Legal Decisions.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the Post Office—whether directed to his name or another's or whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for the payment.

2. If a person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay up all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the Post Office, or removing and leaving them uncollected, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

GOD KNOWS.

In the times of toil and trouble,
When the way was hard to find,
And with tears from heart so weary
My eyes were often blind,
I have always found a comfort
For all my bitterest woes,
For the thought that whate'er befalls me
My loving father knows.

Our feet may miss the pathways
That lead to the happier lands;
Our backs may be bowed with burdens,
And cares fill our hearts and hands;
But when the way is thorny,
And the wind of sorrow blows,
We've a friend that will never fail us,
For the good God sees and knows.

So in the shadow and sunshine
That checkers this lower land,
God always seems close beside me,
I can reach and touch his hand,
Deep in the peace, and lasting,
That the comforting thought bestows,
These never shall come a trouble,
But the dear God sees and knows.

THINGS THAT NEVER DIE.

The pure, the bright, the beautiful,
That stirred our hearts in youth,
The impulse of a wordless prayer,
The dream of love and truth,
The longing after something lost,
The spirit's yearning cry,
The striving after better things—
These things shall never die.

The timid hand stretched forth to aid
A brother in his need,
The kindly word in grief's dark hour,
That proves a friend indeed;
The plea for mercy softly breathed,
When justice threatens high,
The sorrows of a contrite heart—
These things shall never die.

Let nothing pass, for every hand
Must find some work to do;
Lose not a chance to waken love,
Be firm and just and true;
So shall a light that cannot fade
Beam from thee on a high,
And angel voices say to thee,
"These things can never die."

The Hoosier Schoolmaster.

BY EDWARD EGLESTON.

CHAPTER XXXI.—Continued.

"The court," said Squire Hawkins, "congratulates Mr Hartsook on his triumphant acquittal. He is discharged from the bar of this court, and from the bar of public sentiment, without a suspicion of guilt. Constable, discharge Ralph Hartsook and John Pearson."

Old Jack Means, who had always had a warm side for the master, now proposed three cheers for Mr Hartsook, and they were given with a will by the people who would have hanged him an hour before.

Mrs Means gave it as her opinion that "Jack Means called wuz a fool!" "This court," said Dr Underwood, "has one other duty to perform before adjourning for the day. Recall Hannah Thomson."

"I just started her on ahead to get supper and milk the cows," said Mrs Means. "Aint a-goin' to have her leavin' here all day?"

"Constable, recall her. This court cannot adjourn until she returns!" Hannah had gone but a little way, and was soon in the presence of the court, trembling for fear of some new calamity.

"Hannah Thomson"—it was Squire Underwood who spoke—"Hannah Thomson, this court wishes to ask you one or two questions."

"Yes, sir," but her voice died to a whisper.

"How old did you say you were?"

"Eighteen, sir, last October."

"Can you prove your age?"

"Yes, sir—by my mother."

"For how long are you bound to Mr Means?"

"Till I'm twenty-one."

"This court feels in duty bound to inform you that, according to the laws of Indiana, a woman is of age at eighteen, and as no indenture could be made binding after you had reached your majority, you are the victim of a deception. You are free, and if it can be proven that you have been defrauded by a willful deception, a suit for damages will lie."

"Ugh!" said Mrs Means. "You're a purty court, aint you, Dr Underwood?"

"Be careful, Mrs Means, or I shall have to fine you for contempt of court."

But the people, who were in a cheering humor, cheered Hannah and the justices, and then cheered Ralph again. Granny Sanders shook hands with him, and allers knowed he'd come out right. It allers 'peared' like as if Dr Small warn't jist the sort to tie to, you know. And old John Pearson went home, after drinkin' two or three glasses of Welch's whiskey, keepin' time to an imaginary triumphal march, and feeling prouder than he had ever felt since he fit the Britishers under Scott at Lundy's Lane. He told his wife that the master had jist knocked the hind-sights offen that 'ere young lawyer from Lewisburg.

Walter was held to bail that he might appear as a witness, and Ralph might have sent his aunt a Roland for an Oliver. But he only sent a note to his uncle asking him to go Walter's bail. If he had been resentful, he could not have wished for a more complete revenge than the day had brought.

CHAPTER XXXII.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

Nothing can be more demoralizing in the long run than lynch law. And yet lynch law often originates in a burst of generous indignation which is not willing to suffer a bold oppressor to escape by means of corrupt and cowardly courts. It is often born of fear. Both motives powerfully agitated the people of the region round about Clifty as night drew on after Ralph's acquittal. They were justly indignant that Ralph had been made the victim of a conspiracy, and they were frightened at the unseen danger to the community from such a band as that of Small's. It was certain that they did not know the full extent of the danger as yet. And what Small might do with a jury, or what Pete Jones might do with a sheriff, was a question. I must not detain the reader to tell how the mob rose. Nobody knows how such things come about. Their origin is as inexplicable as that of an earthquake.

But, at any rate, a rope was twice put around Small's neck during that night, and both times Small was saved only by the nerve and address of Ralph, who had learned how unjust mob law may be. As for Small, he neither trembled when they were ready to hang him, nor looked relieved when he was saved, nor showed the slightest flush of penitence or gratitude. He bore himself in a quiet, gentlemanly way throughout, like the admirable villain that he was.

He waited a preliminary examination the next day; his father went his bail, and he forfeited his bail and disappeared from the county and from the horizon of my story. Two reports concerning Small have been in circulation—one that he was running a far-bank in San Francisco, the other that he was curing consumption by inhalation and electricity here in New York. If this latter were true, it would leave it an open question whether Ralph did well to save him from the gallows. Pete Jones and Bill, as usually happened to the rougher villains, went to prison, and when their terms had expired moved to Pike county, Missouri.

But it is about Hannah that you want to hear, and that I want to tell. She went straight from the court-room to Flat Creek, climbed to her chamber, packed all her earthly goods, consisting chiefly of a few family relics, in a handkerchief, and turned her back on the house of Means forever. At the gate she met the old woman who shook her fist in the girl's face, and gave her a parting benediction in the words: "You mis'able, ungrateful critter you, go 'long! I'm glad to be shed of you!" At the barn she met Bud, and he told her good-by with a little hushiness in his voice, while a tear glistened in her eye. Bud had been a friend in need, and such a friend one does not leave without a pang.

"Where are you going? Can I—"

"No, no!" And with that she hastened on, afraid that Bud would offer to hitch up the roan colt. And she did not wish to add to his domestic unhappiness by compromising him in that way.

It was dusk and raining when she left. The hours were long, the road was lonely, and after the revelations of that day it did not seem wholly safe. But from the moment that she found herself free, her heart had been ready to break with an impatient homesickness. What though there might be robbers in the woods? What though there were ten rough miles to travel? What though the rain was in her face? What though she had not tasted food since the morning of that exciting day? Flat Creek and bondage were behind her; freedom, mother, Shooky, and home were before her, and her feet grew lighter with the thought. And if she needed any other joy, it was to know that the master was clear. And he would come! And so she traversed the weary distance, and so she inquired and found the house, the beautiful, homely old house of beautiful, homely old Nancy Sawyer, and knocked, and was admitted, and fell down faint and weary, at her blind mother's feet, and laid her tired head in her mother's lap and wept, and wept like a child, and said, "O mother! I'm free, I'm free!" while the mother's tears baptized her face, and the mother's trembling fingers combed out her tresses. "And Shooky stood by her and cried: "I knowed God wouldn't forget you, Hanner!"

Hannah was ready now to do anything by which she could support her mother and Shooky. She was strong, and inured to toil. She was willing and cheerful, and she would gladly have gone to service if by that means she could have supported the family. And, for that matter, her mother was already nearly able to support herself by her knitting. But Hannah had been carefully educated when young, and at that moment the old public schools were being organized into a graded school, and the good minister, who shall be nameless, because he is, perhaps, still living in Indiana, and who, in Methodist parlance, was called "the preacher in charge of Lewisburg Station"—this good minister and Miss Nancy Sawyer got Hannah a place as teacher of a primary department. And then a little house with four rooms was rented, and a little, a very little furniture was put in it, and the old, sweet home was established again. The father was gone, never to come back again. But the rest were here. And somehow Hannah kept waiting for somebody else to come.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

INTO THE LIGHT.

For two weeks longer Ralph taught at the Flat Creek school-house. He was everybody's hero. And he was Bud's idol. He did what he could to get Bud and Martha together, and though Bud always "saw her safe home" after this, and called on her every Sunday evening, yet, to save his life, he could not forget his big fists and his big fat long enough to say what he most wanted to say, and what Martha most wanted him to say.

At the end of two weeks Ralph found himself exceedingly weary of Flat Creek, and exceedingly glad to hear from Mr Means that the school-moody had "goin' out." It gave him a good excuse to return to Lewisburg, where his heart and his treasure were. A certain sense of delicacy had kept him from writing to Hannah just yet.

When he got to Lewisburg he had good news. His uncle, ashamed of his previous neglect, and perhaps with an eye to his nephew's growing popularity, had gotten him the charge of the grammar department in the new graded school in the village. So he quickly arranged to board at a boarding-house. His aunt could not have him about, of which fact he was very glad. She could not but feel, she said, that he might have taken better care of Walter than he did, when they were only four miles apart.

He did not hasten to call on Hannah. Why should he? He sent her a message, of no consequence in itself, by Nancy Sawyer. Then he took possession of his school; and then, on the evening of the first day of school, he went, as he had appointed to himself, to see Hannah Thompson.

And she, with some sweet presentment, had gotten things ready by fixing up the scantily-furnished room as well as she could. And Miss Nancy Sawyer, who had seen Ralph that afternoon, had guessed that he was going to see Hannah. It's wonderful how much enjoyment a generous heart can get out of the happiness of others. Is not that what He said of such as Miss Sawyer that they should have a hundred fold in this life for all their sacrifices? Did not Miss Nancy enjoy a hundred weddings, and love and bless the love of five hundred children? And so Miss Nancy just happened over at Mrs Thomson's humble home, and, just in the most matter-of-course way, asked that lady and Shooky to come over to her house. Shooky wanted Hannah to come to. But Hannah blushed a little, and said she would rather not.

And when she was left alone, Hannah fixed her hair two or three times, and swept the hearth, and moved the chairs first one way and then another, and did a good many other needless things. Needless: for a lover, if he be a lover, does not see furniture or dress.

And then she sat down by the fire, and tried to sew, and tried to look unoccupied, and tried to feel unoccupied, and tried not to expect anybody, and tried to make her heart keep still. And tried in vain. For a gentle rap at the door sent her pulse up twenty beats a minute and made her face burn. And Hartsook was, for the first time, abashed in the presence of Hannah. For the oppressed girl had, in two weeks, blossomed out into the full-grown woman.

And Ralph sat down by the fire, and talked of his school and her school, and everything else but what he wanted to talk about. And then the conversation drifted back to Flat Creek, and to the box-alder tree, and to the painful talk in the lane. And Hannah begged to be forgiven, and Ralph laughed at the idea that she had done anything wrong. And she praised his goodness to Shooky, and he drew her little note out of— But I agreed not to tell you where he kept it. And then she blushed, and he told how the note had sustained him, and how her white face kept up his courage in his flight down the bed of Clifty Creek. And he sat a little nearer, to show her the note that he had carried in his bosom—I have told it. And—but I must not proceed. A love-scene, ever so beautiful in itself, will not bear telling. And so I shall leave a little gap just here, which you may fill out as you please.

Somehow, they never knew how they got to talking about the future instead of the past, after that, and to planning their two lives as one life.

And when Miss Nancy and Mrs Thomson returned later in the evening, Ralph was standing by the mantel-piece, but Shooky noticed that his chair was close to Hannah's. And good Miss Nancy Sawyer looked in Hannah's face and was happy.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"HOW IT CAME OUT."

We are all children in reading stories. We want more than all else to know how it all came out at the end, and, if our taste is not perverted, we like it to come out well. For my part, ever since I began to write this story, I have been anxious to know how it was going to come out.

Well, there were very few invited. It took place at ten in the morning. The "preacher in charge" came, of course. Miss Nancy Sawyer was there. But Ralph's uncle was away, and Aunt Matilda had a sore throat and couldn't come. Perhaps the memory of the fact that she had refused Mrs Thomson, the pauper, a bed for two nights, affected her throat. But Miss Nancy and her sister were there, and the preacher. And that was all, besides the family, and Bud and Martha. Of course Bud and Martha came. And driving Martha to a wedding in a "juniper" was the one opportunity Bud needed. His hands were busy, his big boots were out of sight, and it was so easy to slip from Ralph's love affair to his own, that Bud somehow, in pulling Martha Hawkins's shawl about her, stammered out half a proposal, which Martha, generous soul, took for the whole ceremony, and accepted. And Bud was so happy that Ralph guessed from his face and voice that the agony was over, and Bud was betrothed last to the "gal as was a gal."

And after Ralph and Hannah were married—there was no trip, Ralph only changed his boarding-place and became head of the house a Mrs Thomson's thereafter—after it was all over, Bud came to Mr Hartsook and suckering just a little, said as how as him and Martha had fixed it all up, and now they wanted to ax his advice and Martha, proud but blushing, came up and nodded assent. Bud said as how as he hadn't got no 'look-arain' nor nothin', and as how as he wanted to be somethin', and put in his best licks for Him, you know. And that Marthy, she was of the same way of thinkin', and that was a blessin'.

And the Squire was a-goin' to marry agin, and Marthy would ruther vacate. And his mother and Mirandy was such as he wouldn't take no wife to. He thought as how Mr Hartsook might think of some way or some place where he and Marthy nout make a livin' fer the present, and put in their best licks fer Him, you know.

Ralph thought a moment. He was about to make an allusion to Hercules and the Augean stables, but he remembered that Bud would not understand it, though it might remind Marthy of something she had seen at the East, the time she was to Boston.

"Bud, my dear friend," said Ralph, "it looks a little hard to ask you to take a new wife"—here Bud looked admiringly at Marthy—"to the poor-house. But I don't know anywhere where you can do so much good for Christ as by taking charge of that place, and I can get the appointment for you. The new commissioners want just such a man."

"What d'ye say, Marthy?" said Bud.

"Why, somebody ought to do for the poor, and I should like to do it."

And so Hercules cleared the Augean stables.

And so my humble, homely Hoosier story of twenty years ago draws to a close, and, not without regret, I take leave of Ralph, and Hannah, and Shooky, and Bud, and Martha, and Miss Nancy, and of all my readers.

P. S.—A copy of the Lewisburg Jeffersonian came into my hands today, and I see by its columns that Ralph Hartsook is principal of the Lewisburg Academy. I took no time, however, to make out the name of the county, Mr Israel W. Means, was none other than my old friend Bud, of the Church of the Best Licks. I was almost as much puzzled over his name as I was when I saw an article in a city paper, by Prof. W. J. Thomson, on Poor-houses. I should not have recognized the writer as Shooky, had I not known that Shooky has given all his spare time to making outcasts feel that God has not forgot. For, indeed, God never forgets. But some of those to whom he intrusts his work do forget.

Mr Van Horn, Vice-president of the C. P. R., accompanied by Mr Olds, traffic manager, is on his way to Vancouver, B. C., to make arrangements for freight traffic across the continent of consignments of tea from China and Japan.

The following from the Religious Intelligence speaks well for Nova Scotia: Nova Scotia has more sons of temperance and teaplers, in proportion to its population, than any of the provinces of the Dominion, and probably more than any state in the American Union.

Norman L. Munro has challenged J. J. Gould for a yacht race for $100,000 a side. He offers to match his steam yacht Heoletta, a small vessel, against Gould's Atlanta. The winner to pay the money over to a charitable institution in New York. Gould has not accepted.

This is the latest way the grits have of showing spite to their opponents. A despatch dated Charlottetown, P. E. I. reports that grit roughs last night shaved the mane and tail of Rev. Stephen Lawson's horse on account of his championship of the conservatives at the last election.

CONFIDENTIAL CHARLEY

Will make the season of 1886 in Lunenburg, Kings, and Hants Counties, instead of in New Brunswick as previously advertised.

An Englishman named Morris who only arrived in Halifax a few days ago, complained of being robbed of a sum of money, and swore out a warrant for a man named Clarke as the thief.

The leader of the present local government in the Legislative Council, Hon. Thomas F. Morrison, died at his home, Londonderry, on Friday last, in the 79th year of his age.

The freight on the tea already shipped from China ports for Vancouver, then to be shipped via C. P. Railway, amounts to $62,000.

The emigration from Great Britain to Canada continues to increase. In the month of June the number reported as having departed for the Dominion was 4,222, as against 3,065 in the corresponding month last year.

The Annapolis Spectator says: Canadian Pacific railway stock was last week quoted in London at 68 1/2 ex dividend, and in New York it closed at 68 1/2 with sales of 400 shares.

Pearls as large as a pea are being found in the Annapolis river. Miss Tatle Taylor, of Middleton, while boating last week found a very fine pearl, a king, or at least, a president among pearls.

A youthful murderer in the person of a four-year-old boy has turned up in St. John, N. B. The boy in question is the son of Richard Tufts, of Long Beach, and he picked up a ten-month-old baby of neighbor, named Saratt, and threw it in the brook.

A Digby despatch of the 21st inst. says: For some time past a gang of burglars and fire brands have been operating in Annapolis. They are believed to be now moving down towards Yarmouth.

A St. John's, Nfld., despatch of the 19th inst. reports an unprecedented want and suffering in parts of Newfoundland and Labrador on account of the coast being ice bound.

The Dominion Savings Bank returns for the past fiscal year are encouraging. An Ottawa despatch of the 22d inst. says: The Savings Bank returns for the fiscal year ended 30th June last, represent a very satisfactory state of affairs.

THE ACADIAN

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 30, 1886

Local and Provincial.

Camp-meeting at Berwick next week. The graving dock in British Columbia is completed.

Dr E. N. Payzant is practicing his profession at Acadia Mines Colchester county.

We have had plenty of rain during the past week and the crops have been greatly improved thereby.

A special cable despatch says that Sir Charles Tupper will sail for Canada on the 10th of August, on important public business.

FOR SALE.—A new milch cow six years old. Apply to THOS. TUZO, Horton Landing, N. S.

J. B. Hall Ph. D., Professor at the Normal School, Truro, was in town this week. Dr Hall formerly spent some years in Wolfville.

One case St. Croix Ginghams, fine quality, at 100 per yard at BURPEE WITTER'S.

The barque Africa, of St. John, N. B., from Shanghai, arrived at Valparaiso on the 8th inst. Capt. Wallace Buchanan, of Grand Pre, is mate on the Africa.

FOR SALE.—A good working horse weighs 1100 lbs. Apply at this office.

Desertions are of daily occurrence among the regular troops stationed in the Halifax garrison, upwards of forty having deserted during the past month.

C. W. Knowles, late of the Windsor Mail and now of Halifax, has, we understand, purchased the Windsor Courier. Success to friend Knowles.

WANTED.—To purchase turkeys, fowls and chickens (dressed). STAS FADER, Port Williams.

The Lower Horton Methodist church is undergoing a thorough repair and will be much improved in appearance. The work is being done by Mr. B. G. Bishop of this place.

The farmers have been busy at the hay during the past few weeks. The weather which was all that could be desired during the first part of the harvest has been rather unfavourable this week.

OUTS.—150 Bus. for sale at BURPEE WITTER'S.

Mr. B. S. Knowles who is well known in this town, having carried on the book and stationery business here for a number of years, is spending a few days in Wolfville. He is accompanied by Mrs Knowles.

FIRE STOCK of Oranges, Lemons, Bananas, Apples, Prunes, Confectionery, etc. at R. PRAT'S.

Rev. Robert Summerville, recently of the county, now of New York, at present enjoying a few weeks well earned vacation in his native province, preached with much acceptance last Sunday in Berwick and Wolford.

Rev. Thos. McFall, of Summerset, with his wife and family who have been spending a few weeks in Pennsylvania, arrived here last Monday, after spending a very pleasant time. He is expected to preach at Grand Pre in about three weeks time.

A full line of Boys' Knickerbocker Hose just opened at BURPEE WITTER'S.

FROM SEA.—The Schr. Star, Blake master, arrived from Boston on Tuesday and sailed same evening for Canning. The Schr. Ocean Bird, Magranahan Master, arrived on Tuesday evening from Windsor and cleared next day for St. John.

Feed Flour $3.75, Family Flour (good to choice) $5.00, $5.25 and $5.50 per barrel, at R. PRAT'S.

NARROW ESCAPE.—A horse attached to a mowing machine, ran away on Friday last, at Summerset, throwing the driver, Randall Isley, under the wheels of the machine. He got off with slight bruises on the legs and arms, but had a very narrow escape of being seriously injured.

In Reference to the Adv. of the "Canadian Mutual Aid Association" in another column, we would call our readers attention to the fact that it was in this company that Mr. R. H. Baker of Tremont was insured. Mr. Baker received one half the amount of his insurance, $1100, on being disabled a year ago.

Having recently imported a "Perfection Shear Sharpener," I am prepared to sharpen and put in first class order shears and scissors of every description. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed. J. M. SHAW, Wolfville.

The Acadia College Calendar for the year 1886-7 has been received. It is as usual filled with interesting matter relating to the institution.

Sir Charles Tupper, at a recent meeting of the Fishmongers' Company, a rich and influential concern of London, was made an honorary freeman of the said society, in his capacity of high commissioner of Canada.

Owing to the dry season the price of paints have fallen. To arrive in a few days Leads, Oils, Colors, Glass, &c. I call good lead for $5.75. Please examine. Make up your orders for glass to keep cold winter out. I can give you fine figures. B. G. BISHOP, Wolfville.

A superstitious subscriber, who found a spider in his paper, wants to know if it is considered a bad omen. Nothing of the kind. The spider was merely looking over the columns of the paper to see what merchant was not advertising, so that it could spin its web across his store door and be free from disturbance.—Springhill Times.

A BIG DAYS WORK.—The circus at Kentville on Monday made it a busy day for the railroad men and we imagine some of them were not sorry when it was over. Mr Fred Carter, driver on Edward's express, in special land regular work made over 400 miles during the day. It is not often that a driver on the W. & A. R., is called upon to make a run like this—fortunately.

TAKE NOTICE.—If your razor is dull, take it to J. M. Shaw's Barber Shop, and he will put it in first-class order for the small sum of 15c. 10

We had a pleasant call on Wednesday from Rev. Wm Cross, of Toronto, Ont. Mr Cross is travelling in the interests of the "Canadian Mutual Aid Association," for which he is general agent for the maritime provinces. Mr Thomas Tuzo, of Horton Landing is acting as agent in this and Annapolis and Digby counties and expects to do a good business. We understand the company is desirous of securing good energetic men to act as local agents.

Cedar Posts for sale low at S. R. Sleep's.

THAT TIRED FEELING.—The warm weather has a debilitating effect, especially upon those who are within doors most of the time. The peculiar, but common complaint, known as "that tired feeling," is the result. This feeling can be entirely overcome by taking Dr Norton's Burdock Blood Purifier. Sold by all druggists and dealers in general.

FIRE.—On Saturday night last, in the vicinity of 10 o'clock, fire was discovered in J. A. Woodworth's press barn, at Grand Pre Station, and before any one got down to the Station the barn was completely enveloped in flames. It contained, besides a valuable hay-press, upwards of 25 tons of pressed hay, all of which was destroyed. The press, hay and barn was partially insured and Mr Woodworth's loss will not be so heavy as at first anticipated. Mr R. R. Duncan had cords of hard wood, in another building built against the barn, which was also destroyed. The win' being in the direction of the Grand Pre Station, the roof of that building caught in several places, and was with much difficulty saved from destruction. It is supposed that the fire originated by sparks from the evening train judging in the dry material near the barn.

If you wish to color wool, cottons, silk or feathers, use the new Electric Dyes, Strongest and Best in the world. 10 cents at all dealers.

We have received from the Minister of Agriculture a guide book recently issued by the Dominion government containing much valuable information for intending settlers. In it is given a short sketch of the different provinces in the Dominion showing the advantages of each to emigrants. This is a wise move on the part of the Dominion government and the book should be largely circulated throughout European countries. The United States government have been flooding this country for years with emigration literature and trying to lure away our young people to settle their unoccupied lands in the West, and it is time that we make every effort to compete with them in this matter. We believe this is one of the most profitable ways of using the public money and the result must be beneficial to the Dominion throughout.

DIED.—At New Minas, July 22d, of brain fever, Ida May, daughter of Jas. J. Schofield, of White Rock, aged 21. William Murphy, of Murphy's, Wolfville, Anny, widow of the late Patrick W. Walsh, aged 85 years.

At Gasperau, July 26th, Mary A., daughter of the late Moody Allen, aged 46 years.

AMBITIOUS NOVA SCOTIA.

Nova Scotia's secession movement does not appear to disturb the Confederacy very profoundly, and it is hardly necessary that it should. She was the original prime mover and instigator of the compact, as she is the first to seek withdrawal from it. It is her ambition, and not really any substantial occasion of complaint that is at the bottom of her resolution. Nova Scotia's desire was not so much to become one of a confederacy as the leader and metropolis of one. Her desire was to gather about her skirts the smaller provinces of the eastern sections of the Dominion with Newfoundland, so as to constitute a maritime confederacy, of which she was intentionally and ambitiously to be facile princeps. With that object in view her politicians and people did all they could to stir up the fishermen of Newfoundland along the Gulf shore, and in the Straits, against the project. But that the lower provinces could ever entertain the idea of associating themselves with Nova Scotia in a maritime union is too utterly absurd a project for consideration. They have no desire to lean upon a broken reed or to associate themselves politically and exclusively—for that is what it must necessarily be—with a province which, for the fortuitous accident of confederation, would have been long ago bankrupt, as the result of its lack of enterprise and energy; a community which prognosticates its social and political prosperity upon the bare possibility of marketing its potatoes in the cities of Nova York, Massachusetts and Maine at a dollar per bushel, which is exactly 75 cents more than they can be produced for in these Happy Valleys of Rasselas.—Dominion Church of England Journal.

READ THE FOLLOWING TESTIMONIALS.

Weymouth, Sept. 14, 1885.

DR NORTON: Dear Sir,—For twenty five years I have been afflicted with Salt Rheum, and last Summer my head and part of my body was one fearful sore. My husband employed at different times three doctors, which failed to do me any good. In August 1884 I commenced taking your Dr. O. W. Norton's Burdock Blood Purifier, and after taking three bottles, am entirely cured, as I have not the least symptoms of it since. The Blood Purifier has also cured (Capt. Brooks of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint.

Yours truly, Mrs John Grant

ARTHUR BLACKBURN, of Newport writes: "For five years I have been afflicted with two Erysipelas Fever Sores on my legs. Have consulted all the doctors far and near. All medicine failed to do me any good until last fall I commenced to take Dr O. W. Norton's Burdock Blood Purifier. After taking seven bottles my sores are entirely healed and I am as well as ever."

"February 9th, 1886."

There is no medicine known to the medical fraternity that has cured so many of Liver, Kidney Blood and Nerve Diseases as the medicine that compose Norton's Burdock Blood Purifier.

Sold by most of the dealers in medicine throughout the county, ask for G. V. Rand, Druggist, Wolfville, at $1.00 per large bottle.

TWO BLOSSOMS.

On the fourth floor of a large tenement house in one of the poor localities in a great city, in a back room, a little child lay ill.

In the next room a woman toiled wearily over a wash-tub, rubbing and wringing reds and wringing, while the perspiration rilled down her face.

Very often the neighbor down stairs came up to see the child, and watching the woman working would say: "Sure, woman, you'll kill yourself workin' so hard."

"I don't mind it. I'd work my finger nails off if she was only spared to me," the woman would answer, nodding her head in the direction of the other room.

"Indeed, I hope she will be," the neighbor replied, but when she was down in her own rooms she would say, with a long drawn sigh: "It would be well for 100th of them, if it was the Lord's will, if He would take them to Himself, for I see nothin' in this world for the poor but hard work and sorrow."

"The little child never complained, but lay for hours and hours looking through the window at a small bit of blue sky just visible between the hoar-frost that shut in the narrow yard. The harsh tones of street peddler, calling their wares, and the voices shrill of children, as they played and squabbled in the yard below, came in through the window, but she did not appear to heed them, but lay calmly watching the bit of sky and the clouds that passed over it.

She was very fond of flowers, and some one gave her a geranium in full bloom; but, owing to its having been forced in a hot-house, the leaves soon turned yellow, and it lived only a short time. The child felt so grieved that the woman obtained a box, and, remembering the little cottage with the tiny porch in her country home that she had left years before the child was born, planted some scarlet runner beans, and placed the box on the ledge of the window of the tenement below.

Very carefully they were watered each day, and in a little while began to show their heads. When told the little child asked: "When can I see them?" And the woman replied: "In a little while, dear."

So the child watched the blue sky and waited patiently till one day, a tiny leaf lifted its head and looked in. Then the little child was glad. And soon another leaf appeared, and then another, and she forgot the bit of sky and the clouds floating over it, and watched the vine as it grew.

In a short time a bunch of green buds pressed against the pane and the little child smiled for she knew the blossom was nigh.

She seldom turned from the window, unless some neighbor looked in and asked: "Do you feel better, dear?" and she would answer in a weak, little voice, "Yes, ma'am, and turns again to the window again to watch the ripening buds.

"I never saw her taken up with any thing before. I think she must be getting better," the woman said.

And the neighbor answered, "She does look brighter."

One morning the little child found the buds tipped with scarlet, and her eyes brightened, and she thought: "They will open to-morrow," but the next day came in dull and cloudy and the buds were no nearer opening. All day long she watched and waited, but the buds were waiting for the sun before they could burst through their green prison walls. When the day closed and they did not open, the little child grieved, and turned her face to the wall listened to the rub, rub, rub in the next room.

In the morning the sun shone out bright and clear, and the buds burst their heads, and, nodding their glowing, scarlet heads, tapped merrily at the window.

SOME OF THE BIGGEST THINGS ON EARTH.

DINAH MIGHT.

"Mr Sharp can't you find something else to do than blow me up continually when ever I say that Dinah is not a good cook and you should discharge her and get another?"

"Well, Dinah might for instance."

An old Scotch preacher once announced his theme in the following language: "Me brethren, I take as me text to-night 'The devil he goeth about lek a rooin' leon aw seekin' whom he may devour.' I shall divide me subject into four heads, namely: Why the devil he goeth about; why the devil he goeth about lek a leon; who the devil he is aw seekin' to devour, and what the devil he is a rooin' about."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of Cutting Teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers; there is no mistake about it. It cures Dysentery and Diarrhoea, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens the Gums, reduces Inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system.

"Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for children teething is pleasant to the taste and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP," and take no other kind.

No man was ever endowed with a judgment so correct and judicious, in regulating his life, but that circumstances, time and experience would teach him something new, and apprise him that of those things with which he thought himself the best acquainted he knew nothing and those ideas which in theory appeared the most advantageous were found when brought into practice to be altogether inapplicable.

Hip Disease, fever sores, ulcers, blotches, pimples, and many loathsome diseases originate in impure blood. Parson's Purgative Pills make new rich blood and will change the blood in the entire system in three months, take one a night.

Tablets to the memory of sergeant S. Prentiss, William Pitt Fessenden, the poet Longfellow, Fanny Fern and N. P. Willis were placed in the public buildings at Portland, Me., as a part of the Fourth of July celebration.

Tennyson dislikes railways because they are not poetical. Neither are passes poetical, but most people would rather have one than Tennyson's best poem.—Philadelphia Call.

All persons about to visit foreign lands, sailors, fishermen, lumbermen and miners should take with them a supply of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. It is both for internal and external use and is worth its weight in gold.

O'Donovan Rossa's mouth is running again. He desires to pick forty men to burn London. He will not be one of the party.—Alta California.

Read what a popular druggist says. MONROE, July 25, 1885. Dear Sir: These send us as soon as possible 1 gross Minard's Liniment. It is becoming the most popular Liniment in the market.—E. M. ESTEV.

Trees in cultivated fields are troublesome, but where they are not numerous they add enough to the beauty of the landscape to compensate.

EAGER'S WINE OF RENNET is said to be superior to any preparation of Rennet in the market, being pleasant to the taste, richer in digestive principle, and makes a more uniform and better junket.
