

THIRTEENTH YEAR.

A DEFICIT IN THE TREASURY CAUGHT A YOUNGER DUFFERIN.

THE PROBLEM THAT IS AGITATING THE DEMOCRATS.

An Extra Session of Congress Next Spring Seems Necessary to Avert a Financial Crisis. The Problem That is Agitating the Democrats.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—"If Mr. Cleveland calls an extra session of Congress next spring it will not be on account of a financial crisis, but because he does not wish to provide for a large deficit in the Treasury that will become a heritage for a four years' administration of the finances by the Republican party."

This statement was made by Senator Carlisle when asked as to the probability of an extra session of the House of Representatives.

Only once in the history of the Government has it been necessary to call Congress to Washington in the fall of the year.

When President Cleveland last called an extra session to devise ways and means to supply an impending deficit.

When President Cleveland last called the White House in 1889 there was a surplus in the Treasury of nearly $100,000,000.

Mr. Cleveland comes back next March he will find immediate action necessary in order to meet the heavy drafts made upon the Treasury at the end of the fiscal year.

So good an authority as Senator Carlisle has declared that until additional revenue is provided it will be useless to talk of passing bills making material additions to the free list. Reduction in tariff duties will undoubtedly increase the total receipts from customs, but additions to the free list simply wipe out revenue.

A CHICAGO BURGALAR TRIES TO KISS A HAMILTON GIRL.

She Resented the Liberty and Pursued Him for Two Blocks—Didn't Wait to Catch Herself—She Has a Record for Burglary, and is Quite a Fast Rhymer.

HAMILTON, Nov. 19.—An interesting story comes from Chicago regarding the brave conduct of a young lady who was formerly a resident of Hamilton, and is well known to many people here. The heroine of the adventure is Miss Florence McKeekin, daughter of Captain William McKeekin, who resided, within Hamilton, in Cannon-street.

On the night of 10th Miss McKeekin went to sleep about 10 o'clock. The morning she was awakened by the feeling that some one was in the room with her, and opening her eyes she was startled to see a man's eyes peering down into hers. The young lady endeavored to rise, but the burglar hid her noise and tried to kiss her.

"If you make any more I'll kill you," he said.

Only wanted to kiss her. Miss McKeekin paid no attention to the man's admonition. She began to yell at the top of her voice, and at the same time struggled to free herself from the grasp of her intruder. He was a powerful fellow, and twisting the young lady's wrist until she seemed to be on the point of dislocation, he said again:

"If I kill you if you don't keep quiet." And then he added: "What's the use of struggling? I only want to see your face." By this time the young lady's screams had aroused the house, and hearing the cries of people upstairs and starting into the room, the burglar desisted in his seductive endeavor and bolted. Miss McKeekin arose, and dressing in a hurry, she slipped on her slippers, and without shoes or stockings, the plucky girl followed the burglar. Down stairs went the intruder, with Miss McKeekin after him, and after a few blocks he was arrested by the help of a constable and a policeman, and dashed out into the street.

"Tien began one of the greatest 'springs' for a short distance ever chronicle in West Side annals. The intruder started toward the west on Ontario-street, and in the distance, the burglar's tracks were seen to be those of a recently-escaped convict, who had been arrested by the police and taken to the workhouse, where he was kept in a cell for a few days, and then released.

At the time he was arrested, the burglar was followed by the police, and he was taken to the workhouse, where he was kept in a cell for a few days, and then released.

The woman was 50 years of age and a widow. She owned two large farms and had a large bank account.

The Toronto World.

Of a lack of frankness in the American press cannot be accused.

The Toronto World is a business man from heel to toe, his politics are as mercantile as his trade.

It is true that Mr. Blaine regards protection and reciprocity as counterparts of each other.

From this presentation of the trade policy of the new administration it would appear that it is to be a reciprocity scheme.

The Democratic press in this position to reciprocity is a logical result of free trade principles.

To be as frank as our United States contemporaries, we term "free trade" to throw dust in the eyes of the American people.

YALE, BY A TRY AND A GOAL

HARVARD BEATEN BY 6 POINTS TO 0.

The Closest Contest on Record Between the Blue and Crimson—Two of the Cambridge Men Were Injured—Leave the Field Owing to Injuries—Spectacular Goals.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 18.—The first special train that arrived to-day on the occasion of the great football contest was out from Boston with 130 police officers and several hundred Harvard students.

The officers were Boston's finest, the two big men whose size attracted so much attention last year being among the number.

The outgoing trains were poorly patronized, as every one who could remained to witness the big game. There was revenge in the eyes of several spectators.

Twenty thousand people had congregated on Hampden street when the game opened. A tier day for sport could not have been. It was 1.25 when the whole Eastern side of the arena arose in a solid body to greet their Cambridge team as they ran on the field from the northwest.

Most of the crowd were in the front ranks, and the Harvard team was met with a burst of applause so corresponding as to burst the field.

Little time was consumed in passing the ball and the preliminaries of the game were very unusual in degree. Almost before the crowd had staid up the relative appearance of the eleven on the field the teams began to form for the kick-off.

Yale won the toss and chose the ball, while Harvard chose the north end. The game was opened with a kick-off from the Cambridge team which showed a surprising strength, and it was not long before Yale was not only in the walk-off but had been so confidently predicted for.

The Yale team was an unusual one, and all of the players were of a high order of rolling up a big score was expected. Little time remained, and it was clear that the game would be a good one, and a punt got the ball near Yale's 25-yard line.

Yale won, but only by a margin of one point. Dr. Sturges was put in the center of the line, and he was playing a brilliant game, also but Harvard rather forced the playing, and succeeded at times in breaking through the line, the work being on the whole better than her opponents.

The game was fought inch by inch from beginning to end, and it is safe to say that had the Cambridge team not lost two of her best men the game would have ended without either side being victorious.

Yale starts with the ball and sends it to the back of the Yale captain. The wedge started to the left and before it had stopped they had made a gain of 20 yards.

THEY ONLY WANT WINTER.

HOCKEY MEN ARE ANXIOUS FOR THE FALL.

Annual Meeting of the Ontario Association—Fifteen Teams to Fight for Championship—The Ontario Association of Hockey Clubs met last night at the Hotel.

Hockey is certainly Toronto's national winter game. It only required two seasons to spread over the city, and this winter there promises to be double the number of seven.

There were present: President A. M. Cooby of the Victoria Club in the chair, and the following officers: Vice-President H. D. Warren, Toronto; Secretary J. H. Armstrong, Toronto; Treasurer J. S. Kerr, Toronto.

There was a lengthy discussion as to the division of gates and expenses to visiting clubs in the matches. A motion to compel the home team to guarantee visitors half the balance of the gate, seemed to meet with universal favor until the amendment to refer the matter to a special committee for mature deliberation was adopted.

The meeting adjourned until Saturday afternoon, when the Ontario Hockey Association will meet at the Hotel.

By a series of plunges through the line, followed by a punt, the ball was kept in the center of the field.

Dr. Smith's gate was well qualified to pass the judgment on all classes, and the awards were judiciously placed.

Green numbers then tried the high jump under similar conditions. George Peppers' horse was the winner.

After much exertion by their management, the contestants being F. B. Helms and R. S. Strath, both of the Variety editorial staff.
