MUST HAVE A CLEAN TOWN

Quality of Citizenship Reflected in Appearance of Town.—Dirty Streets No More Excusable Than Dirty Homes.—No Great Effort Required to Produce Desired Result.

Many papers throughout the province are at present shaking up their localities on the subject of civic beautifying and certainly it is a subject that deserves attention. In large places the plans assume very elaborate proportions, but there is no place so small that cannot take a part in the desirable movement. Environment exerts a very great influence upon a people, and those continually moving in untidy and unkempt surroundings are unconsciously influenced toward a tendency to disregard all laws of order. Good surroundings will not necessarily produce a freedom from evil but will certainly exercise a wholesome restraint.

Every village has its schools where book instructions are given, and every village has its individual premises, its buildings, its vacant lots, fences, lanes and streets, from which the children are unconsciously forming character. If those children have before them continual signs of disorder, neglect and waste, it is useless to expect them to grow as orderly, industrious and thrifty members of the community. The natural bent will be toward slothfulness, shiftlessness and a most undesirable condition of citizenship of no use to themselves or to the state. Most people are concerned about their children's examinations at school, while few appear to be concerned about what is placed before the view of these children and is constantly impressing itself upon their minds.

It is of little use to tell a boy to black his boots in the morning, and hang up his hat, when in going out of the door he tumbles on a broken down platform, picks his way through ash heaps, old cans, and passes through a gate hanging by one hinge. It is all very well to have children listen for an hour to pretty stories at Sunday school but that hour is not going to counteract the six days of running among broken down sidewalks, streets littered with all kinds of refuse, drains blocked with rubbish, broken down fences, vacant lots filled with noxious weeds, and ruins, dilapidated buildings, broken windows, and eyesores and ugliness of every conceivable description. There are deep potentialities in the town beautiful, and every village and town should take some concerted action towards civic beauty. And it does not require such a very great effort either.

A committee of half a dozen men would in a few weeks put a new face on any village in the country. An hour or two for a few evenings spent by the committee in interviewing certain residents on each street, and suggesting what should be done, would in nine cases out of ten produce the desired result. A little co-operation is all that is required, and to obtain that co-operation all that is needed is the initial power, the dynamic spark to start the motion, and the right kind of committee would furnish that spark. There is no excuse for civic ugliness. The quality of citizenship is reflected in the appearance of the town, and good citizens in every community, at this particular season could not occupy themselves in a more desirable movement than in organizing some united effort to produce in their civic surroundings, that which appealing to the eye, will have a tendency to develop in the heart and mind, all that is expressed in the words: The true, the good, and the beautiful.—Bobbygeon Independent.

New Brunswick is Head in Consumption Fight

The Sister Province Has a Great Sanatorium in Albert County, Presided Over by Dr. R. L. Botsford.

The magnificent gift of Mrs. Jordan of Boston, of a hundred thousand dollar estate at Silver Glade, in Albert County, N.B., a few miles from the I. C. R. places that province far ahead of any other province in providing a home for tuberculosis cases in their primary stages. The mansion itself was probably the finest private residence in the province. It can accommodate thirty cases and with some slight additions one hundred patients. The government has appointed a commission of leading gentlemen to operate it. It is expected that Dr. R. L. Botsford, chairman of the board of health for the city of Moncton, will be district superintendent. He has for many years been making a special study of the disease, written much for the press, delivered illustrated lectures and is successful pioneer in the fresh air treatment. For lack of a sanatorium he has had built isolated huts or shacks for patients with remarkably good results. His experience and enthusiasm will prove valuable qualities in the new health resort.

The sanatorium is located in the forest in the midst of a seven hundred acre estate. A river runs round it on nearly three sides. For picturesque location with all sorts of pleasant surroundings, the place could not well be excelled.

What the Home Owes the School

The Duty of Parents to Their Children, to the Teachers and Schools is of the First Importance

Homes are the first schools, parents the first teachers. In the dawn of that ancient civilization that has given us the roots of our religion and the basic principles of our free governments, the parent was thus enjoined: "And thou shalt teach these words diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest by the way."

From long before those days until the present the family has been the elemental form of society. All other organizations and institutions—religious, social, political and educational—are derived from ideals of family life, and exist in order that family life may be more successful.

The wish of parents that their children should know more than they—the parents—could teach them gave rise to family tutors, the tutor, as well as the children, being subject to the home authority. Then came private schools, and finally public schools.

A work that the home should begin for the school, and share continuously with the school, is that of discipline. Unspoiled, the child enters its first school—the home. There it ought to learn habits of orderliness and respect for rightful authority. The mother who corrects her child for disorder only when the disorder inconveniences herself is preparing trouble for the school.

Correcting a child, the appeal should be to the conscience, not to fear of punishment. Through the reason parents can let the child see that commands are not arbitrary. Normal children do not have disorder for disorder's sake. Their ideas of order are not the ideas of grown people. It is for the parent to cultivate the undeveloped sense of order in the child so that it may choose right for itself. This is teaching morality. When the parent explains that God takes pleasure in the right-doing of children, the teaching becomes religious.

At the age of six the training of the child should have proceeded so far that it would obey the teacher, respect the rights of playmates, give attention to its little lessons, and be careful of books and other school property. The home owes it to the school to give these first lessons in discipline and morals. When the home fails to do its rightful share of preparatory work, an extra burden is thrown upon the school that hinders its efficiency.

Parents should understand that order in a school is a necessity for effective teaching. No matter how well qualified a teacher is intellectually, she cannot teach successfully if half of her energies are spent upon ways and means of securing attention.

The home owes it to the school that children attend regularly. Lessons are so arranged that each day's exercise is a stepping-stone to that of the following day. Few children have the capacity for recovering a lost day. Irregular attendance necessitates extra work on the part of the teacher. It is wronging the school as well as the child to detain it at home to do little services for the family convenience.

Many minor indispositions of children that occasion loss of school time are preventable. The home should see that children are properly nourished and properly clothed; that their play does not degenerate into dissipation, and that they get the right amount of sleep. When children prepare lessons at home, they need a study table for their books and papers, and good light. An unbridged dictionary and an encyclopedia will be very helpful to the older ones. But, most helpful of all, is home sympathy.

If parents would visit the school, and get in sympathy with the teachers, they would realize what the home owes the school, and how, by paying its debt, the home would be enriched by better school service.

Educational Notes

(Wolfville Acadia)

Mr. A. DeW. Foster has been appointed as House Master at Horton Academy to succeed Mr. Ruggles, who has resigned to accept the principalship of the Consolidated School at Middleton. Mr. Foster is an excellent teacher and has had three years of experience at the Academy, which eminently qualifies him for the position. The Academy is to be congratulated on the good appointment.

The contest in declamation for the O. P. Goucher prize of $15.00 open to members of the Sophomore and Freshman classes, was held in College Hall on Friday evening last. Dr. Cutler presided. There were seven contestants, the successful one being Mr. Clyde Robbins, of the Freshman Class, who recited the "Charlot Race" from "Ben Hur." A large number of friends of the contestants were present to listen to the rendition.

Mr. M. C. Foster, Acadia '09, is evidently doing good work as principal of the Canning public schools. This is the second year he has had charge and he has an enrollment of more than thirty, twenty-five of whom are taking the regular High School course. The Educational Department has now appointed Canning as an examination station and the High School pupils will be enabled to take their examinations at home instead of going to Kentville or Wolfville.

During the past year the Academy has had a cadet corps, under the provision of the government for physical and military training in the public schools. The membership has been about eighty-four divided into two companies under duly qualified instructors, Messrs. A. DeW. Foster and W.H. Morse. A large portion of the time has been given to physical drill on the campus. The corps engages in target practice on the march and in the armoury with the sub-target guns. The sub-target guns and Ross rifles and other equipment are furnished by the government as the case with other schools. The experience of the year leads the teachers of the Academy to believe that this training has been of benefit to the boys of the school.

Newsy Notes in and About The Town of Wolfville

Wolfville, May 5—The barrel factory which was destroyed by fire at Melanson will be rebuilt at once by the shareholders, who are most of them successful orchardists in the valley.

Captain and Mrs. Frank Davison, of Vancouver, were in Wolfville this week visiting friends.

Rev. William M. Smallman, pastor of the Baptist church at New Glasgow, was here this week, guest of his father-in-law, S.P. Benjamin.

The many friends of Miss Annie M. McLean, the well-known author, Ph. D., of Chicago, and professor of sociology at Adelphi college, New York, will regret to learn that she is ill with a serious attack of acute rheumatism and has been obliged to go to the celebrated hot springs, in the mountains of Virginia, for the hot baths. She is accompanied by her mother, Mrs. McLean, who was recalled from a visit to her son, Hadden M. McLean, in Chicago, on account of the illness of her daughter.

Miss Bessie Alcorn, daughter of the late Rev. Mr. Alcorn, a former well-known Methodist pastor in the province, gave an excellent address in the Methodist church here on Sunday morning on some phases of her fifteen years' missionary work in Japan. She is an interesting speaker and her address was heard with much interest. During her stay in Wolfville, she was the guest of an old friend, Mrs. (Dr.) H. T. DeWolfe. She is making her home during her furlough at her old home in Berwick.

Miss Enid Tufts, who will be much missed here in social circles, has gone to Boston to reside with her brother, Robie W. Tufts, formerly of the Bank of Montreal, but now engaged in business in Boston.

Dr. and Mrs. DeWitt, who have been in Florida and afterwards in Baltimore, where the doctor was doing some research work, have returned and are occupying their home on Main street, where Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stairs have been for the winter.

Miss Daisy Sleep, of this town, a graduate of education at Acadia seminary, who is spending the winter with relatives in Boston, assisted Miss Lorenda Brown, formerly of this town and sister of Mrs. (Dr.) Cutten, in a Longfellow concert given at the Normal college at Randolph, New Hampshire, where Miss Brown has charge of the musical department.

Many will hear with sincere regret of the illness of Mrs. Hatch, wife of the former beloved pastor of the Wolfville Baptist church. Mrs. Hatch, who, since the death of Mr. Hatch, has been living at her old home, Waterville Maine, with her four little children, developed lung trouble and is now taking treatment in the Sharon sanatorium, Mass.

Dr. A.K. DeBlouis, one of Acadia's most distinguished graduates, after eight years pastorate of the first Baptist church of Chicago, has accepted a unanimous call to the Commonwealth avenue Baptist church, of Boston, one of the oldest and wealthiest churches in the eastern states.

Mrs. Smith, of Florenceville, arrived in Wolfville on Monday on account of the serious illness of her daughter, Miss Evelyn Smith, at the seminary.—Halifax Herald.

ADVICE TO VOTERS

(From the Dallas News) Get rid of the old methods of voting for a man because he is a good fellow, or because he needs the office, or because he is your personal friend, or because your family and his family are intimate; get rid of the idea that party politics have a place in a city election, and do your duty as a citizen by voting for the man that you believe are the best qualified to represent you without reference to your likes and dislikes, realizing that your personal feeling for or against a man has nothing to do with your duty as a citizen. This is the only way to insure good men in office, and to insure efficient government.

VITAL PROBLEMS MUST BE FACED

Danger Threatening the Sources of Government.—Immigration of Anarchic Races Must Be Restricted.—The Ideals of Canadian Citizenship Need to be Elevated.

Addressing the Canadian Club at Toronto recently Dr. J. A. MacDonald treated a number of vital problems now facing Canadians, emphasizing those which had to do with matters of citizenship, with the national ideal and with inter-national relations.

"One of the needs in Canada, he was quoted as saying, 'is population but there is such a thing as poisoning the blood of the nation, and the immigration of alien and incompatible people is a menace to Canadian citizenship.' The greatest danger in immigration was not ignorance, or poverty, or physical disability. These might all be remedied. But immigrants belonging to races whose whole history was a contradiction of democracy, no matter what their intelligence or alertness, were a danger on account of which Canada's doors should be safely guarded; not because the labor market was congested, not because of any theory of 'Canada for the Canadians,' not because Canadians boasted superiority to the Oriental or other races. But the supreme right of a self-governing nation is to protect the sources of its government authority and to maintain the foundations of its national life.

Oriental who are by nature and instinct undemocratic and who cannot forswear allegiance to their own Emperor and nation must not be allowed to colonize in Canada." Speaking of the National ideal Dr. MacDonald referred to the ideal of New Zealand. The conscious ideal that was ever before the New Zealanders in all the acts of their Government was the objective of "giving every citizen adequate access to opportunity, and enabling all the people to enjoy the rewards of honest lives and useful service." Dr. MacDonald deplored the lack of such an ideal in Canada. Our governing bodies lack a stable purpose. They are too often coerced or influenced by public opinion, instead of leading public opinion. They yield to error, instead of following a steadfast aim. Advantages which the God of nations lavished without stint in the soil, in the streams, in the mines, in the water-powers in the forests, have been alienated from the people to make a few millionaires. Every special privilege is a special danger. Every Canadian merger that unloads useless watered stock on the British market is an offence which no repudiation of American methods and no waving of the British flag will justify or excuse. The day of military glory is gone. Our danger is rather that in the times of piping peace we lose the heroic out of our souls and that our great god be the millionaire. The question which needs to be put to men of wealth, and which will be put in the new day of just dealing, is not "How much money have you got?" but "How did you get it?"

Hot Weather Across the Border

Prostrations in Two Cities—Washington Has Temperature of Ninety-four.

(Canadian Press)

Washington, May 12—Washington last night was the hottest place in the United States, the weather bureau recording ninety-four degrees with much higher temperatures shown by the street thermometers. All over the middle Atlantic states a hot wave stretched and the weather held out little hope of any material relief from the warmest of the season.

Baltimore, M. D., May 12—Baltimore had the hottest May day in its history yesterday with a temperature of ninety-one degrees, Pittsburgh with eighty-eight degrees had the hottest May 11 since 1896, and one prostration there was reported. Philadelphia had several prostrations with a temperature of ninety, a point only three times previously in the history of the city at this date.

New York, May 12—In Brooklyn three persons were bitten by dogs, which had evidently been affected by the heat. While the temperature was only eighty, the humidity was forty-four, a crushing combination.

Prospects of Orcharding in Nova Scotia

Take our North-west. I am only giving approximate figures. Within the last year the immigration into the North-west of Canada was something like 300,000. Every immigrant that comes into that country will increase our market sales for apples. That is an old song. It is one of the factors that goes to increase our markets. We who have never been in that part of Canada cannot realize the size of it.

Again I think in the future we can look forward to better trade relations with Germany, and there is no doubt that France will take more apples from us than they have in the past. We have South Africa for good apples, and I want to emphasize the necessity of exporting good apples. I think all of these countries will take more good apples in the future than they have done in the past.

Now to show what a market Nova Scotia as a fruit-growing proposition will have in the next ten years, I want to show you the exports of apples from the United States has in twenty years dropped from 1,000,000 to 600,000 bbls; from Montreal in six years it has fallen from 730,000 to 350,000 bbls. In the next ten years the United States will have need of all their apples, and will export none. So we cannot look to the United States as a serious competitor. I have cited the above to show you what other countries were doing, to show you that the people of Great Britain will get the bulk of their apples in less than a decade from the maritime provinces. I have been speaking of possibilities. There are many factors necessary in the development of these possibilities, and one of these is the right kind of men. I am glad we can raise and have in the past, certainly been raising just such men in Nova Scotia, who, wherever they are, give a good account of themselves. Nova Scotians in the United States are chosen before any other nationality for men who can be relied upon, for men who will work and take rough knocks and make good in every respect. What we want to do is to keep those men here; the loss of these men has been the bane of our province in the past. If we can keep those men here we need have no fear of the future.

I think we have not been doing enough advertising in the past. We have one or two modest advertisements in our farm papers about our agricultural college, and I think our Immigration Dept. has some advertising in the Canadian papers, and we are advertising in a modest way in England; but I want to read you some advertising matter from "Better Fruit" an Oregon paper and the "Vancouver World." Within the last fortnight the latter published a special edition, and you would think that there was no other place in the world where you could grow fruit. "Hood River apples and strawberries, that's all, the world knows the rest." That is some of the advertising you meet with out there.

I want to read you one or two extracts from a letter I received from a friend. Speaking of the apples at Vancouver--he is a native of Nova Scotia, he says--and I think it will make up a little conceded. "Oh this valley is not quite El Dorado, there are problems. I could not recommend the owner of a good orchard in Annapolis Valley or Ontario to do otherwise than stay there and grow clean fruit--and talk about it. British Columbia fruit would not be attracting the attention it is if it were not boomed."

Then he says why don't you advertise Nova Scotia and the possibilities of Nova Scotia? If we had such a proposition in climate and soil and transportation facilities as you have in Nova Scotia, we would be filling our papers with advertising stuff fuller than we are now doing. That is the sentiment of a man who has a large orchard in British Columbia.

I have the statement of a man who bought an orchard in Annapolis county and had it worked by proxy. He gave me the statement to show that while he has kept a strict account of all expenses, the cost of the land, and the setting out of trees, and the farm labor--and putting against that the crops he has raised for ten years, I may say that there was a young orchard on it that immediately came into bearing after he bought it--he has paid for the original orchard and the improvements, on it, and the breaking up of the land, and he is now $1700 in debt. There are twenty-four acres in the orchard. He has paid all but that $1700, and not put a hand to it himself. He charged everything up against it. He paid $4700 for the proposition, and he has in ten years cut his liabilities down

This Old Gentleman Cured of Rheumatism

By One Box of GIN PILLS

YARMOUTH, N.S.
I have been bothered with Rheumatism for the past year and have taken a good many different kinds of medicine and found no relief for it. One day a friend advised me to try GIN PILLS, and after taking one box of them, I felt like a new man, I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know how thankful I am for the relief they gave me, and would advise all sufferers from Rheumatism to try GIN PILLS.

Wm. Conry, Don't bother with liniments and so-called "blood purifiers". They won't help your kidneys--and Rheumatism is caused by weak, strained or irritated kidneys. The only possible way to cure Rheumatism, is to cure the kidneys. GIN PILLS will do this as nothing else will. Take GIN PILLS NOW and be free from Rheumatism this winter. 50c a box--$5 for $2.50--and money promptly refunded if you are not satisfied.

Order from us if your dealer does not handle GIN PILLS. Sample box sent free on request. National Drug and Chemical Co., Dept. N.S., Toronto, 57

The original Gin Pills made by National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada Limited, Toronto, are sold only in this box.

It Is Curable

Dyspepsia may be completely eradicated if properly treated. We sell a remedy that we positively guarantee will completely relieve indigestion or dyspepsia, or the medicine used during the trial will cost the user nothing.

This remedy has been named Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. Certainly no offer could be more fair, and our offer should be proof positive that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are a dependable remedy.

Inasmuch as the medicine will cost you nothing if it does not benefit you, we urge you who are suffering with indigestion or dyspepsia to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. A 25-cent box contains enough medicine for fifteen days' treatment. For chronic cases we have two larger sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at--The Rexall Store, W. A. Warren.

BOY WANTED.

A provincial contemporary advertisement for a boy as follows: "WANTED--a boy to learn the printing trade. He must have a fair English education. When he becomes a great newspaper man he can get Latin, German and French out of the dictionary. As a trade, printing is as well paid as any other--the average of hope open to a newspaper man, if he is good as a man, are wide and endless. Benjamin Franklin, Horace Greeley, George Brown and W. S. Fielding were newspaper men. We admit that any one can stay there, but as a printer is endless so are his opportunities. About terms, we will discuss them when the right boy comes. Apply at this office."

Men Verses Women Teachers

(Montreal Witness.)

The question is just now a good deal before the educationalists of Montreal and Ontario, as to whether it is a good thing for the rising generation that the teaching of the older children should be in the hands of women so exclusively as it is. Owing possibly to some delicacy in making comparisons of fitness, there is among school authorities a good deal of dogmatism current on the subject, which people put down for prejudice or to wisdom, according to their own views upon it. The reason that is pleasant to urge, and which is therefore most ordinarily urged, is that women enter the profession with no expectation of remaining in it, as they expect to get married, and that therefore, they are only half-hearted in it, while men on the other hand treat it seriously as the profession that must in time support them and their families through life. This is a theoretic view which depends, not on what actually happens to the two classes, but on what they count on happening. The subconscious motives that govern actions are not a safe ground for argument, as these are nowhere registered. We have seen results of an unconscious test which showed that the expectation of marriage rules with most women. The intention of it rules with most men. When we come to facts, however, it is not so plain that men enter the teaching profession any more than women do with the hope of making it their life work, or that they stick to it any better. It is rather regarded as almost the one occupation that can be temporarily taken up.

The demand for male teachers, at least for growing boys, is based on what is ideally looked for from such guides. The normal healthy boy throws himself with his fullest energy into the sports of the playground. It is there that the good teacher, who is young enough and vigorous enough to take part with his lads, can exercise his greatest moral influence. The athletic ideas which rule today in the minds of youth ought to be regulated and brought under intelligent and moral guidance. This is a service contemplated in the present movement for what is spoken of as military training, but which, as it is to be shared in some measure by girls, cannot be of a very warlike spirit. Apart, however, from the physical side of nature, it is averred that female teaching has failed just where it might have been looked to have had the best results, namely, in imparting gentle and gracious manners, a deportment in which young Canadians compare badly with the young of almost any other people.

The reason given is that boys are inclined to despise government that is not strong, and take their own wild course at a very early age. That such is the reason would need proof; that Lord Grey was right in saying that our young people are of very crude manners needs no proof. If men teachers could do better in that respect than women, they are for that much to be desired. An important consideration set forth by the advocates of a change in this respect is that boys under women teachers will inevitably leave school at an earlier age than under men. The trouble about the proposal to use men instead of women is that, unless the salaries are very greatly raised, the men who will be got will be largely those who are incapacitated for other occupations, or who are for some reason otherwise unemployed. If men are to teach, they should be first-class men. Whatever is to be said on the general matter of comparative fitness, no one will question that it is far better to have the pick of women than the leavings of men.

FREE PSYCHINE FOR THE SICK

Let us buy a 50c. bottle from your Druggist and give it to you to try. Here are our reasons:

For nearly the third of a century we have known what Psychine will do. We have known it to cure hundreds of thousands in that time, of some of the most desperate cases of disease known to medical science.

We have received thousands of unsolicited testimonials, which we will gladly let you look over should you desire.

Think of it, a third of a century's experience with one preparation, a third of a century's intimate knowledge of what extraordinary cures it has made--almost a lifetime!

Do you wonder then with that perfect knowledge of Psychine, that we are anxious to bring it to the notice of everyone in Canada suffering from Disease?

Do you wonder that we want those to know who are using wrong methods of cure, who are not getting well, and who we know will be benefited by Psychine.

Do you wonder that we can buy hundreds of thousands of 50-cent bottles of Psychine from the druggists of Canada to give to those who wish to try it?

Psychine builds vitality. It strengthens and increases the white corpuscles of the blood--the phagocytes, the policemen or scavengers of the blood. These white corpuscles of the blood, when strong enough, destroy every disease germ that gets into the body, keeps the body healthy.

AT LAST, A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

"Fruit-a-lives Cured Me" Says Mrs. Baxter.

"I was a helpless cripple from Rheumatism for nearly a year. All down the right side, the pain was dreadful and I could not move for the agony. I was treated by two physicians without help. I saw 'Fruit-a-lives' advertised in 'The Telegram' and decided to try them. After I had taken one box, I was much better.

When I had taken three boxes, I could use my arm and the pain was almost gone. After taking five boxes, I was entirely well again. The cure of my case by 'Fruit-a-lives' was indeed splendid because all the doctors failed to even relieve me. 'Fruit-a-lives' cured me. Mrs. LIZZIE BAXTER.

A HOME PLACE, TORONTO, Dec. 15, '09

In hundreds of other cases, 'Fruit-a-lives' has given exactly the same satisfactory results because 'Fruit-a-lives' is the greatest blood purifying medicine in the world. 'Fruit-a-lives' the famous fruit medicine regulates kidneys, liver, bowels and skin, and prevents the accumulation of uric acid, which is the prime cause of Rheumatism.

'Fruit-a-lives' will positively cure every case of Rheumatism, when taken according to directions. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

Joker's Corner

THE PRIVILEGE OF THE PLAINTIFF.

A little colored girl, deeply insulted by her playmate, who had pushed her "off'n de stoop," took her case before the justice of the peace. He inquired into the circumstances and said, turning to the injured one: "The plaintiff is allowed to ask the defendant a question, in regard to the assault."

"Wha's dat yo' say, sah?"

"Tsay that you may ask the defendant a question."

"Wh-what'll Ah ask her, sah?"

"Any question you like."

The child studied the floor a moment. Then, with the politest of smiles, she inquired, "Sah, am yo' mamma well?"

A NEW WAY TO LISTEN.

They evidently were spending their first night at the concert, and the young man was telling the young lady all about it. They talked loudly, for the young man was trying to make an impression on all within a ten-foot radius. He always anticipated the performers and finally held his hand to his mouth as he said in an undertone—

"Deary, did you ever try to listen to music with your eyes shut? its heavenly."

Thereupon a man two rows behind leaned forward and said—

"Young man, try it with your mouth shut. It'll be a relief."

WELL?

"You must not rock the baby at all says the grave physician."

"But I think an old-fashioned cradle is so cunning, and, besides the gent, motion gets the baby to go to sleep without crying for an hour," says the young mother.

"Yes, but that rocking motion is very injurious upon the child's brain. The constant swaying really damages its mind."

"Doctor?"

"Yes, madam."

"When you were a little baby they still used cradles, didn't they?"

"Certainly. That was before science had determined so many of the—"

TWO MEN OF ABILITY

A man left his umbrella in the stand in a hotel recently, with a card bearing the following inscription attached to it: "This umbrella belongs to a man who can deal a blow of two hundred and fifty pounds' weight. I shall be back in ten minutes."

On returning to seek his property he found in its place a card thus inscribed: "This card was left here by a man who can run twelve miles an I shall not be back."

"My! Miss Ma'r," said the old derby to the young lady of the house the morning after her coming-out ball "you sho' did look sweet las' night. My! I hardly knowed you. Dey wasn't a thing about you dat, looked natchel."

"It's an awful night. You can't go home in this weather. Stay, and have supper with us."

"Oh, it isn't as hopeless as that, thank you!"

The Man in the Cab

His Responsibility Can Neither be Shared, Nor Shifted.

When you saw him last he was sitting quietly in his seat back of the big boiler watching the crowd hurry down the platform to business and friends—a strong, unromantic figure in oily overalls. Probably you did not give him a second glance, but a few moments since he had held your life and hundreds of other lives literally in his hands.

Engine driving makes automobile driving mere play. If you are able to buy or borrow enough money to buy an automobile you may have the joy of facing death wherever you may choose and the policeman is not watching, but you are mercifully prevented from letting many others share your fate. The engineer has so such limitations. He is at the mercy of mankind, nature and his time card, but a trainload of people is the stake for which he plays. Of himself he cannot think. Face to face with the inevitableness of the next moment, if disaster comes through another's carelessness he must be the first to suffer. If he himself errs there is no one to share the blame. He is the incarnation of responsibility that can neither be shared nor shifted.

You will find the man in the cab throughout our world. He stands face to face with responsibility, sometimes gaining honor or wealth, but always at the cost of being master of the lives of others. It is a lone-some job, this being the man in the cab. Lonesomeness is part of the cost of power. The higher you climb the less you can hope for companionship. The heavier and the more immediate the responsibility the less can a man delegate his tasks or escape the tragedies of his own mistakes. The private soldier can always share in victories, but the commanding officer alone bears the weight of defeat.

The average man seldom thinks of the load which power brings. The captain of industry, on whose foresight and energy, on even the incidents of whose life, the prosperity and livelihood of thousands of families depend; the political leader who must bear the brunt of defeat which others have caused; the employer who can share his success with many but who must face bankruptcy alone—these are no more children of good fortune. Like the man in the cab, they stand face to face with responsibility, burdened with the fate of many, but expecting help from none.

The next time you look up from your novel to complain that your train is late, remember the man in the cab. Trains do not run themselves. It is a human life that rules the steam that hurls you safely through space. And the next time you envy the man of power and position think of the loneliness of his responsibility, the friendliness of his success and the risk he faces while you and those like you are at ease.

If leadership seems easy, just try being a leader!—World Today.

What Alfalfa Would Mean to Nova Scotia

If it were possible to grow alfalfa fairly extensively on all of our Nova Scotia farms, the increased wealth that would be derived from our soils would amount to at least twenty-five per cent, more than at present, and should be estimated at several millions of dollars. Judging by the correspondence we have received at Truro, there have been a great many attempts made to grow alfalfa throughout the Maritime Provinces, but so far we have had many more failures than successes reported. As you have already brought out in your paper several conditions are required in order to get a successful stand of alfalfa. The most important of these is the character of the drainage. It takes very little exposure to wet conditions in the spring, to destroy alfalfa.

Another very important feature, as you have also indicated, is the presence of the necessary bacteria. These are not likely to be present the first time the land is seeded with alfalfa, and even if the newly seeded land is inoculated, either artificial culture, such as is sent out from a field where alfalfa has already grown well, to the new one, there is good reason to believe that the germs will not become acclimatized and so virulent as when they have been in the soil for some years. This feature helps to explain the fact that almost every farmer in Canada, who is now successfully growing alfalfa, has had to report initial failures. These men have found out that the second or third seeding of alfalfa, no matter whether the first seeding was inoculated or not, has proved much more successful than the first seeding.

Judging by what I have observed in the Maritime Provinces, I am convinced that the majority of those who will experiment with alfalfa for the first time, will only get, at best, indifferent results, and in many cases will have to record a failure. I cannot too strongly urge these people, for the reasons above given, to continue their experimenting with this valuable crop.

Since there is a great likelihood of partial or complete failure the first year or two, it will be unwise for any farmer to experiment with more than a small plot. Where convenient, I would recommend trying two or three small plots on different parts of the farm, selecting preferably those places where red clover has grown best in previous years.

Why Queen Mary Chose Carnation as Coronation Flower.

The pink carnation is the official coronation flower, so Queen Mary has decreed. Immediately this decree was heard pink began to flood London shops, until the whole world of clothes began to take on a tinge of rose.

Some lady of the court, knowing the queen to be quite fond of violets, asked her how she came to select the carnation.

"Because it is within the reach of the common people," was the reply. "I want every loyal subject to wear the coronation flower as often as he can. Another reason for my choice is the gayety of the bright little flower. We have been in mourning so long that we must go to the other extreme in order to dispel the shadow of our bereavement."

Having in remembrance the avidity with which Dame Fashion adopted the black and white of the English court during the past winter and the prevalence of these colors in clothes, it is safe to say pink will be the rage, and we may look for coronation visitors to return with their trunks a medley of this refreshing color.

Added to the present popular fancy for Helen pink, there seems to be no limit to the pink season. The vivid shade named in compliment to Miss Helen Taft, daughter of the President, is seen on a majority of the smart millinery and dress creations. With two first ladies of two powerful countries declaring their preference for the shade of happiness buyers feel perfectly safe in crowding their shops with pink, and as the color is almost universally becoming, it is apt to have a long vogue.—Washington Star.

Three Star Concerts at Mount Allison

Sackville, N. B., May 5th—The closing exercises in connection with Mount Allison this month promise to be of unusual interest. In addition to the usual exercises of the University, the Ladies' College and Academy there will be three splendid concerts, which will no doubt equal if not surpass any similar entertainments ever held in Sackville. The Bostonia Sextette, well known as one of the leading musical organizations of Boston and David Blapham, one of the world's greatest basses, will give three concerts beginning with Thursday evening, May 25th. The entertainments will take place in the Charles Fawcett Memorial Hall, one of the best auditoriums in the Maritime Provinces. That these concerts will be high class, that they will be artistic and delightful, may be taken for granted, and it is expected that the attendance at these concerts and at the exercises incident to the close of the college year, will be exceptionally large. A season ticket admitting to the three concerts will be sold at a low price, thus affording every lover of good music an opportunity to hear music of an exceptionally high class.

THE YOUNG STRANGER.

The people did not intend to be cold and distant toward the young stranger. But they were. He came to church several times firmly resolved, that he would make himself at home. Then he concluded it was no use, and came not again. He is now an active member of a sister church a few blocks away. A dozen people shook his hand the first time he strayed onto that church, and something in their warm grip said: "Glad to see you young fellow; don't know just who you are but come again, come again." He went again. And the next time the pastor and two or three dignified "elders" and a lot of young folks and the big rich man who sits down near the front, had swarmed about him, and found out all about him, who he was where he had come from, and what he was going to do, and assured him that they had a place in their church that he would exactly fit. This was the kind of a church our young man was longing for, and he "joined," of course. That is a piece of the story. It occurred not a thousand—not a hundred miles away. The people in the first church mentioned were kind-hearted people. They would have been pleased had the young man concluded to cast in his lot with them. But how did he know that?—Selected.

ELECTRIC BEANS

Electric Beans Are a Natural Remedy for Nerve, Stomach and Liver Disorders.

Once upon a time disease was thought to be due to direct influence of evil spirit and magic was invoked to cast it out.

Science has taught us wisdom. The evil spirits still exist we call them "Disease Germs," and they must also be cast out. Once lodged in the stomach or intestines biliousness with its aches and pains, or in fact seventy-five per cent of the ills that affect the human race, is the result.

Electric Beans are the approved remedy for driving out disease germs. Their action is quick and thorough, they clear the intestines, rouse the torpid liver to new life, stimulate mucous membranes to healthy action and cleanse and invigorate the whole digestive tract. Be prepared for emergencies by always keeping a box in the home.

See our booklet of remarkable, true testimonials. Test this remedy at our risk, if it is not satisfactory we will cheerfully refund the money paid for it.

M. K. PIPER

PROPRIETOR AND PUBLISHER

WEDNESDAY, MAY 17, 1911.

A traveller through Canada, whom business requires him to cover all parts of the Dominion, visited the Monitor sanctum recently. He had never before visited the Maritime Provinces and was delighted at what he found here. Though admitting the marvellous possibilities of the West he emphatically stated it as his opinion that the East had the advantage over the West.

"While the people of the West," he said, "will start on a bare spot of ground to build up a town, with an up-hill pull all the way, you have hundreds of towns here all fitted out with the comforts and luxuries of civilization which might any of them be the nucleus of a great city, had your citizens the push and enterprise of the men of the West.
Your national resources are wonderful," he continued, "but apparently you don't realize them, or at least don't value them as you ought.
Otherwise so many of your best citizens would not be travelling westward."

A. H. Brittain, business manager of the big Maritime Fish Company is quoted as saying in St. John, "The Maritime Provinces ought to get together and follow the example of the West in the boosting line."

"The people down here are altogether too modest about their resources and what they are doing in the way of developing them.
They want the western spirit. Out west all the people pull together, shout incessantly about what they are doing and boast loudly of their possessions. If the people in the Maritime Provinces did the same thing, the west would have to open its eyes in astonishment. Down here you have something to brag about, the best part of Canada if you only knew it. You have all kinds of natural resources possibilities of all sorts. And the people of these Provinces are doing big things only they don't say anything about them. Progress, development, prosperity are in evidence everywhere.
But you want to advertise what you are worth."

A LONG DAY'S WORK.

Eighteen hours of work out of twenty-four should be the limit for any man, in any class of work, not only on account of muscular exertion and falling strength but also because of falling brain power, the man losing his capacity to appreciate his surroundings and to direct his operations. Such is the substance of the opinion given by Dr. Francois de Martigny, chief surgeon of the Hotel Dieu, who in the case of Dame L. Laverdure against the Canadian Northern claiming $8,000 for the death of her husband.

Brouillette was killed in a fall at about ten in the morning, after having been at work since seven o'clock of the previous morning, having suspended work only for meal hours, and having worked through day and night. The contention of the plaintiff was that the company had no right to allow men to work during such long hours.

Dr. de Martigny was called by the plaintiff's counsel to state what was the limit of a man's endurance, and placed the limit at eighteen hours of continual muscle or brain work, reasonable time being allowed for meals.

Have you ever considered, that if in the course of events your family should be deprived of your earning power by death, all the thousand and one bills that you are NOW worried about paying, MUST STILL BE PAID! Are you willing that your widow or your old parents should be obliged to have the same worry and be obliged to get the same amount of money to pay the bills, even at the sacrifice of the home? We have eliminated all need for worry by a SPECIAL POLICY CONTRACT in in which we guarantee sufficient income to pay the same bills during their lives at a cost within your present earning. Inquire and see if it is not worth consideration.

Newfoundland Would Share Reciprocity

Sir Edward Morris Seeks Agreement With United States.

New York, May 9.—That Newfoundland hopes to be admitted to a full share in the reciprocity agreement between Canada and the United States, is the announcement of Sir Edward Morris, the Newfoundland premier, who is in New York on his way to the Coronation.

"I have followed the tariff situation, as it is now developing between the United States and Canada, with keen interest," said the Premier, and I hope that if any reciprocity arrangement is finally agreed upon between the two countries Newfoundland will be treated as is Canada and placed on the same footing. The colony I represent is now importing very largely from the United States and in return the United States is taking many of the products of my country. We are rapidly developing new industries, many of which would be beneficial to the United States under a tariff agreement of the reciprocity order. The great mineral wealth of Newfoundland is only just beginning to gain recognition. We want to develop a trade in fresh fish by cold storage. The supply of halibut, herring, salmon, lobster and other fish is practically unlimited. I believe a big business could be developed in this way."

CHILD PLAYS WITH MATCHES; LOSES LIFE.

Woodstock, N. B., May 11.—Louisa, the two year-old child of Thomas Hourihan, of Newburg, was playing with matches in her bedroom last night, when her clothing caught fire. Dr. Prescott, of Woodstock, was called, but the child died with a few minutes after his arrival.

Dr. J. B. Hall Retires from Normal College Staff

(Truro News)

With very great regret every acquaintance in Truro has heard of the removal from our town of Dr. J. B. Hall, Professor of Psychology and Civics on the Faculty of the Provincial Normal College, after a connection with that institution and after a residence here of some thirty-two years.
Dr. Hall as an educationist has no superior in his chosen Departments, and during his long term of work in connection with the Normal College, he has kept up to date in every way. Periodically, extended travel and studies abroad widened his sphere of action and kept him in touch with modern ideas and with modern methods of instruction. He will be greatly missed in and around this Provincial Institution of which he has been a great part for over a score and a half years.

As a citizen of Truro he took an advanced position in our midst. He has been a great assistant in everything that pertained to this town's welfare and in many good offices he has been the recognized leader. He has been a consistent and faithful member of the Quarterly Board of the Methodist church—ever ready to assist liberally in all schemes of his church. The Y.M.C.A. has ever had his helping hand, and his Sunday afternoon Bible Class for men has long been one of the right hand supports of that Association.
In hospital matters he was in the van urging for many years the erection of a County General Hospital especially in view of so many College students, that for two thirds of the year have their residences in Truro, and in case of illness no Hospital to which they could be removed.

Dr. Hall was the father of our late formed Canadian Club, its first President and through his untiring efforts we have this institution, to which we point with pride today.
For some time he has been Treasurer of the Truro Branch of the Bible Society and since its organization has ever been one of its most helpful members.

In fact everything that was for the good of this town had Dr. Hall's support, and in every way he carried out the idea of the down right good citizenship which he had so often to speak of to his pupils in Civics in his lectures in the Normal Colleges.

He has been very hurriedly summoned away, on account of his acceptance of a nomination as one of the candidates to contest his native County of Annapolis at the coming Provincial elections, and Truro people have not had a chance to testify to him in any public way how much they have appreciated his citizenship while here with us. That will come later, and we will feel just as happy in honoring our good friend, Dr. Hall, whether or not he comes back with or without the "M.P.P." suffix to his name. One thing we do know that if elected to represent the constituency of Annapolis in the House of Assembly, we will never hear even the suspicion of any wrong doing or graft or political robbery, associated with his name. Men of this class whether Grit or Tory, are the kind we want in public life in Nova Scotia.

NORMAL COLLEGE STUDENTS' ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION

The College students had but little notice of the resignation of Dr. Hall, but as soon as it was known they got together and presented him with a tangible appreciation of his good services to them and his interest in their work with the following kindly worded address:—

To our Beloved Prof. Dr. J. B. Hall: The students of the Provincial Normal College have learned with deep regret the news of your departure from among us in the near future for we know we are losing a kind and sympathetic friend.

Because of your frank, engaging and buoyant nature, coupled with your exceptional power of initiative and accurate knowledge of your subjects, your place in our Institution will be difficult to fill.

While we deeply regret to have you leave us still we know you are entering a sphere for which you are eminently fitted and we sincerely hope you may be successful in the forthcoming election and that you may be spared for many years to enjoy your new position and exert your influence in raising Nova Scotia and her citizens to their proper place in this Dominion.

We take this opportunity of expressing in a small degree our appreciation of you and of the assistance you have given us, in solving the difficult problems of our profession, by presenting you with this walking cane and silver ring.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Public school examinations are being held this week.

Sylvester Bent's mill was burned at Young's Cove on Tuesday last.

Salmon are reported to be running in the river near Lawrencetown quite freely.

The property of the late Captain Peter Nicholson on Water street has been purchased by Mr. Karl Freeman.

Service will be held in the Presbyterian church on Sunday (21st) at 11 a.m. the pastor to preach. There will be no evening service.

The Monitor sanctum has been brightened by a beautiful bunch of May-flowers, the finest and probably the last of the season, presented by Miss Althea Greeno.

Mr. Percy R. Saunders and family are moving this week to Middleton. For the present Mr. Saunders will be at his Bridgetown business stand on Friday and Saturday of each week.

A number of our local carpenters are engaged on the new buildings in Middleton for the summer, among them W. A. Marshall and Chas. A. Ruffe, the latter of whom is working on the Morrison Block.

Local painters are already busy at their season's work. A conspicuous example of the work of Mr. A. R. Bishop and his men is the Grand Central Hotel, which is resplendent in its new coat of paint. The interior also has been re-decorated.

A narrow escape from death either by fire or water was that of Oswald Balcom, of Paradise, who, to save himself from burning to death, his clothes having ignited from a brush fire, jumped into the river and nearly met death by drowning.

The store of Karl Freeman was burglarized on Friday night and three revolvers and a knife were taken. The burglar entered through a window on the south side of the building and it is supposed was frightened away before he secured any more plunder.

"Has Bridgetown a watering cart?" asked a citizen the other day blindly groping his way through the dust whirling in clouds along the street. "If so, what excuse is there for citizens having to chew dust and microbes like this?" The Monitor reporter could not inform him.

Today is the 20th anniversary of the battle of Bloody Creek which took place May 17th, 1911, near the present site of Bridgetown the locality being at present E. E. Rice's farm. It was the intention of the Historical Society to mark the occasion by the erection of a metallic slab suitably inscribed, but owing to an error in the lettering it was not ready in time.

Judge Pelton tried the Pierces and Morine and Layte, at Annapolis Royal on Wednesday last for robberies at Lawrencetown and elsewhere. John Irvin, K.C., conducted the prosecution, Owen and Owen were solicitors for the defence. The three men pleaded guilty. Pierce and Morine were sentenced to nine years, Layte to seven years. Mrs. Pierce, who was charged with receiving stolen goods and pleaded not guilty was sentenced to five years in Dorchester penitentiary.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Marshall, who lost their youngest son, Donald, aged three years, from diphtheria, on Thursday last. He was unwell for a few days but not seriously so, and any dangerous disease was unsuspected till Tuesday, when Dr. Armstrong was summoned and an examination of his throat revealed diphtheria. On Thursday the little fellow suddenly succumbed to heart failure. There are no other cases of diphtheria at present in the town.

Messrs. J. H. Hicks & Sons are looking forward to the busiest season this enterprising firm has yet experienced. They have contracted to build an apple warehouse 40 x 150 for the South Farmington Fruit Co. and another 40 x 100 for the Central Fruit Co., of Clarence. They will also at once begin work on twelve cottages at Torbrook Mines for the Canadian Iron Corporation for which they have secured the contract. This with their local work will keep a full working staff busily employed.

St. John Telegraph—C. J. Durling of Havana was in the city yesterday, en route to Annapolis, N. S., and was registered at the Victoria Hotel. For some months he has been connected with the Royal Bank of Canada in Cuba, but was forced to come north to recuperate after an attack of appendicitis. Two St. John men, Colin Masters and Harold Mac Kendrick, are connected with the same bank in Havana, and N. R. Burrows, formerly manager of the Union Bank of Halifax here, is the agent. Mr. Durling says that when he left they were all enjoying excellent health. Speaking of conditions in Cuba, he said that business was slack everywhere on the island, owing to the partial failure of the sugar crop.

PERSONAL

Mrs. Charles Marsh is improving her cosy home by the addition of a wing and a verandah.

Mrs. Anderson, of Boston, is visiting her mother and sister, Mrs. Muir and Mrs. Daniels.

Mrs. B. E. Farnsworth, of Granville Ferry, was in town last week looking after her property here.

Mr. A. Boyd Crowe, who has been taking a dental course at Dalhousie, has gone to Regina for the summer.

Messrs. Davison and Basnaby, of Bridgetown, who are enjoying an automobile trip, have been spending a few days in town.

Mr. William Miller, a former resident of Bridgetown, who resides with his son, Mr. Reginald Miller, of Annapolis Royal, is reported seriously ill.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Suckling and child, lately of Granville Ferry have gone to Falmouth, Hants Co., where Mr. Suckling has accepted a parish.

Mrs. Wm. C. Bauld and son, Mr. William Bauld, of Halifax have been guests for a few weeks at the St. James. Mr. Bauld is recovering from a serious illness.

Mr. J. F. Bent's family have moved to Middleton and are occupying the house which Mr. Bent recently purchased. Major J. L. Phinney has moved to Wilmot Station.—Outlook.

Mr. J. G. B. Randolph has returned to Chelsea, Mass., for a few weeks to attend to business matters, after which he intends to spend the remainder of the summer in Bridgetown.

Mr. T. H. Reid, lately in mercantile business at Annapolis Royal, and formerly at Lawrencetown, has accepted a position as traveller for a mercantile house and will reside in Halifax.

Mrs. John Lockett and Miss Helen Vidito left on Saturday to visit friends in Massachusetts and Vermont. They were accompanied by Mrs. Charles Piggoit, who will visit her daughter, Mrs. Charles Bent, of West Somerville.

Dr. M. E. Armstrong leaves today for Boston, accompanying Mr. Bower, of Westport, an Ex. M.P. of Digby county, who goes to that city for special treatment for some injury received from an accident last winter. The doctor will return in a week.

Miss Adelaide Kinney, of California is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hicks. Miss Kinney is on her way to Europe, in company with Mrs. James Jordan, who is now at Riverview Glade to be present at the opening of the sanatorium. They will sail from New York and will spend several months in an automobile tour of the continent.

NOTICE.—Wednesday next being a public holiday the Monitor-Sentinel will go to press Tuesday night. In view of this, advertisers are requested to hand in their changes of copy on Saturday of this week.

LOCAL HOUSE DISSOLVED.
Official Date of Elections Announced.

The date of the Provincial Elections has been officially announced by Premier Murray. The writs were issued this afternoon for the election to be held on Wednesday, June 14th. Nomination Day will be June 7th. A special edition of the Royal Gazette was issued this afternoon announcing the above fact.

MANAGER OF THE COMPANY OWNING EVAPORATOR AT BRIDGETOWN.

Mr. R. J. Graham has purchased the local interests in the apple evaporators at Middleton and Kingston. His company now holds the exclusive ownership in these factories.—Outlook.

Digby is enjoying the visit of the cruiser "Niobe," and has been having a round of festivities since its arrival in the harbor. A naval parade and public entertainment by the ships orchestra and crew, and ball games between the boys from the ship and town boys have been features of the festivities.

St. James' Church

The Bishop of Nova Scotia is proposing a visit to Bridgetown toward the end of August to hold a Confirmation in St. James' church. With this in view the Rector of St. James, last Sunday evening, commenced a series of addresses on Confirmation and cognate subjects, and these will continue until the Bishop comes. In addition a class will be held in the church on all Sunday mornings, except the first in the month, at ten o'clock for detailed instruction and to this class the Rector cordially invites any who desire to attend, whether as candidates for Confirmation or otherwise.

What may prove a very interesting item in connection with these addresses and classes was the announcement that a question box would be placed in the church and that any questions placed in this or sent to the Rectory by Wednesday will be answered, as far as possible, the following Sunday evening. No name need be put to the questions. It is hoped this method of obtaining information or further elucidation of subjects dealt with, may be well used.—COM.

CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATES.

The Conservatives of Hants county met in convention last Wednesday and nominated Albert Parsons and P. M. Fielding as candidates at the approaching provincial elections.

The Conservatives of Digby County have nominated Harry H. Marshall, of Digby and Frank P. Deveau, of Salmon River as their candidates at the coming local election.

PREMIER LAURIER OFF TO ATTEND CORONATION.

Quebec, May 12.—With the strains of "O Canada" ringing in his ears, Sir Wilfrid sailed yesterday afternoon for England on board the Allan liner Virginia, where he will attend the Imperial Conference and Coronation ceremonies. A great crowd of people assembled on the dock to bid the Dominion premier farewell.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS JUNE 14

Halifax, N. S., May 15.—The local legislature has been dissolved and the date of the general elections is fixed for June 14; nominations one week earlier. The legislature just dissolved was elected on June 20, 1906.

PROGENITORS OF BRIGHAM YOUNG.

At a late meeting of the New Brunswick Loyalists' Society held in St. John, the historian, D. R. Jack, read a brief paper in continuation of that submitted at the previous meeting, in which he had questioned the correctness of certain assertions that the late Brigham Young was the descendant of a New Brunswick Loyalist. He pointed out that his attention had been invited by Judge Savary, of Annapolis Royal, to a section of the history of Annapolis county, compiled by the late W. A. Calnek and himself, where, on page 639 of that work, it was distinctly claimed that Samuel Young a pre-Loyalist, who had settled in Nova Scotia in the year 1760-1, was really the progenitor of Brigham Young. Judge Savary had informed him in a personal letter that Calnek obtained the statement that the great Mormon was a grandson of Ichabod Young, from a member of the Young family in Annapolis county. Ichabod Young had been a settler as a pre-Loyalist at Annapolis county, but had returned to the United States.—Spectator.

IT REACHES THE PEOPLE

The Great Need of Small Rachel

LILIAN CONE in the "Sunday Republican."

Poised like a Winged Victory on the stone-wall, Rachel gazed over her shoulder with a shake of the head that threatened to dislodge its insecure coilure. Her candid blue eyes and upturned corners of mouth indicated hopeful spirit, but the shake held the essence of pessimism. "It's awful!" she asserted with conviction. "Awful!"

A disinterested observer would hardly have thus designated the neatly piled broken crockery in the corner of the poultry yards, but to the little girl, who knew how brief had been the time of its accumulation, its proportions were truly formidable. With the generous fragments of the biggest yellow mixing bowl the suspended sentence had fallen. Tomorrow, Rachel, humbly labelled unsatisfactory, was to be returned to the country almshouse.

"I wouldn't mind so terribly much" she now informed her Watrous doughtily, "if it wasn't so bare and scrubby all around the poorhouse. Anyhow, somebody speaks to me once in a while there. Once Mrs. Slocum said 'Rachel, dear,' just as nice as that! I didn't mind old Mr. Jasey calling me 'Timothy Redtop, he didn't say my hair was an 'untidy mess.'"

A cautiously investigating hand encountered numberless projecting tendrils. "I guess it is, just the same" she added conscientiously. Landing, with a flutter of scant gingham skirt, in the lane that divided Craig farm from Wicow Brentford's summer home Rachel's guess became a certainty, the 'untidy mess' lightly discarding restraint covered her shoulders with a tangled glow.

"Now will you look at that?" the disgusted request was directed at a belated robin teetering upon a crimson maple. "Just goes to show Mrs. Craig is right, don't it? I guess most 'leven-year-old girls could keep their hair neat and tidy, and not...let every other fish slip kersnash, through their fingers. I guess I will have to stay at the poorhouse one while, and," said Rachel in righteous self-accusation, "it serves me just right. Oh, my!" smiles came home sunnily as she pounced upon some fringed gentians blooming royally among withered mullein stalks. "You darling things," she murmured tenderly, smoothing the silken cups. "You are just the color of Blessed's eyes. I believe you knew this was my last day and blossomed so I could take you to mother."

The lane wound through a fringe of woodland, gay in October's fleeting glory. Rachel scented where fallen leaves were deeper, her ear alert to their cheerful crackle, but her self-communion again condemnatory. "Seem's if I could do better," she gave the flowers a gently admonishing shake. "There ain't one bit of sense in such mortal carelessness." Rachel was faithfully duplicating Mrs. Craig's austere voice and her little patched shoes struck the rustling leaves aggressively. "Nobody on earth is going to put up with such a heedless, useless girl. Nobody, Rachel. You are worse than you were when you came. You grow worse and worse, Rachel."

Her sweeping condemnation suddenly changed to passionate self-pity. "But I don't mean to," she cried. "I had planned to be just as careful as never was today and not forget the teeniest weeniest jiffy, but the kitchen is so warm and still after dinner and there were such heaps of dishes, Hensel!" The sweep of her arm would indicate a hopelessly obstructed landscape. "Seem's if I never would get them all done. Then I get to thinking of the birds and flowers, and mother and Blessed, and wishing somebody would speak and—and everything." She swallowed hard, winked violently, then looked hastily about for diversion.

She found it on a high chestnut limb where over his half-eaten nut a chipmunk eyed her with disfavor.

"Ho, ho!" called the little girl, with a pointed finger of derision. "Let you on guard have they? Look tibble big and scary, don't you? Nobody'll dare steal nuts when you are 'round. Oh, my, but you are tibble! I ain't going to touch your old nuts. Marter Piggy, but you just watch out while I get those red-speckled leaves!"

She slipped the gentians carefully into her loose sleeve, then with a spring caught the overhanging branch. The squirrel fled in chattering protest.

Presently, bearing the bright-hued twigs, Rachel emerged upon a glade, lying cuplike among trees that appeared to be clasping hands for a merry dance about a giant oak whose far-spreading branches of scarlet and gold sheltered a number of gray lichen-bowlders. The sunlit spaces were literally bedecked with golden rod, blue asters and the feathery gray-white everlasting. The warm air was pungent with the breath of the sweet fern.

Rachel's smile was still bright, but her air of proud possession shadowed by prospective loss. "I don't expect there is another such place in the whole world," she murmured. "I'm glad I found it, and brought Mother and Blessed here. We've had some lovely times. I wonder if they are watching for me? She regarded the big oak a moment, then suddenly dimpled. "I'll spruce 'em," she whispered. "They think I ain't coming today, so they ain't watching. I'll get the flowers and creep in just careful. How they'll laugh!"

She laid her autumn leaves beside the path and gathering up her skirt, exposing a short red petticoat, went tiptoeing hither and thither cutting the choicest from the profusion of bloom, with now and then a swift, sly glance to where the oak reigned apparently in solitude. Soon, with her skirt piled chin high, she came back and, with some lifelily, topped the whole with the oak leaves. Just where the great oak's shadow spat out the mid-afternoon sunshine, two short ridges of turf, lying side by side, bore resemblance to long-made graves; the likeness was intensified by a careful arrangement of slightly-wilted wild flowers that covered the mossy sod. Between these two mounds Rachel tiptoed with tight-closed lips and dancing eyes of mischief.

"Boo!" she cried, and letting her load fall, threw herself beside it and bestowed laughing caresses upon the flower-decked earth.

"Never heard me, did you?" She sat back upon her heels pushing aside the unruly hair. "Spruce as you can be! she cried, gleeful at the success of her maneuver. "What! Got to take you up this minute? Oh, you old rogue! See those pinky toes popping out, mother. Yes, yes, sister! take her up, Bless her darling heart."

Rachel had rapidly removed the faded flowers and now stooped as though gathering something into her arms. "Look at her, mother!" in accents of joyous pride. "Isn't she just the darlinest baby? See those little yellow curls, and those blessed eyes! Shifting cautiously Rachel explored her sleeve. The gentians were brought forth, a bit droopy, but their royal hue undimmed. "See those?" she demanded. "Ain't they pretty? Just the color of Blessed's eyes? I knew you'd say that. Now I am going to put them right here, so you can look at them when she's asleep. Now, honey, you sit up on sister's knees and we'll fix the mammy up all spick and span."

She fell to work industriously arranging her fresh flowers, talking eagerly in the meantime. "What makes you look at me that way?" she inquired, as though in some confusion. "Think I have something to tell you? Well, mother you have the sharpest eyes! Take care, dumpling, you'll tumble over backwards. Yes, mother, I have, I was going to tell you pretty soon, but maybe it's best to get it over quick. Yes, she nodded gravely, "I've got to go back. Yep, another dish. Tibble, ain't it?"

Can't blame Mrs. Craig, can we? Me discouraged? I don't see what makes you ask that. Course I am sorry about Mrs. Craig's dishes. Maybe sometime I can pay her for them. Oh, no, I will just have to wait a little longer. Yes, I s'pose it does seem hard to go back and start all over again, but one oughtn't to expect to find the right one for them. And they? Don't you fret, mother, I'll find somebody all right."

"There," she surveyed her work critically, "you look pretty fine, don't you, Blessed? Well, will you look at her, mother, here's this child a-nodding already! Wants sister to sing her by-by, does she?" Rachel winked indulgently. "Well, so she will, sweetness." With folded arms, she got to her feet and began swaying, like a young sapling in a gentle breeze, singing a soft lullaby. "By-low, by-low," sang Rachel, with her empty arms folded over her hungry heart. "By-low, by-low, my baby, oh, sh-sh!" she held up a warning finger. "I'll put her in the crib. With infinite care, she again got to her knees. "Sleep darling," she whispered. "Sleep nice and sound, and not disturb mother till—till—"

After all, was the brave show to end in disaster? Rachel's face went down upon her folded arms in an eclipse of bright hair. "Oh, dear," she gasped weakly. "Oh, dear, dear, I can't, I just can't any more."

"Would you mind if I helped you fix baby's crib?"

The bowed head came up with a jerk, and Rachel swept her sleeve across her eyes, then stared in amazement at the voice, as it were, detached itself from the gray-mossed rock where it had blended so inconspicuously. She was at no loss to identify this slender shape in softly clinging, ash-hued garments piled up hair touched with silver, grave, gentle face, and tender, sorrowful eyes. It was Mrs. Brentford from across the lane. Apparently she took permission as granted, for she came forward and knelt at the child's side.

"You see," she explained, "mine had blue eyes, and dear little yellow curls, and don't you think, Rachel, they may have looked almost the same?"

"Is yours—?" Rachel could not speak the word, but her nod was eloquent.

"For twenty years," Mrs. Brentford said, "I have just held her with empty arms."

Twenty years! Rachel stared in sick dismay into a blank, dreary silence. Twenty years, and it had not taken her twenty weeks to learn that the most gorgeous feasts of imagination could leave the heart starved.

"Oh," she cried, "Couldn't you find anybody?"

"Find anybody?"

The child's heart sank at the surprised interrogation. "Mother, when she knew she could not stay with me, said that I would not need to be alone for very long," said Rachel. "She said there were lots of people in the world who just needed to love somebody and to have somebody love them. She said I'd find some one like that if I was always watching and being helpful and cheerful, and—like that."

"But you haven't?"

"No," confessed Rachel, "not yet. But you see, I did not expect to stay at the poor-house very long. Mother thought I would not need to. So while I tried to do as she wanted me to, I did not really look very hard there. I did hope Mrs. Craig might be the one, though she did not look just the way I liked best, but with an air to be absolutely fair, I did not give her any chance to like me, for I broke a dish the very first day. And," sighed the little girl, "I never gave her time to get over it."

"And now?"

"Now," Rachel watching the blue design growing under the long, supple fingers, answered slowly: "Oh, I am going back tomorrow and try again. But if you have been twenty years without finding any one, it don't seem as if I had as much chance as I thought. You see, you can look everywhere, but I just have to wait for somebody to come along."

"Rachel," Mrs. Brentford said, gravely, "I shall have to tell you how it has been with me. Your mother was right, dear, the world is full of people who need to love and be loved, and we may find them if we will; but you see, dear, when my own were taken from me, I thought I did not want any one else. I said I would have none but my own, so all these long years I have shut my heart when it was starting for love."

Rev. Dr. Jost preached here on Sunday last.

SORE SHOULDERS.

Sore shoulders on horses are the result of carelessness, neglect or indifference, and there is no excuse them on any score. Every spring brings the usual crop of sore shoulders on horses that were turned out for the winter or allowed get so mushy from lack of work that they are not in condition to stand the spring grind. Take a man out of an office after a winter of ease and stick him between the handles of a walking plow and the chances are that he would be pretty sore for a while. While a horse will not soften so quickly as a man, he will invariably go back if not exercised. The average man will not wear an irritating collar although he does not have to pull a load with it. Yet he will ask his faithful horse to tug on a misfit without the slightest compunction. The constant pressure of a collar on the muscles of a horse's shoulders when the horse is working has a tendency to burden and lessen the bulk of the muscles. While a collar may fit an animal all right at the commencement of the season, it will in time become too large and if a sweat pad is added, the rolling motion of the collar will soon cause sore shoulders. The collar should have a fair amount of spring, and a smooth surface and should conform to the horse's shoulders. Both collar and sweat pads should be kept clean. It is advisable to remove the collar during the noon spell and wash the shoulders with cold salt water, wiping them dry afterwards. This should also be done at night. Lifting the horse's collar forward while the animal is resting in the field and giving the shoulders a rub down to remove any granulations of dirt that may have accumulated will also afford relief. The mane should be looked to and the hames should be adjusted so that the line of draft is changed a little every day. If the slightest soreness is apparent on the lower part of the shoulder, the hames should be raised so that the sore portion may be relieved of draft. A short collar is an abomination. The collar should be loose enough to permit of the hand being passed between it and the throat and allow the fingers to be thrust all the way around the sides of the neck. It should fit snugly without being too loose. Washing the shoulders with an astringent such as tannic acid toughens the skin, and lessens the action of the sweat glands. Bathing with cold salt water is very beneficial. When the horse's neck becomes sore seek the cause, correct it and aid nature in effecting recovery. Various remedies for sore shoulders are used, such as zinc oxide and white lotion. The dusting of zinc slacked lime or sulphur in the sore after the application of the lotion brings good results.

Port Wade

Planting is in order down here; the fields are beautiful—the streets are dry. We have a large chestnut tree which is nearly in full leaf and one of our neighbors, Mrs. Edw. Johns, is the first to have rhubarb pie and sauce. (Sunday 14th) Can you beat this up the valley?

Hay has not been so plentiful in this vicinity for years, some to summer over in nearly every barn.

J. F. Morrison expects to finish his lumber cut here in two weeks then he will move to the pier for the summer.

We are pleased to learn that our councillor, Mr. E.H. Porter, is convalescing, having been quite seriously ill for the past three months.

Mr. F.W. Thorne is quite ill. Mrs. Thorne we are pleased to report better, and able to attend to her household.

Mr. Hall, of Bridgetown and Mr. Morgan, of Smiths Cove, have been in the village this past week.

The warship "Niobe" is still lying in the Basin near the Gut. She will leave here on the 16th. Her stay here is the cause for many questions by the small boy. Our boys are too fond of their liberty to enlist. One boy decided to go, but on bringing the papers ashore to his father for signature, the latter declined.

Mrs. Hogg (Mrs. F. R. Parzer's mother) who has been ill for some weeks is not any better.

Schooner "Onward" Capt. Johnson sailed for Boston last week loaded with piling.

Fishing is fairly good now and lobsters are quite plentiful on the shore. Prices are not so high.

Hampton

Miss Flavilla Foster is visiting her sisters in Lynn.

Mrs. Ella Sabean is home from Massachusetts, where she spent several weeks.

Messrs. Templeman and Allen have their weir in. No salmon reported at time of writing.

Messrs. Snow and Sabean are getting their weir in at St. Croix Cove. Messrs. Chute and Chute have their weir in at Phinney Cove.

A bad fire broke out here on Monday last week and miles of fencing were destroyed before it was under control.

The last week has been an ideal one for work and quite a lot of farming has been done.

The site for the light-house has been selected by Capt. Johnson, lighthouse inspector. Mr. Beckwith declined to sell a spot on his bank, and another location had to be made.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT OF MOTHER'S DAY.

A very touching little episode occurred last May in a well-known prominent Toronto family. On the Tuesday morning after Mother's Day the postman brought a letter from a member of the family who had been a wanderer and rather a blacksheep for many years, addressed to the mother of the group. As that dear old person had been with the angels for some time, the letter was opened by a daughter, who read as follows:—"Dear old mother:—The nurse in the hospital where I am has been telling me about Mother's Sunday, and I have made up my mind to write to you. I am not long for this life, being far gone in illness, but if you are still alive I want you to know I am thinking of you on Mother's Day. I enclose the white flower nurse pinned on me this morning. Good-bye, dear old Mother."
