Falling-off In Results of Sub Campaign Forecast From London; Haig Marshalls Forces for Fresh Drive Upon the Western Front

By Courier Leased Wire The weekly toll of German submarines will be made public in London today and the forecast from the British capital, usually inspired, predicts that the announcement will carry the cheering news of another marked decrease in merchant shipping losses.

On land the British are maintaining the terrific bombardment and trench raids against the German lines in the Ypres section, tactics which have always hitherto heralded a great infantry offensive.

The unrest which is seething throughout continental Europe has had a fresh manifestation in an outbreak of rioting in Stockholm. For some months there have been reports of growing discontent among the masses of the Swedish people and now comes the significant news of military and Prussian guards thrown about the parliament building and clashes between the workers and the police.

The Russian situation remains vague and uncertain. The possibility of a Teutonic offensive is hinted at in the official report of the Petrograd war office that the Austro-German artillery has opened an intense fire on the Galician front.

MONARCHY OPPOSED

Military Leaders Would Dissolve Parliament But Retain President

JAPS MAY INTERVENE

Mukden, June 6.—Troops of the Governor of Mukden have reached Shanhaiwan on the railway, 150 miles northeast of Tien Tsin. Forces from Anhui and Shantung and Huchowfu, are encamped at Machang, in the vicinity of Tien Tsin. The military governors declare they will not support the restoration of the monarchy. The leaders are willing to mediate on the terms of a dissolution of the parliament of the republic but with the retention of the President.

Consular reports intimated that should the militarists persist in the resignation of the premier there will be a division between the north and south provinces. It is feared that should the militarists interfere with railway traffic, in which foreign money is concerned Japan will intervene.

London, June 6.—1.45 p.m.—The British made an attack last night on the Arras front north of the River Scarpe, the war office announces. Ground was gained in two sectors.

"We attacked last night north of the Scarpe, and made further progress on the western slopes of Greenland hill. We gained ground slightly west of Lens."

Paris, June 6.—The French official statement follows: "There was great activity during the night over a large part of the Chemin-des-Dames and further west, between the Ailette, and the Laon Road. The artillery fighting became very intense late at night, especially east of auxVailion, north of Moutia de Lafaux, and over the whole region northwest of Braye-en-Laonnois. Near Hurtebise after a spirited bombardment, the Germans late yesterday made two attacks in vain on our positions northeast of the Mount-Saint-Eloi. The Germans were driven back to their trenches after a violent engagement in which they suffered heavy losses, at the hands of our soldiers, and our line was maintained everywhere. Over the remainder of the front there was intermittent cannonading.

"On the Belgian front, lively actions took place late at night. "Our pilots engaged in numerous fights with the enemy yesterday. Seven German airplanes and one captive balloon were brought down. It is also learned that another German airplane was forced to earth east of Flain on Monday."

THE PROBLEM OF THE SUBMARINE

(U. S. Paper) Professor Michael I. Pupin of Columbia University, in declaring his confidence that the mastery of the U-boat will soon be achieved, makes this statement: "The scientific men of this country command an art, which has been developed here during the last five years by scientific research of the very highest order. Some of the very best scientific minds of America are confident that they will soon employ this art to convince the German that the submarine is the most fragile weapon which they are wielding." The confidence that the Americans will find if they have not already found, an effective solution of the submarine menace is certainly national-wide, and to our national vanity at least appears to be world-wide. Judging from letters which the Express has received, the number of people who think they are on the eve of discovering the needful device far exceeds the number of those who ever saw either a submarine or a torpedo, or have any definite idea of their construction and operation. Even among men of high scientific attainments there appear to be diverse and sometimes vague conceptions as to what would really be a solution. The favorite idea appears to be that all that is needed is mere defense—something that will either divert the torpedo or resist the force of the explosion. The naval consulting board has been deluged with suggestions for nets and barrier shields to explode the torpedo before it reaches the ship. Many of these are being examined and some may prove valuable, but it is obvious that so long as the submarine is able to operate freely, the chances are greatly in favor of its overcoming any protective device which can be attached to the ship. A successful net or shield naturally would be answered very soon by a larger torpedo or a better net-cutting device, so it may safely be said that the mental energy exerted in this direction while it may help, never can hope to solve the submarine problem. Hudson Maxim is probably the most eminent man who has been working along this line. He states that he has developed a plan of ship construction which will resist torpedo attack; the vessel may be injured but it will still be able to make port. Some ships do that now. The British battleship Marlborough was torpedoed in the battle of Jutland, but returned to port under her own steam. The American steamship Nebraska was torpedoed, but got back to port. This may have been due to the failure of the torpedo to hit a vital spot. The same ship was torpedoed a second time and was sunk. Even if it were possible, however, to build ships so strongly that they could resist torpedoes, that would not save any of the existing merchant shipping, not so built, and if Germany can destroy the bulk of existing shipping within a reasonable period, she is likely to win the war, whatever new shipping can be built in the meantime. New and stronger methods of construction may be important and valuable, but they clearly cannot solve the immediate problem. Simon Lake goes still further along this line of thought by contending for submarine merchantmen. These are practical in a mechanical sense. That has been proved. When Lake says he can build much larger and better merchantmen than the Deutschland, no one is likely to take him. At best, however, the building of submarine merchantmen gives not the slightest promise of salvation for the fleets of surface merchantmen now afloat, and that is the problem which we are trying to solve. It must be remembered that no submarine travels very fast under water. It must bring its periscope, at least above the surface every few miles to see where it is going. The greater part of the voyage of the Deutschland was made on the surface. The submarine merchantman has an advantage over a submarine warship. It can show the submarine warship first, she could in most cases escape. But the surface merchantman also, if it sees the submarine warship first,

LEAF'S GET JOE SCHULTZ

Joe Schultz, one of the most popular players that ever wore a Leaf uniform, has been secured from the Los Angeles club by the Toronto club and he will act as utility player for the Leafs. Joe was a member of the Leafs in Joe Kelly's time, and during his stay took turns in both the infield and outfield. It was his hitting that finally found him a place in the majors, he going from here to Brooklyn, who in turn shifted him to Pittsburgh. Shortly after joining Brooklyn he developed trouble with his throwing arm, but whether it has rounded to treatment or not remains to be seen. In the meantime the Leafs are scoring eight runs in games but losing them. This recalls the pitching department, which, to say the least, is very unreliable.

BOWLING

Brant County Lawn Bowlers elected officers at the annual meeting last night at the Brantford Club. Mr. Fred Corey, a well known and popular bowler of the Pastime Club gave the address of the honor of the presidency.

Mr. W. H. Biggar, the retiring president, called the meeting to order and from the statement of the secretary treasurer, Mr. R. C. Burns, it was seen the year had been very successful notwithstanding the great number of the younger members who had gone overseas at the call of King and Country.

It was decided to hold the annual tournament on Monday, July 2nd, beginning at 9 a.m. The draw to be made on Friday evening, June 29th, by Messrs T. L. Wood, C. J. Parker, D. J. Husband and McPhail. THE SITUATION.

For the third time in a fortnight German airplanes have made a raid upon England. In neither instance was any damage sustained by military or naval bases, and the net outcome was the murder and maiming of non-combatants. In the latest attack, the marauders were given an illustration of the fact that John Bull's air defences are becoming more effective. The Hun craft were given a warm reception and it is reported that two of them were brought down.

Meanwhile the other ruthless arm of foe assault—the submarine—is becoming paralyzed to a greater extent. A forecast of the official report for last week once more shows a smaller total, and on Friday the "U" boats drew a blank, not one vessel having been bagged. There has been a good deal of talk with regard to Edison and other American inventors devising some means for a speedy ending of the menace, but all that talk has been imaginative. John Bull knows the sea game better than anyone else, and by steady and co-related efforts, he is manifestly commencing to check the danger.

On the Italian front the Austrians who have been heavily reinforced, are commencing to come back hard. The difficult nature of the ground has made the consolidation of Italian gains an exceedingly hard task, but they are holding their own well, and successfully repelling fierce assaults.

The Russian war minister Kerensky has had to postpone his proposed visit to the Northern front, in order to help combat the danger of the establishment of a Socialist ministry in Petrograd. It seems to be generally regarded that much depends at this time upon his personal ascendancy. As matters at present stand Russian freedom still threatens to end in dire consequences to the nation, instead of the blessing which it should prove. From Washington comes a despatch stating that information there is to the effect that Japan has issued a warning to the Provisional Government. It is said to be to the effect that if Russia withdraws from the war Japan, in consultation with Great Britain, will consider what means to take.

A British advance is recorded South of Souchez, and as reported over The Courier leased wire yesterday, the Canadians have retaken the electric light station southwest of Lens.

MILLIONS ENROLL.

Registration Day in the United States witnessed the enrollment of many millions for service.

Under the enactment recently passed there, every male citizen between the ages of 21 and 30 was required to register, his name, address and calling, on June 5th.

After the registration, 500,000 of the men registering are to be selected as the beginning of the new army. When these are trained, 500,000 more will be called out; and later, as many additional men as may be needed to maintain the aforesaid forces at their full strength.

The chief regulations for registration are as follows: A Provost Marshal for the United States has been appointed to supervise the work. General Crowder. He will direct or appoint local officials to arrange for the registration. The registration will take place in the polling booths usually utilized in elections. Every man between 21 and 30 must present himself for registration. Failure to do so must be punished by imprisonment—not by fine. Absentees or the sick can get registration cards and mail to the registrar.

No exemptions from registration are permitted, but there are specified classes of exemption from draft afterwards. The law exempts from service county and municipal officials, custom house clerks, mail carriers, artificers and workmen employed in arsenals, armories, and navy yards, and such other persons employed in the service of the United States as the President may designate; pilots sailors, persons engaged in industry, including agriculture, found to be necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment or the effective operation of the military forces, or of the maintenance of national interests, during the emergency, or those having persons dependent upon them for support, as well as the physically or morally deficient. From the balance of the registration—and the estimate is that the balance will be two to three millions—the government will make the drafts for military service. This work will be under direction of General Crowder, following regulations prepared by the government.

The president is authorized to utilize the service of all government departments, and all officers or agents of the United States, in execution of this act, and all persons, whether appointed by the President or by the governor or any other officer of any state or territory, to perform any duty in execution of the act are required to perform such duty as the President shall order or direct.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The amount of rain this spring has been almost enough to warrant the laying of the keel for another ark.

Wilfrid, the unready, has hesitated a long time on the brink of a coalition plunge. He apparently hates to jump off the Quebec plank.

The British Government has given Mrs. Pankhurst permission to go to Russia. The dissenting Muscovites ought to know enough now to be good.

The National Council of Women wants to have the rule of health certificates before marriage. Possibly most of them are wed or don't expect to be.

The continuation of wet and cool weather is of no more advantage to the crop of June brides than it is to the prosaic farm kind.

NO STATEMENT

By Courier Leased Wire.
Ottawa, June 6.—Sir Robert Borden announced at 1 o'clock that there would be no statement to-day on coalition.

Exhibition of Manual Training

It would be impossible to speak too highly of the splendid exhibit of industrial work by public school classes as exhibited in the Brantford Conservatory of Music for the last two nights. Large and admiring crowds were in attendance and nothing but surprised and favorable comment was to be heard on all hands. The youngsters certainly did themselves proud and parents and friends also had every right for feeling that way on their own account.

The time allotted to students is from 1 hour to 1 1/2 hours per week according to grade.

The work involves mechanical, drawing, freehand sketching, woodwork from the simplest and most common joints to more advanced articles of cabinet work. To a certain degree Art Metal work is taken along decorative lines. The study as time permits of lumber, trees, also the warping and natural defects as seen in wood are noted.

Owing to the interest attached to these manual training subjects the boys naturally are enthusiastic over their work so discipline and attention are easily maintained. The present exhibition is the 7th annual one held in the city and great strides and development have been taken and noted in the work. From a school of 10 classes of about 175 pupils total, the growth has reached 20 classes and 400 students per week, every minute of the day being occupied and even from 4 to 8 o'clock the boys are willing to work and often do toward exhibition time to complete their seasons work. The development noted in a boy as regards ability, in 2 or 3 years progress, is easily seen in the marked difference in the constructing and finishing of the various articles made.

ual Training and Household Science. Mr. Albert H. Leake, came especially from Toronto to visit the exhibition and was very highly gratified at the character and amount of the work displayed and expressed his pleasure most unreservedly. He stated that Brantford was the only place in the Province in which such a comprehensive exhibit could have been made and that it was one of the finest he had ever seen either in Canada or the United States.

The Instructor, Mr. A. Styles naturally feels gratified and fully repaid for his efforts during the season just closing. The Conservatory of Music, although a splendid hall, was found rather too small for the proper display of the work. The crowd, which was very great, had difficulty in properly examining the articles, but they were mostly the children's parents, and they naturally felt fully repaid for their visit, irrespective of the result.

Assist Nature. There are times when you should assist nature. It is now unwise to cleanse your system—if you will take Hood's Scurgrass the undertaking will be successful. This great medicine purifies and builds up as nothing else does.

Indian Lad Drowned

An accident with sad and fatal results occurred near the Mohawk Institute yesterday afternoon, when little Robert Gibson, an Indian boy of about nine or ten years, fell into a reservoir near the Starch works, and no assistance being near, was drowned. In company with another small boy, Harold Woodruff, aged 6 years, he played truant from school, and the first intimation the officials of the Institute had of the disappearance of the boys was when their absence was noticed from the school room. A search was immediately commenced, and about 3 o'clock the smaller of the two boys was found. It was, however, very difficult to ascertain what had become of his companion, but he finally told the questions that he had last seen his playfellow "swimming in the pond at the Starch works, with his clothes on." When the body was taken from the water, it was found that life was quite extinct. Coroner Cole and

ST. PAULS SUBWAY

County Constable William Taylor were summoned, and after reviewing the remains decided that an inquest was unnecessary. A sad feature of the fatality is that the victim of the accident was an orphan, and his nearest relative is his grandmother, who resides on the Reserve. The funeral will take place to-morrow morning, interment to take place in the Mohawk burying ground near the Institute.

Mayor Bowly yesterday sent a lengthy letter to the General Manager of the Grand Trunk Railway. In the epistle he characterized the award of the Dominion Railway Commissioners regarding St. Paul's Ave., as unsatisfactory and suggested that the Company should undertake the work in return for the city allowing them to close their railway station on Colborne St., on the basis of their deciding to the city 66 feet width of land for the continuance of Clarence Street, the Company having the right to sell the balance of the property, most of which was a

Alfred and Albert Apps, R. J. McCormack, E. D. Clump, J. A. and Thos Carlyle. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

LIBRARY BOARD

A meeting of the public library board was held in the board room at the library last night, those in attendance being Messrs. J. E. Quinlan, chairman, D. J. Waterous, Rev. G. A. Woodside, E. J. Carlin, F. W. Ryerson and E. D. Henwood, secretary. Accounts to the amount of $1,196.32 were passed and ordered to be paid. The board, after some discussion, authorized the closing of the building on Dominion Day. The reading rooms are usually left open on holidays, but on account of the importance of this occasion, it was thought best to vary from the usual rule. The advisability of having the library open and close a half an hour earlier during the summer months was suggested, and the matter turned over to the finance and management committee. The building would then open at 9 o'clock, the circulating department would close at eight, and the reading rooms at half past nine. Should any change be decided upon it will be announced later.

FLY FLAG AT EVERY HOUSE.

Slogan Adopted by Semi-Centennial; Use of Cars Urged

"A flag for every house" such was the slogan adopted by the decoration committee at last night's meeting of the executive of the Semi-Centennial Association. Mr. John Hill was appointed to the chairmanship of the decoration committee owing to the fact that Mr. T. E. Kerson will be unable to act in that office. The chair was occupied by Mr. Harvey Clements in the absence of the chairman. The report of the press committee was submitted by the chairman, Mr. J. A. Powell, who announced that arrangements had been made whereby the celebration would be advertised in fourteen papers in the district adjacent to Brantford. The report was accepted and adopted and the committee requested to keep their expenditures within the appropriation of $100 allotted to them. It was pointed out that some accommodation should be made for the many small children who are participating in the pageant, and it was decided to request the owners of automobiles in the city to loan them for the purpose of conveying the children from their different schools, where they will meet, to Agricultural Park. This step will not inconvenience the owners of cars who wish to use them for their own private use, as the children will gather at an hour sufficiently early to be taken to the grounds and allow the owners of the cars to return and, if they so desire, have their cars for private use. It is intended to request these owners to lend their cars both in the afternoon and evening. The executive appointed a committee, consisting of Mr. George D. Watt, I. S. Armstrong, and George A. Ward, to negotiate with the proper authorities to secure one or two aeroplanes for the celebration. Mr. Armstrong stated that his son, who is attached to the flying corps of the Dupont Powder Company is anxious to visit this city with his machine, and if arrangements can be effected to have him cross the border he will be secured for the celebration. Otherwise an endeavor will be made to secure two machines from Camp Borden. The opening of the executive will be held on Tuesday night of next week.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

The teachers and pupils of Knox Presbyterian Sunday School commemorated the third anniversary of the inauguration of their school, on Sunday, June 3. The school since its inception has more than doubled its enrollment and its rapid growth has been a great encouragement to its many friends. The address on the third anniversary was delivered by Rev. Mr. Nicholson, of Paris, and was an excellent discourse. Special music was also furnished by Mr. W. T. Millard and the Ladies Quartette from Alexandra Church. (Mrs. Crompton, Mrs. Heath, Marjatt and Waldron). On Monday evening a social time was spent at which refreshments were served and musical numbers were contributed by the ladies quartette from Alexandra Church. Mr. Henry Green and Miss M. Laird, Mrs. Vaughn and Mrs. Boyington also contributed a couple of interesting readings and brief congratulatory addresses were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Woodside and Messrs. Lochhead, Wood, McFarland, Howie, Cooper and Watt from the up-town churches. The chair was ably filled by the superintendent, Mr. John Howison. The people of the Knox school are hopeful that before long they will be comfortably settled in new and more commodious quarters. More effective work than has yet been done.

Library is Useful to all

The true value of the public library as an institution to the municipality is undoubtedly not a large portion of the public, nor is its worth realized. For instance about a year ago a young man of this city, who was greatly interested in chemistry, spoke to Librarian Henwood, of the lack of books on this subject in the library. This was mentioned to the board, and as a consequence several prominent chemists of the city were interviewed and requested to suggest any books that might be an acquisition. Subsequently these books were purchased. In the meantime, the young man in question spurred on by a desire to develop his talent, took advantage of the opportunity thus offered, and made himself thoroughly familiar with the works that had been purchased. In April of this year, he communicated with officials of the Municipal Institute, Pittsburgh, stated his qualifications, and asked what steps would be necessary to enter that institute which was founded by the late Kennedy Duncan, Dr. Bacon immediately answered, requesting him to report on May 1st, which he did, and is now in receipt of a substantial salary, being engaged in experimental work. The members of the board to whom this story was related last night by Librarian Henwood, were exceedingly pleased that such efficiency and satisfactory service was being given to the public by this institution. It was just an instance of what is available to any citizen of Brantford, and the books on this and any other subject are open for the use of any who may desire to take advantage of the opportunity to improve their knowledge and fulfill their ambitions.

POLICE COURT.

Three amateur despoilers of Barney Oldfield, each contributed $5 and costs for the exhilarating sensation of propelling their automobiles along the street at a pace endangering the lives, bodies and general possession of pedestrians. I. Grantham, Herbert R. Green and Thomas Hull were the victims of the speed fever which is so in vogue in a municipality where the bylaws are strict in this regard. Leslie Green charged with "under the wire" before Magistrate Livingston this morning, will run another heat to-morrow, when his standing will be determined. A dangerous and troublesome dog, the property of Steve Kayorle has recently bitten two or three children residing in the vicinity of Grand street. Complaints were made to County Coroner Taylor and as a result Kayorle was forced under the direction of the constable to place a sufficient number of shekels in the outstretched hand of the police court clerk to defray the court costs, pay the expenses of medical treatment for two children who have been tested by the dog, and promised to chain up, tie up or otherwise prevent the ferocious animal from running at large.

Children Think It's Fun

And so do grown folks who know the difference between electric ironing and the drudgery of using ordinary irons. Ordinary irons make sad ironing days. Probably that's why they are called sad irons.

It is cheering to know, however, that in thousands of homes throughout the country, ironing day is no longer a trouble day.

G-E Electric Flatirons have driven the old fashioned sad irons to the obscurity of some out-of-the-way shelf, thus abolishing their attendant train of well known worries and unknown losses and expenses.

A G-E Iron consumes only about fifteen cents worth of electricity in doing the week's ironing of the average size family.

Come in and iron with the most popular iron on the market.

REVIEWING REB RUSSELL

"Reb" Russell, the White Sox twirler who beat the Athletics Monday, is one of the mysteries of the game and a real come-back. 'Reb' has been slated for a scrap heap for some time, but is hanging on despite the fact that he has a crooked hurling arm. From the shoulder to the elbow it travels straight enough, but from then on, to quote Irving Vaughn, the arm extended would make a compass dizzy. It is impossible for him to straighten the wing. Fibrous growth around the elbow prevents this, but the peculiar feature is that the ailment has failed permanently to cripple the Texan. The first sign of trouble came at the end of the 1914 season, when his arm began to draw up at the elbow. He consulted a physician and was advised to lay off for a year or more. This Russell refused to do, and when he reported in 1915 he surprised everybody by showing a sharp curve instead of his "high fast." Last year he won seventeen and lost eleven games, but the new delivery was too much and the arm went bad again. Then the Rebel had a different idea. Although the ailment took on an aggravated form, the growth enlarged, the elbow warped a bit more and was more painful, the pitcher decided that it was not yet time to quit. He consulted a physician down in Texas and was told to carry a weight in the left hand and gradually pull out the kink. This didn't make much of a bit with the pitcher, for he figured that the only way to iron out the knots in the arm was to work harder than ever. He toiled day after day without result. The hook wouldn't hook and the fast one wouldn't hop. It was discouraging work, but there was no let-up. "Reb" kept at it, however, and gradually began to see the light. Soon a faint curve could be seen, his fast one had lots of smoke and to-day he is just as good as ever. He will continue to be great until they crack his iron heart. That's the thing that has kept him going.

When "Reb" Russell blew into the big show unannounced in the Spring of 1917 he did not look good to Jimmy Callahan, who then was managing the Sox. At that time he possessed a normal pitching arm, but Jimmie cared nothing for that. After watching him work out in practice the manager decided to ship the recruit over the hills and far away, and would have done that very thing had it not been for Kid Gleason. The kid noticed the speed of the youngster and thought that it could be used to good advantage. So he advanced on Callahan and opened up with the following: "Don't tie the can to that guy yet," he said. "Perhaps he is a bum and all that, but you never can tell at this time of the year. Russell has a swell fast ball and will be a good pitcher as soon as he learns how to use it. Turn him over to me and I will take him on the trip with the second team. Then I will have a chance to look him over carefully and he won't be much of an expense to the club. I feel that we are overlooking a good one and I want to see if I am right."

SOUTH BRANT WOMEN'S INSTITUTE CONVENTION

Annual Meeting Held Last Week; Officers Elected for the Year, Reports Submitted; Other Business Transacted

The South Brant Women's Institute Convention and annual meeting was held on Friday, June 1st, at Mrs Charles Vivian's home, Oakland. The business session began at 10:30 a.m. for the annual business meeting and election of officers. The district president, Mrs. J. E. Brethour, presided. The session was opened by all singing the Institute opening ode. Mrs. Brethour gave a splendid review of the year's work, and some very helpful suggestions to the new officers on the duties and privileges of Institute officers. Mrs. Brethour stated that the privileges of officers are many, and it is certainly an honor to hold office in a branch of an organization which has enrolled in its members over "thirty-three thousand" of the brightest and most progressive women of Ontario. The financial report and the report of district work done throughout the year was given by the district secretary, Miss B. Roelfson. Special items were greatly increased membership, 104 meetings were held during the year with a total attendance of 2,357. Ten dollars were donated to Brant County Dept. of Agriculture, for prizes for children's school fairs.

One hundred dollars was given to the Women's Hospital Aid Society to furnish a ward in the Brantford hospital, to be called South Brant Women's Institute ward. The Institute will also undertake to maintain the upkeep of this ward. One hundred dollars was sent to the Queen to endow a South Brant Hospital bed in a soldier's hospital. This sum was raised from the sale of Mrs. J. Y. Brown's publication, "St. George, the Knight of the Holy Grail." Mrs. Brown very kindly donated two hundred of her books to the South Brant Women's Institute for Red Cross work. In October last, a banquet was held at the Armories, Brantford. Representatives of all the ladies' societies of Brantford were present. District and branch officers were entertained at luncheon by Mrs. J. Y. Brown in November. The district officers were entertained at luncheon in April by Mrs. J. E. Brethour, and in August by Miss B. Roelfson. 1,151 pairs of socks were knit and sent to Red Cross and C. W. C. A., and altogether the sum of $4,034.54 was raised and sent in money and supplies to Red Cross, Patriotic work, etc.

Red Cross and Patriotic work was discussed and many ideas in ways of raising money and doing our bit was exchanged. A collection was taken up for the Brantford Hospital. Dr. Backus again spoke a few minutes, commending the Institute ladies who had prepared such splendid addresses and emphasized points brought out by them which the hoped would not be forgotten. A very kind expression of thanks was given Mrs. Vivian for opening her home for the convention, and to the Oakland ladies, who had done so much to have everything so successfully carried out. The convention proved a complete success in every way, showing the pleasure and interest the ladies throughout the district are taking in the work. The convention was brought to a close by all singing God Save the King.

THAT SON-IN-LAW OF PA'S

SIDELIGHTS ON THE STAGE AND SCREEN

PLAYING WITH FIRE
It is a short step from comedy to tragedy. In the making of "The Betrayal of Maggie," Mack Sennett-Keystone, Louise Fazenda was called on to get too near the stove and her dress catches fire.

The scene was carried out, but Miss Fazenda hadn't figured on the inflammable nature of the house dress she was wearing. Instead of little cunning flames around the hem, the whole thing went up in a blaze, and the emergency crew had a splendid chance to demonstrate its efficiency.

THEY DO HAPPEN
When rough and tumble fighting and various thrilling scenes are thrown upon the screen, one frequently hears the question asked as to how it is that the players in these scenes always escape injuries. The answer is that they do not.

Though Fanny Ward seldom appears in pictures which are especially strenuous, the Lasky star was recently cast in a scene in which she had a desperate struggle with Jack Dean. The scene was carried out in such a realistic manner that Miss Ward severely wrenched her shoulder and was forced to remain at home for several weeks with her arm strapped securely to her side. Some of Miss Ward's friends at the Lasky studio are inclined to be rather amused at her expense in view of the fact that Jack Dean, the cause of the injury is really Miss Ward's husband in private life.

Billy Elmer, another Lasky player who very frequently is seen in fights and struggles of various kinds upon the screen, is recovering from an encounter with Jack Dean, in which his collar bone was broken.

Every day there occur minor injuries to various people at the studios, but every effort is made to conserve the lives and limbs of the stars. However, accidents occasionally happen, even to stars, and as in the case of Miss Ward, these accidents necessitate a suspension of the production on their respective pictures until they recover.

CAMARA MAN'S CATASTROPHE.
Edward Guetlein, one of the busy little Gaumont camera men who turn gorgeous scenery into beautiful "See America First" scenes for the Mutual Film Corporation, is contemplating writing a book on "The Troubles of Camera men."

Guetlein went to New England recently to get some pictures of the stern and rock-bound coast, famous in history. His enthusiasm led him to slip off his shoes and stockings and wade out through the breaking surf to a rocky ledge where he could get a better "shooting" point. He piled his discarded wearing apparel at a safe distance from the waves and started out. He grinded out about 40 feet of film, then waded back to the shore.

It was then that the tragedy of the day unfolded itself. While he had been busy turning the crank a larger wave than usual had carried away his footwear. He saw it floating away on the rocky billows, far out of his reach.

The camera man walked barefoot back to the hotel he had to. And on the piazza when he arrived sat every girl he had danced with the night before.

SOMETHING ON THE SCREEN
William J. Calhoun, who plays the role of Chief of Detectives Ackerton in Metro's serial, "The Great Secret," in which Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne are co-stars, says acting the part of a detective for motion pictures is one of the most difficult tasks in the profession.

"It looks easy on the screen," says Mr. Calhoun. "The spectator sees the Chief of Detectives set to a gun fight or find an important clue. It all seems very simple. But the difficult thing is to put an atmosphere of simplicity into the role.

"The stage detective is able to speak. He can assume the tone of voice used by the average detective and thus put realism into the part. But the screen detective must be a pantomimist—and he mustn't fold his arms, sink his head into his chest and gaze pensively at the murderer. Everybody knows the up to date detective doesn't do that any more.

"The modern detective has the keen sense of the modern business man, combined with a knowledge of psychology, chemistry, criminology and acting. Yes, the modern detective is a good actor—a master of disguise. So, in playing for the screen the part of a modern detective, I have not indulged in tragic gestures and the like. I have tried to portray a keen man, quick to seize a clue, slow to act until he's sure he is right."

THE BISHOP OF WINCHESTER

Pays Tribute to the Help of Canada

At the Depositing of the Colors of the 125th in an Old Country Village Church

Ven. Archbishop MacKenzie is in receipt of a paper from Lt.-Col. Moxley E. B. Cutcliffe, containing the following account of the depositing of the colors of the 125th Battalion in the church at the village of Churt:

"On Saturday afternoon, with due solemnity and ceremony, the colours of the Brant County Battalion, Ontario, Canada, were deposited for safe custody in the little village church, which stands so picturesque on the edge of the village green, from which a wide view of the hills of Hampshire can be obtained. The Battalion drawn up in review order, was under Colonel Cutcliffe, officer commanding, and General Swift, commanding a Canadian Infantry Brigade, was present. In the centre of the battalion stood the colour party, the colours, furled and encased, being in the care of Lieut. Shepherd and Lieut. Bunnell.

From the church came a little procession, consisting of the Bishop of Winchester in his robes, and attended by the Rev. R. J. S. Gill, (Vicar of Frensham), who in the absence through illness of the Vicar of Churt (the Rev. A. W. Watson), acted as chaplain, and the Rev. Alan Greene, C.F. His Lordship took up a position in the pilled drums, and immediately the colour party advanced, the colours were unfurled, and draped across the drums. The choir of the Parish Church then chanted the 91st Psalm, and the Bishop of Winchester in the course of an address, said he was there that day not only to speak for himself, although he did that from the bottom of his heart, but also to

SCOTS HOLD HIGH PLACE AS COLONIZERS

Scotland's Loss is However, England's Gain—How Canada and Australia Have Benefited by Their Work

(J. Burt Stewart in the Scottish American.)

According to the census figures Scotland is now being repopulated, or, at all events, it is ceasing to grow at the rate it should.

But this depopulation is no new thing. And there is another side to the question, a side which is far from unpleasant; for what is Britain's loss is the Empire's gain.

In the making of every British colony the Scot has played a part, and a book which has been recently published—"Scots in Canada," by J. Murray Gibson—shows how much the great Dominion of Canada owes to the pluck and energy and colonizing instinct of the man from the North.

There were Scots in Canada, so long ago as 1621, when Sir William Alexander secured a charter granting him the territory roughly covered now by Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. But it was the exodus following the rebellion of 1745 that was the starting point in Canada's history.

When the first hardships were over these early pioneers wrote to their relatives in Scotland to come out and join them. The so-called Highland Clearances brought others, and settlers sprang up; some cast in their lot with the fur traders; others struck out and fought their way to unexplored but fertile parts.

It was men of this spirit who founded the great North-West Company, which by the end of the 18th century had an annual turnover of £120,000, employed 50 clerks, 71 interpreters and clerks, 1,129 canoe-men and 35 guides. Practically all the proprietors were Scots.

And the Hudson Bay Company gradually took over the territory. At the time when the inevitable Scot appears upon the scene to the present day the chief proportion of the Hudson Bay officials have been drawn from the Orkneys and the Highlands.

What is the secret of the Scots' success in Canada? The author explains it thus:

"They were able to adapt themselves to any circumstances; they had faith in themselves, and stuck together. In Canada to-day there are close upon a million citizens of Scots descent or birth. They are only one-eighth of the total population, but they hold a position of more than one-half of the positions worth having. The best passport for any immigrant into Canada is to speak with a Scots accent."

Within another twenty years, it is predicted, that there will be double the number of Scots in Canada. And in going to Canada the Scot is sure, not only of finding honest work, but also of meeting so many Scots that to make his home there is a very also found something that had drawn their hearts out towards the land which they came to defend, and now they might be sure that they of the old country sent them out with feelings of admiration and respect, and sympathy. In Canada to-day there for the people of that place when they said that their hearts and their prayers would accompany them, and when they were perhaps in some hour of stress they might rest assured that there were those at home who were commending them to God and asking God's blessing on them. In conclusion, his Lordship urged the men to carry their manhood with them into the fight, and to remember that a man did not cease to be a man when he became a soldier. The prayers in which they had joined had reminded them of things which a good soldier would always keep in mind—that there was patience in reverent gentleness in victory, generosity towards the enemy, self-control and restraint, which kept a man noble through all that was terrible and horrible in the world, as they found it today. And so they sent them out in God's name and in the name of Christ to defend the right and to defend it in a manner worthy of the great name of Britain and Canadian, and of Christian, which they bore.

The hymn, "O God, our help in ages past," having been sung, the colours were conveyed to the church. To the tune of "The Maple Leaf," played by the Battalion Band, the march preceded the colour party, the church, the choir and officers falling in behind. With slow and measured tread, the party passed along the front, the battalion standing rigidly to the "Present." In the church the Bishop received the colours, "these emblems of life and warfare," at the hands of Colonel Hamilton Smythe, one of the wardens, and laid them reverently on the altar and read several prayers, the officers meanwhile standing at attention.

The brief ceremony over, the party returned to the green, where the Rev. A. Greene read the following letter from the Vicar to Colonel Cut-cliff: "I cannot tell you how terribly disappointed I am in not being present at the depositing of your colours in our church on Saturday. When the proposal was first made I welcomed it as a great honor for the parish and I hope that in the future some connection may be established with your recruiting district and our rural parish of Churt. That God bless you all in His safe keeping and that He may send us an early and a righteous peace is my earnest prayer."

The National Anthem was then sung, and the men were dismissed for half-an-hour, and fraternized with the villages and enjoyed certain maple sugar, kindly provided by Col. Hamilton Smythe.

It should be added that the school children were present, under the headmaster (Mr. A. R. T. Baker), and were given a warm and hearty welcome by the men as they saluted the Union Jack which was flying on the green.

"The honor which has been done to Churt may be said to be due to Col. Hamilton Smythe. In that it was through him that Col. Cutcliffe made the suggestion which has now been put into practice."

THE ONLY MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES
Mrs. Timothy Bowes, Blissfield, N. B., writes:—"I have always used Baby's Own Tablets for my three children and I can speak very highly of them as I could not get along without them. Baby's Own Tablets are the only medicine I would use for my children. The Tablets cure all the minor ills of little ones and the mother who always keeps a box of them in the house may feel reasonably safe against the consequences of sudden attacks of illness. OVER TEN MILLION WERE ENROLLED

Registration Day Yesterday Passed Off Very Quietly In U. S.

SLACKERS NOT SEEN Registration in Many Sections Was One Hundred Per Cent.

Washington, June 6.—More than 10,000,000 young Americans enrolled themselves yesterday for war service. Registration day with but a few weeks of preparation, saw the first military census ever taken in the United States completed without a single untoward event of consequence.

The manhood of the nation obeyed the President's call and volunteered in mass, setting at naught all the schemes and plottings of German sympathizers and the few cranks who have agitated against registration. It remains but to select the men who are to go to the front.

From virtually every state reassuring messages came last night to Brigadier-General Crowder, Provost Marshal General, Federal supervising officer of the great enterprise. While no complete returns from any state were transmitted up to a late hour, the Governors were unanimous in reporting that complete quiet had prevailed throughout the day and that a full registration was indicated.

A typical message received was that from Idaho:—"Registration will be 100 per cent," it said. "Spontaneous and without murmur or incident."

The situation was so clear and the response so ready throughout the country that governors of 46 of the 48 States had sent similar assurances long before registration had closed, and the other two were close on their heels.

Save the Food and Serve the Empire!

The Average Canadian Family Wastes Enough to Feed a Soldier

"The Kitchen must help as well as the Workshop and the Trenches" Lloyd George.

INTELLIGENT economy in the kitchen can do much to prevent the threatened world famine—can counteract the effect of high prices—and can replace growing debt with systematic saving.

Careful investigations show that before the war the average British family wasted 25% of their food—and we Canadians were even more extravagant.

This waste is not in a few big things, but in many little ones, each, we used to think, too small to bother about—such as careless peeling of vegetables and fruit—failure to make good use of dripping and "left-overs"—and such others as will occur to every thrifty housekeeper.

For the Empire's sake as well as your own, hunt up and cut out these leaks! You'll be helping to relieve the food shortage—saving your own money—and putting yourself in a position to buy Canadian War Savings Certificates and help win the war.

War Savings Certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, to be repaid in three years at full face value. They cost $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively, at all Money Order Post-Offices and Banks, thus yielding over 5% Interest. Should you need it, you can get your money back at any time.

THE MAELSTROM

Late Superintendent of the Criminal Investigation Department of New Scotland Yard. (Copyright)

(From Tuesday's Daily.) "I ask because he questioned me closely about him. My brother is a hard man, Mr. Hallett, and his outlook on life is different to that of the ordinary person. Circumstances have been against him. He was driven to find a living how he could. I want you to remember that if he was desperate he was driven to it. I helped as far as I could, but he had heavy expenses. He signed my father's name to some checks. "He committed forgery?"

"Yes. The canceled checks came into the hands of some one else, who knew that Dick Errol was my brother. He threatened to pass them on to Scotland Yard and give evidence against Dick unless I could pay. Last night there was an appointment made at my flat. The price he needed was greater than I could pay. When he went I followed him. I knew he had the checks on him and I hoped that I might find some way to get them from him. "Just before I met you I had appealed to him again. He refused. He had the checks in his hand. I snatched them, and when I ran into you I passed them to you on the impulse of the moment. That is all, Mr. Hallett."

"But there is something more," he said, "something you have not said." She shook her head, her lips pressed tightly together. "I have said all I can—all I dare. You helped me, Mr. Hallett, and I have told you more even than I have the detectives. It has been a relief," she sighed—"to tell any one."

Jimmie was silenced. Yet a score of questions trembled on his lips. Trained to see the weak points in a narration, he could not fail to realize that there were gaps in the story—gaps that needed filling before one could come to full judgment. She had passed no hint of the blackmailer, the man from whom she had the checks. That he was closely linked with her in some manner he felt confident.

And then speculation was lost in a rush of pity for the girl who had been so unwittingly dragged into a maelstrom from which he could see no way of escape. That the man Errol was a scoundrel was certain on her own showing. He glimpsed through her reticence the fresh tragedy that his advent had meant to her life.

Vainly she tried to see for what purpose she was being used. Of course Errol had been bleeding her, but there was something more, it came to him suddenly. He knew the murderer—she had said so. Here was a motive for Errol—a motive more powerful than revenge or passion. She would stand in a fortune by Grey-Stratton's death, and Errol would look to dabbling his fingers in it.

Yet this was the man for whom she was playing with fire. He was not very clear about English legal methods, but he conceived that in trying to shield him she was laying herself open to suspicion. He had judged Menzies acutely.

If Grey-Stratton's fortune were to come to her, that detective would leave nothing undone to be absolutely sure that she had no hand in the crime. Points would arise, actions would be revealed that would look black against her by the very reason that she had carefully concealed them.

"Miss Grey-Stratton," he said gravely, "forgive me for what I am going to say. I believe it is a crime here to be an accessory after the fact in a case of murder. Do you realize that? Don't you think it would be wiser for your sake—for your brother's sake—to be candid with the police? Believe me, all that you have told me is sure to be known sooner or later." Her face was irresolute. "You think they will find out? That it will be worse because I tried to conceal it?"

"I do. If you will take my advice—my sincere advice—you will come with me to Menzies now. Understand me. I shall not betray a word of our conversation without your permission." She placed her elbows on the table and rested her chin in her cupped hands, staring across the room in reverie. Presently she stood up. "I will think of it," she said. "I will think of it."

CHAPTER VIII.

The Wedding Ring.

No effective detective organ is dependent on one man. Co-operation is the essence of all successful detective work, exactly as it is in the carrying on of any great business. Scotland Yard will throw a score, a hundred, ten thousand men into an enterprise, if need be, and every one of them from the supreme brain downward will have an understudy ready at any moment to pick up a duty abandoned from any cause.

No individual is vital, though some may be valuable. Every fact, every definite conclusion arrived at is on record. There is no stopping, no turning back to cover ground already traversed. The spade work of detection is as automatic as book-keeping.

That is why Weir Menzies found time to cover the case against the pickpockets he had captured the preceding evening and to return to headquarters to smoke a quiet pipe and consider things in general. He stuck his feet on a desk, leaned back in his chair and began serenely to go through the reports that had accumulated from every point where information, however remote, might have been gathered on the Grey-Stratton affair.

He liked to have the salient facts of an investigation clear-cut in his mind. That often saved time in an emergency as well as being an aid to definite thinking. Presently he began to make his Greek notes with a stub pencil on the back of an envelope. Some of them would have surprised Hallett had he chanced to see them.

"Statement of P. Grey-Stratton clearly incomplete. Knows much more than she says. Certain that Errol has been for many months constant visitor at her flat in Palace Avenue. (Glad report interview with maid at her flat.) Yet she denies that she has spoken to or been in communication with her brother for nearly a year. Lift attendant remembers man calling on her the evening of the murder. Left after short interview, and immediately after she went out hatless in a hurry."

He commenced a string of question marks across the paper. "I'll see that 'hit man myself,'" he murmured, and continued: "It was the maid's night out. Lift attendant does not remember having seen man before, but he knows several. Description vague. Think possible P. G.-S. alarmed. Must handle cautiously and keep under constant surveillance. If can induce Hallett to cultivate her may learn something."

A sharp tap at the door interrupted him. He snapped an irritable 'come in' and, pencil in hand, surveyed frowningly a young man with a badly bruised eye. "Well, jakes," he demanded impatiently, "who's been decorating

FRANCE TO GO DRY IN FUTURE

Liquor Will be Driven From Country, But 'Twill be Slow Fight

SAYS CORRESPONDENT No One Says Anything Against Beers and Light Wines

W. S. Forrest, a United Press correspondent in Paris, writes: The war system of French liquor control encourages temperance. With strong alcoholic liquors barred from military, naval and munition zones by military decree, light wines and beer are left to normal equilibrium. In fact, prohibition measures now being agitated in France, contrary to the meaning of the word "prohibition" in America, do not at all will never aim to prohibit the use of wines and beers. They aim at the suppression of strong drinks containing a big percentage of alcohol.

Perhaps more bitter opposition to general prohibition prevails in France than in the United States or any country. A well informed government official told the United Press that prohibition of alcohol can only come in France after a fight in the Chamber of Deputies and Senate, which will probably create world wide attention. This fight will be waged after the war.

The strength of the liquor interests was shown in the latter days of the Briand Cabinet when the ex-Premier branted alcohol as a menace to France in war time, and openly asked the Chamber to grant the government arbitrary power to regulate this "particularly grave question" by decrees. The Chamber refused.

In addition to the millions of persons actively engaged in the liquor trade, millions of dollars invested in it and other elements, perhaps the greatest stumbling block to prohibition is the fight for continuance of "bouillie de cru"—the individual distillation of liquor for individual consumption. As the American farmer makes his hard cider or the Kentucky "moonshiner" distills his corn juice the rural Frenchman maintains the right to boil down his wine and distill the essence therefrom.

Peasants Make Wine. He demands this right through his representative in the Chamber of Deputies. "Bouillie de cru" is regarded as one of the greatest evils of the liquor problem in France and has created hot political contention for many years. Well informed persons believe that it will continue to do so for years to come. In the meantime prohibition advocates are steadily attempting to mould public opinion around to the necessity of wiping out the evils of strong drink in all its forms.

But with all the agitation and measures against alcohol in France, no one hears anything said against the light wines and beers. Wine especially is an institution in France which even time cannot efface. Wine as drunk by the French is virtually harmless. It is a food. Children have it from the tables of their parents from the time they are large enough to drink from a glass. Every French household regards wine at every meal as important as an Ambassador regards his water. French workmen drink on an average of from one to two quarts a day. They have been doing it for centuries.

French painting in the Louvre depict the humble French home never without its bottle of wine. The French Government provides every soldier at the front with his daily wine ration. It is just as logical to think of prohibiting afternoon noon tea in England as forbidding wine to France, an official of the French Government said to-day. It will never be prohibited, and no one would dare to suggest it. Liquor will be driven from France some day, but it will take years to do it.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WESTERN LAND REVELATIONS

The sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has not been a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $200 per acre. Duties—reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $200 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $200.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm labourers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honourably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agents Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.
