SURPRISING DECISION IN LONDON CONSPIRACY TRIAL

Judge Winchester Finds All the Defendants Guilty, to the Amazement of Everyone.

THE JUDGE ALLOWS AN APPEAL ON JURISDICTION

Defendants Out on Bail Until March-Even the Crown Did Not Expect Such a Verdict-The Judge Overrules the Decision of Justice Britton.

HOUSE APPLAUDS

Hon. Geo. P. Graham Presents Railway Reports to the Commons.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.-With the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne held over until Monday the session of the House today was more or less a formal affair, a few minutes sufficing for the transaction of business, which comprised the presentation of several petitions and the laying on the table of a few blue oks. An interesting incident was the maiden speech of Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals. It was a modest effort, consisting of only two or three sentences in laying the reports of the Transcontinental Railway and railway commission on the table, and in answering a question by Mr. Borden, but it was not allowed to pass without recognition by the Liberal members, who pounded their lister sat down.

ASHY DOWNPOUR BURYING NOME

Strange Freak of Nature Follows a Volcanic Eruption.

Nome, Alaska, Nov. 30 .- Nome, and probably the entire Seward peninsula is shrouded in an ashy haze, and the ground for miles is covered several inches deep with a fine gritty powder, which is believed to be volcanic. The storm began several days ago, the dust blowing in from the ocean, but at first little attention was paid to the freek of nature, as it was expected that it would soon cease. Instead, however, the fall continued, and after MOST ECONOMICAL GAS AND GASOLINE a day became so dense as to seriously interfere with outdoor pursuits. IMPORTANT LAW AFFECTING RAILWAY OPERATORS.

On March 1 next the law governing the hours of duty of all the telegraph rators throughout the United States will be put into operation and will thus limit the hours of duty to eight hours per day instead of twelve. This means that where two operators are employed during the 24 hours there will be three required, thus creating a demand for an extra operator at nearly every station throughout the country, estimated at nearly 10,000. Aside from this fact, we have in Canada the Transcontinental Railway (the Grand Trunk Pacific), in course of construction, which, when completed, will create a further demand for at least five to six the sand more operators, as well as a like number in the other departments.

It is a well-known fact that the vast army of railroad men and women are a better-paid class of people than private corporation and factory employes, and their surroundings much more congenial. The higher salaries of the telegraph operator, the exceptionally short ours of duty, as well as the assurance of steady employment, make the Toronto Crown Attorney Will Not Proceed Against Alleged Illegal Pools.

Toronto Nov. 29.-While apparently the crown will not enter the ring against the majority of the alleged combines, the existence of which was partially ascertained when former Crown Attorney J. W. Curry raided a down town office which appeared to be the central bureau for about 36 of them, three combine charges may be tried in January.

It will be remembered that when the Three Hundred Dollars in a Loan Company an Unassailable Assel.

In the Statute respecting Loan Companies there is a provision which absolutely protects a deposit of $300 or under.

If you have a deposit of that amount with this Company, it cannot be taken from you by any legal process or for any reason whatever. The Company is specifically forbidden to pay out that money to any other person excepting upon the depositor's order.

It would be a wise provision for you to deposit $300 with this Company. It would form a nest egg for the future which could never be secured by any one else unless you so ordered.

This and many other interesting points regarding banking by mail and the purchase of Debentures will be gladly explained to you

OMDURMAN OF TODAY. The Omdurman of today is on the site of the great city of the khalifa. It lies at the junction of the White and Blue Niles, in the bend where the White Nile flows into the main stream. By the course of the river it is about eighteen hundred miles from the Mediterranean Sea, and, in a straight line, perhaps an equal distance north of the valley of the Congo. It is far inland from the Red Sea, and hundreds of miles from the source of the Blue Nile in the Abyssinian hills.

The Omdurman of the present is hid out on practically the same lines as that of the past, and it covers almost the same ground, although it has much fewer people. During my trip I climbed to the top of the old palace of the khalifa, and took look over the city.

The houses stretch along the Nile for seven or eight miles, with a thicket of boats upon the shore op posite where the Blue Nile flows in Some of the town is on the main stream, and it reaches out from the river in every direction. It is a native city in every sense of the word. In its many thousand houses there are not a score which are of more than one story, and you can count the houses made of burnt brick on your fingers. It is a city of mud, pure and simple. The onestory mud houses have mud walls about them, and the mud stores face streets paved only with mud. The vast inclosures of the khalifa A RED RIDING HOOD DOLL'S SET are made ee nud bricks, and the houses, inside, which now form the diers and officers, are of sunbaked

He had two great cans on the end of a pole, which rested on his shoulders, and he was trotting through the streets carrying water from one of the wells to his black Sudanese customers. His feet and hands were bare, and they were as white as my own. I stopped him and made him lift his red fez cap to see whether his hair was white by age. CROWN AND NOBLES.

Before going any further, it may be as well to explain how it has been possible for a prince of the rank of Francis Ferdinand to surround his existence with such an amount of mystery. It is not that he is secretive, or that he has pursued the methods of the late King Louis of Bavaria, whose horror of publicity was so great that he was wont to establish his abode in the most inaccessible mountain fastnesses, and never to drive abroad save in the middle of the night. It is merely that in Austria a very great gulf exists between the reigning ly and unaffected, with even the low- nected with the royal house of Bel- husband in Hungary. est classes. Then, too, the serious illness which overtook Francis Ferdinand shortly after the tragic death of Crown Prince several years a very quiet and retired life. It was a malady of such gravity that it was regarded for a time as eliminating him from all consideration in connection with the succession of the throne. Contrary to general expectations, he recovered, and his convalescence was signalized by a romance in which Countess Sophie Chotek, daughter of a former Austrian minister plenipotentiary at Dresden and one time lady-in-waiting to Arch. duchess Frederick, was the heroine. Francis Ferdinand insisted upon making the countess his wife. HEART BEAT

CONNECTION BETWEEN THE BEAT OF THE HEART AND CON-STITUTION OF THE BLOOD.

The answer seems obvious. The heart is supplied with nerves, and along these for a contraction But where in the ner vous system is the clock that ticks off th beats, and keeps up, day and night, the steady throb? Besides, certain facts lately discovered, seem to show that the nerves have less to do with the matte than has been supposed.

For example, the heart of a turtle or s frog, separated from the body and place in salt water, will go on beating for hours or even for one or two days. Moreove rest of the organ, will continue to beat as if nothing had happened. It looks, there fore, as if the heart somehow starts it own beat and does not depend upon the nervous system. This opinion is borne ou by another curious fact. The normal beat is this: First, the base completes its con traction and begins to relax, next the point follows with its stroke, then both rest for an instant, and after that th base begins again. If, however, the turtle's heart be pricked at the right moment, th beat will reverse, and the point start first, This suggests that one part of the heart by its pulsation, starts off another. In deed this is pretty obvious in the case of the frog's heart, where the heat starts a the heart. The vein, cut off from the heart, will go on beating; but the heart itself, having nothing to start its each time, stops at once. It would seem, therefore, that the different parts of the pulsating organ set one another going and that the heart once started anywhere will complete itself. The question still re mains, however, why the beat starts a

This brings us to the strangest fact of all. I have already said that isolated hearts or even strips out from the heart muscle, will go on beating if they are kept in salt water. In fact, the pulsation will begin once more in the salt water ever if it has already ceased. It now turns in salt solution of the proper strength will begin to contract rythmically as i it were itself a heart, and even continu the beating for days. Nor is this strange property confined to ordinary red muscle Even the transparent watery flesh of jelly-fish behaves in the same way. Since, therefore, blood is distinctly salt, it must be the sait in the blood that causes th heart-beat But if the presence of common salt responsible for the beating of the heart, one must expect it equally to produce pulse in all the muscles and keep all the nimals in the ocean in a perpetual St Vitus dance. There are, however, in both blood and sea water a great many other substances besides common salt-amon them lime. Now it has been discover that when a heart or an ordinary muscl or a fragment of a jelly-fish is contractin regularly in a pure salt solution, the pu sations promptly come to an end if little lime be added to the salt solution So it is the lime in the blood that check the beating that the salt starts up. Evidently, however, the heart is t the body's needs. This discovery of the connection between the beat of the heart and the constitution of the blood has been largely the wor of the famous Professor Loeb. A cure with side light is thrown upon the matter come remarkable discoveries of a Calcut botanist, Professor Bose. The latter ha lately made out that the flow of sap plants is not as has been supposed steady current, but a series of wave-li pulses more like the stream from a p than from a faucet. He found, in sho that the sap is like the blood, in having a sort of pulse. Professor Bose, in stud ing the effects on this vegetable pulse various agents, discovered that strong seas. A GOOD DEMAND FOR ALL PRODUCE

LOCAL MARKET.

London, Saturday, Nov. 30. as last Saturday, but there was a lairly large crowd of farmers and buyers. Snow fell through the night in the vicinity of Thorndale and Thamesford, which left the roads in poor shape, and kept a large number of farmers from coming to the market. There was a good demand for all produce offered, and there was not much change in prices.

Grain—There was quite a large supply of oats, which sold at $1 57 to $1 60 per cwt. Barriey sold at $1 42 per cwt. Hay and Straw—Three loads of hay were brought in, which had been bargained for at $17, $17 50 and $18 per ton. A couple of loads of straw sold at $8 per ton. Butter and Eggs—Butter was rather slow at 2c to 26c for crocks and 26c to 26c for pound rolls in wholesale lots. Eggs were higher, at 30c per dozen for fresh-laid, and bigher, at 30c per dozen for fresh-laid, and 25c for packed and cold storage stock.

Vegetables and Roots—There was a rather slow sale for potatoes, which went at 80c and 85c per bag for the load or 10-bag lots: 90c was paid for single bags: lettuce sold at 20c per dozen; celery, 40c to 50c per dozen; cabbages, 40c to 65c per dozen; tomatoes, 75c to $1 per basket; onions, 90c per dozen; cauliflowers, 5c to 10c each; carrots, 35c per bu; parships, Col. Fuel & Iron. 10c each; carrots, 35c per bu; parsnips. Col. Fuel & Irou... 50c per bu; sage and savory, 25c per Chesapeake & Ohio.

Fruits—Apples were dull, at 50c to 80c Rock Isla.

per bag, and $1 50 to $2 per barrel; citrons were scarce, and sold at 10c to 20c each.

Erie Poultry—The supply was large and prices were inclined to be easier; ducks sold at 9c per lb; geese, 8c per lb dressed; turkeys.

10c per lb alive and 12c to 13c dressed; chickens, 7½ to 8c alive and 9c to 18c dressed: old fowl, 5c per lb alive and 7c

Dressed Hogs—Upward of 200 were on sale, and prices ranged from $6 50 to $7.25 per cwt; most of the sales were made at 86 75 to 87 per cwt.

than last week; it was stated that $5 25 would be paid on Monday, as some were bought at that figure, but the general price will be $5 per cwt; the market is in a demoralized state, and prices may be lower; small pigs sold slowly at 50c and $1 pressed Steel Car... Added to the thick darkness in which he often groped his way was the nerve-shaking and uncanny roar of subterranean torrents. He has crossed huge cracks and made recipitous descents in pitch darkness, when a misstep would have meant death. Wheeler says that now that ladders are in position and guard ropes set up, it is difficult to realize how Deutschman made his pioneer journeys in these caverns. The best light thus far provided during the surveys and explorations has been This cave region is to be opened to tour- from acetylene bicycle lamps, which have oved very serviceable. These caverns occur at this place only ecause there is a limestone deposit though this rock is rare in the Selkirks. As you are walking along in the valley of the Cougar Creek you will discover that the roaring mountain torrent suddenly disappears in the earth, and away below you will find the place where it returns the surface.

You will find other streams where similar phenomena occur. You will see in the distance a beautiful waterfall, 60 feet high, and as you approach you will be surprised to find that its waters do not flow away, but sink where they fall into a great hole, and disappear into the subterranean regions. These underground waterways are the exception and not the rule in the Selkirks whose favor his grandfather, King The caves were discovered by Charles and the main range of the Rockies Charles X., had abdicated the throne H. Deutschman in May, 1904, while he was Nothing like them is known in any other Nothing like them is known in any other part of the Selkirks, and only two streams of the kind have been found in the main range of the Rocky Mountains.

Another curious phenomenon is observed No matter how warm the day may be as may come to more than one place where current of cold wind strikes you.

If you look for the cause you will find crack in the rock, through which comes a draught of air like that produced by an electric fan, but much stronger. The air omes from the interior of the mountain These air currents gave the first intima tion of the existence of the caves. The streams of water for many ages dug into the limestone and wore it slowly away, till the great excavation became the caves of today. The floors of some of the caves are 250 feet below the surface. Here are there the waters, swinging rom side to side for centuries, wore away broad surfaces, so that the caves are wide then something caused them to flow along in one narrow track till they dug out very deep beds for themselves, and today they the walls might be serious roar along, scores of feet below the general

SHIPPING SEASON FOR SNAILS.

The shipping season for the edible snails imported from France is now on. It begins in November and ends in April. As cold weather approaches these snails encase themselves in a waxlike coating that forms a shell over them, this for their protection through the winter. Their shipment begins when they have thus covered themselves with this protective shell, and it ends when, with the approach of warmer

The snails are packed from 800 to 1,000 in a lot in boxes with perforated sides, the perforations being to give ventilation and keep the snails from heating in transit. Here their outer coating is soaked off and the snails are then ready to be taken in hand by the chef. The importation of snails is annually

Of course it was all a mistake, they said, even though the same woman had been under suspicion of crooked practices for months.

She is still a member of that club in good standing; watched, of cour, and talked about, but never openly denounced or asked to resign.

There seems to be something in the game of bridge more than in other games that tends to sap the moral sensibilities. Strange to say, playing bridge for money does not seem to excite the cupidity of women half so much as playing for a prize. ing, which cannot be tried more than once in an evening, however, is to break a card during the play of a hand and then claim a new deal. Under the rules, if a pack is found to be incomplete or imperfect, and the imperfection is discovered during the play of a hand, that deal is void. An imperfect pack is one in which there are duplicate or missing cards, or cards so torn or marked that they can be identified by the backs.

When dummy has declared no trumps and lays down a hundred aces, and it looks as if the dealer were about to make a grand slam, it is about time to mullate one corner of a card and then show it and insist that the pack is imperfect, and that there must be a new deal with another pack. A matter of 224 points is worth saving.

In addition to all this, there are, of course, many private conventions and signals with the cards which have been pre viously agreed upon between partners. These absolutely defy detection unless the number of games, and even then the evidence would be very doubtful. It is bad enough for people to study out such methods themselves, but when bridge teachers instruct their pupils to use such tricks as rotary discards and double entendre echos, bridge is in a pretty bad way. No wonder people are taking up

IF THE YOUNG

WHAT CAN THE SLEEPY FATHER OF THE YOUNG WOMAN DO ABOUT IT?

"Politics and finance may be more engrossing to some, but," said Mr Fatherly, here is a question that I know will b interesting to many, and that I wish you would print in big type, the same being: How late ought a young man to stay at night when he calls?

"Now there's a question that you'll find of interest to many people, young and old; to fathers and mothers and to the young people, the visited and the visitors, and to you something to build on so that you can set forth the proposition clearly will give you a few facts

"I have two daughters, nice girls as ever and attractive, and naturally they have lived, both of them, and both charming young men visitors, and I haven't anything against them. They appear to be a wholesome, manly lot, but, bless my soul, they all stay too late. "What I want to know, for one thing, is how late ought they to stay, and, for another, how am I going to get them to go when they ought.

"In solving these questions I get no help from within my own household. My daughters say: 'Why, father, why don't you go to bed when you want to? You don't need to sit up,' and I say I know don't, but I can't sleep with those young men sitting around talking and laughing and singing in the parlor, and I don't think they ought to stay so late, anyway. "As likely as not they hang around till 11 o'clock; and I think they ought to go by 10, which is my settled conviction and stopped to look on, from behind the the adversaries to prevent its play, of my constant contention, but I can't get

"The girls say they can't tell the young men they must go at 10 o'clock, and the either, and so there you are.

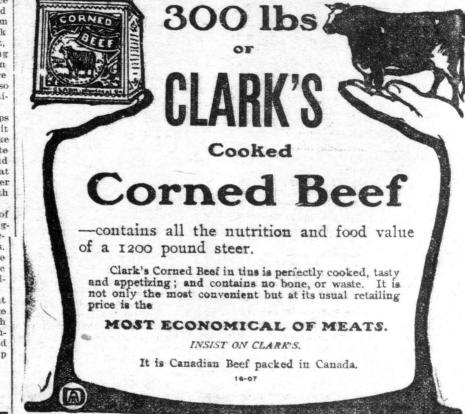

"Besides my two daughters I have two sons, one who is old enough to go calling himself, and he does go, and he sides with me in my views about when young men callers at our house ought to go, and sides with me vigorously. He says that if they don't go at 10 o'clock they ought to be thrown out; and he says furthermore that in many houses if young men don't have se enough to go of their own accord by that time they are politely thrown out when the clock strikes.

"He cites his own experience in one house where he had been accustomed to call, this a most kindly and hospitable house, and marked as well by education, cultivation, refinement and grace. he says, if a young man stayed beyond the hours of 10 o'clock the old man, a fine the most gracious and kindly and yet unmistakable manner that they closed the house at 10 o'clock, and no young man who had once heard him make that statement ever stayed later after that, for he knew that it meant business. "And did this action tend to repel young nan and keep them away? On the con-

"He says that if the young men calling here don't show any signs of moving at 10 what I ought to do is to go in and throw 'em out. But I can't do this, because, se far as such a situation would be possible in a household so gentle as mine, I couldn't do it without raising a rough house. My daughters wouldn't stand for it, and I doubt if my wife would. They all concede that there may be sense in my proposition that the young men should go home early-though they would make the hour 10:30 instead of 10but they say that my way is not the right way to go about it. Meanwhile the young men stay on, and what I want to know is how to bring about a reform.

Disraeli's letters to the Queen were delightful. She wrote to the King of the Belgians that they were "just like his novels." In 1852 he writes that Mr. Villiers' speech was "terse and elaborate, but not in his happiest style"; that Sir James Graham was "elaborate, malignant, mischievous"; and that "his position was this-that Lord Derby as a man of honor was bound to propose taxes on food, and that if he did so, revolution was inevitable"! This sounds like a speech of one of the characters in "Coningsby." Again, he writes: "The debate continued to languish until this hour with successive relays of mediocrity, until it yielded its last gasp in the arms of Mr. Slanev"!

Lord Palmerston, in 1854, reports to the Queen that "Mr. Hadfield then shortly stated in his provincial dialect upon Hindia by the force of Harms' of Sir J. Mr. Stringer's last volume of poetry is reviewed specially for The Advertiser by Mr. Harvey O'Higgins, the rising young Canadian author who, like Mr. Stringer, makes his headquarters in New York. Mr. O'Higgins has just achieved a great triumph by give winning the $1,000 prize offered by Collier's Weekly for the best short story submitted to that journal between June and September. He had such formidable rivals as Rudyard Kipling and Hopkinson Smith. London should be proud of Mr. Stringer and Mr. O'Higgins, for both are London old boys, and graduates of the Collegiate Institute here. Mr. O'Higgins' review is as follows:

About six years ago Arthur Stringer published in the Atlantic Monthly some fragments of a poem, called "Hephaestus." Messrs. And certainly it is a poem to justify all the enthusiasm it has aroused. I has a theme as moving as drama. It is given in lines that remain in the memory like music. It has a meaning that goes deep into life.

Hephaestus, the god of fire and of the arts of the forge, has learned that his wife, Aphrodite, the goddess of love, is in love with his brother Ares, the god of war. The lame deity of labor relinquishes her to his brilliant rival. He had loved her, he says, "as waters love the wind"- than popular principles, is to vary my talk of hash by calling it sometimes "mince."

A stew is not a mince or hash. Nor is a ragout or a salmi.

Materials for these English dishes with French titles are cut into cubes or strips or joints, with a sharp knife, and retain shape and identity when cooked.

I would impress upon our housewife's mind one or two general rules for hash-making before proceeding to offer recipes:

1. Avoid incongruous mixtures. Certain combinations are harmonious in cookery as in colors. Ham and tongue, chicken and tongue, chicken and ham, beef and potatoes, veal and rice, lamb and peas, mutton and tomatoes, accord well the one with the other.

Veal and ham fall into step naturally. Don't mix beef and Kam, or fish and rice, for example, 2. Make it a point before essay-ing a mince to have stock or gravy wherewith to wet it.

ou cannot make good hash without it or butter rolled in browned flour. Chopped cold meat. wet up with salted water, and perhaps onion juice, and piled loosely upon buttered toast, is not a dainty dish to set before anybody, be he peasant instead of king.

Save bones and other scraps for gravy-making, and keep a supply on hand for the enrichment of left-

Hash Pates. Mince cold chicken, or veal or lamb and mix with it a third as much cooked ham or breakfast bacon, chopped fine. Add as much fine crumbs as you have ham. Toss and stir until they are thoroughly incorporated. Wet quite soft with gravy or good stock, season with paprika and onion juice to your taste Cut and set over the fire until very hot. It loses flavor if allowed to boil. Have ready, by the time it is scalding hot, a number of rounds of stale bread, in the center of which you have cut smaller circles, and scraped out of these the crumbs, leaving thin walls all around sides and bottoms. Dip these in a mixture of two beaten eggs and a cupful of milk.

Hash Pates With Poached Eggs. Make as directed above and lay a poached egg on the top of each.

Hash Pates and Baked Eggs. In filling the fried bread shells with mince, as I have described, level the latter a little below the tops of the shells and drop a raw egg carefully within each cavity. Set in a quick oven to form the egg. It should not be hard.

Vegetables

Veal and Mushroom Mince. Make a sauce of weak soup stock, heated in a saucepan with a spoonful of butter. When bubbling hot, stir in a large spoonful of flour and cook for a minute, stirring smooth. Now, season with onion juice, salt and pepper, and add nearly a cupful of strained tomato sauce, well thickened and seasoned with pepper and salt, a little sugar and a ump of butter.

Veal needs much "trimming" to make it savory. When the contents of the saucepan bubble all over, stir in two cupfuls of cold veal, chopped rather coarse, and a cupful of minced mushrooms.

As soon as it renews the bubble, take from the fire and serve.

Mounded Mutton and Rice. Make just such a mince as I have described in the last recipe, but instead of the mushrooms, stir into two cupfuls of minced lamb or mutton a cupful of cold boiled rice, and a small sweet green pepper, scalded and chopped. The hash should be stiff enough to hold its shape when made into a mound in the middle of a hot platter. About the base of the mound lay fried eggs, resting on edge and lying against the mince

Outside of the eggs arrange thin slices of fried bacon, curling and crisp.

Beef and Potato Hash. Mince cold roast, or better still, cold corned beef. Mince meat for hashes rather than grind it. The "cutter" takes out taste and goodness in reducing the meat to powder. Have ready boiling in the saucepan a good gravy, or soup stock, made richer with butter rolled in browned flour. Season highly. Mix with the beef one-

Wash a chamols in soft water to which has been added a little borax and enough soap to form a lather. Shake up and down in the water and rub very gently. Rinse in cold water, shake in the air to get out as much of it as possible, pull it out well and lay it flat until partly dry. Now pull it through the hands several times and again spread out flat for further drying. As a matter of fact, sugar is nearly pure carbon, and such a fat producer is indicated only, as before said, where heavy physical exertion is the rule.

of an egg. TO REMOVE FINGER

MARKS THE finger marks so frequently left on painted doors by children or careless maids may be removed by rubbing with a perfectly clean cloth dipped in a little paraffine. The place should be afterward carefully rinsed in cold water and given a final polish with a clean, soft cloth. There is no real remedy for finger marks on light wallpaper, but sometimes simply rubbing with a clean cloth will help. Water accidentally spilt on wallpaper will usually not injure it, and should be left alone to dry, as interference may cause a lasting stain.

THE HOUSEMOTHERS' EXCHANGE

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER

OULD you kindly tell me in next Sunday's paper how I may clean a cravenette raincoat? I am in haste to know. M. M. (Philadelphia). Before this can reach your eyes, you will have made up your mind that the postal conveying your wish never reached me.

In the first place, a postal cannot be answered by mail, because it contains no stamp. Secondly, yours had no address of street or number. But for the postmark known from what city it came. Thirdly, it was written in pencil, and most penciled letters go unread until those that are written with pen and ink, on one side of the sheet and signed at the bottom of the last page, with name and address in full, have been examined and docketed for reply.

on the reverse side I should not have

Thus it came about that your communication was overlooked for some days. I hope others will read this explanation and that they and I may profit by the plain statement of facts that count for much in a busy life. Lay the raincoat out smoothly on table and sponge with alcohol and ether in equal parts. Then lay in the shade, but in the open air, to dry in the wind. Wash the sponge several times in a cup of pure alcohol during the operation. You will be amazed to see how much dirt it has brought away.

Asks Information Will "L. B." (Ottawa, Canada) tell us how she gets along when using borax instead of starch to stiffen laces?

Doesn't it stick to the iron? I used to use it, but I have given it up. Do you suppose the borax I had was impure? Or what was the trouble? "L. E.'s" suggestion appeared several weeks back; but it is never too late to learn a better way than one knows. especially if one is not satisfied with that way.

E. K. W. (Buffalo, N. Y.).

You are right! A maxim to which I consider that I owe more than to any other bearing upon everyday life is "Never lose a thing for the want of asking for it"-"thing" meaning here, information that may be useful. Before "L. B." gets in a better reply than mine, let me suggest that lace should never be pressed with the naked iron. Nor should silk and ribbon. Lay thin muslin, slightly dampened, between the article treated with borax and the flatiron, and it cannot stick to the heated surface.

Proper Diet for Dogs I saw in The Exchange some weeks ago that somebody asked your advice as to the proper diet for dogs.

My experience goes to prove that Indian meal is poor stuff upon which to feed dogs that are confined to the houseyard. I do not wonder that one of those spoken of has died of the treatment.

If that diet is kept up the other will follow his example. Young dogs should have boiled meat and pupples bread and milk. At least, this is my way of feeding them.

They need also quite a good lot of running around to keep them healthy. My dog is never sick and he gets the diet prescribed above.
A. E. C. (Summerville, Minn.). More city dogs die for want of exercise than from improper feeding. When the two are combined the poor creature has a hard battle for existence. My sympathies go out with force that waxes into indignation at the cruelly unnatural lives led by dogs in .own whose owners seem to consider their duty done with regard to exercising the pampered quadrupeds when mistress or housemaid has walked them around the block twice a day, the unhappy beast straining at the end of a taut leash in the frantic desire to use his legs as they were meant to be employed.
