CHAPTER XVII. AN ILLNESS AND A QUICK RECOVERY.

Joy rises in me like a summer morn.—COLERIDGE.

A few days after, Cecil fell ill, not not seriously, but enough to keep him to his room, from which he refused to budge, stating to Mr. Stewart that he should be all right on the morrow, and that all the medicine he needed was a day's quiet.

The settler, who had grown wondrously fond of the willful boy, would have doctored him after the cattle-runner fashion, that is, with a decoction of strong herbs and rum; but thought it better to let the lad have his way for one day and not be badgered.

On the morrow, true to his prophecy, Cecil came down, but looked so pale and woe-begone that the settler refused to let him work, and to prevent him getting to the books locked the armory door.

Left to idleness, the youth went and lay down under the trees and half dozed the day away, taking only some milk porridge, which old Martha brought him in a wooden bowl.

The settler was troubled. He didn't want his little clerk and general manager laid up, and having had some experience in prairie fever dreaded lest he was about to have an attack.

After thinking it over he decided he would send for a doctor, and, with his hands in his pockets, strolled over to where the youth was lying and told him he should dispatch one of the runners to the Bay for one.

But Cecil seemed anything but grateful for the kindness, and, starting to his feet, said he should do nothing of the kind.

"I won't see him if he comes. Doctor, indeed! Why, I'm quite well. Look at the expense, too! Pretty item in the books that would be—Doctor for Master Cecil, for slight attack of multigratis! Nonsense—I won't have him!"

"Won't you, you saucy young rascal?" retorted Mr. Stewart, with a grin. "But you shall, if I send for him."

Cecil turned pale and, having gained nothing by defiance, tried coaxing.

"Oh, don't send for a horrid doctor, sir! I do hate 'em so; and I'd never take the nasty physic. Oh, don't send for him; there's a good master!"

"Well, well—drat the boy!" muttered Stewart, very much as Squire Darrell had growled when vanquished by his niece. "Well, I'll wait till to-morrow; but if you ain't better I'll have him, physic and all. So mind you!"

That night Laurence came galloping back.

Cecil, hearing the clatter and the usual hubbub, got out of bed and saw him wearily dismount from the black.

In the morning he was much better—so much, indeed, in appearance that, as he entered the little office where he always took his meals, Mr. Stewart, who was seated there talking to Laurence, looked up with surprise.

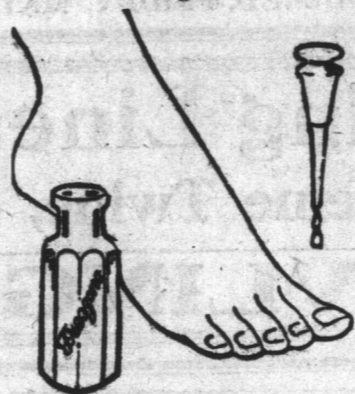

"Hello, youngster!" he said; "the doctor's frightened you has he? Well, we shall know how to cure you for the future my fine fellow. Look here, Laury, taking Cecil by the arm; 'here's the invalid I was speaking about—contradicts me pretty nicely with his rosy cheeks, don't he? It's a regular swindle! Here have I been and got up a nice breakfast to tempt his appetite! I'll be bound he could eat a horse."

Cecil made some saucy answer and sat down to the breakfast—a delicate and tempting one—of sweetbreads, crisp, white bread, and new milk.

Laury looked at him kindly.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.

"Haven't you been well, Cecil?" "Yes," retorted Cecil; "quite well, thank you. How have you been?"

"The only complaint he's got, you see, is manners," laughed Mr. Stewart, perching himself on the stool and watching the boy eat his breakfast with a nice air of proprietorship.

Laury smiled.

"I'm glad it's no worse," he said. Then they continued the conversation in a low undertone, of which Cecil—though he kept his ears open with that curiosity of which we have said he had a considerable share—could catch only a word here and there.

But these scraps made sharper his desire to hear more, and he resolved to pump Master Laurence—if he could—at the first opportunity.

At last the conversation was concluded, seemingly by Laurence carelessly assenting to some proposal of the settler's, and the two left the room.

Having finished his breakfast, Cecil sat down to his books and, as might be expected, soon lost his rosy looks.

Presently Mr. Stewart came in.

"Hello!" said he; "you've got at the books, have you—and got chalk-cheeked again? But you can shut the accounts up. Laury's offered to take you with him buck-hunting, he says, and I think it'll do you good."

The youth's face crimsoned with pleasure, but he pouted:

"Oh, indeed!" said he; "it's very kind of Laury, to be sure. But how long is he going to be away?" he asked, sharply.

"Oh, I'm sure I can't tell you!" laughed Mr. Stewart. "Who knows when to reckon upon Laury? Two or three days perhaps."

"I can't go, then," said Cecil, dejectedly.

"Why not?" asked Mr. Stewart.

"Because I won't," said Cecil. "I can't leave the books; they're behind-hand already."

"Oh, bother the books!" said Mr. Stewart. "You needn't bother about 'em if I don't. Leave them."

"I won't," retorted Cecil. "I know my duty and I'll do it. I don't want to have you turning over my wages at the end of the quarter and thinking I haven't earned them."

"Oh, oh!" laughed Mr. Stewart; "you're uncommon particular—most uncommon! Well, lad, you must have your way. How long will you go for?"

"One day," replied Cecil, decisively.

"Well, I'll tell Laury to be back before night," said Stewart; and he went off, leaving his clerk all in a glow of delight and expectation, notwithstanding the cool reception he had given Laury's message.

CHAPTER XVII. A STRANGE BOY.

The knock was repeated and he answered it.

"—Laurence," was the reply. "What do you want?"

"I want to speak to you. Are you in bed?"

"Yes—that is, no," replied Cecil. "Is anything the matter? Go down-stairs and wait by the horse and I will come to you."

The footsteps descended and, waiting a moment to glance at the glass, with a sharp, questioning look—Cecil was vain for a boy—he unclosed the door and cautiously stripped down the stairs.

Laurence had mounted again and was waiting for him.

Cecil went up to him timidly, notwithstanding the assumption of ease and superiority upon his pretty face, and said:

"Well, what is it? This is a fine time of night to disturb any one!" and he looked up impudently at the stern, grave face above him, upon which the moon was shedding a clear, soft light.

"Lad," said the cattle-runner, looking down upon him sadly, but with a majestic kind of dignity that will befit the grave, handsome face, "lad, I couldn't go away to-night without telling you that you were right and I was wrong to-day. I had forgotten myself, and played the coward, the braggart, and the lunatic. You brought me back to my senses with that look of yours, and I am grateful."

"Well," said Cecil, laying his hand on the horse's neck and looking up with a provoking laugh, "and have you called me up to tell me that stale news, Mr. Grim?"—it was a strange, girlish habit the lad had of calling those he liked by fanciful but appropriate names.

Laurence smiled.

"Of course it was wrong," continued Cecil, with a shake of the head and the same smile. "You'd no right to risk your neck for the sake of breaking that idiot, Tim's. As to being a lunatic, you know best about that."

"Ay," said Laurence, curtly.

"And why are you going off in this harum-scarum way? Is the night too good for you to stay here?"

"If one can not sleep, it is ill to waste time by lying idle, Cecil," replied Laurence.

"Oh, lying idle!" retorted the lad. "You are a singular fellow, to call taking one's natural rest idleness. Pray, do you never know what it is to rest?"

"Question breeds questions, lad. Suppose I ask you what brought you to such a pass as keeping the books of an African cattle station? What would be the answer? Not that I want to know—"

"'Tis lucky," retorted Cecil, who had retreated within the shadow of the horse, as the question was asked, and lowered his eyes, but raised them now as roguishly as before, "it's lucky you do not, for I would answer—nothing."

"See, then, lad, how little right you have to question me," retorted Laurence, with a grave air.

And, setting spurs to his horse, he sprang forward; but before quite out of sight he looked round and waved his hand.

The youth, who had gazed after him with a strange, wistful look upon his face—fearing, perhaps, that he had given offense—brightened up at the signal of farewell and walked moodily back to his room.

House of Assembly.

—May 27, 1920.

The House met at 3 p.m. Messrs. Hartyard, Brownrigg, Bennett, Cosker, Jones and Sir John Crosbie presented petitions favoring modification of the Prohibition Act. Messrs. Hartyard and (Capt.) Jones questioned the bona fides of the signatures. Space had been provided for witnesses, said Mr. Hartyard, but no witnesses had signed. Mr. Targett had received some petitions to be presented by him, but as they had not come to him direct from his constituents he refused to present them, and passed them over to Mr. Hartyard. Capt. Jones, also, was doubtful of the bona fides of the petitions presented by himself.

Petitions on various local matters were then presented for almost an hour.

The House then went into committee on resolutions relating to the Post and Telegraph Service, which was in charge of the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs. The first section limits the liability of the department for any loss, injury or damage arising or resulting from the non-transmission or non-delivery of telegrams or from delays or errors in the transmission or delivery thereof. Section 2 provides that the fee on registered letters within the colony shall be five cents, instead of three as heretofore. Section 3 provides that a charge of five cents shall be payable upon the delivery to the address of all parcels containing dutiable goods. The minister estimated that a revenue of $5500.00 would be derived from the former and $1500.00 from the latter. This would go toward the general revenue of the department. Mr. J. R. Bennett (O.) thought that, with the new department and the new minister, some way could be found to protect the public against careless or negligent officials of the Telegraph Department who transmitted wrong messages or made gross errors in their transmission. Instead of this, the Minister looks for indemnity on that score. He was of the opinion that the whole thing was a retrograde step.

The Prime Minister said that, while the department was suffering a loss of $41,000 a year, the public could not expect better service than given. In the Outposts the employees were mostly underpaid and consequently inefficient.

Mr. C. J. Fox (O.) considered that this state of affairs was a deplorable one. Mr. Fox referred, also, to the rapidly increasing proportion of "lost" registered letters. The act of registering letters only proclaimed the fact that there was money in them.

The Minister of Posts (Hon. W. F. Hartyard) considered that the Department was just as efficiently operated as the Anglo offices. The trouble was that politics played too big a part in the Department. The appointed officials had been those who had most pull with the politicians. Changes were often made, also, because of political expediency. The reason that the Anglo did a larger business than the Postal Telegraphs was that the former had cable connections.

Mr. W. J. Higgins (O.) pointed out that the criticism which came from the Opposition showed their desire to have the department in first-class working order. Mr. Higgins, also, referred to Registration of letters. Beyond the mere tracing of letters he could see no value in registering them now.

Mr. J. R. MacDonnell (O.) advocated the extension of the money order system to mend the evil that had grown up in the registration department.

The resolutions were then passed without amendment.

Third readings were then given the "Model Farm" Bill and the "Certificates of Masters and Mates Bill," and the "Debiture Bond" Bill was put through the committee stage.

The House then went into Committee on the "Exportation of Salt Codfish" Bill.

Sir John Crosbie, referring to the statement in Government papers that the Fish Export Regulations had passed the House unanimously, said that he was not in the House on Friday night when they went through, and he wished to go on record now as being opposed to the regulations as now being considered. He would not dare, he said, knowing as much as he did about the fish markets, go before the country as in any way countenancing such a proposal. He believed in free trade as it related to fish markets and that every exporter should be allowed to sell his fish to the best advantage to himself without being dictated to by any person whatever. He was therefore against the regulations. But while discussing the regulations, he wished again to say a word about the salt situation. Ten days ago he had stated that the salt situation was very serious, and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries had then agreed with him. But what had been done, in those ten days, in the matter? Two days ago he had asked for information as to what the Government were doing in the matter, and the letters, telegrams, correspondence, etc., had been promised him. At last sitting he again brought the salt situation before the House and asked for the correspondence. To-day he had been handed by the Prime Minister what he presumed was all the correspondence in his possession, and what did it reveal? Well, after ten whole days nagging and warning of the serious situation, the Prime Minister, in desperation, handed him three cables, two of which was to Bowring, of Liverpool, advising them to do all possible to get salt; another to the High Commissioner in London asking him to use his official position to push the former, were sent on Tuesday last, May 25th; the other was addressed to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, the contents of which were too serious to reveal to the country at present, was sent on the day, May 26th, the Prime Minister informed him that the matter had been taken up by the Imperial authorities. That is what we get after ten days nagging. That is the whole of the Government's activities to relieve the salt situation. "Apparently they did not believe me when I said the salt situation was serious. Well, I shall wait for another few days to see whether I am right or not. I am perfectly satisfied as to what will happen should the strike continue in Cadiz. This correspondence reveals to me," said Sir John, "the greatest amount of incompetency ever shown in this House as it relates to the Government trying to deal with a serious situation." He stated that he went to a salt importer yesterday to buy 100 hds., to send to his district. He was offered 50, which he refused, because it was no good to him. That importer has now not a ton left in his store. The situation is so serious that someone must bear the responsibility, and that responsibility he placed squarely on the shoulders of the Government. He could do nothing else after being handed these cables which took the Government ten days to make up its mind to send. The only thing that saves us from a panic now is the ice up north. Let the schooners start in coming along and then in six or eight days we shall see where we are. He asked again, and he hoped he would not have to wait another ten days, that the Government act and act promptly; send a man to Cadiz from London on your behalf; send to Liverpool to have salt brought out from there; although it is not much good it is better than none at all; send a steamer to Turk's Island. All he asked now was to stop this inactivity displayed during the past ten days and do something. Do anything, spend anything to get salt. Instead of three messages being sent it should have been twenty-five. The message that the Government did send to Sir Edgar Bowring, said nothing beyond telling him to use his official position. And why was not that done two weeks ago? Why wait until the 25th of May when the salt situation had been serious for a month? He never saw such incompetence exhibited in any body of men before in his remembrance.

Mr. J. R. Bennett wished to have it known that he was not in favor of the Fish Export Regulations, and the statement that they had passed unanimously, was incorrect. The Opposition was against them. They saw that the Government was determined to put the thing through, and it was futile to oppose it at length, and the conclusion arrived at was that the best thing to do was to offer some amendments which would make the bill less objectionable. In this they had succeeded, as three important amendments had been accepted from the Opposition. This was as much as they could do. There were still sections in the bill which were positively obnoxious to the trade of the country.

Mr. W. J. Walsh backed Sir John Crosbie in the salt matter. No importation of salt had been made for the last month, yet it had advanced in price from $3.70 to $4.00. This was profiteering.

Mr. Fox and Mr. Higgins then pressed for further amendments to make the bill better and make it less objectionable to the trade. After some debate the Minister of Marine and Fisheries agreed to accept the following amendment to Section 3:

"Immediate notice of any new rule of the amendment of any existing rule shall be given by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to all licensed exporters of codfish;

"In recommending any rule respecting the fixing of prices, the Board shall not have power to interfere with any contract lawfully made under rules and regulations existing at the time of the finalizing of such contract."

Second readings were then given the following Bills, after which the House adjourned until this afternoon at 3 o'clock:

"The Business Profits Tax Act, 1917"; "An Act Respecting the Montreal Trust Co."; "An Act with respect to existing Tenancies and Ejectment therefrom"; "An Act respecting licenses to cut Hardwood."

B. I. S. Billiard Dinner.

The annual dinner provided by the losers in the B. I. S. billiard tournament, was held at the club rooms last night and proved one of the most enjoyable affairs of the kind in the history of the Society. About 100 players and guests were present. The catering was in the hands of Mr. F. B. Wood and the menu delighted all. Mr. W. J. Higgins, President of the Society, occupied the chair in his usual affable manner. Following the repast, the following toast list was given through:

Every Precaution Necessary.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—I was forcibly reminded a couple of days ago of the necessity of Motor Drivers using every precaution for the safety of the Public, by slower driving and full attention to Brakes to see that they are ever in good order.

The instance I wish to quote was as follows:—A delivery car going over LeMerchant Road turned down Patrick St. at head of Springdale St. The car was running, I should judge, about ten or twelve miles per hour. The driver seeing one of his friends wished to stop to take him aboard, and applied the brakes for that purpose. The wheels stopped turning but continued to skid along the ground quite a distance. I could see the marks quite plainly and walking along, it covered a distance of eleven of my steps or roughly 18 feet, then the brakes being released for about ten feet they were again applied, and the distance marked by the wheels skidding covered 27 of my steps or say 44 feet, making the whole distance covered from the time brakes were first applied (it would mean 18x10x4ft.) altogether 72 feet, and this at only a fair rate of speed. One can readily imagine what the result would be if it was found necessary to stop the car quickly to avoid running over any person or persons.

Thanking you for space.
Yours truly,
EYE-WITNESS.

MOTHERS NEED NOT WORRY

Because Children Are Frail, Ailing and Sickly.

Vinol Will Build Them Up and Make Them Strong, Robust and Rosy.

There is nothing that will build up frail, sickly, ailing children like VINOL.

Mrs. L. Andrews, Bainbridge, N.Y., says: "My little daughter was run-down, tired all the time, pale, thin, nervous, and had headaches so we had to take her out of school. VINOL has built her up, she has a good appetite, no more headaches, her color is good and she has returned to school."

VINOL owes its success in such cases to the tissue-building extractives of fresh cod's liver, without oil, aided by the blood and strength-creating elements of tonic iron, beef peptones and hypophosphites which it contains.

Thus in a natural manner it creates a healthy appetite, aids digestion, makes rich, red blood, and the result is a good, healthy color, strength and vitality.

Your druggists guarantee it.

President Wilson Vetoes Republican Peace Resolution.

Armenian Mandate for U. S. Rejected -- Armenians Sending Delegates to Moscow -- Britain Gets German Super-Zeppelin -- Bulgaria Has Huge Wheat Crops

WILSON VEToes PEACE RESOLUTION.

WASHINGTON, May 27. The Republican Peace Resolution was vetoed today by President Wilson. Such a method of making peace with Germany the President said would "place an ineffaceable stain upon the gallantry and honor of the United States." Without announcing his intention regarding the treaty of Versailles the President declared that the treaty embodied important things omitted by the Resolution and said by rejecting the treaty the United States had declared in effect that it wished "to draw apart and pursue objects and interests of our own." The President added that the Peace Resolution omitted mention of many important objects for the vindication of which the United States entered the war. "Such a peace with Germany," the message continued, "a peace in which none of the essential interests which we had at heart when we entered the war is safeguarded, is, or ought to be, inconceivable; is inconsistent with the dignity of the United States, with the rights and liberties of her citizens, and with the very fundamental conditions of civilization."

ARMENIANS WILL MEET BOLSHIEVIK.

PARIS, May 27. The Armenians have accepted the invitation from the Russian Bolshieviki to send delegates to Moscow, according to information received by the French Foreign Office.

The Zeppelin which far exceeds any other ever built in size has a flying radius of twelve thousand miles a speed of one hundred miles an hour, and is one fourth larger than R-33 England's biggest dirigible. It has double the latter's engine power. Another super-Zeppelin somewhat smaller will be surrendered to the United States by Germany.

Canadian Major Praises Tanlac For Good It Did

Former Member of Mounted Police and Overseas Officer Says it Restored Him to Splendid Health.

"I have tried Tanlac with entire satisfaction and I give it my unqualified endorsement," was the statement made a few days ago by Sgt. Park, of Victoria, B.C. Before the war Mr. Park was connected with the Royal Northwest Mounted Police and during the war rendered valiant service as a Major in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces in France. He received his honorable discharge from the army six months ago and has since been engaged in Government service. "For the past two years I have been in bad health which was brought on by a chronic case of stomach trouble," said Major Park. "My appetite was practically gone and I ate very little of anything for I could hardly find a thing I could digest. Gas would form terribly on my stomach and give me a heavy, bloated feeling and cause my heart to palpitate so bad it was hard for me to breathe. I was troubled with constipation and had to be taking laxatives every few days. I had awful headaches regularly every other day and many times I wasn't able to go to work. While in France I was shell shocked and my nerves were simply a total wreck, why, the least unexpected noise nearly drove me frantic. Of course, it was hard for me to get to sleep at night and the little rest I got was disturbed by terrible dreams. My back, too, was weak and pained me constantly. "A few weeks ago I started taking Tanlac and I am surprised how fast it has built me up. I feel better and stronger in every way and am simply enjoying the very best of health. My appetite is fine and I don't have to be careful about what I eat now for everything digests properly. I am not troubled with constipation or headaches any more, and my back never pains me at all. My nerves are much quieter and I sleep fine every night. Tanlac is a dependable medicine and deserves all the praise people everywhere are giving it."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle.—adv.

SHAMROCK SKIPPER MAKES NO PROPHECY.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Captain W. P. Burton, master of Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, Shamrock IV, arrived here today from England on board the Adriatic, accompanied by his wife. He said that he would go to City Island at once to inspect this craft and his stretch of sails.

Captain Burton declared he already had competed in 999 races. Asked if his wife would accompany him on the thousandth one, as had been reported, he replied: "Mrs. Burton has not missed any of the 999. You can draw your own conclusions."

His wife was described by him as one of the best yachtswomen in Europe.

The skipper of the Shamrock IV, obtained a three months leave of absence from his duties as a member of the Royal Commission on wheat in order to handle the challenge in the coming race.

Captain Burton would make no predictions as to the probable outcome of the contest.

The Shamrock IV, carries a crew of one man to each 250 square feet of canvas, but beyond this Captain Burton would not make an statement as to the actual size of the crew. Sir Thomas Lipton is expected to arrive shortly, according to Captain Burton.

New Church for Portugal Cove.

His Lordship Bishop White, on Tuesday, at 3 p.m., laid the corner stone of the Church of St. Lawrence, Portugal Cove. His Lordship delivered one of those inspiring addresses for which he has been long noted. The following clergy, who had met in the forenoon at the Rectory for their quarterly Ruri-Decanal meeting, were present: Revs. Dr. Jones, Canon Bolt, Field, Hewitt and Jeeves, A. B. S. Strling, A. E. Tulk, H. W. Facey, A. Pittman, C. A. Moulton, H. L. Pike and A. E. E. Legge, Rector. The offerings, which will be devoted to the new Church Building Fund, amounted to $252.41.

For the Public Good.

The action taken by the Game and Fish Protection Association against the man Murray was finished in court yesterday, Murray being fined $20.00 or 30 days. In connection with this matter we may say that during the past twelve months there have been continued attempts made to damage the production of rainbow trout ova at the Club Pond, Portugal Cove Road. In August last butwots baited with meat were thrown in the fry pond, with the result that some of the finest egg producers in the Pond were destroyed. We look on this as a grave attempt to destroy the results and success of the above Association, who have done so much good in stocking Ponds with trout from which the general public derive so much benefit.—Com.

On Serious Mission.

LONDON, May 22.—(By Canadian Associated Press.)—Some mystery and much speculation surrounds the visit of Sir Robert Philip, former Premier of Queensland, who has just arrived on a mission about which he will give no information until he has seen the Colonial Secretary. He says, however, that he brings "serious information affecting not only Queensland but all Australia, New Zealand and Great Britain." He states that he and his companions also wish to discuss with the Colonial Secretary the appointment of an Overseas Governor for Queensland and recent legislation. The present Labor Premier is also now in London.

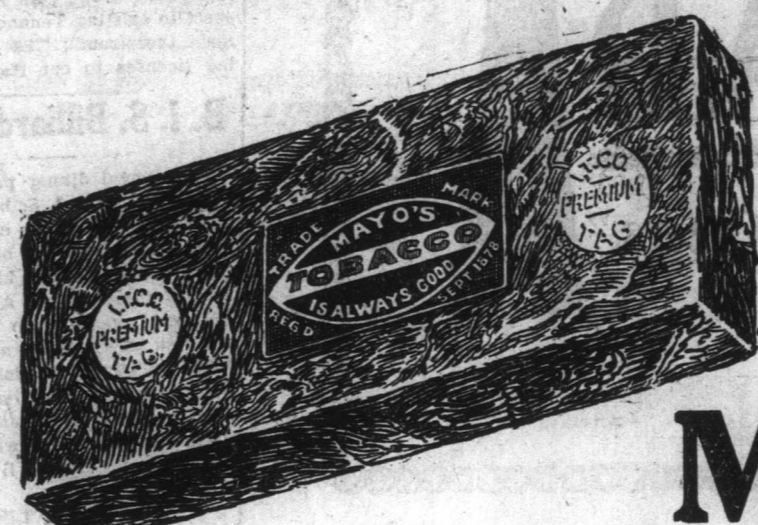

Runaway Husband Arrested.

By last evening's express Head Constable Crane arrived from Port aux Basques with a young man, who is charged with attempting to desert his wife. The accused left the city by last Sunday's express, unknown to his better half, who, learning of his intentions, acquainted the authorities. When apprehended at Port aux Basques the man was rather surprised, but came along without offering any assistance.

RULES FOR HUSBANDS AND WIVES.

RUTH CAMERON

The young letter friend who wanted me to tell her briefly the best qualities to look for in choosing a husband, also wanted me to lay down some sure-fire rules for happiness after marriage. I referred that second half of the request to a group of young, and not quite so young, married friends, and they furnished me with a set of rules. You may detect a spirit of jocularity running through them, but please do not forget that old saw about many a true word, and so forth. Incidentally you may find it interesting to guess which sex supplied which rules.

Rules for Husbands:
Say once in so often, "I don't know what I would ever do without my dear little wife."
Say once in so often, "You get sweeter or prettier or more adorable for whatever your favorite courting word was" every day.

This Doesn't Ingratiate You With Your Wife.
Do not be forever raving about some peach or chicken or flapper that you have seen.

If your wife asks you if you think some woman is good looking, show a very mild enthusiasm and pick out some flaw.

If your wife has a new dress, notice it without waiting to be asked, and for goodness sake, don't suddenly admire as new a dress or hat she has been patiently trying to wear out for three or four years.

Praise her good qualities to others as well as out of it. There are husbands who speak well of their wives behind their backs, but never say a gracious word in their hearing. Is it any wonder the wives don't think they are appreciated?

At Least Once a Day.
Kiss her at least once a day besides the good morning and good night kisses. Just spontaneously—as if you didn't help it.

Rules for wives:
Never interrupt him when he is telling a story to correct some small detail or to say he is exaggerating. Always look at him in company in a respectful way.

Never tell him of his faults. If you want to cure him of a fault, lie in wait for some time when he happens to display the opposite and then praise him to the skies. Men respond to praise ten times as quickly as to criticism.

Be careful how you use the weapon of tears. It works with some men (if you don't wear it out) but others it only enrages.

Don't argue with him any more than is absolutely necessary unless he is one man in a hundred that can stand it.

Men Like Women Who Respond.
Don't be too profuse in terms of endearment or expressions of affection but on the other hand don't expect him to be the only one to say "I love you." Men don't like affection when they are not in the mood for it but they do like a response.

Comment whenever you get a change on how strong he is.

You may admire other men if you like, men are less quickly jealous than women (according to Mr. George, because "they find it so difficult to conceive that their wife can find any other man attractive") but don't admire the special quality that he lacks.

Always make him feel that you feel sure he is going to climb to the top of his business or profession or that you think he would have if unjust circumstances had not prevented.

THE UNSENTIMENTAL MAN.

"He had no sentiment," he said. "Business is business," was his motto here.

"Play fair, but play to win the game and let no other reckoning interfere."

To hear him talk you'd think his heart was cold. Yet in a ditch his motor car he piled.

Risked his own life, to save a careless boy—and then got up and scolded at the child.

"Say, boy, don't ever try that trick again! Were I your dad I'd warn you good for that!

If you go rushing into busy streets some time some fool will knock you cold and flat.

You nearly got it that time; by an inch the fender missed you, and I don't know now

Just why I didn't hit you, but I guess the Lord was looking after you, somehow."

"Your car's a wreck," a passerby exclaimed. He gave the man a cold and icy stare.

"Why, so it is," indifferently he spoke. "I wonder how the blamed thing got in there?"

"You drove it in yourself to have the boy! 'Twas glorious courage."

This a woman said. And he who had no sentiment replied, "I did! By gosh I must have lost my head."

Mainly About People.

The leader of the woman suffrage movement in Japan is T. Nishioka, who was educated in America. The agitation has given him prominence and a chance for a place in the government. The Imperial Diet had had to dissolve because of a riot. Premier Hara's cabinet has passed from the unknown to the known and powerful.

The wife of Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, was the favorite child of George M. Pullman. She frequently accompanied her father on his trips and made friends of trainmen, dockmen and others by her cheery salutations and simplicity. Frank Lowden was a brilliant lawyer. He told Pullman that his capital consisted of "a clear head, a strong heart, willing hands and the ability to support your daughter as she would like to live."

Claude Beerbohm, whose famous father would have made him a barrister, is at 26 in New York acting. He is frank and simple, and very easy to get along with. He took over the Plymouth Theatre in Boston for a while. He doesn't find the road to success an easy one, especially with sign posts of the fame of his father at every cross road.

Charles M. Schwab doesn't believe the business tide is receding. Elbert H. Gary predicts the present era of prosperity will continue for some time yet to come. They have both qualified as business barometers and their predictions have weight.

One of the handsomest and most attractive women in London society is Viscountess Grimston, daughter of the Earl of Meath. She delights in outdoor sports and is the champion woman amateur hockey player in England. The oldest of her four sons married the daughter of the Earl of Dunraven the yachtsman.

Marquis Camden, who married a Nevill, a family of which it has been said "it was to medieval England what Douglas was to Scotland," and who came into a vast fortune, with a town house and two great country seats, has his great income so absorbed by government taxes that he has to "use much care to pay his bills." The marchioness is one of England's loveliest women. There are two sons and two daughters.

One of the smallest men in the British House and a glutton for work, Colonel L. S. Amery, M.P., who will deputize for Lord Milner as Colonial Secretary during the latter's absence in Egypt, is one of the cleverest of our politicians. A journalist by profession, he married a sister of Sir Hamar Greenwood, the honeymoon being interrupted while he fought an election. "Honeymoons will keep, but elections won't," quoth the bridegroom, with whom humour is a strong point.

Prince Albert recently celebrated his 24th birthday. His appearance in public has been frequent of late, and no doubt as time goes on and his elder brother gets more and more busy, we shall see him taking a prominent part in public affairs. During the war, it will be remembered, he saw service as a sailor, and he was present at the Battle of Jutland. Later he took up aviation, perhaps his taste for mechanics made the technical side of the business appeal to him. In his Navy days his favourite spot aboard ship was the engine-room, and his delight in the mechanical side of battleships earned for him the nickname of "Dirty Bert."

FORSAKEN FARMS.

There are no tollers willing to stay upon the farm; to town they all are drilling; the hayfield has no charm. I hear the farmers wailing as they go forth to plow; their standbys all are falling, there are no hired men now. The yeoman waves his money, and cries, "Who'll work for me?" And people think it funny his dire distress to see. The farmer seeks the village, imploring husky men to help him with his tillage and raise big crops again. He offers princely wages, he'd throw a chromo in, and all the village sages just sit around and grin. The farmer's rolling acres won't roll up ample crops; his money has no takers, no helper with him stops. There is no stalwart bumpkin to help him bale his wheat, he cannot thresh the pumpkin or shuck the sugar beet. The population's shifting to towns, we plainly see, and whither are we drifting, my friends, when such things be? If I were only younger I'd farm a strip of loam, and help to thwart the hunger that threatens every home. The farm lands of the nation must grow string beans and oats, or we shall have starvation, and lose our valued goats.

Buying Short.

Many of the larger suppliers in Western Outports, who deal considerably with St. John's firms are not buying such heavy stocks this spring as formerly. In all lines they are cutting down, and are merely carrying on with a sufficiency of necessities to tide them over from month to month and steamer to steamer. That they have reason for such curtailment of purchases is obvious. There is no shrewder business man anywhere than those who are engaged in the Western trade, and their stocks have ever contained variety and quantity. But they are shy on buying just now. Whether they fear present high prices may suddenly slump, and do not want to be caught with excess complements, or whether it is that because of the same high prices their local customers do not care to indulge in expensive articles, they do not declare. But one and all appear to be of equal mind, and are ordering a bare sufficiency each mail.

Many things have contributed to the commercial timidity, not the least of which is the legislation brought in by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries governing the export of cod-fish. Whether this will be good or bad remains to be seen, but in the meantime there are many who shake their heads. Another factor is the condition of the European markets, where slumps in fish prices seem to be the rule rather than the exception. Still another is the scarcity of salt and the difficulty experienced in procuring cargoes. All these, however, may be no more than temporary embarrassments to trade, and are bound to adjust themselves sooner or later. Always at this season of the year there crop up difficulties, but these have usually been met and tided over, and it is quite within the bounds of reason to believe that those of to-day will be just as successfully approached and overcome. The cause for complaint of slackness in trade lies in the fact that outport merchants are not anxious to over-stock. They want to see some possibilities of return for monies invested in goods, and who can blame them if, failing these, they are buying short. That they are alarmed over the outlook is but idle to imagine. They are simply playing safe, and sitting tight until there comes a general loosening up.

Markets abroad, the salt situation, the Fish Regulations, the tide of emigration, very large during the past month, high prices, and expectations of higher taxation, all these will adjust themselves and become normal, if given time. It is too early to fall victims of pessimism. The law of supply and demand is still in existence, and will shape the destiny of future prices. Dismal prophecies of failure here and failure there will not improve conditions. The season is rapidly approaching when the labors of the fisheries have to be taken up. There is not any valid reason why 1920 is going to be any worse than 1919 or preceding years. The duty of the hour can best be accomplished by action: going straight to the heart of things; taking up the burden of responsibility and carrying on, borne up by the hope of success, not oppressed by the phantom of failure. Production is the insistent call. Newfoundland's fisheries are rich. They supply all that the people and the country need. In them there are yet great possibilities. Certain of them have scarcely been developed. The world needs food and fish food is fast becoming a necessity. We can supply in great measure the demand for more fish. Though we are not in a position to dictate, the ability to produce is ours, and production and still more production of the natural resources with which the dominion and its waters abound will help in no small degree to solve the problem of the high cost of living and restore conditions to their normal state. No need then for alarm: no cause then for depression and gloom. The same opportunities are within our grasp as always were. The more readily the problem is tackled the more quickly will the solution appear.

Cathedral Tower Proposition.

MEETS WITH FAVOR.
The Synod Hall was filled with a large and representative gathering of Anglicans last night, showing that keen interest is being taken in the project of erecting the tower and spire, with chime of bells, on the Cathedral. His Excellency the Governor presided at the meeting, which opened with a prayer by the Rector, Rev. Canon Jeeves. Speeches dealing with the advisability of carrying on the project were delivered by His Excellency the Governor, the Lord Bishop, Sir Jos. Outerbridge, Rev. Dr. Jones, Hon. W. B. Grieve, M.L.C., Rev. A. B. Stirling, Rector of St. Mary's Parish, and Mr. J. R. Bennett, M.H.A., all of whom gave the movement their enthusiastic support. The policy of procedure was outlined by Rev. Canon Jeeves and opinions and suggestions given by several of those present. The ultimate conclusion arrived at was that the work should go forward under the direction of the committee, which it was agreed should be appointed by His Lordship Bishop White, and that their initial progress should enable them to present some workable scheme for the sanction of the forthcoming Synod in September. A vote of thanks was proposed by Sir W. H. Horwood, seconded by C. McK. Harvey, Esq., and accorded His Excellency, the Lord Bishop, the speakers and the C. L. B. Band, which rendered several selections during the evening. The meeting closed with the Blessing.

Supreme Court.

(Before the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Johnson.)
In the matter of the Election Petition of A. B. Hickman vs. W. H. Cave, member for the District of Bay de Verde. The trial Judges read the findings re the voters objected to by Mr. McNelly, and stated that 24 of the votes were illegal. In the counter claim by Mr. Mews, counsel for W. H. Cave, 3 votes were found to be illegal. A total of 24 votes will therefore have to be stricken off the number cast. In the election held in November Mr. Cave received 1,188 votes, while Mr. Hickman received 1,133. The result of the returns will not be made known until it is found for which party these 24 votes were cast. The identification began shortly after noon and up to one o'clock the box from one booth room only had been finished. Both Judges concurred in the finding, who also declared that as Mr. Hickman was guilty of bribery in making allocations to three persons, they, in the event of the returns showing that he had a majority vote, would not declare him the duly elected candidate.

Cured by Gold.

The very latest post-war discovery is the curing of certain ailments by means of injections of diluted gold. This very expensive method of restoring lost health was discovered by a French doctor, who has completely cured a wealthy Parisian of a complaint similar to shell-shock.

Although gold is very scarce at present, a limited supply is available for medicinal purposes. The price for one injection of good quality gold sometimes reaches the fifty-pound mark while in one or two exceptional cases gold injections have cost over a hundred pounds each. Consequently, only very rich persons can at present undergo this gold treatment, which has been successful in rescuing several cases of complete nervous breakdown. It should be remembered, however, that the gold itself is of no great value as a tonic. The idea in making the injections is to liven up the patient and prevent him or her from brooding too seriously. This done, doctors believe that half the battle is won.

It will also be very interesting to know that this gold treatment is now being used in several of the largest hospitals on the Continent. Until now only nervous people and those suffering from mental disorders have been treated, but experiments have recently shown that gold injections, costly though they are, are of great value in allaying fever and kindred diseases. Strange to say, the injections are not made through the usual type of syringe, but generally through a conical shaped tube of pure platinum costing over a hundred and fifty pounds.

Flogging With the "Cat."

Many English judges are advocating the use of the "cat" as punishment where offences with violence are proved. At Lincoln recently Mr. Justice Horridge passed sentence of twelve strokes each on four men convicted of robbery with violence, and his example is being followed all over the country.

There are two varieties of whip used for the purpose—the "cat-o-nine-tails" proper, which consists of nine leather thongs fastened to a short handle; and a long piece of tapering leather to which studs of lead are fastened at intervals.

Before undergoing the punishment the prisoner must be certified by the prison doctor as fit to bear it without danger to life or reason.

After passing the doctor the prisoner is taken to another room where a steel triangle has been erected; he is fastened to this by leather thongs round wrists and ankles, and stripped to the waist.

Before the punishment starts the doctor has again to examine the prisoner, and at any time while the strokes are being given the doctor has the power to stop the proceedings.

The sentence is then read out by the governor of the prison, and the number of lashes ordered duly given, after which the prisoner is handed over for medical treatment.

The whip is treated with strong antiseptic before each stroke.

Strokes up to the number of fifty may be ordered by a judge of assize, under the Act of 1863, but the sentence may not be carried out until ten days have passed, as the prisoner has power of appeal up to that time.

A City of Crime.

Although there is an epidemic of crime in most cities of the world, there is only one town which can boast of possessing more criminals than law-abiding folk. That is the Italian city of Artens, which is known as the City of Crime.

Ever since the sixteenth century every criminal who has escaped from prison or done his time has emigrated to Artens, and to-day practically every inhabitant is a criminal or a child of a criminal.

Every family takes the law into its own hands, and hardly a day passes without a murder being committed in the streets.

The Italian authorities have now come to look upon Artens as hopeless, and remark that it is far better that criminals should kill criminals than that innocent persons should be their victims.

The World's First Auto.

The world's first automobile is not yet half a century old. It is the property of the Marquis de Broc, of France. The authentic record of this self-propelled road car is that it was built (at enormous expense) in 1878. It was used on long road trips, and had a speed of about twenty-eight miles an hour. But the marquis stopped using it, as it frightened the neighbors' horses! It somewhat resembles a stagecoach in design, having a powerful engine in the front and a chimney in the rear. It was propelled by steam, much as our steam rollers are to-day. The small wire railing at the top was intended to hold baggage while travelling, and it is evident that the car was fitted up with every convenience which could be contrived at the time. The car is now stored in the marquis's garage.

Making Better Cakes

There is nothing better for making cakes than Freeman's Egg Powder, which is not merely a substitute for eggs but actually an improvement upon them—being lighter and more digestible. It is also much more economical in use than are eggs.

In the Prize Ring.

FRENCH CHAMP. AT MONTREAL.

Montreal, May 15.—Smiling Georges Carpentier, hero of the great war, European heavyweight champion and challenger for Jack Dempsey's title, created an impression that will long live in the memory of the seven thousand who crowded Mount Royal arena last night to witness his boxing exhibition. Unlike the majority of prize fighters, Carpentier is modest and reticent in his manner, and accepted the warm reception accorded him with the smile that has earned countless friends for him since his arrival in America. He was ushered into the ring by Mayor Martin and Dr. Boucher, president of the Canadian Hockey Club, under whose auspices the entertainment was given.

When introduced, Carpentier bowed and smiled like a lad fresh from college, and acknowledged the welcome by waving his hands to the crowd. Carpentier was accompanied into the ring by his manager, Deschamps. Previous to the exhibition, Carpentier was presented with a travelling bag by Mayor Martin, on behalf of the members of the Canadian Hockey Club.

Carpentier's exhibition was almost of too short a duration, as it only afforded a glimpse of what he is capable of doing. He sparred only three rounds with his sparring partner, Jules Lanoers, an old-time prize fighter, who was introduced as the European champion. The European champion did not evince the delight at bearing the knockdown that other champions who have displayed their wares in a local ring showed, but stopped and helped Lanoers to his feet and apologized for the hard blow. There is nothing of the bragado style about the French fighter, and he went through his work in well-trained and machine-like order.

Carpentier's greatest asset, and the blow with which he has disposed of the majority of his opponents, is a right uppercut. In delivering that blow Carpentier wheels so that if it misses the mark he is protected against his opponent's attack. Carpentier is as agile as a kitten, and can use his left as well as his right hand in administering punishment.

He displayed marked ability at fighting, although he apparently pulled his punches while attacking Lanoers. In appearance Carpentier is the last man who would be taken for a prize fighter. He bears none of the marks usually displayed by champions, while his physique resembles that of a finely trained track athlete. He strikes larger than he looks in street attire, and his muscles, although soft and pliable, stand out, showing him to be in perfect physical condition.

That he is versatile was shown by his frequent changes of tactics. In each round Carpentier displayed a different style and each carried with it effectiveness and determination. Although Lanoers is a heavier man than the champion, he was held off and only on one or two occasions was able to land on Carpentier, while the Frenchman broke down his partners' guard at will and landed right and left hand punches to face and body.

Previous to the boxing exhibition Carpentier held a reception in the office of the arena and was introduced to many of Montreal's most prominent boxing enthusiasts. He had little to say of his proposed meeting with Dempsey, but admitted that he was anxious to meet the American titleholder.

DEMPSEY'S TRIAL IN JUNE.

San Francisco, May 15.—The date set for the trial of Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, and his manager, Jack Kearns, on selective draft evasion charges, was set for Monday, June 7, in the United States District Court here to-day.

SCORES TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT.

Law Tender, of Philadelphia, scored a technical knockout over Georges Papin, the French lightweight boxing champion, in the 8th round of a scheduled 12-round bout, at Jersey City.

NEW BOXING RULES FOR QUAKER CITY.

Philadelphia, May 15.—Philadelphia's Director of Public Safety, James T. Cortelyou, recently announced a new code of rules to govern boxing bouts in that city which it is believed will benefit the ring sport there. Under the old rules, which had been in vogue for about nine years, all bouts were limited to six rounds, but Director Cortelyou, has decided to allow bouts of eight rounds duration. He claims that by lengthening the number of rounds, boxers will be less apt to "stall" and every fighter who signs up for a match will have to "weigh in" at, or under, the stipulated weight called for in his contract. The director also has asserted that the new code will be enforced to the letter and has warned all promoters, managers and boxers to that effect. Following are some of the new rules:

Contestants shall not be permitted to have more than three attendants or seconds and these must refrain from coaching during the progress of the rounds.

Seconds shall use a fan and not a towel for fanning boxers.

All seconds shall remain in their boxers' corner during the bout and not place themselves in a neutral corner.

Throwing water by seconds on their men during a round shall disqualify the boxer, and one-half of the latter's money shall go to a hospital to be designated by the club.

Wherever a boxer is apparently outclassed the bout must be stopped.

No boxer shall be allowed to contest against an opponent ten pounds heavier than himself, in the light-weight class or under.

Weights shall be announced from the ringside.

Only soft bandages shall be allowed on boxer's hands.

Only six round bouts permissible. The foul blow, known as the "kidney punch," shall be barred.

Smoking shall be prohibited.

No boxer shall be permitted to wear white costume.

Every contestant must be furnished a contract, signed by manager, boxer and promoter.

Greasing boxers shall not be permitted.

All contestants in star bouts shall report to the superintendent of police twenty-four hours before the contest.

In case of disappointment the public must be notified.

Gloves must be put on in the ring.

Gambling in any form shall be prohibited. Any boxer, manager or handler guilty of gambling, shall be barred from contests in this city for all time.

O'DOWD WON.

Camden, N.J., May 14.—Mike O'Dowd, the St. Paul middleweight won his 10-round bout with Jackie Clark, of Allentown, Pa., here to-night. O'Dowd was the aggressor throughout and had the better of eight of the ten rounds, all of which were fast and furious. It was O'Dowd's first fight since a referee's decision in Boston gave his title of middleweight champion to Johnny Wilson. It was also the first ten-round fight to be staged here under the auspices of the New Jersey boxing commission.

Willie Jackson, New York, defeated Young Russo, Philadelphia. Billy De-foe, St. Paul, won from Ralph Brady, Syracuse, N.Y., and Johnny Murray, New York, beat Joe O'Donnell in eight-round bouts.

A CHANGE OF OPINION.

Watery Blood

YOUR blood may be rich and red—well stored with nourishment for the cells and tissues, or it may be thin, weak, and watery.

If thin, there is a pallor of the lips, gums and inside of eyelids. In other words you are anaemic or bloodless.

Since every ounce of nourishment supplied to the human system is obtained from the blood, the anaemic condition means a starving of the nerves and crippled functioning of the vital organs.

Headache, lack of energy and ambition, failure of the digestive system, shortness of breath, weak heart action and sluggish, torpid condition of the liver, kidneys and bowels are some of the symptoms of anaemia.

Cure can only be brought about by improving the condition of the blood by use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

The digestive system has failed to supply proper nourishment from the food you eat, so you must get the blood-forming elements in condensed and easily assimilated form as they are found in this well-known food cure.

The letters published here will give an idea of the benefits to be obtained from the use of

Never a corn on millions of feet nowadays

Do you know that millions of people who use Blue-jay keep entirely free from corns?

If a corn appears it is ended by a touch. A Blue-jay plaster or a drop of liquid Blue-jay is applied.

The corn pain stops. Soon the whole corn loosens and comes out.

The method is scientific, its gentle, easy, sure. Old-time harsh treatments are supplanted by it with every one who knows it.

It is made by a world-famed laboratory, which every physician respects.

It is now applied to some 20 million corns a year. You can see that corn troubles are fast disappearing.

Then why pare corns and keep them? Why use methods which are out-of-date? Try this new-day method. See what it does to one corn. You will never forget its quick and gentle action. Your druggist sells Blue-jay.

$4000 NO INDUCEMENT.

Toronto, May 14.—That the directors of athletic events for the carnival which will be held here the week beginning May 22 are making a great effort to provide real entertainment is shown by the fact that they have offered Frankie Fleming $4000 to box Champion Johnny Kilbane. Fleming, however, refused, and chances are not bright that he will come to terms.

Among those who have been or are being communicated with are Jack Dempsey, Fred Fulton, Harry Willis, Sam McVey, Sam Langford the new middleweight champion, J. Wilson, the ex-champion Mike O'Dowd; welterweight champion Jack Britton; Eddie Fitzsimmons, Lew Tendler and others of reputation.

The complete programme will be announced Wednesday, when all matches are made and contracts signed.

WILDE AFTER BANTAMWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP.

New York, May 15.—Jimmy Wilde, world's flyweight champion, will seek the bantamweight crown next fall.

"I have been approached several times recently about a bout with Pete Herman for the bantamweight championship, and I'm willing, if I don't have to give away too much weight," the little Welshman said to-day.

Wilde said that Tex Rickard, setting presumably as the matchmaker for the International Sporting Club, had been talking to him about the match.

"I'll box anybody in the world up to 116 pounds," he said. "If Herman will come in around that mark, I'll meet him any time."

It is thought that the Wilde-Herman

The Real Profiteers.

(Observer in Family Herald and Weekly Star.)

Official statistics will bear me out in my statement that the profiteers of war time were drawn chiefly from the selling classes, which disposed of things, manufactured or grown, needed in the war. Very few of the manufacturers were able to pay large dividends, and not many farmers became absolutely rich. I know that contrary opinions prevail very strongly, but careful observation makes me pretty certain about that. Certain classes of laborers and mechanics did acquire snug little fortunes, because there was a "rush" market for what they were qualified to do. And many middlemen made large profits. One man I knew slightly, made a fortune in handling beef, and his money came from a poor government which will in turn collect it from its people. Another turned over blankets, from mills to the authorities of one of the armies. A ship-owner, I know, made twice the paid value of his ships,—but ran prodigious risks in doing so. I might go on to some length if it would do any good. But all that is past and gone. It is the price of things now, and the condition of public affairs to-day that I am most concerned with. We need economy at the present time more than any other one thing in the world. Money is more evenly distributed than it has been for many a day, even if there are some over-fat pigs in some pig-sties. Take care of it. Don't allow the prevailing wave of extravagance to carry you along. Get the money into the bank, or into good Government—not, mark you, industrial—bonds. Save it, whatever you do. Some sort of crash is bound to follow these days of inflation. Even the wild things in fair summer days know, in the back of their heads, where to go, to get well under cover when the storm breaks. Sometimes it is true, as everyone who watches the weather knows, that the finest day may prestage the worst kind of a storm.

Hardly Convincing.

Lady Astor, whose strong views on the temperance question are well known, recently told this story, possibly as a warning to parents against encouraging dissimulation in their offspring.

A certain man (said her ladyship) had been an abstainer for twenty years. Then he fell from the way of grace, and started to make up for lost time.

One morning he woke up with a thirst that seemed unquenchable. Nor did he try to quench it. He waited longingly for twelve o'clock.

At fifteen minutes to the hour he sent his boy to the village grocery for four syphons of soda-water.

At noon, precisely, he dispatched him to the village hostelry for a bottle of whiskey.

"But," cried the proprietor, "who's it for?"

"For my father," said the boy.

"Nonsense. Your father is a total abstainer, and has been, to my knowledge, for longer years than you've lived."

"Well, at any rate, he sent me for it."

"What does he want it for?"

"To let you into a secret," said the boy, ashamed to tell the truth, "he's going behind, and he wants the cork to use for a boat!"

Fatal Mistakes in Making Up Medicines.

A Burton doctor telephoned to his assistant for a bottle of eserine sulphate, one seventy-fifth of a grain to the mink. The dispenser taking down the message converted the fraction into a decimal, and the prescription sent was some sixty times its proper strength.

All unsuspecting of the blunder, the nurse administered the prescribed dose, and the patient died.

When you think of all the thousands of prescriptions that are made up every day in the week, the real wonder is not that such mistakes occur, but that there are not more of them.

The fact is, however, that the ordinary retail pharmacist is quite as careful, perhaps even more so, than the bank cashier. So scrupulous are they that some of them even decline the services of medical students who come prepared to pay a fee to be taught dispensing. They feel that in so doing they would not be acting fairly towards their customers.

A testimonial to the care the chemist exercises is that, although much of the contents of his shelves are desperately inflammable, yet fire insurance companies actually grant them fire insurance policies at distinctly lower rates than are required from other classes of shopkeepers.

You may take it, however, that the average dispenser never gets over his fear of blundering. It would not be difficult, for instance, to confound Epsom salts with oxalic acid, or spirits of hartshorn with sal-volatile, and there are many other substances equally alike of which one is harmless, the other deadly.

Why Rivers Wind.

Take a compass and a map. Measure a river—say the Thames—and note the distance from its source to its mouth. It is only about 120 miles. Yet measure it along all its windings and you find that its actual length is more than double that. It is, in fact, close upon 250 miles.

The Rhine and the Danube wind about the similar fashion. As for the great Mississippi, there are many parts of it which curve so greatly that you may steam twenty miles and find yourself only two or three away from your starting point.

Study the map a little more and you will discover another curious point—that rivers which run through flat country wind more than those which come down swiftly through mountain valleys.

A river making its way from source to sea naturally finds its way through the lowest levels of the valleys through which it runs. But when, as in the case of the Mississippi, it runs for great distances through country almost as flat as a pancake, it is clear that this cause alone is not sufficient to account for its curious curves.

Recent researches show that running water has a certain rhythmic motion, and that it presses not only forward, but also to each side. Granted that the earth is soft and that the current is not confined by rocks, this is the real reason of its serpentine course.

Man may straighten the course of a river by canalising it, but if he does so, it is absolutely necessary that he makes the banks solid with stone or cement. If he should fail to do so, the first flood will break the banks down on one side or the other, and within the course of a few years, the river will be winding along as crookedly as ever before.

The Functions of a Research Bureau.

Ottawa.—The establishment of a bureau for scientific research in Canada was recommended to the members of the House of Commons by Hums Cronyn, M.P., in the course of remarks delivered while moving the adoption of the report of the special committee appointed to enquire into the possibility of such a development.

The functions of a research bureau, he said, were of two kinds. In the first place it will be charged with the standardization of measures, including standard of length, volume, weight, etc.; of heat, light, electricity, and other forms of energy; of technical and scientific apparatus, whether used in the public service or in the industries of the country, and of the quality of materials required in the construction of public works and of supplies needed in the various branches of the Government service.

The second function of the institute is to direct and supervise researches into technical processes and methods so as to assist in the development of the natural resources of the country, in the expansion of existing industries, or the furthering of new industries, and in the utilization of those materials which had hitherto been discarded as waste products. The methods to be followed in the fulfilment of the latter part of the programme, he pointed out, will be similar to those already adopted by Great Britain and the United States. An endeavor will be made in this country to form trade associations or trade guilds for research expert will be selected, and his interest in some form of activity will be brought together and through their joint efforts and subscriptions a competent scientific investigator or research expert will be selected, and his salary paid by the guild. This man and his assistants would be allotted a properly equipped laboratory in the governmental central research institute, where he would find at his disposal not only the various mechanical and physical appliances with which the institute will be furnished but the skilled experience and advice of the Government experts in charge of the institute.

Why?

Why should men with decent names—Royal George and princely James—Lop and crock them, spoil their looks For bills and envelopes and books? But so it is; from Ross to Rio James is Jas and George is Geo; Woman on the quite contrary Simply prints her Mary, Mary; Jane may be a J, and so Might John, but he prefers it Jno; Percy never turns to Py, Or Cuthbert, Cub, but Henry's H; And if I wrote "Dear Wm" to Bill Conceivably he'd take it ill, While Thos would write me down as ass.

If this I mentioned him to Chas; So there it is, 'twould seem to be Untutored by constancy.—H. Wolfe.

HARDWARE DEPARTMENT.

Legislative Council.

May 27.

The House opened at 4 p.m. The Bills entitled "An Act to amend the Judicature Act," and an "Act to provide for the Standardization of Codfish," passed the third reading.

The Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 172 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Survey of Foreign-going and Labrador Vessels,'" passed the committee stage with some amendments.

The Bill entitled "An Act to provide for the better obtaining of Information respecting the Codfishery," passed the committee without further amendment.

On a division of the House three members voted for amendment i.e., to have the words "and qualities" stricken out.

Hon. John Anderson spoke on the Bill saying that he understood that a number of the fish merchants did not agree with the measure, but he was of the opinion that the majority thought the bill a good one and worthy of trial.

Hon. S. Miller, speaking on Section 5 of the Bill said he interviewed a number of fish exporters this morning and every one of them would like to see the words "and qualities" stricken out. It is a very small matter to have the words stricken out.

Hon. M. P. Gibbs spoke at length on the bill and urged its adoption.

The Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 176 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Encouragement of Shipbuilding,'" passed the committee stage with some amendments, and the Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 183 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Management and Control of the Harbor of Grand Bank,'" passed without amendment.

The Bills entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 4 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of Legislative Disabilities and the Vacation of Seats in the House of Assembly,'" "An Act to Provide for the Lighting of Outport Streets," "An Act to amend Chapter 88 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of Stipendiary Magistrates and Justices of the Peace,'" second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 27 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of Death Duties,'" passed the second reading.

A Bill entitled "An Act Concerning the Registration of Midwives," passed the second reading. Hon. Dr. Campbell stating he wished to move an amendment when the bill goes to committee. As it is an important bill he would go into the details at that time.

The Bills entitled "An Act for the Confirmation of a Contract with the Sisu Shipping Company, Limited," and "An Act to amend Chapter 137 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Fire Patrol,'" reached the committee stage.

The War Tax Act and the Profit-sharing Act were read a first time.

The House adjourned at 6 p.m. till this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

PRESIDENT'S OFFER ACCEPTED.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 27. The offer of President Wilson to appoint a commission to arbitrate the Anthracite wages dispute was accepted here to-day by an overwhelming vote of the tri-district convention of hard coal miners. The mine workers, however, ask the privilege of selecting a practical man to represent them on the commission. The convention adopted a resolution declaring that the miners were forced to accept the commission as industrial class legislation makes it almost humanly impossible to wage a successful strike. In accepting the President's offer the miners agreed to continue at work under the retroactive understanding reached by operators and miners, and reiterated by the President, which will protect the men workers in wage increases as from April first.

HUGE BERG.

NEW YORK, May 27. A large iceberg the size of which was given at about half a mile long, and seven hundred feet high, and being of similar shape to the rock of Gibraltar was observed on May sixteen in latitude forty three, nineteen, long, forty five, fifty three, it was announced in shipping circles here to-day.

RUSSIANS TALK BACK.

LONDON, May 27. A recent communication sent by Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary of the League of Nations to the Russian Soviet Government expressing regret that the Moscow authorities had set up conditions tantamount to a refusal to allow the Committee of the League to visit Soviet Russia, has been answered by M. Tchitcherin, Soviet Commissary for Foreign Affairs. A Moscow wireless despatch, to-day, says Tchitcherin stated in this reply that the Soviet Government felt compelled to express astonishment to the character of the League of Nations, which while declaring that its object was the restoration of justice and peace, had granted one of its members, Poland, "full freedom to violate peace and strangle justice, by trying to convert the Ukraine into a Vassal state." The commissary declares that other members of the League are affording Poland assistance, both directly and indirectly, and at the same time were giving help to anti-Bolsheviks in the Crimea. The most elementary requirements for the safety of the Republic, adds Tchitcherin, makes it impossible, under these conditions, for Soviet Government to take any other decision.

BETTER SALARY FOR THE CLERGY.

TORONTO, May 27. Every Methodist minister in Canada and Newfoundland henceforth, is to be paid a minimum salary of fifteen hundred dollars a year, with parsonage and horse keep in addition, according to a decision arrived at here to-day by the general Conference special committee. Rev. Dr. Chown, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church at the outset spoke in favor of advancing the minimum from twelve to fifteen hundred dollars, which he said was necessary in view of upward trend of the prices of food and commodities, and the members of the Committee agreed with him.

POLES DEFEAT BOLSHIES.

WARSAW, May 27. Bolsheviki, in strength, forced the passage of the Beresina River, South of Borisov, but the Poles by a concentration attack, recrossed the river cutting off the enemy's retreat and taking hundreds of prisoners, says a despatch issued to-day. The remainder of the enemy took refuge in the forests behind the Polish front, the communication adds.

URGES GENERAL ELECTION.

OTTAWA, May 27. R. S. Maxwell of Winnipeg, Dominion Press Agent of the Great War Veterans Association, has been here for several days investigating the political situation, to-night issued the following message to seventy-seven branches of the Association throughout the Dominion: "From a knowledge gained of political and economic conditions in Canada during the three years efforts on the part of the Great War Veterans Association to obtain equitable reconstruction legislation, I deem it my duty to urge upon you the necessity of an early general election. Parliament has confessed its inability to redeem its former pledges and to restore to returned soldiers and dependents, in a substantial measure, those economic conditions they would now enjoy but for war service. Parliament has shown a reluctance to offset such failure by general measures for the improvement of living conditions throughout the country, whereby returned men might more readily regain a secure foothold in national life."

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, May 27. A Government steamer from Woolwich, loaded with munitions, arrived here Tuesday, but was unable to discharge. The dockers and railwaymen refused to handle the cargo and the steamer now lies in the harbor alongside a destroyer. A meeting of railwaymen of all grades held in Cork unanimously declared not to handle any munitions in that city.

NOT ANXIOUS, BUT COMPELLED. LONDON, May 27. Far-reaching possibilities hinge on the success or failure of the conferences about to take place between members of the British Government and representatives of Soviet Russia, some of which are already in London. There is a distinct air of hostility to the proceedings among officials of the Foreign Office, especially among the Conservative element. These men are insistent that before opening any negotiations the Russians must agree to the following five demands by Great Britain: Amnesty for the fragments of Denikine's Government; repatriation of all prisoners; hands off in Persia and the Near East; cessation of international propaganda and no invasion of Poland. Although, generally speaking, Great Britain is not over-anxious to deal with Russia, there exists a feeling of apprehension that Germany and Italy may resume relations before England, and thus obtain a prior foothold unless some agreement is reached.

NOTHING DOING.

WASHINGTON, May 27. After a three-hour wrangle the House Foreign Affairs Committee adjourned until to-morrow, without taking any final action on the resolution providing for the virtual recognition of a Provisional Irish Republic.

WILL ASK CONFIDENCE OF CHAMBER.

PARIS, May 27. Premier Millerand, on Friday, will answer interpellations in the Chamber of Deputies on the fixing of German indemnity. The Premier will be obliged to ask for a vote of confidence on the method he shall follow for execution of the Treaty of Versailles, and will request the Chamber to express clearly, in an order of the day, confidence in the Government, giving him full authority to pursue the negotiations.

RUSSIA RECOGNISES LETVIA.

LONDON, May 27. The Lettish and Bolshevik Peace Delegations, which have been sitting at Moscow, have reached an agreement by which Russia recognizes the complete independence of Letvia, according to a statement from an official source in London.

FOR FOOD ONLY.

KINGSTOWN, Ireland, May 27. The railwaymen have withdrawn their refusal to forward a military supplies train, which was held up for several days because it was believed to carry munitions. It was disclosed, however, that there was nothing aboard except a hundred tons of fresh beef.

DETERMINED ON VIOLENCE.

TRALEE, Ireland, May 27. The Balteague Coast Guard Station was attacked by armed men last night. The six Coast Guards resisted, but were forced to surrender. Their arms and ammunition were taken and their wives and children turned out, after which the building was burned.

SHORT WHEAT PRODUCTION.

WASHINGTON, May 27. The wheat crop of New South Wales has been so disastrously affected by drought, that the yield probably will not be sufficient to meet domestic consumption in Australia, said a report to-day from the American Consulate at Sydney, N.S.W.

CANADA'S REPARATION BILL.

OTTAWA, May 27. Canada's claim against Germany for reparation for losses sustained by that country and individual citizens during the war, has been forwarded to England for presentation at the conference of representatives of all parts of the British Empire, soon to be held in London, and subsequently at an inter-Allied conference at Spa. This bill rendered by the Dominion is for total of one billion, eight hundred and seventy-one million dollars.

Step by Step.

An amusing story is told about Ivy Donnelly, the famous actress. A brother "pro" was relating to the company a remarkable experience of his while in America.

"It was when I was in New York," he began. "A skyscraper was in flames. At one of the windows stood a lady, but none of the ladders were high enough to reach her."

"We were just beginning to despair of saving her when one of the firemen got a bright idea. He dragged the hose close to the building and shot a stream of water directly in front of the window."

"Summoning up her courage, the lady stepped from the ledge, wrapped her arms and legs around the column of water and slid to the bottom and safety."

"That's nothing!" piped up Miss Donnelly. "I saw an even more exciting rescue than that once."

"A large hotel was burning furiously when, at a top-storey window, a fireman appeared."

"I stared, the firemen stared, the policemen stared. In fact everybody stared so hard that finally the girl walked down the stairs to safety."

A Violin Worth Many Times Its Weight in Gold

Albert Spalding, the celebrated violinist, is the possessor of a wonderful limped toned Guarnerius, said to be one of the most valuable instruments in the world.

This magnificent specimen of the Cremona School first attracted wide attention when it was purchased about 100 years ago in Italy by the famous connoisseur Tauris and taken by him to France. Since then it has been one of the most sought for violins in the world. Its value cannot be estimated. Made in 1785 it has been wonderfully preserved. The reddish varnish is still thick and luminous. It has a tone of matchless beauty and depth, and is said to be without superior and has but few equals in the violin world.

It is almost impossible to place any value on one of these rare instruments. Some of them could scarcely be purchased at any price. Ordinarily well preserved specimens of the work of the great Italian violin makers, Stradivari, Guarnerius and Amati, are sold for prices that are almost unbelievable to the average man. A price of $10,000 for a genuine, high grade specimen made by one of these makers is not at all unusual.

According to tradition a tract of 1600 acres in the heart of what is now the city of Pittsburgh was once traded for a "Stainer" violin.

As a violin weighs less than a pound and an ounce of gold is worth $20.80, the celebrated Stradivarius which was sold at an auction in London for $50,000, brought more than one hundred and fifty times its weight in gold. And this matchless Guarnerius of Mr. Spalding's is just as valuable.

April Fool's Day.

HOW THE FIRST OF APRIL GOT ITS NAME.

It is from an old custom dating from the time of the Druids that the First of April takes its name. Although most people call it "All Fools' Day" it is more than likely that it should be "Old Fools' Day"—a modern way of saying "Auld Fools' Day."

In the old Druid times, any young maidens who could pluck up enough courage (for it was considered a daring thing to do) used to visit one of the sacred "Groves" between ten and twelve o'clock on the night of April 1st. Here they all stood behind one another, and as soon as they heard the hoot of an owl, started slowly running round and round. As they ran they sang some weird old chant, the gist of which was that they wanted a man to run with them!

Then those of the girls who were to be married during the next year, would suddenly see the ghost of a white man by their side. A black escort showed that the unfortunate young lady was going to die during the ensuing year.

Well, the story goes that on the occasion of one of these performances, the ghost of an extremely aged white man came and showed marked attention to one of the young ladies, much to everyone else's amusement.

After the ceremony the young lady got so tired of the way her friends chipped her that she ran away, took up her abode in another "Camp," and within a few months became the wife of the chieftan—a bearded old man.

The incident of the old man appearing at the ceremony led to its being called the "Auld Fools' Gamboi," from whence it is quite probable the modern name has come.

Fashions and Fads.

Navy and white are popular shades for the large hat.

Gingham frocks have aspired to huge white organdie pockets.

The shallow neck is a favorite in organdie and gingham frocks.

White, organdie dresses have little costumes of bright-hued taffeta.

One taffeta bathing suit has gay worsted balls fluttering from it.

Very fashionable is the heavy roll of hair at the back of the head.

An organdie slip is worn under a taffeta frock with cut-work on the skirt.

One organdie frock is embroidered with straw roses and belted with raffia.

An elaborate afternoon frock has a skirt made of tier on tier of plaited ruffles.

Knickers edged with accordion-pleated ruffles accompany the small girl's frock.

Skirts may be finished with ruffles, pleatings or fringe instead of being hemmed.

For plain white voile frocks are narrow white patent leather belts with red rings.

A few evening gowns show short trains, and this feature may prove to be very popular.

Narrow skirts are trimmed with a great many small scallops, cut deep into the material.

A summer wrap is of plaited black satin with a huge collar edged with monkey fur.

English prints in red and white or blue and white make delightful little morning dresses.
