TRUST THE PEOPLE.

The London Free Press is opposed to the plebiscite. This may not astonish many of the readers of that journal, though its reasons for objection to the popular vote at the forthcoming municipal election are decidedly peculiar. Our contemporary opposes the plebiscite because of its fear that the question may get mixed up with municipal issues. That is just what a popular vote—a simple "Yes" or "No" marked on a ballot—will not result in. The popular vote, as every elector in London well knows by his or her experience in connection with the plebiscite taken at the instance of the City Council on the question of liquor license reduction, prevents the issue from being mixed up with municipal issues, and enables each individual elector to vote as he or she believes to be right without regard to the contentions or the other questions before the electorate. When last a plebiscite was before the electors in this city, so thoroughly was everybody reconciled to it that the candidates for mayor and almost every aldermanic contestant pledged themselves beforehand to carry out the wish of the electorate whether it was for or against the change contemplated. They knew, and our contemporary should know, the difficulty that lay in having this question considered on its merits by any other course.

Men are elected because of their local popularity, because of sectional interests that they are supposed to represent, and for a hundred and one other reasons, and if the question settled by the plebiscite three years ago had been left alone, as our contemporary argues, till these conflicting interests were reconciled, it would not have been disposed of yet, and what was proved to be the desire of the overwhelming majority of the electorate would have been left unaccomplished.

The Free Press is muddled in this matter. It does not even reason with its ordinary clearness, or it would concede that voting on this question regarding the traffic in intoxicants by means of a separate slip of paper at a regular election not only does not mix up the question with other problems, but leaves the people, no matter what their creed or political persuasion, to record their votes for or against the reform in the most intelligent manner that human ingenuity could devise.

This is a country where the majority rules, or ought to rule. Let us trust the people. Let the Free Press put its arguments in favor of the distillers, the brewers and the sellers of liquor in shape, but

A Great Issue.

Facts and Figures Relating to the Traffic in Intoxicants.

What Prohibition Means to the Taxpayers.

A Budget Specially Compiled for "Advertiser" Readers.

Now that the entire electorate has been legally called on to vote for liquor license or liquor prohibition, the people will do well to look the whole question fairly and honestly in the face, from a business-like standpoint. The temperance question is not one of mere sentiment and gush, as so many people seem inclined to think. It is not a matter of mere indifference to those who never drink whether other people go on drinking or not. The whole community, abstainers included, is deeply interested in the fact that any considerable number of people continue to drink. The whole community, abstainers included, is com-pelled to look upon the bills in respect to the liquor traffic as a burden. There is not an individual in the whole community, total abstainer or not, but has a direct pecuniary interest in the continued existence of the licensed drink traffic, either for loss or gain.

Let us look a little at the losses and gains to the community of the Province of Ontario, as a Province, from a purely cash point of view, arising out of our present liquor license system. What are the gains from that business as a source of public revenue? Here are the figures as I find them in the official report of the Ontario License Department: Total receipts from licenses $612,288 Total liquor fines 23,316 Total $635,604 Of course this does not include the customs duties and the excise, which go to the Dominion Government and not to the Provincial Government and the municipalities where the licenses were granted as follows: Total to Ontario Government $394,834 Total to municipalities 240,770 That leaves a balance of over $50,000 which was deducted to pay license inspectors' salaries and various other items in connection with the administration of the department.

Was that $300,000 which went into the Provincial treasury clear gain to the Province? Hardly, for there were some items of expenditures to be deducted before the net balance is struck. See what was left when these, even a part of these items were deducted. Sir Oliver Mowat, who is undoubtedly the best authority in the Province on this point, declared many years ago that at least three-fourths of the crime and poverty and misery of this country had its genesis in intemperance—the direct outcome and result of the licensed drink traffic, of course; and last winter he again reiterated that statement in a most deliberate and solemn manner, declaring that it was no mere oratorical flourish or random statement, but one that the reports of the various judges, jailers and other officers of justice had fully confirmed year after year. Taking, then, his statement as the basis of calculation, see what it represents to all the taxpayers as a matter of cold cash, without any regard whatever to any sentimentalism about blighted lives, or ruined homes, or lost souls. That large-looking, round revenue dwindles away very fast as the inquiry goes on.

The Ontario prisons' reports of last year state that in the 62 county jails of the Province there were 9,011 commitments during the year: there were 955 more in the Central Prison at Toronto; there were 224 more in the Andrew Mercer Reformatory for Females, also located at Toronto, and there were also 285 more in the Boys' Reformatory at Penetanguishene. Making all these figures up, we find that there were during the same time 702 more in the Kingston Penitentiary, making in all 11,000 and 12,000 prisoners, all of whom are also taxpayers. It is not necessary to carry on their heavy burdened shoulders. Bearing in mind Premier Mowat's assurance it will at once be seen that at 9,000 of these are there because of the licensed liquor traffic. It is intemperance in Ontario that there was no liquor traffic in existence.

Now, what does the cost of carrying such an enormous burden of criminals on our shoulders actually represent? Throw away our mere sentimentalism and look at it from a hard-headed money point of view and see if it pays, as a matter of revenue to allow the drink traffic to go on. Let there be no mere guesswork about it. Here are the figures from the Ontario prisons' report of last year of what was paid out in solid cash just for the imprisonment of these convicts alone, after all the expenses had been satisfied of their apprehension and trial, and not considering at all the loss of time of the prisoners or of the officers of justice in connection with their apprehension, trial and punishment. The total cost of the maintenance of the common jails last year was $135,706; of the Central Prison, $85,955; of the Mercer Reformatory, $36,729; of the Penetanguishene Reformatory, $36,977; and of the Kingston Penitentiary, $139,358. Add these figures up and then deduct Sir Oliver's three-fourths out for the liquor share of the hard business and the result is a net gain of $303,541 gone in that one single direction. That takes every cent that the Provincial treasury received of liquor revenue, and nearly $3,000 besides. The profit is all gone, but the losses are not all computed yet, by any means.

Turning to the Ontario public accounts for last year, here are some of the items, not of estimated probabilities, but of sums actually paid out during the year: Administration of justice $291,869 Hospitals and charities 18,274 Lunatic asylums 183,081 Reformatory expenses 18,274 Central Prison 2,316

Lock-ups in outlying districts 11,907 Crown counsel prosecution fees 8,532 Total $395,233

Every one of these items comes in the list of those that Sir Oliver assures us there can be no doubt where three-fourths are from. Looking at it from that standpoint there should be $805,918 charged to the licensed drink traffic just here and the total revenue from that source is already gone to pay the bills previously enumerated. It was clear as noonday to whoever has given intelligent study to this question that the Provincial Treasury of Ontario is every year losing at least half a million of dollars because of the existence of the liquor traffic, and yet intelligent men, including some legislators and a few Ministers, are still prating about revenue!

What about the municipalities' share? Some day I will try and more fully consider this. Just now there is not space. It is safe to put it down, however, that they come out of the arrangement even worse than the Provincial Government. These are divided among the whole of them a sub-stantial amount of millions of dollars, or not much over an average of 10 cents per head of all the people, and out of that—as far as it may go—must be met the expenses of maintaining the paupers, the hospitals, the police and constabulary, the courts and a hundred and one things in which the liquor traffic has the biggest share. As a matter of fact the municipal police and constabulary are relieved of burdens to the extent of hundreds of thousands by the effectual stamping out of the entire drink traffic of the country. Just such facts and figures as these ought to be carefully considered with the view of the plebiscite verdict of next January. Outside of all sentimentalism and all religious and philanthropic considerations the people cannot afford to allow such a heavy burden of millions to remain bound about their necks.

Mr. Laurier and Sir John Thompson have both found it necessary to open their mouths this year during their Ontario oratorical tours on the prohibition question. They have always managed to keep silent before, but that cannot be done any longer. Both of them evidently desire to be credited with more courage than they deserve regarding the matter. It is a very delicate question and has to be handled very gingerly. Let a party leader put his foot down where he will and his tramps right on the horns of some of his warmest friends. There is no use hiding the fact. Both are making a point where two ways part, however, and one or other must be chosen. It will be hardly possible for the same political leader to look for the active support of both the prohibitionists and the anti-much farther on. Both simulate a bold front and say "Who's afraid?" But the guise is so thin in each case that it is seen right through. Mr. Laurier declares "I will have a policy on this question in due time and I will adhere to it boldly. I don't need any royal commission to help me make up my mind. But I and my party want a plebiscite, and then it is found that a substantial majority of the people are in favor of prohibition, their decree must and will be obeyed." Sir John said: "I have a policy, and I will declare it boldly and stand or fall by it at the proper time, and will do it without any niceties, alibis, but I want to know what the royal commission reports first."

Sir John Thompson's late deliverance gives neither hope or encouragement to the prohibitionists. He has a lot of acerbic and misgivings which only that royal commission can satisfy, and it is certainly in no hurry. Nearly three years have passed since his Government got the Commons to adopt a resolution to appoint that commission to inquire and report "without delay." The first inquiry has not yet been made in Ontario, the most important of all the provinces. This first sitting is promised some time next month. It is now safe to predict that unless there is much greater speed made than has been already made no report will be forthcoming at even the next session of Parliament. It is now very clear that no report need be looked for in time for any definite legislative action to be taken before the next general Dominion election.

Sir John's first grand demonstration of the present Ontario series was held at Belleville in honor of Mr. Corby, the only distiller in the present Parliament. It was the biggest and most enthusiastic of all the demonstrations yet held, too. Every available Cabinet Minister—eleven in all—was there to do the distiller honor. Sir John did not hesitate to declare, in the substance of his enthusiasm, "We are all proud of him." He declared him, too, the leader of his loyal party followers in Central Ontario—the veritable political king of the "Six Nations" making up the Conservative phalanx of the Bay of Quinte district. Now, no one who well knows Mr. Corby, ever discovered in him the remotest evidence of wise statesmanship, or the stuff out of which a great political leader is made. He is not an orator or a statesman. He never drew up a parliamentary bill in his life and probably never will. His name is not associated with any great political measure or movement except as "a jolly good fellow." He has been a liquor distiller and never anything else. He inherited that business from his father, and boldly assured the people during his campaigns that he is not ashamed of it, nor has he any intention of turning his attention to anything else. He has made lots of money out of it, and is free in using it among "the boys" and in generous hospitality and is popular. The liquor men in his county would kick if he was thrown overboard, and the temperance men of the party would kick if he is kept. He is therefore the party favorite and "we are all proud of him." But what need the prohibitionists expect under the circumstances? or what from a Government that for years and years has had two of the leading and well-known liquor dealers—John Corby and Frank Smith—occupying prominent positions at its Council boards?

All this time, however, thousands and thousands of good temperance and Christian Conservatives have been loyal and enthusiastic in their support of the party and the Government so made up! No wonder that Sir John Thompson, when he came to the Premier'ship under just such circumstances, came to the deliberate conclusion that "Prohibition is not practical policy in this country" and determined to ignore it entirely. Someone has well said that if you support a political party when it does wrong, you need never expect that it will do right, or at least as long as by doing so it is almost sure to lose some of its faithful supporters. The sooner all temperance electors open their eyes and look the whole situation fairly in the face the better it will be for their cause. It has got to be done at some time. This is a downright certainty. Before prohibition is ever actually obtained its friends will have not only to refuse support to the party standing in its way, but they must resolve to vote for the party in its favor, even though it has to be done in the face of a lot of old-time party friends. That means a pretty bitter dose for a good many of us, and being branded as "turn-coats" and all that, but it must come to that. Prohibition must be a party measure when it comes. Don't expect anything else. Under our system of responsible government it must come to Parliament as a Government measure, on which the Government of the day must stand or fall. There is no use of looking for or expecting anything else. Our constitution requires that any great measure affecting the trade and revenue of the country must be introduced by the Government. The Government must needs have its party at its back, or it would not be safe to introduce any such measure to which so many have an opposing interest. The sooner all the friends of the measure "get together" in some one political party the sooner will the end come. T. W. C.

WARTERS LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

LUCK, OR PLUCK?

"Birk bark, and so heavy that I couldn't lift it, though I tried my hardest."

"Why, mamma, the water wasn't knee deep I measured it with the paddle."

"You wouldn't have tried that trick if I had been in the canoe, Miss Tramlay," said Phil.

"Well, I would have been responsible for you, you know—your instructor in navigation, so to speak, and it's one of the first principles of that art not to take any risks unless something is to be gained by it."

"Not bad," assented Tramlay. "But I'd have got something if I'd succeeded in upsetting the boat," said Lucia.

"Then everybody laughed, everybody but Mrs. Tramlay, who intimated to Marge that Lucia was simply being ruined by her mother's indulgence."

"The dinner ended, the host and Marge retired to the library to smoke, Phil was invited to accompany them, but Lucia refused."

offended, and Phil immediately tumbled into the extreme depths of confusion.

"I beg your pardon," he murmured, quickly. "It was all because of my ignorance. We haven't any Turkish rugs at Haynton, nor any other rugs, except those we lay on floors and use very much as if they were carpets."

"I think, my dear," said Tramlay to his wife, who had been turning the backs of a magazine, "that I'll take our friend around to the club with me for half an hour, just to show him how city men squander their money and keep away from their families. I won't be long gone."

"Oh, papa! right after dinner? We've scarcely seen Phil yet, to ask him any questions."

"Plenty of time for that," the merchant replied. "We'll see him often; oh, ha! ha! It shall be delightful," said Phil.

"Suppose you drop him at my club on your way home?" suggested Marge. "I shall be there."

"Good! I think, very kind of you. He'll see some men nearer his own age; all our members are middle aged and stupid."

"HECKLED" AT DURHAM.

Further Twistings and Turnings on the Plebiscite.

Sir John Thompson Cornered by a Pro-Britishian Clergyman.

DURHAM, Sept. 30.—In the course of his speech here yesterday Sir John Thompson told the people that if the report of the royal commission showed prohibition to be practicable, if the evidence produced by the opposition was not received with the result and conclusion in the opinion of Parliament, it should be the duty of the Government of the day, whether Liberal or Conservative, to obey the will of the people.

This statement was not received with any evidence of favor by the audience, and the reason was soon made plain, for a large number of those present, evidently prohibitionists, were quite dissatisfied with it.

Rev. A. G. Cannon, the pastor of the Durham Presbyterian Church, stood up and said: "Mr. Chairman, may I have the privilege of making a remark or two in reply to the expressions which our Premier has used in his report regarding the temperance cause? If so, I should like to ask our Premier whether the information received from the royal commission will be acted upon as the voice of the people of the nation, or as the voice of a few individuals?"

"Suppose you drop him at my club on your way home?" suggested Marge. "I shall be there."

"Good! I think, very kind of you. He'll see some men nearer his own age; all our members are middle aged and stupid."

1783—The erratic General Charles Lee, English soldier in the American army, died in Philadelphia; born in Gloucester, 1732.

1853—Francis Arago, French scientist who made important discoveries in electro-magnetism, died.

1862—Ernest Renan died in Paris; born 1823.

SHE DIDN'T LIKE MEN.

She said the men were "horrid" with an energy emphatic.

And built upon a very dreadful plan; And with a jargon of words, with a gesture quite dramatical.

She said: "Well, if that isn't like a man!"

Their manners were so rough, she said, with their eyes so big and vulgar, she declared they made her very ill; and thus, with adjectives rattled on—not one of them she spared.

Until there came a fellow with a proposition practical.

"The man's her cheeks turn very, very red. "You can have me," she said to him, with post that was attractive!

"But I wish you weren't a horrid man!" she said.

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

—Mrs. C. H. Dorenwend, Toronto, is visiting Mrs. James Shand, York street.

—James Hooper, formerly of this city, takes possession of the Forth (Manitoba) Review to-day.

—Rev. Joseph Philip preached the anniversary sermon at the Westfield Methodist Church yesterday.

—Miss Smith, sister of the late Martha Smith, is dangerously ill at her parents home near Delhi.

—The condition of Mr. Wm. Thompson, who was so seriously injured in Friday's runaway accident, was much improved last night.

—D. Campbell, of South London, and E. J. MacRobert, John Stephenson and Ed. Crawford leave to-day for the World's Fair.

—Mr. Thomas Alexander is acting chairman of No. 1 committee of the Board of Education during the absence of Mr. E. J. MacRobert in Chicago.

—Rev. T. L. Fowler, will leave for Toronto to-day to deliver a course of lectures at Toronto University on "The Science of Interpretation."

—Dorchester will lose one of its citizens next week in the person of Jos. Whitehead, who has sold his farm and has purchased near Wingham, Alberta, N. W. T.

—Sunday school workers are again reminded to observe the days of prayer suggested by the London Sunday School Union, on the 15th and 16th of October.—[Branford Expositor.]

—The merry-go-round of Rooney & Levanich has departed from the vacant lot adjoining the East End fire hall, and in future the blast of its steam hand organ will re-echo in the streets of Berlin, Ont.

—W. M. Southam, son of the proprietor of the Hamilton Spectator, and a native of this city, is in Vancouver. He had to leave the east on account of his health, and will settle somewhere in the Pacific Province.

—The London District Sunday School Association of the Latter Day Saints will hold their annual convention in the Mill-lard Street Church on Friday. The fall session of the district conference will take place on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

—The rush of business at the G. T. R. freight station steadily continues to increase. Last week the receipts were $1,700 in advance of any former week on record. This speaks well for the city traffic and for the efficient management of Freight Agent E. N. King.

—Thomas Morkin and Richard Payne, of London township, appeared before Squire Jarvis on Saturday, charged with breach of the liquor license law. They both pleaded guilty and were fined $20 each. The case of W. C. Ribble, of London West, was enlarged till Friday.

—The Canada Gazette announces that petroleum may be imported in tank cars at the following additional places: Lindsay, Woodstock, Petrolia, Chippewa and Col. Higwood. The privilege has not been extended to Barrie, Orillia, Seaford, Clinton, Harrison and other large towns.

—The London Advertiser refuses to publish letters save over the actual name of the writer. There can be no doubt this is the proper system to adopt. People who have anything to say that is worth hearing will not be afraid to state it over their own signature.—[Cash Free Press.]

—The Chicago Tribune says: "Sugar is scarce here; so scarce, in fact, that a famine confronts the housewives of Chicago. The representatives of the sugar trust say the market is short over 3,000,000 barrels of sugar, and no relief can be looked for in the near future." World's Fair visitors will take the hint and carry sugar with them.

—About 150 local Foresters of the Ancient Order went to Ingersoll yesterday to attend district service with Count Marquis de Lorne at that place. The Knights of Sherwood Forest turned out under command of Capt. Chas. Pugh, while the drill corps of Juvenile Court Maple Leaf, No.

16, were in attendance under Capt. Fred Snower. The crowd returned at 7 o'clock in the evening.

—By the removal of Mr. Jeff N. Wood and family to London last week, the members of the old Blues baseball team have all left Tilsonburg but one, John Hutchinson, and he is playing good ball this season for the Alerts, of London. Mr. Wood is studying dentistry, which was the cause of his removal to London. His many old friends in Tilsonburg wish him every success.—[Tilsonburg Liberal.]

A homeless Irishman, looking weather-beaten and travel-stained, walked into the police station and asked for a night's lodging. While Detective Rider was registering his name, a burly constable, noted for his fierceness, walked up to the stranger. "Hello, my friend," said he, "don't you remember me?" "Oh, yes," remarked the Irishman, viewing his interrogator from head to foot, "you are the young fellow who used to carry washing from our place to your metropolis."

—Sir Henry Tyler, president of the G. T. R., sailed from New York in the Campania on Saturday. He was seen off by Mr. Seargeant, general manager of the road. In speaking of the reported changes in the control of the G. T. R., Sir Henry said: "There is absolutely no foundation for the report that Americans have any connection with our road. I wish to say most emphatically that Russell Sage exercises no control over it whatever. All reports connecting Mr. Sage's name with the management of our company are false. I myself do not hold a controlling interest in the road, and no man could get control of it."

Ireland and the Irish.

Rev. Wm. Patterson, of Cook's church, Toronto, enjoys more than local fame as a platform and pulpit orator. He has exercised his rare gifts on several occasions to the delight of London audiences. His latest lecturing success, "Ireland and the Irish," is said to excel in humor and graphic illustration, which are the result of personal impressions during a sojourn on the old soil. As the noted orator is an Irishman himself he is naturally qualified to be just to the subject. He tonight a large audience will greet him in St. James' Presbyterian Church to-night.

Park Ranger Grant is Worth.

Park Ranger Grant is very worth at the manner in which the children invaded the park on Saturday. With the assistance of his men he had gathered about 800 plants the night before to be given away, one on each child. This did not satisfy the youngsters by any means. They thought that all the flowers were to be taken, and accordingly helped themselves. Foliages, geraniums, border plants and shrubs were carried off. Men and women going by considered the park public property. Passing carriages stopped, and occupants got out and helped themselves. Everything went on so that the youngsters were not content with one visit, but came back for more. Mr. Grant had several men engaged Saturday night clearing up the rubbish and setting things to rights. Many of the lower beds that were demolished would have looked well for three weeks to come with the present fine weather. Some of the permanent plants taken will require three years to replace. If any of the children are taken with a violent endeavor to make themselves popular with the coming voters next year, Mr. Grant would like to send the plants to the schools. An army of soldiers could not have stopped the onslaught on Saturday without resorting to violence. The superstitious plants have been given away each year by the ranger to citizens.

James Hill, of Inwood, was cured of Sciatic Rheumatism by taking Duncombe's Dark Pills.

Williams' Royal Crown Remedy Saved John Weir's Life

May be seen in large letters on the covers of the boxes that precede the handsome Royal Crown Remedy wagon. Mr. Weir said: "This is a most marvellous cure. I became pale as a corpse; my blood seemed to be turned to water. I had dizziness and a ringing noise in my head; my hands and feet were cold all the time, and my limbs were completely swollen up to the body. Some doctors called it consumption of the blood. I got so weak that I could not walk, and finally look to my bed."

—All Mr. Weir has told you is true. At times he lay for days unconscious and unable to take nourishment of any kind, and was reduced to a mere skeleton of 84 pounds; and I fully believe if we had been one day later in getting Williams' Royal Crown Remedy he would be in his grave to-day. So it may well be said "Williams' Royal Crown Remedy saved John Weir's life." The best druggists keep "Royal Crown Remedy" but if your druggist does not, remit direct to Isaac Williams Company, London, and they will send it to you by first express. The price at which "Williams' Royal Crown Remedy" is sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with any other medical treatment. Six bottles for $2. Clip this out and keep it.
