COUNCIL RECONSIDERED BRITAIN REPORT Canadian Schooner Bluenose Retains Racing Trophy

MAYOR ASKS NEW HEARING OF BRITAIN PROPOSALS

Will Urge Council To Deal at Once With Some Phases of Report.

COMMISSION GOVT.

Hope To Take Vote in December On This Plan of Administration.

Mayor George Wenige moves at Monday's session of the city council for a reconsideration of the Britain report, just referred to the council of 1924.

This move will require the support of eight aldermen with the mayor before any discussion is permissible, in accordance with the provisions of the municipal procedure bylaw. His wish is now confident of securing that assistance.

In this venture he has the moral support of James Gray, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who submits that the council should at least deal with that portion of the report which covers the proposed commission form of civic administration.

Mayor Wenige explains that it would not be imperative for the council to even attempt to deal with every phase of the Britain report, but only such recommendations as would be considered the most important and which could be effected without any expenditure this year.
He realizes that there would be insufficient time before the end of the year to deal with all the report.

Wants Vote On Commission.

"I would prefer that they at least pass the commission form of government," he said, "and reconsider their decision not to send the proposal to the ratepayers in December for an expression of opinion. I fail to see why they should object to at least allowing the people to have their say."

James Gray also makes appeal today for more favorable action in this particular matter.

"The keynote of the entire report is the proposed commission form of government," he declared, "and I believe it would be a good thing for the city if the aldermen would send this proposal to the people."

In addition to this, Mr. Gray is a firm advocate of the contemplated change in London's civic government. He believes that commission government would work to the better advantage in the general interests of the citizens than the 12-man council, which he considers far too unwieldy to be altogether satisfactory.

Favors Smaller Size.

"We have the best city on the continent in which to live," Mr. Gray said, "I have been here all my life, and I think so, but it could be managed more satisfactorily with a smaller board. The hospital trust and the public utilities commission are just the proper size. The commission should be similar in size."

Mayor Wenige points out that it did not seem necessary for the council to take up the entire report, but only with such items as were contested. The remainder of the recommendations could go on to 1924 the question only reopened upon distinct understanding.

Prisoner Glad To Be Removed From London to

Slam Williams has been sent back to Kingston Penitentiary. He will be held there until his trial in Jan-

he and Sid Murrell again will face a jury on the charge of slaying Russell Campbell during the Melbourne

No order from either Kingston or Toronto was received for his transfer, but a trial would not be held immediately, decided to send the prisoner back to the penitentiary.
It was thought an opportune time to send him as Governor Dawson and his assistant were taking Elijah

CHURCHES OBSERVE DAY OF ALL SAINTS

Services Today in Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches of City.

All Saints' Day was celebrated this morning in several of the city churches. At both the cathedral and this morning, numbers took part in the services. At St. Peter's Cathedral mass was said at 8 o'clock and at 9 o'clock a high mass was sung at 9. All Saints' Day, in the Roman Catholic Church, is one of the holy days of the year, and as such is celebrated as a Sunday. This evening there will be a vesper service in further celebration.
In St. Paul's Cathedral the sacrament of the holy communion was observed at 10:30 o'clock.
The service was also observed in All Saints' and other of the Anglican churches.

DEPUTY FIRE MARSHAL CONTINUES CITY PROBE

Questions Myer Gootson, Part Owner of Dundas Street Property.

D. H. Saville, of the Dominion fire marshals' department, Ottawa, who has been here since Monday, is still conducting an inquiry into the causes of four fires at the Dominion Soda Water Works, 665 Dundas street, and two places at the Campbell Hotel factory, 19 King street. The loss at the Campbell factory was estimated at $5,000.

This morning Mr. Saville and Fire Chief Aitken had a session at the fire hall. Myer Gootson, 41 Maitland

the soda water works, was questioned regarding the fires which have occurred at that factory in several months.

Canadian fisherman, today demonstrated her superiority over the Columbia of Gloucester, international fisherman's trophy, in a rip-roaring northeaster that caused both skippers to shorten sail and show their decks with every plunge. By today's win the Bluenose retains the trophy won two years ago from Elsie and retained last year off Gloucester in competition with the Henry Ford.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Halifax, Nov. 1.—This morning furnished the nearest approach to racing weather the week has produced, and the Columbia and Bluenose, contestants in the international schooner race series, were both away from their wharves before 8 a.m.
Jockeying about in the outer basin of the harbor in a 15-knot wind from the northwest, waiting for the gun to start and across the line on the second of the international series. A signal from the starting committee on the breakwater indicated that number two would be sailed. This is the same course sailed over Monday when the Bluenose won a thrilling victory.

The pouring rain of the previous night, the sky was overcast and wintry when the schooners went down the harbor to "tune up" for the start, but as 9 o'clock approached blue sky began to appear in patches and an ideal racing day was predicted.

The five-minute gun found both schooners behind the line with all sails set except foretopsails. They were racing the windily around one another, seeking the advantage of a quick dash across the line on the gun. They came about together about fifty yards back of the line, and looked as though Bluenose would beat the gun across the mark.

Bluenose, 9:00:27.
Columbia, 9:00:40.

The schooners got away to a fine start, but as 9 o'clock approached wind, scudded away from the first mark, six miles distant. For a moment soon after the start the Bluenose lost her lead.

The Columbia came abreast and almost a length ahead, when the Bluenose, chattering with wind and jumped into the lead. At 9:15 the

ASKS EARLY COLLECTION OF ACCOUNT FOR PAVING

Ald. John Greer Disfavors "Passing the Buck" to 1924 Council.

Ald. John Greer is not favorable toward any move to "pass the buck" to 1924.

And at yesterday's session of the finance committee he made it quite clear that in his opinion the duty rested upon the members of the 1923 city council to bill the London Street Railway and collect for work done on the Stanley street pavement.

Mayor Wenige claimed that it would be impossible for the engineer to have the company's proportion of the costs ready for a few days. The committee finally recommended to the council, at Ald. Greer's suggestion, that it rescind its resolution to permit the company to pay for its portion of the Richmond street pavement in ten annual installments.

Ald. Drake charged during the proceedings, that Stanley street had been a poor job. This claim was hotly disputed by the mayor.
The mayor was also of the opinion that it would not be good business to rescind the Richmond street resolution unless the work was completed.
Ald. Greer reminded that he had asked for the city solicitor's advice, but had been denied the wish. The issue goes on to Monday night's council for further debate.

EX-PREMIER OF BRITAIN ENDS 6,000 MILE TOUR

David Lloyd George Will Deliver Final Addresses in United States.

ARRIVAL UNMARRIED

Police Protection at Hoboken Averted Any Untoward Incidents.

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, Nov. 1. — Right Hon.
David Lloyd George, Britain's wartime premier, has ended his 6,000-mile tour of Canada and the United States. He arrived in New York last night, went to the home of John W.
Davis, former ambassador to the court of St. James, in Locust Valley, L. I., and made preparations for his two final addresses in this country.

The first will be delivered at the Lotus Club, tonight, and the second at the Metropolitan Opera House tomorrow night.

Mr. Lloyd George, although free from any public engagements tonight, will not rest today. He planned to pass the morning attending to personal affairs, and later, if he could spare the time, to visit the grave of Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, and call on Mrs. Roosevelt at her home there.

Arrival of the former premier last night was without incident. There was a small crowd of admirers in the Hoboken station of the Lackawanna Railroad, where his special train arrived a few minutes before 8 o'clock.
Elaborate police arrangements had been made, and the station was closely guarded.

The Thanksgiving Turkey May Cost More This Year

Price of Newly Killed Birds Is Certain To Advance in Next Few Days.

CROP BUT SMALL

Your Thanksgiving turkey may be cheaper or more expensive this year.
It all depends on whether you prefer the honest-to-goodness "gobbler" from off the farm or whether you will be content with one out of the cold storage emporium.

The yearly crop in this territory will likely be a little higher than last year, but there are quite a number of birds in local cold storage factories which,
from off the farm or whether you will be content with one out of the cold storage emporium.

Thanksgiving eating. The price for a recently killed turkey just taken away from his agricultural haunts will likely be a little higher than last year. Old turkeys sell on the market at 28 cents a pound. But if you get a tender, full-sized bird for that price around Thanksgiving time you will be lucky.

On the other hand cold storage fowl is abundant, and the price will be slightly lower than the barnyard variety. Numerous shipments of turkeys living will be made to the United States where they will fetch from 35 to 45 cents a pound, according to current quotations.

A representative of C. A. Mann, fowl dealer, declared that the turkey yield was not as good as anticipated. A percentage had fallen victims and the work of rearing the birds was an extremely difficult task. The present prices will be substantially higher as Thanksgiving Day approaches.

Many Thousands of Dollars Paid Today By Bankers On Maturing of Victory Bonds

Money in Most Cases Will Be Reinvested Practically at Once.

NOT LONG IDLE

Bankers See Normal Prosperity Returning to Canada.

City bankers estimate that $11-500,000 in five-year term Victory bonds, issued in 1918, were cashed by London and Western Ontario banks today. The bonds mature on Nov. 1.

As a result of the wholesale cash-ing of these bonds an unprecedented amount of the money has suddenly come into circulation. By tomorrow it is expected 60 per cent of this will be absorbed by reinvestments.

The original issue of five-year bonds in 1918 amounted to $200,000-000, fully subscribed. Approximately $85,000,000 had been disposed of up to Oct. 1, leaving $115,000,000 to be taken in on the date of maturity.

Brokers reported a rushing business this morning. Hundreds of 1918 bondholders desired to reinvest in the new $50,000,000 provincial loan.
A few blocks of this issue are held in brokers' lots, and it is expected all will be sold before evening.

All have been cashing Dominion government bonds all morning. The manager of a large local bank said:
"I figure that about 60 per cent of funds received from these will be reinvested in Dominion government and industrial securities. Many men and women will use the proceeds for private purposes, such as paying off mortgages, making building additions and purchasing certain articles long needed."

Just about this time a percentage of the public is financially "suffering up," and several million dollars in Western Ontario will doubtless be used to pay off debts.

The Financial Post complains that, owing to the recent government loan, money has become extremely tight, causing serious injury to industry. We have not felt the slightest indication of this here. If such a condition has existed the $115-000,000 placed in circulation today through the cashing of the 1918 maturities will forestall all possibility of a serious money shortage."

Another banker announced that demand for industrial securities was extraordinarily brisk. This points to a revival in trade, and is a marked indication of the confidence felt by citizens in the industrial future of the country, he said.

"There can be no question but that we are coming back to business prosperity," he added. "The tremendous commercial losses suffered in 1921 and 1922 have been reduced to almost nil. I don't think any big business is making money, but at least they are not losing. Next year will see a big revival."

Alleges "Hand-Picking."
Mayor Wenige refers to the street workers, and those in every civic department, supervised by the city council, but who to date have not been mentioned for increases. He does not set any figure to be considered a "hand-picking" wage, but intimates, however, that this proposal should apply to all those who are not receiving $2,000, or at the very least $1,500.

During yesterday's battle in the committee the mayor insisted that his opponents were "hand-picking" the employees in order to grant increases.

The several city officials who submitted their recommendations explained today that they prepared the same in accordance with what money was told them to be available for salary increases—less than $5,000. Had they known, of course, that the committee proposed to destroy more generously with them, it would be only natural for them to tender more substantial increases.

To Consider Others.
Members of the finance committee have already recommended increases aggregating nearly $8,000, and they have not completed their work. They have still to consider the state of other officials and employees under their supervision.

The general impression today is, however, that these increases will pass the council, together with proportional increases yet to be submitted by the board of works. This will indicate another overdraft of at least $10,000.

Mayor Wenige warns today that all responsibility in this connection must rest upon those members of the council who vote accordingly, but insists, however, that if they insist upon an overdraft it would only be fair to deal alike with all the city employees, and make an attempt to maintain a permanent salary scale.

Mayor Proposes Sweeping

LARGER OVERDRAFT

Wenige Stakes Opponents
"Hand-Picked" Employees
To Be Given Increases.

Sweeping changes in the city's payroll were proposed today by Mayor Wenige for consideration at Monday's session of the city council.

His worship gave assurance, in effect, that he would move in amendment to the recommendations from yesterday's session of the finance committee, that it elevate the payroll of every city employee under its direct supervision whose remuneration is not now considered an ample living wage.

"Let us do the job right, if we are going to do it at all," declared the mayor, thoroughly aroused today by the action of the finance committee yesterday. "The way they are now heading, they are going to have several thousands of dollars of an over-draft, but if the majority of the councillors see fit to do that, and increase all the recommendations from the heads of departments, then I say that we should not pick and choose, but consider the wage of every employee in every department under our direct control. We should then increase, by the same proportion as the increases yesterday proposed for employees in the city hall, the wages of those others who are not receiving what I would consider a living wage."

Mayor Wenige refers to the street
workers, and those in every civic

council, but who to date have not

ISDR. BANTING NOW HUNTING FOR REMEDY FOR CANCER

Local Medical Man Says This

BANTING RESEARCH

Opinion That Little Difficulty

Raising Needed Fund.

Dr. Fred G. Banting left for Toronto early this morning. Simultaneously with his departure morning newspapers announced the founding of a great research organization to be known as the Banting Medical Research Foundation.

City doctors, questioned this morning, were tremendously enthusiastic over the work of Dr. Banting medicine in the form of energy expenditure over the work of the Banting terity as the founder of medical re-say.

Major Hume Cronyn, whose advocacy of an industrial research bureau did much toward educating the public to the urgency of such an institution, believes industrial research will follow shortly on the heels of the Banting Foundation. "The idea has been sold to the public and in anticipates immense development in this regard within the next decade."

Can Get the Money.
I am convinced Dr. Banting will have little difficulty in procuring the $2,000,000 objective for a medical research organization," he said. "I was talking to the head of the Rockefeller Foundation recently in connection with industrial research. He said the Rockefeller funds must be used exclusively for medical research. It is therefore more than feasible that a substantial contribution, probably half of the objective, will be obtained from the Rockefeller people."

"I was delighted to hear of the formation of a medical research foundation. It will surely pave the way for an industrial research. What a splendid thing it will be for young men with ideas to have every opportunity for experiment. The idea is to give assistance to ambitious scientists, who like research but who cannot follow this because of lack of finances. Such people would be required to go before a scientific committee and state what they desired to do in the way of research. This committee in turn will pass upon the application and the applicant's fitness for the work.
They will either dismiss the idea or encourage it."

HOME BANK OFFICIALS SEEKING IMMEDIATE TRIAL

CROWN DEMANDS HOME BANK CASES BE TRAVERSED

Defending Counsel Ask Speedy Hearing, But Prosecutor Objects.

ALL REPRESENTED

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Nov. 1.—Nine directors and officials of the Home Bank appeared today before Mr. Justice Smith in the assize court charged with conspiracy in connection with the failure of the bank. The charges were laid under sections 414 and 444 of the criminal code. D. L. McCarthy, K.C., H. J. Scott, Crown Attorney, Eric Armour and Deputy Attorney General Bayly appeared for the crown, while a dozen lawyers—Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., W. N. Tilley, K.C., I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., and H. H. Dewar, K.C.—reported the various directors and officials.

Mr. McCarthy, special prosecutor appointed by the crown, asked that the trial be deferred until January, but W. N. Tilley, appearing for R. P. Gough, vice-president, urged that the defendants be dealt with under part 18 of the criminal code, dealing with speedy trials.

"We all elect a speedy trial," he said, "and ask to be taken to the proper judge."

Crown Objects.
McCarthy objected that "that matter is not properly before your lordship until the accused are in custody." To this Mr. Justice Smith replied that the matter is not right at this moment, then I do not know what the proceedings are," he said. "The defendants are here for the purpose of surrendering bail."

Mr. Tilley then asked the act, saying: "We claim our right to a trial at the earliest possible moment."

Mr. Tilley quoted authorities for an hour, and he was supported by Hon. Mr. Rowell. Mr. McCarthy, however, submitted that the crown had not adopted the proper procedure.

Mr. Justice Smith then inquired if the charge could be tried without a jury. Mr. McCarthy replied that the case must be tried in the court in which it now is and by a jury. It was unnecessary to consider decisions in other provinces. You are bound by the sovereign case," he urged.

Go Before County Judge.
The defense were not in a position to elect as to when and by whom they should be tried, the county judge, said, "It can't be done here; they must go before a county judge," concluded Mr. McCarthy.

"All right, we'll go there," said Mr. McCarthy. Mr. McCarthy then closed by asking that he be taken to the proper judge, the county judge, said, "It can't be done here; they must go before a county judge," concluded Mr. McCarthy.

More Births Than Deaths in City Since January 1

The clerk is leading the Grim Reaper with the substantial majority of 151, according to the regular monthly report from City Clerk Sam Baker.

Since the first of the year, there have been 1,173 births in the city, as against 922 deaths. During that same interval 616 marriages were performed.

There were no less than 123 births during the month of October; 63 males, 60 females and 81 deaths, 37 males and 44 females. Marriages were set at 78.

Says Eskimos Got Fair Trial

Canadian Press Despatch.
Winnipeg, Nov. 1.—That the Eskimos tried at Herschel Island for murder had been given a thoroughly fair trial, and that everything was in accordance with the best traditions of the British court of justice, was the statement made last night by Thomas L. Cory of Ottawa, counsel for the defence, after leaving Herschel Island on August 12. Mr. Cory declined to discuss the movement on foot for getting the condemned Eskimos reprieved, on the ground that they were not familiar with the laws of civilization.

BIG GUNS ARRIVE FOR TORY PARLEY HELD HERE TODAY

Delegates From Western Ontario Respond to Call For Clan Gathering.

TO ELECT OFFICERS

The Tory heavy artillery wheeled into local position early this afternoon, and the gunners were still holding the fort at press time, keyed to an unusual high pitch of enthusiasm over the presence of Sir Henry Drayton.

The former minister of finance, in the late lamented Borden administration at Ottawa, executed a special pilgrimage into the smiling places of Western Ontario to lend encouragement for the next federal campaign. It is the annual caucus for the delegates representing 24 ridings west of Toronto and approximately 100 delegates jumped smartly to attention at 2:45 this afternoon when "President" E. R. Dennis pounded the gavel for order.

There is a fair sprinkling of district members of parliament in attendance and one provincial heavyweight, Hon. W. H. Price, a member of the Ontario cabinet. Other members of the cabinet found it impossible to break away from their duties, but two or three of the better known "warriors" are present.

Mr. McCarthy, special prosecutor appointed by the crown, asked that the trial be deferred until January, but W. N. Tilley, appearing for R. P. Gough, vice-president, urged that the defendants be dealt with under part 18 of the criminal code, dealing with speedy trials.

Go Before County Judge.
The defense were not in a position to elect as to when and by whom they should be tried, the county judge, said, "It can't be done here; they must go before a county judge," concluded Mr. McCarthy.

All right, we'll go there, said Mr. McCarthy. Mr. McCarthy then closed by asking that he be taken to the proper judge, the county judge, said, "It can't be done here; they must go before a county judge," concluded Mr. McCarthy.

There were no less than 123 births during the month of October; 63 males, 60 females and 81 deaths, 37 males and 44 females. Marriages were set at 78.

INCIDENT SHOWS CHIEF'S MEMORY QUOTE RETENTIVE

Recalls Defendant's Appearing in Police Court Seven Years Ago.

ALLEGES ASSAULT

Once upon a time a series of short stories was written entitled: "The Long Arm of Mannister," and a similar story could be written about "The Long Memory of Mannister." Today the chief and the magistrate recalled a police court case of seven long years ago, when a Horton street citizen was charged in court with assault by his neighbor, Miss Ida Frank.

The gentleman was put "over the ropes" by the magistrate, who insisted that he had seen him in court before. The man denied ever being in trouble, but after slight mental effort the chief declared the accused had been in the toils seven years ago because he had played a phonograph record of the same tune last Saturday night and day, and annoyed the neighborhood to such an extent with his love for canned music that a police court action resulted.

The accused finally admitted that the chief and magistrate were right that he had been in court, but thought the magistrate must have been in court in connection with the case brought by his present neighbors. The case was finally dismissed.

Miss Frank complained that her neighbor, whose age in the police court record book is given as 74, hit her with a rake handle last Saturday, and threw dirt and sod on her lawn. Miss Frank, with some spirit, threw the dirt and sod back on her neighbor's premises, where he walked over to her lawn, hit her with the rake handle and kicked her.

Says She Kicked Him.
Miss Ida Frank said she saw the rake upraised, but didn't see the blow fall, because she ran back to the house.

Mr. Wright, who looked to be fully as old as the accused, stated the assault had acknowledged to him that he had hit Miss Frank. The defendant in the witness box said he was very sorry there had been any trouble. He had been making a flower bed, and sifted some earth which he threw through the window, but on his own property.

"I put some sod beside it, and she (Miss Frank) came out and said: 'You devil, what are you doing here?' declared witness. "She up and patted me three or four on the face and kicked me."

"I didn't touch her," was the reply. "I think they would mind their own business."

Denies Statements.
"She says you interfere with her when she leaves the house," declared E. T. Essery, K.C., who was acting as counsel for Miss Frank. "I'm above that," declared Chief Birrell, who had been busy searching his memory.

"You were here before, over a neighborhood dispute," declared the court suddenly.

"No, sir," was the emphatic denial.

"These people say you are continually quarrelling," went on the court. "They devil, what are you doing here?" declared witness. "She up and patted me three or four on the face and kicked me."

"I didn't touch her," was the reply. "I think they would mind their own business."

LAWRASON WILL BACK PROPOSAL BEFORE VOTERS

Declares He Will Argue With the Mayor on Public Platform.

RE NEW CITY HALL

School Trustee S. F. Lawrason and Mayor George Wenige are "going to the mat."

While unwilling to accept the mayor's challenge to run for mayor, Trustee Lawrason again today proposed to meet Mayor Wenige upon the public platform during the campaign and argue the merits of their respective city hall projects.

Trustee Lawrason stipulates, however, that his proposal to build a $200,000 extension to the Hydro Building, must go on the ballot paper, which is the proposal that they build a $600,000 structure on the McCormick site.

Mayor Wenige is not clothed with the power to do this, however, and it would be impossible to reconsider the city hall issue without a two-thirds vote of the aldermen, which seems well-nigh impossible at this juncture.

Otherwise, there would be no reason why Mayor Wenige should not be a public platform to debate the issue on the public platform with Trustee Lawrason, now that the latter declines to accept the challenge to run for mayor.

Mayor Wenige has already stated that he will in any event "take the stump" to insure passage of the McCormick site proposal.

Trustee Lawrason, however, demands a definite answer from the mayor. "I have accepted his challenge," he said, "and I want to know from him what he intends to do about it. Will he put my proposal on the ballot paper, as I suggest? If here, by City Council, I will meet him on the platform."

TO REARRANGE SUBDIVISIONS

The city polling subdivisions will have to be rearranged for 1924, City Clerk Baker reports. The statutes provide that no more than 300 subdivisions have as many as 500 this year. It is too late, however, to make the change for the December election.

NOVEMBER STARTS WELL.

CHATHAM YOUTHS ABANDON LEAGUE AGAINST GIRLS

Anti-Feminist League Expires After One Short Month of Existence.

PARTY DID IT

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Chatham, Nov. 1.—The Anti-Feminist League of Chatham, which started under such auspicious circumstances one short month ago, is no more.

Yesterday the penultimate chapter in the history of an unique club, composed of five prominent boys of Chatham, was written, and the matter torn up, when three of the boys were unable to withstand the pleasure of the company and dancing of the girls whom they had forewarned.

It all started over a dinner party to which the three boys were invited. They accepted the invitation in an unsuspecting manner, but it was alleged that on arriving at the stated hour they found they were the victims of a conspiracy. There were girls present, and the boys were unable to withstand the pleasure of the company and dancing of the girls whom they had forewarned.

Escorting the girls with whom they had dinner, the boys went to a dance, where the final shreds of conscience, as far as the anti-feminist movement in Chatham was concerned, were broken. William Campbell, one of the boys, and four of them cavorted around with no thought of the penalties which might be exacted for having broken their vow.

Today the boys are being laughed at for their break from "freedom," and the girls are again looking forward to the usual Christmas presents of chocolates, flowers, etc., which they might have without had the boys kept to the straight and narrow pathway of masculine company only.

Win the final word will be written on the subject is not known. Included in the charter the boys had signed was a clause placing a ten-dollar fine on the breakers of the contract. In addition they were to skate along King street at high noon on roller skates.

BANTING TALKS TO STUDENTS ON VALUE OF AN IDEAL

STUDENTS HEAR DR. BANTING IN MASTERLY ADDRESS

Points Out Value of An Ideal To Members of Medical Profession.

RECALLS OLD DAYS

Dr. Frederick Banting's first official visit to London since perfecting insulin may fade in the memory of most citizens, but to the students of the local medical college it shall ever remain fresh and green.

After an afternoon crammed with activity Dr. Banting arrived in Room 114 of the medical school at 6 o'clock. He found it crowded with chattering students who had waited long to hear him. Their patience was well rewarded, for the winner of the Nobel prize gave one of the most inspiring little talks the students have heard or ever will hear.

He recalled the days when he lectured in London in the joy of striving but also days of precious memory. Days, when a remote teacher of orthopedic surgery dreamed dreams which, in reality, were to become one of the greatest boons mankind has known.

Dr. Banting told the boys the value of an ideal—the joy of striving for the unobtainable; the supreme pleasure of struggling through the darkness and finding light.

His gospel was that of one who, in the face of great obstacles, remains true to his ideals which shall inevitably carry him to peaks of destiny. Incidentally he expressed antipathy to medicine men who do not recognize the unwritten conventions of the profession.

"Only hope is in your life work you shall strive to accomplish things which in their accomplishment do more good than harm," he said, "and that you will be successful in such quest as osteopathy and chiropractic."

Learned Teaching. His experience in teaching London students proved him more than he could estimate. Dr. Banting added, "Teaching is a hard and thankless job, but it is the only way to learn by their own teaching."

"With today a deserved tribute to the splendid new medical college in London," he noted scientist said, "I believe the preliminary teaching of science in the building will prove an infinitely greater benefit than the teaching in larger colleges. You do not understand as yet, perhaps, what the value of contact means. Contact with one speaker and contact with your instructors is a valuable feature of such a school. My own contacts while teaching here are a blessing with great fondness than any others. Inmate class contacts are the privilege of only a relatively few students, those in large universities are denied them."

"I trust throughout your career you will come to regard yourself, not as an individual actuated by selfish motives, but as a servant of mankind. You must appreciate the art as well as the science of medicine. You must begin with an ideal and end with an ideal. As if by the way, you should after all place commercial gain before higher motives you should stop your studies right now. Medicine is a profession of inspiration, perpetual and eternal."

"Medicine is a science that is not fixed. It is forever changing and its changes are the result of combinatorial research. It is necessary that you absorb great knowledge so you may contribute knowledge to the world. But always keep in mind that great power for good means great power for evil. The more effective an antidote for disease the more effective it is in causing disease if administered in irregular quantities. Be guided only by this principle—use your knowledge to one end if you believe by using it to that end you are bringing greater happiness to a greater number of people."

Counteracted by Joy. "You may be compelled to inflict pain or cause unhappiness, but if such pain and unhappiness is more than counteracted by the joy and happiness you give, you are justified in doing anything."

Dr. Banting, in spite of his known reticence to anything savouring of publicity, was forced to put in an extremely active day. Following his address before the Canadian Club and Chamber of Commerce yesterday, he sought seclusion in his Tuxedo House room. George Westland brought him to the medical school, however, where Dr. Weston Price of the Rockefeller Institute, New York, and Dr. C. S. Wright of Toronto, who delivered papers, met him.

Dr. Banting gave a brief talk on a dental subject, which Dr. Price listened in masterly fashion. His address was in connection with the meeting of local and St. Thomas dentists in the Academy of Medicine.

Accompanied by Dean Sherwood Fox of the University of Western Ontario, Dr. Banting visited the new university buildings between 4 and 6 o'clock. Later he addressed the medical students and then became the guest of Dr. Hadley Williams at dinner yesterday evening.

The famous scientist's aversion to publicity was illustrated yesterday afternoon, when two reporters asked him certain questions in connection with medical research as applied to diabetes, and also in regard to the report that he will shortly announce another discovery of greater importance than insulin. The doctor refused to comment on his alleged new discovery.

Other information obtained from him is, at his request, withheld from publication.

Visits Old Friend. Last night Dr. Banting stayed over with Principal T. F. Graham of the London South College. Mr. Graham and the noted physician were school chums together and later occupied the same room when both attended the University of Toronto.

During his visit practically every physician and medical student in the city met the discoverer of insulin. Informal conversations with old colleagues of the medical school commanded a large proportion of his time, but, judging by the enthusiastic greeting which he accorded each and every one, the renewal of intimacies in the city of his early struggles was greatly enjoyed.

DECLARED SPECIALIST IN DENTAL CASE DISEASES

Dr. Weston Price Delivers Masterly Address Before London Medical Academy.

REVEALS FACTS

By diagram, statistics and speech, Dr. Weston Price, one of the foremost scientists of the world, traced the sources of many diseases which for years have baffled the medical profession, in a masterly lecture before members of the London Academy of Medicine and London and Elgin dentists at the local medical school yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Price, who is chief of the dental department of the Rockefeller Institute, New York, showed how numerous human ailments are directly attributable to impairment of the teeth. He revealed how hundreds of lives had been saved through the utilization of new dental knowledge. He told the assembled doctors of recently ascertained facts in connection with dentistry which, in the past few years have revolutionized the profession.

Is a Canadian. The noted doctor, who is a Canadian, but who crossed the border because research facilities in Canada were insufficient to carry on his revolutionary work in connection with dentistry, stressed the marvellous efficiency of Ionic Calcium in the treatment of certain maladies. He also showed that a large proportion of organic and structural disorders are caused by ignorance of the tremendous physical influence which teeth have over the human body.

Many forms of kidney, heart, neck and joint diseases, the prominent specialist said, would be eliminated if the proper use of Ionic Calcium were understood. He proceeded to explain how this drug administered in definite quantities for certain physical impairments, resulted in absolute cures. He told how cultures taken from the teeth and inoculated into rabbits caused their death within a short period. Rheumatism, hip and joint disease, nephritis, scotia and many other ailments could be traced to defective teeth, he said.

Does Not Mean Freedom. Pulling the teeth did not necessarily mean freedom from the toxic influence of heavy conditions and ulcers involved. Frequently, Dr. Price submitted, a bacterial invasion reaches such proportions that the actual employment of dentistry is futile. He presented facts and figures which illustrated a number of extraordinary anomalies in relation to these conditions. He said, reacts in exactly the same way, but each required a separate form of treatment of his own.

The address, delivered in technical phraseology of the profession, was listened to with wrapt attention. After the lecture Dr. Jeffrey Hale, president of the London Academy of Medicine, stated that local doctors had never before heard such an informative address as this, delivered in a masterly fashion.

Dr. C. S. Wright of Toronto, who is dealing with another phase of medical practice, Dr. Frederick Banting, discovered that insulin, told how Dr. Price's theories had been used in diabetic cases and endorsed what the New York physician had said in every detail as it applied to his particular department.

HOLD STREET FROLIC DESPITE A BLIZZARD

Stratford Folk Join In An Evening of Fun To Aid Crippled Children.

Special to The Advertiser. Stratford, Oct. 31.—In the face of a genuine winter blizzard that covered the city streets with from 2 to 3 inches of snow, Stratford people turned out in tens of hundreds to do a good deed in the interest of the crippled children of Stratford and Perth.

To the music of bands some 300 people, dressed in a variety of comic and historical costumes, marched the city hall to the rink between 6 and 8 o'clock. A large number of spectators, who defied the elements.

The street fair was only a partial success. The snow made dancing impossible and the skating rink, while boys dressed as cowboys, colored gentlemen and a contingent of a fair crowd on the street for a time, the real evening fun became centered at the city hall and rink.

The carnival spirit reigned supreme at the latter place, hundreds crisscrossing the building to capacity. Dancing, games of skill, fortune telling, costume judging, comedy skits and a dozen other attractions kept a crowd in an hilarious mood until a late hour. The city hall auditorium was packed to top of the gallery for the concert.

While no estimate could be made to the Burford Club feels confident that there will be no lack of money for the treatment of the crippled children.

Decision Is Reached At Meeting of Local Council of Women.

ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

The affiliated women's organizations of the city, under their central body, the Local Council of Women, have decided to take a hand in the municipal elections this year. At the annual meeting of the Local Council of Women held yesterday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. residence, King street, the feeling was expressed that the women of London were not living up to their position as enfranchised citizens and, furthermore, that the city of London was not getting the benefit of its best men on civic bodies.

After an intensely interesting discussion of the municipal situation, the decision was made to engage actively in the municipal struggle this year. It will not be the aim of the women to put women candidates into the field, although many of them feel that there is a decided place for women on the board of education. But it will be rather their endeavor to induce the best type of man candidate to run for office.

With such an object in view, the women have divided themselves into wards, and have chosen ward committees. Mrs. John Rose, who was elected president of the Local Council of Women at the meeting, will act as convener of this great citizenship committee, whose membership comprises practically all of the women of London. The ward committees are: Ward 1—Mrs. Robson, Mrs. E. B. Smith, Mrs. John I. A. Hunt, Mrs. W. A. Cress, Ward 2—Mrs. A. T. Edwards, Mrs. W. A. Tanner, Mrs. Greenleaf and Mrs. T. J. Murphree, Ward 3—Mrs. H. A. Smith, Mrs. Howard Erskine, Mrs. E. T. Telford and Mrs. Winnie, Ward 4—Mrs. W. C. Benson, Mrs. Colin Smith, Mrs. D. A. Miller, Mrs. Frank Butler, Mrs. C. B. King, Mrs. R. Somerville.

Mrs. John Rose started the discussion on the proposed entry of London's women into the field of municipal politics by declaring that she had heard on many sides the criticism that the women of London were not living up to their position as enfranchised citizens. "This is not fair," declared Mayor Wenig, "let us do what we can to get the best men into the field. We are working along the line of getting better men candidates to run for office."

She was followed by Mrs. John I. A. Hunt, member of the school board, "I do think that the women of the city who have votes should see that the business of the city is properly carried on," said Mrs. Hunt. "They have more time than businessmen to seek out good men for office, men who are capable and have the time to do the job. I am a firm believer that the trustees should include at least two women. My experience has taught me that it is absolutely necessary to have a woman on that body."

Mrs. W. A. Tanner, a former trustee and member of the London Union Mothers' Club, also spoke to the question. She referred more particularly to the office of trustee and the necessity for women on the school board.

"I should like to see three women members on the board next year, one woman for each committee of that body. If we are placed in the city where a woman should be that is on the school board. I know of instances when I was in office where it would have been better to have certain school matters to have been settled had there not been a woman on the board to whom the women teachers of the schools could appeal."

The matters under discussion were not such as men have been taken up with the men members of that body. "I also believe that there may be a place for a woman alderman in the city of London, but I should not like to be the pioneer."

Mrs. A. T. Edwards, also a former trustee, was not so anxious that women should become candidates for office themselves as that they should work to get better men into the field. "I don't think that we should usurp what men hold," she said. "But I do think that this last council has been a disgrace to the city, or at least to the women of the city. We have been too much shelving of important matters until next year. We should let the good men of London know that we want them in the field. With a council made up of good men we should not get this disagreement and delay."

Mrs. Joseph Marshall made an appeal to the local council that they should urge the National Council of Women to take up the question of franchise to all women under 30 years of age. They would only thus be following the action of the women of England. The matter, however, was having a later meeting.

The election of officers was an important feature of yesterday's meeting, with the result that Mrs. John Rose made the president, Mrs. E. B. Smith, who has held that office since the death of Mrs. H. A. Boomer some years ago. Mrs. Smith refused to continue as president, and her resignation was gratefully received. Other officers are: Vice-presidents, Mrs. David Williams, Mrs. Gordon Wright, Mrs. Donald McLean, Mrs. E. B. Smith and Mrs. E. W. Scatcherd; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. Drew; recording secretary, Mrs. Joseph Marshall; treasurer, Mrs. R. M. Graham.

The meeting expressed its great appreciation of Miss Isabel Armstrong's work on behalf of all the women's organizations of the city, and regretted her departure from the city would not permit her to retain the office of vice-president.

LONDON'S WOMEN DECIDE TO ENTER MUNICIPAL FIELD

Decision Is Reached At Meeting of Local Council of Women.

ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

The affiliated women's organizations of the city, under their central body, the Local Council of Women, have decided to take a hand in the municipal elections this year. At the annual meeting of the Local Council of Women held yesterday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. residence, King street, the feeling was expressed that the women of London were not living up to their position as enfranchised citizens and, furthermore, that the city of London was not getting the benefit of its best men on civic bodies.

After an intensely interesting discussion of the municipal situation, the decision was made to engage actively in the municipal struggle this year. It will not be the aim of the women to put women candidates into the field, although many of them feel that there is a decided place for women on the board of education. But it will be rather their endeavor to induce the best type of man candidate to run for office.

With such an object in view, the women have divided themselves into wards, and have chosen ward committees. Mrs. John Rose, who was elected president of the Local Council of Women at the meeting, will act as convener of this great citizenship committee, whose membership comprises practically all of the women of London. The ward committees are: Ward 1—Mrs. Robson, Mrs. E. B. Smith, Mrs. John I. A. Hunt, Mrs. W. A. Cress, Ward 2—Mrs. A. T. Edwards, Mrs. W. A. Tanner, Mrs. Greenleaf and Mrs. T. J. Murphree, Ward 3—Mrs. H. A. Smith, Mrs. Howard Erskine, Mrs. E. T. Telford and Mrs. Winnie, Ward 4—Mrs. W. C. Benson, Mrs. Colin Smith, Mrs. D. A. Miller, Mrs. Frank Butler, Mrs. C. B. King, Mrs. R. Somerville.

Mrs. John Rose started the discussion on the proposed entry of London's women into the field of municipal politics by declaring that she had heard on many sides the criticism that the women of London were not living up to their position as enfranchised citizens. "This is not fair," declared Mayor Wenig, "let us do what we can to get the best men into the field. We are working along the line of getting better men candidates to run for office."

She was followed by Mrs. John I. A. Hunt, member of the school board, "I do think that the women of the city who have votes should see that the business of the city is properly carried on," said Mrs. Hunt. "They have more time than businessmen to seek out good men for office, men who are capable and have the time to do the job. I am a firm believer that the trustees should include at least two women. My experience has taught me that it is absolutely necessary to have a woman on that body."

SUBSIDIES HELD BY COUNCILORS

Finance Committee Recommends Expenditure of $7,000 in City Hall Increases.

BLOCK MAYOR'S PLAN

Not since they held their fire department investigation last spring have the members of the finance committee of the city council staged such a stormy session as yesterday afternoon, when they recommended, more than $7,000 in city hall salary increases.

And even then they did not finish the job as the point was reached when further progress was impossible, and the meeting broke up by common consent.

The introduction of the salary question was the signal for a general scrimmage, from which the representatives from ward three and Ald. Wilson emerged as distinct victors.

The discussion was heated throughout, and there were times when Mayor Wenig and Ald. John Colbert rose to their feet to lend emphasis to their remarks. The mayor's proposal to adopt certain recommendations drafted last summer and which provided for salary of $2,600 for Assessment Commissioner Harry Bennett, was hopelessly lost.

Mayor Wenig charged at one spectacular juncture that they were "hand-picking" the employees for raises, while at another time Ald. Colbert vowed that they would find the money if they had to cut the department heads, and subsequently Ald. Colbert declared that they would reduce to $3,000, this motion was seconded by Mayor Wenig, but voted down by Ald. Wilson, Drake and Ald. Judd and Burdick were absent.

Ald. Colbert's first amendment to standardize all the wages in the city hall was voted down. Let us do what we can to get the best men into the field. We are working along the line of getting better men candidates to run for office."

"You sit down," shouted Chairman Wilson, "let us get on with the work. You will have the funds to deal with the underpaid employees in an equitable manner," persisted the mayor.

Too Much Inequality. "I am satisfied there is too much inequality in this city hall," exclaimed Ald. Colbert, also leaning to the side of the underpaid employees. "We have been given a $1,500 increase last year? Why did City of Police and no one know anything about it? What I want to find out is, just did you men to pull off what they did? Things like that should not be allowed, and I am prepared to battle with first."

"Let's get down to commonsense," concluded Ald. Colbert. "There are too many men walking around this city hall with their pockets full of their salaries. If we haven't the money to pay these employees, we'll reduce the salaries."

"Is everyone satisfied with $3,000 for Bennett?" asked the chairman. "If all the other salaries are boosted for the same reason, what is recommended?" retorted the mayor. "You will then add $400 to all of them."

Urges Peace. Ald. Drake urged a more peaceful gathering. Ald. Greer pleaded for order and a chance to speak. Ald. Greer said he didn't want to be foolish in the matter. Ald. Colbert stated that Bennett would have to accept what was given him or "do the other thing."

After a lengthy and boisterous discussion, Ald. Drake moved that the assessment committee receive $2,000 a year, the assessors $1,800; the city clerk $1,200, and the treasurer $1,000. This was passed although Mayor Wenig warned they were doing just what Dr. Brittain directed not to do. Ald. Colbert's motion to reduce official salaries was then defeated.

During the evening the committee recommended salary increases for the city clerk and the auditor's office upon the same basis as suggested by Ald. Drake. As an instance, this places the salary of Miss Nora Toll, assistant city clerk at $1,800. Other of the original recommendations were increased proportionately.

Attacks Ashplant. During the discussion Ald. Colbert severely criticized City Auditor Ashplant. "He was around here last year as an alderman," he reminded, "recommending that no official receive less than $3,000 a year, and now he brings in a recommendation of $1,800 for a lower grade than he himself has received. A man like that ought to be lifted out of his job. There is something wrong. I'll say so."

Mayor Wenig charged that they were "hand-picking" the increases, and Ald. Colbert remarked that Chief Clerk was not any more entitled to a $600 increase than he was.

As a final effort Mayor Wenig urged the adoption of the original recommendations, including the $3,600 for Commissioner Bennett, upon the understanding that at the end of the year they could grant bonuses for special work if they were not defeated, while the mayor and Ald. Drake battled over the former's charge that bonuses granted officials in 1922 were included in their salary increase since.

Ald. Drake asserted that they had money to give another $1,500 to the Old Boys' Association and $5,000 to the Western Fair, but none for the workers.

Heated debate, lapsing into the personal, marked the salary consideration throughout.

Sues Estate of E. C. Walker For Half Million Dollars

Special to The Advertiser.

Windsor, Oct. 31.—A claim of $500,000 against the $4,000,000 estate left by Edward Chandler Walker, son of the founders of Hiram Walker & Sons, distillers of Walkerville, has been filed at Sandwich by William Robbins of London, England, former secretary and general manager of the company.

At the time of his death in Washington, D. C., March 11, 1915, a report filed by the executors of the estate declared Walker left $4,125,000. The bulk of the estate was left to the widow, Mary Griffin Walker, and two brothers, Franklin H. Walker and James Harrington Walker, all of whom have since died, by will dated February 27, 1914. The estate is asked in the Robbins' petition to set aside that portion of the estate declared Walker left $4,125,000, which he said he would produce, and which gives him a legacy of 1,000 shares of the capital stock of the Walker Company. This stock now is valued at more than half a million dollars.

Robbins makes four requests of the court: That the probate granted by the court of the will produced be annulled; that the will be declared invalid; that the document he produced be declared Walker's last will; and that he be made an executor of the estate.

The National Trust Company of Toronto, named as defendant, is executor of the estate under the terms of the will drawn in 1914. In a statement of its defence, the trust company denies the probated will of the feeling of the explanation made and Robbins' statement that Walker was not mentally responsible for some years before his death.

Walker disposed of his estate by the 1914 will by giving Willstead, the old Walker homestead, including 15 acres of land, in the heart of Walkerville, to his wife, Mary, and $200,000 in bonds, and income of $25,000 for household expenses. The board of directors of the art museum of Detroit was given $50,000, Mary's Church, Walkerville, $20,000, and the Hotel Dieu at Windsor, $10,000.

"We have known all along that the Purdon interests would control a share basis vote, and Justice Middleton used to say that the Purdon interests were the real power in the company," declared Mr. Winslow, "until after the hearings of the injunctions, I thought at least the Huron & Erie company stock, held as security for an indebtedness of $248,000, was theirs."

RESULT OF VOTE IS SATISFACTORY TO SHAREHOLDERS

Situation Remains Unchanged Until After Hearings of Injunctions.

GOES TO JUSTICE

That the vote taken at the meeting of the shareholders of the Dominion Savings and Investment Society on Monday, on the question of transferring the remaining assets from the Huron & Erie Mortgage Corporation to another trust company, does not signify anything at all and was merely taken for the purpose of "informing the conscience of the court of the feeling of the minority shareholders," was the explanation made by R. M. Winslow, acting manager on behalf of the Dominion corporation, after the Dominion Savings and Investment Society, held a meeting of its shareholders.

"Things will stay as they are," declared Mr. Winslow, "until after the hearings of the injunctions, I thought at least the Huron & Erie company stock, held as security for

SCORES METHODS USED IN DEALING WITH SALARIES

Ald. Leonard Douglass, Declared Finance Committee Used Poor Judgment.

DRAKE'S OPINION

Ald. Leonard Douglass, chairman of the board of works, scores the members of the finance committee for their methods in dealing with the city hall salary question.

"In the first place, they should have deferred the salary question until the return of their chairman," he stated. "Where now is the board of works coming in?"

Chairman Douglass insists, however, that the board of works be guided in their actions by the recommendations from City Engineer Near, and plays vigorously the manner in which recommendations from the heads of the department were handled last night, when even some of the officials were not even present.

"They might have at least waited, and we could have considered all the salaries together," he added. "The board of works and the board of health have yet to submit recommendations, and we also have deserving cases to be considered."

"I do not favor this boosting one salary just because another is boosted. I think that we should be fair and give each employee what we consider an honest wage for the particular service rendered."

Ald. Gordon Drake, one of the three members of the finance committee who voted against the mayor's salary recommendations, stated this afternoon that in all probability it would be necessary to cancel yesterday's decisions and reconsider the whole question again.

"We'll have to have a special session of the council and then we'll deal with it again properly," he stated. "We could have the heads of all the departments there at the time. That would be better."

BLUENOSE RETAINS SCHOONER TROPHY

Bluenose seemed from the shore to have a length or more on the Columbia, and was bearing away for the inner automatic buoy.

Using Number 2 Course. Number 2 course means a run of six miles to the inner automatic, a broad reach of six miles to the southeast automatic buoy, a jibe and run of nine miles to Sambre gas buoy, and a seventeen-mile beat home by way of the inner automatic.

The five-minute gun found both schooners on the starboard tack. Two minutes before the starting gun the Columbia squared away and headed for the line. Bluenose came about a moment later. She crossed the line considerably ahead and to weather of challenger. Walters had again secured the lead.

The Columbia with mainsail broad off seemed to be overtaking the defender. At 9:10 the Columbia, under the command of Mr. McKinnon, reached the first mark, with the Bluenose continuing on her course. Pine took in the Columbia's lead and headed towards the Bluenose, apparently trying to work up to weather. Bluenose had a lead of several lengths.

At 9:20 the defender was off Lighthouse Bank buoy. The Bluenose had established a lead of five seconds at this time. Bluenose was evidently decided to abandon the attempt to get to weather of the defender.

Unofficial times at first mark: Bluenose, 9:45:30. Columbia, 9:46:45. After leaving the first mark and heading up for the reach to southeast automatic, Bluenose doused her sails, fairly leaping ahead and at 9:55 was rapidly dropping the Columbia. The wind had increased to 20 knots.

Bluenose Leads by Mile. At 10 o'clock the wind had increased to 25 knots, and seemed to be still rising. Both schooners were carrying everything they had. It was estimated the Bluenose had a lead of upwards of a mile.

Official times for the first mark: Bluenose, 9:44:21. Columbia, 9:44:30. Official times for the second mark: Bluenose, 10:12:10. Columbia, 10:12:33.

At 10 the schooners were approaching the second mark. The press boat, Lady Laurier, steaming at twelve knots, was unable to keep up with the flying fishermen.

The Bluenose and Columbia both jibed around the second mark, a ticklish proposition in the wind of the day. They squared away on the third leg—a run down to the windward Sambre gas buoy. The Columbia seemed to gain on the Bluenose.

Bluenose Holding Own. At 10:40 the Bluenose was holding her lead of a third of a mile. It was evident that the test of the race would come when the schooners rounded the next mark and hauled on the wind for the dead mauler to the finish line.

At 10:45 Walters doused his staysails and swung his foresail over the starboard. Pine followed suit and both vessels were wing and wing for the mark.

At 11 o'clock the schooners were within two miles of the third mark. Both vessels were running dead before the wind.

The Bluenose seemed to be holding her lead of one-third of a mile. At 11:10 as the schooners were approaching the third mark, it was apparent that the Columbia had still further decreased the defender's lead and it was doubtful if the Bluenose would have more than a minute on the challenger when she rounded the buoy for the third time.

Unofficial times for the third buoy: Bluenose, 11:15:30. Columbia, 11:16:51.

Walters took off his fore-top-sail when nearing the mark, and did not set it again when Bluenose settled down on the beat to windward. As the Columbia came about it was seen that she pointed equally as high as the Bluenose.

At 11:25 both schooners were on the starboard tack, headed for the Sisters, two miles away. The defender seemed to be making better weather than the challenger.

Official time for third mark: Bluenose, 11:15:03. Columbia, 11:16:23.

At 11:30 the Bluenose had worked up to weather of the Columbia. It was apparent the defender was making better weather in the freshening breeze, which at this hour was topping 27 knots.

At 11:31 the Columbia elevated up her fore-top-sail, and both schooners were under the same sails.

At 11:40, with Sambre Ledges less than a mile away, it was apparent that the Bluenose would shortly have to come about. The defender was out-footing and out-pointing the challenger.

Bluenose came about on port tack at 11:50, the Columbia following at 11:55. The defender was half a mile to weather.

At 12:15 both vessels were making heavy weather in the increasing wind at this hour, topping 30 knots. The schooners were advanced approxi-

TERMS LAWRASON'S SCHEME "DISGUSTING"

Ald. P. J. Watt Raps Latest Proposal Concerning City Hall.

In the opinion of Ald. Peter J. Watt, it is perfectly "disgusting" the manner in which "eleventh-hour city hall proposals" are foisted upon the people.

Ald. Watt was making special reference to the suggestion from S. F. Lawrason that the people be allowed to consider a $300,000 proposal for an extension of the hydro building.

"What is the use of Mr. Lawrason's coming out and talking that way," asked Ald. Watt. "We have to build the city hall on the McCormick site or else have a change of site authorized by the government."

LOSES SUIT FOR SALARY FOR TIME OF SUSPENSION

Toronto, Oct. 31.—James Chapman, formerly inspector on the Brantford police force, sued that city for $485, the amount of salary due for the period between the time when he was suspended, pending the investigation by the royal commission, and the time subsequent to the investigation when he was dismissed. His claim was for 184 days at $2.65 a day.

The action has been dismissed by Mr. Justice Mowat, who quotes Warrington, L.J., in a judgment which concerned a sergeant of police: "It would be most extraordinary if suspension were to be so one-sided that the servant were to be excluded from his salary during his part of the contract, while the employer was to remain liable to perform his."

SEEKS TO AROUSE INTEREST IN BIG EMPIRE DISPLAY

Special to The Advertiser. Woodstock, Oct. 31.—J. S. McKinnon, past president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and director of the Canadian exhibit at the British Empire Exhibition, addressed the local manufacturers here this afternoon in an effort to interest them in exhibiting their products at the big exhibition. Mr. McKinnon explained in detail the Canadian building and the arrangements made for the displaying of goods and natural products of the country.

At 11:30 the Bluenose had worked up to weather of the Columbia. It was apparent the defender was making better weather in the freshening breeze, which at this hour was topping 27 knots.

At 11:31 the Columbia elevated up her fore-top-sail, and both schooners were under the same sails.

At 11:40, with Sambre Ledges less than a mile away, it was apparent that the Bluenose would shortly have to come about. The defender was out-footing and out-pointing the challenger.

Bluenose came about on port tack at 11:50, the Columbia following at 11:55. The defender was half a mile to weather.

At 12:15 both vessels were making heavy weather in the increasing wind at this hour, topping 30 knots. The schooners were advanced approxi-

TELLS TERRORS OF HOLOCAUST IN NEW ONTARIO

Mrs. Willis Chambers, Visiting in London, Relates Experiences.

ESCAPE MIRACULOUS

To be obliged to remain helpless in the face of an overwhelming catastrophe is one of the most unbearable of all tragic situations. To realize that one's wife and nine-day old child were facing almost certain death and yet realize oneself absolutely powerless to render any assistance would seem tragic beyond all expression.

Yet there were without doubt countless cases of this sort in the recent Northwestern Ontario fire which swept and devastated miles upon miles of homes.

A visitor in the city just now with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jones of Horton street, Mrs. Willis Chambers was one of the fortunate few whose homes, standing directly in the path of the flames, amazingly escaped untouched. With acres and acres of country turned into a furnace of such blazing heat that even the soil itself seemed to burn.

Miles to the north, cut off completely from the town in which was his home, and knowing that somewhere beneath that red-hot sky his wife and nine-day old babe were in danger of their lives. Mr. Chambers is a member of the Canadian National, and when word came to the town that the country to the south of them was ablaze, means of communication had already been cut away and any thought of rendering help was futile.

Removed on Stretcher. At the time, Mrs. Chambers was under the care of a nurse, and so ill that no one dared tell her of the serious extent of the fire. As the flames and smoke approached, however, and it became darker and darker, it was useless to try and keep the danger from her, and so she was borne out on a stretcher, her tiny babe with her.

"I never expected to see my home again," Mrs. Chambers said in an interview today. "Outside it was as dark as night, except for the reflection of the flames sweeping down. I was set down in the road and in the hurry and scramble about us, I was lost for quite a while."

"I couldn't move from the stretcher, however, so I just had to lie there. Finally they found me and took me to a Pullman car, and I stayed there the night. It seemed to us just like a miracle that our house was saved, when the wind changed, and they swept directly the other way."

Loss Automobile. "I can't describe the fire to you. I was too ill to realize clearly what was going on. It all seemed too terrible, but one man said afterward that it seemed as though some evil spirit had been driving the Canadian building and the arrangements made for the displaying of goods and natural products of the country."

At 10:40 the Bluenose was holding her lead of a third of a mile. It was evident that the test of the race would come when the schooners rounded the next mark and hauled on the wind for the dead mauler to the finish line.

At 10:45 Walters doused his staysails and swung his foresail over the starboard. Pine followed suit and both vessels were wing and wing for the mark.

At 11 o'clock the schooners were within two miles of the third mark. Both vessels were running dead before the wind.

The Bluenose seemed to be holding her lead of one-third of a mile. At 11:10 as the schooners were approaching the third mark, it was apparent that the Columbia had still further decreased the defender's lead and it was doubtful if the Bluenose would have more than a minute on the challenger when she rounded the buoy for the third time.

Unofficial times for the third buoy: Bluenose, 11:15:30. Columbia, 11:16:51.

Walters took off his fore-top-sail when nearing the mark, and did not set it again when Bluenose settled down on the beat to windward. As the Columbia came about it was seen that she pointed equally as high as the Bluenose.

At 11:25 both schooners were on the starboard tack, headed for the Sisters, two miles away. The defender seemed to be making better weather than the challenger.

Official time for third mark: Bluenose, 11:15:03. Columbia, 11:16:23.

Friday, 8 p.m. Exact location, a dark secret—s-s-s-sh!

Dirty work at the cross-roads. Several weeks ago they sounded the alarm call to arms. Mayor Wenige must be beaten at all costs.

And another caucus has been arranged for tomorrow night, but the boys are not going to meet at the Conservative Club rooms, they announced today. They are going to assemble quietly at the appointed hour, but they do not propose to tell anyone else just where the exact spot is.

More mystery. The name of the candidate who may oppose the mayor is not divulged. But it will come as a "great surprise" so members of the special scouting committee told The Advertiser today. His identity is even a secret to the majority of the insurgent Tories, who want to apply the blue paint to the city hall.

Some think that this is a great bluff, and that there is no mystery about the affair at all. They say that everyone knows that Ald. Judd is the nominee in question, that is if he does not accept the crown at turn-of-may. Others say there is another excellent prospect in the background, and that his appearance tomorrow night will be the signal for much rejoicing at headquarters.

A day or so before, had been sent to Halleybury for the battery to be re-charged. Halleybury was completely wiped out. The Chambers' home was in Enghart, not far from Halleybury. Mr. Chambers' aunt, Mrs. Graham of Charlton, lost her entire property, escaping only with her life and the dress she was wearing. Other relatives were in the same position.

Anxiety Terrible. Mr. and Mrs. Jones, who moved to London just a few weeks ago, were living at Rosseau, just beyond the fire zone. And so they experienced nothing of its immediate terrors. They shared with thousands of others, however, the terrible anxiety of knowing that their children and friends were caught almost helpless in the terrible furnace.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones moved to London to be near their son John, a returned soldier, who is at present in Westminster Hospital, with a case of shell shock. Another son, Thomas W. Jones, was killed in action. Going into action on the morning of his 24th birthday, the son met almost instant death. The other son, who returned home with his life, may yet recover from the shell shock. But with their father hung on the mother's life there's hope, the mother and father have come to London, and the one bit of sunshine in the whole gloomy affair, is that the mother can be with her son, in the few brief moments when he is able to recognize her.

SOMEWHERE IN FLORIDA. To be somewhere in Florida, where the sun is always shining, where the golden oranges hang in clusters on the trees, the palms stir gently to the warm balmy breeze and "where the sweet Magnolia blooms," is the thought in the minds of hundreds of Canadians every winter.

This year there will be the usual exodus of Canadians to the south. When Canadians at home are skating and skiing, those in Florida are sun-bathing, sun-bathing on the warm sands, deep-sea fishing, golfing, etc.

CAST FIRST VOTES IN ALBERTA'S REFERENDUM

BANTING STATES FUTURE DEPENDS ON TODAY'S YOUTH

Famous Doctor Speaks to the South London Collegiate Pupils.

URGES APPLICATION

The London South Collegiate Institute was signally honored yesterday afternoon by a visit from Dr. Frederick G. Banting. The honor came to the school as a result of the great friendship which exists between Principal T. S. H. Graham and the distinguished scientist, the two having spent a portion of their school days together.

When Dr. Banting rose to address the assembled student body, he was greeted by an outburst of enthusiasm. This enthusiasm increased when he declared that of all the addresses he had given during the day, this was giving him the greatest pleasure.

Dr. Banting spoke of his own school days and how he wished he had thrown greater energy into the pursuit of his studies.

"The future of Canada rests with the high school students of today," he declared, urging them to work harder and to think deeply.

"After all, the truest happiness we can secure is the happiness we gain in the service of others."

The students had heard that Dr. Banting might come to the school and so prepared a song to sing in his honor. This is what they sang:

"Accept our greeting, Dr. Banting, We're proud of the honors you have won; You have given our sick ones help That is more to us than wealth. Priceless is the work that you have done."

Word was received in this city recently that Victor Sherlock, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Osmond Sherlock, Pipe Line road, had died in Denver, Col., on Oct. 9. Mr. Sherlock was born and educated in London.

He is survived by one brother Bert of Vancouver and an uncle, Frank Sherlock, Stanley street.

ADVANCE POLLS IN ALBERTA OPEN FOR LIQUOR VOTE

Record Vote Is Expected in Province on Prohibition Question.

VOTERS ADVISED

Canadian Press Despatch. Calgary, Nov. 1.—The first votes were cast today in the Alberta liquor referendum set formally for Monday next. They were cast in advance polls opened in the cities and several of the larger towns for the accommodation of electors who will find it impossible to present themselves at their own polls on Monday.

The weather throughout the province continues fine and mild and the roads are good. Unless conditions change, observers expect to see a very heavy vote recorded.

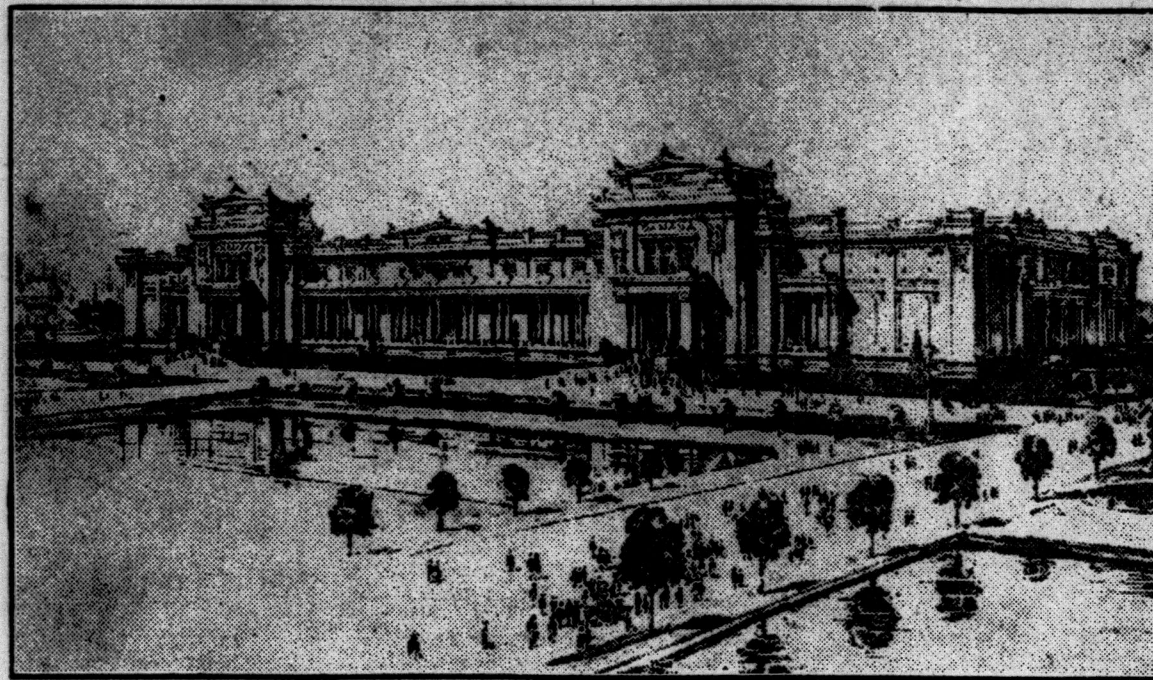

The government has issued an official suggestion to voters that they exercise all four choices which appear on the preferential ballot, with a view to giving the administration the greatest possible assistance in gauging public opinion and preparing legislation. It is pointed out, however, that a ballot is perfectly good if it bears only one choice.

MEDICAL HISTORICAL SOCIETY ORGANIZED

Western University Students Elect R. R. McNeil Chairman For Year.

The first meeting this year of the Medical Historical Society of the University of Western Ontario was held yesterday afternoon in the medical school building. Preparatory to the speech given by Dr. Banting, R. R. McNeil was elected to the position of chairman of the society for this year. G. W. Brunner was elected president.

The intention of the society is to hold a meeting every month for the graduation class of medical students at the university. At each meeting a speaker will be presented to address the students on a subject pertaining to the history of medicine. Dr. T. Bowman, a graduate of the university, addressed the students yesterday. He gave a short historical sketch of three drugs, theriac, unicorn and zephor, which in recent years have gone out of use.

WILL OPEN NEW SCHOOL ON 13TH OF NOVEMBER

Public School Officials Will Risk Hoodoo in Case of Boyle Addition.

The superstition of bad luck attaching to the number 13 seemingly has no place in the minds of public school officials, for the six-room addition at Boyle Memorial School will be opened and occupied on Tuesday, Nov. 13, according to Chief Inspector V. K. Greer.

The addition, which was scheduled for completion by Aug. 31, at which time Trafalgar School was also to be finished, has been held up by the lack of skilled building craftsmen, notably plasterers. However, when it is opened, the overcrowding in some of the schools will be considerably relieved.

Inspector Greer stated that while the school would be completed by the end of this week, it was not considered advisable to move the classes until after the Thanksgiving holiday, which, owing to the teachers' convention here, will last from Wednesday of next week until Tuesday, Friday and Monday.

Trafalgar School will not be opened until Dec. 1, according to latest reports.

Seventy-Five Hurt In Wreck

Associated Press Despatch. Orlando, Fla., Nov. 1.—More than 75 passengers were injured, four seriously, when Baltimore and Ohio train No. 52, a local runner from Clarkburg to Richmond, was derailed near here today. Two coaches crowded with passengers jumped the tracks and rolled about 40 feet into a field, where they came to a stop upside down. The injured were brought to a hotel here.

THREE MONTHS' FINES AGGREGATE $3,320

License Inspector Bolton Secures Fifteen Convictions During Period.

A total of $3,320 in fines was garnered in by License Inspector Walter Bolton during the months of August, September and October, according to the report he is forwarding to the license department at Toronto. This is an increase in fines of $2,380 over the previous three months, when the fines amounted to $940.

Some sixteen cases were prosecuted by the inspector, resulting in fifteen convictions and one dismissal. During May, June and July there were seven convictions and two dismissals. Outside of one $20 fine and one $200 conviction, all informations were laid by Inspector Bolton.

Liquor seized by the Middlesex official totaled 2,248 bottles, valued at $11,340 (dispensary prices), and it has been shipped to the department at Toronto, as has 500 bottles of "near liquor."

Two hundred gallons of moonshine whiskey were dumped into the sewer by Inspector Bolton during the past three months.

Charged with stealing ten gallons of gasoline from J. W. Cochrane, a Nistown merchant, Archie Emery and Alphonse Emery of Walkerville, and Harry Labadie of Wallaceburg, appeared before Squire W. H. Chittick at the court house today, and were remanded for week.

According to Cochrane, the three boys drove up to his place of business and asked for ten gallons of gasoline. He gave it to them. They then asked for lubricant. When he went to fill the second order they drove away.

Cochrane pursued them to Dorchester. There he notified George Chittick, county constable. The latter, by telephone, notified Chief Holmes of Ingersoll arrested the trio. The car bore license number 155970.

BENNETT REGARDS CASE NOT GIVEN BEST TREATMENT

Assessment Commissioner Has Expected Better Consideration From Council.

WILL NOT RESIGN

While he does not propose to resign his position, Assessment Commissioner Harry Bennett does not consider that his case has been fairly treated by the finance committee. The recommendation goes to the council that he receive $3,000 a year. Mayor Wenige urged $2,500, and the commissioner expected $3,500, as received by his late predecessor.

"Of course I'll have to accept the ruling of the council," he stated, "but I fail to understand why they do not consider that I am not worth what was paid my predecessor—$3,500."

"With respect to the recommendations that I have submitted for my staff, I would not consider them in the light of actual increases for, with 23 people employed, as was the case in 1922, an increase would have been anticipated by them, in common with the help in other departments."

"But these salaries have been recommended, considering the additional work and responsibility for each member of my staff upon the reorganization of the department. The salaries proposed should, in my opinion, date back to the date of this reorganization, as I have endeavored to show at different times that it is not actually an increase in salary, but a readjustment, desirable under the redistribution of duties."

Commissioner Bennett states that his recommendations show a saving over 1922 of almost $2,000. He reminds that, while the department operated during 1922 with 23 people, the work is being accomplished satisfactorily during 1923 with nine people, including himself.

The committee did grant to members of the assessment staff such salaries as recommended by the commissioner, but not as recommended for himself and assistant, to be appointed presumably at the first of the year to succeed the late A. S. Glass.

The successful passage of the commissioner's recommendations for his staff was directly responsible in this way for a betterment of the clerks' situation throughout the city hall, as the heads of the other departments promptly asked the same consideration for their assistants—and the committee approved.

Car Squeaks Opening Bars of Swan Song On Crossing

As far back as the earliest citizens of this fair city can remember it has always been the undisputed right of trains, locomotives, hand-cars and bulky gondolas to hold up street railway traffic at the Richmond street crossing, where the sign of the C. N. R. now holds forth.

But this morning about 9 o'clock this well-precedented custom was given "a mean jolt," as Shakespeare would not have put it, when one of the more or less well-known vehicles owned by the street railway got stuck down with a wheezy whump to communc with the roadbed in the middle of the intersection.

This occurrence was caused when Ottawa car No. 142, stalled in the middle of the tracks when one of its front wheels fell to pieces, due to so many years of hard usage. The car had to wait until another one of its kind could come to its aid, but it was not long before a Ridout hove in view, and pushed the ill-fated 142 off the track. Instead of the clanging of bells for the watchman to put up the gates it was the shrill rattling of a yard engine's whistle that was heard at the crossing this morning.

SUNDAY LOAD OF COAL DEEMED NECESSARY

Driver Charged With Lord's Day Breach Has Satisfactory Explanation.

Fred Lyons was caught hauling coal on Sunday to the brick yard of Plinn Bros., and was charged in police court today with a breach of the Lord's Day act.

Mr. Lyons explained that an unexpected car of coal had not arrived and the bricks in a kiln would have been destroyed had they not had the proper treatment. There was a high wind and the coal was being consumed at an excessive rate. The case was dismissed by the magistrate.

DR. W. J. STEVENSON IS RAPIDLY RECOVERING

Dr. W. J. Stevenson, who has been in St. Joseph's Hospital for several weeks recovering from a serious operation which he underwent for kidney trouble, was reported this morning to be greatly improved. He was allowed to sit up for the first time since his operation, and the Harper Hospital, Detroit, who performed the operation, said this morning he was delighted with the great improvement in Dr. Stevenson. It is expected that Dr. Stevenson will be in good enough condition to leave the hospital at the end of next week, but he will be unable to commence his practice until Christmas.

"I Avoided an Operation Appendicitis Disappeared"

Mrs. James Wells, Udon, Ont., writes:—

"I took a severe pain in my right side. It was very bad at times. I tried oils and tablets without gaining any relief. The doctor pronounced it chronic appendicitis. I dreaded an operation and a friend advised Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I used them and not only obtained relief from pain, but I believe it has completely freed me of appendicitis, as it is now over a year since I have had any of the old symptoms."

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

Why Don't Men Appreciate Homely, Comfortable Wives?—The Fickle Girl Who Has Never Loved—Shall He Marry His Illiterate Sweetheart?

Dear Miss Dix—In a recent article you say, "There is a lot of peace and rest in having a husband that other women are not trying to get away from you." Undoubtedly, this is true; but isn't the same principle applicable to the wife? Would a man have the same comfort in marrying a woman who is, as you might say, handicapped by age, weight and lack of complexion, and who is no object of temptation to other men? HANS.

Answer:
Undoubtedly. But the trouble with poor, weak humanity is that it is not the thing that nobody else wants, and the more other people desire a thing the more we covet it. We let our neighbors write our price tags for us. And this is true even in husbands and wives.

Women, who are more astute in matters of love than men are, often realize what a blessing it is to have a nice, fat, bald-headed, bay-windowed husband who is permanently out of the Lotherio class, but no man ever sits down and thanks his gods that he is married to a wife so old and homely that he doesn't have to keep an eye upon her.

Men are like sheep about women. They always follow their leader. Thus it is that a girl always has many beaux or no beaux at all, and at a party she either has her dances out into mince-meat or else she pines the wall. Apparently, no man has the courage to risk his own taste and judgment about a woman's attractions. He has to have them backed up by those of his fellowmen.

Perhaps the reason that widows can marry all around young girls who have twice their looks is because the mere fact that one man has shown that he considered her suitable for a wife enhances her value in all other masculine eyes.

Of course, generally speaking, a woman who is lacking in pulchritude and who is not so young is apt to be a preferred matrimonial risk, because she realizes that she has to make good as a wife. She has to be meek, and mild, and pleasant, and agreeable, and a good housekeeper, to offset her lack of charms. Also, her husband can go his way untroubled by jealousy on her account, for, alas! the wives whom other men steal from their husbands are not the patient Griseldas nor the good cooks, but the peachy, young creatures who are out vamping on their own account.

Surely there is rest and comfort for the soul in a homely old wife who is safe from temptations; but I have yet to meet the husband who properly appreciated his blessing. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dorothy Dix—I am a reader of your column and am writing to ask your advice about a fickle girl. What do you think of a girl who likes a young man very much until he likes her, then doesn't care a thing for him? Now, don't get me wrong, I am no man-hater. I like men. But I have never been in love with any man, although I am 19 years old. FICKLE FLO.

Answer:
Why, I would say, Flo, that you are too young to know what love is, anyway, and that you are just using a girl's privilege of shopping around among the men, looking them over, sizing up what they are worth, whether they are generous or not, and generally getting their number before you make your decision and take your pick of them. And so far you haven't found anything that you particularly care for. Nothing that ravishes your fancy and makes you feel that you must have it or else life is not worth living.

What you call fickleness is just choosiness, and it is a fine quality for a young girl to have, because it enables her to make a much more judicious choice of a husband than if she took the first man who offered himself. Don't mind being called fickle. Don't be afraid to change your mind about a man, up to the very steps of the altar. If he ceases to appeal to you, let him go. It is a lot less messy to break an engagement than to get a divorce. As for your little interest in men until they are interested in you, that is partly the spirit of the chase, partly the human reaction that makes the most desirable peach the one that is highest on the tree and most out of our reach and partly because the right man has never come along. When he does, you won't fall out of love with him because he has fallen in love with you.

On the contrary, the more he is interested in you the more you will be interested in him, and you won't tire of his society, but will want more of it. For real love is the cure for all. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man 24 years old and earning a good salary. Last year I met a young girl in whom I am greatly interested and would like to marry, but she is rather illiterate. I tried to have her overcome this by going to night school, but she could not learn, although her teachers said she tried very hard. I have been told that there is a taint in her blood which may account for this mental defect. Am I taking any chances in marrying such a girl? What is your advice in the matter? ROBERT.

Answer:
You wouldn't have a sporting chance, Robert, of any happiness in such a marriage. The odds are all against you.

A beautiful moron very often makes a very strong appeal to a man because of her physical attractions and because one doesn't expect much intelligence of a young girl. At nineteen or twenty it doesn't disgust us to find a girl lacking in knowledge of what goes on in the world or one who has never read anything. Her very artlessness and ignorance are amusing and entertaining like that of a little child.

But look ahead fifteen years or twenty years and think how bored you will be with the daily companionship of a woman who has no intelligence, who is not interested in any of the things that you are interested in, who doesn't even understand any conversation that is in words of more than two syllables. And think how ashamed you would be of a wife who was illiterate and at whom people laughed.

If the girl has tried to overcome her lack of education and has failed, it shows that she belongs to that great and pitiful class of the mentally deficient. That makes it a crime for you to marry her. You have no right to bring feeble-minded children into the world, for the children of mentally deficient mothers almost invariably inherit her misfortune.

It takes a lot of sense and poise for a woman to make a good wife and a good mother, Robert. Why marry a fool who will drag you down and bear you idiot children when there are so many pretty, smart girls in the world?

Better a little heartache now in breaking off with this girl who attracts you than years and years of misery with a wife so undesirable. DOROTHY DIX.

CLAUDE BIGGS WILL GIVE CONCERT IN CITY

Women's Music Club To Bring Distinguished Pianist Here November 26.

The Women's Music Club has adopted an entirely new policy as to recitals this year. Instead of giving fortnightly recitals at which the programs were given by London talent as in previous years, the club executive, under the presidency of Mrs. C. R. Somerville, is planning to present but six recitals during the season, and for every recital will offer a talent of outstanding merit. Every detail will be an artist's recital.

The Boris Hambourg and Murray Davey recital of Monday next will be followed by a brilliant recital on Nov. 26, when the artist will be Claude Biggs, recognized as one of the foremost English concert pianists. Mr. Biggs, who is not connected with the Canadian Academy of Music in Toronto, is the son of a distinguished musician, the Bach B. Minor concerto into England on the occasion of his playing this work at Queen's Hall in 1913. It might be added that Fuller Maitland, former critic of the London Times, said that Biggs' playing of the 18th century music, Bach and Scarlatti, etc., was not surpassed by that of any living pianist.

PARENTS' ASSOCIATION WILL MEET SHORTLY

Executive Prepares Constitution of New Organization at the Collegiate Institute.

At a meeting of the executive committee held yesterday afternoon at the Central Collegiate Institute, further plans for the new Collegiate Parents' Association were made. The chief business of the meeting concerned the drawing up of a tentative constitution, which will be submitted shortly to the three different clubs under which this association will work. It is expected that two of these clubs, the Southern Collegiate Parents' Association and the Eastern Collegiate Parents' Association, will be called very shortly for this purpose, and for the purpose of getting the year's activity under way. The Central Association may be delayed until Principal Miller returns. The meeting of the executive committee was presided over by Mrs. W. J. Tanner, president of the Union Mothers' Club. Other present were Principal R. R. O'Neill of the London East School, Principal J. S. R. Graham of the South London Collegiate, A. E. Barbour, Mrs. John Rose, Mrs. W. J. Armitage and Judge G. Q. Warner.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and a lovely veil of lace and tulle, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall motored to Clinton and Goderich for a brief visit with friends, the bride traveling in a pretty silver gown and wearing a crown of white flowers.

The bride looked smart in a lovely gown of ivory georgette with French design, with a becoming hat of gray duvetyne, with feather trimmings and her corsage was of Ophelia roses. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was held at the Clifton House. Mr. and Mrs. MCBain will reside in Guelph.

Dr. F. Banting Has a Hobby And It's Painting Pictures

Little Adelaide Street Office Often Saw Him Hard at Work With Brush and Paper When Patients Failed to Come.

Even so young a man as Frederick G. Banting has a hobby. And in that hobby he employs the same imagination which must have led him to the discovery of insulin. If, three years ago, Londoners had taken the trouble to visit the little Adelaide street office before which hung the sign, "Dr. F. G. Banting, physician," they would have been rewarded with a peep at a charming little collection of water colors and oils.

Now don't guess immediately that Dr. Banting is an art connoisseur. He is not. He is a painter himself. He is an amateur, of course, and self-taught. But those who have been privileged to see his work proclaim it to be very good.

And here again, as in the discovery of insulin, London played an important part. It was in London that he found the time to paint. Previous to his sojourn in England he had been a painter of nature, out-of-doors. And, while he was in London, he had a street office for the patients which never came, he occupied his time by recording in color, the beauties which he saw on his daily walks. And what we admire today in his pictures, is what a great imagination found in the familiar scenes about the city of London, three years ago.

Although in the greater portion of his work, some rural scene is the subject, there are also in the collection a few very fine character portraits.

Towards the end of his residence in London, he began to work with oils, and succeeded in completing three or four canvases, the subjects for which were also rural scenes.

Strangely enough, as soon as Dr. Banting left London, he discontinued his painting. Becoming wrapped up in the practical working out of his diabetes remedy in Toronto, he had no longer time for the pursuit of his hobby. And his pictures were all sent to his father's home in Alliston, Ontario, where he has a studio.

London period was a creative period in his life. Here it was, in a time of comparative inactivity, that his imagination grasped the possibility of a cure for diabetes, and where the idea which led to the discovery of insulin was born. Here it was that his desire to put down in paint the beauties which he saw in the city, became so intense, that he took up brush and palette, and painted pictures.

London did not give him patients. But somehow London, with its very lack of patients, was just the setting in which creative genius could work.

That "Kruschen" Feeling!

As Young as the Youngest

In spite of his sixty-odd summers, he is enjoying himself immensely. It's forty years since he first learnt to dance, yet he is not a whit less agile now than he was then, and his zest has in no way diminished. Everyone likes the dear old fellow, for his beaming face, kindly heart, and happy infectious laughter.

Men younger than himself cannot but envy him his health, his popularity, his untiring vigour, his whole-hearted capacity for flinging himself into the joy of the dance and extracting every ounce of pleasure from it. They marvel that at his age he should always be fit and well. What is it that makes him seem as young as the youngest there?

It is the healthy Kruschen habit that he acquired years ago, and has always kept up. Every morning, in his breakfast cup of coffee or tea, he takes a pinch of Kruschen Salts—as much as will cover a 10 cent piece.

It is tasteless, but by taking this tiny dose every morning he keeps himself in the pink of condition, strong, joyous and healthy, bubbling over with vigour, enjoying to the full every moment of life.

Kruschen is a combination of the six salts, which, if you were leading a healthy open-air life, with no worry and plenty of exercise, your body would extract for itself from the food you eat. It is these salts that keep the liver and kidneys active, the system clean and healthy. Regular, easy, and complete elimination of waste matter brings in its train pure new blood, a clearer eye, a springier step, a saner, more optimistic frame of mind; and these are the gifts that Kruschen brings you in abundance — for next to nothing.

If grandpa, at 60, can feel fine for half a cent a day, what about you?

PUBLIC UTILITIES STAFF MARKS HALLOWEEN

Staid Municipal Building Is Transformed Into Witches' Revelry Hall.

Curtailed out the public by drawing a large blind over the front windows of the public utilities building, the members of the staff last night made merry on the occasion of Halloween. The party took the form of a masquerade, and many and quaint were the costumes in which the men and girls appeared. The lights had been cleverly shaded with black and orange, thus casting a weird light over the gay throng. Witches, great yellow pumpkins and black cats lent their picturesqueness to the scene, which kept changing with the movement of the dancers.

In the back part of the building Halloween games were in progress, and it would be difficult to decide whether the dancers or the revellers behind the scenes got the greatest fun out of the evening.

Mrs. W. Simpson was successful in carrying off the prize for the best lady's fancy costume, while Douglas Kennedy held the honors among the men. The finest comic costumes were worn by Miss Win Allen and Cecil James. The prize was given by the girls of the staff.

HOLD MERRY DANCE AT ONTARIO HOSPITAL

Miss Eileen Weaver as "Miss Canada" Wins First Prize For Best Costume.

The most successful of the long list of successful Halloween dances put on by the officers of the Ontario Hospital was held last night in the Assembly Hall, where over 450 guests enjoyed the splendid dance music provided by the Ronnie Hart Orchestra.

Practically all the dancers were in costume, and the judges, headed by Dr. Logan Towers of the Westminster Hospital, found a great deal of difficulty in picking the winners of the four prizes offered. At the conclusion of the grand march, winners of some dozen or more outstanding costumes were asked to step aside. Dr. Towers and his conference carefully passed the "buck" to the onlookers, and the winners were picked by the amount of applause they received as they walked past the judges.

It was nip and tuck between "Miss Canada" (Miss Eileen Weaver) and "Martha Washington" (Miss Agnes Snellgrove) for first prize, but Miss Canada was finally given the preference. Miss J. Jensen won first prize for comic costumes, while J. F. C. Walker and Master Kenneth Rose won the men's prizes.

Games were enjoyed, followed by a regular Halloween supper. The party was in charge of Miss Dorothy McCann and Miss Gertrude Manley.

Weldon-Black Nuptials Is Smart Eastern Event

Special to The Advertiser.

Moncton, N.B., Oct. 31.—A wedding of much interest not only in the Maritime Provinces but in Ontario as well took place in the Methodist Church at Sackville at 6 o'clock this evening, when Miss Laura Margaret Black, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Frank B. Black, of Brackburn, Sackville, and granddaughter of Ex-Lieut.-Gov. Joseph Wood, became the bride of Capt. Douglas B. Weldon, M.C., son of the late Mr. William Weldon and Mrs. Weldon, of Moncton. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a large number of invited guests and friends that filled the church to overflowing by the Rev. Dr. Phillips.

In honor of the occasion the little church was beautifully decorated by friends with chrysanthemums of flame, gold, yellow and white. The background of the pulpit was evergreen, white ferns, palms and potted plants completed the arrangements. The choir of the church sang "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden," and during the signing of the register Miss McElroy sang "O Promise Me."

Attending the bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, was Mrs. Claude Caldwell of Halifax, who acted as matron of honor. She wore a gown of gold and green, meal cloth, and Miss Barbara Black was her sister's bridesmaid, wearing a cloth of gold, shading to a bronze, and fashioned with a bouffant skirt. They carried bouquets of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums. Three small cousins of the bride, little Misses Hester Wood, and Faith Wood and Master John Black, made charming attendants; the flower girl, wearing frilly frocks of golden tulle, and carrying bronze-colored baskets of Sunset roses. Master Black wore a regulation white English sailor suit. Mr. Ernest Little of London acted as best man.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a rich gown of heavy white satin, cut and fashioned on simple classic line, and trimmed with pearls. The court train, of the same material, was lined with silver brocade, and fell from the shoulders, where it was caught with handsome pearl ornaments. The veil of lace and tulle was worn by her mother, on her wedding day.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, and a buffet supper was served. An array of beautiful and costly gifts testified the high esteem in which the young couple are held by the many friends.

The groom's gift to the bride was a dinner ring of platinum, set with diamonds. To the groomsmen he gave a gold knife, and to the ushers monogrammed cigarette holders. The bridesmaid received a gold watch, and the flower girls, small bar pins.

Among the guests were Dr. and Mrs. B. C. Borden, Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Borden, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Campbell, Mrs. Beer, Toronto; Dr. J. A. Henderson, London, Eng.; His Honor Judge and Mrs. Borden, His Honor Justice Wood and Mrs. Wood of Sackville.

The happy couple left this evening on an extended wedding trip to Montreal, Lake Placid and other points in the United States.

The bride traveled in a three-piece Worth model of midnight blue, trimmed with fox fur and a smart hat to match.

On their return they will reside in London, Ont.

The Wellington Street Y. W. C. A. presented a gay scene last evening when the residents held a jolly masquerade party. Mr. Buzzard Isn't So Anxious To Fly When His Chance Comes

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Old Mr. Buzzard had talked too much. He knew it. He felt it in his bones. Besides, his neighbors made it quite clear to him. He had boasted that he could fly higher than any of those man-birds, as the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows called the aeroplane, which they saw almost every day. He had boasted that if he had the chance he would prove that he could fly higher. But right down in his heart he didn't want the chance. You see there was a doubt there. So it was always a relief to have those man-birds pass straight on as if in a hurry to get somewhere.

But one morning one of these man-birds appeared, and instead of hurrying straight on began to swing in great circles over the Green Meadows and the Green Forest. It was not very high up and it made a great noise. It once all the little people remembered the boast of old Mr. Buzzard and as many as could hurried over to the tall, dead tree in the Green Forest which was his favorite perch.

"Now is your chance!" said Blacky the Crow, arriving almost out of Mr. Buzzard's sight. "Go out and show that man-bird what it means to fly high!"

"He is making circles just as we have seen you do so often, Old Mr. Buzzard. Go out there and show him how you can keep circling higher and higher and higher!" cried Sammy Jay.

"You've boasted what you can do, so now let us see you do it!" shrieked Chatterer the Red Squirrel in his most impudent manner.

"You may never get another chance like this, and we all want to see you beat that man-bird. Go on and show them how to fly high!" cried Happy Jack Squirrel.

Old Mr. Buzzard drew his head down between his shoulders and let his "Caw, caw, caw! He's afraid!" shouted Blacky the Crow.

"He's nothing but a big boaster! That's all he is, a big boaster!" shrieked Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

"That man-bird can fly circles around him, and he knows it!" cried Sammy Jay.

"Did you notice that he didn't have that attack of misery until after we got here?" cried Happy Jack Squirrel.

It was more than Old Mr. Buzzard could stand. He began to get angry. He forgot his misery. Anyway, he got over it very quickly. He glared at his tormentors. "Ah'll show you!" he grunted, and lifted his great wings.

A Correct Corset-Foundation

—is essential to Modish Dressing

The best of dressmakers admit that they can never make a gown look its best over a poor corset-foundation. Proper corset-fitting always determines the ultimate tout ensemble. How necessary, then, to select just the right corset before choosing your frocks or consulting your dressmaker!

Nemo Wonderlift Corsets give you the slim, straight lines which are the best foundation for fashionable frocks and trim tailleurs. In fact, they give you more than this, for every Wonderlift Corset has a concealed adjustable band of semi-elastic webbing—the Wonderlift Bandlet—which lifts up and holds in proper position the abdominal muscles and organs. Thus, health and comfort are assured—while you obtain the good figure and erect carriage so essential to smart appearance.

For every type of figure, in several models, 22-44, $7.00 to $8.50.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1923.

Dr. Banting in London.

The dining-room of the old Teumseh House at London is filled to capacity—tables set here, there, between the pillars and in every available corner. All the guests are standing when James Gray, president of the Chamber of Commerce, comes in; not far behind is Col. Leonard, head of the Canadian Club. Between them, as though there was no way of escape, walks the man the world has honored, Dr. F. G. Banting. The crowd cheers, claps its hands, and the visitor is seated. If he appreciates the performance, he gives no evidence that the company can see. There are no acknowledging bows or smiles, nothing at all of finished motions or signs of the public man. Modest-looking man. Not even a pair of horn-rimmed glasses, nor was there a bit of a beard on the chin nor a pointed mustache. A fountain pen and a lead pencil, along with a modest little watch chain—a pair of serviceable looking spectacles complete the decorations.

Such is the man to whom the medical world pays tribute. When Dr. Banting speaks, or rather reads, in London, he is on his old stamping ground, for it was here that he first got his idea of insulin. If the truth must be told, Dr. Banting found that when he opened up for practice in this city a little over three years ago he faced an unappreciative audience. The sick came not for the space of the first 28 days. It is not even recorded that he grabbed his grip and went chasing down the street as though some person had sent for him after all the other doctors had given up hope.

Those 28 blank days were not lost. The world has come to congratulate the citizens of London that they didn't rush in and swamp this new doctor with a recital of their pains and aches. People sometimes do the right thing unconsciously, and that is exactly what London did when it failed to register approval over the hoisting of still another medical shingle in this city bearing the lettering "Dr. F. G. Banting."

Dr. Banting had an idea, a theory, a dream, or whatever it may have been, and the process of turning it over in his mind used to last until 2:30 in the morning. He had no patients to worry him even if the light did burn till past midnight. His idea grew until he wanted a place to plant it, and tend it, but London had not that place, so he went to Toronto. Not even in that great city was there a place for Dr. Banting to go to work. It was months after before he started, in fact from November to May.

Two doctors were to help him in turn, Dr. Best and one other. Dr. Best turned up and went to work; the other one did not. Today the world knows Dr. Best as the co-worker with Dr. Banting in the discovery of insulin, but the one who did not turn up is known to a small circle of friends. It is the difference between being and not being.

The discoverer of insulin almost gives the impression that a number of people were working on the problem, and he happened to be around when the result was announced. To the men of the medical school of Western University he pays tribute; to the men at Toronto who gave him the facilities to work he gives more tribute; to Dr. Best, with whom he chose to divide the money from the Nobel prize, he hands another large portion. He is such a generous distributor that he hands away as much of the glory as he can.

He has a right to criticize us; he has a right to ask Canada why there is not a single place that a man can go with an idea such as he had and be provided with the means of working it out without being hampered with the routine of teaching or some other duty around the premises. It would have been easier for Dr. Banting to have gone to United States, where there are many centers for research work, but he preferred to remain in Canada, and he did remain, and insulin was born here because the man who nursed the theory to the state of completion chose to put up with inconveniences and fight it out right here.

London was pleased to have Dr. Banting here; pleased to thank him for the work he has given to the world at cost, with no profit to himself, and pleased to tell him that she has no regrets for the cold shoulder turned to him as a medical doctor. To this is added the hope that his genius for research may lead him forth to greater service and greater accomplishment.

Our Formidable Jails.

A prisoner in Stony Mountain penitentiary, Manitoba, has set a new style in getting out of jail. He secured a piece of iron, and at night turned his bed up on end and started to cut through the ceiling, covering the work with a cloth before quitting.

After he got through the ceiling he dug into a wall two feet through, and finally escaped.

It would be much better for the wide-awake jail officials to open the door and ask the prisoner to leave by that exit.

It is a shame to have holes gouged in the property. The one bright spot in the episode is that this prisoner didn't take the bed along with him.

A Great Field to Work.

London Local Council of Women took up the matter of electing more women to the school board and men of whom they approved to the city council.

The women of London can not elect members of whom they approve to the city council nor to the board of education unless they vote.

The franchise is widely held by women now, but it has not been widely exercised.

Covering a period of 14 years, the percentage of women voting at municipal elections is painfully low. Out of each hundred women voters the following number voted:

1909	25
1910	18
1911	11
1912	13
1913	10
1914	20
1915	23
1916	20
1917	17
1918	16
1919	16
1920	26
1921	30
1922	34

That is a yearly average of less than 22 per cent.

The Local Council of Women have a great home mission field in which to turn loose the workers.

Paying the Bills.

The sending out of bills to the county councils asking for the payment of their share of the cost of permanent highways is causing not a little concern to many of these councils.

Permanent roads are like everything else. If we build them, we must pay for them. The late government at Toronto built a lot of good roads, and many of them were at higher prices than cities pay for similar work.

Out of the whole situation should come a policy that is within reach of the people's purse.

The trouble right now is that many who use the roads, enjoy them and even complain about their defects are contributing little, if anything, to their construction or upkeep.

No Need For It.

Settling salary matters at the city hall in London did not prove to be an easy thing for the council. It should have been a comparatively simple matter.

There was an amount set aside for the purpose, and there were those who needed increases, and those who did not.

The amount available for increases should be distributed to do justice to the greatest number, and at the same time work to a standard wage as recommended in the Britain report.

There was no occasion for excitement, and no call for one alderman to express his opinion of another. Civic business can not be well conducted in a bear garden.

Wait a Minute.

The New York Times, on receipt of the news that the Nobel prize had gone to Dr. Banting and Dr. McLeod, announced that they were "the fourth and fifth Americans" to be honored by the award.

Dr. Banting told Londoners that the idea was born right here in London and worked out in Toronto. The Americans are willing to take everything we have at par except our money.

TAKE THIS ADVICE.

Before Bert Bone was twenty-three he figured out a way that he could live in luxury forever and a day. He would not live on money earned. Such hard work! Stars above! Was not his line! Bert only yearned to love, and live on love.

This is the way he did it: He went round with Mary Nash. She wasn't much on looks, but she was worth all kinds of cash.

They were engaged. She called him "Love," and he called her "Love." Would stretch her mouth from ear to ear.

And grin with ecstasy. So they were wed. Now, Albert Bone is like a pampered dove; He has a butler all his own And lives, in state, on "Love."

The Guide Post—By Henry van Dyke

THE SOUL MUST HAVE ITS DAY.

Remember the rest day to keep it holy.—Exodus xx, 8. Remember also the words of the Lord Jesus, who he said: "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." In the business of living, the life within is forgotten; and the good seed is choked by the cares of the world.

How shall the soul be fed unless there be a time for feeding; and how shall the soul be balanced without a day of rest?

Many diseases afflict those who are ill nourished; and the evils of this generation are multiplied by soul starving.

Man is moulded in his habits; and the practice of mankind sheweth that one day in seven is little enough for the needs of the spirit.

Yet is the seventh in number not sacred; but the day that best nourisheth the life within shall be kept holy.

Rest is not found in idleness, but in good works, and quiet thoughts, and joy in the Lord.

Let us keep not the Sabbath of the Pharisees, but the Sabbath of Christ.

To the Editor

A LITTLE OVERDONE. Back From the West "Scottie" Says He Could Not Stand That Way for the Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—I have come back to Ontario from Western Canada, where I went on a harvest excursion. I noticed a piece in your editorial columns about some young Englishmen who had gone out there and decided to stay because they found they could get along so well. I was glad to see that they were succeeding, but they were wide of the mark when they began to read a lesson to the rest of us about hard work and being willing to stay at it.

I never backed up from a day's work yet, but I got only $2.50 per day for my first job, which was 200 miles past Winnipeg, and when we settled up I was short several dollars of what I earned. The next place I got $5 a day, but it was only for a short time. I am not complaining about the food, for it was good. I would have gladly stayed on a bit of land in the west for a man sick of hopping around from one place to another, but I could not find anything to last through the winter. Taking up a bit of land I found was no job for a man with no money or backing. The thing was not as bright as you painted it from the letter of the Englishman.

Writer Thinks Finance of County Are Not Safe. Stand a Heavy Outlay for Protection. Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—The letter in your valuable paper of the 29th, signed by Taxpayer, on the above subject, on the appointment of a high paid county police force, with a high constable, with a speedy motor car, and a police, but the whole force to the county of Middlesex taxpayers, is nothing but a joke, and although it would be nice for this county to have such a force, to patrol the county roads and arrest a few speeders, and to investigate a case of theft, sometimes, the taxpayers are asked to pay in the years to come, without any signs of a let-up, would be a awful pull on the county taxpayers.

The county of Middlesex is now as good as any county in this far Dominion of Canada, and only this week an appointed place we'll hae, November's hindmost day at e'en, St. Andrew's name tae eulogize, As Scottish custom lang has been.

DENNY BROOKS

A STORY OF COURAGE

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER VI. GOLDEN HOURS.

"Sid! Gee—yer came!" Sid laughed and took Denny's hand. In the other he was carrying a big box.

"Feeling pretty good, Denny? And how's Prince Jerry?"

Denny started, his eyes widening with shocked accusation, the corners of his mouth "drawing down."

"Are you laffin', Sid?"

"Laughing, Denny? Why, what's the matter?"

"Well, I told yer, didn't I? I wrote and told yer—told yer the whole thing."

"What did you tell me? Been moving around and never got the letter? Did you write to me?"

"Sure I did. You don't know Jerry's dead? That ole Matt killed him—hung him. Went and hung Prince Jerry!"

It might have been an hour ago, blinding was the memory, so piercingly it opened the freshest of Denny's grief.

"Hung Jerry?"

"Denny, what he did. Went and hung him!"

For quite a while Sid said nothing. He was looking away when Sid asked: "Got another dog?"

"No."

"Would you like one, Denny?"

"No. Never want another." They passed a candy store and Sid said, "Let's go in, Denny."

When they were seated at a table Denny kept wondering when Sid would say, "Ready to come with me right off, Denny?" Sid was in no hurry. They had almost finished their ice cream when he pointed to the big box.

"Got something in there for you, Denny. Guess."

Denny thought it might be trains or marbles or a donkey engine. Finally Sid opened it. There was a football and boxing gloves; then a tiny box for Katy. In this was a ring with a pansy and three little pens in the center.

"Gee, Katy'll scream, she'll be so glad," Denny was overcome. Still Sid said nothing about taking him.

"Got something else for you, Denny. From his breast pocket he drew an envelope, opened it. 'Do you know what this is?'"

Denny recoiled in a stifled fear. On the tissue paper, tied with a cherry-colored ribbon, was a soft black curl. Denny was ready to cry.

"Queenie's hair!" he whispered. "I thought you'd like to have it. Denny. You save it. No matter what anyone says, Queenie was good to us, wasn't she? Remember, Denny, Queenie was an angel to us, wasn't she?"

Denny was frightened. "You keep that, Denny."

"You ain't going away again, are yer, Sid?" It was a whisper forced from Denny's overcharged heart.

"Gee, Denny. Going to Alaska. Know where that is? Go up to stake a gold mine. Then I'll come back and we'll have a fine party. I'll give you half. How's that?"

Denny pretended to shake back his unruly hair. He wrinkled his eyes into funny shapes. So he wasn't to go with Sid.

"You couldn't take me with yer, could yer, Sid?"

"Not very well, Denny. Not now. But I'm sure to come back." Sid stooped over that, pointed to the white envelope. "Don't let any one know about that, Denny. Put it away where it's safe."

"Sure!" Denny murmured in a low tone. "Sure!" Quickly he tucked the silky curl in his pocket, kept his head lowered until he got his lips going up instead of down. It was pretty hard to have the hope he had treasured all these black months snapped in a minute.

"Sid's gone. He ain't comin' back," he told Katy that night. Then he took out the ring, put it on her finger. And true enough Katy screamed in a panic of delight.

Katy was such a little thing with the bright chestnut curls bobbing all over her head. And she could make the funniest faces, crossing the deep blue eyes, rolling them upward and wrinkling back her nose.

OLD BOYS' REUNION.

He paid a warm tribute to the Toronto workers, and said he regarded this not as a party of recreation, but as an old boys' reunion of the Conservative party. He spoke of the inspiration coming from the city, and alluding to the mental disorganization and sanity in all matters. So it was that we were returned by a majority never but once experienced in the history of the province.

RUMOR ABBE DELORME TO GET MENTAL TEST

Another Examination Appears Likely Before New Trial Is Opened.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—The second trial on the merits of the murder charge against Rev. Adelard Delorme, accused of having killed his half-brother, Raoul Delorme, an Ottawa College student, will not take place until Delorme's mental condition has again been ascertained, according to rumors here today in court circles, which fear of irrefutable law arguments discovered to force appointment of another commission of experts to examine the priest.

It is predicted that nomination of this commission will be made when the case is called in the court of king's bench on November 19, and it is expected that a second "sanity trial" will be held at the January term. It again declared mentally incapable of standing trial. It is expected he will be interned at St. Jean de Dieu Asylum at Long Point.

BARON D'ABORNON TO QUIT GERMAN AMBASSADORSHIP

Associated Press Despatch.

London, England, Oct. 31.—Reports that Baron D'Abornon, British ambassador to Germany, was about to resign were confirmed today by an admission at the foreign office that he would give up his post at no distant date, but that no arrangement had yet been made with regard to his successor in the German capital. The name of Sir Horace Rumbold, British commissioner in Turkey, is being mentioned unofficially for the ambassadorship.

a bride, all white satin and veil and orange blossoms; a set of boxing gloves, a box of dishes, a baseball bat.

"I'm gonna win the prize," Denny informed Katy.

"Gonna take the boxing gloves?" "Well, sure! Think I'd take the doll."

Katy's heart and soul were poured out in longing to possess that lovely bride. She had no dolls except the squeaking Chinese maid, that was all battered by now, and another old sawdust thing that couldn't close its eyes and had no joints.

"Maybe you won't win," she whispered almost hopefully.

"Well—I will!"

Denny had an inspired confidence in his own ability. He had skipped a grade at school and was now in his last year, though he was but twelve. Guessing the right number of red-hot was easy.

He got a jar the same size as the one in the candy window, saved up and bought 25 cents worth of red-hot, used just enough to fill the count hours and hours, night after night, till all the red came off the candy, streaking hands, hair and blouse. But he had it figured right at last. There ought to be exactly 2,878 red-hot in the candy store jar. Denny made all of his guesses within ten of this number.

The thrilling day came. Outside the store was a throng of wildly excited youngsters waiting for the announcement. It would be made at 5:30.

Denny held Katy's hand, his eyes almost popping out of his head. "Gee, Katy, if they don't hurry I'll just bust a nut!"

"Aw, say, them gloves are mine! I know it," Jimmy Polley declared with a confident swagger.

"But I want the doll, came a lady-like smirk. 'I have 25 guesses.'"

In a panic Katy nudged Denny. "She's gonna win it! Oh, Denny!"

"She ain't! Look—they're coming!"

The net curtain parted, the candy store girl looked out, smiled. A mad buzz of excitement, youngsters pushing, shouting, then a big white card with this in heavy black writing: "Correct number is 2,898."

Denny squeezed Katy's hand, shaking from head to foot—2,898 was his best guess. For a moment he couldn't speak, then he whispered in awe: "Gee—aw, gee—lost!"

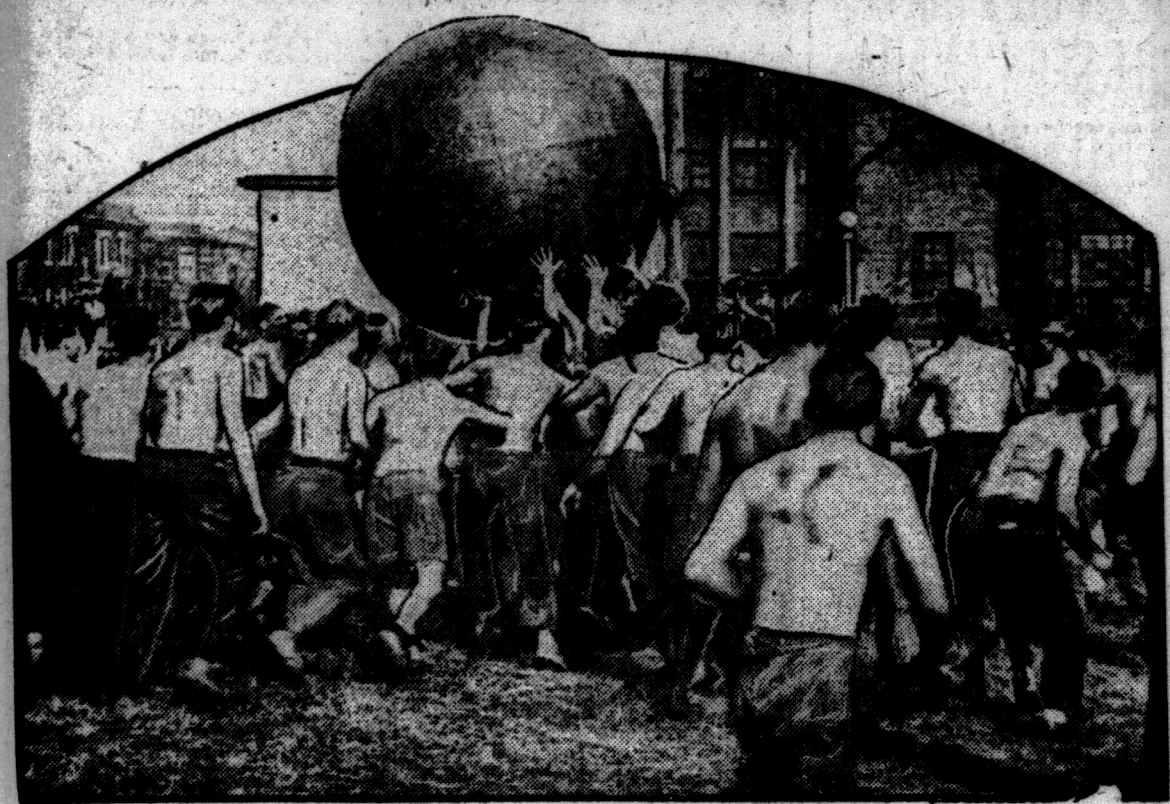

Then came the card with the prize winners' names.

"Read it, Katy—quick!"

"You! You!" Katy flung her arms about Denny's neck, shrieking: "Goody, oh, goody!"

It thought you'd like to have it. Denny. You save it. No matter what anyone says, Queenie was good to us, wasn't she? Remember, Denny, Queenie was

L. AND D. BASKETBALLERS TO DEVELOPE MANY NEW TEAMS

"Bill" Christianson Again Heads L. and D. Basketball

Miss E. Wynn-Price to Represent L.A.A. Girls' Team at L.O.B.A.

Last night's big meeting of the London and District Basketball Association was one of accomplishment, and throughout the session the continued harmony put to rest rumors that may have gained circulation as to lack of unity on the part of the L. and D. B. A. and the L. A. A.

Dr. George Smith was elected honorary president; W. (Bill) Christianson, president; Harold Gillies, vice-president; Gordon Butler, secretary. Gordon Butler will represent the London and District at the O. B. A. meeting in Toronto Saturday, and the L. A. A. will send George Wynn-Price and J. B. M. Ferguson to the same session.

Miss Edith Wynn-Price was named L. A. A. representative to the L. O. B. A. meeting at St. Catharines Saturday, and will personally take entry for the L. A. A. ladies' team in that league. The L. A. A. representatives at the meeting last night were: President, J. T. Wynn-Price; Vice-President, George Wynn-Price; Secretary, Gordon Butler; and R. A. Batten, secretary of the London Ladies' Basketball League. That London will be represented in the O. B. A. by one of the strongest of its floor aggregations seen here some time seems assured, from the hearty offers of co-operation on the part of the L. and D. B. A. and the L. A. A. A. The five will be made the grade, and already there are signs of considerable stiff competition for the team.

Several details in connection with the representative girls' team and its entry in the L. O. B. A. will be dealt with at today's meeting of the L. A. A. basketball committee. A full summary of the case questioned by a crowd of about 7,000. From the opening of the game the Scotsmen assumed the aggressive, but it was not until after half an hour's play that Henderson scored the first goal.

On resumption after the interval, the Scotsmen continued the attack, but towards the end of the game the Irish team assumed the offensive. There was no further scoring, however, and the Scotsmen won a keen game by the only goal registered in the match.

Henderson was the pick of the Scottish forwards. The Irish forwards were not convincing, McKenzie, Croft and Andrews were the most prominent. At back for the Irish team, Curran gave a sterling display of magnificent football. The teams lined up as follows: Ireland—Adams (Cliftonville); Curran (Glenavon); and Mulligan (Newrytown). Scotland—McKenzie (Dundee); Dowdy (Queen's Island); McIlven (Linfield); McKenzie (Dundee); Croft (Queen's Island); Andrews (Larne); Chambers (Newrytown); and Allen (Glenavon).

Scotland—White (Hibernian); Hutton (Aberdeen) and Hunter (Falkirk); Kerr (Hibernian); Morris (Rangers); and Dougal (Falkirk); Ritchie (Hibernian); Rankine (Motherwell); Henderson (Rangers); Cassidy (Celtic) and McLean (Celtic).

VERDICT 100 TO 7 FALL HANDICAP

Beats Epinard, French 3-Year-Old, by Neck in Cambridge Stakes.

Associated Press Despatch.
Newmarket, England, Oct. 31.—Verdict, owned by Lord Coventry, won the Cambridge Stakes of £1,000 with extras, run here today.

Verdict, a 3-year-old, was second, and G. Hardy's Dumas was third. Twenty-three horses ran. Verdict, by Shotgun out of Finaie, won by a neck. A length separated the second and third horses.

The betting was: Verdict, 100 to 7 against; Epinard, 3 to 1 against; and Dumas, 10 to 1 against.

The victory of Verdict over Epinard spoiled a betting coup for which the French colt had been carefully laid his plans. Wertheimer stood to win £210,000 if Epinard had won today without having risked a cent of his own money. He won £20,000 on Rose Prince in the Cesarewitch stakes Oct. 17, and these winnings were at stake in the present race.

The race aroused more than the usual interest from the fact that it was practically a duel between the French horse Epinard, with the top weight of 128 pounds, and a bunch of exceedingly good English horses with less weight. Epinard, which carried only 86 pounds, and Verdict, the winner, 110 pounds.

Epinard had been the favorite for several weeks, being backed to win something like a half million pounds sterling by his French admirers and the new money which he had attracted.

It was only by a neck that the crack French 3-year-old failed to carry off the prize and eclipse the record for this race held by Fox-hall, King's horse, Foxhall, which won in 1881, carrying 126 pounds.

Paris, Oct. 31.—"Epinard is beaten," was the shout of consternation that arose from the immense crowds on the boulevards congregated before the new money when the result of the defeat of the crack French 3-year-old in the Cambridge Stakes was flashed shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The popular distaste was apparently even greater than when Jack Dempsey knocked out his opponent, the rank and file was touched deeper in its pockets, as the race followers in France had played Epinard to win the race, where the odds were already in.

The announcement was received more philosophically at the jockey club, where the odds were laid, than at the result of the race proved Epinard to be the best 3-year-old in the world. The French experts reached this opinion by lining up these facts:

Epinard finished twenty lengths ahead of the second, who was a length to Papyrus in the Derby at Epsom Downs, while Zev's margin over Papyrus was six lengths, giving over the new money a margin of several lengths in front of Zev.

Johnny Reff, the jockey, said the horse he had shown by giving every inch in the race from 7 to 42 pounds that he could beat any 3-year-old in training the world over at a mile at even weights.

The five-minute gun found both runners running along against the weather inside the line. Epinard turned first and crossed the line at 9:00.32. Columbia quickly followed and crossed the line ten seconds later, 9:00.42. The wind had waned slightly as the boats started away from the first mark, running almost before the wind. Ten minutes' after the starting gun the Blue-nose crossed the line, the Columbia's bow headed away before the wind for the inner automatic buoy, the first mark. The Blue-nose had been in the lead from the first mark, but had fallen apparently lengths astern.

Running Neck and Neck. The breeze did not seem to be holding well. Columbia had her sails wing and wing. She was followed by Blue-nose, but Walters almost immediately hauled off his foresail. The wind had decreased to six knots. At 9:10 the Columbia, after establishing a lead of a length, attempted to cross Blue-nose's bow. Walters headed up and both boats were pointing well to a holding well.

COLUMBIA LEADS WHEN BOAT RACE IS DECLARED OFF

Lack of Wind Proves detrimental to the Canadian Schooner Blue-nose.

Associated Press Despatch.
Halifax, Oct. 31.—With never a breeze above eight knots, the American challenger Columbia ghosted along over more than half the Halifax ocean course today in the lead of the champion Blue-nose, sometimes as much as half a mile ahead. But the efforts of skippers and crews to sail the second race of the series for the international fishing schooner championship were in vain.

At 9:45 the schooners were lost in the haze to observers on the press boat, a mile and a half in advance. Early morning predictions of half a gale had completely failed, and it began to look as though the race might not finish within the time limit.

At 9:55 the Columbia had worked up to weather of the Blue-nose and was slightly ahead. The sun, breaking through the haze, showed the schooners engaged in a luffing match and headed at right angles to the course.

The wind, less than six knots, was hauling more to the east and both schooners had their mainsails broad off to starboard. At 10 o'clock they squared away and headed for the mark. There was little to choose between the two vessels.

The wind continued to heave to the eastward, and seemed to be picking up. The schooners had done less than five miles in an hour's sailing, but indications now were they would make faster time on the next leg.

At 10:10 the boats were less than a mile from the first mark. The Columbia was to weather, and a length, or so ahead. It was evident there would be close work at the buoy.

Official time for the first mark: Blue-nose—10:30:44. Columbia—10:30:44. At 10:20 the Columbia had established a lead of a quarter of a mile. Blue-nose seemed to be holding her own at this hour.

Wind Is Too Light. At 11:05 it was estimated that the schooners were three miles of the second leg. The wind was evidently too light for the Blue-nose to hold the challenge.

At 11:45 the wind had dropped to six knots. The Columbia had increased her lead to half a mile. The challenge began to close the gap. The boats were heading straight for the mark three miles away.

At noon the schooners got a rain squall off the shore, and the Blue-nose began to close the gap. The boats were heading straight for the mark three miles away.

Round Second Mark. At 12:10 the Columbia was within a mile of the buoy, with the Blue-nose a quarter of a mile astern. The luffing match that came off Lawrencetown Bluff did not last long, and at this hour the boats had little more than storage way.

At 12:20 the Columbia was within a little, and the challenger was apparently to have secured the mark. The Columbia continued to open the gap, but the Blue-nose had worked up to weather, and would have sheets more eased to close the gap.

Unofficial time at the second mark: Columbia—12:24:50. Blue-nose—12:28:15. At 1:10 the schooners were reaching the third mark.

At 1:20 the Columbia was within a little, and the challenger was apparently to have secured the mark. The Columbia continued to open the gap, but the Blue-nose had worked up to weather, and would have sheets more eased to close the gap.

BOY BILLIARDIST BEATS HOPPE.
Associated Press Despatch.
New York, Oct. 31.—Walter Cochran of Los Angeles furnished the surprise of the world's 18.2 balliard tournament tonight, defeating William F. Hoppe, the titleholder, 500 points to 230. In defeating Hoppe, Cochran, the youngest American player in the tournament, made the highest run of the week, 146, and in finishing in 16 innings set up the best average, 31.4-16.

Hoppe, far off his game, never could get the balls rolling satisfactorily. weather of their course. Both boats closed and Walters, giving Pine a nice blanket, forged ahead. After establishing a lead the Blue-nose bore off on her course to the buoy, while the challenger headed up for the western shore to weather, but behind the Canadian.

Obituaries

OLIVER L. TUCKEY.
Oliver L. Tuckey, youngest son of the late Francis and Jennette Tuckey, died suddenly at his residence, lot 12, concession 2, Tuesday evening.
The funeral will be held today at Hyde Park Cemetery at 2 o'clock. Services at the house at 2-30.

The funeral of Mrs. Charles Bugbe was held yesterday afternoon to Mt. Pleasant Cemetery and was largely attended. It was necessary to employ a special car to carry the many floral tributes which spoke of the high esteem in which she was held. The Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society of the Wellington Street Methodist Church, of which she was a member, attended the funeral in a body and walked to the cemetery.
