"I'm not tipsy, yer honor. It's rheumatics," said the man, who had much ado to speak at all. "No matter, all right. We'll tack about." And he proceeded to "tack about" at once, and with great vigor, the Captain lying with his eyes closed and his cigar between his lips. The next moment the patched and dirty sail dipped into the sea, the boat turned bottom up, and its eccupants, of course, went with it. The old man had grasped the edge of the vessel and clung to its! The Captain clung to nothing. He had put out that remembrance of a right urm, which was all he brought from Seven Oakes, but it scarcely served him. By the time he remembered that the sleeve was actually empty, he was in the waters. He could not swim. His heavy cloth clothes weighed him down. The tipsy boatman could not help him.

"It's over with me," thought the soldler. "I'd like to see my mother again." Bug & Moth Exterminator.

J. L. STEWART, EDITOR. SATURDAY EVENING, AUG. 16, 1873.

Comic papers flourish in Europe faculty of perceiving the ludicrous, and they demand that the ludicrous shall be sistibly funny without the slightest con-clearly the comic side of party politics.

They have discovered a humorously malignant manner of denouncing men and measures that is highly entertaining, both to the enemies and the friends of the assailed. Lord Dufferin is now the mark at which they aim, and they the mark at which they aim, and they fire away at him amid the laughter of their readers. He is, they declare with a comic air of conviction, everything that is weak despicable; twannical. the mark at which they aim, and they that is weak, despicable; tyrannical.

They demand his resignation, give him advice as to his future conduct, and talk to him like an angry father to a rebellious child. They "have no hesitation in expressing broadlyand in plain English," sooner had the word "order" fallen from his lips, than up jumped Mr. Mackenzie to a question of privilege, and though the Speaker at first interrupted him, he was allowed to proceed with his object as understood by the chair. Turning an eye to the galleries, fire leader of the Opposition of the Company of xpressing broadlyand in plain English," their "opinion that Lord Dufferin's action is simply despicable." "sionally to their idols by the unsophis-"ticated worshippers of Mumbo Jumbo." A Chance for Martyrdom. Mr. Huntington has intimated that he will not appear before the Royal Comaission to give evidence in the Scandal waters of New York and Long Island case. He seems by no means desir-ous of accepting a half day before that body in proving that Sir John Macdonald sold the railway contract. His calls for the enactment of most stringent friends positively assert that he will stand aloof on his dignity and that Mc-Mullen will sneak off to Chicago. But Mullen will sneak off to Chicago. But pretty pass' when the river thieves can, it is said that Mr. Huntington will be in broad daylight, take possession of a forced to appear. The Royal Commisforced to appear. This will afford him a secured, and then pull quietly and unto the copper on her bottom, has been secured, and then pull quietly and unsolance for martyrdom,—a glorious obance—a chance equal to imprisonment for refusing to pay school taxes. He may embrace the chiance and become a martyr. He may stand on his dignity as a member of Parliament and refuse to obey the summons of the Commission. He may endure imprisonment rather than open his mouth or produce his papers. Then, then we shall hear the cry of indignation in the land. Then will the Commission be denounced as a modern star chamber, then will rhetorical shrouds for the Rights of Parliament and the Liberties of the People be invented and proclaimed to be required for immediate use, then will Huntington be exalted above all the others of his tribe. Mr. Mackenzie should restrain Huntington. It will not be wise to permit this martyrdom. It will make Huntington Leader and reduce the companion of the copper on her bottom, has been secured, and then pull quietly and underly to the hear of his ribe. in the fact that the cable in question had been stolen from the Austrian brig Oscar, Captain Surich, by river thieves, on the day of the fire. It appears that the Oscar, a vessel of 560 tons burden, caught fire at the dock where she was hauled up to take in cargo, and it became necessary to cast her off. The brig, once adrift, floated up the river to a point off Astoria, where she grounded and burned nearly to the water's edge. Captain Surich sent off the crew in boats to keep guard over her and protect her quoting New York papers of late. The Herald editorially says of the disturbance created by Mr. Mackenzie and his friends at the prorogation: "For a time "the scene of disorder and vituperation keep guard over her and protect her chains, anchors and other imperishable property. The Exhibition.

The inhabitants of the Celestial City intend doing all they can to make the exhibition this year a success, and a credit to their city. A meeting of the York County Agricultural Society was held at ericton on Wednesday evening. The great question of horse racing was discussed, and it was decided to have a Choice Bouquets, well arranged, from series of races. Mr. J. H. Reid, the Miller's green-house, at Hanington Bros. President, has the affair in hand; and has collected over $700 towards repairing the track. The Society resolved to make the prizes foot up $2000. A Family Disturbance An Idle Husband Beats the Wife who Supports Him. The inhabitants of Reed's Point have been excited the last few days about the quarrels of Mr. and Mrs. Lordly of the Brunswick House, and yesterday the aid of the police was called in. It seems that Mrs. Lordly complains that her Lord and andster does no work to support himself. She has been known as a most industrious and hard working woman who, for a number of years, has kept a hotel in the city. Lordly himself has lived in the country, but some time and turned her from the house. She lingered near, however, and, when he left the house, she effected an entrance and the service of the site of the site of the site of the service of the site.
