Uncensored Letter to Switzerland Says Idea Steadily Gains Ground.

REVOLUTION IS SURE

All Classes of Teutonic People Recognize Change is Inevitable.

Persistent rumors in Germany that the Kaiser is preparing to abdicate, that a revolution would result in the establishment of a republic, and that German officials are preparing to offer peace based on an unconditional surrender are discussed by a German writer of an uncensored letter which reached Switzerland and was published in a newspaper there. A translation of this letter, which is one of the most remarkable to be made public, was given to The Toronto World last night by James Cusins, president of the Swiss society in Toronto. It furnishes an interesting insight into the internal affairs of Germany, and discloses the fact that the unrest and disturbances in Germany, hints of which have been revealed in the censored news emanating from that country, are more serious than the peoples of the allies have been led to believe. The letter follows: "The situation in Germany and the great difficulty of getting food supplies to the soldiers on the rear lines are causing great privations. Prices of food are incredibly high. At Frankfurt one goose sold for 100 marks (about $25), and one ham brought 120 to 150 marks. The millionaires can stand it, but for the laboring classes the insufficiency and poor quality of the food they obtain is endangering the public health. After-war Revolution. "Those people who have gone out of Germany in the last few weeks agree that revolutionary proposals have been made. We have not believed in the possibility of a general revolution before the accomplishment of peace. It is no longer an impossibility. It is spoken about openly everywhere in the cafes and in the trains, and not only the advanced socialists are now preparing for a change of government. The great manufacturers and business

Total, 110,956. These casualties, added to those previously reported, give the following totals since the beginning of the war: Killed and died of wounds or sickness, 1,068,127; prisoners and missing, 557,410; wounded, 2,731,223. ### ALLIES MASS SOLDIERS FOR MARCH IN SERBIA

Big Concentration Proceeds in Thessaly Behind General Sarrail's Centre—British Abandon Villages on Eastern Bank of Struma.

London, June 18.—The massing of entente troops in Thessaly, south of the centre of the line now held by General Sarrail's forces, taken in connection with the withdrawal of British forces on the extreme eastern wing along the lower reaches of the Struma River, seemingly is an indication that big events are in the making in the Macedonian theatre in an attempt to retake Serbia at least that portion of it as far as Nish, through Serbia the famous Berlin-Constantinople railway. Along the Vardar and Morava River valleys, northward thru Serbia undoubtedly would prove easier ground over which to operate than northward along the Struma and thru western Bulgaria to the junction of the railway at Sofia. No impediment is being placed in the way of the troops that have been landed in Thessaly, and while the departure of former King Constantine from the country, the people are declared to have become more friendly to the allied cause by the government of Eleutherios Venizelos. Also on the eastern wing the British have given up numerous villages which they previously burned, they are holding tightly to the bridgehead position on the left bank of the River

CONSCRIPTION BATTLE IS BEGIN FOSTER POWERFUL IN DEFENCE

Implied Contract to Support and Reinforce Troops at Front Must Be Carried Out, He Declares, Branding Laurier Amendment as "Miserable, Dilatory Motion"—Laurier Asserts Government is Guilty of Breach of Faith and Demands That People Be Consulted.

By a Staff Reporter.
OTTAWA, June 18.—The fight on conscription began in the house of commons today, and the Liberal policy to a certain extent was defined by the amendment offered by Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the second reading of the bill. He moved that the conscription bill be not further proceeded with until it had been submitted by referendum to the electorate. His amendment was supported by Hon. Frank Oliver and Hon. Charles Macell, both of whom, by the way, declared themselves to be in favor of the principle of conscription. Mr. Oliver complained that the law was not drastic enough, and Mr. Macell declared that the present parliament was moribund and defunct, and had no mandate from the people.

Points in Laurier's Address
If there is a referendum and the people vote for conscription, the people of Quebec will cheerfully acquiesce in that decision. Today the government insists on forcing thru a moribund parliament, a rump parliament, without consultation with the people, a measure which it has proclaimed every day from Aug. 4, 1914, to April 18, 1917, it would never resort to. It would change the law, as old as Canada itself, that no man shall be compelled to serve as a soldier against his will, except to repel an invasion. The government has never brought the Militia Act into force or sought to justify sending a Canadian expeditionary force abroad by its provisions. Conscription has aroused bitter opposition and caused a deep line of cleavage, not only between province and province, but between classes and classes in all the provinces. No such radical change in national policy should be made without first appealing to the people. The working people are saying to the government: "If you compel us to give up our lives, you must compel the rich men to give up their money."

Quebec's showing is poor, but it is due to faulty recruiting methods. If proper appeal had been made at the beginning the people of Quebec would have responded. Militia Act, and suggested that Canadian volunteers enlist and be regarded as imperial troops. On August 15, 1914, an order-in-council had been passed asking the British Government to fix the status of Canadian volunteers by bringing them under the British Army Act. "Preposterous Theory." The government, Sir Wilfrid argued, had never until lately advanced the preposterous theory that Canadian militiamen could be sent by compulsion to fight overseas, and it had told parliament and the people over and over again that there was to be no conscription. On January 1, 1916, the prime minister had called for 50,000 volunteers. A year later, when parliament met a few days later he had been asked if this was prelude to conscription, and the prime minister had replied in substance: "At the outbreak of the war I stated there would be no conscription, and I repeat that statement today with emphasis."

French-Canadians were separated from France by 400 years. He doubted if there were a dozen families in Quebec that had any relations in France, unless they had been created by recent marriages. Moreover, the people of Quebec had taken no interest for over a century in military affairs. When the colony was conquered the English authorities had cleared all the inhabitants. Since then, except for a regiment or two of militia in the large cities, the French-Canadians had no military training or organization. In 1911 the Conservative party, thru their friends the Nationalists, had made the square issue that Canada should never take part in the wars of the empire outside of Canada, and upon that issue they had elected 27 members of parliament and had divided the popular vote. Faulty Recruiting Methods. Faulty recruiting methods were also to blame, in Sir Wilfrid's opinion, for the poor showing in Quebec. He quoted from a recent letter from Hon. Col. Blondin, postmaster-general in the present government, to the effect that different methods had been pursued and the recruiting had been given over to a man like Gen. Lessard the French-Canadians would have enlisted.

Laurier's Point of Law. Sir Robert Borden moved the second reading of the bill in a brief statement, having already explained its provisions when he introduced the measure. He declared that no new principle was involved as compulsory military service had been provided by the Militia Act since 1868. Sir Wilfrid Laurier followed in a long and somewhat labored speech. He insisted that there was no power as the law now stood to compel men to serve as soldiers outside of Canada. He said that the present parliament was moribund, and that it should not act on so important a matter without a mandate from the people. He spoke of the opposition to conscription on the part of organized labor, and the strong feeling against it throughout the provinces, and of the moving amendment referring the whole subject to the people.

Foster's Reply Effective. Sir George Foster followed in an eloquent speech declaring that the responsibility resting upon it and then he judged by the people. He had sent out soldiers to the front under an implied contract that they would not be forced to fight. He could not stop to discuss the constitution with the Huns at our gates. A referendum could accomplish nothing against conscription parliament would still have no choice but to fill our armies, referendum or no referendum. For Vancouver, said we must either get on with the war or out of it, and there was no way to maintain that part. He supported the amendment from quite different angles, the each one declared himself to be at heart a supporter of the bill. Mr. Macell said the British government had not attempted to coerce Ireland by applying the conscription law to that country, and the Dominion Government might profit by Quebec. It would be impossible to put 200,000 people in jail and more would be added to the ranks by the allies by persuasion than by coercion.

Line of Cleavage. Sir Wilfrid said that the extension of the parliamentary term had granted a year ago almost to the very day that the prime minister pronounced himself "with emphasis" as being against conscription. The bill would not have been voted had anyone suspected that he intended to force thru conscription. The present parliament was not only moribund, but vacant and the entire west under-represented. No such radical change in national policy as compulsory military service should be made without first appealing to the people. The bill had aroused bitter opposition and had caused a deep line of cleavage not only between province and province, but between classes and classes in all the provinces. The working people, for whom there was the greatest danger, not because they were unpatriotic, but because they were democratic. They wanted the whole subject referred to the people. The working people, for whom there was the greatest danger, not because they were unpatriotic, but because they were democratic. They wanted the whole subject referred to the people.

Continuing, Sir Wilfrid said that he was quite content to stand on the statement of the postmaster-general. We should not blink the facts in Quebec. To pass conscription would produce great irritation in that province, but if there was a referendum and the people voted for conscription Sir Wilfrid was prepared to pledge his word and his reputation that the people of Quebec would cheerfully acquiesce in that decision. He therefore appealed to the government to consult the people by referendum. It was no answer to say that the soldiers could not vote on such a referendum, because they could and they would vote. The ballot boxes were already in England, where they had been sent in 1915 when Mr. Rogers had sent the people of Canada in thunder tones demanding a general election. In closing Sir Wilfrid moved that the bill before the house be not further proceeded with until it had been submitted by a referendum to the electorate.

Charges Breach of Faith. "In spite of taunts and provocation, the Liberal party in Canada has given the spectacle to the world of all sections and all races in this country united in support of the British crown. Today the government insists upon forcing thru a moribund parliament, a rump parliament, without consultation with the people, a measure which it has proclaimed every day from August 4, 1914, to April 18, 1917, it would never resort to. It would change the law as old as Canada itself, that no man shall be compelled to serve as a soldier against his will, except to repel an invasion. That was the law of France when Canada was a French colony, that was the law of England when Canada became a British colony, and that was the law of the United Kingdom thru centuries and up to one year ago."

Militia Act Avoided. Sir Wilfrid recalled the fact that although the government now claimed that the Militia Act authorized the sending of Canadian soldiers beyond the borders of Canada, it had never brought the Militia Act into force or sought to justify sending the Canadian expeditionary force abroad by its provisions. He read from the governor-general's cable to the British Government at the outbreak of the war, in which it was said that was a moot question whether the militia could be sent outside of Canada under section 69 of the Available Man Power. The prime minister then briefly commented upon certain statistics reported that since 1911 the number of men in Canada between the ages of 20 and 40 had increased by at least 350,000. He said in spite of the large number of Canadian troops overseas, it might be fairly surmised that we had available for military service today in Canada the same number of men between Struma in the Lake Tahnos-Butkovo sector, northeast of Salonica. That the retirement of the British was voluntary is indicated by the Bulgarian official report dealing with the manoeuvre, which does not mention any fighting as having taken place. There has however, already been some activity on the part of the British in the Vardar-Lake Doiran sector, but Sofia reports that the attempt made by them to advance near Dautli was repulsed.

The Potato Outlook.

The first shipments of potatoes from North and South Carolina have been received at several Ontario ports, and shippers state that owing to the frosts shipments were delayed nearly a month. It is expected that prices will decline, and that the farmers who are holding home-grown potatoes for increased prices are doomed to disappointment if the difficulties of transportation can be overcome. There is an immense crop of Carolina potatoes seeking northern markets. In the maritime provinces Carolinas brought down the price from $7 to $5 per barrel during the past week.

DYSPEPSIA, MAN'S GREATEST ENEMY

Is Most Prevalent of All Present-Day Diseases, Declares L. T. Cooper—Victims Are Whimsical and Melancholy and Suffer Great Mental Depression—Disease Can Be Cured, He Says.

Explaining the record-breaking purchase of Tanlac by G. Tamblin, Ltd., Lyman Bros. Co., Ltd., and the leading wholesale and retail crucians throughout the United States, Mr. E. C. Harris, representing the Canadian Distributor of Tanlac, stated last night that the hundreds of questions now being asked all over Toronto make it imperative that some explanation be made to satisfy public interest...

Speaking of Tanlac, he said: "Thousands of the prominent people—in fact, people representing all walks of life—in the larger cities of the country, who are suffering from dyspepsia, are accomplishing such remarkable results, are even more enthusiastic over Tanlac than Mr. Cooper himself."

"Of all the distressing conditions that afflict humanity, catarrh of the stomach, or what is more commonly known as chronic dyspepsia, is probably the most prevalent. This most universal malady has baffled the medical profession for years, and the most skilled specialists have been unable to cope with it successfully."

"Hours might be consumed in describing the suffering and mental and physical of the sufferers of chronic dyspepsia and their failure to heretofore get relief. A morbid, unreal, whimsical and nervous condition of the mind, aside from the nervousness and physical suffering, is the usual condition of the average dyspeptic and life seems scarcely worth the living."

"Dyspepsia, or indigestion, as the case may be, is caused by the taking of too much food, of unsuitable food, and the mucous membrane of the stomach becomes irritated, and there is set up an acute or subacute gastric catarrhal condition which prevents the proper digestion of the food."

"At this point Mr. Harris quoted from one of Mr. Cooper's recent lectures, in which he said: "Of all the distressing conditions that afflict humanity, catarrh of the stomach, or what is more commonly known as chronic dyspepsia, is probably the most prevalent. This most universal malady has baffled the medical profession for years, and the most skilled specialists have been unable to cope with it successfully."

He is 26 years of age and had been in the city for seven years, being employed by the T. Eaton Co., Limited, as ledgerkeeper for five years. His mother lives at 65 Bowden ave."

He went overseas with a sergeant of a "kittie" unit, raised by the 48th Highlanders, and received his commission shortly after his arrival in England. Before going overseas he was connected with the Colonial Investment and Loan Co.

He was wounded and shell shocked last June and after recovering was stationed at headquarters, Bellingham, B. C., where he was promoted to sergeant at headquarters in France. "Most cases of dyspepsia can be cured if the diet is properly looked after and with the proper treatment. Proper eating and the proper amount of food are the most important factors in the treatment. Most people who suffer from dyspepsia, are in the habit of eating too much food, and eating too fast."

PLAYS, PICTURES AND MUSIC

"SUBMARINE EYE" DRAWING CROWDS. ROBINS PLAYERS IN BRIGHT COMEDY. "Mile a Minute Kendall" Rushes Along in Sparkling Fashion. PLAYERS WELL CAST. Members of Company Appear to Splendid Advantage All Thru.

So great was the eagerness on the part of the Toronto public to see the wonderful undersea film at the Grand last week that the management has determined to secure the pictures for another entire week. "Submarine Eye" will be shown two performances daily, and by the means of a new device introduced this week the marvelous construction of the vessel will be seen more clearly and to much better advantage than before.

Among all the comedies which the Robins Players have presented at the Royal Alexandra none has taken a securer hold on the audience than "Mile a Minute Kendall." Owen Davis' sparkling comedy in three acts, "Finally," which is the story of a man who is cast for this part by the characters fit the several players with the most perfect adaptation. Mr. Robins tumbles in upon the first act and swings thru the whole affair with the most perfect ease.

Guarantee that "In Again, Out Again" will prove an absolute cure for a grouch or a spell of the blues could readily be offered with each admission ticket sold at the Regent Theatre this week, where that photoplay featuring the inimitable Douglas Fairbanks, the acrobat of the screen, is being shown.

Excellent Bill for STAR'S CLOSING WEEK. "Shrapnel Dodgers" Present an Original, True, and Burlesque Are Bright and Melodious.

In one of the most up-to-the-minute comedy turns, "The Shrapnel Dodgers" are playing a return visit to the Regent Theatre. They have been engaged as a special attraction for the closing week of the season.

GERMAN SPY SYSTEM EXPOSED IN NEW FILM. "Treason," the Headline Attraction at Hippodrome, is New War Picture With Real Thrills.

"Treason," a splendid war film dealing with the German spy system in France, is the headline attraction at the Hippodrome this week. The methods by which accurate information is obtained by the German authorities are well depicted by a capable company headed by Allen Holubar, Joseph Girard and Lois Wilson in photoplay repeats with thrilling action and startling situations, thru which a love story is woven.

AT THE MADISON. An exceptionally attractive bill drew large houses to the Madison Theatre yesterday. In "Her Better Self" Pauline Frederick is seen at her very best—and an excellent bet it is. The comedy, "A Reckless Romeo," featuring Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle, is deliciously funny, and besides giving Mr. Arbuckle the opportunity for clever comedy, also provides an opening for many hair-raising stunts.

Reviews Growth of Church During the Past Fifty Years

This being jubilee year, some interesting facts concerning the growth of the Presbyterian Church in Canada during the past fifty years are given in the current issue of The Presbyterian Witness.

The witness states, however, that the general assembly has set the church a task which requires an annual budget of $1,600,000. Of this amount, $697,500, or 56 per cent, is for home missions and social service, and augmentation, but the ordinary receipts (apart from the special offering) for these funds in 1916 were $441,247, less than half the amount required, and in conclusion it asks the question, "shall we not, in view of the jubilee of confederation by larger gifts and more thoro personal and national consecration?"

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH ISSUES SPECIAL APPEAL

Asks Members to Unite in Effort to Wipe Out Existing Deficits.

A circular letter has been sent out to all the ministers of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, signed by the chairman of the board of finance and the moderator of the general assembly. It calls attention to the fact that Sunday, July 1, will be Dominion Day, and marks the jubilee of confederation, and appeals to the entire membership to unite in a movement to rally and strengthen the moral and spiritual resources of the church. It points out the pressing needs of the church, among which are 187 home mission fields now vacant. The board of foreign missions is unable to send reinforcements to the foreign fields, and states that the unpreparedness for after-war conditions is causing deep concern. It also points out that deficits exist of $30,000 in home missions and social service, foreign missions $19,640, and augmentation east $4024. It points out emphatically that until these deficits are fully met and the reproach of abandoned fields wiped out it will be impossible for the board and presbyteries to carry out that aggressive policy of expansion which is due to the country and the Lord, and a special collection will in consequence be taken up for a jubilee offering.
