CHARGE OF ASSAULT

Ollie Reeves caused a little excitement at the Hotel Garner about 6.30 last evening. At least, Ollie was one of the leading figures in a slight argument that occurred there. Ollie says that he and a friend were in buying a glass of beer and he spoke pleasantly to some strangers who were doing likewise. Mr. Reeves says that his remarks were entirely about the weather. Both the wine clerk and Ollie agree in their stories up to this point, except that the former says that the remarks of Ollie were such as to be displeasing to the men addressed. Ollie says that the men behind the bar invited him out into the back yard. The bartender says that Ollie invited him. In the yard there was a little argument, Ollie had a knife but only succeeded in cutting his own hand but he also sustained one or two severe cuts. The bartender's apron was cut in the collision. Mr. Reeves was locked up and a charge of assault will probably be laid against him.

"SURPRISE" PARTY

A launching party went up the river one evening last week and stopped off at a farm house as a surprise party, and it was indeed a surprise. The farmer and his wife saw the party coming from Chatham so it was no wonder that he doubted the story that they had come all the way from Kent Bridge and had nothing to eat. They were given a meal, but when one of the party suggested that a dance be held in the parlor both the farmer and his wife objected. Although they missed the anticipated dance, none of the party were hungry when they landed back in Chatham.

HURLED CHUNKS OF HOLY WRIT AT ALD. ARCHIE McCOIG

Colleagues Indulge in Pastime of Giving Him Sunday School Lessons—Ald. Edmondson Miscounts the Foolish Virgins.

Council Will Purchase a New Dynamo—Ald. Westman and His Glass of Beer—Ursuline Avenue Sewer Referred Back—A By-Law Field Night.

The City Council session last evening was a special adjourned sitting scheduled mainly for the passing of some forty-seven local improvement by-laws—but the aldermen connected their warpath and went at general routine business. As a result, it was 10.10 p. m. when the by-laws were reached and, he says, he was not put through all their various stages and "signed, sealed and delivered" within the twinkling of an eye, it is possible that their fellow-citizens may have found the aldermen somewhat drowsy and apathetic to-day. If so, they are to be excused. The Council decided to purchase a new dynamo for the electric lighting station at a cost of about $1,300. This will be installed immediately and several of Engineer Jones' new enclosed lamps will be purchased and tested in the actual service.

Ald. Archie McCoig differed from this proposal. He held it to be unwise with the present high tax rate looming up on the civic horizon to spend some $1,500 for such, he said, the proposal meant—in "a doubtful experiment which might only, at best, relieve the present crisis." Ald. McCoig maintained the wisdom of his former proposition, viz., to institute a thorough investigation and examination of the whole plant, form an accurate estimate of the amount required to put it in a complete, efficient and up-to-date condition and submit a by-law to the people at the January elections asking authority for the issue of debentures for this purpose. "Do it thoroughly and do it once for all," declared the chairman of the Board of Works.

SCRIPTURE FOR ARCHIE.

Ald. McCoig's proposal did not meet with favor from the majority of his colleagues. But it brought him considerable food for thought. "The aldermen hurled scriptural quotations at him by the yard—in told him to be good. Ald. Martin in eloquent Demosthenian oratory likened him to Jeremiah, the apostle of lamentations, and scouted the bogey of the high tax rate standing in the way of necessary improvements. "Let there be light," declared Ald. Marshall impressively. Ald. Edmondson said there was much similarity between Ald. McCoig and the "foolish virgins" who neglected their lamps. On the suggestion of Mayor McKeough, Ald. Edmondson amended his figures to "five." Then Ald. Martin wound up the arraignment with the dramatic and thrilling declaration, "Let us win you, heifer." McCoig's Beloid, now is the accepted time.

Ald. Edmondson brought up the matter. He said he saw that Ald. McCoig had submitted the suggestion for a by-law at the last Council meeting when he was not present. He thought there was no necessity for this. The people were clamoring for light and he would make a last appeal to the Council for a new dynamo. Ald. McCoig reminded him of the foolish virgins in Holy Writ who—

"THE SATELLITE AT WORK"

Continuing, Ald. Edmondson moved the purchase of a new dynamo and a number of Jones' enclosed lamps for testing purposes. "Yes, heifer," something," Ald. Edmondson declared, "the press and the citizens are, roasting us right and left. The Satchel of the Satellite says that we will be 'dynamited' at the next election, and your Uncle John takes no chances"—or words to that effect—Laughter and applause.

"Let there be light," declared Ald. Marshall in seconding the motion. He had thought carefully over the matter and believed it was the proper thing to do.

Ald. McCoig said he was heartily in favor of taking every prompt and proper step to get light, but he doubted the wisdom of paying $1,300 for one dynamo manufactured by one man only in the United States. He was doubtful as to whether the Town Council should aim at an efficient and up-to-date plant, issue debentures and let coming generations who were to be benefitted pay their share.

The Mayor—Your argument is a good one, Ald. McCoig. I'm sorry it's not the same on sewers.

Ald. McCoig—Ah, your worship, is it not better there? Ald. Edmondson says the city engineer has asked three times for a new dynamo, but I note that he has given The Planet an interview commending the proposed plan for overhauling and taking a vote of the people as a good one. I want to ask the property committee one question—to they feel justified in spending $1,300 to put a dynamo in

REUNION WAS BIG SUCCESS

Report of Pres. and Sec'y are of Most Satisfactory Character.

Good Work of Various Officers Who Devoted Time and Energy to the Affair.

A meeting of citizens was held last Friday evening in Harrison Hall to receive the reports of the various committees who had the Chatham old boys' reunion and street carnival in charge.

Much satisfaction was evidenced at the result of the whole affair. Chatham has had a successful reunion in spite of the poor weather on the start and it will by no means be the last one.

The committee who brought the street carnival here were complimented upon their work. Although the shows were what should be expected from a street fair, there was nothing improper connected with them and they were all good shows. George Heyward especially deserves great praise for the active interest he took in the reunion and for his work in seeing that everything went off in good order and in making the managers of each show stick to their contracts and show nothing but proper clean shows.

The following report was made by Dr. W. H. Hall, president of the old boys' reunion:

I am glad to see so many present to-night and that we will be able to proceed now with the winding of the affairs. I take this occasion to publicly thank the gentlemen who filled the various important offices, and composed the important committees in connection with the old boys' reunion and street carnival through your unselfish and zealous endeavors, you brought the matter to a successful termination, notwithstanding many drawbacks, the chief of which perhaps being the very wet and unfavorable weather. Too much cannot be said in praise of the secretary and assistant secretary, Mr. W. W. Scans and Mr. J. W. Aitken, for their intelligent energy in advertising the reunion and their courtesy, diplomacy and tact they used in answering the numerous inquiries and correspondence. This work, if estimated at its money value, would amount to considerable. I trust some suitable acknowledgment may be made to these gentlemen in some way. I also wish to mention the splendid work done by Mr. Geo. Cowan as treasurer, owing largely to his foresight and financial skill I am convinced we were saved from having a large deficit. He not only discharged his duties as treasurer well, but was very active in doing everything for the success of the reunion that he possibly could. Many other gentlemen should be mentioned in connection as deserving praise.

This, I believe, was the first Old Boys' Reunion Chatham has ever held. If the same officers and committees had the work to do again many things would be done differently. It is much easier to criticize than it is to do work which is above criticism. In enterprises of this kind it is not only the privilege of every citizen, but his duty, to attend the citizens' meetings and use his influence to have matters conducted according to his ideas of right, etc., and if he neglects to attend these meetings and give his assistance, he should be slow to criticize those who performed their duty according to their best judgment.

That the Reunion and Carnival was a success, notwithstanding the drawbacks already mentioned, must be admitted, and that Chatham received in this way advertising, a splendid return for the money, is beyond question.

My own duties as president were very light indeed, the work being done by the other officers and committees, and I wish to heartily thank these gentlemen for their very efficient work.

Walter W. Scans, the enterprising and successful secretary, who has given much time and energy towards making the Reunion a success, then read the following financial report, which was received with much satisfaction:

LORD DUNDONALD'S REPLY

Lord Dundonald's relation of his experience with the Ottawa politicians is calculated to arouse the country. It points to a deliberate attempt to politicize the militia force and to persistent obstruction and neglect of the interests of both officers and privates. While it is a very startling statement, it is not without elements of humor. Sir Frederick Borden's ordinance corps of 100 men officered by one colonel and six lieutenant-colonels is certainly a good joke, and would make a splendid subject for a comic opera. Scarcely less amusing is the picture of the founder of the novel military organization editing the expert reports of the greatest general in the army next to Lord Roberts' and Kitchener with the shears so as to make them harmonize with his own ideas.

It seems clear from the statement of Lord Dundonald that that officer has had a terrible time with the politicians. To begin with, his reports on the state of the militia have been deliberately mutilated and issued in garbled form that Parliament and the country might be deceived. The General while in office uttered not a word about this impropriety, nor, it appears, did he publicly complain of the discourteous rejection of his various suggestions looking to the improvement of the force. His proposal that there be gunnery instruction and local camps for the training of officers was struck out of his annual report without the formality of a friendly or even of an official consultation. When he suggested staff rides for field officers to better qualify these gentlemen for the service they desired to perform he was met with a stiff and formal negative. He prepared instructions for officers, and had the letter press and plates ready for the printers. His application for authority to proceed with the printing was returned with the word "postponed" written across it. Here was a trained officer of exceptional ability and experience laboring among us solely with a view to the advancement of the efficiency of the military force. He makes suggestions and they are rejected summarily, without discussion, and in a manner that is obviously insulting. While all proposed movements having for their object the welfare of the militia have been thus obstructed by the Minister, the politicizing of the force has been in progress. This system is illustrated in the case of the 2nd Dragoons. There the colonel was overridden in order that a politician without the military qualifications might be promoted. Nor was this the only wrong committed in this particular instance.

The documents laid before the General as a preliminary to the promotion were incomplete. The reports of the colonel were omitted from them. Clearly, the garbling was designed to cause the General to assume his share of the responsibility for the political promotion without a full knowledge of the facts. Mr. Sydney Fisher's interference with another regiment, as we know, brought matters to a crisis. Against such political meddling the General uttered his very proper protest, and he did it, knowing that he would impair his own position for the benefit of the militia and for the public good. Now the meaning of this protest is in some quarters misrepresented and misunderstood. Lord Dundonald did not demand "partridge" or special and superior fights for himself, as the spoilsman would have us believe. What he stood for was the exclusion of party politics from the militia and the offering of that important service in accordance with the law of the land, and the King's regulations. Our militia system, it is well to remember, offers to the man in the ranks the opportunity to rise by merit and through military qualifications, step by step, until he reaches the command of his regiment. It excludes, and wisely so, every idea of politics. It does not ask whether a man is a free trader or a protectionist, a Liberal or a Conservative. What it contemplates is the recognition of the country's defenders as Canadians first and only, and their appointment or promotion to positions of responsibility in virtue of their military accomplishments. There is a law under which the principle is carried out. The colonel is answerable for his regiment. He recommends appointments and promotions, and his proposals pass through military channels until the Minister of Militia gives them due effect. The politician has no right to interfere. And let it be well understood that Lord Dundonald in protesting against Mr. Fisher's intervention stood not for any rights or privileges for himself, but for the right of the private soldier to become an officer, for the right of the officer to aspire to higher rank if militarily qualified, and for the protection of the qualified and meritorious in the King's service against displacement by the nominees of politicians.

Responsible government is not impaired by the position which Lord Dundonald has taken. Responsible government made the law; and the law having been made Lord Dundonald's claim that it ought to be observed is a tribute to the responsible system and a service of great value to the militia force and the country it defends. Considering the insulting treatment with which Lord Dundonald has been met, there need be no wonder that he finally spoke out and thus produced the crisis which terminates his official life in Canada. He was right in protesting against a policy which impairs the defensive force. While his protest preserves his own honor, it is equally a service to the country, for it imposes upon us the necessity of examining the Militia Department and of seeing to it that the self-sacrificing efforts of officers and men are not neutralized by the folly and mismanagement of the ruling politicians.—Mail and Empire.

"UNKNOWN"—A FOREIGNER.

Says the Ottawa Citizen: The exposure by the Citizen of the fact that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's reference to Lord Dundonald as a "foreigner" was suppressed in the Globe office has made that journal so worthy as to leave no doubt of the intent to deceive its readers. As in the case of the premier when he used the word, the Globe had evidently lost its temper when it endeavored in a column leader to explain away what in the next breath it professes to consider "not a very serious matter." It refers to this great fireside journal as "fat-witted" and describes it as "a feathered scavenger." Incidentally it explains:

The Globe gives perhaps more space to Parliament than any of its contemporaries, but it does not profess to give a word for word report. If its reporters failed to report the use of the word "foreigner" it was because it had no real bearing on the debate. The Citizen knows well the circumstances under which the word was used and its attempt to make an anti-French campaign on the head of it is merely a feeble-minded attempt to be machievous.

What the Citizen charged was that the word was included in the report sent the Globe but was deliberately suppressed in the Globe office, so the Globe cannot shield itself behind the old subterfuge of "blaming it on the reporter." The Globe does give large space to parliamentary reports. It reported the debate on the Dundonald question verbatim—down to the point where Sir Wilfrid Laurier arose to address the House then, curiously enough, it failed to report the premier's remarks verbatim, and suppressed all reference to the obnoxious term which was subsequently so vigorously presented in the speeches of Mr. Fowler, Mr. P. C. Col. Sam Hughes and other speakers, and which in consequence were condensed almost out of sight. In view of the fact that the press of Canada has been ringing with the incident of the premier's slighting reference ever since, the suppression of such an important feature of the debate convicts the Globe of a deliberate intention to endeavor to mislead and deceive its readers.

However, the Globe is now sufficiently impressed with the position it has placed itself in to reproduce the portion of the debate from the "revised" Hansard and this is the way it reads:

Sir Wilfrid Laurier—Lord Dundonald in his position is charged with the organization of the militia, but he must take counsel here when organizing a regiment. He is a foreigner—no.

Some hon. members—No, no. Sir Wilfrid Laurier—I had with drawn the expression before hon. gentlemen interrupted. He is not a foreigner, but he is a stranger.

Some hon. members—No. Those who were present and listening to the premier, including the leading members of the opposition who sat immediately opposite to the first minister and closer to him than the Hansard reporters, are positive that the word "no" did not follow the word "foreigner"; neither do they recall the sentence—"I had withdrawn the expression before hon. gentlemen interrupted." When Sir Wilfrid pronounced the word "foreigner" he paused as if to give the word full effect as a derisive fling at the other side of the House, for the right hon. gentleman was obviously annoyed and somewhat disgusted at the blunder of which Mr. Fisher had been guilty and had been further irritated by the preceding effective summing up by Mr. Borden of the ludicrous exposure of the attempted deception. A storm of protest from the opposition, weakly minimized in Hansard to "Some hon. members—No, no," greeted the obnoxious word "foreigner" and in reply to it the premier exclaimed defensively—"Well he is a stranger," which was also resented. No doubt the same influence which was alive to the necessity of editing the Globe report took care to dress the Hansard so as to pave the way for the "stranger" explanation which blossomed out in the Grit organs next day with such suggestive unanimity, and which appears in the Globe at this date. It says—

If any one looks up the two words in an English-French dictionary he will find they are both translated by the word "stranger."

Well, the Citizen has looked up the word "stranger" in A. Mendel's French-English dictionary published by Eyre and Spottiswoode, London, Eng. It does not give the word "stranger" as the equivalent of "foreigner" at all. It gives the equivalent in English as "unknown, a foreigner." To speak of a person as "an unknown" is very different to the mere non-committal description conveyed by the assertion that a person is a stranger, and is a description which conveys more with the impression conveyed by the premier's tone and irritation of manner when he used the word. It was not alone what the premier said but the "how" way he said it that aroused the instant storm and made those who heard him smile when they listened to the subsequent smooth turn given to the incident.

BAD MANNERS.

Mr. Willison says in the Toronto News:—Sir Frederick Borden is reported to have made an extraordinary reference to Lord Dundonald. He was asked if the drill books prepared by the Major-General would be continued in use. "I understand," he is represented as saying, "that Lord Dundonald has written some books, and if they are in good English and can be followed, the drills will be carried out along the line upon which they are written."

The tone of this statement could hardly be more offensive. He "understands" that Lord Dundonald has written "some books"—when he authorized their publication and their adoption. "If they are in good English." What can be said of such manners?

The procedure followed by the Government in dispensing with Lord Dundonald's services has been singularly lacking in the courtesy which people owe to themselves if not to others. The British way of terminating the engagement of so important an officer would be to send an official letter by a special messenger. Perhaps that is too formal a style for this country. Surely, however, a letter might have been sent to Lord Dundonald acquainting him with the action of the Government. That was not done. The only notification, which he has received is a slip of yellow telegraph paper with a typewritten message. A good business house would think twice before dismissing an unsatisfactory commercial traveler so unceremoniously.

Lord Dundonald quarrelled bitterly with the Government, but he was a high officer of State, who had given hard and unselfish work to the country. To dismiss him by a curt telegram was exceedingly bad manners. Mr. Sydney Fisher's personal discourtesy precipitated the quarrel. Sir Frederick Borden's sneers, if he be correctly reported, give a touch of distinct vulgarity to the behavior of the Cabinet.

PIANISTS SMALL MEN: VIOLINISTS LARGE.

Atlanta Constitution. Silvia Risegari, the young Italian pianist, yesterday was discussing his country, Italy, and from that the conversation drifted to music and art generally.

"You may laugh at me," S. Risegari remarked, "but most of the great pianists have been small men and the great violinists are large men. I couldn't explain why this is, but, nevertheless, the statement is true."

That Dodd's Kidney Pills Always Cure Dropsy.

It is a Kidney Disease and is Cured by Curing the Kidneys—Dodd's Kidney Pills Never Fail to Cure the Kidneys.

Montreal, Que., June 20.—(Special)—Every day brings forth fresh proof that Dropsy is caused by diseased Kidneys and that the one sure way to cure it is to make the Kidneys strong and healthy by using Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Geo. Robertson, 392 St. James street, this city, is one of those who has proved this beyond the shadow of a doubt. Mr. Robertson says:

"My feet were so much swollen from Dropsy that when I got out of bed in the mornings I could hardly put them on the floor. My arms used to swell at times so that I could not put on my coat."

"I had to be tapped to relieve me of the terrible pains."

"On the advice of a friend I began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and before I had used the second box I began to feel better. Seven boxes cured me completely."

Rheumatism, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, are some of the many forms of Kidney Disease that Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure promptly and permanently.

DISTRICT DOINGS.

BLENHEIM

June 21.—Robert Mener was hurt badly at Chatham on Saturday last, being kicked in the face by a horse. He was rendered unconscious by the kick and was taken to the General Hospital. The latest reports are that he is doing as well as could be expected.

Prof. Burgess conducted the services at Trinity church on Sunday. At the evening service Eric Boun-sang sang a solo, "A Clean Heart." On Saturday morning last Mr. Dundonald McIntyre, of Sheldrick street, died suddenly at the age of 85 years. He formerly lived on the Centre Line.

The funeral took place yesterday at the house, the service being conducted by Rev. G. B. Brown, after which the body was interred at the Evergreen cemetery.

Dr. and Mrs. McK. Mitchell and daughter, Eric William, who have been visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Morris, left for their home yesterday.

Miss Ethel Thompson, of Harwich, visited the Misses Russell on Sunday last. Mr. and Mrs. S. Sullivan left for Gloucester on Saturday last.

The first of the home games of the C. L. A. was to have taken place here yesterday at two p. m. Ridge-town sent word that they could not get a team together, then the boys tried to get the Bugle Band team of Chatham, but could not secure them.

DRESDEN

June 20.—At the conclusion of Dresden's b. g. celebration and reunion on Thursday evening last a meeting of boys and citizens was held, when a permanent "Old Boys' Association" was formed, which unanimously decided to make June 15th and 16th Dresden's reunion days, and to make the event an annual one from now on.

Miss Mary Gatzke, of Wyandotte, Mich., is the guest of Miss Katie McDonald.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Elgin, who attended the old boys' re-union, spent Friday and Saturday with friends in town.

Roland Wallen, of Winnipeg, is visiting at the home of his parents, North Dresden.

The Dresden branch, I. O. F., attended divine service in the Presbyterian church yesterday morning.

Wood Shane, of Detroit, was the guest of his sister, Mrs. S. Shaw, Victoria avenue, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sharpe, Miss E. Sharpe and Mrs. W. H. Willison have returned from Leamington, where they attended the marriage of Ernest M. Sharpe to Miss Fuller. The young couple will take up their residence in Orillia, where Mr. Sharpe is stationed at present.

Mrs. L. J. Wright, of Leamington, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. J. Davies.

Geo. Rayment, of Chatham, died Saturday morning at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Hartwell Anderson. Mr. Rayment had attended the reunion and being seized with a paralytic stroke, passed away early Saturday morning. He was a former resident of our town and was buried in the Dresden cemetery, the funeral service being held at the home of Mr. Anderson on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock.

The display of fireworks which was to have been given Thursday night will be put on by the committee on Thursday evening, June 30th.

High Grade Wheeler and Wilson Sewing Machines

Madame Reed wishes to inform the public that she is the agent for this well known machine for the County of Kent. It is one-third faster, one-third lighter, in fact the only machine that does not fail in any part. Anyone wishing to get a machine or wishing to inspect, can do so by calling on MADAME REED, at 111 Broadview & Jacques, or room 73, Garner House.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS.

We have just put in, at great expense, a WONDERFUL MACHINE, heated by steam, work only passing through the rollers once; the result—Wool is ELASTIC, WILL NOT BREAK, and will last much longer than when ironed by the old method, heated by gas, which has to pass through the rollers eight times.

P.S.—We have also added a newly invented machine to iron the edges of Collars and Cuffs.

IN LOVE'S EMBRACE.

American Youth Gets a Rib Broken by an Impulsive Canadian Girl—Victim Sues for Damages.

A despatch from Lockport, New York, says Walter Lorraine of Riga, Monroe County, has brought an action against Marie Du Calm of Niagara Falls to recover damages. It is charged by Lorraine that Miss Du Calm hugged him so tightly as to break one of his ribs.

It appears that last winter the plaintiff was visiting in Ottawa. While there he met the defendant, who was visiting an aunt in the Canadian city. Mutual subjects of interest drew the young people into an acquaintanceship that speedily developed into an attachment of a deeper nature. Lorraine overstayd his original time, and the young woman also found it more agreeable than she had anticipated in the province. The ice carnival was at its height and the young people decided to go to Quebec to visit it. It also to secure a number of photographic views, both being ardent amateur photographers.

The visit was made and conversation was punctuated with the click of the kodak. Lorraine was to turn home on the following day, and it was decided to develop the negatives that night. At the home of the defendant's aunt there had been fitted up a temporary dark room for the use of Miss Du Calm while she was visiting, and the room was fitted with the regular ray lamp. That's where the red rays enter into the case.

Several negatives had been developed, and one in particular appealed to the enthusiastic nature of the defendant. As she saw the image of the gay scenes which they had witnessed earlier in the day, she was completely carried away. With a gasp she exclaimed, "Oh, Walter, doesn't anything like that make you love nature?" "I'm just going to give you a big hug," she hurled herself at the plaintiff. As her arms encircled him there was a cracking sound, and Lorraine uttered a cry of pain.

Instantly the negative terminated and the plaintiff was assisted into an adjoining room. His pallor alarmed the defendant and she had a physician summoned. He decided that Lorraine had suffered a fracture of one of the ribs on the right side. Lorraine underwent the usual treatment, and under the pain incident to the knitting of the fractured bone his affection rapidly cooled.

Upon his return to Riga he talked the matter over with friends, and they urged the bringing of an action to recover for his injuries. The advice of his counselors prevailed, and he wrote and suggested that the expense incurred in treatment of his injuries be paid for by the defendant. She refused to listen to any such proposition, and then the law was called in.

In defence of her action Miss Du Calm sets up that she is of an effusive and clinging nature, that that fact was well known to the plaintiff, and that up to the time of the unfortunate incident of accident that led to the estrangement, the plaintiff had shown no disposition to submit to caresses.

Evidently, it is set forth that the action of the defendant at this time complained of was involuntary and due to the effect of the red rays of light resulting from the use of the ray lamp, that it is a recognized scientific fact that the red rays are the most strenuous and likely to provoke excitability in one of ardent temperament and their effect upon the defendant is and was at the time alleged in the complaint known to the plaintiff, whosefore judgment is asked that the complaint be dismissed with costs to the defendant.

Birds in Queen's Park.

Queen's Park in summer has something of a forest ornithology. Just now while the oaks and maples are hesitating whether to invest in spring goods, or to wait a while and rush into summer fineries, about the only birds visible are the students. Their plumage is not excessively brilliant, and many of them have never been known to sing. Some of them are moulting—having already sold their old books to other fellows in the road of knowledge, on the limbs lower down. A few of the male varieties are beginning to crow a little—not knowing how soon they will be plucked. Most of them have a faded look. They have been around Queen's Park all winter, and think it is about time to migrate. Some have a notion to go nesting. Others contemplate scribbling. But most of them will be back in the fall. They are rare birds, and Toronto will be some what lonesome without them. Their delightful peculiarities have never been exploited by Mr. McIlwraith or Mr. Sam Woods. In the time of Aristophanes, who wrote the first book on birds, they were not yet discovered. So far as is known they do not thrive in captivity, being fond of a wild life. And it is absolutely certain that they are the only kind of birds ever discovered that are able to stand plucking more than once. Four years in their average term of existence. Some live longer. This is not considered beneficial.—Toronto News.

Compliments in the House.

The little amenities of men engaged in the serious business of the country are not known to the public. Now here is a little exchange of compliments that took place in the Provincial Legislature during the debate on the two-million-dollar Soo loan proposition. That most eloquent of Irishmen and brilliant speaker, J. P. Downey, journalist and M.P.P., sent this across the floor to one Connors:

When Connors out of the House did so, he took a look at the man behind him, and he came back as "Sunny Jim."

Mr. Connors returned with:

I came back a "Sunny Jim."

But the man behind him stood by you. There'd have been nothing doing at the Soo.

$500 REWARD FOR WOMEN WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

They have the most remarkable record of cures made by this world-famed remedy ever placed to the credit of any preparation especially designed for the cure of women's peculiar ailments.

A beautiful Georgia lady, Vice-President of the West End Chamber of Commerce, writes the following experience: "You certainly have produced the best medicine for suffering women that I have ever known. I want to recommend it to all the women I know. I had tried every other remedy which was so much advertised, and found no relief. I had little faith in the medicine in the time and was so weak and sick that I felt discouraged, but within a week I had commenced taking your New Life and vitality seemed to come with each succeeding day, and in a few weeks I was able to do my usual work. I am now perfectly well. At any time I feel tired or in need of a tonic, a few doses of your 'Favorite Prescription' recuperates me at once. My address is No. 313 Jones Street, East, Savannah, Ga."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing as good as "Golden Medical Discovery" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

The Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1000 large pages in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a ladies' laxative. No other medicine equals them for gentleness and thoroughness.

DRESS HINTS.

Throughout your entire wardrobe avoid cheap, tawdry effects.

If your shoes get very wet wipe off all dirt with a damp cloth, then rub them with sweet oil or cream.

Alcohol diluted with water is generally an effective renovator of silk. If grease spots are to be removed, rub first with gasoline.

China silk waists should be washed, then starched in a thin starch and ironed while damp. This makes them look just like new.

Restore fine net veillings which have become stringy by sponging them with a weak solution of black starch. Pin them out to dry, keeping the edges perfectly straight.

Tucked chiffon when crumpled and shabby looking, may be easily freshened up by passing a hot iron over the wrong side of the material. This makes the tucks have the raised appearance they had when new.

German Women in the Professions.

Back twenty or thirty years ago a few women began to call the attention of their sisters to all the evil and dependence the lack of education and for them in a country where knowledge is accounted the highest good. Quiet, steady work followed, undismayed by legislative action and by public abuse and ridicule, until now almost all the German universities are open in a measure to women, allow them degrees in various branches, and courses exist in various cities. With the right to study the professions at home has come the right to practice them, and there are a number of women physicians and a few women lawyers in Germany today, something that would have been considered impossible thirty years ago.—Pittsburg.

The Hot Sand Bag.

We are all acquainted with the virtues of the hot water bag, but many persons are not aware of the fact that a sand bag is even better. The way to prepare it is this: Get some clean, fine sand, dry it thoroughly in a kettle on the stove, make a bag about eight inches square of dannel, fill it with the dry sand, sew the opening carefully together and cover the bag with cotton or linen cloth. This will prevent the sand from sifting out and also enable the person using it to heat the bag quickly by placing it in the oven or on the top of the stove. After once using this no further recourse will be had to the hot water bottle.

Tree Nursery at Guelph.

Considerable progress has been made with the tree nursery at the Ontario Agricultural College. Hon. John Dwyer stated recently that in the spring of 1906 he expected they would be in a position to distribute to the farmers of the Province at least 200,000 trees of various classes.

"We have during the past ten days transplanted about 50,000 two-year-old evergreens—pine, Norway spruce, larch, etc.—and have sown enough seed to give 50,000 more," said Mr. Dwyer. "We have also gathered enough acorns for at least 100,000 red and white oak trees, a variety of commercial timber which cannot be very well transplanted, but which grows somewhat rapidly from seed. Besides these we have several other varieties, such as maple, beech, birch, ash, and so on."

The trees are planted apart from two to four inches one way, and from twelve to fourteen inches the other way.

A FEW HILLOCKS.

A Recent Government Dictionary of Altitudes That Cannot Fail to Open the Eyes of Many People.

A somewhat unusual kind of Government publication (a dictionary of altitudes in the Dominion of Canada) has recently been issued by the Ottawa Department of the Interior. Even a casual perusal of this volume on hilltops cannot fail to open the eyes of many, including those of the oldest inhabitants. The heights, it need scarcely be said, are given in feet above the sea level, and the place names are arranged alphabetically in Province and territory groups.

For our purpose we shall begin with Ontario, where we are a little nonplussed to discover that the greatest altitude is reached by Tip-top hill, which is said to be in Thunder Bay district, and the height of this appropriately named, but, to us, wholly strange, hill is given at 2,120 feet. Next to it comes Thunder Cape, 1,950, thus soaring beyond Fort William's knoll, Mt. McKay, by 350 feet. This must prove gratifying to the good people of Port Arthur, and correspondingly provocative to those of the other burg.

It may surprise some of us to learn that next to these come Dundalk (South Grey), 1,700; Corbetton (Dufferin), 1,661, and Melancthon (in the same county), 1,660, so that the elevation connecting these points forms the roof-ridge of our western peninsula. It is now in order for the Dundalkians to take advantage of the situation by the erection of a pillar or some other conspicuous monument at the railway station to inform the travelling public that "This is the highest point in southern Ontario, 1,700 feet above the level of the sea."

There are some scores of places above the thousand feet mark, but by far the larger number are in the lower hundreds, the lowest possible level being that of Bainsville, in Lancaster township, Glengary—174 feet, the distance between which and 245 feet (nearly) will show the extent of fall in the St. Lawrence after it leaves Lake Ontario.

Toronto Union Station is placed at nine feet above the lake, or 254 above the sea, and a few other points in the city are as follows: Queen street, 260; Bloor street, 371; North Toronto station, 400; Carlton street is placed at 405 feet, but this must be a mistake. Upper Canada College is given as 356, the top of the roof as 648, and Woodlawn avenue is mentioned at 469 feet, "the highest point in the city."

But British Columbia overtops everything, even Tip-top hill. The highest point in the province, according to some authority, is 15,292 feet above the sea, while Mount Caruthers, Cathedral, Columbia, Daly, Dawson, Deltaform, Deville, Dome, Freshfield, Goodsir, Hazel, Hooker, Howse, Hungabee, La Perouse, Lefroy, Lyall, Nelson, Owen, Robson, Rogers, Sir Donald, Stephen, Thompson, Vaux and Victoria look down on scorn on everything under 10,000 feet high.

The highest point in Alberta is Mount Murchison, 13,500, followed closely by Mount Bryce, 13,000, with many others ranging from 12,000 to 10,000.

Assiniboia cannot boast of anything even as far up as 5,000 feet, her best effort culminating in a nameless point which may hereafter be known as Globe Mountain, 4,625 feet in height. I suggest this name because the elevation is said to be one of the most beautiful in America, and fertile almost to its summit.

In Athabasca nothing exceeds 3,000 feet in height, except Bruile Lake, strange to say, and it is 3,201 feet above the sea, but surely the sunning land is just a little bit above this.

Although Manitoba is proud, she is modest, and no attempt has been made in this Province to rival the heights of British Columbia.

Duck Mountain (it must be a mountain) has the climax at 2,600 feet. Porcupine Mountain, at 2,500, Turtle Mountain, at 2,300, and Krang Mount, at 2,200 feet, complete the record of hills over 2,000 feet above sea.

Now the greatest altitude is Mount Carleton, 2,716; Nova Scotia's Wilkie Sugarloaf, 1,200; Prince Edward Island's Witshire, 305; while Quebec's Mount Logan, 3,708, and Shickabika, 3,500 feet, multiply the list closing this review.

It may, however, be of some scientific interest to note that the so-called mountain near Montreal is not two million five hundred thousand feet in height, as is claimed by the inhabitants who reside near its base, but only 763 feet, to the very summit, in accordance with authentic records. It may also be remarked that "the mountain" at Hamilton, Ontario, and which has always been claimed to be at least ten thousand feet higher than that of Montreal, is in reality only 628 feet above sea level, or 135 feet lower than the Montreal vertical promise.

SOMETHING LEFT UNDONE.

Labor with what we will, Something still remains undone, Something uncompleted still, Waits the rising of the sun.

By the bedside, on the stair,
At the threshold, near the gates,
With its murmur or its prayer,
Like a mendicant it waits:

Waits, and will not go away;
Waits, and will not be gainsaid
By the cares of yesterday,
Each today is heavier made:

Till at length the burden seems Greater than our strength can bear,
Heavy as the weight of dreams,
Pressing on us everywhere.

And we stand from day to day,
Like the state of times gone by,
Who, as northern legends say,
On their shoulders hold the sky.

—Longfellow.

THE PIPES OF PAN.

Miss Carman's New Volume "From the Book of Myths."

The Canadian poet, who is winning laurels abroad as most clever Canadian do, has issued the first of the series "The Pipes of Pan." The decorations are striking and include an exquisitely designed frontispiece, showing the god with his satyr smile, and an elaborate title page. Mr. Carman's preface is a study in praise of old and mellow things wine and, by implication, myths. There are ten poems in the book, connected in fancy, if not in theme, particular theme, it should be qualified, for there is a general scheme, namely, the praise of beauty in nature in the book. This beauty, with Mr. Carman, does not prefigure an invisible world. With him the "light of sense" never appears to go out, and this element in him which responds to beauty he does not appear in his later work to regard as an inlet of mystic truth. The first poem, "Overture," expresses an exultant pantheism:

"Lord of the grass and hill,
Lord of the rain,
White overlord of will,
Master of pain.

"I who am dust and air
Blow through the bulks of death,
Like a pale ghost of prayer—
I am thy breath.

So read the first two stanzas. The external world has ceased to appear to the poet terrible and unfriendly, and in the long poem which follows, "The Pipes of Pan," he sings the cohering and transfiguring power of love. But it appears to be a sort of atomic love:

"We behold in love the tether
Binding the great world together;
For without that coil of wonder
The round world would fall asunder.

It is doubtful if the rhymed couplet which Mr. Carman employs in this poem is a wise choice. It certainly does not leave the impression of melody to be drawn up with a jerk at the end of every line. Far more agreeable is the form of "Marsyas," a new version of the ancient theme of youth fired by imagination and love:

"There he stood a youth, transfigured in the young world's golden glow,
Made immortal in a moment by the music of his own flow,
Pattern of the artist's glory for the years to know."

Then follow "Daphne," "The Lost Dryad," and a very lovely thing, "The Dead Flower"—fair as a mortal and spiritual as a flower. The finest bit of work in the book, however, is "At Phaedra's Tomb," for who, if not that victim of earth's magnetic attraction, should be sung on the pipes of the earth-gods? We read the story, one of the most tragic in classic legend. And what an insufferable prig Euripides makes Hippolytus out to be! Mr. Carman's Phaedra is all a woman, and somehow he makes us respect her passion for beauty represented by this youth:

"Of orange marsh and lilac shore,
To brood in Autumn peace once meet
So there survives the magic flame
Of her imperishable name.
Light from a time when love was great,
And strong hearts had no fear of fate,
But live and strove and wrought and died,
With beauty for their only guide."

Mr. Carman's philosophy will sustain a superstitious view of the verse, but not examination in the light of history and experience. The pursuit of the human spirit in harmony with the cosmic procession is not the pursuit of beauty, but of righteousness.

A Striking Contrast.

When we consider the representation in Parliament of the Canadians in the Klondike, their public buildings, and mail and telegraph facilities; their wagon roads to the various mining centres; their efficient mounted police system (the most perfect in the world), whose members act the part of humanitarians in the winter to distressed miners on the trail, when we think that since 1897 the same judge has continued on the bench at Dawson, while in Nome, since June, 1900, we have had two judges on the bench, followed by a third party, who now sits where they set, when all these facts are before us, it surely cannot be wondered at if sometimes there should happen to run through our minds the thought of how good a thing it might have been for us if, during the Alaskan boundary award, the result had been different, and Canada had been given not only the territory which she claimed, but the whole of Alaska as well, for in that case the good results accomplished in the Klondike might, perhaps, ere long, have been repeated by her in Alaska.

—John T. Reed of Nome, in N. Y. Post.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. M. Baird, of Blenheim, were Maple City visitors yesterday.
Engineer Owen McKay, of the Pere Marquette, Walkerville, was in the city yesterday on business.
John G. Hart and Co., now in their new offices on Queen near the G. T. R., are again in a position to supply all demands for wood and coal.

The annual picnic of the McKEOUGH SCHOOL will be held on Thursday, June 23rd, 1904. Come and see our girls and boys enjoy themselves.

The marriage of Mr. Alex. Taylor, of Winnipeg, Man., and Miss Marguerite Blenett, of Chatham, will take place at her home on Stanley Avenue, at 5 p.m. Wednesday, June 22nd.

Are you English, Irish, Scotch or Canadian? If you are, watch for the grand race of the nations, which will leave the McKEOUGH SCHOOL grounds at 6 o'clock Thursday evening, June 23rd, and will pass along King street from the Aberdeen bridge to the Fifth St. bridge, and then back to the school.

O. I. Dolson, the St. Clair Street grocer, complains about the manner in which a C. P. R. freight train made a funeral procession in two Sunday. A large number of friends were following the remains of little Harold Grant to their last resting place in the Maple Leaf Cemetery. A C. P. R. freight divided the funeral and those out off had to drive around the block and arrived too late at the cemetery. Mr. Dolson was one of them.

A LINK WITH THE PAST

QUAINT EFFIGY KNOWN TO SAILORS
ALL OVER THE WORLD.

Wooden Dolly of North Shields, England—Stands in Low Street, the Abode of the Chandler, the Licensed Victualler, the Storeman, and Many Another Occupation Favored by the Seafaring Manner of Ancient Mariner.

In Low street, North Shields, stands the Wooden Dolly, a quaint effigy known to sailors all over the world. Low street is one of those tortuous, badly-paved, dimly-lighted thoroughfares so common to the seaport town. It is the abode of the chandler, the licensed victualler, and the storeman, and many another occupation favored of the seafaring man. It is the home, besides, of many an ancient mariner, salted specimens of humanity that seem able to defy time better than the most of us.
Low street is malodorous to the inlander, but the smell of tar and tallow is sweet to the nostrils of its votaries. A little nation of shopkeepers occupy the small fronts, and lay out for inspection their goods under the light of a sputtering lamp.
Above the shops swing the signs boards, with names suggestive of "every land and nation." In the din of a Saturday night you might imagine Low street a sort of Tower of Babel laid flat.

Above this strangely diversified crowd smiles the figure of the Wooden Dolly. The "old girl" has seen better days, and a period of maiden-hood when she had even amorous admirers. Her birth into this world is uncertain. She has often been depicted as the figurehead of some gigantic merchantman in the romantic days of sailing. It is said that she fulfilled the purpose of preventing a right-of-way, but the men of Shields have more imagination. She is to them a creature of good omen, a sort of spouse to Neptune; something they would willingly take a side and fight for. At one time the Wooden Dolly, which stands at the head of a narrow bye-street, adjoining a licensed club, was the subject of a license dispute. The club, it is said, was Another club woman, Mrs.

Haule, of Edgerton, Wis., tells how she was cured of irregularities and uterine trouble, terrible pains and backache, by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—A while ago my health began to fail because of female troubles. The doctor did not help me. I remembered that my mother had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on many occasions for irregularities and uterine troubles, and I felt sure that it could not harm me at any rate to give it a trial.

"I was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better, the terrible pains in the back and side began to ease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly as serious a time as heretofore, so I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. I really have never felt better in my life. I have not had a sick headache since, and weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did, so I unhesitatingly recommend your medicine."—MRS. MARY HAULE, Edgerton, Wis. Free Household Economics Club.

Why is it that one day our friend
looks charmingly pretty and the next would be considered quite plain? Usually it is all a question of color. Really
there are a very few women who are faithful to the color or few colors that suit them. Unless a woman is a thoroughly nondescript type, there will be one shade that suits her to perfection.
Two or three others can be worn with indifference, and the great majority should be eschewed. By the way, it is generally thought that blue is exclusively for fair people. Pink enjoys
the same degree of favor with brunettes; but the truth is, nothing can be more charming for a dark person with a clear skin than blue. If the correct
pale shade is chosen.—Exchange.

Color has a marked influence on a highly sensitive nature. It is more than a simple matter of taste, which means that one color is liked better than another. There are some people who feel real physical discomfort
when looking at a color they dislike.
Uncongenial combinations of color affect me in that way. I could not sit comfortably in a room where a combination of purple and pink stared me
in the face any more than I could tete-a-tete with an uncongenial person.

ettes; but the truth is, nothing can be
more charming for a dark person with a clear skin than blue. If the correct
pale shade is chosen.—Exchange.

Color has a marked influence on a highly sensitive nature. It is more than a simple matter of taste, which means that one color is liked better than another. There are some people
who feel real physical discomfort
when looking at a color they dislike.
Uncongenial combinations of color affect me in that way. I could not sit
comfortably in a room where a combination of purple and pink stared me
in the face any more than I could
tete-a-tete with an uncongenial person.

Why is it that one day our friend
looks charmingly pretty and the next
would be considered quite plain? Usually it is all a question of color. Really
there are a very few women who are
faithful to the color or few colors that suit them. Unless a woman is a thoroughly nondescript type, there will be
one shade that suits her to perfection.
Two or three others can be worn with
indifference, and the great majority
should be eschewed. By the way, it is generally thought that blue is exclusively for fair people. Pink enjoys
the same degree of favor with brun-
ettes; but the truth is, nothing can be
more charming for a dark person with

AT THE EAU

Many Changes and Improvements
Noted There This Year—Ready For Cottagers.

The agnostic who claimed, taking questionable liberty with Holy Writ, that the world is the same yesterday, to-day and to-morrow, didn't know the world of Eriean. That popular report has been all turned around. A huge coal hoist larger than the first one has been erected paralleling the old hoist. The dredge Ontario arrived Saturday and will at once begin to dredge out the slip. The old slip will be extended and made over 200 feet longer. The spiles protecting this work are rapidly being driven, four spile drivers being employed in the work. The Pere Marquette and Beaufort boats were in yesterday with a load of coal. Instead of bringing the coal over in cars the company this year are shipping their coal in freight boats. The coal is being piled in the same spot as last year. The track has been raised nearly two feet all across the marsh. About 100 Italians are working at this task. They are camped in two freight cars that have been placed at the west end of the bar. Sunday was wash day and they had all their linen on the fence to dry. Everything looks bright and busy around the Eau. The station, dancing platform, bath house, pavilion and bungalow have all been moved and just been moved across the bar to the lake shore from where it stood last year. The other buildings have been placed still further west, but more of them are not as yet been laid into the station and the walks have not yet been made. The buildings look bright and show up better. The result is that the bar now looks very much built up.

Sunday was delightful at Eriean and quite a number of Chathamites spent the day there. Amongst the number were Mr. and Mrs. William Nichol and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Burk and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Greening, Mr. and Mrs. William Bennett and son Gordon, and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Park. W. H. Harper, T. J. Tutley and James Holmes spent Sunday at Sanderson's cottage. Sunday at Sanderson's cottage, add that it was his pipe I found. Cap. laid the pipe down to tell how he had prevented Dump Points making the high dive and in the excitement of the story forgot part of his personal appearance.

THE KITCHEN.
Schemes by which it may be made a Place of Beauty.
The keynote of decoration for a pretty kitchen is often found in the colors of its uniform collection of pots and pans.
These may be hung from under a high shelf placed over the chimney piece at the back of the range, the chimney being painted to imitate bricks outlined in white.
In a kitchen in which the walls are a light fresh green the chimney piece is painted a strong red and hung with copper saucepans and kettles and frying pans.
In another the walls are painted yellow, and the chimney piece is done in white enamel with outlines of blue put on in four inch squares. Two or three shelves over this space hold blue and white jars and bakery and spice holders. Kettles and pans of blue enamel ware with white interiors swing from the lower white shelf, all within easy reach, and blue and white cotton is used both for curtains and table cover.
Fresh and light is a brown and white kitchen, with walls, woodwork and shelves painted in white, and in which brown colonnade is ornamented with the double role of ornamentation, plays the double role of ornamentation and utility. Brown and white linoleum is on the floor, and the gayest of gay chintz curtains are at the windows, with the ruffled cover in the seat of the rocking chair to match. A set of Dutch shelves is covered with heavy but highly colored old fashioned plates and cups which are in constant use as well as being prettily effective as part of the color scheme.

MUSICAL EVENING

Last night, in spite of the warm weather, nearly one hundred young people of the Park street Methodist church were true to their colors by attending Epworth League and were very well repaid by so doing, as the splendid program below was given. Next Monday evening the service will be held on the lawn, weather permitting. Program:
Opening hymn.
Prayer.
Solo by Miss Hill, "Three Fishers," by request.
Quartet, "Hush Thee My Baby," Misses Hill and White, Messrs. Wilson and Doberty.
Recitation—Hazel Bedford.
Vocal solo—Jasper Wilson.
Instrumental solo—Miss Hillman.
Recitation—Ethel Dell.
Vocal solo—Miss Olive Richards.
Paper on Tennyson—Miss Mountier.
Reading—Miss Irwin.
Vocal solo—Mr. Horace Davis.
Closing hymn.

HOOT MON!
Toronto Telegram.
It is fortunate for Canada that Lord Dundonald is a Scotchman and supported by a clan sentiment that will uphold him to the extent of seeing that he gets fair play. Apart altogether from the racial sympathies of the Scotch vote there is a public opinion in Canada that can teach justice and wisdom to the obsequious organs that would drive Lord Dundonald out of the country in disgrace as an offender against the Crown and dignity of Hon. Sidney Fisher, B. A.

D. B. U. S. HERE FRIDAY.
The Detroit Business University Ball team will be here on Friday of this week to play the local nine. There is material now in town for a first-class team, and the strong Detroit team will no doubt run up against a snag here.

SACHEL OF
THE SATELLITE

I expect that shower yesterday will make strawberries cheaper.

There will be light. The Council has purchased a new dynamo.

Compare Lord Dundonald's and Borden's statements. Which is the man?

Me and Frank Babcock expect Chatham to win from St. Thomas on Friday.

Pipeline Westman doesn't care a snap of the fingers what the Satellite says. There are others just like him.

Freddie Borden, when he made those 100 men must have had some idea of turning a part of this country into a modern Kentucky.

In Korea they generally have about ten naval commanders for one old tub, but I thought Canada was a little further advanced than Korea.

It seems to me that Lord Dundonald could write a whole library on "How to render harmless the Canadian militia by means of party politics."

Point Taylor—Capt. Stevens went to Haycraft on Saturday. After he had left the train I found part of his personal appearance in the smoking car. Perhaps it is unnecessary to add that it was his pipe I found. Cap. laid the pipe down to tell how he had prevented Dump Points making the high dive and in the excitement of the story forgot part of his personal appearance.

TO HONOR "BOBS"

Little General the Guest of Club in London—Unbroken Tide of Victory.

London, June 19.—General Lord Roberts was the recipient of a striking tribute as the guest of the evening at the second annual dinner of the Pilgrims' Club held here last night. Many famous Englishmen and well known Americans were present to do honor to the "Great Little General," who is president of the British branch of the Pilgrims' Club. Ambassador Choate presided, and in proposing the King's health, said King Edward was the steadfast friend of the United States under all circumstances.

In giving the toast of the evening, Ambassador Choate dilated upon Lord Roberts' accomplishments in the cause of peace, and described him as "one of those who had seen and grown tired of the horrors of war, and who now was one of the great apostles of mediation and arbitration rather than an advocate of a horrid resort to the sword."

"Yet," said Mr. Choate, "for him long years of fortune and genius have united to make for Earl Roberts an unbroken progress of victory and success. From second lieutenant to Earl and Knight of the Garter, from the most subordinate position to that of Commander-in-Chief, from the capture of Delhi and the relief of Lucknow to the relief of Kimberley, his career has been one unbroken tide of victory and success. The relief of Kimberley might have been the relief of London. I thought until that day that an English crowd was cold as compared with an American crowd. My eyes were opened, and I learned that their hearts beat with as warm a feeling as those of any people on the globe."

"In my official and personal capacity, I warmly invite Earl Roberts to come to the United States and pay us a visit. He will be given such a reception as no Englishman ever received. I would like to be present at that first interview in the White House when Lord Roberts and that younger soldier, Roosevelt, meet. That day, I am sure, public business will be suspended, and Lord Roberts President Roosevelt will sit cheek by jowl from the rising to the setting sun, exchanging views on war; but let Lord Roberts go as an apostle of peace and Anglo-American harmony and of the great doctrine of arbitration."

Earl Roberts modestly replied. He said he hoped to be able to visit the United States at no distant date, and echoed the Ambassador's tribute to the work accomplished by the Pilgrims' Club in promoting good feeling between Great Britain and America, saying that both countries owed a deep debt of gratitude for the inauguration of the club.
Cordial cable despatches congratulating Earl Roberts were read from Gen. Young and Gen. Chiffes, of the United States army, and from Bishop Potter, of New York.

SPLENDID SERVICES

The anniversary services of the Eighth Line Methodist Church, of Raleigh, were held last Sunday morning and evening, when Rev. W. E. Kerr preached twice to very large congregations. Last evening the anniversary tea was given by the ladies of the church and the basement where the tables were served, and the people of the church were packed with body. The ladies of this church certainly know how to manage a tea meeting and the array of good things provided were fit enough for the King. It was a very pleasant and successful tea. The splendid new church, which was erected two or three years ago, is now free from debt, and Rev. R. Thompson, the energetic and popular pastor, is at the head of one of the best working churches in the county.
After the tea, which was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone, the people assembled in the church, where an excellent program was given. It was provided by a concert company from Chatham, consisting of Mrs. John Cooper, Miss McKellar, Miss Lillian Pratt, Miss Flossie Bogart, M. Shelton, Miss Smith, J. W. Wilson, and R. W. Angus. The program consisted of solos by different members of the company, mixed quartettes by Mrs. Cooper, Miss McKellar, and Messrs. Wilson and Angus; male quartettes, by Messrs. Wilson, Sheldon, Smith and Angus; duets, etc. Miss Edna Harkin, who is visiting in Raleigh, also gave a number of excellent recitations. Rev. Mr. Cobbleick, Rev. Mr. Mellett and Mr. McArthur, of Chatham, were also present and delivered addresses. Rev. Mr. Thompson presided and he makes a capital chairman. Everyone was delighted with the program and several of the audience took occasion to personally compliment the singers at the conclusion of the program.

DISTRICT DOINGS.

TILBURY
June 20.—Miss Cecelia McGregor has returned from Chatham, Ontario, to spend vacation at her home in Tilbury East.

Toronto News.
The possession of cabinet rank should not entitle a man to treat a great officer of state with rudeness.

ROYAL
ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the finest, lightest, best flavored biscuit, hot-breads, cake and pastry.

Royal Baking Powder is of highest quality, always pure, wholesome, uniform. The contents of each can are exactly like every other, and will retain their strength and freshness regardless of climate or season.

Many mixtures, made in imitation of baking powder, are upon the market. They are sold cheap, but are dear at any price, because they contain alum.
