When Montreal Ceased to be the Political Capital of the Country

It will be exactly sixty years to-morrow April 25th, since riots, stirred up by the Rebellion Losses Bill, resulted in the destruction by fire of the Parliament Buildings of United Canada and Montreal when the commercial metropolis lost for all time its status as the political capital of the country. During the little more than half a century that has flown since the memorable but equally discreditable occurrence, the narrow union has expanded into a broad federation, and the shores of the Pacific and Arctic Ocean, as well as those of the Atlantic, have become parts of the boundaries of the Dominion of Canada. Nor has our expansion been wholly material. Some thing of a national spirit has been developed, a better understanding has been reached between the different races composing our population, a broader outlook is enjoyed both as regards affairs at home and abroad, and a more correct appreciation prevails respecting the future of the Empire and the rights and duties of its widely-scattered members. Although the party spirit still dominates our public life and is still carried to an extreme not always conducive to the best interests of the country, still in comparison with the spirit that prevailed sixty years ago, it is mild and reasonable.

WORRY WARFARE BETWEEN LEADERS

The country was surprised and no doubt pained at the worry warfare waged in the House of Commons the other day by two opposing leaders, but when compared with the conflicts that resounded through the chamber of the Assembly just prior to the riot of April 25th, 1849, that scene of wrangling was mild indeed. An evidence of this is found in the report of the debate on the second reading of the Rebellion Losses Bill, proposing to indemnify the sufferers in Lower Canada in much the same way that suffers in Upper Canada had been indemnified a couple of years before, a movement inaugurated by the Tory Government, of which Mr. Draper, afterwards Chief Justice of the Upper Province, was the head. The Lower Canada bill has been introduced by the Baldwin-Lafontaine government, and it was supported pretty generally by the whole Reform Party. Opposition to it was led by Sir Allan MacNab, and he and Solicitor-General Blake during that debate almost came to blows, and had to be taken in charge by the Sergeant-at-Arms.

MADE TAUNT OF DISLOYALTY

Sir Allan MacNab, in his speech on the second reading of the bill, had called many of the supporters of the bill, and particularly the French-Canadian members, "alien's and rebels." This roused Mr. Blake, and he hurled back the taunt of disloyalty in these spirited sentences:--

"I am not come here to learn lessons of loyalty from honorable gentlemen opposite. I have no sympathy with the would-be loyalty of honorable gentlemen opposite, which, while it at all times affects peculiar zeal for the prerogative of the Crown, is ever ready to sacrifice the liberty of the subject. This is not British loyalty; it is the spurious loyalty which at all periods of the world's history has lashed humanity into rebellion. The expression 'rebel' has been applied by the gallant knight opposite to some gentlemen on the other side that their public conduct has proved that they are the rebels to their constitution and country." For a man of MacNab's fighting temper, this was too much.

"If the honorable member means to apply the word 'rebel' to me," he shouted, "I must tell him that it is nothing else than a lie. In a moment the House was in an uproar; Blake and Mac-

Nab were only prevented from coming to blows by the intervention of the Sergeant-at-Arms, while a storm of shouts and hisses from the crowded galleries added to the confusion of the House. Blake and MacNab were taken into custody by the Sergeant-at-Arms, several of the wilder spirits of the galleries were arrested, and the debate ended for the day.

That was going very much further than Mr. Foster and Sir Wilfrid Laurier went the other day in the House of Commons.

MOB BURNED THE HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT

The bill was passed, Lord Elgin gave it royal assent, and the mob burned the Houses of Parliament and stoned the Governor-General. In acting as he did Lord Elgin applied for the first time in his entire life in Canada the principle of responsible Government. He may have disliked the Rebellion Losses Bill, and probably some features of it he heartily disapproved of, but it had been introduced by his Ministers and sanctioned by a majority of the representatives of the people in Parliament assembled. The Ministers were responsible for it, and as a constitutional Governor only one course was open to him--to assent to the bill and give operation to the will of Parliament. That the mob vented a portion of their rage upon him showed how imperfectly understood was the principle of responsible Government for which the people had clamored for so many years, and which had only recently been secured.

GAVE PUBLIC LIFE BAD NAME

The work of the mob that night sixty years ago gave Canadian public life a bad name which it took a long time to live down; it lost to Montreal the seat of Government which for the next sixteen years fitted between Toronto and Quebec until it found a permanent abiding-place at Ottawa; and it inflicted a loss that to a large extent was irreparable, for in the fire was consumed the Assembly Library of twenty thousand volumes and many records of great historic value. About the only thing saved was the life-size painting of the Queen, which was rescued from the flames by Sir Allan MacNab, "with characteristic loyalty." Today that picture adorns one wall of the House of Commons.

THE STATE OF THE OLD PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS

in Montreal is to-day a public square, except a small portion on which has recently been erected a fire-station.

VANCOUVER BECAME A CROWN COLONY

On the same day on which the Parliament Buildings of Upper and Lower Canada were destroyed, a new British colony was set up on the western shores of North America, and which to-day is that part of the Dominion looking out towards the Orient. On April 25th, 1849 the Island of Vancouver became a Crown Colony, ceasing to be administered by the Hudson Bay Company. The Island's first Governor was Richard Blanshard, succeeded a year later by the famous James Douglas. The year of the establishing of the colony is marked by another event of still greater importance in the development of the Pacific Coast. One day that spring there came on a visit to Fort Victoria, near where the capital of British Columbia now stands, an old Indian chief named Namaimo. He brought with him his gun, which needed mending, and while in the shop waiting for the repairs to be completed, he watched the men put on the fire fresh coal, which was then brought to the colony from England. Picking up a lump he examined it closely, and then said to the men: "There's plenty black stone like that in the country where I live."

The remark was not lost upon his hearers, who promised the Indian that if he would bring them some of the "black stone" they would mend his gun free of charge, and give him a bottle of rum besides. Namaimo promised to do so, but upon returning home he was taken ill, and it was not until the following spring that he was able to carry out his agreement, when he returned to Victoria with his canoe-load of "black stone." It was found to be coal. The men were guided back to the place where it had been gathered and there was discovered one of the richest coal deposits on the Pacific Coast. A fort was built there, and so began the present city of Nanaimo. Seven years later news of the discovery of gold on the mainland went abroad, and the first rush to British Columbia commenced.

The Call of Canada

(Harold Regbie, in London Chronicle) Believe me you cannot over-estimate the riches of Canada. Her forests, her mines, her fisheries, her fruit valleys, and her gigantic wheat fields teem with incalculable wealth. To realize the infinite promise of Canada, her dominions must be seen with the eyes. But, with my hand on my heart, I do verily and faithfully assure you that every honest and hard-working man in Great Britain, this vast territory, peopled with the population of London, offers friendship, comfort, civilization and prosperity. The days of rowing and canoeing to the saint-pot carrier--belong to the past. Here in this established country hard work alone stands between a man and fortune. He may miss this and that, he may find the winters (unless he go to British Columbia) a test of his mettle, and his wife, if he go to the prairie, may now and then long for closer neighbors, but he will not have to rough it, and fortune is his for the working.

The great-hearted pioneers look down from heaven, and behold the smoke of engines through the Rocky Mountains, the tide of electricity flowing from the loul waterfalls, the haze of many chimneys beside river and lake; they mark the sun-flamed spires and towers of prairie cities, they hear the ceaseless clamor of workshop and factory; they catch the song of children playing in the woods, they listen to the music of the ripening wheat fields, and they smile in to each other's eyes in the clear, sweet air of their paradise at the murmurs of the mournful immigrant. Lord, that man should speak of roughing it in a land still holy with the masculine dust of the great white pathfinders! Lord, that men should shiver and stare in the stams of London with his golden orchard of the West calling them with the melody of freedom! Lord, Lord, that we are all quarrelling over a dog-eared page in economies, while the gates of Eden, through which the dawn streams in unclouded splendor, stand open for our feet!

A Race Warrior

(Mail and Empire).

At the call of his country Cincinatus came back from his farm, resumed the bare of office he had laid down and saved the State. At the louder call of his race, the heroic Jeffries quits the home of the horny handed tiller, to which he retired in the fulness and invincibility of his powers, and again places his huge figure in the gap as the champion of white mankind. For months he delayed his decision waiting to assure himself that the howls invoking him were the authentic voices of Danassian humanity. Even when satisfied on that point, he pondered long before he could see it to be his duty to leave his retreat. To the supplications of men and women of his own complexion were added the challenges and defiance of the Afro-American who had snatched the primacy in the ring from the laws, or rather from the bulky waist, of Tommy Burns. Also the glittering lure of enough gold to fill a beer keg to the chime was held out to him by patrons of manly sport. He remained silent. He continued to give the matter his laborious thought. The man of Mr. Jeffries cast of intellect, this unwanted cerebral activity must have been no less trying than the ordeal of battle. At last the mauler of Fitzsimmons gave up his cogitations and his farm life. He would go on the stage. Neither by speech nor by muscular movement of his alarming visage did he intimate that his theatrical engagements were to be but a season's prelude to performances in the higher art of which he had been the unrivaled exponent. But the knowing ones understood it all, and they were sure his withdrawal from the soil meant that he was going to recognize "Jack Johnson as a brother man, and give him the beating of his life. Mr. Jeffries now vouchsafed to announce that he will condescend to put himself against Mr. Johnson should the latter succeed in wallowing Mr. Ketchel. This ending of the suspense has produced what in sporting circles is described as a delirium of joy. Mr. Johnson's color, "the shadowed livery of the burnished sun," had previously been regarded as a bar to fistie fellowship with Mr. Jeffries. But possession of the belt by the black man has had a liberalizing effect upon the ex-champion.

In fact, if Mr. Johnson were a white man, Mr. Jeffries would not seek to take the title from him, nor would he be importuned to do so by his fair-skinned fellow-citizens. He feels that as the bride and hope of the world's pale-faced population, it is his duty to lick Mr. Johnson.

Eggs

A housewifely axiom is that a stale egg is a bad egg--that is, it should never be used, says a writer for Harper's Bazar. "I know that some housekeepers buy what are called 'cooking eggs,' which are, in plain English, those which are not fresh enough for table use, where their antiquated qualities would be detected. If not fit to eat by themselves they are too poor to be used with safety in cakes, puddings, etc. When one can detect the 'stale' taste or odor about an egg, one should avoid it. Physicians and dieticians now claim that eggs and milk are very nearly perfect foods. In many illnesses they have superseded cod liver oil, beef-liver and-wine, and other tonics with which the invalid used to dose his oft-times proesting stomach.

"Perhaps every one does not know that the raw egg can be prepared so that it will have no disagreeable taste. Some shamsters take it in sherry, others have prejudices against this, and few persons would care to give it thus prepared to a child. Here, then, is what a trained nurse calls 'raw-oyster egg.' If directions are followed it will taste like a popular bivalve at its coldest and best taste.

"Have a small wineglass thoroughly chilled. Into the bottom drop three drops of vinegar, on this put a pinch of salt and a dash of pepper, break the chilled egg carefully into the glass, add three more drops of vinegar, another pinch of salt and another dash of pepper, turn up the glass and take the contents in one swallow. The only taste will be a slight one of vinegar, and one may have the suspicion that one has just downed a large raw oyster.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any cure of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for particulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

BACHELORS NOT TO BLAME

A great controversy is raging again over the ancient question of taxing bachelors, but why should bachelors be taxed any more than old maids?

People grow hysterical over the declining marriage rate, and rail violently against men who will not take up on their shoulders the yoke of matrimony.

But is not there something wrong here? Are not the women more at fault than the men? Why, I have known a young woman to receive seven offers of marriage between the ages of 20 and 30, and she is a spinster today.

She had chances of marrying one or two of them very good, yet she refused every offer! For all that, her spinsterhood will be set down as a result of man being tardy in coming forward—man who prefers his freedom, his luxuries, and his leisure! That is the hard-fact. Man is blamed for not coming forward, while the blame should rest on the women.

The plain truth is this: Women in these times of ours, or, at any rate, a large majority of them, won't accept offers of marriage; they either spurn them, and the idea of being in any way tied down is utterly repugnant to an ordinary woman of today.

Every man, when he reaches a certain age and is in receipt of a certain sum, proposes to some woman, and I do not believe there are exceptions over have been. Men are not too anxious to marry, and all this shrieking about men being backward and refusing to wed, and so forth, is the veriest humbug.

But what on earth can a man do? Obviously, he cannot drag a woman to the altar, so, perforce, he is compelled to settle down to enjoy as best he may a bachelor's existence. And remember that it is not one woman only whom your average man proposes to; in many cases he tries a few ere he retires confused and disgusted at woman's reluctance to marry.

It is the merest claptrap to say that a woman, in these times, is ready to jump at any offer of marriage. She is not. Usually, she is extremely particular, and will not think of marriage unless she clearly sees that it will benefit and better her in every way.

Men cannot get wives in these days; for one young woman who is ready and willing to marry, there are half-a-dozen men ready to snap her up, so keen is the competition for the marrying girl. Still, the critics say that men won't marry, that they prefer bachelorhood—stuff and nonsense; not one man in a hundred does that for, frankly, every man wants to get married but usually cannot.

How people can support any movement which aims at the taxation of bachelors puzzles me; had they done so they would understand that the bachelors is usually a bachelor against his own inclination.

Certainly, six men who won't make an effort to get married—that is a different thing, but precious few would there be to tax. And, most certainly, six any woman who, having received offers of marriage, has refused them all, granted that all else is equal. In that event a good sum would come to the revenue annually.

Undoubtedly, every bachelor is the handwork of some woman, or women, and, doubtless, there are plenty of bachelors, from 40 years upwards, who would willingly pay taxation rather than marry after the rebuffs and insults they have received from women to whom they proposed.

Now, I know the sort of argument likely to be brought forward. If a young woman does not fancy any of the men who propose to her, is she not to tax them all? Quite right, but, in that event, don't say that men will not come forward, and don't propose to tax bachelors for the latter question.

No wonder widows, especially young ones, get married quite easily—the real secret lies in the fact that they are more easily talked round, and, having had a taste of matrimony they are usually quite ready to try another course. Accordingly, they give men a trifle of encouragement; they do not ladle out rebuffs and contemptuous remarks when a man comes to ask their hand in marriage.

But the ordinary girl of today, of from 20 to 25 years of age! She won't make much of a move toward the altar; she thinks that marriage is a bore and a humbug, and a condition which holds out no good prospects what so ever.

Undoubtedly, it is the women who are responsible for our declining marriage rate; they, and not the men, are to blame, and the business woman is the greatest sinner amongst the sex, especially she who has attained to a salary of perhaps 28 shillings per week.

I have found it to be a fact that the woman who earns a salary of that kind will not wed on any account; and she who earns, say 30 shillings to 40 shillings per week, absolutely jeers at well-to-do.

In short, the highly salaried woman may be set down as a certain spinster—she is too comfortable ever to think of marriage; never would such as she consent to be tied down to the routine of ordinary household work.

If bachelors are to be taxed, tax spinsters, too, they are the greater offenders, if the truth be told.—Parson's.

Cause and Effect

Patten's Way is not Honorable

(New York Journal of Commerce)

If a dispatch to the Herald is to be relied upon, James A. Patten of the Chicago wheat "plot" has been stung by criticism in newspapers and in the pulpit into utterances as ill-advised as that imputed years ago to W. H. Vanderbilt in regard to the public's concern in railroad management. He is reported as saying, "I don't care what the newspapers say, there is no corner. I don't care what a lot of sensation-seeking preachers say, I don't care what the state legislature does. I am in this deal to make money. I have never denied it. It is not my fault that the crop is short and the demand high! Those are the things that make the price, not what I say or do."

"Nobody suspected Mr. Patten of being 'in the deal' for his health or for any other purpose than to make money, and nobody has blamed him, because the crop is short and the demand high, so far as that may be the fact and the cause of the price. But he ought not to get excited and talk in that defiant way, because his manner of making money, however he may protest that there is no corner, and that what he says or does does not make the price is in bad repute and is considered by many people as little better than robbing the poor. If the crop is short, or if the available supply or wheat for the market is unusually restricted, buying up millions of bushels and holding it for an advance may not be getting up a corner exactly, but it is using the advantage of a large bank account, much credit and cheap money to make that advance decidedly greater than it would otherwise be, at least for a time. If price is determined by supply and demand and one person can get possession or control of a large supply, what he does makes the price for the time being, and if he manipulates sales skillfully and no unexpected addition to supply appears he may make much more, but where does it come from?"

If, as has been reported Patten and his clique have made $5,000,000 to $5,000,000 in a few weeks it has come from somewhere. Somebody has earned it; he and his crowd have not. They have made millions pay more for wheat before they could get more for flour, and to lose some of the money they win. They have made bakers pay more for flour before they could get more for bread and so contribute to their gains. Finally the loaf of bread costs more and the mites of the poor begin to be drawn to the empty places which their suction has produced.

Nobody gets money without earning it unless by some device that takes the earnings of others without rendering an equivalent in service or benefit. The bull speculator may say that the price would have been adjusted to the higher level any way, and the paying more for flour and for bread would have had to come. Perhaps so, but the gradual and normal adjustment would have been more equitable and less painful. The gains and losses would have been gradually and widely diffused and gone to those to whom they fairly belonged. When the powerful and unscrupulous speculator intervenes to hasten and manipulate the process by the control of money and credit and the machinery of the market, he is grabbing what belongs to others and aggravating such losses as might have been inevitable in attenuated form. His way of making money is not honorable and ought not to be reputable, and it would be more prudent for him not to say "I don't care" or "the public be damned."

The intelligent printer got his work in on a clergyman's sermon in the St. Petersburg Independent. This is the way the type put it. "The mind blameth where it pleaseth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh and whither it goeth." Of course, what the reverend gentleman quoted was, "The wind bloweth where it listeth." But after all the printer was not so far wrong in intimating that some people's minds blame where they blame please.—Miami Morning News-Record.

Mr. Warner says:—"For the past thirteen years my hearing has been badly affected. The streets were so quiet to me as if I lived in the city of the dead. I could neither hear the noise of street cars or sound of horses' feet on the pavement. Before I had used Catarhizone Inhaler three days I was able to not only hear a great change in my condition, which gradually improved until now I can hear a whisper across the room. I cannot tell you how much I appreciate Catarhizone, or of the wonderful results I have derived from using it. Catarhizone has my strongest endorsement and I am quite willing that you should use it."

Mr. Warner's unsolicited testimonial furnishes abundant proof that deafness can be cured, even in old age, if Catarhizone is used. This remedy is scientific in its application and meets with the endorsement of prominent ministers and doctors all over Canada. Our best equipped health institutions always keep it on hand, and cases are recorded where it has been used with great success in the Government deaf and dumb institutions where other means proved futile.

If your hearing is poor, if you have head noises or ringing in the ears, be sure and use Catarhizone. It is a regular miracle worker and is sure to help you. Complete outfit costs $1; trial size 50 cents. Sold by all druggists and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

"AS GOOD AS I KNOW HOW"

It is very disappointing when one has really tried to find that instead of realizing it people are merely annoyed because our efforts do not come up to what they had expected of us, and, as there are very few of us who have never had an experience of this kind, most of us know just how it feels.

But very often, unfortunately, the experience hasn't effectually taught us the obvious lesson—how necessary it is to make allowances for other people on the same score.

And so we go on, month after month, year after year, expecting people to act up to our ideas of what is right and proper, and feeling sore and angry when they don't, and sometimes we make ourselves extremely unpleasant over it to the delinquents, more especially if they happen to be members of our own family, that they have but a sorry time of it.

It would save such a lot of disappointment in life if we could all make up our minds that never, as long as the world lasts, will other people always act up to our ideas of what they should or should not do, sometimes because they really couldn't, however much they tried, sometimes because they wouldn't even if they could, because the idea of what is right and best do not coincide with ours. "Bear ye one another's burdens" was never meant to imply that some of us have a right to deprive other people of living their own lives. Some of us are apt to forget that.

"Different people, different opinions," says the old saying. And a very good thing, too. For the world would be but a dull place if we all thought alike and acted alike. What you and I have to do each in our own spheres, is to be "as good as we know how," and if we are really doing that we may be quite sure that there isn't much amiss.

ARBOR DAY

The Boston Herald speaking of the observance of Arbor Day says:—

Established when the emphasis was chiefly on the aesthetic side of tree-planting the time has come now when men can be interested in the project because it touches either their own or the community's pocket nerve. A tree planter is a wealth-creator as well as a community-benefactor. He fosters full creeks and rivers, he aids in preventing freshets and landslides, he indirectly if not directly keeps factories going, summer resorts popular, and city dwellers eager to gain health as well as pleasure amid rural scenes. So that the call to Arbor Day this year has a message to the business man as well as to the child.

In an article contributed to the Boston Herald series of arguments, the Rev. Dr. F. B. Clark calls attention to the part that tree planting has played in the recent swift transformation of Rio de Janeiro, so that it is one of the most beautiful and healthy cities of the world. The great new central avenue, a mile and an eighth long, running through the heart of the city and connecting one wing of the harbor with the other, and lined with splendid public buildings and modern business blocks, has through its entire length alternate trees and candelabra, the latter artistically designed; and around each tree is a bed of flowers. A street or boulevard that has trees in sufficient number to charm the eye or to shade the pedestrian is a delight and comfort, and from the economic standpoint ranks as a municipal asset.

COMING BACK

Canada's outlook for 1909 is encouraging. Not only has another rush of immigration set in from the other side of the Atlantic, but the "invasion" from the United States, there is reason to believe, will break the record. Among them are no doubt many Canadians who, fifteen or twenty years ago, felt compelled by adversity to leave the land of their birth to seek homes under the Stars and Stripes, but the great majority are farmers who, though they have done well in the United States, realize that Canada offers greater opportunities to people of their class than any other country under the sun. They have the advantages over most European immigrants in that as a rule they possess considerable means which not only adds directly to the wealth of Canada but will enable them more readily to take a large part in the development of the country.

BY THE WAY

Move!

May 1st!

Still sifting ashes, when its time to dig for sweet peas.

These are the days for the Athletic managers to get busy.

Ice is going, and the call of the wild fisherman grows stronger.

What is wanted now is a good thick blanket to go with the temperature.

The weather will allow you to scatter seeds of kindness, but if you are making a garden wait a few days.

The golfers are getting enthusiastic, and long for the spring campaign to open. All hands are armed and equipped.

What about a First of July celebration? We cannot be accused of overdoing such things. It is some years' since the last celebration took place.

Financial.—If a man spent half as much money in an effort to keep out of trouble as he does in trying to get out, he would be away ahead of the game.

I've half a mind old winter is
A mean and selfish thing,
To linger here so rathlessly
Upon the lap of Spring.

A meeting of the Bachelor's Club has been called to deal with some of the members who, it is said, have not given proper notice of their reported withdrawal.

Draw a cheerful face to the world. Never talk much about your own troubles: the only result of that being to grieve your friends and please your enemies.

The "fountain" at the corner of Clinch and Carleton streets is in good working order, and is much enjoyed by the young folks. It is a great boon to the mud pie industry.

Clear up the streets and the yards. Make everything clean and sweet for summer. Brighten up the yards with grass and flowers, thus adding to the cheerfulness and interest of life.

An effort is being made to prove that the Boston murderer, Jordan, who butchered his wife, was insane. As a child he was naughty, would run away, play truant, had a bad temper and did other things that most boys are guilty of every day. If this is a form of insanity it would be well to take children in hand before they cut their teeth, and then perhaps the danger of brutal murders will be removed.

In Dr. Johnson's opinion nine out of ten of the cases of fatal wife-beating never would have occurred had the husband been properly lashed for his early offences. The further statement is made that where a male relative of the wife has thoroughly thrashed the wife-beater, the latter has never been known again to indulge in the pastime. In the opinion of many authorities in criminal practice Parliament should adopt Mr. Bickerdike's bill authorizing the whipping of this class of offenders.

We have good schools in this town and we understand that efforts will be made to make them better, which will mean that more money will be required for school purposes. No person will find fault with any obligations assumed to provide first class schools, but if a number of children in town, or their parents, fail to take advantage of what is being done for them, it is up to the authorities to see that the compulsory education law is enforced. When boys, and very often parents, fail to appreciate the advantages of proper education it is time some action was taken.

There was a school teacher who exclaimed impatiently one afternoon—"Johnny Jones, what are you fumbling with there?" Johnny hung his head and was silent. But the tell-tale of the class spoke up. "It's a pin he's got, ma'am." "Well, take it from him," said the teacher, and bring it here to me." This was done; and then in a mollified voice the teacher said—"Now, Johnny Jones, get up and say your poetry lesson. But Johnny did not obey. He blushed, hung his head, and sat still. "Johnny," said the teacher, "rise, I tell you." Then the little fellow blurted out distressfully, "I can't, ma'am. That three pin you took is what holds my trousers up."

WEDDING BELLS

Miss Florence Aileen McGee
Weds Frederick Smith

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride on April 28th, when Miss Florence Aileen McGee, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gentry McGee, became the bride of Frederick Smith.

The house was filled with guests and was beautifully decorated. Rev. H. I. Lynds performed the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her father wore a gown of rich tulle silk, made in Princess style, with trimmings of rich lace, and the conventional veil with lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was an exquisite diamond pin, the gift of the groom. She carried a white prayer-book. Miss Ray Cawley was flower girl and wore white and carried bride's roses. The groom's gift to the flower girl was a beautiful locket and chain. Mrs. McGee mother of the bride, wore brown silk.

After the ceremony refreshments were served. The rooms were bowers of spring flowers. The bride received numerous beautiful and valuable gifts of silver, china, linen, cut glass and substantial cheques from her mother and father.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith left by train for St. John, Boston and New York, and after their honeymoon will reside in the new house on School street.

The bride's travelling gown was a smartly made tailored costume of dark blue English tweed and hat to match.

Hundreds of friends of the young couple were at the train, with the usual assortment of rice, confetti, etc., and all joined in wishing them a long and happy life. Greetings extend warmest congratulations.

Misses Maud and Hannah Smith, Miss Buck and Mr. W. Smith of St. John, were among the out of town guests at the wedding.

A store in town displays a sign which reads: "Don't discuss the weather, it is quite satisfactory." If this well known topic is barred it will be necessary to take up the question—Is incorporation a benefit to the town?

The schr. Francis Goodnow arrived at Portland, Me., Monday laden with pulp-wood from St. George, N. B., bound to Norwalk, Conn. In company with the schr. Mattie J. Alles she has been chartered for the season in this business.

The Alms house Commissioners have let the property to Stephen Goodiehl, who has taken possession. He will take care of the poor at two dollars, each, per week, furnishing all supplies. He will work the farm, having all proceeds from game and will keep the property in repair.

Mr. C. Hanson has the contract for erecting the addition to the wood mill, at the Pulp Co.'s plant. He has a crew at work and the work will be rushed along. The building will be of brick, and will be used for sawing lathes and shingles.

Mr. H. R. Lawrence tried his remodelled motor boat a few days ago, and is entirely satisfied with the results. The trim little craft is very speedv and is fitted up in first class style for pleasure excursions. It will be remembered that this boat captured first prize in the motor boat races at the fishermen's picnic last summer.

Mr. J. D. Chipman, St. Stephen, who has been appointed president of the Gold King Mine, and Mr. J. M. Johnson, who is to take over the management of the property, have gone west to visit the mines. New Brunswick interests by this arrangement will have the control and management of the property, and, it is expected, will soon know definitely just what may be looked for in the future from the mines.—Sun.

Fredericton, April 28.—The government this morning made the appointments of sheriffs of the province for next year. As soon as the frost will permit, work will commence on the sewers. Several bad places on the streets will receive the attention of the commissioner. It is thought that the pipes are broken down in several localities.

Messrs. Martin and Foundes are making preparations for sawing lumber for the Pulp Company. Workmen are engaged in putting in the boilers, and it is expected the mill will be ready for the season's sawing in a short time.

The Milliken property suffered severe damage this spring from the sewers not working properly. The water was carried in the direction of the house and caused much damage to the foundation. Extensive repairs will be necessary to put it in shape.

The big stock of boots, shoes and rubber goods, in the store of Epps Dodds & Co., has been purchased by D. Bassen, who is making preparations to conduct a sale of footwear that will eclipse anything ever attempted in slaughter prices in New Brunswick. Particulars next issue.

Many weir owners regret that they neglected putting their weirs in shape earlier in the season. Schools of herring of good quality, are in the usual haunts, but are not being taken, because the weirs are not in condition to hold them. Stop That Cold

To check early colds or gripes with 'Preventics' means sure relief for prevention. To stop a cold with Preventics is easier than to get it out and be obliged to cure it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure a coldy head cold, but taken early—at the onset stage—they break or head of colds early so. That's surely better. That's why they are called Preventics. Preventics have been used for years. No other medicine has done this. No other medicine has done this. No other medicine has done this. No other medicine has done this. No other medicine has done this.

CLEAR THE FILTERS!

Your Health Depends On It.

In its course around the body the blood is continually gathering up waste matter—worn out tissue and other impurities. Then it flows through the kidneys, which should filter out all this poisonous material and empty it into the bladder. But sometimes the kidneys get sluggish and clogged up with waste matter, and fail to do their work properly. Then the trouble begins. Instead of leaving the kidneys pure and life-giving, the blood comes out still loaded with Uric Acid, which it carries to every part of the body. Settling in joints and tissues, this Uric Acid very soon causes Rheumatism, with its untold suffering. The natural, sensible course then is to clear the filters—the kidneys—with "Father Morriess's No. 7." One tablet three times a day, followed by a glass of cold water, will bring relief in a very short time. Joints will limber up, the blood will be purified, and the Rheumatism cured. See at your druggist's, or from Father Morriess Medicine Co., Chatham, N.B.

The Municipal Debt Evil

(From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat) The total of municipal indebtedness in the United States has mounted up to a total that compels attention. At the recent rate of increase the bonded debt of New York City a few years hence will exceed that of the United States. With all its conservatism, Boston owes more than $100,000,000. The debt of St. Louis is comparatively small, but the city feels the need of a more careful use of its revenue of more than $12,000,000 a year. Citizens can see how important it is that the voters of the city, the supreme power in the case, should be vigilant in exercising the ballot and in keeping fully acquainted with public affairs and in touch always with the political situations. It is useless to hope for municipal reforms or wise popular Government if the ballot is not recognized and used as the main resource.

A Plea for the Housewife

It is extremely unpleasant for a sensitive woman who, before marriage, had been earning her own living and had been accustomed to spending her income as she pleased, to ask a man for money to buy everything she needs, such as cotton, needles, pins, etc., etc. It seems to us no more than right that a man should give his wife, for her own necessities, at least half as much money as he would a servant. She keeps his house, provides for the comfort of himself and children, not for hire, but because she loves them, and she cares for her husband's interests, as no hired housekeeper would, and she is not entitled to pay for her services? Yet some men would think it a hardship to pay a wife $5.00 per week—the amount he would be obliged to pay a servant girl. There is many a woman among the working classes who would think herself highly favored if she were sure of fifty cents per week of her husband's wages to spend as she pleased. The above hints are for the husbands who need them, and written in consideration of their good wives.

A book on Rheumatism, and a trial treatment of Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy—liquid or Tablets—is being sent free to sufferers by Dr. Shoop of Racine, Wis. You that are well, get this book for some discouraged, disheartened sufferer! Do a simple act of humanity! Point out this way to quick and certain relief! Surprise some sufferer, by first getting from me the booklet and the test. He will appreciate your aid.

1,000 Took Last Dring

Gary, Ind., April 17.—One thousand men lined up along the street, passing into a saloon, taking a drink and going out by the back door, marked the closing of one of the fifteen saloons in this city that went out of business last night at midnight.

At other and less popular saloons hundreds of men crowded about the bars all evening, and when the saloons finally closed there were many thirsty ones still standing on the corners abusing the remembrance law.

For more than a year the saloons here have been gradually going out of business, and the saloons closing as their licenses expired. Fifteen saloons licensed one year ago, closed at midnight, and Gary is a dry town today.

Burn Your Love-Letters

If you have written a love-letter pray that the man to whom you addressed it has had discretion enough to destroy it. If he had written you one, exercise the same judgment and consideration. The turning up of old love-letters at inopportune moments has caused almost as much trouble in real life as in books and plays. A great deal has been written concerning the folly of love-letters—quite uselessly. For all lovers are foolish and therefore prone to pour out their souls in ink. But if you must tell a man you love him on paper, at least be sure that he loves you. If he does he will be wise enough to destroy your letters. Never write a love-letter to a man to whom you are not engaged and if you are very wise you will work in some reference to the engagement in every one. But perhaps such wisdom as this is not altogether desirable!

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and falling nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

No Time for Friendship

In this busy, busy life, how few of us find time to cultivate friendship. The cares of our families, our business or profession; the struggle to keep up with the times, up with our neighbors, up with our competitors; the worry and work and anxiety of it all demand every moment of our time, and leave us none for our friends. Why, some of us hardly know our own families! We are up and away in the morning before they are quite awake; we have no time to return at noon, and the evening meal finds us so weary and exhausted we scarcely can notice anyone, or have inclination to say anything, as we hurry through in silence and then drag ourselves off to our office or store to finish up the odds and ends which the close of our busy day has found undone, and which we cannot leave over another. And thus a life is spent; its cares and perplexities keenly felt, and its sweets but seldom met and rarely enjoyed; and the question arises, is this all of life? Are we making the best of it?

Eggs to be Hatched

In selecting eggs for hatching, choose the natural-looking ones. One writer says: Eggs that are too large and eggs that are too small, either above or below the average size of eggs laid by the breed, should be discarded at first, for if you test out the eggs—and it is well to test the eggs under hens just the same as those in the incubator—you must discard them later on, as they will be found, in the majority of cases, if not all, to be lacking in fertility. Eggs that are too round and eggs shaped alike at both ends are not safe to trust to the hatching process and neither are eggs that show round light spots in the shell when held between you and the sun of lamplight. Mis-shapen eggs you must discard, but you need not fear the eggs with brown spots, like a turkey egg. These usually hatch all right, and neither, if the egg is of good shape, need you discard the eggs showing ridges at one or the other of the ends. This is simply due to the shape of the organ wherein the shell is secreted and hardened about the egg. Of course, do you not expect to get good hatches from the young pullets, or a majority of strong chickens, nor the same from old hens kept confined or that have been sick or are too fat, or from hens running with male birds whose combs are frozen to the quick.

Ereddie Clarke the four year old son of Fred Clarke, Bridgewater, was drowned last week under most pathetic circumstances. The little fellow was playing on the banks of the La Have River, when he lost his balance rolling down the bank to the water. The lad was carried quickly down stream and drowned.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

"OFF AND ON"

"The fact is," she said with conviction, "we were absolutely unsuited." "Absolutely," he agreed in the same tone; "the wonder is we did not find it out before."

"Well, to say the truth, I did have misgivings, but hesitated to speak, not knowing how you would take it."

"Now you see," with a dry smile, "I have taken it well, and we part—since part it is—as friends. Anything else might be awkward since we are sure to meet."

"Yes; we shan't be able to avoid that; it will seem odd at first—"

"But we shall soon get used to it; and, no longer engaged, may even speak without quarrelling."

He rose, and standing by the mantel-piece, looked down on her well waded dark head.

"It will be far more comfortable—and, with an upward glance of her soft, dark eyes, "I hope you'll soon find some one else. Lots of girls would get on with you—if only you were not so domineering."

"Thanks. I'm glad I still have a chance. And if I may return good advice—if you wish to replace me—a little less flirting—"

"Flirting!" The danger signal he knew so well danced like a red flag over her cheeks. "What can you mean? I never flirted in my life. I have always wished I knew how!"

"That was really ruperfluos," with the smile that always made her mad; "an accomplishment already possessed to perfection is surely not worth pinning for."

She sprang to her feet. Her eyes shining, her red lips angrily parted. "How glad I am it is off! How could I ever have dreamt of marrying a man who insults me even now that everything is over between us! Thank Heaven for that, at least!"

"Insult!" and still he smiled. Rage became her well. "I meant merely to congratulate—did you not say it was an art you coveted."

"As if you did not know quite well that I never, never flirt. Can I help it if people like me—find me pleasant! At least, it concerns you no more. Oh, how delightful it is to be free!"

"Free to begin with some one else. I almost envy him; if you were not so bad-tempered."

"Bad-tempered!" throwing up her pretty hands in indignant protest. "Well, that is the very last thing! Every one, every single soul who knows me, knows that I have a temper of an angel!"

"I am glad to know it, too. The next world will not be as dull as I feared. I always fancied angels sounded a trifle tame."

"You are not likely to meet any— with faint disdain—"unless you much change your ways. Mr. Chevenix—looking loftily into the handsome, jeering face—"when an engagement is broken off does not the gentleman generally go?"

"Even when they part friends? Is that de rigueur? Well, I obey," but first seizing her in his arms, he kissed her warm, rosy lips.

"Wretch!" She freed herself indignantly. "How dare you? Well never again!"

"Good-by," he smiled mockingly. "better luck next time—are there not still fish in the sea?"

"I should never have been happy with him—never!" Sylvia told herself, as she rubbed her cheeks and mouth. "A mercy I found it out in time! I think I took him because he is always so smart and well groomed—and all the other girls wanted him so much! How they will crow, now! I shall show them I don't care, by annexing Sir Charles Tennison. He's an awful bore, but so rich! I only hope Alick won't pick up with Rosie Hewett—men are so easily taken in by her dolly blue eyes. But what a relief it is to be free!"

She told herself this many times. And on that evening, and others, Alick Chevenix flirted much with Miss Hewett, of the golden hair and baby face.

"Darling Sylvia!" she said, putting up her guileless lips to kiss the latter. "I do think you have been so brave!

It must be such a horrid left feeling, when an announced thing is off! Oh, yes, I know he says you chuckled him. It's splendidly loyal, I think. And it doesn't really matter how people talk. I felt so angry with Sir Charles Tennison last night for saying he never fancied another man's leavings."

"Sir Charles said that, did he?" Sylvia asked, and to herself she added, "he shall propose tonight."

"I only hope," she said aloud with her "sweet girl" smile, poor Alick won't be asking some one else just out of pique—I should be so sorry for her!"

"How funny!" Rosie's buddy mouth smiled innocently, just the very thing he was saying about you, only the other way about. Is it that yellow muslin makes you look so pale tonight, darling?"

"May I have this waltz?"

"You!" she looked at him in amazement.

"Why not? Is there any reason why we should not dance together? If I remember rightly our steps used to go quite well."

"I am engaged three deep, she said, "but my partner is getting me an ice."

She took his arm as she spoke, and a moment later they were floating round the room. He guided her perfectly through the maze of dancers she thought how strong and tall he was—the White Austrian band played for them alone—there was no one else, nothing in the world but the soft enchanting rhythm to watch their feet beat like one, her supple figure swaying to his every movement.

She was lovely as a dream, in a cloud of silvery chiffon, one red, red rose in the dark hair, whose perfume was wafted to him—as something he had missed for weeks.

"And so," he said, as they hid themselves in a dark corner of the flower scented balcony, it is to be Tennison—a little elderly perhaps—"

"Not at all. A middle aged man is so much more considerate than his minors: and that dash of gray is just what makes him look so smart."

"Not to mention five thousand a year—and a past. My warmest congratulations to Sir Charles."

"And mine to Rosie—if she really cares to pick up my leavings."

"That was unlike you. Bad tempered you used to be, but not catfish. I feel you must be feeling a little soured."

"How dare you!" the angry blood dyed his cheeks, "can we never be to gether a moment without you insulting me! Take me back to the ball room at once."

"In a moment—when you are more composed. A pity to let Sir Charles see you—when you are put out. There's many a slip, you know, etc.; or it is quite fixed up?"

"It will be this evening," she stamped her satin shoe, "how foolish of me to give you this dance!"

"Not at all. It was well to make sure—to be quite off with the old love before one goes on to the new. I used to swear by brunettes, but when I see the crown of gold on Miss Hewett's charming head and watch the gentle blue eyes that never scowl, or—"

"Wait till you tease her as you tease me! See if she does not scratch! No one ever aggravated me so intensely—and to think that I once contemplated a lifetime with you."

"It was certainly an ill-advised scheme; nevertheless—his arm stole around her waist, his eyes sought hers "Sylvia," he asked slowly, "shall we not try it again?"

Goodness

It was said of one of the best men of our generation. "Whenever he entered a room of any kind the conversation immediately sprang up to a far higher level than it was before." And to this is added, "Men thought their best and spoke their best in his presence." What worthier commendation could any man have? The only goodness that counts is the goodness which makes itself felt, and real goodness which is of the daily habit and inner life of a man always does make itself felt. And here is the other side of the same noble influence, for influence which makes for good always casts out evil. "He habitually lived in an atmosphere in which every mean and unworthy thought was asphyxiated.

Sunday Thoughts

The sin you do not kill will soon become your master.

No one can call himself of no use in the world who has done at least one good action in his lifetime.

If you wish to be remembered, do deeds of love, kindness, and mercy to those whom you are living among.

Man is not born into the world to make it worse by the life he leads in it, but to be an example for good to his fellow men.

To protect our own moral nature from everything around us that will tend to lower it is the best way to protect the moral tone of society.

If a man wishes to learn how to talk well, he must also learn the art of being silent. One can never be a good talker if he is not also a good listener.

If we are constantly looking hopefully forward, we will in time forget all the hardships of the past, only remembering the lessons they have taught us.

Beware of Cocaine Medicines

Thousands of Drug Fiends have been started on their downward course through Catarrh snuffs containing this habit forming drug. If you suffer from a cold, sneezing or Catarrh—don't use a snuff—use a sensible treatment like Catarrh-ozone. It heals and soothes, brings relief at once, cures thoroughly, is Bronchitis and throat trouble no doctor can do better than prescribe Catarrh-ozone. Try it—see what wonders it works—what power it possesses. Different from the old way—you inhale Catarrh-ozone. Sold in 25c. and $1.00 sizes by all dealers.

Blunders of the Type

Ever since the introduction of typesetting errors, weird or comical, have emanated from printer's offices. The mistakes are not always to be shouldered on to the compositor, for bad handwriting must be taken into account. Here are a few instances of actual blunders collected by a proof reader in the course of his daily work:

"His blushing bride" was transformed into "his blustering bride."

A major was stated to have "served with destruction in the army." The writer thought he used the word "distinction."

"The Galley I love" was the description of a picture entitled "The Galley Slave."

Speaking of theatrical folk, a critic wrote that "nearly all have husbands or wives." The paragraph printed read "hundreds of wives."

"They sailed for three days around the Cape and finally slaughtered a small Italian" should have been "sighted a small island."

One more in conclusion. "He takes delight in talking on his family shame" was a shameful thing to say when "favorite theme" was meant.

Life Will be Shortened

Those who fail to observe the fundamental rules of health, especially those who neglect constipation,—will have short lives. Costiveness ruins health, destroys vitality, weakens the blood, causes dyspepsia, nervousness and insomnia. Why not use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and be cured. Take one or two pills before retiring and you're well next morning. No gripe or pain, no headache and nausea when you use Dr. Hamilton's Pills,—they cure scientifically. Positively the best laxative known, 25c. at all dealers.

More Light and Fuller

Without escape into the outer air and open heaven, I can take permanent pleasure in no picture. . . . Escape Hope, Infinity (are what we want), no mere point of light, neither is it liberty, for though we cut down hedges and level hills, and give what waste and plain we choose, on the right hand and on the left, it is all comfortless and undesired, so long as we cleave not a way of escape forward, and however narrow and thorny and difficult the nearer path, it matters not, so only that the clouds open for us at its close. Neither will any amount of beauty in nearer form make us content to stay with it, so long as we are shut down to that alone; nor is any form so cold or so hurtful but that we may look upon it with kindness, so only that it rise against the infinite hope of light beyond.—John Ruskin.

Alcohol not needed

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a strong drink. As now made, there is not a drop of alcohol in it. It is a non-alcoholic tonic and alterative. Ask your own doctor about your taking this medicine for thin, impure blood. Follow his advice every time. He knows.

Ask your doctor, "What is the first great rule of health?" Nine doctors out of ten will quickly reply, "Keep the bowels regular." Then ask him another question, "What do you think of Ayer's Pills for constipation?"
