faithful in Christ Jesus.

Shipping Notes.

S.S. Canadian Sapper, 3 days from Halifax, arrived in port yesterday afternoon 'with general cargo to the Furness Withy Co.

The disabled steamer which the s.s. Digby is towing to Liverpool is the s.s. Sidlaw Range, and not the Lindlaw Range, as was first repported. The ship is owned by the Furness Withy Co., is 4,407 tons gross and was built in 1918.

S.S. Coban, which brought a cargo of coal to Bowring Bros., sailed yesterday morning for Sydney. The ship experienced some difficulty in getting down the harbor owing to the ice. The Ingraham was engaged and opened a channel for the bigger vessel. Barque Gaspe, Capt. Wakeham, has arrived at Pernambuco after a passage of 35 days

It is supposed that is the precursor of a new set and Jan. 1913copies of the 1c. and 5c. were reported though they have never been seen. "It has been stated that the supplies of those stamps were shipwrecked 1914and for this reason they were never placed on sale," says Mr. J. Ireland in an article written some time ago in the "Stamp Lover." Whether he is right or not I do not know, but what he says could quite possibly have happened. The only thing worthy of note about this stamp is that it is the last ever printed by the American Bank Note Co., New York, for Newfoundland. The Latest About the Provisionals: -From late reports received, our 1853provisionals are beginning to decline in value in the English market. I note that stocks are now in the hands | 1861of several dealers. I have seen these stamps quoted as low as 16 for the 2c. on 30c., 3 6 for the 3c. on 35c. and 5 - for the 3c. on 15c. wide spacing. The narrow spacing of the 3c. on 15c is now quoted at 10 shillings, whilst the "o" of TWO over "s" of CENTS variety of the 24 on 30c. is also quoted at 10 shillings. No quotations have yet been made on the inverted surcharge of the 2c. on 30c. of which only 75 are said to exist, of the missing bar variety of the 3c. on 35c. nor of the inverted surcharge of the narrow setting of the 3c. on 15c. A wellknown collector informed me recently that he would sell the only copy he possessed of the last mentioned variety for $37.00. This seems rather a stiff price, but as there are only 25 conies in existence. I do not think that it is unreasonable. I believe that there are still a lot of these provistors dislike it is attempts at specula- and early season. tion by holding over large stocks of stamps until the prices rise. ADOPT RESOLUTIONS OF CONGRATULATION.

A special meeting of the Benevolent morning. The President, Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., occupied the chair. A large number of members was present, and one hundred and seven candidates were admitted to membership. After the meeting had been called to order, the Vice-President, Mr. J. C. Gentleman Jackson. the Pugilist.

Perhaps the man who did most to opularise the "noble art" was John Jackson, champion of England, and better known to history as "Gentleman Jackson." Unlike most other pugilists who have distinguished themselves for only one trait of excellence, he possessed three-superior strength. science, and pluck. His agility in the ring was extraordinary. At an exhibition of sparring in the "Five Courts" got up in honor of the then Czar of Russia after the signing of "Peace of Europe." on February 7, 1812. Gentleman Jackson demonstrated the marvellous science he possessed, and aroused the admiration and enthuiasm of the spectators. He did much to lift the sport to a higher level, for in his luxurious rooms at Bond Street, he gave lessons in scientific boxing to the nobility and gentry of the age: creating an enthuiasm for the game among a class which had previously been content to watch others perform. To be a pupil of Gentleman Jackson became a vogue, and the "young bloods" of the day did not consider they were thoroughly in the fashion till they had had their "claret tapped" by the champion of England. It was not, however, only as a scientific boxer that Gentleman Jackson outshone his contemporaries, for he was, in addition, one of the toughest fighters. In his second public fight, when he was only nineteen years of age, he gave such an outstanding exhibition of fortitude that he at once became famous. He was matched on that occasion against Inglestone-a man who only just missed championship honours. Jackson was then far from the accomplished professional which he afterwards became, and he underwent a thorough gruelling at the hands of Inglestone. Although he got the worst of the encounter in every round, he fought steadfastly on. But he was fighting a losing fight all the time, and at last sustained a terrific fall, in which he broke his leg. He wanted to fight for a finish, but Inglestone with his natural sense of fair play, absolutely refused to entertain such a one-sided proposition, and Jackson's SAFE AT HOME. Let the old fire blaze An' the youngsters shout An' the dog on the rug Sprawl full length out Sort o' settle down, An' it's little we care For the noisy town.

Oh, it's little we care That the wind may blow, An' the streets grow white With the drifted snow; We'll face the storm With the break o' day, But to-night we'll dream An' we'll sing an' play.

We'll sit by the fire An' pay no heed To the winter storm: With a sheltering roof Let the blizzard roar. Can a king say more?

That's all that counts When the day is done, The smiles of love And the youngsters' fun, The cares put down
With the evening gloam— Here's the joy of al To be safe at home.

Fashions and Fads.

Much drapery is noted. Even blouses show panels The new blouses have skirts. Dance frocks favor the uneven hem. The sash generally ties on the left side. Tinted laces are favored for dance frocks.

Long pointed tunics have beaded borders. Long, slender lines are favored for spring. The beach cape matches the bathing suit. Elaborate tea gowns feature fringed sashes. Evening gowns show a strong Egyptian influence.

The picture hat with sweeping plume is coming in. Eyelet embroidery is very effective on long side panels. Sports suits of plain and striped homespuns are seen. Hats of ribbed cotton ribbon will be seen this summer. Black and brown satin are favored for afternoon wear. · Very smart is the muff and collar set of knitted wool. Black jet ornaments are extremely effective in white hair. Chinese flowers are seen on the bodices of evening frocks. Palm Beach favors handkerchief limen for summery frocks. The V-shaped neck seems to be the favored one for spring. The French frocks are shirred of an elastic at the waist line. Afternoon frocks of satin have long, closely fitting sleeves.
