Portsmouth, England, Nov. 1 .- This historic old town has witnessed so many naval reviews and state functions that it has ceased to be excited by displays of bunting and maneuvers of steelsheathed fleets. Flags were fluttering everywhere along the waterfront when the Ophir entered the harbor, under the escort of the Victoria and Albert and other yachts, and there were swarms of spectators on the Southsea Esplanade, but the town was decorated with a meager hand, and the crowds were listless and undemonstrative. turn of the Duke of Cornwall from a circuit of 50,000 miles could not have been regarded as a trivial event, but naval pomp and imperial spectacles had been witnessed so often that the populace had learned to take its pleasures sadly. The flotilla passed Clarence pier about 3 o'clock, and the spectators were silent, until at the last moment a conscience-stricken enthusiast took off his hat and called for cheers, and then the response was feeble. There was more enthusiasm when the Ophir reached her berth in the harbor, but the duke's reception on the whole was singularly unemotional. THE NAVY'S WELCOME. The channel fleet had formed earlier

This meeting was less formal affair than had been cris inally planned but the processional pro gramme was carried out in detai Royal and admiralty yachts escorte the Ophir through the squadron int the harbor. There were sixteen battle ships and cruisers, and each was dress ed in rainbow fashion. Each ship had a full complement of men on deck, and a salute was fired while the bands play ed the National Anthem. The escorting flotilla, including three royal yacht and the Enchantress and Irene, slowl passed through the watery lane, sent neled by a powerful vessel of war, an headed directly for the mouth of th harbor. Along the Southsea Esplanad the fortifications were manned by 1,70 soldiers, and one after another fire a royal salute, while the band was playing "God Save the ing," and now and again, handkerchiefs fluttered and cheers were raised. Nelson's Victor was the gayest ship in sight, being profusely decorated and looking graceful indeed in comparison with the fleet of floating batteries and machine shops guarding Spithead. NIGHT ILLUMINATIONS EXCEL-LENT. A naval spectacle is always disappointing, even on a clear day. Modern ironclads are improving in lines, but are not picturesque objects even in the full regalia of holiday bunting. They are forced to anchor a long way apart, and all cannot be seen at once, affoat or ashore, until nightfall, when searchlights are operating, and broadsides are aglow with electric lamps. Spectators by daylight could see ilttle, excen smoke from the funnels and the en-circling lines of bunting, and as the riching lines of bunting, and as the wind was off the land they could barely hear the strains of the National Anthem and the booming guns. At night they were more fortunate, for the fleet in the offing and the Ophir and royal yachts in the harbor were splendidly, illuminated, the lines of every battleship and cruiser being traced in silhouette with electric lamps. Nelson's ship again carried off the chief honors for decorative effort, the words "Welcome

Home" in enormous letters being the feature of the night show. NOT A DISPLAY, BUT A WELCOME Neither British naval resources nor the intricate scheme of the defense of Portsmouth by iron citadels and the chain of fortifications were ostentatiously displayed. The heir to the throne was merely received in state by the King, with the channel squadron in the background, after his return from an imperial mission, and the people of Portsmouth, accustomed to water page-ants and naval salutes, looked on withtheir triumphal return from their world tour, through the crowded streets of London. The ceremonies passed off excellently. The King and his reunited family bade farewell to Portsmouth to the strains of the naval bands. All the ships in the harbor were gaily dressed, and the weather, as in London, could

As the Victoria and Albert neared the harbor the troops ashore presented arms and the garrison battery fired a final salute. The bands everywhere struck up "God Save the King," and thousands bluejackets on board the ships in the harbor repeatedly cheered the royal party. published a graphic account of a remarkable case here in Ottawa.

A man named George H. Kent had been cured of Bright's Disease after the doctors had given him up to die, and the Free Press reporter, after a most thorough investigation, published the whole story in detail, giving credit to Dodd's Kidney Pills for the most miraculous cure. The following sworn statement was given by Mr. Kent in order to substantiate the almost incredible state- statement ment made by the paper in its account of the case. (Sworn Statement, Feb. 16th, 1895.)

I, George Henry Kent, resident at 114 Cambridge street, Ottawa, and employed as a printer in the British American Bank Note Printing Company, in the said city of Ottawa, do solemnly declare that I consider it a duty to myself and to my fellow-men generally to make a declaration as to the efficiency of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

1. That I found them in my terrible case of Bright's Disease, from which I suffered for almost one year, of the greatest medical value. I can say confidently, and assure any one interested, or a sufferer, that I positively owe my life and present excellent health to the results brought about by their use. I was taken sick and confined to my bed on Dec. 28, 1893, and was successfully treated for La Grippe, then Pleurisy, followed by Kidney Troubles, and latterly Bright's Disease. I lost the use of all my limbs; my entire body became swollen to a terrible size, and my skin became as hard as, and similar to leather, the pores all hav-ing dosed up, and I suffered the most agonizing pain. I was subject to periodical spells of utter prostration and insensibility, to a state of absolute coma. I was also a victim of dangerous convulsions in which my facial expression and other muscles would become severly contorted and tense.

2. My regular physician attended to me, and, although medical consultations were held over my case by two city doctors, nothing could be done. My case grew gradually worse, and latterly I was given up as hopeless. My wife, friends and neighbors were certain from what they saw and were told by the visiting doctors that I would die in a very short time.

3. My wife was casually reading a newspaper about this time, and saw a description of a similar case, in which a patient gave testimony of the relief and cure that had been effected on him by Dodd's Kidney Pills. I started to take them right away, and from the first pill I discovered a change for the better. After the first box I was wonderfully improved and at the end of the fourth I was sure I was to get well again. I continued taking them until the seventeenth box, and I can now positive ly declare that I am perfectly cured and able to do a day's work with any of my comrades in the shop, and Dodd's Kidney Pills un-doubtedly cured me, because from starting to take them I took no other medicine whatever. AND I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the ACT RESPECTING EXTRA JUDICIAL OATHS. Declared before me at the City of Ottawa, in the county of Carle-ton, this 16th day of February G H KENT.

Kent promptly. "Have you since had the slightest symptoms of your old kidney trouble anything like it?"

and its cure. 2. That in the declaration I set forth that'I believe that I was absolutely and permanently cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills after the doctors had given me up to die. 3. That I am now absolutely certain that Dodd's Kidney Pills and nothing else saved my life and I hereby unhesitatingly reaffirm every statement made in my declaration made before Mr. Blanchet on Feb. 16, 1895. 4. That I have never since that date had the slightest symptom of the return of the Bright's Disease or any Kidney Trouble, having enjoyed unremitting good health and having worked steadily and without interruption full time at my regular employment as a printer every working day from the day Dodd's Kidney Pills sent me back to work to the date of this declar-

6. That I have recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills to many peothis city and elsewhere who having heard of my wonderful escape from death by their use have called on me or written to me inquiring about them; and having followed many of these cases closely, I know of no case where they have been used ac-cording to directions that has not been cured, and I know positively of my own personal knowledge of several extreme cases where Dodd's Kidney Pills have effected satisfactory and permanent cures.

A day or so ago an Advertiser representative had the pleasure of visiting the school, and his sur-prise at its size and the character of the work done there was such that he deemed it not unwise to let more be known of it, because there can be little doubt that the people of London, in fact, the people throughout this western district, have very little knowledge of the extent to which this school has influenced and is at present influencing a large portion of the great body of Canadian Indians. At the fall fairs we see the skilled work of Indian women, and the results of the lawors of their braves, but, while comments are passed upon the skill displayed, it seldom comes to mind that it is not within the natural order of things for squaws to make fine laces or for the red men to equal the white in all manner of agricultural and industrial pursuits, nor is thought given to the tremendous and farreaching influence exerted by an institution such as that which stands, sentinel-like, upon the height that commands the Oneida, Muncey and Chippewa reserves.

INDIAN SCHOOL

Among many who know something of the school, the idea exists that it is only for the Indians of the reserves in Middlesex, and those near here. This is far from being right, for among the Indians its fame has spread broadcast throughout all Quebec and Ontario, and many applications from all parts of the country have to be refused, so of the country have to be refused, so that the maximum number of 100 may not be overrun. The institute is attended by Indians of the Caughnawagas tribe, who come all the way from down near Montreal; by some from St. Regis, and of the tribe of Okas, also near the eastern metropolis. Ramas, from back of Montreal; Six Nation In-Credibers, from Hagersville, help swell the number, while from this district come the Munceys, Oneidas and Chip-pewas, and fro the west the St. Clairs and Walpoles, from the Sarnia district. The north is represented by the Saugeens, of Southampton, the Indians from Cape Croker, north of Owen Sound, Parry Islanders, Christian Islanders, Chemongs from Midland, and even those from Manitoulin Island in the far northwest. The young Indian, coming to the institute, sees the handsome main building, with its north wing for the boys, and the south for the girls, and between the apartments for the staff and principal, and handsomely appointed throughout; sees also behind it another large building-chool, hospital, recreation hall, laundry and what not, and beyond it again, an elaborate system of barns, henneries, stables and other outbuildings required by a large farm conducted upon scientific and strictly utilitarian principles. For it must be kept in mind that this is an industrial school, at which the boys learn farm-ing in all its branches, and various forms of industry, besides taging the regular public school course, and the girls learn cooking, housework and needlework. To instruct the pupils in all these departments Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd have as their staff two teachers, a man and woman-a matron, who has general oversight of the girls and teaches them sewing; two cooks; a foreman, in whose care the boys are four farmers, one stock man, and a shoemaker. A watchman is employed to guard the property during the night.

Two days are spent in the school learning the regular work as high as the junior leaving, or past that, if need be, and one day is spent at the other work for each two put in at book study. It is hard work at first, especially if the young students have little or no knowledge of English, having come from homes in which the native tongue only was spoken. In this respect the Caughnawagas are the worst usually the teacher has to undertake the long, laborious work of get-ting the little copper-colored urchin to think and speak in English. For this reason, of course, the teacher's work is harder at first than that of other primary class teachers, but they find the little redskins just as quick to learn, and every whit as full of mis-chief as any little white rascals who tug at the heart-strings of their teachers even while they torment

"The Indians are pretty lazy," Mrs Shepherd said, "but they are not given much chance to be lazy here. We keep them going all the time, nearly. If they are left alone, though, they are not very swift"-in that they do not differ much from white boys who have not yet developed the habit of cultivating calluses when left to them-When not working the boys are allowed to amuse themselves as they please, and in their sports they evince a particular fondness for baseball, at times playing a modification of lacrosse, using ordinary shinny sticks with very slight crooks, and using, instead of a ball, two pieces of wood tied at the ends of a piece of rope, about half a foot long. This they sling upon their sticks, and play the game much as lacrosse is played. The girls appear to have no joy in active tom-boyish amusements such as the average healthy Canadian girl delights in, but are of a more phlegmatic disposition, and in their pleasure hours they sit about and sing, or simply walk sedately around. times their gayety reaches the height of "Ring Around a Rosy," and that classic, "King William Was," is not

This portion is largely on the Oneida Reserve. across the river from the institute, and reaching from the bank back to high water mark, and, being annually overflowed, is nearly as rich, the principal says, as the valley of the Nile. It is the choicest of pasture land, and is used principally for that purpose. At least 220 head of cattle are handled to advantage, with horses, hogs and poultry in like proportion. A harvest includes 100 acres of excellent wheat. 60 acres of oats and barley, 60 acres of corn, 200 tons of hay and 20 acres of roots and fruits. Principal Shepherd says that having all modern appliances for harvesting, grinding and threshing, the work of attending to his big farm is largely a recreation, and he is of the opinion that it would be of decided advantage if the farm were added to still further. Though the school was erected by the Methodist Church, and is managed under the auspices of the Missionary Society of that church, the farm is relied upon to produce a large proportion of the yearly expense—the government supplies $60 per capita for the 100 pupils, and farm making up the balance of yearly expenditure, which runs as high as $12,000. The pupils having completed their course of study at the school, which they are supposed to do by the time they are 18, they usually return to their reservations, better men and women for the educational and religious advantages that they have had at the institute, and it has been noticed that the improvement in the children of those who have passed through the school is even more noticeable than in the parents. The work of the Muncey Institute is proving of vast benefit to the Indian races of Eastern Canada, and will continue to do so as long as it is managed in the capable manner that has marked its present adminis-

He was elected to the Fifity-fifth Congress by a very large majority, and is the acknowledged leader of his party in his section of the State. Only one flaw marred the otherwise complete success of this rising statesman. Catarrh with its insidious approach and tenacious grasp was his only unconquered fce. For thirty years he waged an unsuccessful warfare against this personal enemy. At last Peruna came to the rescue, and he dictated the following letter to Dr. Hartman as the result:

"I have used several bottles of Peruna, and feel greatly benefited thereby from my Catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer will be able to fully eradicate tue disease of 30 years standing."—David Meekison, Member of Congress.

But this is not true of the public speaker or stage artist. His voice must be always clear, lungs perfect, diges tion undisturbed. Hence the popularity of Peruna among the leading actors and actresses of the country. They have come to regard Peruna as indispensable to their success. Their profession is so exacting that it requires perfect health in every particular, They regard Peruna as their friend and safeguard.

Many letters are received from this class of people. Miss Carrie Thomas, a prominent actress, of New York City, in speaking of Peruna, says: "I have used Peruna with splendid results. Would not be without it, No money would hire me to have a settled cold or chronic cough, or horseacres of land that Principal Shepherd ness. Catarrh is the most dreadful thing that could happen to one of my profession. Peruna is my shield and protector against that most undesir-

The origin of chronic catarrh, the most common and dreadful of chronic diseases, is a cold. This is the way the chronic catarrh generally begins. A person catches cold, which hangs on longer than usual. The cold generally starts in the head or throat. Then follows sensitiveness of the air passages which incline one to catch cold very easily. At last the person has a cold while seemingly, more or less discharge from the nose, spitting, frequent clearing of the throat, nostrils stopped up, full feeling in the head and sore and inflamed throat. While many people have been cured of chronic catarrh by a single bottle of Peruna, yet, as a rule, when the catarrh becomes thoroughly fixed more than one bottle is necessary, to complete a cure. Peruna has cured cases innumerable of catarrh of twenty years' standing. It is the best, if not the only internal remedy for chronic catarrh in existence.

But prevention is far better than Every person subject to catching cold should take Peruna at once at the slightest symptom of cold or sore throat at this season of the year, and thus prevent what is almost certain to end in chronic catarrh.

I have examined Mr. C. A. McLim and find: The pulse and temperature normal, no sign of hemorrhage, the lungs are negative. His weight has increased. Patient says the appetite is good. The signs point to his convalescence from Pulmonary Tuberculosis. He ascribes his recovery to his treatment with Powley's Liquified Ozone.-JOHN KELLY, M. D.

The Causes of Consumption. If you are troubled with pains in the chest, a sharp pain when breathing, catarrh of the throat or nose, hoarseness in the morning, weakness without apparent cause, it shows your system is in fit condition to receive the germs of disease and give them ground on which to work. If you wish to avoid all possible danger of consumption take Powley's Liquified Ozone, and get all the oxygen you can in your blood and system. If you have a chronic case you may possibly become cured. The case we cited is absolutely and positively true in every detail. It is one of the most remarkable that has come

Germany pours down its throat in beer and spirituous liquors generally $750,000,000. This money would mean a good deal in bread, boots, buggies, education, and a lot of other things.

Mr. Mabee says that out of 49 Conservative candidates, asked as to their choice for the Opposition leadership, only 7 wanted Mr. Whitney as first choice. The other votes were as follows: W. F. Maclean, 19; Dr. Nesbitt, of Toronto, 18; J. J. Foy, 5. It would seem from this that Mr. Whitney represents not only a minority in the House, but also only a minority in his own party.

The German Press is viewing somewhat suspiciously the Pan-American Congress. It admonishes the delegates from the Central and South American States to look out for the wiles of the United States representation. Germany's apparent cynicism is not altogether without good grounds. Her trade with the Central and South American States is somewhat extensive, and no doubt more amicable relations between these states and the United States would greatly enhance the trade of the latter at Germany's expense.

The Hon. David Mills has been spending a few days at Queen's University, where he has given some lectures on Law and Constitutional History. The Minister of Justice is a busy man, but we are glad that he finds time to write articles discussing Imperial Questions, and also that he was able to show his sympathy with the work of Queen's at this particular juncture. The lectures have been highly appreciated, and it is hoped that Mr. Mills will be able again to visit Kingston, to meet with professors and students.

A Southern newspaper, apropos of the subject of President Roosevelt's dining and wining Booker T. Washington, the negro reformer, states that "a dinner given in the home and privacy of his family means that the guest or his son may woo and win the host's daughter." The same journal goes on to state that there is but one more step to miscegnation. What can be more absurd than such a contention? What obligation can the mere entertainment to dinner place either the host or the guest under than merely the bonds of friendship! If such hospitality could possibly point to a mixture of races, what can be said of the fact that eastern princes have been regaled at the festal board of British royalty?

The New York Sun does not mince matters in the present contest when dealing with Tammany. This is what it says: "There have been bad governments of many sorts and names, monarchies, aristocracies, oligarchies. The form of bad government under which New York is ruled today is the worst of all. It is a caeocracy, government by the evil, a government of toughs. New York cannot stand it any longer. It is intolerable that the very worst elements of society which it is one of the duties of a decent government to punish and keep down should here be at the top and in full con-The reign of vice must stop. New York must have a government which does not exist for the protection of law-breakers."

"The most picturesque personality," says the Chicago Tribune, "in the present New York municipal campaign is that of Wm. Travers Jerome, justice of the Special Sessions Court who is running as the fusion candidate for district attorney. Mr. Jerome, who is now 42 years old, came upon the bench under the reform administration of Mayor Strong, and of late he has been conspicuous in efforts to hunt down Tammany-protected vice in the city. In this campaign he is the most aggressive and incisive speaker on either side, and seems to have the capacity to make an indefinite number of speeches nightly. There is a great eagerness among all classes to hear him, and his utterances are as serious as they are fearless. He recently lectured the Woman's Municipal League for presuming to go down to the tenement house women below Fourteenth street and instruct them in politics. He has also said uncomplimentary things upon the influence upon the municipal government of Mr. W. C. They are accordingly making every effort to insure his defeat. It was even publicly intimated at one of the meetings at which he spoke on Monday night that there were evidences of a plot against his person. It is safe to say, however, that he will not be silenced by imaginary or even real risks of that sort, and that if he is elected he will help make New York a better city. He is a great help to the fusion cause."

A subject of no small importance to Canadians is the probable attitude of the new President of the United States in the matter of reciprocal trade relations. In an address delivered some time before President McKinley's death, Mr. Roosevelt is reported to have made the following statement: "We must remember in dealing with other nations that benefits must be given when benefits are sought." It is a fact well known that the late president declared himself to be of the opinion that reciprocity treaties were in harmony with the spirit of the times, and that measures of retaliation were not. Mr. Roosevelt has already stated his aim, namely, to "continue absolutely and without variance the bolicy of President McKinley." Considering the naturally progressive character of the new President, little solicitude need be entertained in regard to retrogressive tariff measures.

Show Cities How to Improve Them-

According to the Springfield Republican, there is promise that an extremely valuable lesson in the art of securing the best municipal service will be given to the cities of the country at the Louisiana purchase exhibition in St. Louis. Such is the plan proposed by the Municipal Art Society of New York city, and it certainly should be carried out. Recognizing that the exposition must provide itself with equipments that are essential to every well-governed city, the question is asked why these should not be of the model sort, and so constitute an important figure in the public instruction which the exposition seeks to afford? Both practical and valuable are the ideas advanced. Thus a fire station will be needed. Let it show the latest and best in apparatus and methods. As the Municipal Journal and Engineer of New York says: "A model fire station could be made attractive to the multitude of visitors, as well as to those specially interested, having daily drills of the life-saving corps, showing the great value of life-saving net, the scaling ladder, lines and the like, all of which brought into requisition by the fire departments of all our large cities, which can be easily adapted to smaller ones. The service of the American fire departments, in this particular, as in some others, is superior to any other in the world. In the model police headquarters the Ber-tillon system for the identification and detection of criminals could be on ex-

The New Ameer.

The death of Abdurrahman Khan. who for over twenty years held the position of ameer or ruler of Afghanistan, has given occasion for the accession of his son, Habibullah. The correspondent of the London Times writes, concerning the old and the new ameer, as follows: "The late ameer was more feared than loved by the mass of his subjects, who probably welcome the milder rule of Habibullah, as the latter is a man of gentle disposition, though of marked administrative capacity also. He is not a great soldier, but the army respects him." In justice to the late ameer it may be stated that during his twenty years of office he did more in the matter of welding together the discordant elements in Afghan society than had any of his predecessors. The new ameer is now 38 years of age, and is quite conversant with the routine of administration. He has not only governed time as his father's representative in the seat of government.

It is too soon, however, to affirm that solved the perplexing problems of that Oriental state as to preclude the possibilities of any possible pretenders. ullah Khan, have acquiesced in the succession, and the probability is that they will not prove a source of danger. | judge. Rumors are, however, afloat at Calcutta, that Ayub Khan, a son of a former ameer, Shere Ali, and a claimant of the Afghan throne, has escaped British surveillance. The late Ameer Abdurrahman in the year 1881 met Ayub on the battlefield and completely routed his men. Ayub Khan was himway. We mean no unkindness to Mr. self captured, and has for the last twenty years been maintained in captivity in British India. As this once formidable Afghan chief is now aged, and owing to his long absence has lost most of his former prestige with the Afghan tribes, it is not probable, even if the rumor concerning his escape be true, that he will prove a dangerous the British Empire. Look at this list rival. Sir Acquin Martin, who for the past fifteen years has been in the closest relation with the Afghan Government, speaking on the subject of Russian influence, says that it is regarded Algoma Pioneer Farm, the Western as nil in Afghanistan. "I do not," says Dairy School, and the fruit spraying he, "think there is any likelihood of the subsidized tribes in the Khyber close the pass, and I fully believe that ed beyond reasonable doubt that the Habibullah is quite strong enough, and is sufficiently popular, to bring about a came to the conclusion that the shot secret that much of the ameer's re-> ances made in Cabul have been established along its banks." The Times, commenting editorially on the succession, says: "Habibullah has shown himself to possess the personal intrepidity which is the most indispensable of attributes to a ruler amongst a nation of fierce mountaineers. He has sat long in the seat of judgment, and he has known how to dispense justice as Orientals expect to see it dispensed by a king. His courage is free from the stain of ferocious cruelty, which was so conspicuous in his father, but there is no reason to suppose him incapable of the prompt severity which the government of a race so lawless as the Afghans oftentimes demands at the hands of their master. The barbarities practiced by the late ameer struck terror into the hearts of his enemies, but some good judges believe that they were not calculated to lessen the difficulties of his successor. If, on the other hand, they do not provoke disturbances for the sake of vengeance, they cannot but act as a foil to the milder sway expected of Habibullah. As the governors of the provinces and the military officers stationed at a distance from Cabul are all faithful followers of the late ameer, it is believed that they will exert themselves to secure the great aim of his declining years by upholding the suc-

OF ED. RICE FOR MURDER

Peculiar Finding of the Jury in

Matter Will Have to Go to Court of Appeal-The Judge's Charge.

Toronto, Nov. 2 .- Practically the verdict of the jury in the Rice case is that a certain conclusion that Rice had killed Constable Boyd could not be reached, but that the existence of a plot to escape was planned, and that Rice, by taking any part in it, rendered himself responsible for the consequences. The result of the finding will be that the case will come before the court of appeal, and that body will decide on the fate of the prisoner. He is now convicted of murder, but not sentenced, being held for a reserved case under conviction of being an accom-

He informed Mr. Robinette that he might prepare a case for the court of appeal and submit it to Mr. Guthrie His lordship directed that counsel for the defense be allowed to argue that it was a mistrial on account of the failure of the jury to agree on the main issue. He added that he would not pass sentence until the case was THE JUDGE'S CHARGE.

If they found such a conspiracy they would be justified in returning a verdict of willful murder against the prisoner, even if they were not satisfied that he was the actual author of the crime." The prisoner's counsel had given a faint suggestion that a verdict of manslaughter would be an easy way out of the difficulty, but although such a verdict could be returned in a murder trial, the jurors could not arrive at such a finding in this case. At Niagara Falls a young lady got on the train, and seeing no vacant seat, sat on the of the young man's seat. waited a few minutes to get up his nerve, then offered her his seat. She took it, and was soon conversing with a lady opposite her, telling all about the nice things she was going to surprise the folks at home with, incidentally remarking her destination was Woodstock. The conversation died away, and the maiden, being very tired, dozed off a bit. The brakie came along singing "Woodstock, next station," and still the lady slumbered. Then the young man (the same young man) nudged her and said he thought she got off at Woodstock. TO JOIN NEW ASSOCIATION

No. 1 Committee Indorses Plans of Municipal Union.

Hospital Trust To Be Billed for $1 600—The Proposed South Street Belt Line.

No. 1 committee executed with neatness and dispatch the business brought before it at its hour's session last night. The committee decided to recommend that the city join the newly-organized Canadian Municipal Assoclation, and a set of resolutions submitted by that body were considered, and all but one indorsed. An apparently deserving young man made application for one of the watches presented to the South African veterans. The hospital trust will be billed for a little matter of $1,600 or more which is said to be due the committee from that body. A number of matters which have been laid over from week to week were again dealt with in the same manner, but one of them-the South street belt line -was given a slight push forward. A variety of routine business was trans-acted. The members present were Ald. Greenless (in the chair), Cronyn, and Beattie, and Secretary Pope. W. D. Lighthall, mayor of Westmount, Que., and secretary of the re-cently organized Canadian Municipal Association, wrote, asking the council to become a member of the association, and submitting for consideration and acceptance a set of resolutions adopted at the association's convention in Toronto in August last. The resolutions were nine in number, and deals with the general betterment of municipal legislation and conditions. Among the points touched on were: The entire control of their own streets by municipalities; the repeal of all scrap iron legislation; the abolition of tax exemption for government prop-erty and employes; the extension of the principle of public ownership; the emphasizing of the importance of confining the electorate to purely municipal issues at municipal elections, and he securing of railway legislation more favorable to municipalities.

The members of the committee discussed the resolution. Ald. Greenlees and Beattie both said they were willing to "swallow them whole." On motion they were all indorsed with the exception of resolution No. 6. This set forth that the action of the railway committee of the privy council, in assuming full jurisdiction over, and arrogating the right to order municipalities to pay the whole or part of the cost of protecting railway crossings, bridges or sub-ways, had never been legally affirmed, and the resolution protested against such action, and instructed the executive of the association to take steps to obtain a legal decision coverng the matter.

While the aldermen were agreed that it would be as well that power were by and subservient to the great rail-ways," as one of the committeemen expressed it, they did not feel like entangling the city in any legal proceed-

On motion it was also decided to recommend that the city become a member of the association. It will cost the city $10, the fee for municipalities less than 50,000 in population. Herbert Wilson, son of Mrs. Wilson.

Wellington street, and a native Londoner, made application for one of the gold watches presented by the city to London's South African veterans. When the war broke out and the Canadian contingents left for the front, young Wilson desired to join them, but as he was at the time at New Orleans, he shipped from there direct to South Africa in a horse transport. Arrived at Care Town, he joined Mar-Winnipeg, Nov. 2.—The movement of shall's Horse,1st City Volunteers (Cape Colony) and served six months in the field. THE WOOL TRADE. Boston, Mass., Nov. 2.-The Commercial Bulletin says: All American records have been broken in the Boston wool market this week. The largest transactions hitherto on record in any one week's business were for the week ending Nov. 3, 1899, when 18,366,500 pounds were sold in Boston. This total has been surpassed by a week's transactions of not less than 25,000.000 pounds, a larger amount than the combined clips of Michigan and Ohio. PREMIER ROSS AT THE CAPITAL of Ontario.

Agriculturists Are Needed-Organized Effort to Secure This Class of Immigrants To Be Made.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.-Hon. George W. Ross spent considerable time here on Thursday in discussing with members of the Dominion Government certain matters that will be of practical advantage to Ontario, and in which the authorities here will doubtless willingly co-operate. The Ontario premier had a long interview with the minister of the interior in regard to adopting an immigration policy that would attract more agricultural laborers to Canada. The whole question was thoroughly discussed, and Mr. Ross is well satisfied with Mr. Sifton's desire to deal with it in a broad and comprehensive spirit.

AGRICULTURISTS NEEDED. The immigrants wanted, of course, are those who are particularly posed to engage in agriculture, whether they be from Great Britain, the United States, Germany of Scandinavia. Naturally, it is Mr. Ross' desire that New Ontario shall get the benefit of any movement of this kind, as well as old Ontario. The premier hopes to ascertain during the coming winter the extent of the demand for agricultural labor in Ontario. EXHIBITS FOR IMPERIAL INSTI-TUTES Mr. Ross also met Hon. Sydney Fisher and discussed with him the matter of the permanent exhibition at the Imperial Institute in London, to which Ontario contributes. The premier also urged upon the minister of agriculture the importance to Ontario, as well as to the whole of Canada, of presenting to the people of Great Britain in as striking a manner as possible the variety and extent of the natural resources of Ontario, and particularly its manufactures and raw materials. This could only be satisfactorily accomplished, Mr. Ross thought, by finding quarters more convenient to the business men of London. Mr. Fisher informed Mr. Ross that he was already making some move in that direction which would improve the existing conditions of things. Mr. Ross laid special emphasis upon the importance of having the food products of Ontario, and particularly its fruits, exhibited in a way that would attract more fully the attention of the people of Great Britain.

SETTLEMENT OF NEW ONTARIO. In a newspaper interview Mr. Ross dwelt at some length upon the Ontario Government's desire to settle New Ontario and to secure Mr. Sifton's co-operation in so doing. "We have," said he, "in this region, at least twelve million acres of good agricultural land, capable of supporting an immense population. It is a part of the province ers being content after the terrible which will one day add no small prolosses of 1900 to take moderate profits. | portion to Canada's national wealth.

Ontario contributes no small share toward the large annual expenditure on immigration, and so we should have no hesitation in looking for our proportion of the retirns. There is no reason under the sun why Ontario's sons should be moving to the prairies when they can avail themselves of splendidy opportu-nities for successful farming in the northwestern portion of their own pro-vince. That is the way the case pre-sents itself to my mind. We have already spent some money in making known the splendid resources of this country, and I think a few years will show that the outlay has been made to good advantage. At any rate, we are bound to lay the matter fairly before the public, with the full assurance that our efforts are not to prove fruit-

The waterway is there to our hands already. It has been traveled by the Indians for centuries on their way in and out from the great northern sea, and would need but little attention here and there to give settlers what they need—cheap ransportation for their grain and other products to the markets of the

A GREAT PROBLEM.

"It is a great problem we are facing in the development of this rich quarter of Canada. Its tilling will mean wonderful things for the whole Dominion, and particularly for the Ottawa Valley, through which it must have access to the business centers of the great world beyond. The Ontario Government fully realizes the importance of the question we have

"It is something worthy our peo-ple's most careful thought how Ontario shall make the most of the rich endowments that have been dealt to us by nature with such lavish hand. My chief concern is for the province which we live. We cannot spare to Manitoba and the Territories the best of our hardy sons. We need them to make the most of our home lands We have in New Ontario the most fertile soil, well watered, and in parts wooded. Let us make these facts known.'

ONTARIO MINES ACT. The Conservative press have represented Mr. Ross as coming to Ottawa to discuss the Ontario mines act with the minister of justice. This is altogether fallacious. It was long ago settled between the Dominion and Ontario Governments that the act question should form the subject of a reference to the supreme court, and there is no need for further discussion in regard to it.

During the day Mr. Ross visited and was pleased to observe many evidences of its progress and popularity.

The Joy of Life.

The real joy of life has little to do with comfort: it comes from the consciousness of strength to suffer, and bear, and achieve; it comes from the consciousness that one is doing a man's work, and earning a man's wages in the world. The thrill of a mountain climber as he comes suddenly upon the vision of half a continent spread out before him contains more real joy, more true life, than a year brings to the sluggish comfort seeker in the valley below. The scholar, as he surveys fields of knowledge opening in broader vistas before him, forgets the days and nights of unbroken study behind him. The great statesmanship, as he notes the steady movement of opinion towards him, feels a joyous sense of mastery which the memory of years of defeat and misconception does not embitter.

The Use of Opposition.

There is one form of evil which, while peculiarly annoying and aggravating at the time, may always be made the source of increased power and benefit. It is the opposition and antagonism which men personally receive. Usually they suffer the sting which this brings with it to rankle in their breasts, and to foster an increased antagonism on their part. Yet could they view it in another and truer light, they would rather welcome it as a means of advancement. Under all such contradiction there is a measure of truth, often a large measure, the discovery of which would be most advantageous. Emerson puts this well when he says: "The wise man throws himself on the side of h's assailants. It is more in his interest than it is theirs to find his weak The wound citatrices and falls off him like a dead skin, and, when they would triumph, lo! he has passed on invulnerable! Blame is safer than

Everyday Life and Character.

One's everyday life is a surer rerealer of character than one's public acts. There are men who are magnificent when they appear on great occasions-wise, eloquent, masterly-but who are almost unendurable in their fretfulness, unreasonableness, irascibility and all manner of selfish disagreeableness in the privacy of their own less degree, either in church or state, homes to those to who they ought to save by the free permission of "crea-

No doubt in these ases the common everyday, unflatter ing as it is, is a truer expression of the inner life than the hour or two of greatness or graciousness in the blaze of publicity.—Dr. J. R. Miller.

Energetic Men.

We love upright, energetic men. Pull them this way and then that way and he other, and they only bend, but in a trice they are on their feet. Bury them in the mud and in an hour they will be out and bright. They are not ever yawning away existence, or walking about the world as if they had come into it with only half their soul; you cannot keep them down; you can-not destroy them. But for these the world would soon degenerate. They are the salt of the earth. Who but they start any noble project? They build our cities and rear our manufactories: they whiten the ocean with their sails, and they blacken the heavens with the smoke of their steam vessels and furnace fires; they draw treasures from the mine; they plow the earth. Blessings on them! Look to them, young men, and take courage; imitate their example; catch the spirit of their energy and enterprise, and you will deserve, and no doubt commands, success.

The Man Who Is Ready.

Many men and women find to their sorrow and dismay that when the opportunity of a lifetime is presented to them they are utterly unable to grasp it because of lack of preparation. They are not ready for the hour of opportunity when it comes. They have that keen discernment, that mastery of details, that ripened judgment that only preparation can give. When a great man achieves a great triumph in art or literature, or even in business or war, it is often said of him that he is genius. So he is. He has the sort of genius Carlyle had in his mind when he wrote, "Genius is an immense capacity for taking trouble." Genius and work go hand in hand. The man who is ready when the hour of opportunity comes, and who sees that oppor tunity and uses it, has so trained his powers as to compel them to obey his His self-reliance is based on good judgment, and not on vaunting The man who is ready is the man who has a profound sense the responsibilities and possibilities of life. The person who screams, or uses the superlative degree, or converses with heat, puts the whole drawing-rooms to flight. If you wish to be loved, love measure. You must have genius or a prodigious usefulness if you would hide the want of measure. This perception comes in to polish and per-fect the part of the social instrument. Society will pardon much to genius and special gifts; but being in its nature a convention, it loves what is conventional, or what belongs to coming together. That makes the good and bad of manners; namely, what helps or hinders fellowship. For fashion is not good sense private, but good sense entertaining company. It hates corners and sharp points of character: hates quarrelsome, egotistical, solitary and gloomy people; hates whatever can interfere with social blending of parties; whilst it values all particularities as in the highest degree refreshing which can consist with good fellowship. And, besides the general infusion of wit to heighten civility, the direct splendor of intellectual power is ever welcome in fine society, as the costliest addition to its rule and

The Woman's Cause is Man's.

There is no other proof so great of the good understanding that subsists between men and women as the voluntary relinquishment by men of powers hitherto unshared. It is the highest tribute that has ever been paid to woman, and yet one of the most unobserved, that not a school has ever been opened to her except by the vote of men, nor has she been admitted to any learned profession, or to an enlarged sphere in the line of honorable occupation except by men; nor has any wo man been made a voter, in greater or justice to themselves. Every woman is the daughter of a man, and every man is the son of a woman. In this organic law is grounded the unalterable faith that cheers me on my way while I seek to multiply the topics of interest and thought between men and women, that home-life may be enriched and hometions which, on their own testimony, have moved men to this bestewment of power upon the gentle comrade at their side. First, men are conscious of being abundantly able to take care of themselves and their interests, and secondly they have learned by centuries. ondly, they have learned by centuries ond have held their own throughout of observation and experience, that, as a class, women (being the mothers of forming, and no truer or more enduring men) are, if possible, more concerned the has ever yet been forged.—The late to do them justice than they are to do Frances E. BABY'S OWN TABLETS C

Nothing in the world is such a comfort and joy as a healthy, hearty, rosycheeked, happy baby.

Babies can be kept in perfect health only by having at hand and administering when needed some purely vegetable harmless remedy and of all this class of medicines Baby's Own Tablets are conceded to be the best.

FOR CONSTIPATION,

colic, diarrhœa, simple fevers, sour stomachs, teething babies, indigestion and sleeplessness these tablets are a really wonderful cure.

You can give them to the smallest baby without the slightest fear. Dissolved in water, they will be taken readily.

They contain absolutely not a particle of opiate or other injurious drugs.

They are small, sweet lozenges that any baby will take without objection and their action is prompt and pleasant.

They will tone up the whole system and make the little one as hearty and free from infantile disorders as any mother could wish.

They cost 25 cents a box. All druggists sell them or they may be secured by sending the price direct and the tablets will be

His despair. like the blind Sampson, puts its arms about the pillars of the temple and brings the whole structure of his being into ruin. We can bear disaster if only hope is left, but disaster and despair are too much for human nature to endure.

Still, we who mourn are not wholly in the right. We robe ourselves in the gloomiest black, which is a wall through which the angels of grief cannot enter. Black is a kind of infidelity which, though we are unconscious of it, is very harmful, a sort of barrier to the sweet influences of another world. The extreme of mourning is too much a display, and it shows that we have not the courage of our convictions. As a symbol of our state of mind it is not in accordance with the precepts of our religion. It is the garb of starless midnight, quite unworthy of our belief in immortality. God has not made anything black, then why should we? His sunshine covers the very grave with grass and flowers; His universe is bright and cheery from dawn to dawn. Why then should we intimate by our garments that He has neglected to reveal our proper atti-tude in one of the supreme moments of life? The purpose of religion is to make us serene, quiescent, resigned, because death is not what it seems to be, but, on the other hand, a birth of some freed soul from the limitations and pains of a wearied body. Moreover, a great deal of our grief is selfish. We have suffered an affiction and we think of ourselves. If our faith is worth having we know that they who have gone are better off than those who remain. That fact we do not dwell upon. Instead of being grateful that there is a heaven, and that our loved ones are there, that they are beyond the vicissitudes of time, we mourn simply for our own loss, forgetful of their gain. This is not well.

We want a more triumphant faith. Our eyes are dull, and we do not see the truth. One glimpse of heaven and we should lay aside the mere trap-pings of woe, for they are dismal and heartbreaking. We may weep, tears are a lens through which the nvisible would sometimes become visible; but this despair, this feeling that everything has suddenly been plunged n darkness, is all wrong.

God still lives, the loved ones still live, having entered a sphere of larger usefulness, and there is a royal high-way from the throne of God's infinite love to our little earth along which they will visit us in our sorrow. Real religion may bow its head, but beneath all other thoughts is the radiant belief that they and we will meet again. Sorrow can wear a diadem of hope and even the breaking heart may smile because the Eternal Father and the house not made with hands are in the near distance.—George H. Hepworth.

THE THREE PHRASES

That Furnished Inspiration for President McKinley's Famous Buffalo Speech.

A Washington special to the New York World says that President Mc-Kinley's great speech at Buffalo grew from three phrases thought out by him one evening in Canton while he was smoking his after-dinner cigar. This speech, which, it is generally conceded. will live as one of the greatest orations of history.

About three weeks before he was to leave Canton for Buffalo on the visit which terminated with his death, the president and Secretary Cortelyou were sitting together in the president's office in his home. It was 7 o'clock, and the lights had not yet been lighted. The president had been busy all day with letters and public matters, and had gone to his office to smoke his cigar before taking up another batch cor of correspondence Mr. Cortelyou had it.

those who fish for a livelihood. Those sturdy or hard-working people need no vindication or defense. Our concern is with those who fish because they have an cccult and mysterious instinct which leads them to love it. because they court the healthful, invigorating exertion it invites, and because its indulgence brings them in close contact and communion with nature's best and most elevating manfestations. This sort of fishing is pleasure and not work-sport and not money-grabbing. Therefore it is conemptuously regarded in some quarters than no better than a waste of time. Generous fishermen cannot fail to look with pity upon the benighted persons who have no better conception than this of the uses and beneficent objects of rational diversion. In these sad and ominous days of mad fortunechasing, every patriotic, thoughtful citizen, whether he fishes or not, should lament that we have not among our countrymen more fishermen. At the outset, the fact should be ecognized that the community of fishermen constitute a separate class the earth. It has sometimes been said that fishermen are born and not made. This is true to the extent that nothing can supply the lack of certain inherent, constitutional and inborn qualities or traits which are absolutely necessary to a fisherman's make-up. Of course there are many who call themselves fishermen, and who insist upon their membership in the fraternity who have not in their veins a drop of legitimate fishermen blood. They are like certain whites called squaw-men, who hang about Indian reservations, and gain certain advantages in the tribes by marrying full-blooded Indian women. Surely no just person would for a moment suppose that genuine Indians could be treated fairly by measuring them according to a squaw-man standard. Neither can genuine fishermen be fairly treated by judging them according to the stan-dards presented by squaw fishermen. WHY FISH STORIES SHOULD BE BELIEVED. In point of fact, full-blooded fishermen whose title is clear, and whose natural qualifications are undisputed. have ideas, habits of thought and mental tendencies so peculiarly and especially their own, and their beliefs and code of ethics are so exclusively fitted to their needs and surroundings, that an attempt on the part of strangers to speak or write concerning the character or conduct of its approved membership savors of impudent presumption. None but fishermen can properly deal with these delicate matters.

What sense is there in the charge of laziness sometimes made against true fishermen? Laziness has no place in the constitution of a man who starts at sunrise and tramps all day with only a sandwich to eat, floundering over bushes and briers, and stumbling over rocks or streams in pursuit of elusive trout-Neither can a fisherman who, with rod in hand, sits in a boat or on a bank all day be called lazy-providing he attends to his fishing and is physically and mentally alert to his occupation. This charge may perhaps be truthfully made against squaw-fishermen who become easily discouraged, who "tire and faint" early, and lie down under the shade to sleep, or go in swimming, or who gaze about or read a book while their hooks rest baitless on the bottom; but how false and unfair it is to accuse regular full-blooded fishermen of laziness, based on such performances as these! And yet this is absurdly done by those who cannot tell a reel from a compass, and who by way of familiarizing themselves with their topic, leave their beds at eight o'clock in the morning, ride to an office at ten, sit at a desk until three or perhaps five, with an hour's interval for a hearty luncheon, and go home in the proud belief that they have done an active, hard day's work. Fishermen find no fault with what they do in their own affairs, nor with their conception of but they do insist that such people have no right to impute laziness to those who fish. It is sometimes said that there is such close relationship between mendacity and fishing, that in matters connected with their craft all fishermen are untruthful. It must, of course, be admitted that large stories of fishing adventure are sometimes told by fishermen-and why should this not be so? Beyond all question there is no sphere of human activity so full of strange and wonderful incidents as theirs. Fish are constantly doing the most mysterious and startling things; and no one has yet been wise enough to explain their ways or account for their conduct. The best ashermen do not attempt it; they move and strive in the atmosphere of mystery and uncertainty, constantly aiming to reach results without a clue, and through the cultivation of faculties non-existent or inoperative in the common mind. In these circumstances fishermen necessarily see and do wonderful things. If those not members of the brotherhood are unable to assimilate the recital of these wonders, it is because their believing apparatus has not been properly regulated and stimulated. Such disability falls very far short of justifying doubt as to the truth of the narrative. The things narrated have been seen and experienced by a fisherman's eye and perceptions. This is perfectly understood by listening fishermen, and they to their enjoyment and edification, are permited to believe what they

This faculty is one of the safest signs of full-blooded right to membership. If incredulity is hinted by a professed member no injustice will be done if he is at once put under suspicion as a squaw-fisherman. As to non-members who accuse true fishermen with falsehood, it is perfeetly clear that they are entirely unfitted to deal with the subject. Upon this theory any story of personal experience told by a fisherman is to the fishing apprehension indubitably true; and, since disbelief in other quarters is owing to the lack of this apprehension, the folly of accusing fishermen of habitual untruthfulness is quite

THE TAKING OF LEVIATHAN. The position thus taken by the brotherhood requires that they stand solidly together in all circumstances. Tarpon fishing has added greatly to our responsibilities. Even larger fish than these may, with the extension of American possessions, fall within the treatment of American fishermen. As in all past emergencies, we shall be found sufficient in such future ex-igencies. All will go we'll if, without pretense of benevolent assimilation cure in my case, and I am healthier and fleshier than I have been for years. tinue our belief in all our brethren declare they have done or can do. A few thousand years ago the question was impressively asked, "Canst thou draw out leviathan with a hook?" We must not falter if, upon its repeition in the future, a brother replies: Yes, with a ten-ounce rod;" nor even if another declares he has already landed one of these monsters. If American institutions are found adequate to the new tasks which Destiny has put upon them in the extension of our lands, the American chapter of the world's fishermen must not fail subdue by their time-honored methods and practices, and by continued truthfulness in narration of adventure, any new difficulties presented by the extension of our waters. DR. M. G. McLAUGHLIN, 130 Yonge Street, Toronto, Ont. OFFICE HOURS:

subject, especial reference should be made to one item more conspicuous, perhaps, than any other, among those comprised in the general charge of fishermen's mendacity. It is constantly said that they greatly exaggerate the size of the fish that are lost. This accusation, though most frequently and flippantly made, is in point of fact based upon the most absurd arrogance and a love of slanderous assertion that passes understand-These are harsh words; but they are abundantly justified.

In the first place, all the presumptions are with the fisherman's contention. It is perfectly plain that large fish are more apt to escape than small ones. Their weight and activity, combined with the increased trickiness and resourcefulness of age and' experience, of course, greatly increase their ability to tear out the hook, and enhance the danger that their antics se a fatal weakness in hook leader, line or rod. Another presumption which must be regretfully men tioned arises from the lact that in many cases it is the encounter with a large fish which causes such excitement, and such distraction or perversion of judgment, as leads the fisherman to do the wrong thing or fail to do the right thing at the critical instant-thus actually and effectively contributing to an escape which could not and would not have occurred except in favor of a large fish. Beyond these presumptions we have the deliberate and simple story of the fisherman himself, giving with the utmost sincerity all the details of misfortune, and indicating the length of the fish he has lost, or giving in pounds his exact weight. Now why should this statement be discredited? It is made by one who struggled with the escaped fish. Perhaps he saw it. This, however, is not important, for he certainly felt it on his rod, and he knows precisely how his rod behaves in the emergency of every conceivable strain.

THE FINNY HYPNOTIST. All true fishermen who listen to his plain, unvarnished tale accept with absolute faith the declared length and weight of the fish that was almost caught; and with every presumption, besides positive statement. against them, carping outsiders who annot fish, and who love to accuse fishermen of lying, are exposed in an attempt to originate or perpetuate an nvious or malicious libel.

The case of our fraternity on this point of absolute and exact truthfulness is capable of such irrefragable demonstration that anything in the way of confession and avoidance ought to be considered inadmissible. And yet simply for the sake of argument, or by way of curious speculation, it may be interesting to intimate how a variation of a few inches in the exact length or a few ounces in the exact weight of a lost fish, as given by the loser, may be accounted for, without attributing to him intentional falsehood. The theory has been re-cently started that a trained hunting dog points a bird in the field solely because the bird's scent creates a hypnotic influence on the dog, which compels him by a sort of suggestion to direct his nose toward the spot from which such scent emanates there is anything worth considering in this theory why may not a strug-gling fish at the end of a line exert such a hypnotic influence on the intensely excited and receptive nature at the other extremity of the fishing outfit as to suggest an arbitrary and independent statement of the dimensions of the hypnotizer? With the accusations already menioned it would certainly seem that the enmity of those who revile fishermen and their ways should be satisfied. They have not been content, however, in the demonstration of their evil-mindedness without adding their indictment against the brotherhood the charge of profanity. Of course, they have not the hardi-hood to allege that our profanity is of that habitual and low sort which characterizes the coarse and ill-bred. who offend all decent people by constantly interlading their speech with fearful and irrelevant oaths. They, nevertheless, find sufficient excuse for their accusation in the sudden ejaculations, outwardly resembling profanity, which are occasionally wrung from fishermen in trying crises and in moments of soul-straining unkind-

Now this question of profanity is largely one of intention and deliber-ation. The man who, intending what he says, coolly indulges in imprecation, is guilty of an offense that admits of no excuse or extenuation;

MUSIC AND DRAMA STILL FAVORABLE!

"At Cripple Creek."

Hal Reid's new melodrama, "At Cripple Creek," was received favorplot is quite sensational, with considerable dime-novel flavor, a constant thirst for gore being displayed by the two deep-dyed, cold-hearted villains. Fred Mosley, as Joe Mayfield, the hero, filled his part acceptably. Miss W. Francis, who was seen here last season in "On the Suwanee River," was excellent as the heroine, Belle Gordon. Little Miss Beatrice sang exceptionally well for so young a child. villainous characters were well acted by Messrs. Frank Beal and Collin Varrey. The other rolls were well filled. The scenic effects were worthy of mention, particularly the canon scene in act two.

Closing Their Engagement.

The Fenberg Stock Company last night presented the powerful Russian drama, "The Crucifix," to a good-sized audience, which testified its appreciation of the excellent work done by every member of the cast. The company has given the patrons of the theater entire satisfaction during its engagement here, and it should receive a hearty patronage on any return visit that it makes. The Fenberg Stock Company is easily the best repertoire company that has ever been seen in this city. Tonight the Fenberg Company close their engagement with the big production of "The Two Orphans," the play made famous by Kate Claxton. This piece will be Kate Claxton. This piece will be mounted and staged in first-class manner, as the company carries spespecial scenery and costumes for its production. The cast will be strengthened by the addition of Mr. Edwin Mackey, who will be remembered as the leading man of the company when last here. A large house should greet the Fenbergs on this their farewell

KYRLE BELLEW TONIGHT. Under the heading of "A Remarkable Production at the Russell Theater." the Ottawa Free Press says concerning "A Gentleman of France," which is the bill at the new Grand tonight: "Mr. Bellew in the title role, gives an interpretation which is as near perfect as one could expect to see. Bellew's delivery is perfect and without the least sign of ranting. His softness of tone is a pleasing change from that which we are often compelled to listen to in the present day productions. Possibly to many his lack of ranting is a fault, but from an artistic standpoint is a treat. His stage presence is to be admired for its lack of mannerism perhaps, as much as anything else, and in the lighter passages he shows rare appreciation of humor.

"Mr. Bellew was ably supported. In Miss Eleanor Robson, his leading lady, he has an actress of power and one possessing a high dramatic ability. As Mile. de la Vire she had ample opportunity for the full display of dramatic talents, love, hate, anger and jealousy being all shown at different times. The display of temper in the sixth act was a can of acting, and, in fact, throughout the production, her work was of the high-est order. She has a charming manand a graceful stage presence, which wins for her the good-will of the audience from the start. In her love passages she is tender and sweet. and in the more dramatic parts, particularly where she defies her captors, she displays great power.

'The strongest scene in the entire production is perhaps that at the close of the fifth act when the sword combat takes place on the staircase. Nicely worked out and cleverly executed it is intensely interesting, and its conclusion wins curtain call after curtain call before the audience is

"The scenery was greatly admired by all, and on several occasions the rising of the curtain was the signal for enthusiastic applause. The final act in the garden at Mendon, with the autumn tinted trees, the falling leaves and the warmth of color and beautiful sunshine effects, was perhaps the most remarkable.

"Curtain calls were frequent, in most of the acts Mr. Bellew having to respond to four. At the conclusion of the sixth act, the authoress was called for and Mr. Bellew escorted Miss Harriet Ford before the footlights, where she gracefully responded to the Offerings, 89 cars, closing 5c to 10c lower than opening; heavy, $6 to $6 15; mixed, $6 to $6 10; Yorkers, $5 90 to $6; light Yorkers, $5 70 to $5 80; pigs, $5 50 to $5 60; roughs, $5 50 to $5 60; stags, $4 75 to $5 85; lambs, $4 50 to $4 75; common to fair, $4 to $4 35; sheep, $3 to $3 85; common to fair, $2 to $2 55. "THE FAST MAIL."

A complete freight train of fourteen cars, with illuminated caboose and practical working engine; a magnifient scene of Niagara Falls by moonlight, with real mist, as seen from the Suspension bridge, the flight of the fast mail, which crosses the stage at the rate of 40 miles an hour, and a realistic steamboat race and explosion on the Mississippi are among the most wonderful scenes and mechanical efwhich appears at the new Grand next Monday night.

"CAUGHT IN THE WEB." The interior of a police station is ividly depicted in "Caught in the Web," the great detective play to be presented at the new Grand next Tuesday evening. The huge steel cages for vicious criminals and the tiers of cells are effectively shown The climax of this act, when the villain leaps through a huge window, taking the glass and sash with him is one of the most exciting ever placed upon the stage.

> FOOTBALL. A HOT GAME.

An interesting and exciting game of football was played on St. John's athletic grounds on Friday evening between the Normal school and 'Varsity teams. The Normal school and 'Varsity teams. The Normalites were laboring under great disadvantages, three of their best men being absent. It was a foregone conclusion among the 'Varsity men that they were to have a "walkover." but they were doomed to disappointment, for in seven minutes after the game started J. Beatty, of the Normal team, shot the sphere through like an arrow, making the only score during the game, the result being 1 to 0 in favor of the Normalites. The game was keenly contested from start to finish, and much rough play was indulged in, McMillan, of the 'Varsity team, being ruled off for rough play. Mr. Govenlock, of the Collegiate, gave Mr. Govenlock, of the Collegiate, gave entire satisfaction as referee. The teams lined up as follows: Normal-Goal, W. State of Trade in Canada and the United States as Reported by Bradstreet's and Dun & Co.---Bank Clearings.

trade review, weekly summary: The trade situation at Montreal is good and active for this season. Large quantities of freight from the interior are being received for shipment by ocean vessels, and the movement of freight from the jobbing trade to inland water points so as to reach their destination before the close of navigation gives added activity to the general movement in trade. The outlook for general trade is very favorable.

Trade at London has been active this week. Jobbers report a good demand for late fall and winter goods from country points, and retail trade in the country is very fair. Values of stantes are firm.

Business at Ottawa has been steadlly expanding the past ten days. Job-bers are busy filling orders for various retail centers to meet the late fall and winter demand for seasonable goods, and the movement in this respect is likely to continue for some time. Values are firm for most lines of staple goods.

At Quebec trade reports are generally encouraging. A considerable quantity of goods are being shipped before the close of navigation. Remittances are coming in better.
The sorting demand for general lines

n wholesale circles at Toronto keeps up very well considering the weather conditions, which are decidedly adverse to any expansion in the movement of heavy cold weather goods. The conditions of trade are sound and the outlook for a smart improvement with the first touch of cold weather is very encouraging. Values of staple goods are generally held firm. Counry remittances are improving.

Hamilton wholesale trade is quite active. There has been many sorting orders received this week from travelers and by mail, and the prospects are very promising for the business of the next two months. Payments are improving with the increasing deliveries of grain and other produce in the Northwest, as well as in Ontario, Business at Winnipeg has been improving with the fine weather and the increasing deliveries of wheat. The reports on the quality of the grain the damage from the moisture a few weeks ago was exaggerated. There is a big demand for staple goods for the winter trade, and the outlook is bright. Business at British Columbia trade centers, according to reports, are rather more encouraging. At Vancouver and Victoria there is a fair movement in fall and winter goods for retailers. It is thought that the establishment of an assay office at Vancouver will favorably affect trade there by bringing in gold which formerly went to American points. Payments are rath-

IN THE UNITED STATES. -New York, Nov. 1 .- Bradstreet's re-The complaints of car shortage noted in Bradstreet's trade reports for weeks past are repeated this week in an even greater degree. In keeping with raw cotton several other farm products have weakened this week. Wheat has felt the influence of the heavy movement of grain at the Northwest, heavy increase in visible supplies in Manitoba reached Bradstreet's and rather less critical advises from Argentine. In addition the stories of dullness and depression in the export business have affected trade, though it is to be noted that wheat and corn shipments together is prominent, though held down slightly by wheat. A large short interest is said to exist in that grain, and wet weather and good prices have stimulated prices of that product and of oats. Throughout the weather is generally complained of, but business is much more satisfactory than a year ago, owing to better crop conditions. On the Pacific coast trade s more active than last year, and collections are fair to good.

Wheat, flour and barley exports are very large from San Francisco and Seattle. At the coast trade is duller in the Atlantic coast cotton-growing district by the backward movement of

At the east the stringency in the leather and hide situation continues, although the rush of fall and winter shoe shipments is about over. Shipments are smaller than last week, but still much larger than a year ago, Leather is strong, and margins of profit in shoe manufacturing are small. Nothing in particular in iron and steel is noted. In finished products, bar iron, sheets, plates and structural material are in unprecedented demand at Chicago. A phenomenal demand for structural material is noted at Pittsburg. Hardware is active the country over. Copper maintains its former strength. Failures for the week number 172, as against 223 last week, 165 in this week vear ago, 174 in 1899 and 183 in 1898. Wheat, including flour, exports for the week aggregate 6,672,888 bushels, as against 4,952,134 bushels last week and 3,612,421 bushels in this week last year. Wheat exports July 1 to date (seventeen weeks), aggregate 106,729,-273 bushels, as against 62,200,290 bush-

Structural material is urgently sought and mild weather prolongs the season for buying pipe. Footwear manufacturers have made a general advance in prices, restoring the figures of early spring. Textile markets are well sustained. Woolen milis have ample orders, and take large quantities of raw material, holding wool prices firm. Cotton goods are in brisk request with no evidence of excessive stocks. Irregularity prevails in the markets for staples. Speculators secured a distinct decline from the unusually high position recently attained by pork products, while at the same time corn made a further advance. the mucous membrane of the throat, lungs, stomach and bowels. Combined with possessed by animal oils. By its soothing, healing and cleansing action upon the stomach and bowels the digestive organs are kept in a healthy condition so

The wind went shivering through the pine trees. One of those sudden chills was in its breath which come now and again on the warmest spring day to warn us that winter has not gone away from English meadows, hill-sides and coppices. but is lingering near, ready to return and smite down the forward flowers in their young pride, and nip the bright blossoms in their bold vanity. The wind brought a sound on its cold wings—the loud, deep, solemn tolling of a bell.

"What is that?" said Elsie starting

"What is that?" said Elsie, starting.
"The bell of St. Michael's, Farley.
Somebody of importance is dead. Who While he spoke the lovers heard the sound of footsteps in the drive outside the shrubbery—the footsteps of several people walking in haste and excitement. "Who are these?" said Owen. But he did not go forward to meet these persons, where they were the persons, whoever they were. No; he shrank back, and Elsie thought of that afterwards, with a pang at her heart which words could never explain. Owen shrank back until he stood within the shrank back until he stood within the shadow of an enormous laurel tree.

"Let them go on," he muttered. "I almost guess who they are. Yes, I fancy that you will hear something within the next hour that will make you almost wish that you had never met me."

"What do you mean?" cried Elsie.

"Owen, dear Owen, don't frighten me! don't keep me in suspense! You said just now that something fearful had happened! You said that you wished you could trust me! What has happened, Owen?"

ed, Owen?"
"I can't tell you," he said, putting hts hand before his eyes. "You will hear soon enough. But I know you will make excuse. You will think of the provocation, the insults, the enormous temptation. Good-bye, darling-my own, my darling! mine for ever, through evil report and good report! You don't know what ewil report is, Elsie; but if one is innocent one can laugh in one's sleeve at the world's gibes and judgment, eyen if it puts one in prison, and calls one a felon; but if one is not clear—if one's miseries have driven one into a deed that one would give one's very life to "What is it? What is it Owen."

"What is it? What is it. Owen, dear Owen? You—you frighten me!"
She was trembling like a leaf. He took her by the arm, made her rest her head upon his shoulder, and stroked her cheek

Don't be afraid. Elsic: the time will come when I shall hold up my head again. Just now I must hide it. I will not be seen. I am going to live under another name for a time—only for a time; but you shall know where I am always. I know that I can trust you."

He pressed his lips to hers; one passionate kiss and he was gone. Walking swiftly among the trees, he was soon lost to her sight.

Did joy or sorrow fill her heart? Neither and yet both. She were a light their merits become properly known to the public.

"It is hard to realize the possibilities of the immense business there is to be done over there," said Mr. Slater, "and we would be foolish not to take advantage of the opportunity. We can land goods in England in less time, and for considerably less cost for transportation, than we can in British Columbia, and just think for a moment of the difference in population." The Cana-

she trembled and rejoiced all in the same "He loves me," she said to herself.

"He loves me," she said to herself.
"Nothing shall ever make me doubt him again! But there is a secret, a mystery! He seems to have done something wrong; he is ashamed of something. He said I should hear of it. Oh, I hope I shall not! I hope that nobody knows of it!"

Then Elsie hastened back towards the house. There was something in its aspect, as she mounted the grand flight of stone steps and looked into the grand entrance hall, which astonished her. The door was open, and there was quite a crowd of servants assembled. Everybody seemed to be talking at once. A houseseemed to be talking at once. A house-maid, with a very pale face, and eyes wide open in wonder, came to meet her on the threshold.

"Oh, miss, have you heard what has

'Oh, miss, have you heard what has happened?'

'No; tell me, please.''

'Lord Hammond, miss, is dead—murdered! they found his body in a coppice on his uncle's land at Raby Hall. They hay dreadful things—that one of the young gentlemen, his cousins, must have quarreled with him and shot him; his own gun lays by his side unloaded. He was found last night about have been tolling for him. Some people have come here after master, because he's a magistrate, to ask him to issue a warrant for all the three sons, and master he won't can't call her back to life."

Elsie staggered where she stood; was this what Owen had meant when he had talked of temptation to wrong? of provocation and insuit? Ah! and only yesterday she had left those two cousins in the primrose wood together quarreling! Through evil report and good report! Had he not said so? Had he not asked her, when she heard that something fearful had happened, still to make excuses; to remember how poverty had ground his family pride beneath its cruel heel? These titled Hammonds, too, had been hard on the poorer brothers. Dead? murdered? That reckless, handsome, self-willed Arhur, the idol of his saintly mother? Owen? no, he had not done this! He was an English gentleman—not a Greek brisand—no, he was not a murderer!

"It can't be true!" she broke forth, passionately, "It can't be true! his gun must have gone off by itself, caught in a bush or something; things like that often happen. No, it's not true it's not true!"

Eliza, the housemaid, dried her own tears.

"I wish I could believe it was not. Poor Miss Rosa, if any blame foll."

I wish I could believe it was not. Poor Miss Rosa, if any blame falls on Mr. Owen it will kill her." Owen it will kill her."
Elsie shrank from meeting Rosa. She had almost forgotten her existence during the time that she had been talking with Owen Hammond, and trying to comprehend what the meaning was of all his most mysterious allusions and strange pleadings for her gentler judgment when the world should blame him.

She had not thought of Rosa; she thought of her now-weeping terrified he world should blame him.

She had not thought of Rosa; she hought of her now—weeping, terrified, wild with apprehension, and with a bitwild with apprehension, and with a bit-ter pang added, that the man for whose sake she would have laid down her own ter pang added, that the man for whose sake she would have laid down her own life did not return her love.

"She will not want me, she would rather be alone," she said to herself, "I will not intrude. Oh! if she knew—if she knew that he loved me how she would hate me! I think she must not know; it will add bitterness to her bitter cup," Poor Elsie grew dramatic in her thoughts; such words as "bitter cup, eternal separation, love trampled into the dust," all rang in her ears, also another word that had been meaningless to her hitherto, so far as her own individual experience was concerned—a word which she had read in history, and now and anon read stories about. A word horrible, but as far removed from her daily thoughts as the pole star is from the earth. Murder! that was the word which the slender schoolgirl seemed to see in letter of red painted upon every wall in that splendid house called Bracebridge Hall. Murder! that was the frightful word which sounded again and again in her ears. She had promised Owen that when she heard the world speak evilly of him she would not believe what she heard. Stay, was that outte what he had asked her to promise him?—not that—ah! horror of horrors! she remembered his words now; they had been nothing like that; had they not amounted to a confession of something evil? some crime rommitted? He had said: "If anybody had been tempted by sorrow and oppression and dread to do anything wrong, believe that that person was out of his senses at the time, driven by poverty and the scorn of the world, and the fear of these detestable, overbearing, titled Hammonde." monds."

Then he had talked of somebody doing a deed which he would give worlds afterwards to have left undone. Horror of horrors! he must have quarreled with Lord Hammond and have shot him in a regal.

When he arrived so late, so agitated, at Bracebridge Hall the night before, he must have known that he had left his cousin dead in the avenue—the rookery hear the ruined church; and he had come to break it off with Rosa because he knew now that when the two elder men were dead he—he would be the—Earl of Chase. He stood almost as near now to the lands and the coronet as the dead young lord had stood yesterday. There was the earl, and there was his own feeble, broken-down father between him and lands and title. Had he thought of all that when he shot his first cousin down as one shoots a mad dag? Murder! Wherever she looked she seemed to see that accursed word written. There was that accursed word written. There was another word, too, which she saw when she closed her eyes against the darkness; it was a word glowing in letters of flam and that word was "Love!",

OPEN BRANCHES IN ENGLAND

Slater Shoe Company Decides on Expansion.

Mr. Chas. E. Slater Outlines the Pian to Invade Great Britain.

[Montreal Herald.]

"They don't appreciate Canadians sufficiently in England, we are all Americans," said Mr. Chas. E. Slater, president and general manager of the Slater Shoe Company yesterday, as he chatted freely about his business trip to European centers. He has only lately returned from a trip to London and Paris, made with the object of extending the comapny's foreign business with the result that he is convinced that the only way to permanently secure a share of the British trade is to open a series of Slater Shoe Stores, on the same special system of selling and advertising to the consumer direct, as has made the Slater Shoe so well known and popular in Canada. spent about six weeks in investigating the shoe trade and noted the tremendous trade of the London Shoe Company, and of dozens of others who have as many as from 75 to 300 retail branches in different parts of the kingdom. The English companies do their boot and shoe business largely on the multiple system; that is, a firm like Manfield, or Lilley & Skinner, own many branches, but selling all kinds of boots instead of one special make or kind. There are no English manufacturers specializing like The Slater Shoe Company, making Goodyear ed goods alone, which are bound to replace the hand-made shoe, as soon as their merits become properly known to "It is hard to realize the possibilities dian field is limited, as is well shown by the export leather busidess. The tanners of Canada shipped nine million pounds of sole leather to England last year. The English manufacturer is fast losing ground in his own country. There is no duty on boots and shoes going into England, and this, coupled with the government rebate to manufacturers in Canada, of 90 per cent on foreign material used in manufacture for export, made it plain sailing for his company. This rebate applies to Bermuda and Australia as well as in other countries with which Mr. Slater arranged for agencies while in London, which is, of course, the center of the shipping trade of the world. Trade conditions, in boots and shoes especially, were very different from those in Canada. As a rule the stores were smaller, as were also the stocks carried. There the retailers carry a mass of all kinds of stuff, packed into shop, as well as displaying so one many different kinds of goods in the window, using almost every inch of space, that it is bewildering to purchasers. No extensive advertising was done by the retailers. Asked if a fac-tory might be successfully operated in England on a basis similar to the one here, Mr. Slater said, the conditions were such that in his opinion it would be out of the question for a good many years to come.

The labor unions work to the disadvantage of the English manufacturer when taking into consideration the increase in imports. For instance, the workmen are prohibited from making more than a specified number of boots per day, and are very arbitrary on the question of the introduction of new and improved machinery. Plenty of workmen are idle, and he believed that general decadence had set in through-out the manufacturing industries. To use his own words, "there are rafts of American and German goods of all kinds elbowing English-made goods of all out of business." He was compelled He was compelled to smile at the utter lack of appreciation of Canadian industry, brains and enterprise in England. Whatever prestige American business men had gained in the English market reflected to the credit of Canadians, because the average Britisher did not discriminate at all between Canadians and Americans.

In Paris, too, he saw an opening for Canadian shoes, but all that and the many elements of the opening of branches were details that would follow in due course. The nucleus was formed; the initiatory stages were completed for Slater branches in England, and he felt confident of a great success await-

THE AQUEDUCT RACES. New York, Nov. 2 .- Aqueduct offered fairly good sport yesterday. There was little improvement in the starting. Three favorites were successful. The Amazon. at 3 to 1 in the first, Lucky Star at 7 to 10 in the second, and Jack McGinn at 9 to 5 in the last. The weather was dull and threatening, but no rain fell and the track was fast. The Stoneybrook handicap was the feature of the day's sport. A good field of sprinters faced the starter. The Amazon closing favorite at 2 to 1. cap was the feature of the day's sport. A good field of sprinters faced the starter, The Amazon, closing favorite at 3 to 1, being played heavily from 5 to 1 down. She won, but only by a narrow margin, getting up in the last jump and beating May W. a head. She was off badly and was far back, while Unmasked, King Pepper and May W. were out in the front fighting for the lead. The first two tired in the run home, and the Amazon closing with a rush, just got up. The other winners were Extinguisher at 12 to 1, Tebor at 3 to 5, and Pluto at 6 to 1, played down from 8 to 1. Trebor beat the oddson favorite, Fatalist, in the fourth race, who hardly ran up to his last effort. Pluto was played for a killing in the fifth race, and aided by the start, won cleverly. Neither One was perhaps best, but she was off so badly that it took all her speed to get up to the leaders, and she was beaten a head for the place by Right Away.

PALE YOUNG GIRLS

How They May Gain Bright Eyes and Rosy Cheeks.

The Story of a Young Girl Who Suffered From Headache, Dizziness and Fainting Speils - Her Health Be came So Bad That She Was Forced to Give Up School.

Miss Catherine McLellan is a young ady well known in Charlottetown, P. E. I., and greatly esteemed among her acquaintances. Like so many other young ladies throughout the land, Miss McLellan fell a victim to anaemia, or poorness of blood, and although according to the land of the la though several medicines were tried, she found nothing to help her until she began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Miss McLellan tells the story of her illness, as fol-lows: "I am now 18 years of age, and for a considerable time suffered much from anaemia. My blood had almost turned to water, and I was very weak and pale; in fact could not undergo the least exertion. My appetite failed me; I suffered from headaches; if I stopped I would become dizzy, and frequently I suffered from fainting spells. I tried several kinds of medicine and doctors prescribed for me, but instead of getting better I was gradually growing weaker, and eventually had to discontinue going to school. About this time I read the testimonial of a girl whose con-dition was similar to mine, who had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I then decided to try these pills, and have every reason to be gratified that I did so, as they have completely restored my health. Every one of the symptoms that had made my life so miserable have disappeared, and I am now enjoying as good health as any girl of my age could wish, and I shall always have a good word to say for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Miss McLellan further stated that while she was not desirous of publicity in matters of this kind, she nevertheless felt that her experience, if known, might be the means of bringing health to some other sufferer, and it is this very praiseworthy motive that has induced her to give the above statement for publication. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make rich, red blood, and give tone to the nerves-It is because of this that they bring bright eyes, rosy cheeks and light footsfeps to girls who have weary, pale and listless and he been and listless and had begun to feel that life was a burden. Pale and anaemic girls everywhere should give these pills a fair trial, as they are certain to restore health and strength. See that the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," is on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all dealers, or sent postpaid at 50c a box, or six boxes for $2 50, by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brock-

When Mr. Eddy, the venerable match maker of Hull, was asked lately how long his matches had been on the market, he replied laconically, "Here since 1851." While 50 years is not a long time when one is speaking about the pyramids of Egypt or the gold mines of King Pharaoh, it is a long time in this country for one man's goods to be steadily on the market. Eddy's matches were undoubtedly the first, and they are still undoubt edly the best matches made in Canada. Eddy's new match factory, built at Hull last autumn to replace the one burned the April previous, now turns out from about 33,000,000 to 35,000,000 matches per day, and as all these are used in Canada, where the total resident and floating population is only about 6,000,000, it shows that Canadians > at Hull, each adult must burn up from six to eight matches daily.

Cures and Gives You New Life When Everything Else Fails.

IT IS THE POPULAR MEDICINE IN THE HOMES OF THE WEALTHY AND THOSE IN HUMBLER CIR-CUMSTANCES.

Beware of Substitutes and Imitations.

ing from some dangerous disease? If you are, allow us with candor and honest interest in your welfare, to direct your attention to Paine's Celery Compound, the medicine that "makes sick people well.' The wonderful record of cures wrought for sick and diseased people in our Dominion, is the best and strongest proof of the health-restoring virtues of Paine's Celery Compound It has cured the most desperate and obstinate cases of disease even after sufferers were pronounced incurable The use of one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound will, in all cases banish the doubts of the unbelieving. The testing of one bottle will prove to all sufferers that there are virtues in the wondrous medicine possessed by no other remedy-virtues that banish suffering and misery. The immense popularity of Paine's Celery Compound has induced unscrupulous people to put up vile and worthless imitations of the great health-restorer. Dishonest dealers for the sake of large profits resort to substituting and recommending the "something just as good." At all 'something just as good." times beware of imitations and substitutes. See that the name PAINE'S and the Stalk of Celery appear on each bottle.

Read the strong testimony of Mr G. W. Parks, of Inglisvill, N. S. cured by Paine's Celery Compound after failures with other medicines: 'While at sea I was taken sick. which compelled me to abandon my work and seek home and rest. I con sulted the doctors who pronounced it slow fever or typhoid. I suffered severely with night sweats, and from cold chills during the day. Added to this, I was extremely nervous, which weakened me and reduced my flesh until I was a mere skeleton. This continued until last winter, when my wife and friends began to despair of my recovery, as the medicines I took produced no good and I was growing worse. Through the influence of Rev. C. M. Tyler, I was induced to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial. I can truly say it worked wonders. The first bottle gave me great relief, and five bottles completely cured me.' SHIPMENT OF LIVE STOCK.
